Members of the Murray Louis Dance Company, who will perform in the FAC tonight. See artslines.

Theater in another dimension

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

You are in another dimension, not only of sight and sound, but also of fantasy. You are in the Writer's Zone.

The Writer's Zone is where those at the typewriter control other's lives and destinies. Or do they?

Winter Glass, [Amherst College, April 8] is the story of a young writer trapped in the realm of the writer's zone. A place where the thoughts and images of one man [Jim Albrecht] come to life.

Richard Sender [Albrecht] is in his apartment one day struggling to write that all-American play that every kid from Brooklyn who ever took a theatre course dreams of creating. Troubled by a typewriter which makes mistakes, and an imagination which is exhausted, Sender is horrified to see his characters suddenly appear before him.

They are the people whom he has created, but they are strangers at first. There is Michael Beach [Lee Seham], a two-bit hoodlum who just wants to get ahead in the world any way he can. With him is his wise-cracking, tough New Yorker friend Jessica Haley [Laura Ellison].

At first, Sender is reluctant to believe that he, not God, controls their every move. But then he accepts the power and has a little fun with it.

In his fantasy [or is it reality?] Michael and Jessica plot to kill a man, whose identity is cleverly hidden until the end. They are helped by Andrew [Colin Wood], a stuttering Eddie Haskell type who inherited his chauffeur's uniform and job from his father, who by all accounts must have been as dumb as Andrew.

Andrew's major problem is neither his ignorance or stuttering, but rather his bladder. He goes to the bathroom more times than Jamie Lee Curis escapes knife-wielding, never-say-die mad men who kill everyone and everything at summer camps. Andrew just can't empty his bladder enough.

Michael and Jessica's plan depends on the help of Andrew's boss, Marty. The only problem with Marty [Randy Farias] is that he lacks a stable mind. A lover of costumes, he changes from a cigarette smoking, cookie selling Girl Scout to Quasi-modo.

In the middle of this, Richard finds himself no longer just the thoughtmaker, but an unwilling participant. He soon realizes that he is no longer in control. His characters rule him.

The acting was tremendous, especially Wood who plays Andrew so believably you almost sympathize with the wimp.

Winter Glass was written and directed by Amherst College's Geoffrey P. Cantor. His writing is crisp and fast-paced. It almost makes you feel like you are indeed visiting the Writer's Zone, but beware, because once you're in you can never go back.

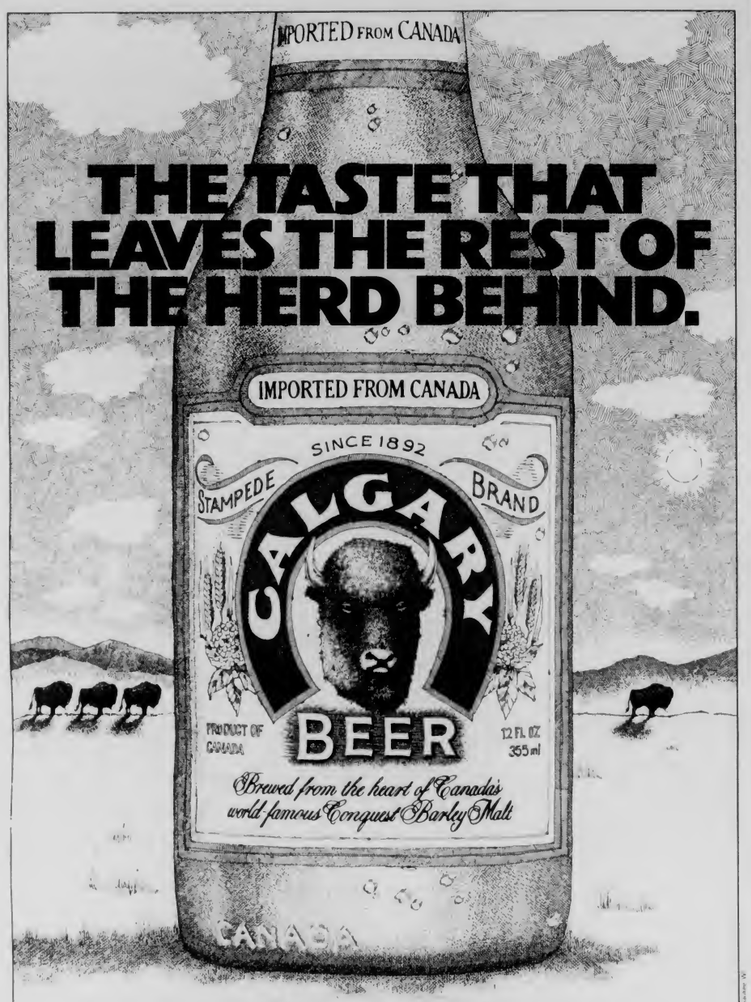
Not quite Oscar material

By ED ROBINSON
Collegian Correspondent

The following movies may be released next summer, but I wouldn't count on it.

Halloween III — The Elephant Dumbo, an enraged elephant carrying a lifetime of grudges, returns to the small, peaceful town where he was raised fifty years before and proceeds to systematically wipe out everyone who ever fed him a bad peanut. Shelley Winters plays the elephant — not for the squeamish.

Invasion of the Blue Oral-B Toothbrushes A sci-fi thriller with a heart. Gerry Gums goes to bed not knowing that when he wakes up there will be five, alien, blue toothbrushes in his toothbrush cup next to his own — and he will not be able to tell which one is his. Terry Lucas, George Lucas' three-year-old daughter did the special effects and I hear the alien toothbrushes look frighteningly real.



Footloose Times at Private School Director Stephen Schpielberg gives us the definitive horny youth movie. He has distilled these movies to their essence. Dispensing with plot and characterization altogether, the movies focuses on the simple joys of a field hockey team composed entirely of girls with the biggest boobs you've ever seen. While the sound track incessantly booms out today's number one hits, the action never wanders far from the locker room; in fact, ninety percent of the movie takes place in the shower. Whenever someone gets dressed the camera cuts away quickly before the audience gets bored. A classic of its kind.

Journey to the Center of the Mayonnaise Jar When Thelma Screecher, modern career woman and housewife, accidently drops a spoon into a mayonnaise jar and is unable to retrieve it by ordinary means, her husband, a mad scientist, shrinks her down to the size of a toothpick and throws her in after it. The history of mayonnaise is woven masterfully into the plot. Gary Coleman makes a cameo appearance as one of the chunks of tunafish that Thelma encounters in her adventures inside the mayonnaise jar.

Tears of Enjoyment How many times in your life have you seen a movie that you loved so much that you felt that the director made it especially with you in mind? Once? Twice? Maybe five times? Wrong. The answer is eight. Anyway, this may be one of those movies. The story is about a cold, aging woman who rediscovers her sexuality and soon becomes the most popular woman on the block. Heartache ensues when the other mothers in the neighborhood band together and refuse to let her drive their adolescent sons to the movies on Friday nights. I won't spoil the movie for you by telling you how this all works itself out.

Alice Childress, author of Gullah, which will be presented in Southwest's Hampden Theater April 12-14. Call 545-0190 for information.

INTRODUCING CALGARY CANADIAN BEER.

Calgary Canadian is a rich, hearty-tasting beer brewed from the heart of Canada's world-famous Conquest Barley Malt. Ask for it at your favorite watering hole.

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day they take place. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

CANDIDATE'S NIGHT - Come out and listen to those persons seeking Orchard Hill positions for 84-85. Ask them questions, hear what they plan on doing for you. 9 p.m., Field Main Lounge.

ORCHARD HILL BIRTHDAY COMMITTEE MEETING - Help us plan and organize events surrounding the 20th Anniversary of Orchard Hill. Lots to do for all. Everyone invited to participate. 6:30 p.m., Field Main Lounge.

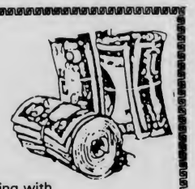
GAYPAC MEETING - Newly-formed lesbian and gay political action group. Come share your ideas. 2:30 p.m., SU 413.

JEWISH FEMINIST GROUP MEETING - 7 p.m., Campus Center 803.

ANIMAL RIGHTS COALITION - We will discuss our projects for the rest of the year and organize for the Boston rally. 7:30 p.m., CC 917.

FIRST PARACHUTE JUMP - First jump course tonight. Come to introductory meeting and you can jump this Saturday for the experience of your life. 7:30 p.m., CC 801.

LESBIAN UNION - The L.U. holds weekly rap groups on Thursdays. Everyone is welcome to attend. Come to share thoughts and meet people. 7 p.m., 406G Student Union.



Pine Nook Typing Svcs.
serving the Five College Community since 1968

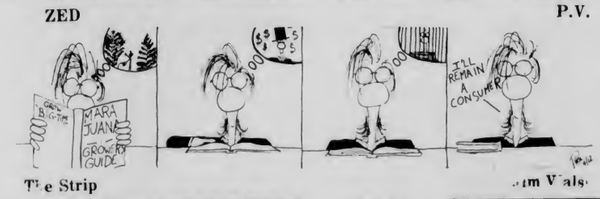
Mary Sabourin has joined
Pine Nook Typing Svcs.
Mary has her MFA in writing and has taught rhetoric and expository writing at the U of Mass.

For quality typing, formating & editing of dissertations & theses call 665-4945 for further information and reservations.

MAKE MONEY IN COLLEGE

Earn $185 to $475+ weekly, working with MCL and Associates. We have a lot of part-time and full-time positions available in your area. We are a small, yet rapidly expanding marketing research firm based in the New York Metropolitan area. For complete details and an application, please send a stamped self-addressed envelope to MCL and Associates. Post Office Box 579. Ithaca, New York. 14851.

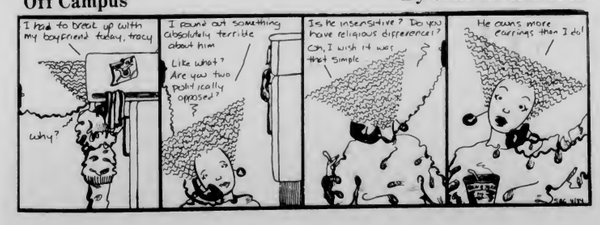


Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

ZED P.V.

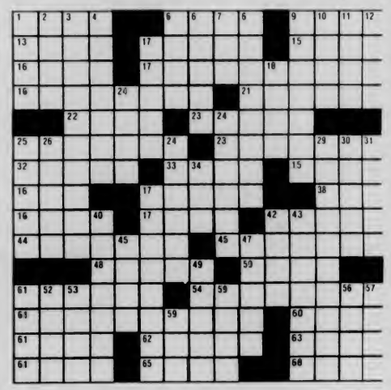
The Strip ...im Wals.



Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

FRED BAKER By T.A.D

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Coffeehouse
5 Tighten, as slack ropes: Naut.
9 Street collector's items
13 Sobeit
14 Frangible
15 Concerning an age
16 Mousse shaper
17 Giving pleasure
19 Monastic rank or office
21 Endured
22 Students' pre-test activity
23 Part of a staircase
25 More brittle
28 Provided the wedding feast
32 Evaluates
33 Ireland, to some 35 Palate-pleasing outlet
36 Wagner heroine
37 Honeyed
38 Artist Vermeer
39 Book buyer's purchases
41 Little boys
42 "Et tu, ——?"
44 Railroad car
46 Dwellers in a certain den?
48 Pores over
50 —— in a while
51 Hammered into form
54 Absolved
58 Vivacity
60 Rooftop decoration
61 Have —— for
62 Clear, as tape
63 Rugby's rival
64 Stage role
65 Restaurant order
66 Refresh oneself

DOWN
1 Vacationer's choice
2 Cupid
3 Offer congratulations
4 Vote for
5 Be impatient
6 Speed demon
7 Demeanor
8 Fun to be with
9 Leisured
10 Saharan
11 Dished out
12 Luge
14 Decorator's choice
18 Encourage 20 Chats: Slang
24 Most reticent
25 Popular garnish
26 "Bolero" composer
27 Carrot, at times
29 Put new life into 30 Hearten
31 Enjoys a hearty meal
34 Sunrise feature
37 More unflappable
40 Ophidian
42 Stick fast
43 Win back
45 Uncover
47 Don Quixote's Rosinante
49 Type of fishing
51 Partner of dash
52 Informal greeting
53 Give one's word
55 South African fox
56 Adam's grandson
57 Dimple
59 FDR Fed. agcy

For information and the latest news I read the Collegian.

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
American Chop Suey
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

BASICS LUNCH
Grilled Cheese on Wheatberry
Soybean, Corn, Tomato Casserole

DINNER
Baked Chicken
Supreme Sauce
Cranberry Sauce
Chopped Beefsteak Special

BASICS DINNER
Brazilian Rice Casserole
Baked Chicken
Supreme Sauce
Cranberry Sauce

Weather

A mixture of clouds and sun over the east today, and mostly sunny over western sections of the state. Highs mostly in the 50s to lower 60s, except in the mid 40s along eastern coastal areas. Clear tonight, lows in the 30s. Mostly sunny Friday, highs mostly in the 50s to lower 60s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

L	A	O	S		A	B	A	D		J	U	I	S	T
A	B	L	E		C	O	M	E	I	S		A	N	T
G	A	L	A		O	U	I	E	T		B	R	A	N
S	I	G	M	U	N	D		R	O	M	B	E	R	G
H	E	R	O	I	C		W	O	E	I	S
		E	S	T	E	E	M		A	R	T	S
A	T	B	E	S	T		L	I	O	N		F	O	R
L	I	E	O	N		E	R	A	S	E		M	U	L	E
L	A	Y		A	D	I	T		P	I	A	T	I	O
	L	O	F	T		P	E	A	R	L	S
		F	A	R	M			R	E	E	C	H	O
A	D	A	M		W	E	D	S		R	E	N	E	W
E	N	T	I	C		S	U	Z	A	N		I	L	A	Y
A	L	A	C	E		H	O	R	N	S		E	L	L	A
O	L	E	S			H	A	T	S			P	O	E	K

Make a good buy before you say goodbye.

Andy Griffith

Buying your leased phone now saves you time and money next term.

This year, don't leave for home without your phone. Buy it before summer and save yourself some time and money. Buying your AT&T leased phone now means you'll have your phone with you the very first day back to class.

To buy the phone you're leasing, just call AT&T Consumer Sales & Service's toll-free number. Or visit any of our AT&T owned and operated Phone Centers. It's that easy. So call us before you say goodbye. Then unplug your phone and take it with you. And have a nice summer.

1-800-555-8111
Call this toll-free number 24 hours a day.

Holyoke
Ingleside Mall

Hadley
Hampshire Mall

AT&T

©1984 AT&T Information Systems

Patroits sign top draft pick; Huskers' Fryar avoids USFL

FOXBORO (AP) - Irving Fryar has signed a four-year contract with the New England Patriots, who said Wednesday they will make the Nebraska wide receiver the top pick in the National Football League draft, still nearly three weeks away.

Because the Patriots have the first choice, NFL rules allow them to sign a player before the May 1 draft, said Jim Heffernan, the league's director of public relations.

"They've assured us that they are going to draft thim No. 1, so it's OK," Heffernan said.

He added that the Patriots' action was the first pre-draft signing since the NFL and American Football League held their first combined draft in 1967.

New England General Manager Patrick Sullivan announced the agreement Wednesday at a news conference.

The Patriots, who own the top pick for the second time in three years, acquired it April 4 in a trade with Cincinnati. New England gave up two first-round picks this year, the 16th and 28th overall, a 10th-round choice this year, and a fifth-round selection in 1985.

This year's top pick originally belonged to Tampa Bay, which traded it to Cincinnati quarterback Jack Thompson.

The Patriots took defensive lineman Ken Sims of Texas with the top choice in 1982 and came very close to obtaining last year's first pick from Baltimore, which they would have used to draft quarterback John Elway, said Sullivan.

The speedy Fryar rose to the top of this year's draft class after United States Football League teams signed Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier, a running back who was Fryar's college teammate, and Brigham Young quarterback Steve Young.

The New Jersey Generals reportedly were interested in Fryar. But the Boston Globe reported last Sunday that Generals' owner Donald Trump apparently was upset with Fryar's asking price and never made an offer.

Jack Mills, Fryar's agent, said on the day the Patriots obtained the top pick that "negotiations with the Generals about Irving are dormant," the Boston Herald reported.

They hope the 5-foot-11½, 205-pound Fryar will take some pressure off wide receiver Stanley Morgan, who has led the team in receptions in three of the last four seasons. Morgan caught 58 passes last year but frequently was double teamed because New England had no outstanding pass-catching threat to complement him.

Fryar caught only 27 passes in his first three seasons at Nebraska, but, as a senior, was a double threat. He caught 40 passes for 780 yards and eight touchdowns, and ran 23 times for 318 yards and two touchdowns.

Track team in the middle

By M.E. MURRAY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's outdoor track team had a good outing Tuesday at a Tri-Meet, finishing between third-place Tufts University and host Springfield College.

The highlight of the day was the UMass sweep of the 3,000 meter run by Chris Pratt (10:25), Kim Baker and Deidre Doyle.

Predictably, Liz Patterson had another fine day as she took first in the shot-put (28'-2") and second in the discus (125'-4").

"It was an OK day," said Coach Kalekeni Banda. "But it showed that we do not yet have dual-meet caliber runners and are very weak in some events."

Most notable on this team is the complete absence of hurdlers, high-jumpers and triple-jumpers; consequentially, no entry in those events - no points.

What events the Minutewomen did enter they did well in. Kayla Morrison grabbed first in the 200 meters (25.4) and second in the 100 meters (12.64). "She'll probably be quicker when the weather warms up," said Banda.

Maureen O'Reilly led most of the way in the 800 meters before fading to second in the last 50 meters. It was an encouraging sign that the Junior is recovering from her months of injuries.

Julie Otis raced away with top-honors in the 1500 meters (4:53.7) followed by Eileen Kelly (3rd) and Sally Howes (4th).

Other highlighted performances by the Minutewomen:

Deb Duffy - second place, Javelin.
Susan Goldstein - third place, 400 meters.
Barbara Cullinan - third place, 100 meters.

Egad! It's the Sports page!

UMASS SKI CLUB
$69. Week Ender
BENDER
Spring Skiing April 13-15
at SUGARBUSH VALLEY

includes
Transportation

2 Nights Lodging	F & S
2 Days Lifts	S & S
Meals	S & S
Fri the 13th Party	Fri night
Bloody Mary party	Sat morn
Free Beer & Wine	Sat afternoon
Hot Tub Party	Sat night
Mimosa Party	Sun morn
Free Beer and Wine	Sun afternoon

ALL FOR ONLY $69
for more info call 545-3437

WORLD on a STRING, inc
GRAND REOPENING SALE
Visit our new store and get 15% off all our kites except Gayles
OPEN MON, TUES, FRI 10am-5:30pm
THURS. Til 8pm, SAT. 9:30am-5pm
CLOSED WED. & SUN
12 BRIDGE STREET
NORTHAMPTON, MA 01060
586-6141

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
21 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-3810
Trek - Fuji - Univega - Campagnolo
Suntour and others
Racing, Touring, and Commuting accessories

KICK OFF LOUNGE
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
Coming this weekend. . .
Saturday Happy Hour
featuring "Just George" 4:00 - ?
(from the Boston & Cape Cod circuit)
— All you can eat Chicken Wings! —
AT JUSTIN RYAN'S

INTERN and WORK-STUDY POSITIONS
Hilltop Health Club, the 1st residential wellness/fitness center on campus is seeking applications for the Fall semester from persons who have experience or skill in:

Exercise, nutrition, stress management, cardiovascular fitness, aerobics, fitness testing, weight training, or holistic health.

Internships may be taken for 1-3 credits arranged through faculty sponsorship.

Work-study applications also being accepted now.

Complete job description & application available at B-30 Baker House, Orchard Hill.
Application deadline - April 30.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Spring Special
Thursday Nites
Free Champagne for Ladies
9:30-11:00 PM
Two for One for everyone 9:30-closing
Sch'afer Beer $2.25 Pitcher anytime
REMEMBER FRIDAY AFTERNOON BUFFET

TONIGHT
Hear the new music of
Rack-A-Disc
Requests Welcome
Two For One 9 til 11
- All Liquor Drinks -
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Sports Log

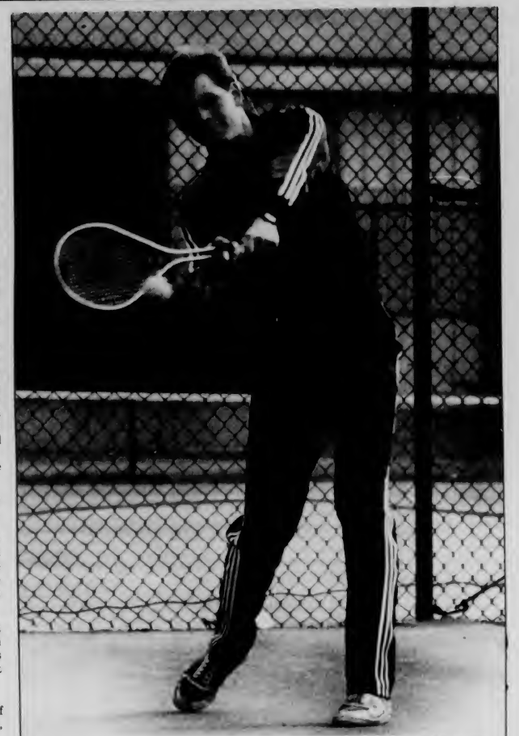
By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

Just a few thoughts...

Perhaps one of the greatest hockey games was played Tuesday night at the Nassau Collisium...The Rangers and Islanders battled it out for not three, but four periods in the fifth game of their playoff series...There have been some negative things said about Islander goalie Billy Smith, but he is the best pressure goalie in hockey, making some big saves in the overtime period. ...It's fairly ironic that Ken Morrow would score the winning goal--he played on the 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team, coached then by Herb Brooks, now coach of the Rangers...The Islanders can not rest, however, as they must play a tough and well-rested Washington Capital team. I'm going to take a stab and pick Washington in six games, but please don't ask me to bet. It's not that I'm chicken, it's just that...I..um...I..I have to give to my favorite charity (first excuse that came to my mind).

Being a Montreal Canadien fan, I was on the receiving end of an array of comments following the three, count 'em, three game sweep last week. These comments ranged from insults concerning members of my family to directions as to where to put my typewriter to actual physical expulsion (check Webster if that's a word). But, all of that aside, I believe that the Canadiens will take the Nordiques but lose to Washington in the Conference finals. Washington will then beat Edmonton to take the Stanley Cup...I really would like to bet, but those poor starving people at The Pub. OK, they may not be a charity, but it is a worthy cause.

Basketball playoffs will start next week with playoff spots still up for grabs. After what happened to the Bruins (remember them, first place in the Adams division--that's right, the ones playing golf now), Buffalo, and almost the Islanders, anything can happen in hoop, too...I personally would love to see a Celtics-Knicks series. It looks like the great rivalry of the mid-70s is coming back and a good playoff series will definitely add some oil to the fire, or whatever that saying is...Magic Johnson showed me absolutely nothing last week. After Kareem broke the record for most points in a career, the press interviewed Johnson. All he did was talk about how he gave Jabbar the ball, nothing about his teammate, only about himself. Well Magic, thanks for that insightful and profound comment.



Its a week old in the baseball season, and already there are a few surprises. Teams like Baltimore, Los Angeles, and Milwaukee are off to slow starts, highlighted by the World Champion Orioles getting swept by the Minnesota Twins. Teams like Detroit, Oakland, and the Mets got off the starting blocks quickly. They probably won't be there at the end, but could make for a few interesting races...Quick quiz--who was the last person Pete Rose passed on the all-time hit list?...While we're on the subject, I strongly recommend the game Trivial Pursuit. It's excellent for trivia buffs. There is a sports version that will make even the sports genious tremble.

A couple of final items: Remember Howard Schellenberger, head coach at #1 ranked Miami University football? Apparently, someone tried to impersonate Howard (I don't feel like writing out his last name) and use one of his credit cards. You can all breathe a sigh of relief, because the man was caught. Howard will never again "leave home without it."

The USFL and CFL are thinking about sharing players--a player will play in each league. It isn't nearly final yet, but its under consideration...I hope they at least change uniforms.

If you answered Hank Aaron, buy yourself a beer at my favorite charity. If you didn't, buy two.

No more need be said.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Guaye

WARMIN' UP — University of Massachusetts varsity tennis player Wayne Peterson gets ready for the UMass-Holy Cross match. Peterson won both his singles and doubles matches as UMass went on to their first victory.

Men's tennis victorious

By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

After dropping a 6-3 decision at the University of Rhode Island on Monday, the University of Massachusetts' men's tennis team came back to beautiful downtown Amherst on Tuesday to take a 6-3 match win from Holy Cross, giving the netmen a 1-2 record, and first year coach Manny Roberts his first win.

The doubles play gave UMass their first win, as the Minutemen swept all three doubles matches from the Crusaders, while splitting the six singles matches. The first doubles duo of Steve Jordan and Wayne Peterson won their match 6-3 6-2, while Marc Weinstein and Earl Small won their match in second doubles 6-3 6-4, and the 'Freshman Connection' of John DeKlerk and Paul Zaretsky won in third doubles 6-4 6-0. Jordan, Peterson, and Barry Katz were winners in singles play.

In the URI match, Peterson and Weinstein won their singles matches 7-6 6-2 and 7-5 6-3 respectively, while Jordan, Small, and Andy Pazmany all lost very close matches.

DeKlerk and Zaretsky won their doubles match 6-0 6-2, while Jordan and Peterson lost 7-6 6-4, and Weinstein and Small lost a 6-7 6-4 7-6 heartbreaker. The netmen will make a return appearance in Kingston on April 27 for the Atlantic 10 Championships.

UMass will travel to MIT for a match this afternoon, then face Clark on Sunday before returning to the friendly confines of the Boyden Tennis Courts for a match with Springfield College next Tuesday.

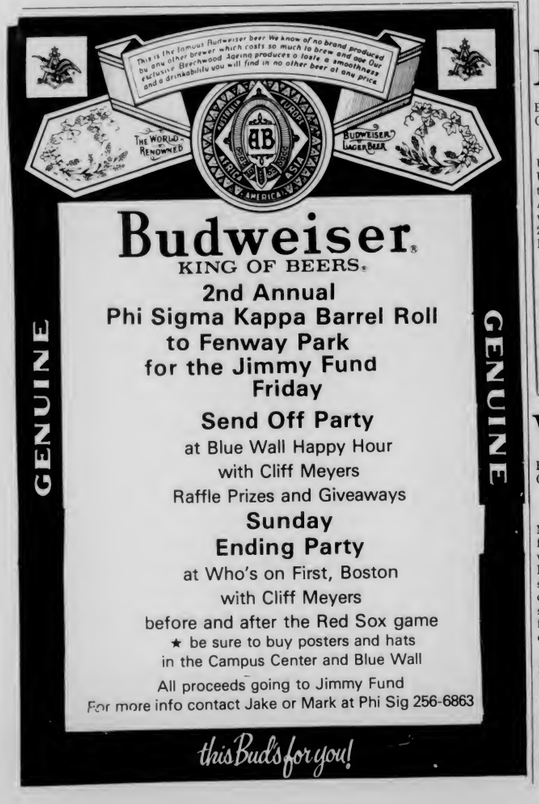
Women's crew oust UNH

By ELLEN HASKINS
Collegian Staff

WORCESTER - The University of Massachusetts women's varsity lightweight four christened their spring season with a victory over the University of New Hampshire on Worcester's Lake Quinsigamond last Saturday. The Umass four captured a quick three seat lead off the start and maintained the momentum to finish a full boatlength ahead of their competition.

"The women were confident and aggressive throughout the race," said coach Maria Mpelkas, "They just didn't sit on the lead, but they pulled for more open water."

In the three-boat varsity eight competition, UNH pulled a boatlength lead from the start and won the 3000 meter race in 6.10. But it was a bow to bow battle between UMass and Connecticut College for second place as both boats were even with 200 meters to go.



Conn College challenged at the 1800 meter mark and moved a seat up on the UMass shell. The UMass eight responded by bringing up the cadence (number of strokes per minute) for the final sprint, but not in time to cut Conn's seat length edge. Conn crossed the line at 6.17 with the UMass women 0.2 seconds behind.

"We aren't disappointed in the race," said varsity coxswain Beth Millette, "We rowed a smooth, controlled race. We'll catch them at the New England open in May."

Both the junior varsity and novice eights finished second to UNH with Conn coming in third.

"The novices have worked hard and are starting to click in and catch together," said Mpelkas, "They have a lot to look forward to."

Both the novices and the varsity crews are looking toward a tough 2000 meters against Trinity College this Saturday at the Hadley boathouse.

Small Ads... Big Results! CLASSIFIED ADS!

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of ice cream and nuts directly into a selection of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's Ice Cream

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

APARTMENT NEEDED

Desparate - need 2-3 bdrm apt for Fall 84 will take in summer - Puffton Townehouse or Brandywine - Susan 546-8348

AUDIO

New JVC 40 watt receiver w/5 band graphic equalizer $225. New 3 way Pioneer speakers w/frequency equalizer and 12" woofer $200. call Scott at 546-5451

AUTO FOR SALE

74 Ford van. Excellent engine. Runs great. $800. Ross - 256-8728

81 BMW 320i excellent condition 19700 mi alloy wheels alpine stereo A/C call eves 253-3009

1974 Dart slant 6, dependable, many new parts, asking 600$, 549-3798

75 Dodge Colt selling for parts - $175 new head cylinder for info call Lisa 546-8513

Toyota Celica 72 Runs fantastic Very reliable car $450 256-0909 6-8 pm

73 VW Beetle runs well body good many new parts $950 256-1080

CAPE COD

Seegull Beach West Yarmouth Large house 6 bedrooms sleeps 8 1½ bath 700 per person per season 253-7436

I need room for summer in South or Wesr Yarmouth. Call mark 256-8225

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS 4 years Quality Service at UMass. Why pay more? 256-1393

FOR RENT

2 badroom apt in duplex house available June 1 665-7148

4 badroom apt 2 bthrms nice location Rt 9 Amherst summer sublet w/fall option call for details Bob, Gareth, Alex 253-5798

Room in Hadley fermhouse 1½ miles from campus 137.50 + inexpensive utilities call Maggie 549-5229

Housemates wanted for Northampton house. Near downtown, bus. $150/mo. + call 584-2905

Summer subletters wanted for Swiss Village apartment. $175.00 includes all utilities! 256-1474

3 bedrooms availebla for summer with fall option Amherst Centre call evenings 253-2683

2 bedroom Townhouse apt in Squire Vill available June 1 with fall option. Pay 2 mo. get one free for summer sublet. On bus line. 665-8196

2 rooms for rant in beautiful $100,000 house in Sunderland. $185 includes everything call 549-1218

Fall option - 1 room available July 1st. Entire apt available in fall. Pool, tennis, bus. $137 utilities included! Call Leanne late PM 665-7581 keep trying!

2 badroom townhouse in Southwood for summer sublet w/fall option call 256-0354

FOR SALE

Computer Terminals for sale DEC VT55 video terminals with hard copy output excellent condition $500 or best offer 549-6994

Camera Canon F1 w/35mm wide angle lens must sell best offer Tom 546-6147

13" B & W Zenith TV - fairly new works fine call Mike - 546-6860

FOUND

Found: Jacket in front of East Experiment Station March 15th. Call 546-7061 and describe to claim.

Found - Class Ring in womens restroom of Fine Arts Center call to identify 546-6902

Found a pair of glasses in Bartlett 65 on 4/3, taken to Cc lost & found on 4/10

A student ID from STCC in ladies room, 1st floor CC please stop by the Collegian to claim it.

GRATEFUL DEAD RIDERS NEEDED

Grateful Dead opener in Hampton VA riders needed for van leaving Thurs PM call 256-1037

HELP WANTED

The UMass Yearbook is now accepting applications for all positions for the 1984-85 staff. Apply in person at 102 CC (next to the Collegian)

OVERSEAS JOBS. . .Summer, yr. round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Mobile Vanding Vahicle Drivers wanted for Cape Cod this summer after 7:00 PM Pete 584-9580

INSTRUCTION

Naadad Tutor Accounting 221 call 6-5508

JOBS FOR FALL '84

Earthfoods Restaurant now hiring for part time fall positions. Work 8-12 hrs. week two hour mandatory Mon night meeting / two hrs committee work non pd. 3.50/hr High committment required Third World student, men, women encouraged to apply. Work study & non work study avail. Applications at Kitchen around corner from ride board deadline Mon Ap 16 EOE

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

The Legal Services Office has 8 positions available for full-time legal assistant interns for Fall 1984 semester. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. Aid attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, legal research, negotiations, investigations, giving advice and referrals, preparation of court forms, attendance at hearings in District and Superior Courts, and participation in administrative hearings and federal litigation. Maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervsion. To apply, and for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Friday, April 13, 1984. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO, 922 Campus Center

LOST

Green backpack and bluejean jacket Friday at TOC contains large white notebook. Reward please call Rick 256-1350

Lost U.S.N. green raingear. Left on Softball Field #11 last Wed. call Tom 323-5598 Reward

Before Break, purple and gray T-teck hand-knit wool sweater. Extreme sentimental value. Reward! If found, please call 253-8046

Tan Irish Twead Cap Morrill Audit please call 256-8135 great sentim value!!

Lost: Gold Ring w/diamond sentimental value reward offered call 6-9914 ask for Hope or Maria

Pair of shiny black shoas between Sylvan and Northeast last Monday around 7:30 pm please call John 253-9678

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Yamaha 650E excellent condition low mileage $1095.00 6-5039

1982 Honda 650 Nighthawk, exc. cond. new in 83, 1600, 549-6934

1980 Kawasaki 550 LTD red low miles excellent condition $1100 BO 549-6055

PERSONALS

Tapes: TDK SAC-90 $3.00 ea. call Rob or Carl 6-7762

Linda A. Hey fagface: Feliz Cumpleanos just a little late! Love Sue

Kathy Meaghar - Happy Birthday, Thanks for being you. Love Jim

Dr Spanky Congrats! Have fun with the long rubber gloves. Your roommates

John Nolan's Birthday is tomorrow the 13th! Wish him a happy one: 546-5671

Iota Gamma Upsilon
Open Rush
Thurs. 4/12 8-9 pm
Tues. 4/17 8-9 pm
Wed. 4/18 7-8 pm
For info call 256-6874

Debo - Happy 22nd! Go wild! Keep passing the open windows. Love, the roomies

Reach out and TUCK someone sign up for Tuck In Service Monday April 9 to Friday April 13 Campus Center Concourse

Trish: Nice tan, I hope you had a good time in Florida. Welcome back. Bubba

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

Rochaster. Preferably Thursday night April 12. Morning Friday 13. Call Heidi 546-5158

Ride naaded to NYC or Long Island on Friday April 13, after 11:00 am will share expenses. Please call Robin at 253-9971

Naed a ride for 2 on Sat eve 4/14/84 to Rockland or NYC no return Jody 546-4349

To North Andovar or area this Friday 549-7874 will share $

ROOM WANTED

Famelas looking for 1 or 2 bedrooms in house near campus and bus route for next semester and on. Must allow pets. Call 546-4349/4347

ROOMMATE WANTED

Famale roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

2 famele roommates wanted to share 3 bedroom Puffton apartment call 549-5487

Puffton 2 roommates wanted to share bedroom. Call Bruce or Beth 549-1414

Responsible famalas to share room in sunny Southwood apt. summer/fall 253-5109

1/2 roommatas - sign language useful 253-3591

Two paopla wanted to share a room in a very comfortable duplex across the street from Southwest call Peter 549-6985 or Terry 546-8797

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite 253-5111

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

SPRING DANCE!

McNamara House Council presents a SPRING DANCE
in the Bluewall Sat. April 14 from 8 pm - 1 am featuring Rack-A-Disk
Adm. $3/cash bar everyone's invited!

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Brittany Manor summer sublet with fall option call 253-7728 anytime

1 bedroom apt $295 includes everything summer sublet w/fall option 665-2338

TO SUBLET

Summer - roomy Amherst house with yard near town, on bus route call after 5 PM 256-1268

Available for summar: furnished efficiency on Route 9. $205.00 monthly. Call 323-6769 after 7 PM

2 badroom Brandywina apt available for summer sublet 6/1 - 9/1 rent is negotiable call 549-5951

1 bdrm apt Amherst Centar fall option 330 + elec 253-2486

For summar: Large bedroom in 4 bedroom house. 5 min walk to campus, large yard. $150 or best offer 549-1084

Female roommata for summer sublet neaded. Excellent rates. Onm bus rte, washer/dryer. Rent negotiable. Call before 11. 665-7581

Large badroom in Puffton private bath ideal for couple June-Sept $210 exclus call Brenda 549-6999

Beautiful 4 bedroom apt to sublat for summer fall option avail for two people, close to campus, rent neg call 549-6147

Rooms for rent starting June fall option Amherst Center Matt or Laura 256-6969

Apartmant for sublat 295 a month includes utilities, one bedroom June 1 - August 29, Amherst, Kevin 256-1482

Roommatad wantad for 1 bdrm apt wm only sublet w/fall option great location in downtown Amherst rent neg 256-1363

Townahouse 2 badroom apt available for sumemr and fall Please call soon 546-7648

Apartmant avail Juna 1 with fall option 295 mo incl utilities phone 665-7966 Sunderland

3 badroom apt. Amherst June 1 - Aug 30 fall option 549-3818

Great summar sublat large new two bedroom townhouse on Rt 116 Sunderland furnished carpeted pool tennis bank 7-11 near by on bus rt students or small family 665-4201

TRAVEL

Discount Travel to Europe: from $99. Travel to Rome, Athens, Lisbon, London, Paris, Frankfurt, etc. from only $99. each way. Call now or send for your FREE brochure. Operators always on duty. Enclose one dollar for postage and handling. EUROPE EXPRESS, INC., 3460 Main Street, Hartford, CT (203) 522-6580

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Someone to take over 1 badroom apt in Brandywine call 549-0667

Looking for roommates?? 2 femeles looking to share Townehouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

Wantad 3 bedroom apt will take over summer lease please call reward 546-8311

Naaded - Stats 140, Nater text call patrick 253-5298

WANTED TO RENT

Apartment May 25-28. Prefer Swiss or Colonial Village area. Call evenings 253-2948

Rolling Green or other area 1 bedroom apartment. Will take over summer. Doug 253-9610

HELP - Looking for apartment in Puffton Brandywine area. Will be well rewarded call Kim 546-4736

Apartment in Amherst for 2 girls take over lease June 1 please call Chrissy 546-8469 or Janine 546-8516

Two or three bedroom apt in Puffton reward Pam 546-9692, Mary 253-5604

2 or 3 badroom in Puffton will take over summer lease call Jim 546-4445

Puffton Brandywina Townahouse will take summer lease. Will give nice reward. Pam 546-6675, 546-6618

Reward for finding 2 or 3 bedroom Riverglade apartment by early May Jane 527-5407

Sports

Gorillas get nipped by Brown in OT

"That's the shame with these games- someone has to lose."
Referee Dave Leet to partner Ray Marr, leaving the field.

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

It was everything you wanted in a lacrosse game- except the right ending.

And as the Brown players celebrated their 9-8 overtime thriller, while the Massachusetts stickmen walked away in disconsolation, both teams knew they had been in a war, and all the spectators knew they had seen a beauty.

Tom Gagnon's goal for Brown at 1:21 of overtime put an end to the afternoon. The Gorillas had won the face-off but couldn't convert. It was after that when the Bruins pushed the ball upfield and set up around the Massachusetts net. From there, Gagnon came from behind the net, slipped away from defenseman Tom Aldridge's stick check, spun right, and beat goalie Gerry Moreau down low.

Afterwards, coach Dick Garber, disappointed but certainly not depressed, chose to talk about the toughness his team (1-2) had shown in coming back against the #1 rated team in New England and #10 ranked team in the nation.

"This is a good team (2nd and 13th ranked respectively) and they've got a lot of character," he said. "They never layed down out there, and kept playing full out. A lot of teams wouldn't have done that."

True indeed. The Gorillas trailed 8-6 with eight minutes left after the Bruins scored twice within 15 seconds to snap what had been a 6-6 deadlock, a tie that had lasted since halftime.

But with the Boyden Hill faithful (about 1000) urging them on, the Gorillas got within one with 5:27 left, as Tom Lukacovic beat two defensemen and then netminder Scott Lohan, while falling down, for his fourth of the day."

Then with the help of a pushing penalty against the Bruins, Lukacovic snuck in a Matthew O'Rielly rebound to tie up the game, with 3 seconds left on the penalty and only 39 left in regulation, touching off a mobbing celebration.

Earlier, the Gorillas had gotten on the board first, with Lukacovic's first, at 2:37 of the opening period. Brown came back with two goals of their own courtesy of John Keough and Rob Littell (a hat trick along with Gagnon), before Massachusetts tied it when Lukacovic found a low opening past Lohan.

The second period began at two apiece, thanks in no small part to some Gorilla aggressiveness from the attackmen, who, led by the body crunching work of Karl Hatton, weren't letting the Brown offense begin. When it did, Moreau was there to frustrate the Bruins, as he did many times with clutch saves everywhere, leading Garber to say later, "Gerry was super today, in and out of the cage."

The Gorillas seemed to thrive on what was a serious-hitting game and took the lead again with two goals from Fred Sanford and Mike Fiorini, making it 4-2. Brown Wasn't about to pack it in either and responded with three consecutive goals, before Massachusetts again came back to tie at five off the stick of Greg Fisk.

The Gorillas appeared to be taking a 6-5 lead into the lockerroom when Lukacovic got another with only 22 seconds left in the half. But Brown said no, and took the face-off upfield to pay-dirt only 10 seconds later, knotting the score at six.

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

ME AND MY SHADOW — University of Massachusetts junior Tom Lukacovic is being closely followed by Brown University's Mick Kandon. Lukacovic netted 5 goals for the Gorillas but Brown ended up victorious in OT, 9-8.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

THE WINDUP — An intense Lynn Stockley lets one go for the UMass softball team against Holy Cross yesterday. The southpaw worked 5 2/5 innings and gave up only 4 hits in leading the Minutewomen to the sweep.

Softball team sweeps; Holy Cross latest victim

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Top notch competition is great. It makes your team faster, sharper and better. But the constant strain of top-notch competition can wear you down very easily.

That's why coaches like UMass softball coach Elaine Sortino are happy to have an occasional Holy Cross on the schedule where players that don't normally see action can see some.

That was one of the numerous highlights yesterday as the Minutewomen routed an inferior Holy Cross softball team 7-0 and 12-2 in a doubleheader at NOPE yesterday.

In two games, UMass pounded out 27 hits while every player on the roster saw action except catcher Beth Talbott, who was resting a sore knee.

"We are starting to hit now," Janet Miller, who went 3 for 4 in the first game, said. "Out bats are coming back. We are concentrating on it more and working on it in practice."

One of UMass' biggest problems hitting was that they were lining screamers...right at the fielders. Yesterday the Minutewomen hit the ball in the gap, over the fielders and on the ground and racked up the hits.

Running down the list in the first game only, Tina Coffin, two for four, 1 RBI; Sally Maher, three for four and a triple; Allyson Rioux two for four, 2 RBI, Miller, two for three and a triple, Ann Ringrose, two for two, Ann King, two for three with two doubles and 2 RBI.

In the second game, Maher went three for three, Rioux tripled, Miller went three for four with 2 RBI and a triple, Coffin and Emily Biesch lacred doubles and Lynn Pekarski hit a grand slam home run.

"Everyone really started to hit," Maher said. "The team is starting to realize that it is not just going to come to you (the hits). You have to go out and work for them."

While the hitters shelled the Crusader pitchers, the Minutewomen hurlers gave up only four hits. Lynn Stockley improved her record to 7-5 after 5 2/3 innings of work. Stockley had six strikeouts and gave up only one hit.

Krista Stanton relieved Stockley and picked up her first minutes of the year with 1 1/3 innings work. Stanton also saw 2 innings work in the nightcap, and struck out three.

Cathy Reed had four strikeouts as she had little problems with Holy Cross. Reed, 7-2, allowed just two hits.

Strout, King, Peskarski, Ann Ringrose, who have seen limited action so far this year, saw big action today.

"Offensively, I'm starting to hit the ball," King said. "But I still have a long ways to go."

As will happen when a superior team is playing a lousy one, the concentration of the squad began to wilt at times. There were a few baserunning errors and a few blunders in the outfield.

"We have to be more on top of things," co-captain Coffin said. "We have to be more sharper. That wasn't a Division I team out there (referring to Holy Cross).

"Like Elaine (Sortino, the coach) said, no matter how good or bad a team is, you have to play the game. We can't afford errors like that against a URI."

Still, the two Crusader wins coupled with the Brown sweep on Tuesday gives UMass some momentum after losing three of their four earlier games.

"We really needed the wins," Coffin said. "It's been a good confidence booster." UMass now sports a 14-7 record and travels to Vermont for a four team tournament Saturday.

Legislature's motion may postpone tuition vote

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

BOSTON-- The State Legislature's joint committee on education yesterday unanimously passed a motion urging a one month postponement of next week's Board of Regents of Higher Education scheduled vote on a proposed tuition increase for state colleges and universities.

The motion, which is expected to be followed by the Regents, delays any vote on the proposed 15 percent increase until at least May 18.

University of Massachusetts Financial Aid Director Arthur Jackson applauded the decision as being "very positive and rational."

"It's a positive step in the right direction. The postponement means they (the Regents) are going to look at it more carefully, which may mean a decrease in the 15 percent," Jackson said.

UMass President David C. Knapp denounced the tuition increase, saying students' ability to pay such an increase is questionable.

"The Regents tuition policy shifts the traditional focus of questions on the financing of public higher education from questions about the responsibility of the state to one about the responsibilities of the students," Knapp said.

Chancellor of Higher Education John B. Duff was questioned at length by Sen. Gerard D'Amico, D-Worcester, and Rep. James Collins, D-Amherst, about his support of a new state policy that would raise tuition by 10 to 15 percent this fall and would force consideration of automatic increases every year.

Duff said he felt like "a tennis ball between two committees" because legislators working on the budget wanted the additional revenue while legislators on the education committee wanted to keep costs down.

He defended the overall tuition policy and the proposed increases for the upcoming school year, saying they would reduce inequities in costs at the various public colleges.

Collins, house chair of the panel, said he thought that instead of finding ways to increase tuition and fees, the regents should be working on ways to decrease the financial burden currently on many students.

"As a graduate of the University campus in Amherst, where my family could not afford the costs in a private institution...I don't want to see it happen today that students can't afford to go to the University of Massachusetts," Collins said.

Fran Pheeney, chair of the UMass Student Government Association Public Policy Committee, said she was "quite pleased" by the committee's decision and thought students had a strong impact on it.

Pheeney, who led a delegation of eight students, also said Knapp had a lot to do with the decision.

"Knapp was very helpful. Our arguments are reinforced by him. He's paid more and listened to a lot more than we are, however," she said.

Knapp, an outspoken critic of the plan which Duff, the regents and Governor Michael S. Dukakis support, said in the past "the basic policy question has been: 'What is the state's responsibility for financing public colleges and universities'? The regents policy focus is: 'What is the student's responsibility for meeting the cost of education?'

"The shift in emphasis is subtle, but it is far reaching in its implications."

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 53 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, April 13, 1984

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

BASKET CASE - Construction worker Nick Nickerson is hoisted skyward to put some touches to the baghouse.

Graduation official resigns

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The resignation of the University of Massachusetts administrator in charge of commencement "will not hurt the ceremony in any way," the vice-chancellor of University Relations and Development said yesterday.

Cheryl Walsh, assistant director of community relations, told Vice-Chancellor Deirdre Ling of her plans to take a position with the Wang Corporation yesterday morning.

"Cheryl has done an excellent job during her time here at UMass," Ling said. "Her resignation took me by complete surprise. If we all go by her plans for commencement, everything will go well. We just have to work together."

Walsh, 30, has been with the University since June 1978 and handles special events for the University, such as commencements, banquets, and fund-raising parites. She will take a public relations-communications position at Wang, Inc. of Lowell, Ling said.

"I have an opportunity at another location I felt I had to take advantage of," Walsh said. "I have enjoyed my years at UMass and I leave only because of this chance."

"It's a great loss to the University," Ling said. "She has a great deal of responsibility regarding commencement but with the two weeks notice traditionally given and maybe a few days after that, I don't anticipate any major problems."

The May 27 ceremony at Alumni Stadium is expected to be one of the biggest in the school's history. "The logistics are tremendous, the students, the parents and friends coming here, but the committee set up will be able to deal with all problems," Ling noted.

Ling said efforts to replace Walsh will begin in the summer but couldn't say whether or not her successor will come from within the University.

"It's much too early to say," the vice-chancellor said. "I've been busy in meetings and haven't had a chance to think about it. It will be an affirmative action search on a reasonably large scale."

"Dan Melley, the director of community relations, and others in his department will each take a portion of Cheryl's responsibilities come graduation," Ling said. "It'll be a little harried, but I'm confident."

New college president meets Amherst students

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

The hotly debated issue of the abolishment of fraternities at Amherst College was all but forgotten yesterday as President-designate Peter Pouncey, who will take over in June, met students for the first time at an open campus meeting.

Pouncey, currently a classics professor at Columbia University, was selected as Amherst's 16th president last September by trustees. Since that time, the trustees have debated, and in February voted to eliminate, the fraternity system at the school.

Despite strong negative student reaction, including protest demonstrations, a fast by fraternity members, and a heated demonstration with acting President G. Armour Craig at a similar college meeting, Pouncey was greeted with sustained applause by 350 students packed into Johnson Chapel.

But, while Pouncey said he had little involvement in the decision, he said he fully supported it.

"My own feeling is that it would have taken me longer because I would have had to face down the charge of local ignorance," Pouncey said. Craig, however, as an Amherst alumnus and former fraternity member, "had the courage as well as the experience to make the decision," he said.

Pouncey said while a fraternity system exists at Columbia University, the two situations are not comparable, as "the difference is that a fraternity a Columbia is not high in social status, where the status of fraternities in social life at Amherst College is very high."

continued on page 5

Kerry: acid rain situation 'very, very critical' in Mass.

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

U.S. Senate Candidate John Kerry called the acid rain situation in Massachusetts "very, very critical" and denounced the state of Illinois for not taking measures to lower acidity levels Yesterday during a panel discussion at the University of Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Kerry spoke before a lunchtime meeting of the Western Massachusetts section of the American Society of Public Administrators on the impact of acid rain in Massachusetts.

Also participating in the discussion were George Rejhon, director of Domestic Information of the Department of External Affairs of Canada, and David Kenney, director of the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Kerry said the acid rain problem in Massachusetts is "clearly more serious than in any other state" because of the state's geographical position. The Northeast receives the brunt of chemical emmissions from elsewhere, he said.

"The aggregate (accumulation) is the problem, it doesn't matter how much one particular state's emmissions affect the environment," Kerry said.

After Rejhon and Kenney described the acid rain situations in their regions, Kerry cited the growing number of "dead ponds and lakes" in Massachusetts, a result of sulfur emmissions that raise acidity levels in the air.

"Even the Quabbin reservoir, our state's biggest, can no longer stock fish," Kerry said. He said Massachusetts spends $1 million annually to treat Quabbin water so that it is drinkable.

Kerry also said sulfur "ultimately eats away at the form of original artwork,"

continued on page 5

Inside:

Terrorists hijack an Israeli bus.....p.2
Amherst professor starts a letter-writing campaign to save his favorite soap.....p.2
Board of Governors approve a proposed non-smoking section in Hatch..p.3
Students reflect on their trip to Mississippi.....p.7

"Toleration...is the greatest gift of the mind; it requires the same effort of the brain that it takes to balance oneself one a bicycle."
—Helen Keller
Letter to Charles T. Copeland

World and National News

Soviets oppose U.S. missiles

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union sharply criticized the United States today for "upsetting the military-strategic balance" by deploying new missiles in Western Europe, and said any resulting Soviet arms build-up is "a natural reply."

Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov, speaking to the 1,500-member Soyiet Parliament shortly before it ended its two-day session, said Washington "has created obstacles to talks not only on medium-range nuclear systems but on strategic nuclear weapons as well."

"If the U.S. side removes the obstacles put by it in this matter and restores the previous state of affairs, an opportunity will then open up for the resumption of the talks," he said.

The Parliament was meeting for the first time under the chairmanship of Konstantin U. Chernenko, who on Wednesday became the Soviet Union's 10th president.

Chernenko, 72, has been Communist Party secretary general, the most powerful position in the Soviet Union, since after the Feb. 9 death of leader Yuri V. Andropov. He also took over as chairman of the Defense Council.

Opening his speech, Tikhonov, 78, heartily congratulated Chernenko on being named to the largely ceremonial presidential post. The assembled deputies applauded loudly at each mention of Chernenko's name.

Tikhonov also was formally approved for another term as premier, and yesterday the party's choices for the 10-member Council of Ministers were ratified.

Tikhonov said any arms build-up by the Soviet Union is "a natural reply to the reckless attempts by the militarist circles of the U.S.A. and other NATO countries at upsetting the military-strategic balance."

"We are stating that it will be kept under all conditions," he said. "Security—both our own and that of our friends and allies—will remain reliably ensured.

AP Laserphoto

A TUNE-UP - The Statue of Liberty's restoration continues on Thursday in New York in preparation for its centennial celebration on July 4, 1986.

Terrorists hijack Israeli bus

TEL AVIV, ISRAEL (AP) — An Israeli bus carrying passengers was hijacked last night by terrorists, sources said.

The passengers were being held as hostages near the town of Rafah, 60 miles south of Tel Aviv near the Egyptian border, the sources said.

On April 2, three Palestinian guerrillas threw grenades and fired automatic weapons at random on Jerusalem's main street, wounding 48 people. The Moscow-oriented Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility. Israeli authorities said the guerrillas apparently entered Israel through Lebanon.

The bus hijacking was the first incident of hostages being taken in Israel since March 12, 1978, when a dozen Palestinian guerrillas landed in northern Israel in rubber dinghies. They seized two buses filled with Israeli sightseers near Kibbutz Maagan Micahel, 37 miles north of Tel Aviv.

The hijackers forced the occupants into a single bus and drove down the coast toward Tel Aviv. A shootout with Israeli forces at a highway junction just north of the city left 35 Israelis and nine guerrillas dead.

Nicaraguan rebels plant mines

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Anti-Sandinista rebels have placed land mines on stretches of roads leading from the Atlantic port of Puerto Cabezas to the Honduran border, civilian and military sources said yesterday.

The sources, who spoke on condition that they not be identified for security reasons, said the land mines had been located close to towns and roads leading from Puerto Cabezas to the border town of Waspan some 60 miles away.

They said the action was aimed at Nicaraguan troops operating in the area, which is in North Zelaya province in northeastern Nicaragua.

The mining of Nicaraguan ports, approved by President Reagan, has become the center of international controversy. The Reagan administration says the mining was approved because of the Sandinistas' support for leftist rebels fighting the U.S.-supported government in El Salvador. The Nicaraguan insurgents deny, however, having received U.S. aid to plant the mines.

5 arraigned, charged with raping 8-year-old

BOSTON — Four men and a woman pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of raping a child, described in court as the woman's 8-year-old son. One news report said the boy had been used for prostitution with older men since he was 4 years of age.

"None of this is true at all," 32-year-old Lorraine LaPlante Mortz of Chelsea said outside court after her arraignment.

"It's going to come out that all these guys are innocent, too."

Arraigned with her in South Boston District Court were James McDonough, 51, his brother, John, 53, and John Renzi, 35, a state social worker, all of Boston. Also arraigned was Raymond A. Ryan, 51, of Chelsea, who said he was Mortz's fiance.

Judge Lawrence Cameron released the five on $100 cash bond apiece, refusing a prosecutor's request for higher bail.

The judge appointed attorneys for the McDonough brothers, who said they were unemployed, and set a hearing May 2.

One of Renzi's attorneys, Walter Underhill, said at the bail hearing that the child involved was Mortz's 8-year-old son by her estranged husband, Kenneth Mortz. Telephone directories for Boston and its suburbs contained no listing for Kenneth Mortz.

"This case is a farce and will be proved so in court," Underhill said.

Mortz's attorney, Peter Dowd, said after the court session that the boy's father was the source of the charges.

"Anybody who has been connected with Lorraine has been subject to 51-A charges," Dowd said, explaining that 51-A referred to "charges of child abuse."

"When the child was taken to the Judge Baker clinic, they found themselves charged," the lawyer said. "When he was in Children's Hospital, they found themselves charged with sexual abuse."

Dowd added, "I don't think enough investigation was done" before the five were arrested.

Police investigating alleged knifepoint rape

NEW BEDFORD — Police said yesterday they were investigating a complaint that a 34-year-old woman was repeatedly raped at knifepoint by three men who threatened to "carve her eyes out."

Acting Police Chief Arthur Oliveira said the woman reported she was attacked the night of April 4 or early April 5 by men who claimed she and her friends owed them money.

Police did not release details of the week-old case until Wednesday when the district attorney's office was officially notified. No arrests were reported by late yesterday.

"We did get a complaint," Oliveira told the Standard Times of New Bedford. "Whether there is any basis for the complaint—we're investigating to determine that."

Two weeks ago, four men were sentenced to prison for the rape of a woman in a New Bedford barroom. The case received international attention after the woman reported she was raped on a pool table while other men cheered.

Oliveira and Detective Ronald R. Cabral told the newspaper the woman reported she and three friends accepted a ride from a man on the night of April 4 and were taken to a house where they were met by two other men.

According to the police report, the woman said she and her friends were offered money to perform sex with the men. They refused and left with the driver.

The report said the woman told police here friends left her with the man, who accused her and her friends of taking money. He drove the woman back to the house, telling her she couldn't leave until the money was returned, the report said.

The woman was then allegedly raped by the three men as she was held at gunpoint and knifepoint.

"She said they threatened to carve her eyes out," said Oliveira.

Oliveira said the women told police she was dropped off near her home, where she called police who took her to the Parkwood Hospital for treatment of abrasions.

Digest

By The Associated Press

Love in the afternoon, Byron in the morning

AMHERST — William Pritchard, the Henry Clay Folger Professor of English at Amherst College, has begun a letter writing campaign to save one of his favorite classics—"Search for Tommorrow."

"I think if I had died, he might have been almost as distraught," Pritchard's wife Marietta said after the television soap opera, which has been on the air for more than 30 years, was dropped by the local NBC affiliate.

Pritchard, who has taught at Amherst since 1958, told the Daily Hampshire Gazette he has been watching "Search" for seven years, five days a week except for those fiercely [illegible] occasions when he had to meet professional obligations.

Students find his addiction "a little strange," the professor said yesterday, but "they don't understand that when you spend your mornings reading Plato and Byron, when you live in a wordy world, how wonderful it is to sit in rapt silence for half an hour."

Man pleads innocent to murder charges

SPRINGFIELD — A former resident of a shelter for the homeless pleaded innocent yesterday to an indictment alleging he used a ceramic ashtray and his boots to beat to death a college administrator.

Andre R. Daunais, 22, of Springfield pleaded innocent to an indictment handed up by a Hampden County grand jury accusing him of murdering Donald Carpenter, 52. Carpenter's body was found Feb. 25 in his ransacked and blood-stained cottage on the campus of American International College.

Judge Raymond Cross ordered Daunais held without bail in Hampden County Jail pending another hearing next Thursday in Hampden Superior Court.

Prior to his indictment, Daunais had been charged with murder in District Court and was sent to Bridgewater State Hospital for psychiatric observation. Findings concerning his competency were not disclosed at the arraignment, said his lawyer, Murray Schulman of Springfield.

Hampden County District Attorney Matthew Ryan said in February that robbery was a possible motive in Carpenter's death, but he refused further comment.

Carpenter, who worked in the college budget office, was last seen alive the previous night in downtown Springfield, about a mile from the urban campus.

His body was found by his roommate, Joseph Chistolini III, a college student.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Cris Schuster
Copy Editor — Jim Finkle
Layout Technician — Steve Anderson
Photo Technician — Drew Ogier
Production Supervisor — Will Hopkins
Production — John Wielgus, Pam Smith, Jim Rice, Jane Hirshberg, Laurie Macdonald, Mike Lennon, Kim Foster, Conor Plunkett, Ellen Waxman, James P. Shanahan, Lynn Eisenberg, Marsha Wilcon, Ellen Nahigian, Shelley Witkiewicz, Michele Phelan

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian [USPS 333-220] is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Carpenter, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

SUN FUN - Students take advantage of yesterday's sun to lie out near the Campus Center.

Hatch may include non-smoking section

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Correspondent

The Campus Center Board of Governors voted unanimously last night to establish a non-smoking section in the Hatch.

In response to the suggestion that a "significant-sized" non-smoking section be located along the windows facing Hasbrouck Laboratory, board member Sid Flynn said, "Engineering students sit at the window, Southwest people in the middle, and political types in the back. This location might provoke turf wars among these groups."

"Perhaps we should designate a vice section for drinking, smoking and reading pornographic magazines," responded Treasurer Jerry Quill.

Mike Reilly, chair of the Board, termed the proposal "a novel and good idea." The Board's recommendation will go to the Campus Center administration for final approval.

The Board also had a follow-up discussion to its controversial decision not to recommend the removal of Playboy, Playgirl, and Penthouse from the University Store. "Pornography is still an issue," Quill said. After extensive debate last week, Board members were urged to solicit the opinions of their constituents. Several members said most people were not opposed to the sale of these magazines.

Others said they felt the removal of the magazines would not do much to alleviate the problem and that there were more important issues for the board to address.

A few board members said people did not understand the connection between violence against women and pornography.

In other business Quill discussed a proposal for the utilization of $4.5 million allocated by the Massachusetts State Legislature for Campus Center repairs. The proposal calls for the establishment of an addition to the third floor lobby of the Campus Center. The enclosed deck would sit on top of the platform already there.

"This proposal has the advantage of taking care of roof leaks on two sides of the platform and of adding much needed space for retail and student offices," Quill said. He said the proposal is "very preliminary" and would probably involve an increase in the Campus Center fee.

This fee increase could be offset by a more profitable Top of the Campus Restaurant "which would move in the direction of reducing the Campus Center fee," Reilly said.

"Students suffer when the TOC loses money because they must absorb the loss," Quill said. The restaurant lost $51,691 between June 1983 and February 1984, he said.

The Board voted to open nomination of the hiring committee for coordinators. A motion introduced to include graduating and non-returning coordinators on the hiring committee was defeated.

35 UMASS couples to tango, waltz during MS benefit

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Two University of Massachusetts fraternities will hold benefits for charities this weekend—a 24-hour dance marathon and a keg roll to Fenway Park in Boston.

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity will hold its annual marathon to benefit Multiple Sclerosis beginning at 6 p.m. today at Justin Ryan's. Thirty-five couples will dance until 6 p.m. Saturday, with a 15 minute break every two hours.

"We hope a lot of students will come down to cheer the dancers on and we'll be having a hypnotist and break dancers there Saturday for entertainment," said the co-chair of the event, Mark Rich.

The grand prize for the couple collecting the most contributions through sponsors committed before the marathon is a trip to Hawaii for two, donated by Campus Travel. Columbia Bicycles of Springfield donated two 10-speed bicycles for the second place winners. Underground Sound will give lightweight stereo headsets to the couple placing in third.

"Last year we raised about $10,000 and we hope to do even better this year," said Rich.

In the event held by Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, a keg donated by Williams Distributing of Springfield will begin its 100 mile journey at 10 a.m. Saturday. Fraternity president Bob Montalto said the event will be kicked off at today's Blue Wall happy hour with entertainer Cliff Myers, where all proceeds from the afternoon will go to the Jimmy Fund.

The keg will travel along Route 20 with the help of 15 fraternity members taking turns jogging with a wheelbarrow-like contraption attached to the keg. Donations will be accepted along the route's rest stops.

The keg will arrive at Fenway Park around noon on Sunday. Its entourage will attend the Red Sox game before imbibing at another Myers' happy hour, this one at Who's on First near the baseball park. All these proceeds will also go to the Jimmy Fund.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

LET ME OUT - Spunky the cat tries desperately to get out of his Puffton Village home.

UMass linguist wins fellowship to study artist

By MIKE HOROWITZ
Collegian Correspondent

University of Massachusetts English Professor David Porter was one of 21 in his field to receive this year's Guggenheim Fellowship award.

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation has granted the fellowships for the past 60 years, totalling more than $105 million. They are awarded on the basis of demonstrated accomplishment and strong promise for the future.

Porter specializes in linguistic theory and has studied the visual arts of Joseph Cornell and the poetry of Emily Dickinson over the past six years.

"The originality of Cornell and Dickinson is remarkable," Porter said. "Joseph Cornell was a great visual artist who designed fantastic modern furnished boxes."

His proposal relating Joseph Cornell's visual art to language structure won him the award.

"I'm very excited about receiving the award," Porter said. "It was just a wonderful surprise."

"Usually, work in well-defined areas receives this sort of recognition," Porter said. "This is less conventional."

The 283 Fellowship awards granted from 3500 applications totalled $5.5 million, an average of $20,000 each. With his winnings, Porter said he plans to continue researching and writing his proposals. The professor will live in Cambridge and travel to New York and Washington where he will lecture and continue his work.

"Now I'll have the time to spend on my work," Porter said. "I'm as pleased as can be."

Previously, Porter was awarded funds by the National Endowment for Humanities. Porter will use these funds to aid in production of a network television series, a project he has postponed due to lack of time.

Pregnancy rate higher for minority teens, says author

By LISA STRATOULY
Collegian Staff

Young mothers slide apathetically into early parenthood because they feel as if nothing else exists for them in life, said the keynote speaker of a conference on teenage pregnancies yesterday at the University of Massachusetts.

Joy Dreyfoos, co-author of Teenage Pregnancy, The Problem that Hasn't Gone Away, discussed teenage pregnancy prevention in a two-day conference titled, "Adolescent Parents: Kids in Crisis."

"We have to get behind the statistics and dig into the question of why," she said.

Poverty, minority status and incompletion of high school are among the major indirect causes of teenage pregnancy, she said. A combination of these factors thrusts a woman into a "high risk category" of becoming pregnant, Dreyfoos said.

"The pregnancy rate for black females aged 15 to 17 is five times the rate for white females of the same age bracket," she said. "The pregnancy rate for poverty-stricken females is three to five times greater than the rate for economically stable females," she said.

Dreyfoos said access to birth control must be protected, maintained and expanded. High school dropouts should be channeled along avenues that lead to opportunities, instead of unemployment and apathy, she said.

Schools have begun to adopt and implement teen pregnancy prevention programs, among them, the "Choice" program.

This program is a new approach to teaching family life education that produces a workbook written for ninth grade girls promoting the learning of self-awareness and self-planning skills needed in life, she said.

"The consequences of early pregnancy are conveyed to the girls. Certain exercises, such as having them nurture an egg as if it were a baby for a week, teaches all the responsibilities of motherhood, such as providing baby sitters, etc.," she said.

Other methods Dreyfoos mentioned included alternate schools, which are similar to preparatory schools especially designed for "high risk" teens and Adolescent Primary Health Care centers, which are clinics specializing in the psychological and medical needs of pregnant teenagers.

"Schools are where we have to be in order to help," Dreyfoos said.

She said prevention of teenage pregnancies lies in school-based clinics, and that preventive organizations and school boards must work together to achieve the best result.

"Neither school boards or preventive organizations can carry the entire responsibility," she said. "We must collaborate."

Plug in to Spring

Savings in every dept.
APRIL 13 thru APRIL 21

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst / Daily 10-6, Sunday 12-5

This is the famous Budweiser beer. We know of no brand produced by any other brewer which costs so much to brew and age. Our exclusive Beechwood Ageing produces a taste & smoothness and a drinkability you will find in no other beer at any price.

THE WORLD RENOWNED
BUDWEISER LAGER BEER

Budweiser.
KING OF BEERS.

GENUINE GENUINE

2nd Annual Phi Sigma Kappa Barrel Roll to Fenway Park for the Jimmy Fund
Friday

Send Off Party at Blue Wall Happy Hour
with Cliff Meyers
Raffle Prizes and Giveaways

Sunday
Ending Party at Who's on First, Boston
with Cliff Meyers
before and after the Red Sox game

★ be sure to buy posters and hats in the Campus Center and Blue Wall

All proceeds going to Jimmy Fund
For more info contact Jake or Mark at Phi Sig 256-6863

this Bud's for you!

FOUR SEASONS

BUSCH	bottles and cans	$8.99
STROHS	suitcase cans	$9.99
LABATTS	beer or ale	$10.99
O'KEEFE	Canadian ale	$10.99
ST PAULI GIRL	(light) bottles	$13.99
MILWAUKEE'S BEST	cans	$7.99
VODKA and GIN	1.75 L	$7.99
RUM	1.75 L	$9.99
MYERS DARK RUM	750 ml	$7.99
KAHLUA	750 ml	$10.99
SMIRNOFF	1.75 L	$11.99
RIUNITE WINES	750 ml	2/$5.00
GALLO TABLE WINES	1.5 L	$3.99
SEBASTIANI TABLE WINES	1.5 L	$4.49
ALMADEN TABLE WINES	3 L	$6.99

Location: On Route 9 in Front of Mountain Farms Mall
Just a quick jaunt from free bus stop at Hampshire Mall

Beer Balls - Kegs - Cups And don't forget - your empties are welcome here. Free Delivery

★Kerry

continued from page 1

referring to buildings and statues in greater Boston that have been eroded by acid rain.

In his opening statements, Kerry referred to Paul Godfrey, director of the University of Massachusetts Water Resources Center and moderator of yesterday's discussion, as a "critical force" in the state's efforts to monitor acid rain.

After the discussion, Kerry who is campaining for Sen. Paul Tsongas' seat, said he disapproves of the proposed increase in tuition in Massachusetts state colleges. He blames the need for such increases on President Ronald Reagan's "difficult" and "irresponsible" policies on federal financial aid.

★Pouncey

continued from page 1

Addressing the one question posed to him at the meeting directly concerning the fraternity decision--that of a recent move to limit to 25 percent the number of a former fraternity's members who may next year live together in a single residence hall--Pouncey responded, "It is indeed regrettable that a preventive measure to avoid packing of any residential area is necessary."

After that question was disposed of without further complaint, students went on to discuss other college issues such as core requirements and the academic reputation of Amherst.

Monarch stolen from Lot 21

A 1978 Mercury Monarch valued at $3,500 was stolen from lot 21 across from University Drive near the Southwest Residential Area, University of Massachusetts police said. The car was stolen sometime before 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

At 11:59 p.m. Wednesday police received a report of a fire outside of McNamara Dormitory from a woman who had woken to the smell of burning paper. Two magazines and a paperback book that may have been dropped burning from a dormitory window were extinguished by residents, according to police. Environmental Health and Safety and the Amherst Fire Department responded to the incident which is still under investigation, police said.

A woman was assaulted Wednesday and a mug she was carrying was taken from her by a man outside Cance Dormitory. Police received the report at 1:36 a.m. and subsequently took the woman to University Health Services, police said.

—TOM MIDDLETON

"How much art can you take?"
Come down to the Arts Desk at the Collegian and find out.

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Styles by Deborah
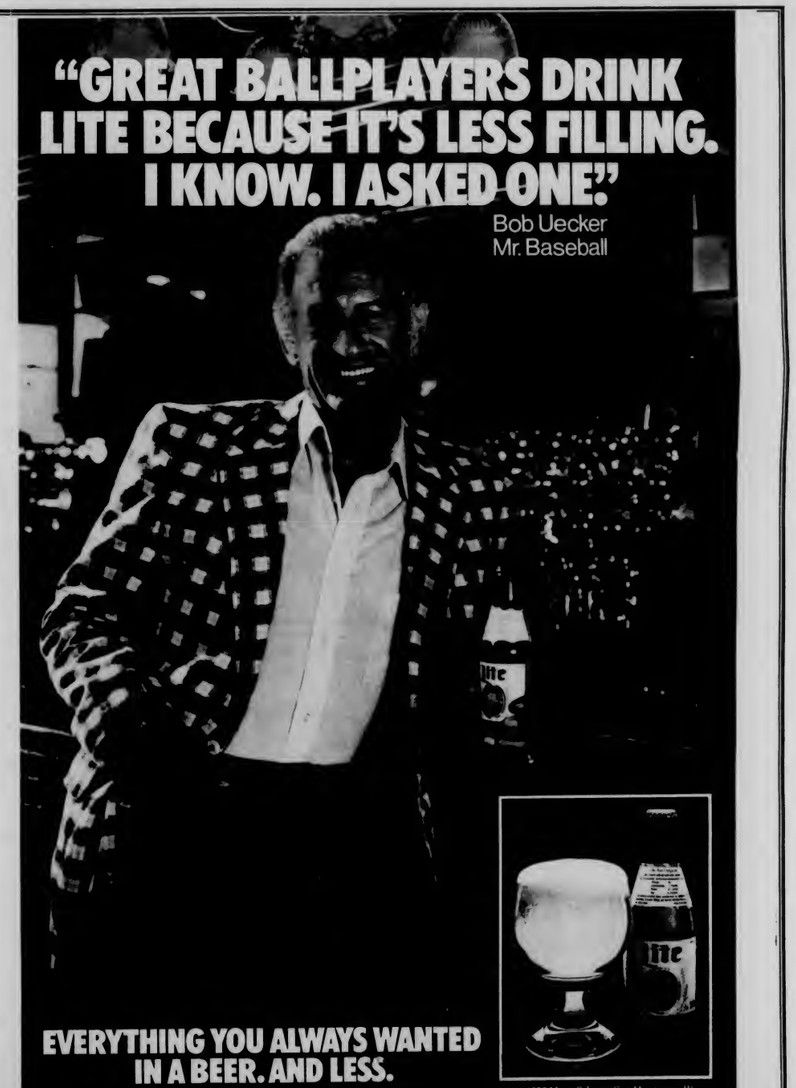
66 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-3510

SUMMER JOB
Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard, and Nantucket have thousands of good paying jobs available to students and teachers this summer.



A Directory listing these jobs by employer also has housing info and job application forms.

For an immediate copy of the 1984 Directory, send $3.00 (includes 1st Class Postage and handling) to:
CAPE COD SUMMER JOB BUREAU
Box 594-Room 212
Barnstable, MA 02630

安城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7835

MASS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13
(whitewall blem)
$32.00
includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobas Store
549-4704

"GREAT BALLPLAYERS DRINK LITE BECAUSE IT'S LESS FILLING. I KNOW. I ASKED ONE."
Bob Uecker
Mr. Baseball

EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.

DELANO'S

our APRIL Special

Kronenbourg

Proper ID a Must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

amc THEATRES TIMES FOR TODAY ONLY

$2.00 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW REDUCED PRICES FOR STUDENTS & SENIOR CITIZENS WITH AMC CARDS

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 MT FARMS MALL 584-9153

What an Institution! POLICE ACADEMY
Fri 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:15, 9:45 Sat Thurs 12:00, 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:15, 9:45

TIMOTHY HUTTON ICEMAN
Fri 7:30, 9:55 Sat Thurs 12:15 @ $2.00/ 7:30, 9:55

Robin Williams Maria Conchita MOSCOW ON THE HUDSON
Fri 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:15, 9:45 Sat Thurs 12:00 & 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:15, 9:45

WHERE THE BOYS ARE
Fri 5:15 @ $2.00/ 9:55 Sat Thurs 12:30 & 5:15 @ $2.00/ 9:55

UP THE CREEK
Fri 5:00 @ $2.00/ 7:30 Sat Thurs 5:15/7:30 @ $2.00/ 7:30

HAMPSHIRE 4 HAMPSHIRE MALL 584-7550

You'll be Hooked! Splash
Fri 4:30 @ $2.00/ 7:00, 9:30 Sat Thurs 12:00 & 4:30 @ $2.00/ 7:00, 9:30

GREYSTOKE THE LEGEND OF TARZAN LORD OF THE APES
Fri 4:15 @ $2.00/ 7:00, 9:45 Sat Thurs 11:30 & 4:15 @ $2.00/ 7:00, 9:45

Romancing The STONE
Fri 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:30, 9:55 Sat Thurs 12:15 & 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:15, 9:45

FRIDAY THE 13th THE FINAL CHAPTER
Fri 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:30, 9:55 Sat Thurs 11:45 & 4:45 @ $2.00/ 7:30, 9:55

amc LATE SHOWS FRI & SAT at 12:15 a.m. SEATS $3.50

ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW

PINK FLOYD THE WALL

An eye fantasy of peace and magic WIZARDS

ERASERHEAD

ROCK & ROLL • JAZZ • SOUL

MAXELL XL II 90 $2.38 each
MAXELL XL II S90 $3.00 each
TDK SA 90 $2.25 each

DYNAMITE RECORDS
from Rimsky Korsakov to Little Walter
Thornes, a marketplace plus!
Main St. Northempton

• CLASSICAL • R & B • 584-1580

Any cosmetic purchase of $40 including Chirstian Dior and Diane Von Furstenburg products, we are featuring a full make-over by our new cosmetician Belinda of Boston.

Appointment necessary

COLLEGE DRUG

Sooner Or Later You'll Get Responsibility Like This. In The Navy It's Sooner.

You're maneuvering 445 feet of guided missile frigate through the navigational hazards and non-stop traffic of one of the world's busiest ports.

But you'll dock safely. Because you know your equipment. You know your men. And even when the responsibility weighs in at 3,600 tons... you're ready.

After 4 years of college, you're ready for more responsibility than most civilian jobs offer. Navy officers get the kind of job and responsibility they want, and they get it sooner.

Navy officers are part of the management team after 16 weeks. Instead of boot camp, officer candidates receive four months of leadership training. It's professional schooling designed to sharpen their technical and management skills.

Then, in their first assignment, Navy officers get management experience that could take years in private industry. And they earn the decision-making authority it takes to make that responsibility pay off.

As their management abilities grow, Navy officers can take advantage of advanced education and training in fields as varied as operations management, electronics, and systems analysis. In graduate school it would cost you thousands; in the Navy we pay you.

And the Navy pays well. The starting salary is $17,000 (more than most companies pay). And that's on top of a comprehensive benefits program that can include special duty pay. After four years, with regular promotions and pay increases, the salary is up to as much as $31,000.

If you qualify to be an officer in the Navy, chances are you have what it takes to succeed. The Navy just makes it happen faster.

NAVY OPPORTUNITY INFORMATION CENTER
P.O. Box 5000, Clifton, NJ 07015 W 344

I'd rather have responsibility sooner. Tell me more about the Navy's officer program. (OG)

Name (First) (Please Print) (Last)
Address Apt #
City
State Zip
College/University
Age Year in College GPA
Major/Minor
Phone Number (Area Code) Best Time to Call

This is for general recruitment information. You do not have to furnish any of the information requested. Of course, the more we know, the more we can help to determine the kinds of Navy positions for which you qualify.

Navy Officers Get Responsibility Fast.

AMHERST BAGEL DELI
Now Open in FACES
The valley's freshest bagel is now in Amherst
SPRING SPECIAL
15¢ a bagel $1.65 a dozen
Mon - Sun 8 am - 6 pm
253-9282

UMASS SKI CLUB
$69. Week Ender
BENDER
Spring Skiing April 13-15
at SUGARBUSH VALLEY

includes
Transportation

2 Nights Lodging	F & S
2 Days Lifts	S & S
Meals	S & S
Fri the 13th Party	Fri night
Bloody Mary party	Sat morn
Free Beer & Wine	Sat afternoon
Hot Tub Party	Sat night
Mimosa Party	Sun morn
Free Beer and Wine	Sun afternoon

ALL FOR ONLY $69
for more info call 545-3437

Black Affairs

A postcard of Sojourner Truth printed by a non-profit educational organization in Indiana publishing historic women's postcards. Born into slavery as Isabella in New York and obtaining her freedom by the anti-slave law of 1827, Truth was among the many black women in the abolitionist movement of the middle 1800s.

Because of her understanding of the relationship between freedom for the slaves and equality for all women, Truth was able to teach abolition, equality of the sexes, temperance and prison reform despite her illiteracy.

In 1851 at Akron, Ohio, Truth Defended women's imposed inferiority when a clergyman ridiculed them by saying they were too weak and helpless to entrust with the vote.

Truth responded, "The man over there says women need to be helped into carriages and lifted over ditches, and to have the best place everywhere. Nobody ever helps me into carriages or over puddles, or gives me the best place--and ain't I a woman? Look at my arm. I have ploughed and planted and gathered into barns, and no man could head me--and ain't I a woman?

Students share impressions

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Missing a week from school seemed worth it for a group of five college students who went to Jackson, Miss. last week to attend a conference on the life and times of Fannie Lou Hamer and the 1964 Summer project.

For many of the students in James Baldwin's seminar on the history of Civil Rights, it was their first visit to the South and Mississippi. Because they were learning about what happened there during the movement, they said their visit would be an invaluable experience.

Grace Olshansky, a University of Massachusetts Inquiry Program sophomore said she formed a political picture in her mind from the readings of what had occured during the Civil Rights Movement. She said the trip "tied together in human and literary ways all the events, places and the people in the readings."

Francisca Ahlijah, an exchange student at UMass from the University of Kent in Canterbury, England said she went to Mississippi "to meet the people involved in the Civil Rights Movement and learn from these people things that you can never acquire from books."

Ahlijah said books provide limited learning and through hearing people articulate their personal experiences, she said she felt the fear they felt then and the reason why they decided to participate, "things not conveyed through books," she said.

Frank Thompson, a first year biology major from Amherst College said the conference reaffirmed what he had already learned. He said the trip made him realize blacks still have a long way to go. "People out there are still working for it," he said.

Deirdre Samuel, a sophomore political science and Latin American studies major at UMass said she went to Mississippi to overcome the perception of the state she had gotten through her reading. "It is a nice state that has come to the 1980's," she said.

Samuel, who said she was a "pupil" during the conference, said she now feels as though she can explain the history and development of the movement. She said she learned about people like Harriet Tubman and Frederick Douglass in grade school, but she has now "learned about real black people."

Bennie Hilliard, a UMass University Without Walls sophomore and a Mississippi native said the movement opened doors for blacks. He added that Mississippi is now "better economically."

"Mississippi is less tense. This could not have happened 20 years ago," he said.

Hilliard said he felt moved by what he learned at the conference. "Mississippians don't know about Fannie Lou Hammer," he said, "but it is not their fault; it was the media and America that did not want them to know."

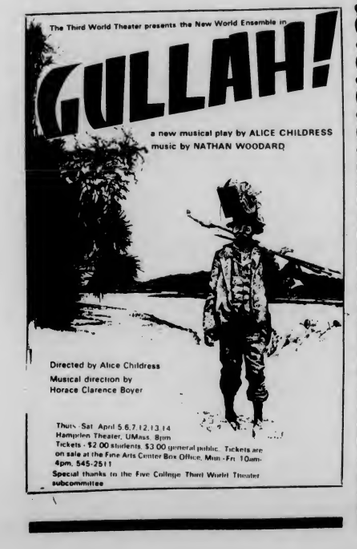
Kennedy wins Match wits

By GERMAINE WHITE
Collegian Correspondent

One hundred and fifty dollars was awarded to the winning team at the "Match Wits" contest on Sunday at Hampden Theatre, in the Southwest Residential Area at the University of Massachusetts.

The winners were Julian Tynes, Laurie Wendell, and William Sweeney, all residents of J.F. Kennedy Tower. All of the students received certificates for participating in the contest and the other participants received black history commemorative prizes.

The questions were asked in a round robin fashion in every aspect of black history. Questions were asked in categories from sports to politics.



Each team consisted of three members not necessarily from the same residence hall. Cynthia Hester, one of the participants commented, "It was well organized and an important event. I hope it will be continued annually."

The contest was sponsored to give students the opportunity to learn about black history and enjoy themselves at the same time, said Sandra Levy, Coordinator of the Center of Racial Studies at Moore House in Southwest.

"We wanted to give students the opportunity to become more aware of the contributions of black Americans. We were very excited about our first effort with the "Match Wits" contest. Our goal is to see the contest as an annual event and extend it to other areas of the campus," Levy said.

Other participants in the contest were: Cynthia Hester, James Kendall, Cassandra Edwards, David Hooker, and David Lee.

The contest was sponsored by the Center for Racial Studies and the Southwest Area Government.

Clark University Summer

Do what you want during the day and still spend some of the best and brightest nights at Clark University this summer. From biochemistry to business, from photography to psychology, Clark offers more than 75 evening credit courses to current college students, as well as study aboard programs in Mexico, Italy, and Wales. For additional information about travel-study options (June and July) and our two six-week sessions (that begin May 14 and June 25), call Clark in Worcester at 793-7217. Or drop by the Summer School Office, Jonas Clark Hall Room 111, 950 Main Street, Worcester.

The Collegian is now accepting applications for the positions of:

ASSISTANT ADVERTISING MANAGER and ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES for Fall '84.

Deadline is Friday April 20
Pick up application at the Collegian office between 8:45 and 3:30

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
in the Carriage Shops Since 1975

OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
FOOT LONG SUBS
FRESH SALADS AND SOUP
KNISHES, PICKLES AND KOSHER HOT DOGS
BAGELS AND LOX
NEW YORK CHEESE CAKE
233 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS 549-6314

New Shipments of ...
India Print T-Shirts - (All Sizes)
Blouses - Tank Tops
Chinese Shoes - Sandals
Also
Greeting Cards - (1400 Designs)
Great Gifts - Great Prices
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Budweiser & Bud Light 12 oz. cans.	$10.95	case + dep.
Kronenbourg light or dark	$4.25	6 pack + dep.
O'Keefe Canadian	$3.50	6 pack + dep.
Narragansett 16 oz. cans	$2.50	6 pack + dep.
	$9.80	case + dep
Stroh's & Stroh's Light 12 oz. cans	$9.95	case + dep.
Wiedemanns 12 oz. cans	$6.75	case + dep.
Vodka or Gin 80°	$8.49	1.75 L
Piccala Coffee Liquer	$6.49	750 ml.
Paul Masson Wines	$3.99	1.5 L

Kegs, Mini Kegs and Beer Balls always in stock

For a night of exciting entertainment
Come to Webster's Lounge for a magic show
Experience the magic of

Michael Wald
Plumbley's off the common
Friday, April 13, 1984
Show Starts at 10 PM

Attention Students
Campus Center/Student Union Board of Governors
is accepting applications for the following coordinator positions:
Governors Program Council
University Store Retail Services
Food Services
Space Economic Development
Finance
Special Projects
Public Relations
Conference Services/Accomodations
Display
Building Operations
Vendor Certification
Jobs begin Sept. 1984
Applications available in Campus Center 817
Deadline: Monday, April 23, 1984
Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

1984-85
UNDERGRADUATE CATALOGS

For use during pre-registration, catalogs will be available in the first floor lobby of Whitmore, near the Scheduling Office.

one copy per student

EDITORIAL/OPINION

What Pro-Choice means

A lot has been said on these pages lately about Pro Choice and Anti Choice, and the alleged hypocrisy of both. The arguments are confusing, since the phrase "Pro Choice" speaks for itself.

Pro Choice means that a thinking human being (not a one-ounce fetus) has the right to their own self-determination, and can do with their body and their life whatever they like, as long as this does not interfere with the rights of another thinking human being.

Jeff King

Pro Choice means nobody can tell me what I can or can't eat, drink or smoke in the privacy of my own home.

Pro Choice means I have the right to read or view whatever I like. This means no one can censor books, magazines, TV shows, etc., of any type for any reason. Pornography may or may not be a factor in violent crimes; if we remove "pornography" (an ambiguous term) from the shelves, do we also remove alcohol, a factor in half of all traffic fatalities each year, and a significant factor in family violence?

Pro Choice means the right to protect my home and family from intruders, even if it means using their brains for wallpaper. Anyone callous enough to break into my home is probably also callous enough to eliminate the opposition; I have the right to be equally prepared.

Pro Choice means I can love whomever I like, however I like. You may not approve of my arrangement but, then again, I don't like an audience, and what I do in my bedroom is none of your damn business.

Pro Choice means I have the right to practice my own religion without intervention from the government. (Remember the Pilgrims?) No one can stop me from a silent prayer in class—who's to know? But if the government ever decrees that organized prayer be brought back to public schools, the classroom will have become a spokesman of the government, prejudiced against minority religions and stifling a child's ability to make up his own mind.

The founding fathers were pretty clever in designing a Constitution which has worked for 200 years. They built a system of checks and balances designed to keep it from being tampered with; one of these is the Bill of Rights, a declaration of ten basic rights of all Americans. The inclusion of such rights as freedom of the press, of religion, and the right to bear arms were designed to minimize government intervention, thereby promoting personal choice.

It is up to us as Americans to keep the idea alive by working within the system to elect public officials who will maintain our right to personal choice.

Jeff King is a UMass student

Addressing academics

There appears to be some confusion among professors on just what exactly is an academic grievance. Your notion is that students want to be able to challenge the 'c' grade you gave them, and would always be contesting your decision for the higher grade. WRONG. An academic grievance process is not designed to supplant your grading authority. It is designed moreso to address situations of arbitrary and capricious grading, or situations where there have been major changes in course expectations after add-drop period is over.

Dakin Ferris

If a student signs up for a course, she or he is entering into a contractual agreement with the professor of that course, regarding requirements and grading procedures. It is fallacious, at best, for you to assume that most students are not extremely calculating in the manner which they do this. In an age where there is a premium on graduate schools, and hence good grades, many students are overly scrutinizing regarding time and schedule constraints.

Now there is a second grouping of professors who oppose a grievance procedure simply because they run a fair game in their classes and could not conceive of having it any other way. Since they play it straight, that's all that matters. Wrong again. That is like saying violence against women isn't a problem because you don't beat your wife. Any member of this group is either naively optimistic concerning their constituents, or is consciously protecting their abuses.

So let me recount for you a good example of what I'm talking about. The professor's name and class title are obviously excluded. The situation took place last semester, and odds are that it does not vary much any other time. The course is one that is required by students in two different majors, all sections being taught by the same professor. The semester's introduction went as follows, (paraphrased): This is my course and the only one I teach. I don't like teaching, but I need to in order to continue my research. I have tenure, I can fail you all if I want and there is nothing you can do about it. The course requirements will include three hour exams and a final, the lowest grade will be dropped. There will also be 5 or 6 pop quizzes which will only be used in the final grade calculation, if a student is borderline.

The course then commenced, and so did the abuses. Prior to the first exam the professor made clear that certain material was not going to be on the exam. The exam results were so good however, that they were given back to the TA's who were now directed to subtract points for the material which they were told not to worry about previously. Strike two.

Mid-semester this same professor announced that there would be no final....and the quizes would count more in its place! This would increase their value from that of being nearly negligible to 33.3 percent of the final grade. Strike three. Many of the TA's quietly appoligized for the professor's behavior. Some swore that they would never TA for that person again. The students felt totally abused. And even here worse is the fact that this course is a weeder for many that want to go to grad school. Their sense of outrage, that a pseudo-academic was arbitrarily playing with their futures, is beyond description. A few students still might have been tempted to approach the department head to report this case, unless of course they knew beforehand that this professor is the department head. Case closed.

I would be more than happy, members of the faculty Senate, to share the name of this professor with you - but that won't solve the problem. I'm really not sure that you care. For the students that care, or think they have a bona fide grievance, I suggest you contact the Academic Affairs committee in the SGA Senate office. They will document your case so that it can be used as an example in the future. Dakin N. Ferris is a Collegian guest columnist

Editor's note: This is the final segment of a two-part series.

Enjoying bad literature

I have a confession to make: I read bad literature, and have plenty of excuses to justify doing so when more scholarly friends raise their eyebrows.

"This is an effective way to study the psychological make-up of American society as a whole," I'll say, shamefacedly delving farther into People.

"It's interesting to note cross-media relationships," I tell people who interrupt my reading of "Lace." The t.v. movie was mildly entertaining--I left the television on while studying--so I figured I'd give the book a shot.

Elizabeth Luciano

And the best, most unbelievable excuse yet:

I have to read Scruples and Love Story for class."

It's true. Every Tuesday and Thursday I trot off to English 395; Badness in Literature. Those of you who don't believe me can check the schedule book. Don't misunderstand me. I'm not a bad lit glutton; I don't feverishly race to the library before anyone else checks out the latest saccharine fairytale by Danielle Steele. But, like a chocoholic, I do occasionally yield to the siren call of The National Enquirer.

It's for my mother, actually. Her friend Ken, "She lives in New Jersey," he astutely points out.

"I have an inquiring mind, I'll mumble, immediately flipping to the article on how to lose five pounds by jogging, while wrapped in Glad bags.

He's worse off than I am, though. This man actually reads--and enjoys--books with titles like, "Ambush on Blood River." His current favorite author is Mike Royko, a syndicated columnist from the Chicago Sun-Times, who is not only sexist, but just plain obnoxious, as well.

"At least he doesn't write that candy-ass kind of stuff you like to read!" Ken sneers, returning to his copy of "Says Who? Says Me."

He's got me there. I blush to admit that, as a high school student, I actually thought Rod McKuen was a wonderful poet, and expressed this often enough to have received several of his books as gifts. Oh well. Like they say, it's the thought that counts.

As a journalism major, there is a tender corner of my heart reserved for bad newspapers. There's a terrible one in my own hometown. (I won't name the specific periodical because I'm a whimp who's terrified of getting hit with a libel suit). The owner-publisher of that paper writes a weekly column. Every single week he writes on the same topic: his wife. And every week, he refers to her the same way: The Love of My Life. Granted, his reaffirmation of marriage is heartwarming, but central New Jersey is getting a little tired of hearing about it, after ten years.

Nevertheless, people read him for the same reason I read Rod McKuen, Danielle Steele, People and The National Enquirer; the same reason Ken read "Ambush on Blood River." Very simply, reading bad is fun.

Elizabeth Luciano is a Collegian columnist.

Stand tall and demilitarize!

To the Editor,

Ought not we worry so much about propriety when there can be so much at stake as a future for ourselves and for even children when the gut reaction to the flaunting of "military personnel" on campus would have seemed to be a public and personal affront to many of your collegiate colleagues of bygone years...? Must we not forget about what's "proper" when faced with the onslaught of short-haired and shaven geek squads patrolling pretend games of military might of a bygone era?

We who have devoted our present to a future might well do more to insist on our rights, not the least of which being able to attend a university that is not so closely linked to, and dependent upon the "government."

Or, perhaps it should do one's heart good to see so many of those who stoop so low to "further themselves in society" and get a "free" education via being militarized and taking part in this militarization of our society.

Stand tall, America! There are many of those among you who would do anything to insure yourselves a place on that ladder of success even at the expense of hatening the onslaught upon the earth of the real destruction that is being produced with the sweat and toil of every worker locked into monster consumerism mentality. Symbols of death should be looked on as such, and reason should prevail over "propriety," snowballs notwithstanding.

P. Hyjek
Granby

An answer to all the answers

To the Editor,

I'm writing in response to all the pro-choice editorials I've read in my four years here. In all these editorials are the statements: "What about rape victims," "What about pregnancies that pose health risks for the mother and or child," "no one knows when life begins, and "What about the poor who can't afford a child". These are nice little arguments to put in front of your self- little motives.

Now let's get things straight. The number of pregnancies caused by rape or incest is so insignificant compared to the whole that it's at most a weak point to stand on. Besides, are these people afraid of being raped and getting pregnant, or worried about getting an unwanted pregnancy through their own actions?

Don't get me wrong here, I agree there should be state funded abortion clinics. What pisses me off is that these people try to stand on a noble cause to support it. The fact is that most pregnancies are the result of mutually consented sex in which the birth control failed or none was used. Why can't people admit to the truth? They don't want the kid, and they don't want to be pregnant. Abortion is an effective, relatively quick remedy to the problem.

I don't care if a woman has an abortion, that's her decision to make, but please don't insult my intelligence by justifying it with these "noble" arguments. Admit the mistake, have the abortion and if need be put it on the state's tab.

I'd rather have my taxes pay for an abortion than a welfare child - it costs less. I have my own selfish reasons for state funded abortions.

Patrick Shea
Sunderland

Paid Advertisement

Paid Advertisement

ON CAMPUS

Paid Advertisement

Paid Advertisement

EAST SIDE

East Side Gov't News

Orchard Hill Area Government

Bowl day is coming. Orchard Hill's yearly extravaganza will be taking place May 12 in Orchard Hill's own bowl. Lots of work has been put into this year's Bowl day and it looks great.

We still need people to help out with such areas as publicity, hospitality, security and staging. So keep your eyes posted for more information within your dorms or just give us a call at the OHAP office, 545-1385.

Northeast Area Government

The Northeast Area Government meets weekly on Tuesdays at 6 p.m. in the Mary Lyons Lounge. All interested prople are encouraged to attend.

Central Area Government

Central Area Government meets Mondays in Chadbourne Lounge , 7:00-8:00 p.m. All are encouraged to attend.

Sylvan Area Government

Late last semester, elections for representatives for Sylvan Area Government were held. A large turnout for elections proved to be a pleasant surprise to many. In the executive board elections, Stacy Roth and Laura Goldstrich were elected as Co-Presidents, Marty Matfess as Vice-President, Scott Clark as Treasurer, and Elizabeth Cawley as Secretary. Sylvan Area Government then moved on to establish committees to deal with specific areas: with the budget, social and cultural events, and pending financial matters.

Despite its brief existence, Sylvan Area Government has accomplished a number of tasks. For example, Sylvan is one of the sponsors of the East Side Event, which will take place on Saturday, April 28, 1984, on the field south of Worcester Dining Commons. Also, a computer terminal room was established in Cashin; working hours for this room are to be arranged soon. Long term plans and the granting of funds have been made for WSYL radio. They will be purchasing new equipment and making other efforts in order to improve the quality of the station.

Sylvan Area Government is also establishing a comprehensive and organized office system, with which we can better utilize our resources.

In addition, we are working on several projects. Representatives have joined forces with the Northeast Area Government and the SGA President's Office to open Worcester Dining Commons for study space and ultimately to open the Worcester Dining Commons for weekend meals. Our government is also working with the East Side Director, Michele Cocuzzo, other administrators, and students to establish special interest suites in Sylvan. This program would provide an opportunity for people with mutual academic or cultural interests to live together in a suite especially adapted for their needs. Other projects include investigation into the surcharge placed on designed singles within the dorms. Presently, Sylvan Day is in the planning stage as scheduled for May 5, 1984. We also have several capital improvement ideas for the area.

Our young government has accomplished a great deal in this short time. We are also working on a number of projects and constantly coming up with new ideas. Our biggest problem seems to be our size; we have more projects and positions than we have people to fill them. If you are interested Sylvan Area Government meets every Sunday at 8:30 p.m. in Cashin suite 02. Our office phone number is 545-1392. Feel free to come by or call, all are welcome.

Also a reminder from Sylvan Government: WSYL airs at 89.7 FM Phone 545-0191

Holocaust Day previewed

On Thursday, April 26 the University of Massachusetts, Amherst campus will commemorate Holocaust Memorial Day. In preparation for this event there will be a campus-wide educational effort to increase awareness about the Holocaust and to provide a way in which individual faculty staff and students across campus can symbolically participate in the memorial.

On April 26 all faculty staff and students will be invited to wear yellow stars in memory of six million Jews who were tortured and murdered in the Nazi death camps. The stars (on buttons) will be available at central campus locations beginning on April 23.

Awareness Week a Success

The first Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week, at the University of Massachusetts was an overwhelming success. Attendance at the over 40 events: workshops, speakers, films, slideshows, and cultural events was far better than even the organizers had predicted. The two-fold goals of the week I. to support and celebrate lesbian and gay people and 2. to help heterosexuals become more aware of and sensitive to the 10 percent of the population that is lesbian and gay, were certainly met. There was a wide range of events to choose from, and heterosexual as well as lesbian and gay students felt comfortable at the events. The response that the planning committee for the week has received since the event has been very positive. A sampling of comments about the week include: ". . . I appreciated Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week, I had the chance to attend one of the films and a workshop and I was really glad I did. I only wish that I could have attended more of them. The workshops and films seemed quite varied and enlightening. I especially enjoyed discussing issues in a warm, open, and direct manner. I feel I gained a lot," another comment by a gay man, " . . . this is the first time in my four years at the University that I feel able to be myself. . "

Lesbian and Gay Awareness Week will probably become an annual event, according to some of the organizers of this year's week.

Racial Awareness Program

The Racial Awareness Program (R.A.P.) provides students and staff the opportunity (1) to focus upon personal identity and interpersonal skill enhancement; (2) to discuss social, cultural, political, national and and international issues; (3) to participate in courses and colloquia which carry University credit and count utilize resources - books, periodicals, articles, film - personal/educational experience at UMass. The Racial Awareness Program is located at B36 Brett House/Central Area, 545-0422.

Calendar: April 13 - April 24

April 13

GULLAH! Hampden Theatre 8:00 p.m. for tickets call 545-2511

FIFTH OF JULY 8:00 p.m., Curtain Theatre

Tickets will be avaliable at Franklin D.C. for Seder to be held on Mon. April 16 and Tues. April 17.

Anyone interested in performing in Gorman Dormitory's Coffee House on April 25 contact Richard Knuuttila 546-6436

April 14

GULLAH! Hampden Theatre 8:00 p.m.
FIFTH OF JULY 8:00 p.m. Curtain Theatre

WOMAN'S SELF DEFENSE COLLOQUIUM, Emerson Lounge 9 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Tickets will be available for $1 at Franklin D.C. for Seder to be held on Mon. April 16 and Tues. April 17

April 15

GULLAH! Hampden Theatre 2:00 p.m. Matinee

SYLVAN AREA GOVERNMENT MEETS 8:30 p.m. Sylvan Area Cultural Center Room 101 Cashin. Everyone is welcome to attend:

United Area Council meets at 5:00 in C.C. check for room posted. (All encouraged to attend)

N.E./Sylven Presidents Council 8:00 p.m.

OHAG Meeting Field Main Lounge, 9:00 p.m.

Tickets will be available for $1 in Franklin D.C. for Seder to be held on Mon. April 16 and Tues. April 17.

April 16

PASSOVER SEDER - (Advance sign-up required) 5:15 Kosher Dining Commons Southwest

April 17

PASSOVER

NANCY DuPLESSIS, "Notes From Moroccan Journals" Hampden Theatre 7:00 p.m.

COLLOQUIUM: The ELR Lectures 301 Herter Hall 7:00 p.m.

JASS JU SHOW for the Black Musicians Conference, Hampden Gallery. 3-7 p.m.

LIFE DRAWING WORKSHOP $2 in Butterfield Dorm Dance Room 7-9 p.m.

E. SIDE EVENTS PRODUCTION STAFF MEETING 12:00 p.m. C.C. check listing for location

MANDATORY SECURITY WORKSHOP 6:30 C.C. 168C. People wishing to work area concerts must attend one meeting. For more info contact Bob Lopes 6-5588 or Bob White 6-5561

April 18

ART OPENING: Wheeler Gallery. Residents display work 7-9 p.m. Runs through April 24

MOVIE: BRIAN'S SONG 9:00 p.m. Brett Lobby

ALCOHOL AWARENESS PROGRAM. 7:00 p.m. Van Meter Lounge

Jass Ju Show for Black Musicians Conference, Hampden Gallery 3-7 p.m.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING beginners 7:30 p.m., all others 8:30 p.m. Commonwealth Room, Student Union.

April 19

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS ARTS FAIR COMMITTEE MEETING 7:00 p.m. C.C.

MANDATORY SECURITY WORKSHOP 6:30 C.C. Room 168C people wishing to work area concerts must attend tonight.

PASSOVER: "A Spring Celebration" Field Main Lounge 6-8 p.m. Enjoy film, discussion, traditional and contempory dinner. All welcome.

OHAG ELECTIONS: Balloting will be in the elevator lobby of all dorms from 4-6:30

E. SIDE ARTS COUNCIL MEETING: Brett Conf. Room 4:00 p.m.

JASS JU SHOW for Black Musicians Conference, Hampden Gallery 3-7 p.m.

CHANCELLORS LECTURE SERIES, Paul Mariani, professor of English, CCA, 8:00 p.m.

SOUTHWEST AREA GOVERNMENT MEETING, Hampden Center, 7:00 p.m.

ARTS FILMS 8:30 p.m. Butterfield Dorm

BOARD OF GOVERNORS MEETING 6:00 p.m. in 805 C.C.

OHAG ELECTIONS: Balloting will be in the elevator lobby of all dorms from 4-6:30

April 20

Lecture: "History of Ridge Crest Hydrothermal Activity in the Pacific" Dr. Margaret Leinen, URI. Morrill Auditorium 3:00 p.m.

Jass Ju Show for Black Musicians Conference, Hampden Gallery 3-7 p.m.

April 21

JASS JU SHOW for Black Musicians Conference, Hampden Gallery 3-7 p.m.

COLLUQUIUM: WOMEN'S SELF DEFENSE, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Emerson Lounge

April 22

EASTER

SYLVAN AREA GOVERNMENT MEETS 8:30 p.m. Sylvan Area Cultural Center Room 101 Cashin

UNITED AREA COUNCIL MEETS Sunday at 5:00 C.C. check for location

N.E./SYLVAN PRESIDENTS COUNCIL MEETING 8:00 p.m.

OHAG MEETING Field Main Lounge 9:00 p.m.

April 23

OPENING RECEPTION, Jass Ju Show, Fred Clayton Ensemble to play 5-7 p.m.

BUTTON/STARS for Holocaust Memorial Day are available C.C.C. and cluster offices

NOMINATION PAPERS for Field House Council positions are due 6:00 p.m. contact Mike Jackman for more info.

CENTRAL AREA GOVERNMENT Chadbourne Lounge

DEBATE: "Is there Hunger in America?" Members of Pres. Reagan's Task Force on Hunger vs. Liberal Academic Community 8:00 p.m. Hampden Center

April 24

SEMINAR: EPIDEMIOLOGICAL STUDIES ON THE HEALTH EFFECTS OF WASTE-WATER RE-USE Dr. Hellel Shuval, The Hebrew University Marston Hall Room 15, 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

COLLOQUIUM: JOHN CLAYTON Reading from his new work, Herter Hall 301

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, FAC 8:00 p.m., call 545-2511 for tickets.

TOPICAL SYMPOSIUM ON "WHY THERE IS HUNGER IN AMERICA AND WHAT AMERICA CAN DO ABOUT IT" 5:00 p.m.

FILM: THE WAR AT HOME 7:00 p.m. Film chronicals the other war of the 1960's. The war students and other anti-war dissidents waged on America's political system. Call 545-0422. For more info.

"On Campus" is a residentially based, paid advertisement which aims to provide the on campus student body with a complete and concise calendar of activities. This bi-weekly information-based newsletter needs the support of all residential groups in order to be successful. Therefore, we ask all residential groups to contact the editors if they wish to have their activities publicized. Also, all HR/RDs are asked to remind their staff to post ON CAMPUS as they would any other information sheet. We appreciate all the comments received on the first issue and hope the enthusiastic response continues. Please submit all info to:

John Forti
Brett Offices
546-6534

Jack Murgia
J.A. Lobby, Rm. 2
546-8705

ON CAMPUS is sponsored in part by:

Central Area Govt
Orchard Hill Govt
Northeast Govt
Sylvan Area Govt
Southwest Area Govt
E. Side Arts Council
E. Side Residential Programming

Nancy du Plessis Performs

A solo performance by NANCY du PLESSIS, "Notes from the Moroccan Journals" is being presented at Hampden Theatre on April 17 at 7:00 p.m. A reception and discussion will follow at Hampden Gallery.

"Notes from the Moroccan Journals" is a multi-disciplinary work that combines a prose-poem script, with incidental Moroccan drumming and folksinging, English language folksinging, original vocal melodies and dramatic movement. Major themes are cross-cultural communication, the condition of women, and the human cost of war. Research for this piece was conducted during an extended stay in Morocco, where Ms. du Plessis studied Arabic, ethnic music and traditional culture.

NANCY has studied acting at the Circle-in-the-Square, modern dance and ballet at the Alvin Ailey School, and voice with Jeanne Lee and Janet Lawson. In 1981 she published "Bud", her first collection of poems, and in the past year and a half she organized four anti-war, cross-cultural evenings of poetry and music. She is a co-founder and a 3-year member of The Women's Collage, a weekly workshop of New York poets, and currently belongs to Poets & Writers, the Waterways Project, and the N.Y. Poets Coop. A cassette of her work is scheduled by Creative Artists in Sound.

Gallery hours are Monday through Friday 3-7 p.m. and Sunday 2-5 p.m. Closed on Saturday.

WEST SIDE

SWAG News

For all SWAG Reps--There was no SWAG meeting last week because only ten representatives were present. On the agenda for the meeting were motions to approve the budget for Southwest Week, a $300 allocation to the Center for Racial Studies to defray costs of movies that they promoted, approval of the NASPA alcohol Resolution, and discussion of an Anti-semitism resolution.

During the March 29 meeting $100 was allocated for Lesbian/Gay Awareness Week, $35 was allocated for support of the United Areas Council, $350 was allocated for Students Advocating Financial Aid, $1,000 was allocated for support of the Malcolm X Center Picnic. The next SWAG meeting will be Thursday at 7:00 p.m. It is vitally important that all representatives attend. Don't forget that elections for SWAG officers will be held on April 23 and 24. Anyone who wishes to work the ballot boxes in Berkshire and Hampshire Dining Commons should call the SWAG office at 545-0960.

Southwest Fest

April 23rd through the 29th may mark the rebirth of student activism at the University of Massachusetts.

This year's 10th annual Southwest Festival will be dedicated to the fight against world hunger, and is intended to raise awareness and money for development aid organizations.

"We look forward to the most significant celebration on campus ever," said Southwest student co-president David McCarthy. "Events like this create their own momentum; the forces we set in motion this month may well stir others to action."

This week's scheduled events will begin with a debate forum on the extent of hunger in America, pitting two members of the Reagan Administration's Task Force on Hunger against opponents from the liberal academic community. Other events include various fund raising activities and topical symposia. The week will culminate with the Southwest concert, all proceeds from which will be donated to Oxfam America, the Catholic Relief Services, and the Hunger Project of San Francisco.

"Without support from the business community, the administration, and campus organizations, an undertaking of this sort wouldn't be possible," said Michael Bean, Southwest Area Government's other co-president. "And then, of course, there is the enthusiasm of the students themselves."

One night of the week students may elect to forego their evening meal, having the cost contributed to the Oxfam America program.

"I thing we're seeing a new and distinctive generation of student activism here," said United Areas Council representative, Rodman Snelling. "The encouraging shift is toward issues of widespread consensus, not mere trendy rebillion."

Self-Defense for Women

This course is designed to increase women's self confidence and self awareness, and will also examine attitudes about defending one's self. The course will focus on learning actual physical techniques, such as releases, primary targets, body weapons, etc.

The colloque will take place on April 14, 21, and 28, 29 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Emerson Lounge. If you wish to sign up, go to John Adams lobby room 2 or call Janet Aalfs at 586-5140.

'Jus Jass' Opens

An exhibition entitled "Jus Jass," will be on view at Hampden Gallery in the Southwest Area of the UMass Campus, from April 17 - 27th.

The show features paintings by black artists who seek to explore correlations between painting and Afro-American Classical Music. The exhibit forms part of the annual Black Musicians Conference.

The opening reception will be held on April 23rd between 5 and 7 p.m., and will include music from the Fred Clayton Ensemble

Further information can be obtained from Room 2, John Adams Lobby, Southwest. Telephone: 545-2803
Gallery hours: Mon. - Friday, 3-7 p.m. Sunday 2-5 p.m. Closed on Saturday

Photo by Eleni Mylonas

Nancy du Plessis, poet and performer, will appear in "Notes from the Moroccan Journals"

LAST WEEKEND???

The Liquidation Sale of the Tech Hifi merchandise continues. . .

So come in and dig through the wierdest accumulation of audio/video equipment we've ever seen!!!

A roomful of ODD speakers with values to $1500. now from $10.00 up. Names like EPI, Infinity, Advent, Jensen, ESS.

Mismatched pairs of speakers below ½ off the original prices.

Scratch and Dent Specials at riduculously low prices

Sony Walkman portables from $49.95

Come help us clean out this!!
Everything from mismatched and one of a kind speakers to projection T.V.'s (some missing screens) reel to reel tape decks, receivers, etc. (heavy on the etc.)

adirondack music
"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"

CAR STEREOS • ALARMS
SUNROOFS
Sales and Installation
Call us BEFORE you buy.
SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main St., Amherst 253-9341

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's Ice Cream

ICELANDAIR IS STILL YOUR BEST VALUE TO EUROPE.

LUXEMBOURG
ROUNDTRIP FROM:

$499 NEW YORK	$509 BALTIMORE WASHINGTON
$560 DETROIT	$569 CHICAGO

ALSO LOW COST SERVICE TO PARIS, FRANKFURT AND NICE.
REMEMBER, ONLY ICELANDAIR FLIES YOU TO THE BREATHTAKING BEAUTY OF ICELAND AND INCLUDES ALL THESE EXTRAS:
■ Free deluxe motorcoach from Luxembourg to select cities in Germany, Belgium and Holland. ■ Bargain train fares to Switzerland and France. ■ Super Saver car rentals from $68/week in Luxembourg. ■ Free wine with dinner, cognac after.
Super APEX Fares: May 1-June 9, 1984. 7-60 day stay, 14 day advance purchase required. Icelandair to Luxembourg. Lowest connecting service to other destinations. Purchase tickets at U. S. All fares subject to change and government approval. See your travel agent or call 800-555-1212 for the toll free Icelandair number in your area.
ICELANDAIR
NOW MORE THAN EVER YOUR BEST VALUE TO EUROPE

UMASS SKI CLUB
$69. Week Ender
BENDER
Spring Skiing April 13-15
at SUGARBUSH VALLEY
includes
Transportation

2 Nights Lodging	F & S
2 Days Lifts	S & S
Meals	S & S
Fri the 13th Party	Fri night
Bloody Mary party	Sat morn
Free Beer & Wine	Sat afternoon
Hot Tub Party	Sat night
Mimosa Party	Sun morn
Free Beer and Wine	Sun afternoon

ALL FOR ONLY $69
for more info call 545-3437

Arts

Trailers by Andy Gordon

The days pass and the seasons change. The trees and flowers are beginning to bloom as a soft spring breeze streams coolly across the campus and students' minds turn to hate, gore and mindless mass violence. That's right, kids, Friday the 13th part four opens today at the Mountain Farms Mall. The new film, dubbed The Final Chapter, promises to do our old buddy Jason in once and for all. Yeah, I believe that; He's already been drowned and had a meathook stuck in his head. His mother had hers lopped off–and they keep coming back semi-annually. Here's a family that just can't be kept down. My guess is that once the film pulls in the kind of profits they're anticipating, Jason'll come crawling out of the lake again and partying like there's no tomorrow. Incidentally, the reason Jason wears that silly goalie mask all the time is because the role is based on old stock footage of Gerry Cheevers.

It would be good if Jason wandered into Iceman, another film opening today. The picture stars Timothy Hutton and if his performance in the film remains constant with the acting he displays in the previews then audiences nationwide will be screaming for his head. Hutton plays a scientist of some sort who finds an honest to goodness caveman (also based on Gerry Cheevers) frozen in the Arctic. "He's a man, not an animal" and drivel like that. John Lone plays the title character.

I caught Moscow on the Hudson the other night. Not a bad flick. Robin Williams turns in a warm performance as a visiting Russian who defects in Bloomingdales and faces the joys and sorrows of American life. Writer/director Paul Mazursky's tale is a loving tribute to this country, but done in such a tender, classy way as to instill a real feeling of patriotism. Don't misunderstand, it's nothing like the old "We're number one" America films of yesteryear but rather an optimistic examination of the human condition, set in the extreme melting pot of New York City. Maria Conchita Alonso and Cleavant Derricks also turn in likeable performances. If you see it, check out the opening shot, a tracking shot inside a bus, that must have been nearly impossible to set up.

Cleavant Derricks and Robin Williams share a tender moment.

Tom Hanks and Daryl Hannah share a tender moment.

While I've got space and nothing to talk about, I'd like to recount an interesting conversation I overheard last weekend about the film Splash. Two radical feminists were talking about how horrible and exploitive the flick is and what an atrocity it is that it could get made. This went on for some time until I finally had to ask them what they were basing this denouncement on. The Daryl Hannah character, Madison, degrades and exploits women, they claimed, and until we put our feet down this trend will continue. Okay, I'm sensitive to the issue of women's portrayal in film, too, (less so I admit, I'm a male and get a guilty pleasure out of nudity on screen) and see it as a problem of the industry, but in the case of Splash it is simply unfounded. Had the character been written or acted differently then it might possibly be exploitive, but as scripted by Bruce Jay Friedman and embodied by Hannah, the role is touching and likeable. There is one very key element that determines whether or not a film is degrading, and that is how the film treats its characters. Splash shows an obvious respect for Hannah and all the characters and consequently we adopt those feelings. Hannah exudes both strength and vulnerability, innocence and intelligence; she is never used simply as a plot device or a foil to the male characters. Sure she's beautiful, but that's not the sole reason she was hired; she's also a damn good actress. After some time of discussion, it became known that neither of these people actually saw the film, so I left.

Local Best Bets: The Calvin has Terms of Spew, starring Shirley Spewhead. The Amherst Cinema has The Right Stuff (winner of this year's Score, Sound, Score Sound and Sound Score Oscars). Mountain Farms has Moscow on the Hudson, Up the Creek (this is the sort of film the feminists should be screaming about) and, of course, Friday the 13th: The Final Chapter, obviously inspired by Lance Slaughter's gore trilogy. The Academy of Music has either Entre Nous or The Dresser, the phone announcement is kind of ambiguous about it. In any case, both films are strongly worth seeing. The Hampshire 4 has Splash and Footloose and hey, don't forget that Furniture convention in Deerfield coming up on the 29th. For reservations on the convention charter bus leaving from Haigis Mall contact Lisa Marie Cantwell at the Collegian.

TRAILERS Trivia: Who were the first runners up in the casting of Mariel Hemingway's part in Star 80 and Michael Keaton's role in Night Shift? Answer to last week's question: I was wearing a blue shirt on Wednesday.

WORLD on a STRING inc
GRAND REOPENING SALE
Visit our new store and get 15% off all our kites except Gayles
OPEN MON, TUES, FRI 10am-5:30pm
THURS. Til 8pm, SAT. 9:30am-5pm
CLOSED WED. & SUN
12 BRIDGE STREET
NORTHAMPTON, MA 01060
586-6141

Patriot's Day Special
High prices getting you down.
Save $25 to $45
on London Fog all weather coats. The Patriot's Day BONUS is that if you purchase this coat before Tuesday the 17th You'll receive a Free Canvas High Quality Garment Bag
Jonathan Reid
Hampshire mall
Hadley

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Showing Friday & Saturday
Hair 7:00
Fame 9:10
Sunday - Tuesday
One Show Only
The Right Stuff 7:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

RT. 47 SUNDERLAND
You must be 18 to enter
Open 'til 2
665-4937
24 Hour Taped Message
The rusty nail Inn PROUDLY PRESENTS
Tonight:
GRAND RE-OPENING
Half Price on All Drinks
THE FOOLS and THE RADIATORS
no cover
Coming:
Fri. April 20th THE STOMPERS $6.50 cover
Sat. April 21st TALKING DRUMS $6.00 cover
Tix available Wednesdays in the Campus Center
Sat. April 14th
NRBQ
$6.50 cover

IDB/TIPS

El Servicio de Información grabada por teléfono tiene grabaciones en Español

Llame al 545-1540 y pregunte por información como:

2427 Información sobre Empleos y Entrevistas de Trabajo
2458 Viviendas fuera de la Universidad
1316 Pre-matrícula para cursos
1010 El Programa Bilingue Colegial

Consiga el panfleto con todas las grabaciones disponibles en la Oficina del Decano de Estudiantes

Un servicio de la Oficina del Decanato de Estudiantes

THE WOK
Rte. 9 Hadley, Ma.
Special Appearance
Friday and Saturday

BRAFF

Fri & Sat Open till 2 a.m. 586-1202 proper attire required available for private parties

STADIUM

LIQUORS

Rolling Rock 12 oz. B.	$9.95 + 1.20 cs	Gallo Premium 3 L.	$5.90
Pabst 12 oz. C.	$8.50 + 1.20 cs	Gallo Premium 1.5.	$3.59
Moosehead 12 oz. B.	$13.65 + 1.20 cs	Almaden Premium 4 L.	$6.99
St Pauli 12 oz. B	$13.75 + 1.20 cs	Inglenook Premium 3 L.	$5.99
Budweiser loose C.	$10.95 + 1.20 cs	Martini & Rossi Asti 750 ml	$7.79
Busch loose C.	$8.95 + 1.20 cs	Vodka 1.75.	$8.25
		Gilbey Gin 1.75.	$10.99

not responsible for typographical errors

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Smith College John M. Greene Hall

Sunday, April 15, 1984 at 4:00 PM
All Beethoven Program

"Archduke" Trio
"Triple Concerto"
with A Special Orchestra:
Adrian Semo, concertmaster
Sergiu Comissiona, conductor

A benefit concert for the ERNST WALLFISCH MEMORIAL FUND

Tickets: $14. and $11. (Students and Senior Citizens: $9. amd $7.)

BOX OFFICE OPEN
Monday - Friday 12 - 5
584-2700 ext. 366

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day they take place. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

BRIGHT MORNING STAR BENEFIT CONCERT — Exciting folk group finishes its national tour in a benefit for the western Mass. Peace and Justice community. Tickets available at Food for Thought, Amherst. 7:30 p.m., Bowker Auditorium.

KABBALAT SHABBAT — All are welcome. 6:30 p.m., 72 Triangle St., Amherst.

SHABBAT SERVICES — 7:00 p.m., Dukes Room, SU.

INTERNATIONAL FELLOWSHIP DINNER — A dinner honoring all foreign students faculty, families; Sayed Arif Ali, emcee. Program includes dances, songs, balloons, juggling. Theme—"Getting to Know You." Students, faculty, families from other lands are our GUESTS. 5:30 p.m., Amherst Jr. High School.

Oodles.

If you're a senior and have the promise of a $10,000 career-oriented job, do you know how many good reasons there are for you to apply for the American Express® Card?

You guessed it.

Lots.

Because when you get the American Express Card now, you can use it for vacation travel, restaurants, hotels, and car rentals. As well as for shopping for things like a new stereo or clothes.

And if you think you need the Card now, just wait until you're working. (It's going to happen sooner than you think.) Then it will be absolutely indispensable.

So apply today. All you need is a $10,000 job. That's it. No strings. No gimmicks. And this offer is even good for 12 months after you graduate.

Because American Express wants to show that we not only believe in your future, but we also believe in you now.

Just call 800-528-8000 for a Special Student Application or look for one at your college bookstore or on your campus bulletin boards.

The American Express Card. Don't leave school without it.℠

Look for an application on campus.

© American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc. 1984

Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Italian Style
PIZZA

* Veal Parmigiana
* Baked Manicotti
* Cheese &
* Meat Ravioli

all at Figaro's
Hampshire Mall
Hadley

OPEN THURSDAY & FRIDAY NITES

SPRING STEREO & VIDEO SALE

OPEN THURSDAY & FRIDAY NITES

SAVE 70.00

$279.99

RCA 19 INCH XL100 SOLID STATE COLOR TV

SUPERB VALUE FROM RCA, THIS XL100 19 SOLID STATE COLOR TV FEATURES AUTOMATIC COLOR CONTROL, AUTOMATIC FINE TUNING, SEPARATE UHF & VHF TUNERS, ATTRACTIVE CABINETRY AND THE RELIABILITY OF RCA

SAVE 80.00

$419.99

SONY 19" TRINITRON SOLID STATE COLOR TV

THE SONY EXCLUSIVE TRINITRON COLOR SYSTEM (ONE GUN - ONE LENS) FOR THE BEST COLOR AVAILABLE. 14 CHANNEL PRESET ELECTRONIC TUNING, AUTOMATIC COLOR CONTROL & AUTOMATIC FINE TUNING.

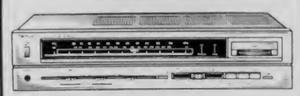
SAVE 200.00

FISHER CABLE READY VIDEO CASSETTE RECORDER

CABLE READY TUNER ALLOWS YOU TO WATCH ONE CABLE CHANNEL AND RECORD ANOTHER. 8 FUNCTION REMOTE CONTROL, SOFT 8 HOUR RECORD, AND PROGRAMMABLE TIMER.

499.99

SAVE 40.00



AKAI DOLBY CASSETTE RECORDER WITH FEATHER TOUCH

SUPERB VALUE, DOLBY NOISE REDUCTION, FEATHER TOUCH CONTROLS, OILED DAMPED EJECT SYSTEM, 3 DIGIT COUNTER, 12 SEGMENT FLD BAR METER.

99.99

SAVE 40.00

Technics 20 WATT AM/FM SOLID STATE STEREO RECEIVER

GREAT VALUE. 20 WATTS RMS PER CHANNEL, GYRO TOUCH TUNING, AUTO LOUDNESS COMPENSATION, GREAT SOUNDING — 2 YEAR GUARANTEE.

99.99

SAVE 200.00 FIVE FREE DISCS

Technics COMPACT DIGITAL AUDIO DISC PLAYER

THE BEST SOUND AVAILABLE COMES FROM THIS DIGITAL COMPACT DISC PLAYER WITH 32-STEP RANDOM ACCESS MEMORY, WIRELESS REMOTE CONTROL, MOTOR DRIVEN DISC DRAWER.

599.99

SAVE 30.00

AKAI BELT DRIVE SEMI-AUTOMATIC TURNTABLE

BELT DRIVE, FRONT PANEL CONTROLS ALLOW YOU TO CUE RECORD WITH DUST COVER ON. STRAIGHT TONE ARM.

59.99

SAVE 10.00

Panasonic COMPACT FM STEREO CASSETTE PLAYER

LISTEN TO FM STEREO OR YOUR FAVORITE CASSETTE TAPES WHILE WALKING OR JOGGING THROUGH LIGHTWEIGHT STEREO HEADPHONES.

49.99

SPECIAL SPECIALS

TDK SAC 90 CASSETTES	(*3)	*1.99
SMOKE DETECTORS	(20)	10.99
EMPIRE LIGHTWEIGHT STEREO HEADPHONES	(20)	8.99
PANASONIC AM/FM PORTABLE RADIO	(17)	9.99
EXTENSION TELEPHONE	(15)	8.99
PANASONIC AM/FM CLOCK RADIO	(30)	19.99
CROWN WALKING STEREO CASSETTE	(30)	19.99
6x9 40 OUNCE CAR SPEAKERS	(50)	29.99
ROADSTAR CAR AM/FM CASSETTE	(110)	59.99
UNIVERSAL CAR SECURITY ALARM	(40)	29.99
CROWN FM STEREO WALKING CASSETTE	(60)	39.99
SONY 33W FM STEREO WALKMAN	(65)	49.99
PANASONIC 7020 700 FT. CORDLESS PHONE	(200)	89.99

SAVE 80.00

JENSEN CAR PUSHBUTTON AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE

PUSHBUTTON STATION SELECTION, FADER CONTROL, AUTO REVERSE FOR CONTINUOUS CASSETTE PLAY.

99.99

SPECIAL VALUE

ALPINE AUTO REVERSE CAR AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE

UNIVERSAL CHASSIS FITS MOST CARS; AUTO REVERSE; LOCKING FAST FORWARD & REVERSE; SUPERB & SENSITIVE STEREO RADIO.

159.99

SAVE 130.00

JENSEN DIGITAL AM/FM AUTO REVERSE DOLBY CASSETTE

SUPERB CAR STEREO WITH FADER CONTROL, AUTO TAPE SEARCH, FEATHER TOUCH CONTROLS, FLEXFADE CIRCUIT, ELECTRONIC DIGITAL TUNER & CLOCK. JENSEN'S BEST UNIVERSAL MODEL.

289.99

SINCE 1961

The Sound Company

SPRINGFIELD 447 SUMNER AVE. at the X 736-3626
Open Thurs. & fri. Til 9 P.M. Open Sundays 12-5

CHICOPEE FAIRFIELD Mall near Caldors 593-8330
Open Every Evening til 9:30 PM Open Sunday 12-5
No Rain Checks. Quantities Limited. All items not available in all stores and NO DEALERS.

AMHERST 201 N Pleasant Street 256-0744
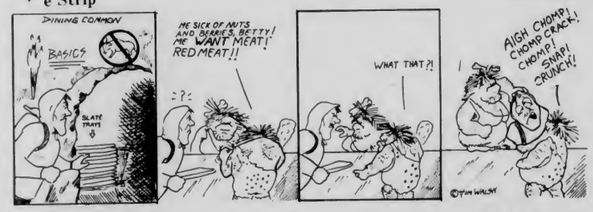
Open Thurs. & Friday Evenings Til 9 PM



Bloom County by Berke Breathed

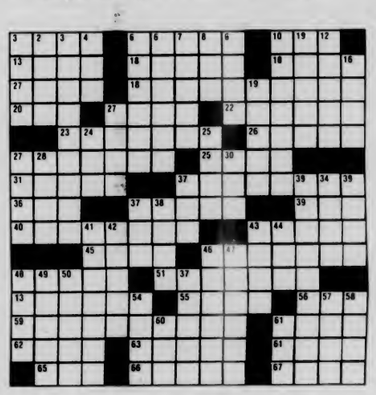
The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

The Strip Jim Wals

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

FRED BAKER By T.A.D

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

© 1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Skirt feature
5 In the lead
10 Edible root
13 Dormer feature
14 Cleanse
15 Bean or vault
17 Pilaster
18 Despondent
20 Rooter's word
21 Fashion
22 Liquefied
23 Deletion
26 Honkers
27 Confirms
29 Empty
31 —— woodpecker
32 Heredity's science
36 Biblical lion
37 "Not with —— but a whimper"
39 Litchi, e.g.
40 Storms
43 Head cover, at Canterbury
45 Virginia ——
46 Cochise and Geronimo
48 Fur trader of note
51 O'Hara's "From the ——"
53 Nearsightedness
55 —— du Vent
56 Posed
59 Like a big spender
61 Sweet shop selection
62 American playwright and film critic
63 Castle, of films
64 Finnish verse
65 Id ——
66 Treated in a way
67 Frank

DOWN
1 Box
2 Cantrell
3 Au courant
4 Hyson
5 Songlike
6 Indian natives
7 Record
8 Grate residue
9 Judge
10 Lavish
11 Title, at Versailles
12 High mountains, in France
16 Toiler, of old
19 Stray calf
21 "Grand old name"
24 Part of ERA
25 Equal
27 Hebrew month
28 Marsh bird
30 Protectors, at home: Abbr.
32 Helium
33 Behind the eight ball
34 Remedy
35 Teresa and Helene: Abbr.
37 Vital statistic
38 Karate trophy
41 Isaiah, e.g.
42 Nest
43 Flemish river
44 Govt. agency
46 Entertainer Dahl
47 —— upon (plundered)
48 Bowfin
49 "Riders to the Sea" playwright
50 Calculates (with "up")
52 —— Tages (one day): Ger.
54 In the center
57 —— of Cleves
58 One of the ages
60 Gold, in Granada
61 ——-Magnon

For information and the latest news I read the Collegian.

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Patties
Patties
More patties

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable patties
More vegetable patties

DINNER
Patties with gravy
Desert patties

BASICS DINNER
More of the same

Weather

Today, partly sunny east, sunny in the morning west then clouding up in the afternoon. Highs 50 to 60. Clouds overspreading all areas tonight, lows 30 to 40. Tomorrow, a chance of showers, highs mostly in the 50s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

C	A	F	E		F	I	A	T		A	A	G	E	S
A	M	E	N		E	A	T	I	L		E	N	A	L
M	O	L	D		R	E	C	R	E	A	T	I	V	E
P	I	R	O	U	E	T	T	E		A	S	T	I	D
		C	R	A	M		B	I	S	E	N
C	R	I	S	P	E	R		C	I	A	O		S	E	D
R	A	V	E	S		E	R	I	N		D	E	L	I
S	I	G	A		S	W	E	E	T		J	A	M
S	E	E	S		U	R	G	E		D	U	K	E
S	L	E	E	P	E	R		T	H	I	E	V	E	S
		S	I	C	I	L	Y		U	N	C	L	E
S	N	A	P	P	E	D		P	A	T	R	O	N	I	Z	E	D
L	I	V	E	L	I	N	E	S	S		V	I	A	N	E
A	M	E	N		S	H	A	R	E		L	U	T	O	N
P	A	T	R	I	A		M	A	I	N	E		W	E	S	T

Attention: Intramural Softball Teams
Be a hit with Custom printed
Tee-Shirts & Hats
at Low, Low Cost
CREATIVE TEE-SHIRTS
Hampshire Mall
Hadley 586-9205

KICK OFF LOUNGE

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Coming this weekend. . .

Saturday Happy Hour
featuring "Just George" 4:00 - ?
(from the Boston & Cape Cod circuit)

— All you can eat Chicken Wings! —

AT JUSTIN RYAN'S

BLUE WALL
18 + Welcome
A NEW SENSORY EXPERIENCE
Friday
"1984"
4/13
DANCE!
SOUND!
LIGHTS!
NIGHTCLUBBING
Live D.J. from WMUA
MIX MASTER MIKE
Happy Hour Prices 91¢ Cover

Face UNH, UVM, Maine...

Softball travels North

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

A seemingly easy task awaits the University of Massachusetts softball team tonight and tomorrow.

The Minutewomen, who have faced the likes of last year's third place finisher in the NCAA South Carolina to Adelphi, Eastern Michigan and Atlantic 10 power Rutgers, just face Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine in a round-robin Vermont Invitational tournament.

UMass, 14-7 on the year, faces Vermont tonight in their tournament opener followed by games with New Hampshire and Maine on Saturday.

"We are going up there with the idea of winning the whole thing," head coach Elaine Sortino said. The Minutewomen have taken the tourney for the past two years.

And the Minutewomen, who are coming off a double pasting of Holy Cross on Wednesday cannot afford to become complacent.

"All of these other teams are the underdogs," co-captain Tina Coffin said. "We can't let anyone sneak up on us and ruin our season. We have to play heads-up ball."

Last season, sophomore pitcher Lynn Stockley tossed a no-hitter in a 7-0 win over New Hampshire. In fact, she was two walks away from a perfect game.

Massachusetts won the other UNH game by a 4-0 score to sweep both games.

While UMass has not played Maine (UMass romped 12-0) since 1980, the year they went to the College World Series, they have faced Vermont more recently.

The Catamounts posted their first losing season in over nine years with a 8-13 record including 7-0 and 5-1 losses to the Minutewomen at NOPE last year. Sophomore pitcher Cathy Reed had a no-hitter going into the seventh inning of the first game.

Rugby hosts Beacon Hill at home on Lower Boyden

By SCOT COOPER
Collegian Staff

If ever a day seemed that it was longer than twenty four hours, it was last Saturday for the University of Massachusetts rugby team.

Four sides traveled three-and-a-half hours to West Point to battle the Army rugby club and UMass got a perfect four for four on the afternoon. Losses that is.

The games started off pretty well, with the UMass A side and C side opening the scoring in their games. But after that, the UMass forwards and backs saw only Army players scooting by them to score point after point. Every side lost by at least fifteen points.

Mark Jenkins, the A side flyhalf said that the team played well in spots, but could not get a unified effort from the front line and the back line at the same time. The forwards would play strong for a stretch and the backs collapsed, and vice versa.

Army had a conditioning edge over UMass, but fundamentally UMass held their own in the line-outs and scrums.

A brisk wind whipping off the Hudson river kept the players moving at the start of all four matches, but as the Army sides piled up the points UMass seemed to be going through the motions. Even the long drive home would be a relief from what happened on the pitch.

UMass will be looking to return to the victory circle this Saturday afternoon at home against the Beacon Hill rugby club from Boston. UMass's A side always plays better on the home field. The pitch at lower Boyden is one of the best in the league, no rocks to avoid and the grass is great.

Captain Duncan McKay played his first game in seven months in the C side game and his shoulder held up well. Backs George Economou and John Moriarity lead a UMass backfield that can score points from all over the field. While the pack is anchored by Al Borghi, Bill Carroll and Scott Baker, nowcomer Mike Chuma has been a welcome addition to the A side.

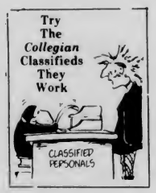
One thing UMass has missed is the reliable kicking of Kevin Lyons and Joe Kennedy, who have graduated. Englishman Jenkins had been doing the kicking the past few weeks, but he too is now gone, off to France for three weeks.

Game time this Saturday is 12:30 p.m., near the sewage treatment plant at lower Boyden playing fields.

★Lax

continued from page 20

the two teams are similar.



"We play a very similar style," he says. "From what I've seen of them, their attack has been dynamite. It should shape up to be quite a game."

The fact that both UMass and New Hampshire will probably come to battle tied for number two in New England only adds to the drama. The coaching match-ups only adds to the fun.

Garber says he doesn't make Sweet or his son an issue of the game. "It's the players, not the coaches out there," he said. Although he admits "Maybe it's in the back of my mind."

"It's probably more incentive for them to beat the old man'," he grins.

Try
The
Collegian
Classifieds
They Work

UMass Transit Service presents the Summer Training Program
for Bus Drivers

if you:
- have had a drivers' license for a year
- are at least 18 years old
- have 3 or more semesters remaining in a UMass degree program
- want a fun, well-paying student job
you are eligible.

100 applications will be given out. Bring proof of class year (schedule or transcript - no ID's)
Wed. April 18th 7 PM CC 174

UMTS is an EO/AA employer.
Women/minorities/older students encouraged to apply.

Tigers are victorious again

DETROIT (AP) - Alan Trammell, Chet Lemon and Lou Whitaker hit home runs as Jack Morris and the unbeaten Detroit Tigers defeated Texas 9-4 Thursday, extending Detroit's winning streak to seven games, the best start in the club's 84-year history.

The Tigers' best previous start was 6-0 in 1911.

Morris, 3-0, in his first start since his no-hitter Saturday, gave up a single to leadoff hitter Mickey Rivers. After seven innings, Morris got relief help from Aurelio Lopez and Willie Hernandez.

Trammell walked in the first, went to third on a single by Barbaro Garbey and scored on Larry Herndon's single. Frank Tanana, 0-1, walked Chet Lemon to load the bases. Rod Allen singled Garbey home.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

APARTMENT NEEDED

Desperate - need 2-3 bdrm apt for Fall 84 will take in summer - Puffton Townehouse or Brandywine - Susan 546-8348

AUTO FOR SALE

74 Ford van. Excellent engine. Runs great. $800. Ross - 256-8728

81 BMW 320i excellent condition 19700 mi alloy wheels alpine stereo A/C call eves 253-3009

1974 Dart slant 6, dependable, many new parts, asking 600$, 549-3796

75 Dodge Colt selling for parts - $175 new head cylinder for info call Lisa 546-8513

73 VW Beetle runs well body good many new parts $950 256-1080

1974 Dodge Colt good body, int., needs tune up, muff. Call Matt nites low mi 549-6732

Celica GT Liftback 1980 excellent cond copper 54000 miles $5400firm 527-8414 keep trying John

73 Mercury Comet good engine new brakes, exhaust, battery. Inspected. Dependable transpo. $700 or BO call 1-772-6259 eves

1974 Firebird needs shocks runs well good engine must sell $575 call Bill 6-5234

CAPE COD

I need room for summer in South or Wesr Yarmouth. Call mark 256-8225

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS 4 years Quality Service at UMass. Why pay more? 256-1393

Camelot is hara! Moondance Comics

FOR RENT

4 bedroom apt 2 bthrms nice location Rt 9 Amherst summer sublet w/fall option call for details Bob, Gareth, Alex 253-5798

Room in Hadley farmhouse 1½ miles from campus 137.50+ inexpensive utilities call Maggie 549-5229

Housemates wanted for Northampton house. Near downtown, bus. $150/mo. + call 584-2905

Summer subletters wanted for Swiss Village apartment. $175.00 includes all utilities! 256-1474

3 bedrooms available for summar with fall option Amherst Centre call evenings 253-2683

2 bedroom Townhouse apt in Squire Vill available June 1 with fall option. Pay 2 mo. get one free for summer sublet. On bus line. 665-8196

2 rooms for rent in beautiful $100,000 house in Sunderland. $185 includes everything call 549-1218

Fall option - 1 room available July 1st. Entire apt available in fall. Pool, tennis, bus. $137 utilities included! Call Leanne late PM 665-7581 keep trying!

Two bedroom apt available June 1st skylights upstairs deck 450.00 heat included 256-1470 253-3825

One bedroom apt in Crestviaw, summer sublet w/fall option 549-5949

Apartment in Sunderland 2 bdrm bus route June 1 fall option 330 mo 665-7044

FOR SALE

Camera Canon F1 w/35mm wide angle lens must sell best offer Tom 546-6147

Men's 10 speed Fuji bike. Just tuned. $100 firm. 253-2161

FOUND

Found: Jacket in front of East Experiment Station March 15th. Call 546-7061 and describe to claim.

Student ID from STCC in ladies room.

1st floor CC please stop by the Collegian to claim it.

HELP WANTED

The UMass Yearbook is now accepting applications for all positions for the 1984-85 staff. Apply in person at 102 CC (next to the Collegian)

OVERSEAS JOBS. . .Summer, yr. round. Europe, S. America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-2000 mo. Sightseeing. Free info. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-MA1 Corona Del Mar, CA 92625

Mobile Vending Vehicle Drivers wanted for Cape Cod this summer after 7:00 PM Pete 584-9580

Enthusiastic Students to apply Asst. to the Speaker/Student Senate Work on student/campus/social issues. Experience w/in SGA helpful, but not necessary. 10 hrs. wk. $3.35 hr. For more info. call Stacy Roach - 545-0341 Pick-up applications in rm. 420 SUB Application deadline April 17, 4:00 pm. SGA is an AA/EOE

JOBS FOR FALL '84

Earthfoods Restaurant now hiring for part time fall positions. Work 8-12 hrs. week two hour mandatory Mon night meeting / two hrs committee work non pd. 3.50/hr High committment required Third World student, men, women encouraged to apply. Work study & non work study avail. Applications at Kitchen around corner from ride board deadline Mon Ap 16 EOE

LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED

The Legal Services Offica has 8 positions available for full-time legal assistant interns for Fall 1984 semester. Up to 15 credits may be received from academic departments. Aid attorneys at LSO with client interviewing, legal research, negotiations, investigations, giving advice and referrals, preparation of court forms, attendance at hearings in District and Superior Courts, and participation in administrative hearings and federal litigation. Maintain continuing caseload under attorney supervsion. To apply, and for advice on arranging an internship and credit, contact Office of Internships, Curry Hicks Building, by Friday, April 13, 1984. Writing sample required. Further information, LSO, 922 Campus Center

LOST

Green backpack and bluejean jacket Friday at TOC contains large white notebook. Reward please call Rick 256-1350

Before Break, purple and gray T-teck hand-knit wool sweater. Extreme sentimental value. Reward! If found, please call 253-8046

Tan Irish Tweed Cap Morrill Audit please call 256-8135 great sentim value!!

Lost: Gold Ring w/diamond sentimental value reward offered call 6-9914 ask for Hope or Maria

Pair of shiny black shoes between Sylvan and Northeast last Monday around 7:30 pm please call John 253-9678

Gold ring/red stone if found please call Jennifer 546-9793 reward

Pink glasses in a beige case in either SBA, Grad Towers or Hasbrouck. If found please call 6-8861

MOTORCYCLES

1982 Honda 650 Nighthawk, exc. cond. new in 83, 1600, 549-6934

1980 Kawasaki 550 LTD red low miles excellent condition $1100 BO 549-6055

PERSONALS

Iota Gamma Upsilon
Open Rush
Thurs. 4/12 8-9 pm
Tues. 4/17 8-9 pm
Wed. 4/18 7-8 pm
For info call 256-6874

Reach out and TUCK someone sign up for Tuck In Service Monday April 9 to Friday April 13 Campus Center Concourse

You too can join the Big V Club Beth acting president Kate pretending Treasurer Kyung striving Director

JoJo - Fred says yabba dabba do and congratulations on your new job

WEEKEND IN NYC 10 spaces left May 5-6 reduced rates $18 bus only, or $36 hotel and bus call Matt 546-5530

Happy Birthday Susan Kelley! See somebody loves you. . .Luv, Claire

Lolo, For all the times I never said the things I should have, I thank you for all the times you understood. Your love, your heart, your hopes and dreams have all made the great distance seem so insignificant. Love you always. James.

Hey Sha-Lou! It's the big day. Let's continue the celebration! Happy 21. This year WILL be fun. Hugs and kisses - Rhonda and Karenann

Today is Mitra Safa's Birthday. Give her a call at 665-8126 and wish her a Happy B-day.

Problems with you landlord? Call LSO 545-1995

Jill, I sincerely hope you made it!!! (no pun intended) Anyways, have a great 20th. Mike

Holly from AXO - "Congratulations" on your orders, now we have to go out! Only this time you decide where you want to go! LMP

Contact lenses replaced. Baush Lomb $25. other brands available. Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8561

Jennifer Let's not let our time run out, we'll both regret it! Your Headache

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

ROBIN LOPATER

Have the Happiest Birthday Honey!!!!! Love, Me

ROOM WANTED

Females looking for 1 or 2 bedrooms in house near campus and bus route for next semester and on. Must allow pets. Call 546-4349/4347

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

2 female roommates wanted to share 3 bedroom Puffton apartment call 549-5487

Responsible females to share room in sunny Southwood apt. summer/fall 253-5109

Two people wanted to share a room in a very comfortable duplex across the street from Southwest call Peter 549-6985 or Terry 546-8797

2 females wantad to share Colonial Village apt 300+ call Janet 546-7091

Cape Cod West Yarmouth prime location Rt 28 2 roommates wanted call Bill 546-5234 or Eric 549-4377

SCHWERTZEL

Sorry I blew you off on the big day I planned to do something really niice but being the poorest and busiest kid on campus I was unable to celebrate with you...maybe it will snow in New Hampshire...all my love Steven

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite 253-5111

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

SPRING DANCE!

McNamara House Council presents a SPRING DANCE in the Bluewall Sat. April 14 from 8 pm - 1 am featuring Rack-A-Disk Adm. $3/cash bar everyone's invited!

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Brittany Manor summer sublet with fall option call 253-7728 anytime

1 bedroom apt $295 includes everything summer sublet w/fall option 665-2338

TO SUBLET

Summer - roomy Amherst house with yard near town, on bus route call after 5 PM 256-1268

Available for summer: furnished efficiency on Route 9. $205.00 monthly. Call 323-6769 after 7 PM

1 bdrm apt Amherst Center fall option 330 + elec 253-2486

For summer: Large bedroom in 4 bedroom house. 5 min walk to campus, large yard. $150 or best offer 549-1084

Female roommate for summer sublet needed. Excellent rates. Onm bus rte, washer/dryer. Rent negotiable. Call before 11. 665-7581

Large bedroom in Puffton private bath ideal for couple June-Sept $210 exclus call Brenda 549-6999

Beautiful 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summer fall option avail for two people, close to campus, rant neg call 549-6147

Rooms for rent starting June fall option Amherst Center Matt or Laura 256-6969

Apartment for sublet 295 a month includes utilities, one bedroom June 1 -August 29, Amherst, Kevin 256-1482

Townehouse 2 bedroom apt available for sumemr and fall Please call soon 546-7648

Apartment avail June 1 with fall option 295 mo incl utilities phone 665-7966 Sunderland

3 bedroom apt. Amherst June 1 - Aug 30 fall option 549-3818

Great summer sublet large new two bedroom townhouse on Rt 116 Sunderland furnished carpeted pool tennis bank 7-11 near by on bus rt students or small family 665-4201

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings. Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Someone to take over 1 bedroom apt in Brandywine call 549-0667

Looking for roommates?? 2 females looking to share Townehouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

Wanted 3 bedroom apt will take over summer lease please call reward 546-8311

West Side Students - Don't forget to vote Dick Newman for Selectman 4/14 He's the Democratic choice thanks Tim Flynn and Dave Crevier

House parents wanted. Off-campus sorority at UMass. Call 545-2092 or 256-6868 between 2 and 5 for info

WANTED TO RENT

HELP - Looking for apartment in Puffton Brandywine area. Will be well rewarded call Kim 546-4736

Two or three bedroom apt in Puffton reward Pam 546-9692, Mary 253-5604

2 or 3 bedroom in Puffton will take over summer lease call Jim 546-4445

Puffton Brandywine Townehouse will take summer lease. Will give nice reward. Pam 546-6675, 546-6618

Reward for finding 2 or 3 bedroom Riverglade apartment by early May Jane 527-5407

Looking for one bedroom apt in Colonial Village for summer and fall 84 call John at 546-9382

Looking for house 3-5 bedrooms for next year call Bill 546-4050 or Rick 546-4122

Sports

Presnal and the Minutemen prevail

By BOB BROCK
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD-So far this season, victories had been coming pretty hard for Tony Presnal and the University of Massachusetts baseball team. But yesterday, Presnal and his teammates took a step in the right direction as they thrashed American International College 9-2, at AIC's Miller Field.

Presnal picked up his first win of the year in fine style as he scattered seven hits and struck out 11 while going the distance. And despite getting into a few slight jams in the third and fifth innings, he was in complete control of the Yellow Jackets, now 12-6.

Besides getting solid pitching, the Minuteman bats came alive in this one as they rocked three AIC pitchers for 13 hits, including a grand-slam from centerfielder Steve Messina and a three-hit outing from designated hitter Todd Comeau. Third-baseman Andy Connors also chopped in with a pair of singles.

Actually, AIC starter and loser Pat Leahy held the Minutemen hitless until Angelo Salustri led off the fourth with a single. After he was thrown out trying to steal second, Comeau followed with a double to right-center. Jeff Cimini was then walked intentionally, followed by a walk to Bruce Kingman which loaded the bases with one out. Enter Mr. Messina. He worked the count to 2-and-2, then took a Leahy curveball over everything in left. UMass 4 AIC 0.

The Minutemen added two more in the fifth. Andy Connors led it off with a walk and then advanced to third on a Comeau basehit. Following a strikeout, Cimini doubled to left, scoring both Connors and Comeau.

The Yellow Jackets scored their runs in the bottom of the inning. With one out, centerfielder Chris O'Connor singled and advanced to third on a double by Al Miles. O'Connor then scored on an infield out and Miles came home on a single by AIC's Jim Van Houten. Presnal escaped any further trouble by striking out Greg Lindsay to end the inning.

UMass plated another run in the sixth by combining a hit, a walk and an RBI single by Comeau. In the eighth, they used three singles and a perfectly executed suicide squeeze by Angelo Salustri to pick up two more. Dan Clifford reached on a fielder's choice and advanced to second on a basehit by Tim Foster. Connors then followed with a run-scoring single to center.

It was definitely an encouraging win for both the Minutemen and Presnal. The Minutemen needed it because they leave this weekend for a pair of big double-headers with New England powerhouse Maine and the University of Vermont. And Presnal needed the win because it was his first despite pitching very well in his last three outings. Against UConn he fell victim to four unearned runs and in his last outing against St. Joe's, he threw well but made two bad pitches, both good for homers.

Big track meet at UMass Sat.

By M. E. MURRAY
Collegian Staff

Over one thousand athletes from fifty clubs and schools are expected here Saturday as the University of Massachusetts hosts its annual UMass Relays at the Derby Track.

A number of world-class participants will be vying for top honors. For example, in the hammer-throw event alone there are five individuals who have been part of previous U. S. Olympic squads.

Since its inception in 1976, the UMass Relays has been noted for attracting fine talent -- and for notoriously bad weather. The 1982 edition was snowed out when 16 feet of snow fell a few days before. That should not be a problem this year as dry, if gloomy, skies should prevail.

It promises to be a great day for spectators with a full slate of activities beginning with the men's 10,000 meters at 11 a.m. and finishing about 5 p.m. with the women's 4 x 440 relay.

One highlight of the day will be the men's invitational mile which is scheduled for a 2:10 start. Meet coordinator Ken O'Brien admits having a problem narrowing the field down to a competitive seven or eight; there are simply too many outstanding entries, including Richard O'Flynn from Providence who finished third at this year's NCAA cross-country championship.

And don't forget the locals. Participants from the UMass men's and women's track teams will be looking to improve at this the midpoint of their season.

Keep an eye out for Liz Patterson in the shot, all the UMass women in the three and five thousnd meters, and Kayla Morrison in the 100 and 200 meters.

On the men's side -- Rawle Crichlow and Brian Osborne should be fun to watch in the sprints and short-distance runs. Ferde Adaboe has placed well so far in the long-jump and the distance runners can always be counted on to produce.

It will be the only chance this year to see this fine bunch of UMass track and field athletes at home—so come on down to Derby Track behind the baseball field and cheer them on.

Laxwomen face NW and Harvard

By ED CUNNINGHAM
Collegian Staff

For most of us, the long weekend will be a chance to unwind. For one group of women, however, this weekend will be a busy one. The group in question is the women athletes who make up The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team.

The Gazelles take their unblemished record, 1-0, courtesy of a 10-9 win over UNH, to Cambridge Mass. to face off against the Harvard Crimson on Saturday and Northwestern on Sunday afternoon.

According to last week's polls, UMass was ranked second in New England and Harvard was third. Both teams enter this contest coming off big wins. UMass defeated the first ranked team in New England, New Hampshire. Harvard recently defeated Rutgers University.

This game could become a 'barn-burner'. The season is still young and both teams are healthy and hungry. They will be vying for first place in New England and possibly a national ranking.

Sunday's battle is a big question mark for UMass. This trip East is the first of the season for Northwestern and nobody has been able to scout them—yet. UMass will get the first crack at it Sunday. Enjoy your weekend.

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

Doug Muscio (4) moves away from a Brown defender Wednesday. UMass faces BC Saturday and UNH Monday at home.

Gorillas face unsuspecting BC, meet UNH at the Hill Monday

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

The road awaits the Massachusetts laxmen one more time before they can spend an afternoon at home. That road leads to Chestnut Hill and the Boston College Eagles tomorrow afternoon. Then it will be a Patriot's Day bonus, Monday afternoon, when the Gorillas lock up with the University of New Hampshire here at The Hill.

Any leftover disappointment from Wednesday's heartbreaking overtime loss to Brown must be pushed aside as the Gorillas will be facing an underrated Eagle squad and a New England's second ranked, (tied with Massachusetts), team, New Hampshire.

When asked about just that predicament yesterday, coach Dick Garber, emphasized the point.

"After the initial disappointment of losing an overtime game, you've got to realize 'what the hell,' you played a good game."

—Lax coach Dick Garber

"After you spend the afternoon or evening moping around, you've got to shake out the cobwebs and get going again," Garber pointed out. "When you play three games a week, you don't have the luxury of spending two or three days on personal sympathy."

And as he said, moments after the loss on Wednesday, "After the initial disappointment of losing an overtime game, you've got to realize 'What the Hell', you played a good game."

So with that in mind, the Gorillas hit Boston College's Alumni Stadium Astroturf at 2. p.m. Saturday. It is a game that Garber says, with a good deal of hesitation, is the one which his team SHOULD have the least trouble with, of all their opponents.

"That's a dangerous thing to say," Garber smiles. "But yes, that's right. They're not up there with Army or teams of that caliber, but they've played them and they've been in the game. They're a lot better than people give them credit for."

The game on turf should mean a faster action. The bounces are truer and the skips harder. All in all, it could mean an even more wide-open game than the Brown contest.

An added sidebar comes from the Eagle bench, or rather who is behind it. The B.C. mentor is former UMass star Brooke Sweet, who is in his second season.

Of course, Sweet isn't the only familiar face Garber will see in an opponent's coaching jacket over the weekend. When the faceoff for the UNH game is dropped at 3 p.m. Monday, Garber will see his son leading the Wildcats.

The coach speaks with a bit of pride showing as he says that his son Ted has a well-prepared New Hampshire team.

"Ted's become a very good coach," he reflects. "People ask me if he copied the things I've done. No, he hasn't copied me. He's a great innovator and really put some good ideas into his teams."

The Wildcats will travel to Amherst on the heels of a surprising 13-10 loss to Harvard Wednesday. Garber expects a game similar to that of Brown, pointing out the

continued on page 18

The Massachusetts Daily

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 54 © UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) © Tuesday, April 17, 1984

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

STAR WARS? — Dressed to combat yesterday's inclement weather, Greg Bailey bears a close resemblance to Darth Vadar.

Full library reopening expected by fall 1985

By LARRY BOUCHIE
and LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Officials at the University of Massachusetts are going ahead with plans to restore the Tower Library to full occupational capacity by the fall of 1985.

Jack Littlefield, associate vice-chancellor of administration and finance, said that $2.5 million appropriated by the Massachusetts State Legislature will be used to finish the third and sixth floors, whose construction was never completed, and to revise elevator operations.

In addition, Littlefield said, an enclosed lobby will be constructed to connect the library's courtyard to the main tower, to protect students from chips of brick which can fall from the exterior of the library.

"The State Construction Agency is in the process of designing the plans, and when the design is finished, we will start soliciting bids for the work," Littlefield said.

The library was temporarily closed in August 1979, when it was determined that small chips of flaking brick were falling to the ground below.

Subsequently, books were removed from the Tower and transferred to Goodell Library when preliminary reviews indicated a possible weakness in the shelving, Littlefield said.

"After six to eight months of extensive study, however, it was determined that there was a construction extension to offset this problem," Littlefield said.

"It was then decided that we take advantage of the books' absence until further interior and exterior work was completed," Littlefield said.

"The problems with the exterior veneer had become extremely difficult," Littlefield said, "so the governor, the University, and the Legislature decided to delay any masonry repair until we achieve full occupancy in the building."

Occupancy in the Tower is currently restricted because of the number of safe fire exits.

"With the design process ongoing, we plan on reaching the full occupancy goal by the fall of 1985," Littlefield said.

Springtime planting projects expected to commence soon

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

The proposed planting of more than 60 trees and 180 shrubs initiates a major plan to "beautify" the University of Massachusetts campus.

Physical Plant Director Roger Cherewatti said, "what we're trying to do is go in the right direction to get the campus looking good physically." The projects are expected to begin in a few weeks.

The first of two projects involves planting 51 scarlet oak trees, which will line Commonwealth Avenue alongside the Boyden playing fields, University Landscape Architect Bill Lambert said.

"The other area we'll be doing is over at the health center," Lambert said. More than 300 ground cover perenials and evergreens, 180 shrubs and about 20 large and small sized trees will be planted around the outside of the Health Services area, he said.

Excluding labor, the two projects will cost the University approximately $10,000, Cherewatti said.

Later next week Cherewatti said he will meet with the Landscape and Architect Committee and the Campus Physical Committee to "develop a campus theme to beautify" the grounds. Students are involved in both committees.

"An overall theme is important. We don't want to jump from one thing to another. We want to look for continuity in our plans," Cherewatti said.

Ideas include a review on parking to insure pedestrian safety, better pedestrian lighting, particularly around Clark Hill road and the Southwest residential area, improved handicap accessibility, and implementing permanent walkways, Cherewatti said.

"I want to look for projects that will not be that expensive, but will give us benefits," he said.

Cherewatti said the University community has to assist the Physical Plant in their efforts to upgrade the appearance of the campus by taking pride in it.

"If you have pride in the campus maybe you'll place things and litter in its place and lessen the amount of vandalism," he said.

Tonight, tuck-ins for students will revive childhood rituals

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

It has probably been years since most college students have been put to bed, read a children's story and given a kiss goodnight, but at the University of Massachusetts, the ritual will return tonight.

In a fundraising effort for the Hotel Sales Marketing Association, a registered student organization, 87 unsuspecting students were signed up by friends last week at a table in the Campus Center concourse to be tucked in by teams and individuals of the opposite sex from 8 p.m. to midnight tonight.

The 27 tuckers, in dress ranging from tuxedos to pajamas, will cuddle the subjects with stuffed animals, read them a story, pour them a glass of champagne and give them a kiss — "wherever." The students will also receive a lollipop and a chocolate kiss.

It is the third semester for the tuck-in service, whose proceeds at $3 a shot go to the club treasury.

"Last year they all loved it," said John Mahaney, 20, a sophomore Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration major who coordinated the event. He said the subjects are often embarrassed, and neighbors usually laugh.

"Some people say, 'hey, that's a great idea' and look at it and smile. Reaction has been very positive — people like the idea," he said.

Mahaney said the service could accomodate 160 tuck-ins a night and the club was hoping for 120 to raise about $300. Last semester, 97 students were tucked in.

He added that it is the responsibility of the donor to ensure the subject's presence when the tuckers arrive for the 15 minute ceremony.

24-hour dance raises $17,000 to combat multiple sclerosis

Proceeds from an annual dance marathon held this weekend by a University of Massachusetts fraternity to raise money for fighting multiple sclerosis are expected to be about $17,000, according to organizers of the event.

Mark Rich, co-chair for Pi Kappa Alpha's fifth annual Multiple Sclerosis Dance Marathon, said yesterday that $17,000 was pledged to the 34 couples taking part in the event and that the fraternity "can actually raise more than $17,000 because kids can bring in more money than they raised."

Rich said the actual amount is not yet known because the participants must collect contributions from their sponsors, who pledged money before the event.

The winning couple will be announced at an awards party April 26 at Justin Ryan's on Route 9, which hosted the charity drive. The proceeds will be donated to the Connecticut River Valley Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Rich said.

In the past four years, the fraternity has raised $42,000, he said. The winning couple for this year's event will win a round trip to Hawaii, donated by Campus Travel.

— DAVID LINTON

INSIDE:

Resumption of arms talks urged . p. 3
Missile protesters missing ..... p. 7
Christine Marini on new Leon Forrest novel ..... p. 9

"State taxes due at midnight tonight."
— Mass. Gov. Michael Dukakis

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

PULITZER/WINNER — Stan Grossfield, photographer for the Boston Globe is carried away yesterday after it was announced he won a pulitzer for his photographs of the effects of war on the Lebanese people.

Reagan approves harsher measures against terrorist

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has approved a series of measures, including pre-emptive strikes and reprisals, designed to get the upper hand on terrorism worldwide, administration officials said yesterday.

One of the key elements of the policy is an effort to switch from defensive action to offensive, partly by increasing the ability of U.S. operatives to gather intelligence in order to stop terrorist activities before they occur.

"You have got to have very good intelligence and very good experience to deal with intelligence," said one administration official, who spoke on the condition that he remain anonymous. "We are just trying as best we can to improve this capability."

While the U.S. government has been increasingly concerned with terrorism for several years, new impetus to deal with it occurred when 241 U.S. servicemen died in the truck-bombing of a Marine headquarters building in Beirut, Lebanon, last Oct. 23.

Jackson says Mondale, Hart are selling public 'snake oil'

MISSOURI (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson accused his Democratic presidential rivals yesterday of "selling the American public snake oil" by advocating both higher defense budgets and increased social spending, while Gary Hart called for major tax reforms on the day that income taxes were due.

The fight for the Democratic presidential nomination has shifted to Missouri, where Jackson and Hart campaigned Monday for the 75 delegates at stake in party caucuses tomorrow.

Mondale, with a comfortable lead in delegates, was in the middle of a three-day campaign break. He heads to Missouri tomorrow for a caucus day appeal to voters.

In Jefferson City, Mo., Hart told a crowd of about 400 that the tax system set up by Democrats and Republican President Reagan "benefits the privileged few at the expense of the unprivileged many."

"It's time to stop talking about tax reform and start achieving it," he said. "We need more than ritual denunciations and the annual tinkering that has left us today's unworkable hodgepodge of statutes and regulations."

Digest

By The Associated Press

It was her last Girl Scout cookie

ADAMS — A teen-ager who bit into a jagged piece of metal as she ate a Girl Scout cookie said yesterday it's the last one she'll eat.

"I'm fine," said Mary Rose Gavazzi, 15, of Adams. "I'll never buy another box of Girl Scout cookies."

She was eating from a box of Hoe Downs, chocolate-covered cookies with a peanut butter filling, on Sunday night when she felt metal in her mouth and spit it out.

"My mother previously warned me to break open the cookies because of the problems in other places, but I didn't think of that until I felt the metal. I knew it wasn't my brace retainer. It was a jagged sliver, large at one end and tapered to a point at the other," said Gavazzi, a sophomore at Hoosac Valley High School.

"We were both shook up," said her mother, Mary Jane Gavazzi.

Gavazzi wears braces, but she didn't think the metal was from her retainer because that metal is smooth. A checkup yesterday with a member of her dentist's staff who makes retainers, Bonnie Santora, confirmed her belief.

Police Sgt. Richard Giroux said police have the metal at the station, but have not determined what type it is. It is shiny and measures about a quarter inch, he said.

"Apparently it came from the box," Giroux said, adding no other metal was found in that box of cookies.

Lucy McAfee, executive director of the Western Massachusetts Council of Girl Scouts, said it was the first report of metal

Time running out for taxpayers

BOSTON — Massachusetts taxpayers, facing a midnight deadline, tonight lunged into the last leg of their annual race against the clock for filing income tax returns yesterday.

"There's still a lot of returns out there," said William Kelley, taxpayers assistance bureau chief, as the Revenue Department took no holiday from tax collecting. Other state offices were closed for Patriots Day, a state holiday.

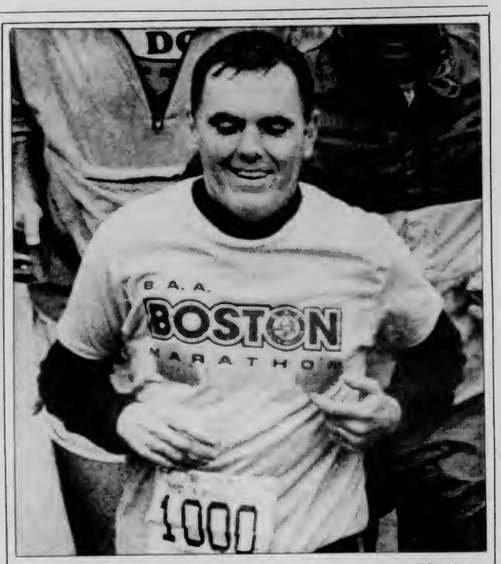
The state's three-day weekend gave its residents a two-day reprieve from the traditional April 15 filing deadline for both state and federal tax forms.

Revenue spokesman Harry Durning said the department expected about 1.2 million returns were being filed over the long holiday weekend into the final day today. That's almost half of the total 2.5 million returns anticipated by the state.

"We're looking for a really heavy day today," Durning said. "We're heading down the home stretch."

Eagle recovers from gun wound

AMHERST — A bald eagle which was found shot in January has recovered and will be set free at Quabbin Reservoir next week, officials say.



Jack Swedberg, project director for the Massachusetts eagle restoration program, said the bird will be fitted with a radio transmitter and identification tags before it is let go at Prescott Peninsula.

The peninsula is where the state Division of Fisheries and Wildlife and the University of Massachusetts run the eagle project.

The eagle is immature and has not grown the familiar white head and tail feathers yet. It was found struggling on melting ice at Assawompsett Pond Jan. 7.

Dr. Robert Tremblay, a Marion veterinarian, first took care of the animal. The eagle is now being handled in Conway by Thomas Ricardi, a state natural resource officer.

The release of the bird, tentatively scheduled for April 24, may be the first time a bald eagle has been set free after suffering gunshot wounds in the state, Swedberg said. A bald eagle was released several years ago after it suffered a concussion when hitting its head on a Pittsfield lake.

AP Laserphoto

RUNNING AGAIN — Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn nears the finish line in yesterday's Boston Marathon, see related Marathon stories p. 14.

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Rita Murphy
Copy Editor	Ian Polumbaum
Layout Technician	Will Hopkins
Photo Technician	Andy Heller
Production Supervisor	Lesley Clark
Production	John Wielgus, Lynn Eisenberg, Ann Hacker Martha Connors, Beth Bazinet, Beth Poudrier Jon O'Hearn, Will Hopkins, Marsha Wilcon Marianne Walsh, Tim Riviere, Rita Murphy

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

©Copyright, the Massachusetts Daily Collegian 1984.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Paul Warnke — former arms negotiator

Ex-negotiator:arms talks crucial

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

The possibility of a nuclear war must be averted by the resumption of arms control talks with the Soviet Union, according to the chief arms negotiator during the Carter administration.

Paul Warnke, currently a Washington lawyer, offered his insights on the tactics and methods of arms control negotiation to an Amherst College audience of 75 last night.

"In any negotiation it is important to put yourself in the position of the other side.... We have to recognize that it is no deal unless it is a deal for both sides," Warnke said.

Warnke, referring to George Orwell's 1984, said there has never been as much "peacespeak" while at the same time "there has never been less being done for peace." The huge mistake of the Reagan Administration was to try to force the Soviets to make arms control concessions by deploying Pershing II missiles in Europe.

"Neither side is going to be able to frighten the other side out of the arms race," he said.

Two irreconciliable concepts prevent the progress of arms control negotiations, said Warnke.

The first, mutually assured destruction (MAD), is the principle that nuclear weapons exist only for deterrence purposes, because of the certainty of mutual destruction in the case of an exchange, he said.

This principle, Warnke said, contradicts the "so called" school of thought held by nuclear utilization theorists, who Warnke called simply NUTS.

Warnke said nuclear utilization theorists believe that a protracted and limited nuclear war can be fought and won.

The term "protracted and limited nuclear war," he said, is an oxymoron, a figure of speech "which holds two mutually exclusive meanings, like Amtrak schedule and military intelligence."

Warnke said President Reagan and his advisors have to realize that the Soviet Union would never let the U.S. gain superiority by default.

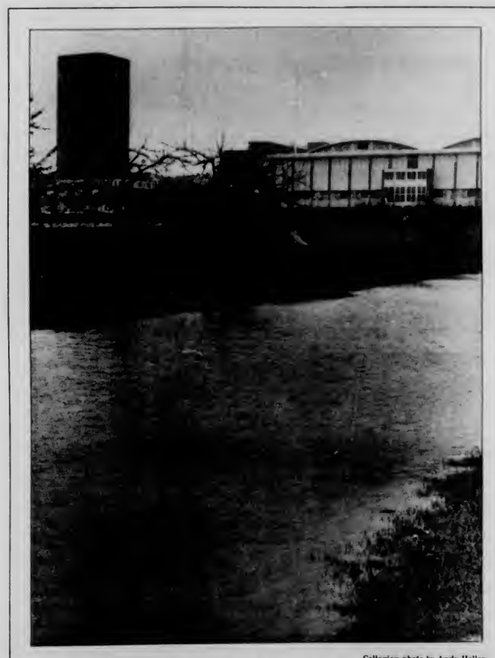
"They may not do it as well as we do, but they are not going to let us get way ahead," he said. "Their accuracy may not be as good as ours is, but I have never been interested in to-whom-it-may-concern missiles."

UTC conference status uncertain as fall schedule plans are made

The director of Conference Services at the University of Massachusetts said it has not been formally determined whether United Technologies Corp. will be returning to hold conferences in the Cmpus Center after student protests last fall.

Elizabeth A. Dale said Thursday that UTC was "not willing to make a commitment or sign a contract at this point," but had not formally indicated they would not be returning. She said UTC was informed in January that fall conference space was rapidly filling, but has not yet made reservations. "There is always a chance" they will still decide to reserve space, but UTC has been "non-committal" so far, she said.

"I thought that we would know by now, but we don't want to put any pressure on them to make a decision," Dale said. "If they don't come back, we'll have the space available to sell to another client."



If no further contact is made with UTC by the end of the month, she added, perhaps then it will be time to consider filing a lost business report.

Alarm causes SUB evacution

A fire alarm caused the evacuation of the Student Union building at 7:20 p.m. last night.

The Amherst fire department responded to the alarm, which was believed caused by students who were spray painting a mural on the fourth floor of the building, said Roland Briere, acting officer of the fire department.

About 30 to 40 people were forced to leave the building, including those in the Hatch cafeteria. The alarm also caused the mini-store to close for about 10 minutes.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

APRIL SHOWERS — Heavy rainfall yesterday floods the edges of the Boyden Playing Fields.

'The holiest time of year'

By BRIAN MACMAHON
Collegian Correspondent

Editor's Note. This week Christians and Jews throughout the world celebrate Holy Week and Passover, respectively. This is the first in a two-part series focusing on the two religious celebrations.

This week, Holy Week, marks the final week of Lent, a 40 day period which started with Ash Wednesday and will culminate on Easter Sunday. The Rev. J. Joseph Quigley of the University of Massachusetts Newman Center said this period of Lent is "the holiest time of the year for Christians, more so than the Christmas season."

Holy Week, Quigley said, "commemorates the final days and hours of Jesus" from his triumphant entrance into Jerusalem being hailed as "King of the Jews", through "Spy Tuesday" when his disciple Judas was paid thirty silver pieces to betray Jesus to the authorities.

On Holy Thursday, "Jesus said the first mass and instituted the Eucharist," said Quigley. The Eucharist, a symbolic representation of the body of Jesus, is the focal point of the mass.

Rev. John Smegal of the Newman Center said, "the Eucharist is the mass."

Holy Thursday is followed by Good Friday, the day Jesus was interrogated by a Roman official named Pontius Pilate.

A crowd of people gathered outside of Pilate's palace, when asked what punishment Jesus should receive, called out "crucify him." Smegal said Good Friday is the only day of the year mass is not celebrated, "because of Jesus' death," he said.

The Easter vigil on Saturday, Smegal said, "symbolizes Jesus' resurrection and the renewal of the Christians in Christ."

Easter Sunday is the day when "Jesus substantiates his promise" and rises from the dead, Quigley said.

Newman Center masses will be held this Monday through Wednesday at 8 a.m., 12:15 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. Holy Thursday masses will be at 8 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Good Friday's celebration will be held at 4 p.m., with the Stations of the Cross, a reenactment of Jesus' "last mile" from his condemnation by Pontius Pilate to his burial, at 7:30 p.m. Confessions will be heard from 3-4 p.m. Saturday, with the Easter Vigil at 7:30 p.m. Easter Sunday masses will be held at 8, 9:30, 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., and in the evening at 4:30 and 7.

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's News Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

Tuesday — The Student Sexual Harassment Education Project will meet at 2:30 p.m. in CC 801.

The Women's Leadership Project will meet at 5:30 p.m. in room 415 Student Union. New members welcome.

Wednesday — Dr. Kathleen Molony will discuss "Feminism in Japan" as part of the Amherst College Lecture Series on Women's History, at 4 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst College.

Leslie Laurie, director of Family Planning for Western Massachusetts and past president of the National Planning and Reproductive Health Association, will discuss "The Politics of Contraception" at 7:30 p.m. in Porter Lounge, Converse Amherst College.

"Chicken Ranch," a film depicting legalized prostitution in Nevada, will show at 8 p.m. in the Main Lecture Hall at Hampshire College.

The Women's Issues Team of the Student Center for Educational and Advocacy will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 802.

The Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom will meet at 4:00 p.m. Check Campus Center Schedule for room number.

All invited to 'Run for Ritter'

By DOUGLAS SHAPERO
Collegian Correspondent

On April 28 runaways in New York City will benefit from the efforts of Massachusetts runners, as the fifth annual Run for Ritter takes place at the University of Massachusetts' Alumni Stadium.

The competitors will be taking pledges for every mile of the 6.2 mile race to Rev. Bruce Ritter, a New York priest who aids runaway children through Convent House, a youth-care agency that protects children from prostitution and pornography.

The race, sponsored by the Newman Students Association, has a $5 entry fee and attracts many campus supporters.

Bob Coulter, publicity director, said that the run "has 15 to 20 organizers who have taken further steps (than in previous years) to get more runners involved."

The race is protected by police at the start and at major intersections. The course begins at the stadium and runs through Hadley and Amherst. Interested runners may register in the Campus Center Concourse until this Friday, or in the Newman Center until April 27.

Coulter said there will be several different categories of competition including a dorm division, an academic department division and a Greek area division. In the Greek division the winner will have his or her name etched on a plaque and hung in their house.

Along with UMass, the rest of the five colleges — Amherst, Smith, Hampshire and Mount Holyoke — will have groups participating. A promotional banner will be hung across North Pleasant Street in Amherst to attract more runners and pledges.

The race, Coulter said, will feature computerized finish results to speed up trophy giving.

LIFE AFTER LIBERAL ARTS

Don't Face Underemployment Because You Lack the Attitude and Aggressive Job-Hunt Skills Needed to Find the Jobs and Be the Best Candidate.

NATIONAL CAREER EXPERTS:
- RICHARD NELSON BOLLES - author of What Color is Your Parachute
- KIRBY STANAT - author of Job Hunting Secrets and Tactics
- plus others

- APPLY LIBERAL ARTS SKILLS TO THE JOB HUNT
- HOW TO FIND THE 85% OF ALL JOBS THAT GO UNADVERTISED
- WRITE A RESUME TO GET NOTICED
- WHAT TO EXPECT AND HOW TO PREPARE FOR INTERVIEWS

Careers Without Reschooling, 4 one hour cassettes, is your personal job hunt seminar. The first three cassettes teach you all the skills and the fourth cassette is two informational interviews with liberal arts grads successfully working in exciting professional careers.

Liberal arts grads discuss how they got their jobs, what their careers are like, and how you may find a similar job

#1 Editor & Copywriter
#2 Ad Agency Exec & P.R. Specialist
#3 Small Business Owner & Retail Management
#4 Stockbroker & Life Insurance Sales
#5 Fundraiser & Non-Profit Agency Management
#6 Real Estate & T.V. - Radio Production
#7 Counselor & Law Enforcement

YOU SELECT WHICH CASSETTE WILL BE IN YOUR SET.

All this for only $27.95!
Far less than what you may sacrifice in job-satisfaction and salary if you're underemployed.

CALL NOW! SAVE THIS AD!
1-800-356-5324 ext 1308
Master Card and VISA accepted
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR FULL REFUND!

ArGee Productions 905 University Ave., Madison, WI 53715 (608) 255-8480

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Paul Mariani

"Summoning the Dead: Politics and the Sublime in Contemporary Poetry"

Thursday, April 19, 1984, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

PA-1000 INTELLIWRITER™

PORTABLE PRINTER WITH FULL-LINE DISPLAY
Display correction plus 2200-character memory, AC/DC powered

- Combines typewriter convenience with advanced electronics
- 4 ways to type—direct print, line print (display and edit a full line before printing), text memory (file what you type and print it when you need it), glossary print (store phrases under one of 26 identification codes, then recall with a few keystrokes)
- Easy editing, with insertion and deletion, on 80-character full-line display
- Silent printing on plain or thermal paper, using high-resolution (10 × 16-dot) printer
- Memory stores 1-2 pages of text (2200 characters, expandable to 8700) with Memory Safe Guard™
- Automatic centering, indent, and right flush
- Automatic underlining in full or word by word
- Decimal tab, auto word wrap, relocate and express
- Prints in pica or boldface
- High quality typewriter keyboard
- 9-7/16" maximum paper width
- Optional RS-232C interface
- Comes with case, two ribbon cassettes, paper, AC adaptor, batteries
- Dimensions: 13" (W) × 1-31/32" (H) × 12-9/32" (D)

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

U.S. NAVY MEDICINE
MEDICAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

Are you currently in medical school and seeking an avenue to continue your education without financial burden, a Medical future that affords a practice without administrative and financial worries? If so, the Navy has an outstanding opportunity for you in the Medical School Scholarship Program.

BENEFITS
- Full tuition and educational fees
- $479.00 per month stipend
- Commission as a United States Naval Officer
- Internship and Residency training available upon graduation

OBLIGATION
- Three years active duty service as a Navy Medical Officer after graduation.
- 45 days of required annual active duty that can be spent in Navy clerkships (required, elective, clinical or research) or at Officer Indoctrination School.

BASIC QUALIFICATIONS
- U.S. Citizen ● Excellent professional references
- Enrolled in AMA approved medical school

For further information, write or call:

LT. John Romac
Medical Officer Program
Leo W. O'Brien Federal Bldg
Albany, NY 12207
(518) 472-4424

MBA

Babson College

Fields of Study

Marketing
Entrepreneurship
International Business
Economic Theory & Analysis
Management & Organizational Studies
Production & Operations Management
Management Information Systems
Finance & Investments
Quantitative Methods
Accounting
Taxation

Internships

- Eight-week International Internships
- Fourteen-week Management Consulting Internships
- Eight-week Domestic Internships for Foreign Students

For further information contact:

Office of Graduate Admission, Babson College, Babson Park (Wellesley), MA 02157, (617) 235-1200, extension 317

Babson College is located 14 miles west of Boston

Dr. Richard Sennett to speak on

"The Humanities in Education"

Tuesday, April 17, 1984
at 8:00 PM

Student Union Ballroom
University of Massachusetts

FREE

Presented by the Academic Affairs Committee of the Undergraduate Student Senate

Letters

Where are my computers?

To the Editor,

Congratulations to Mr. Peter Graham for ferreting out eight unused VAX 11/750 computers hiding within the walls of the COINS department! Perhaps he would be so kind as to show me, the manager of the COINS Research Computer Facility where they are so that I can utilize them to supplement our presently overburdened computers. For alas, I have searched high and low, even into the darkest corners of the Graduate Research Center and can find no such cache of neglected computers wasting away. Could it be that these lost machines are only a figment of an overactive and uninformed mind? Indeed that is the case and the situation appears crazy to Mr. Graham only because he doesn't know what he is talking about.

The sole element of truth in Mr. Graham's little excursion from reality is that the COINS department does have ten VAX 11/750 computers manufactured by Digital. They were, however, not donated but purchased by non-University funds obtained from federal research agencies by several faculty members of COINS. Digital granted us substantial credits towards the purchase of these machines but only because they were interested in the research activities for which they are being used.

The answer to Mr. Graham's query "Did they (Digital) realize that the University wouldn't let undergrads use these computers." is an emphatic YES, in fact both Digital and the granting agencies specifically forbid their use for reasons other than research. These computers are part of the research tools of the computer scientists and are no more intended for general use in education than the specialized equipment found in the research labs of scientists in other disciplines.

The COINS department is actively investigating ways of getting increased access to state-of-the-art computer facilities for its undergraduate majors. Several promising avenues, including some with Digital, for acquiring increased computational support for those students taking COINS courses are currently being aggressively pursued. Mr. Graham's suggestion that this is what the VAX 11/750's were intended for is, however, totally without basis.

I sincerely hope that in the future he (and the editors of this paper) will attempt to be certain of the facts before expressing his wonderment at the craziness of the world.

Arthur S. Gaylord
Manager
COINS Research Computer Facility

Vulgar graffiti must be erased

To the Editor,

At this time, I find it very necessary to point out something that has bothered me since my inception here at UMass. Everyday I pass this vulgar statement and cringe at its sickness. I'm sure most everyone who lives in Southwest has spied it at least once. The horror that I speak of is scribbled on a building and is as follows: "[illegible]"

At first, I thought it quite amusing, but then my friends told me what it meant and I was appalled. They also said they had seen other such vulgar statements as "Squeeze The Snake" or "Drain the Dragon." Well, I don't think any of these statements are very proper to be writing on walls. Not only is this sickening graffitti, but it is sexist, insulting, morally degrading, and sexually harassing.

Yet, this statement continues to exist on that building.

Many a day has gone by when I have been tempted to paint over the graphic statement, but I refuse to lower myself to the same level as that of the rude student who wrote it. Finally, if the person who wrote that is reading this you should be ashamed of yourself. You should take it upon yourself to remove that torturous remark that sickens so many students.

Elizabeth Stratford
Southwest

ROTC: too easy a scapegoat

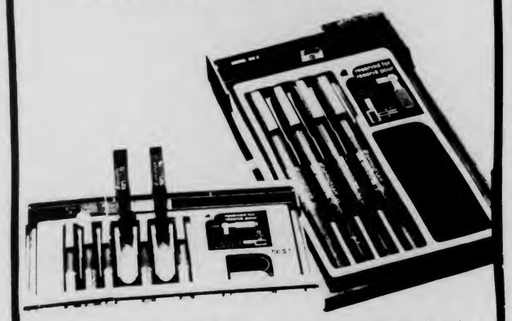
To the Editor,

Yes, P. Hyjek, you have succeeded in your attempt to draw the attention of the "onslaught of short-haired and shaven geek squads" all over campus. Yet I find it hard to believe that you fantasize to be such an accurate judge of human character, as is quite evident by your attack directed at individuals who maintain well-groomed hair and take pride in their personal appearance.

I can fairly say, and not by an inspection of your hair, I might add, that you are quite an ignorant and naive bigot. This assault is well substantiated by your misconception that ROTC participants "stoop so low to further themselves in society and get a free education" which stipulates, among other things, that ROTC cadets are in it for the money. Let me remind you, my dear P. Hyjek, that you are attending an institution which is highly subsidized by the state and federal government, and whether you like it or not, (I'll bet my chips on the former), you benefit quite dearly from this established measure.

Furthermore, there is an intrinsic satisfaction derived from taking part in an organization such as the Armed Forces, which stems from the knowledge that our highly desireable shores are safe from totalitarian governments which is, by the way, somewhat mitigated by the knowledge that we must protect ungrateful hippies such as yourself as well as millions of deserving Americans.

Perhaps I have you wrong, P. Hyjek. Perhaps you, as do I, have reservations concerning irresponsible handling of nuclear weapons and overly aggresive militarism. However, by some unfortunate coincidence, you have chosen campus military participants as a sort of handy scapegoat on which you relieve these burdens. Be this the case, you are simply an ineffective writer, as your point is drowned in the blatant harrassment of ROTC and other military personnel. Then, please accept my deepest apologies.



However, if my first analysis of your column is correct, I would like to finish by adding insult to injury. Let me ask you this Ms. Hyjek: are you not the same sniveling coward who runs to the Canadian border at the first indication of an infringement of our nation's integrity? If so, it is not you who stands tall.

Adam MacDonald
Pending participant of United States Air Force ROTC Central

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

marsmatic700
TECHNICAL PEN SETS

Suggested Retail Price $68.00
suggested retail price $45.00
Our Sale Price
$29.95
$16.95
Other pens available at comparable prices located in our full line Art Department
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

IDB TIPS

PAID POSITION AVAILABLE

Office of the Dean of Students

Coordinator, Information Data Bank (IDB) and Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

AVAILABLE	Individual must be available part-time in May (10-20 hours), full-time mid-July and August (37½ hours), and during the subsequent semesters 20-25 hours. Full-time option possible June to mid-July.
ELIGIBILITY	Undergraduate or graduate student with at least three semesters remaining at the beginning of the Fall Semester 1984.
QUALIFICATIONS	Demonstrated organizational and supervisory skills, some communications background. Creative writing experience desirable.
PAY SCALE	Hourly rate, beginning at minimum of $4.00, based on experience.
DEADLINE	April 30, 1984. Applications available at 227 Whitmore (Dean of Students Office).

The Coordinator is responsible for maintaining and updating the IDB and TIPS "library"; rewriting scripts and editing tapes; promoting/marketing IDB/TIPS; expanding resources; coordinating schedules and assignments of student staff (10); arranging and monitoring production schedules for Student Telephone Directory and Registration Update; and related assignments.

IDB is a telephone and walk-in referral service which maintains information on a variety of University-related policies, procedures, and details about how various agencies function; provides schedule information (e.g., library hours, buses, athletics, extra-curricular events, etc.), and hundreds of other items of interest to students and other members of the University community.

TIPS is a library of 300+ cassettes with information about the University (academic policies, financial aid, health facts, consumer information, etc.).

The combined number of inquiries to IDB and TIPS in an academic year exceeds 6,000.

For additional information, contact Hannah Hosom or Robert Brooks, Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore or call 545-2684.

a service of the Dean of Students Office

EDITORIAL/OPINION

When children are exploited

I am looking at a cartoon from Playboy. A man — probably in his 50s — is standing in his open doorway, clad only in a housecoat. A young girl, probably eight years old, is standing outside, obviously just on her way out. She has her hands on her hips and is looking at him in utter disdain. "You call that being molested?" she accuses him. In another cartoon, a man drives up to a little girl standing by what appears to be her lemonade stand. Her sign reads: "My mommy told me not to speak to strangers. Honk if you want a blow job."

Deborah Murphy

The ridiculing of taboos against incest and child molestation among the more mainstream pornographic magazines such as Playboy and Penthouse is a deeply disturbing trend in the pornography industry. Many people who think that much of pornography is "bad" defend Playboy as being an innocuous, "tasteful," magazine for "male entertainment. I, for one, am not "entertained" by child abuse jokes, the retelling of familiar fairty tales using a sexual theme for the little girl protagonist, or the occasional inclusion of photographs in which the adult models are dressed up as little girls. This linking of children with adult sex, this "light-hearted" undoing of the incest and child-adult sex taboos, is telling men that it is okay to have sexual thoughts about children and even to act on those thoughts.

The facts are that child sexual abuse, child pornography, and child prostitution are on the rise in this country. Thirty-eight percent of all females in the U.S. will experience some form of sexual abuse (from fondling to rape) before the age of thirteen. One in eight boys will be sexually abused before the age of 18 and one-fourth are under the age of 12. The youngest female child on record to have been raped was just six months old. Fifty to 80 percent of all children placed in shelters, juvenile homes, or who reach the attention of social agenices have been sexually abused. The number of children referred to sexual assault centers has been steadily increasing since 1973. Approximately 25 percent are under age 14, 13 percent are under age nine, and many are no more than two, three, and four years old. Federal statistics show that in 1978 there wee 3,000 cases of gonorrhea contacted through sexual intercourse in children under age nine, 9,000 cases in children 10 to 14. 95 percent of all cases of venereal disease in children can be traced to contact with an adult. 80 percent of all prostitutes are found to have been sexually abused as children.

Sexual abuse of children crosses all social, economic, and religious lines. Often, the abuser is the father or male lover of the child's mother. Often it is another male relative — brother, uncle, grandfather — or a trusted older friend of the family. The statistics cited represent reported cases only. It is estimated that actual numbers are eight to ten times higher.

Isn't it time we stopped condoning the sale of materials such as Playboy and Penthouse that contribute to a social climate wherein people make jokes about the tragic realities of millions of children's lives?

Deborah Murphy is a member of the Women's Forum Against Media Violence

Protesters are missing

In a statement that brought no formal response from peace movement strategists, Italian Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini announced a few weeks ago that Italy's first 16 Cruise missiles, delivered last year, are now operational at their base in Comiso, Sicily. What has happened to the anti-nuclear weapons movement that promised to embroil the West European nations with a "hot autumn" of protests?

Joe Sain

The peace movement gained world attention in 1981 and again in 1983 by opposing the planned deployment of 108 Pershing II medium-range missiles in West Germany and 464 Cruise missiles throughout Western Europe. The NATO countries, led by the United States, demanded that the Soviet Union withdraw the nearly 250 new medium-range missiles aimed at Western Europe in order to avert the installation of the new U.S. missiles.

The peace movement demonstrations were an attempt to show that despite conflicting reports, most Western Europe citizens were opposed to the presence of nuclear weapons on their soil. This led to charges that the movement was playing into Soviet hands by calling for disarmament. This in turn forced the peace strategists to focus the movement on broader issues such as detente. Despite these problems, momentum was building within the peace movement.

The first blow to the anti-missile movement came with the Russian attack on the South Korean jetliner that had flown into Soviet airspace. Revulsion over the destruction of 269 lives caused the number of protesters in the October demonstrations to be significantly less than had been expected.

The September downing of the aircraft brought images of the Soviets as cold and ruthless back into the forefront of European consciousness; it shook people from the euphoria of marching for a cause back to the hard realization that the Soviet Union is a dangerous, ever-present threat. The incident also raised the issue of East-West confrontation, which peace strategists had tried to avoid.

Soviet leadership also unwittingly contributed to the demise of the movement by refusing to negotiate on the placement of their missiles. The Russian government wanted to demonstrate their resole on this issue and the result was a standoff at the Geneva arms talks, which were called off when Russian negotiators walked out. This action all but assured the scheduled deployment of the new U.S. missiles and further slowed the peace movement.

The death of Soviet party Chairman Yuri V. Andropov and the subsequent appointment of Konstantin U. Chernenko, himself an aging man of questionable health, has disturbed many people, as questions arise as to who is running the country. Andropov had barely set his policies in place before taking ill, and it is feared that the same thing could happen with Chernenko. The continuity of Soviet leadership is brought into question.

Polls taken throughout Western Europe before the autumn protests continued to show that the majority of people favored the course taken by NATO countries, negotiating arms reductions while building down nuclear arsenals, replacing Pershing I missiles with Cruise and Pershing II. The collapse of the movement shows that not as many people were against deployment as was thought.

There are also more electoral reasons for the virtual disappearance of the peace movement. Neither Britain's Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, 250,000 members strong, nor the German movement was able to gain enough votes to prevent election of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Chancellor Helmut Kohl, both missile proponents. Much of the movement's trouble was its failure to lobby effectively as a political pressure group. By remaining a grass-roots movement and not working actively in political circles, the peace movement was not able to make its presence felt in the top levels of European government.

Now that the anti-missile movement has faded and deployment is continuing on schedule, it is imperative that the Soviet Union and the United States return to the bargaining table and negotiate a settlement that will ease tensions on both sides, as well as in Western Europe.

Joe Sain is a UMass student

Letters

Insensitive mock

To the Editor,

This is in response to "Another Side of Inequality" by R.M. Laport and Dan Goldstein.

Who would have thought to analogize penises bruised by campus turnstyles with feminist issues, such as equal rights, abortion rights, job discrimination, sexual harrassment and institutional sexism — just to name a few? Pretty clever comparison.

They state, "Feminists should be more than feminists. They should extend their awareness to become humanists." Last time I heard, feminist groups were involved with such humanistic activities as equal rights, civil rights in the past, gay rights, fighting child abuse and working for educational advantages for women and minorities of both sexes.

I am sure that all women thank you for not "holding it entirely against 'feminists and non-feminists alike' for not comprehending the injustices to men." I can't figure out why women are insensitive to injustices to men, like a man being paid at least a third more than a woman in the same job or men being promoted over women just because they are men. Maybe it's because "women are not men," as you so eloquently explained, so it's harder for us to see those "great injustices."

I could comment on the specifics of your editorial further but it's not worth it. Your work was pompous, misinformed, ignorant and pretty boring after the first paragraph. I hope I haven't violated your "male feelings" for the "umpteenth time" today.

Chris Paganuzzi
Amherst

A student victory

To the Editor,

United Technologies Corporation will not be returning to UMass this year. UTC executives, who refused to speak with students last fall, have now chosen to hold their weapons conferences elsewhere. The education, discussion, and protest that took place around this issue have paid off; through student efforts, a major military contractor and the supplier of helicopters to the brutal El Salvadoran army no longer has a place at this university.

Protest against a weapons manufacturer is not "mindless activism." Defense contractors, who build weapons that threaten global destruction, are inherently undemocratic institutions.

When a corporation like this leaves our campus due to student protest, it is the corporations' giant profits that give them power over people's lives, the power to pay for full-page ads of their political views in the New York Times, the power to threaten people who would rather not build weapons with unemployment and poverty.

Beatrix Hoffman
Amherst

Too much liberal thinking

"Heaven and earth are ruthless and treat the myriad creatures as straw dogs; the sage is ruthless and treats the people like straw dogs."

— Lao-tse

You know something funny? I regarded myself as somewhat of a liberal before I came to this school. I have nothing against change, but when it totally counters the values of society, it is simply wrong. This country has certain values that can't be changed. It would change the nature of this country. I love this nation and I won't sit around and let it be destroyed by outside and inside forces. Too bad those inside forces are trying to cause a major decay. At least the disease is still minimal.

James Taylor

As American analyst Clara Thompson stated, "Aggression is not necessarily destructive at all. It springs from the innate tendency to grow and master life which seems to be characteristic of all living matter. Only when this life force is obstructed in its development do ingredients of anger, rage, or hate become connected with it."

I keep hearing the liberals complaining, but they don't do anything. They sit and talk about useless alternatives. What's more important, wanting something or fighting for something? Not to say that you should violently oppose some system, even though some of you do, thinking that it is a game. But doesn't violence go against your morals?

You ought to learn the meaning of words before you use them. You can not simply define words with words. There are certain emotions that go along.

Yeah, go ahead and laugh, just ignore it all. Ignore what I say because it isn't true. I don't understand, is that it? First you should learn to identify yourselves.

Which reminds me of something anthropologist Robert Ardrey stated. "The evolution of men is based on the recognition and adequate sorting of individuals. Injustice occurs when competition is aborted. Injustice occurs when worth fails of recognition, and the unworthy go rewarded. While injustice may be regarded as a principal feature of human life, raised by human ingenuity to altitudes unknown in the world of the animal, it is not evolution. In terms of natural selection, injustice is maladaptive."

Right? Right. Well, I think I've been general enough for the average liberal mind. Now you maggots can go back to feasting off of the system that you abhor so much.

James Taylor is a UMass student

The New York Times
Best Sellers

New York Times	BEST SELLERS
Fiction	NonFiction
1. The Aquitaine Progression	1. Mayor
2. The Butter Battle Book	2. The March of Folly
3. Pet Sematary	3. Motherhood: the Second Oldest Profession
4. Smart Women	4. Tough Times Never Last, But Tough People Do!
5. Who Killed the Robins Family?	5. Lines and Shadows
6. The Danger	6. One Writer's Beginnings
7. Heretics of Dune	7. On Wings of Eagles
8. Almost Paradise	8. People of the Lie
9. Lord of the Dance	9. Approaching Hoofbeats
10. Poland	10. A Light in the Attic

$2.00 OFF List Price
All New York Times Best Sellers
*Hardcover editions only
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

MOLLY'S
ANTIQUE AND VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-549-6446 MON-SAT. 10-5:00

Spring time and the Sub. . .Unbeatable!
NEW! Now serving Grilled Steak Subs available with a variety of fresh vegetables and cheese
Sandwiches served with: Onions • Lettuce • Tomatoes • Pickles
Green Peppers and Black Olives • Spices
* On Syrian or sub roll.

Distinguished Teachers Award

The following Faculty Teachers and TA's/TO's have been nominated for the Distinguished Teachers Award, 1984.

Comments are invited with regard to the teaching abilities of these nominees from students and others who have not commented previously through the evaluation process.

Professors

ACCOUNTING
Ron Mannino
AFRO-AM STUDIES
Julius Lester
ANIMAL SCIENCE
Donald Black
ATHLETICS
Benjamin Ricci
BOTANY
Edward Klelowski
Bernard Rubinstein
Seymour Shapiro
Peter Webster
CHEMICAL ENGINEERING
Kenneth Cashin
CHEMISTRY
John Chandler
CIVIL ENGINEERING
David Ostendorf
COINS
Caxton Foster
COMMUNICATIONS STUDIES
Bill Husson
Barnett Pearce
ECONOMICS
Rivera Batiz
Richard Edwards
Carol Heim
Stephen Resnick

EDUCATION
Emma Cappelluzzo
Clement Seldin
ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING
Francis Hill
ENGLISH
Margaret Culley
Robert Hosmer
Donald Junkins
John Nelson
James Von Hendy
GENERAL BUSINESS FINANCE (G B FIN)
Nicholas Filler
GERMAN
Susan Cocalis
HISTORY
William Johnston
Richard Minear
Jane Loy Rausch
MANAGEMENT
George Odiorne
MATH
Eduardo Cattani
Wilfredo Quinoues
Berthold Schweizei
Jon Sicks

MICROBIOLOGY
Albey Reiner
MILITARY SCIENCE
Imre Lipping
MUSIC
Walter Chestnut
William Hanley
Jeff Holmes
PHYSICS
Sastry Kandula
Arthur Quinton
POLITICAL SCIENCE
Sheldon Goldman
PSYCHOLOGY
James Chumbley
Morton Harmatz
PUBLIC HEALTH
Salvator Dimurdi
SOCIOLOGY
Andy Anderson
Naomi Gerstel
SPANISH
Sumner Greenfield

Send your comments to:
Graduate Student Senate
919 Campus Center
by April 27, 1984.

TA's and TO's

ACCOUNTING
Dan Griffin
CHEMISTRY
Larry Kool
COINS
Satyan Ammu
COMMUNICATIONS STUDIES
Sheryl Bowen
W. David Snowball
ECONOMICS
Theresa Amot
Thomas Delqiudire
HISTORY
Donna Brown
MANAGEMENT
Joanne Petrutauage
MATH
William Rising
James Shields
MICROBIOLOGY
Cathy Cavedon
Sarah Fowler
PSYCHOLOGY
Mary Brydon Miller ZOOLOGY
Judith Goodenough

Arts

Dancing it up

MURRAY LOUIS DANCE COMPANY
Fine Arts Center
April 12

By RONDA APPLEBAUM
Collegian Staff

On Thursday night I saw my second modern ballet of the season at the Fine Arts Center: The Murray Louis Dance Company.

The evening began with a piece called Glances, which was accompanied by unusual music by Dave Brubeck. The dancers appeared on stage in simple blue dance costumes and danced a series of movements that resembled children playing in the outdoors.

At the end of each dance scene they creatively incorporated the set with the dance. This was accomplished by having the dancers pause in a specific position at the end of the piece and then having graphics of people in the exact same position projected onto the background of the stage. Glance was filled with acrobatic dancing and a lot of hip movements.

After the pause the dance company performed Figura to music by Paul Winter Consort, Segovia and Ernesto Lecuona. My favorite dance scene in Figura was the first solo dance by a male dancer to almost Arabic sounding music.

There was one pleasant scene that seemed to combine traditional ballet movement with "Tango" type dancing.

For some reason I have found that most of the shows performed at the Fine Arts Center get better after intermission. The Murray Louis Dance Company seemed to continue this trend. The dance company which was formed by Mr. Louis in 1953 has been touring internationally since 1968. After intermission that famous virtuoso, Murray Louis, who also choreographed all of the dances performed that evening, danced Frail Demons. When Murray Louis appeared on stage one could immediately tell that he was the star of the show. Although the entire dance company was fabulous, Louis took a special control over the stage. His dancing consisted of quick sharp movements and all I can say is: Boy can he move!

The show ended with four pieces by Dave Brubeck. Each dance scene was very different from the other. The first consisted of creative movements to modern jazz sounding music and the second was danced to softer, more relaxing music. The show ended wth each dancer doing solo acrobatic movements across the stage, and during their solo pieces they all proved to be the fabulous dancers that the company has had the reputation of having.

Spring/Dance, the Five College Faculty Dance Concert, will be shown in two different programs. The first will be performed April 19, 20 and 21 in Theater 14 at Smith College (call 584-3023). The second will be performed at Kirby Theater at Amherst College May 4 and 5 (call 542-2277).

A strange narrative

TWO WINGS TO VEIL MY FACE
By Leon Forrest
Random House, 296 pages, $15.95

By CHRISTINE MARINI
Collegian Staff

In Two Wings to Veil My Face, Leon Forrest has created a rich, hypnotic tapestry that, in tracing the past of one family, explores the history of Blacks in America. Forrest combines what Alice Walker has called Black folk English with elements of literature and mythology. The result is a unique and beautiful prose style reminiscent at times of Faulkner at his most complex.

The novel bridges pre- and post- slavery America in the characters of 91-year-old Sweetie Reed and her 21-year-old grandson Nathaniel. It is 1958. America is on the brink of the Civil Rights Movement, but Sweetie Reed's memories are full of the Reconstructon past. Sweetie charges Nathaniel with recording her memories and stories for the family archives. Sweetie traces her past, and his, searching for some love and continuity among the rapes, the deaths, the betrayals. She combines vivid religious faith with an unforgiving nature, and her story reflects both.

Nathaniel, meanwhile, is trying to piece together his future, and is at first unwilling to admit his connections with his family's past. In searching for his place as a Black man in a white society, Nathaniel forms some bitter conclusions. Yet while transcribing his grandmother's twisted tale, Nathaniel comes to terms with himself and with what is truly important in his life. Sweetie Reed has given her grandson more than her memories — she has also given him her courage and strength.

Two Wings to Veil My Face is a difficult but rewarding book to read. The prose positively has a life of its own, and it sometimes dances, sometimes lags. Tremendous spiritual and religious outbursts flow on and on in the tradition of the oral narrative. Forrest's style is forceful, and sometimes uncontrollable. Still, Two Wings is worth the time it takes to give it a thorough reading. Forrest's eloquence is undeniable. He has something important to say, and a remarkable way of expressing himself.

Art of the body human

INNERWORKS
The Augusta Savage Gallery
New Africa House

By FREDERICK E. STEINWAY
Collegian Correspondent

"How we avoid our physical self most of the time," according to video artist Charles Weiner, is partly the substance of INNERWORKS, a performance at New Africa House Gallery Sunday, April 15 and Tuesday April 17. The performance features several standing works that will be in display in the Gallery during regular hours.

"The boxes were made on a government grant," explained Weiner, whose documentation comes through CCATV. "Laura (Kalb) had them fabricated." The contents of the boxes, branches, string and clay work, are sculptural imagery of organ and cell-tissue in a living human body.

The setting, the sculpture and the performance that followed carried with them a clear and light approach to the life of the body.

Three dancers curl head to knee before the container that holds corpuscular shapes. As Raquib Hassan begins to intone his saxophone, the dancers gently rock from side to side. They are wearing buff pants and tunic, drawstring about the tunic at the waist.

The trio actively moves through the set, and a fourth dancer appears. The four nestle back to front and sway. They are in front of a large container. Inside are forms like the ones the four dancers make. It could be bands of muscle tissue that fit closely together.

The group separates into two dyads. One talks nonverbally, an exchange of movement palm-to palm. In the other pair one talks, verbally shows the other how to walk. "You move the arms contralaterally, like this..."

Then there is a grouping of 3 to 1. The three move in slow synchrony, turning gently. As they reverse direction, the hand moves down beside the face, across the shoulder and along the side. The one dancer looks on.

The two and two pairing recurs. One pair dialogues through give-and-take. In the other pair, one sits in a black case, and with a book on functional anatomy open sketches movement terms in chalk on the painted surface.

The group moves through the set. One lies on the large flat unit with cilia or villi showing inside, making it like a mattress with springs. The other dancer calls, "time to get up."

The three and one grouping recurs. This time the three, seated, observe the other dancer make inner-directed movements that look convulsive, but seem to massage the inner organs of the dancer.

The lights go off in the auditorium, highlighting the glow from within the black containers. Three dancers stand before the case with large cells. As the fourth dancer leaves, one of the three looks back briefly. The performance ends almost as it began, with the three curled head-to-toe.

Laura Kolb did sculpture, costumes and choreography. Dancers were Ann Lepper, Cathy Wales, Julie Hadson and Laura Kolb. Raquib Hassan composed and performed music for solo saxophone.

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day they take place. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

AREA CONCERTS SECURITY WORKSHOP — Mandatory meeting for all security crews for East and West side Area concerts. Workshop with police will include crisis intervention. To work a show you must attend! 6:30-7:30, CC 101

AMHERST RAILWAY SOCIETY — Come to our Railroad Film Festival, which will include "Last Run of a Shay", "Railroads in the 30s", "The Great Steam Machine", and others. 8 p.m. Eng. East Aud.

STUDENTS OF NIGEL COXE — Will perform piano works of Schubert, Brahms, Mozart, Schumann and Chopin. Come join us for an evening of musical magic. Free! 8p.m. Bezanson Recital Hall

ARMENIAN STUDENTS CLUB MEETING — Mandatory meeting tonight. 7 p.m., CC 801

STUDENT SEXUAL HARRASSMENT EDUCATION PROJECT MEETING — Meeting of Student Sexual Harrassment Education Project. All who are interested are encouraged to attend. We need new members. 2:30 p.m., C.C. Rm. 801

INVESTMENT CLUB MEETING — The Investment Club will hold a general meeting to discuss the club's Portfolio and its activities for the remainder of the semester. 6:30 p.m., SOM 111

PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Important! We will be discussing Earthweek and Elections. Also, we encourage anyone with new ideas to come and rap with us. New members welcome. 4:30, 402 SUB

LEGAL STUDIES STUDENT ASSOCIATION — General meeting to discuss Film/Lecture series. 6:30, C.C.

ASIAN TALENT NIGHT REHEARSAL — All Asian Talent Night participants must attend this rehearsal. Whoever doesn't show up will be eliminated from the show. Be prompt. 7 p.m.-1 a.m. CCA

FINANCIAL AID WORKSHOP FOR STUDENTS GOING ABROAD — Important Financial Aid Office Workshop for all students who plan to apply for financial aid for their study abroad period. 3:30-4:40 p.m., Herter Hall 6th Floor Lounge

FREE WRITING TUTORING — The Southwest Writing Center offers free confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignment or writing project. Drop-in, no appointment needed. 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Pierpont Dorm, Southwest

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION

Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95 6 Cyl $39.95 8 Cyl $44.95

We'll install new resistor spark plugs, points & condenser, adjust idle speed, set timing, test battery and charging system, inspect rotor, distributor cap, PVC valve, ignition cables, air filter and vapor canister filter. Includes Emission Test and Printout

Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99
includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check

North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

DOCUMENTS:
3 PLAYS & SOME FRAGMENTS OF THE EARLY THIRTIES
WAITING FOR LEFTY · CLIFFORD ODETS
PULLMAN CAR HIAWATHA · THORNTON WILDER
BURY THE DEAD · IRWIN SHAW
Directed by Richard Edelman
Kirby Theater, Amherst College
April 20, 21 & 26, 27, 28
8:00 P.M.
General admission $4.00
Students and Senior Citizens $2.00
AC students free with ID
For reservations call 542-2277
Box office hours: 1-5 weekdays
Box office opens April 9

LEGAL PROBLEMS?
Call LSO serving the students of UMass
Housing • Family • Student Rights • Civil Rights • Workers Rights • Criminal and Consumer Law •
call 545-1995

Student Art Show Competition
Dates
April 31 - May 2
Campus Center Music Room
Awards - Selection Committee
For more info call 545-0198
* Art Expo is sponsored by UMass Arts Council, Campus Center Administration and the Board of Governors.

TUESDAY
TWO FOR ONE
all liquor drinks
9 till 11
with music by
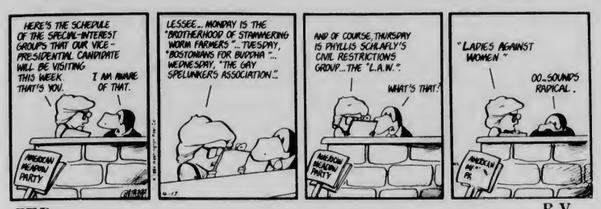
RACK-A-DISC
9 til 1 NO COVER
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST



INTERN and WORK-STUDY POSITIONS
Hilltop Health Club, the 1st residential wellness/fitness center on campus is seeking applications for the Fall semester from persons who have experience or skill in:
Exercise, nutrition, stress management, cardiovascular fitness, aerobics, fitness testing, weight training, or holistic health.
Internships may be taken for 1-3 credits arranged through faculty sponsorship.
Work-study applications also being accepted now.
Complete job description & application available at B-30 Baker House, Orchard Hill.
Application deadline - April 30.

Passover Greeting Cards.

Send a message of peace and inspiration to someone you love and care for.
AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

PREPARE FOR
MCAT • LSAT • GMAT
SAT • ACT • DAT • GRE • CPA
Our 40th Year
Enrolling Now For
June 18
LSAT
Transfer to a Kaplan Center near home after finals
Stanley H. KAPLAN Educational Center
Call Days Eves & Weekends
368 N. Pleasant St
Amherst
549-5780
For information about other centers Outside NY State CALL TOLL FREE 800 223-1782
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

Bloor.. ' ..t" by Berke B..athed

ZED P.V.

The UMass Zone Mark Rollin

The Strip

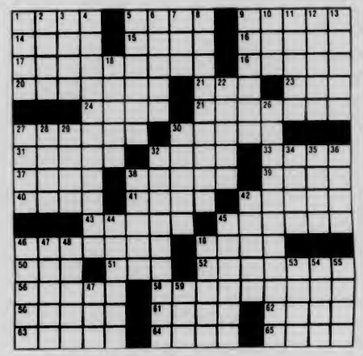
O.T. Derringer

Shagnasty

FRED BAKER By T.A.D.

By Sullivan & Gilbert

Off Campus



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Yardstick
5 Classify
9 Mariner
14 Troubador's offering
15 In another direction
16 Land area
17 Behind the scenes
19 Stage show
20 Railway car
21 Consumed
23 Vacation time, in France
24 Dover —
25 Urged
27 Take the measure of 30 Outpouring
31 City of the Ginza
32 Think hard
33 Bridge position
37 Theatrical award
38 Good buy
39 Grand Canyon feature
40 Favorite persons
41 Seed protector
42 Jovial priest in "Ivanhoe"
43 PR specialist
45 Grasping
46 Division
49 Serve
50 Voter's response
51 Practical joke
52 Make allowances for
56 Derring-do
58 All-seeing
60 Sites for lookouts
61 Nursery rhyme residence
62 Himalayan denizen
63 A plus
64 Summer shades
65 Being

DOWN
1 Pinches
2 Spoken
3 Symbolic grain
4 Flirts
5 Badgerlike animals
6 Well-versed
7 Type of sale
8 Attractiveness
9 Thoroughfare
10 High dudgeon
11 Bathes
12 Penetrating
13 Charger
18 Bridegroom, in Bari
22 Large net
26 Agree
27 At the summit
28 — it
29 Comic stage act
30 Beer mug
32 Unexampled
34 Tiptop
35 Hut
36 Member of Parliament
38 South Pacific island group
42 Get — out of 44 Condense
45 Roof parts
46 Yuletide spirit
47 Watchers
48 Mother Earth
49 Vehicle
53 Soap ingredients
54 Pets' friends
55 Warbler Adams
57 Victory sign
59 Eureka!

For information and the latest news I read the Collegian.

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Chopped Beefsteak
Special

DINNER
Baked Chicken
Supreme Sauce
Supreme Sauce Cake
Supreme Sauce Veges
Supreme Sauce Juice
Supreme Sauce popsicles
Supreme Sauce Bread

BASICS LUNCH
Baked Tofu
Fried Tofu
Boiled Tofu
Tofu Veges
Tofu Juice
Tofu Cake

BASICS DINNER
Fillet of Brussel Sprouts
Left over baked tofu
Cauliflower Juice
Asparagus Pie

Weather

Mass., R.I., Conn. — Mostly cloudy with a chance of showers today, tonight and tomorrow. Highs today in the 50s, lows tonight 40-45 and highs tomorrow around 50.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

N	O	R	M		R	A	T	I	E		S	T	I	L	I	A
A	R	I	A		A	W	A	Y		T	I	B	A	I	C
B	A	C	K	S	T	A	G	E		R	E	V	U
S	I	L	E		S	P	E	A		A	I	R		E	E	Y
			S	O	I	L	E		P	I	R	O	U	E	T	E
A	S	S	I	S	T		S	P	A	N	I	E	L
T	O	K	Y	O		S	T	E	W		E	A	I	S
O	B	I	T		S	T	E	A	L		E	I	G	H
P	E	N	S		A	R	I	L		A	V	E
				A	D	A	M		O	R	E	O
S	E	C	T	I	O	N		W	A	L	N
A	Y	E		G	A	G		A	B	S	O	L	V	E
M	E	T	A	L		E	A	G	L	E		E	Y	E
T	R	E	E	S		S	H	O	E		V	I	E	W
A	S	S	E	T		T	A	N	S		E	L	S	E

AIM HIGH

Want more than a desk job?

Looking for an exciting and challenging career? Where each day is different? Many Air Force people have such a career as pilots and navigators. Maybe you can join them. Find out if you qualify. See an Air Force recruiter today.

Contact TECHNICAL SERGEANT ARTHUR COURTEMANCHE
Federal Building, RM 108, 1550 Main St, Springfield, MA 01103
or call (413) 785-0352

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

"Gynecological exams leave me cold."

Many women find the whole business of getting a gynecological exam incredibly distasteful. But it doesn't have to be. At Preterm you can discuss all your feelings and concerns with one of our counselors. You can request a woman doctor. That's how we're different. We treat your body like a human being. Preterm. 738-6210.

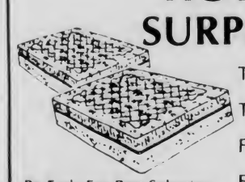
preterm
The most experienced reproductive health care center on the Northeast.
1842 Beacon Street
Brookline, MA 02146
A licensed non-profit health care facility.
Teen Counseling

Go Bananas Read Arts

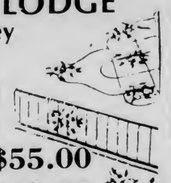
BOOK SALE
By The Pound!

OVER 15,000 TITLES
• all subjects • new and used •

ONLY 35¢ per pound
Special truckload shipment from midwest warehouse.



Textbook Annex
Mon - Fri 9:00 - 4:00



Dastardly Dans

Now Available
Dastardly Dan's Mug
14 oz. $5.00 each
First Drink in mug FREE
Bring your mug day and nite
50¢ Draft
$1.59 Double Well Drink

PUBLIC NOTICE
2 Days Only
Selling At The
HOWARD JOHNSON MTR LODGE
Rte. 9, 401 Russell St., Hadley

HOTEL SURPLUS

$48.00 AND UP

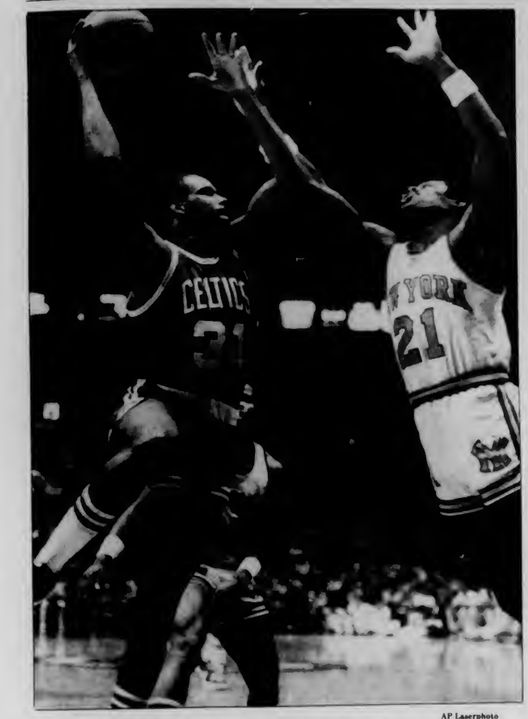
TWIN SIZE MATTRESS	$55.00
TWIN SIZE FOUNDATION	$48.00
FULL SIZE MATTRESS	$68.00
FULL SIZE FOUNDATION	$58.00

Be Early For Best Selection
No Phone Orders, Please

Not to be confused with bedding used in this motel, every piece is brand new, factory sealed in heavy clear plastic for your inspection and weather protection. Bring your car, truck or station wagon. We will load for you. SALE CONDUCTED INSIDE BUILDING.

..MASTERCARD...VISA...CASH & CARRY

Wed. April 18 2-8 PM Thurs. April 19 10 am - 6 pm



AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person

Easter Cards & Gifts

Pick from our spring garden of beautiful remembrances for sharing the joy of the season.
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

AP Laserphoto

Boston Celtics forward Cedric (Cornbread) Maxwell tries a hook shot over the New York Knicks Lea (Truck) Robinson in action earlier this season. Both teams begin playoff competition this week.

Sixers to begin defense of title as playoffs start

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

And now, after what amounted to nothing more than an 82-game exhibition, the real season begins tonight for the National Basketball Association. Five of the best three-of-five series, including Celtics-Bullets, commence tonight. The remainder of the 16-team field, including 76ers-Nets, open on Wednesday. A new wrinkle in this year's post-season frolics is the absence of first round byes, which explains why teams like the Celtics and Sixers are in action early. Four of the teams qualified with records below .500. I love it.

Boston — Washington: The Bullets are a strange team. They can beat the Celts twice at Boston Garden, but lose four of five to the Cavaliers. The frontline of Jeff Ruland (19.5 pts/game against Boston), Greg Ballard, and Rick Mahorn has given the Celtics fits at times. However, Boston's frontcourt depth and strong bench will do the Bullets in. It won't be a cakewalk, though. The Celtics would much rather have opened against Atlanta.

Milwaukee-Atlanta: The Bucks won their fifth consecutive Central Division title when Detroit blew it by losing to the Hawks on Saturday night. Milwaukee is a veteran ballclub, led by Sidney Moncrief and Marques Johnson. The Hawks were a minor disappointment, finishing at 40-42 despite talented players like Dominique Wilkins, Dan Roundfield and Doc Rivers.

76ers-Nets: An interesting series. Each club sleepwalked through much of the season, but rallied in the closing weeks. Moses Malone has been playing like the Moses we know, while recent addition Wes Matthews has been a surprise. The Nets awoke in early March, winning 13 of 16 in one stretch to finish 45-37. Darryl Dawkins has managed to stay our of foul trouble recently while Buck Williams and Otis Birdsong enjoyed solid seasons.

New York-Detroit: All the Pistons had to do to win the Central title was beat the Hawks Saturday night. They lost 115-107, finishing one game behind Milwaukee. Nevertheless, the Pistons won 49 games, the most since 1974. The Knicks at one time challenged Philadelphia for second place, but faded nthe closing weeks. Bernard King has been immense, averaging over 35 pts per game since the All-Star break.

Los Angeles-Kansas City: The Kings are 2-17 against LA over the last three seasons and have lost 23 straight games at the Forum. This one should be over quickly. LaSalle Thompson is no match for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Ditto for the KC frontcourt vs. Jamaal Wilkes, James Worthy, and Kurt Rambis.

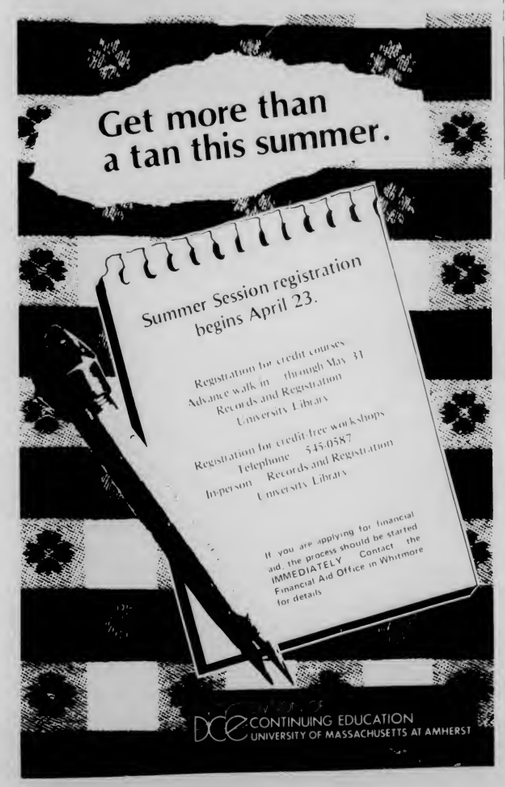
Utah-Denver: The Jazz are the story of 1983-84, leapfrogging from last place a year ago to the Midwest Division title. Adrian Dantley (the NBA's leading scorer at 30.7 pts per game), Darrell Griffith and John Drew are pure shooters. As is Alex English, Kiki Vandeweghe, and Dan Issel for the Nuggets, who finished six games below .500 at 38-44. A real shootout.

Portland-Phoenix: The Blazers were step-for-step with the Lakers until March. Jim Paxson again enjoyed a good season (20.9 pts/g), as did Calvin Natt. The Suns finally reached the .500 mark on Sunday. They definitely felt the effect of the Dennis Johnson-Rick Robey trade as Robey struggled all season, scoring only 5.7 per game and missing 25 games due to injuries.

Dallas-Seattle: The Mavericks, like the Jazz, are in the playoffs for the first time. Mark Aguirre engaged Dantley in a season-long battle for the scoring title, finishing at 29.7. The biggest noise the Sonics made all season was the Studio 54 career-threatening injury to David Thompson.

Probable to Advance — Boston, Detroit, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Los Angeles, Dallas, Portland, Utah.

★ W. Lacrosse



Continued from page 16

jeopardy and makes this afternoon's game a big one. Weather permitting, the Boston College Eagles are invading NOPE today at 4 p.m.

Last year's meeting between these two combatants is a sweet memory for the Gazelles. The game was like taking candy from a baby, as the laxwomen took a convicing 14-1 victory from B.C. The shots on goal last year told the whole story, UMass 23, B.C. 6. According to Progulske there should be no let-up tomorrow.

"We'll be looking for a little revenge against B.C.," noted Progulske.

During yesterday's practice, UMass was working quite a bit on the offensive aspects of their game, hoping to get everyone involved in the offense. Defensively, UMass should be able to handle the somewhat weaker attack of the Eagles. If the weather holds out, a desired and needed Gazelle victory should be in order

TV SALE
19" Color Portables
at take them away prices
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
RTE. 9, 401 RUSSELL ST., HADLEY
Wednesday April 18 from 3 to 8 PM
Thursday April 19 from 10 AM to 6 PM
MASTERCARD. . .VISA. . .ACCEPTED
No Phone Calls Please
Sale held by RBM Sales Corp.

Starts 4/3 Tuesday
~ Sale! ~

People's market
food for people not for profit
25% off all Spices. M-F 9-5
Located in rear of [illegible]
→ behind Earthfoods.

AP Laserphoto

Geoff Smith of Providence College breaks the tape winning Monday's Boston Marathon in 2:10.33.

Boston Marathon '84
Geoff Smith exults in victory

BOSTON (AP) — The ex-firefighter from Liverpool last seen lying exhausted and beaten on Central Park pavement, resurfaced animated and triumphant Monday after a solo sprint over most of the Boston Marathon course.

On his desk at school, Providence College student Geoff Smith has a picture showing him on the ground at the end of last October's New York Marathon. In the same shot, winner Rod Dixon has his hands to his lips in exultation after overtaking Smith with just 385 yards to go.

"I feel fantastic," Smith said after his victory here. "I feel like Rod Dixon felt."

Smith approached the finish line Monday with legs churning and arms pumping. Will he put a shot of that in place of the New York photo of his second-place finish?

"Certainly not," the 30-year-old English man said. "I'm going to put the Boston Marathon picture beside it. I've got to face reality all the time."

The reality now, for Smith, is whether the times in the only two marathons of his life — 2:09:08 in New York and 2:10:34 in Boston — will be good enough for him to make the British Olympic team. The selectors are to choose three runners two days after the London Marathon May 13.

"It should impress them," Smith said of his run through the rain and into the wind Monday. "I know it impressed me."

Smith had predicted he would win the 88th Boston Marathon and his attitude of confidence, bordering on cockiness, continued after his victory.

Timer dies

BOSTON (AP) - Tony Nota, veteran timer for the Boston Marathon, suffered a heart attack and died after working at Monday's event, race spokesman Tim Kilduff said.

AP Laserphoto

Women's winner Lorraine Moller.

Moller overcomes

BOSTON (AP) — Lorraine Moller of New Zealand, who hoped to run well enough in the Boston Marathon to qualify for the 1984 Olympics, did that and more Monday by easily topping all women runners with an unofficial time of 2:29:28.

"I think I will be selected now. I hope so," Moller said after she overtook fellow New Zealander Allison Roe on the 19th mile of the rain-swept course and finished more than four minutes ahead of her nearest female competitor.

Moller has been battling five other top New Zealand women runners for the three marathon spots on her country's Olympic team. She needed a good Boston showing to qualify, and was forced to overcome rainy, windy and cold conditions to do it.

"I was really cold throughout the race — and still am...crampy the whole way," the 27-year-old native of Putaruru, New Zealand, said after donning a laurel wreath.

Roe looked like she might repeat her 1981 victory in the Boston race when she took the lead at the five-mile mark and gradually lengthened it until she was ahead by 1:01 after 15 miles.

Canadian wins wheelchair title

BOSTON (AP) - Andre Viger, a 31-year-old businessman from Quebec, outdistanced the field Monday to become the first official winner of the wheelchair division of the Boston Marathon.

"I feel happy, really happy," Viger said immediately after crossing the finish line with an unofficial time of 2:05:20. "Cold a little bit."

The winner of the women's wheelchair division was Sherry Ramsey of Arvada, Colo., with a time of 2:56:51. It was her second straight victory in the women's division in Boston.

Netmen bounced by M.I.T.

By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

Due to the rotten weather that the eastern part of the United States has been experiencing lately, the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team's match with Clark University was washed out on Sunday. However, the netmen did get in a match on Thursday at M.I.T., but they probably wish they didn't.

The Minutemen were trounced 8-1 by the Engineers. Number two singles player Wayne Peterson was the lone winner, as he took a 6-3 7-6 decision from Tom Ransohoff. Peterson's win was his third in a row, and ups his personal record to 3-1, best on the team.

Meanwhile, number one singles man Steve Jordan dropped a 5-7 6-4 6-1 decision to Will Saver, and Marc Weinstein lost to Rob Craig 6-1, 7-6 at number three. Earl Small, Barry Katz, and Andy Pazmany were the other losing singles players for UMass.

The doubles play, which came through for the netmen last Tuesday against Holy Cross (three wins in three matches), came up just short in all three matches on Thursday.

The number one duo of Jordan and Peterson lost to Craig and Randy Rick 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, while Weinstein and Small lost a 5-7, 6-2, 7-6 heartbreaker to Saver and Ransohoff at number two, and John DeClerk and Paul Zaretsky lost their first match of the season 6-4, 7-6 to John Chen and Ogden Jones.

Springfield College invades the Boyden tennis courts this afternoon for a match at 3:00 (weather permitting, of course), then the netmen travel to Central Connecticut for a match tomorrow (again, weather permitting). No makeup date has been set for the washed-out Clark match yet.

Baseball comes back after loss and pounds the Black Bears, 15-3

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts baseball team felt the wrath of the heavens Monday as their doubleheader against the University of Vermont in Burlington was postponed due to inclement weather. No makeup date was announced.

The Minutemen return to action Wednesday when they face the University of New Hampshire in a doubleheader at Lorden Field at 1 p.m. This weekend will see UMass take on Atlantic 10 rival Rhode Island in a key three-game series Friday (doubleheader) and Saturday in Amherst.

The whole weekend was not a total loss for the Minutemen. On Saturday the boys in red journeyed to Auburn, Maine and split a twinbill with the University of Maine. In the opener, the Black Bears scored twice in the first and three times in the second, knocking out UM starter Jim Knopf in the process, to coast to a 6-1 victory. Maine starter Stu Alcognata went the distance, allowing only six Minutemen hits. Knopf's record drops to 0-2.

The second game was played to the beat of a different drummer, however, as UMass exploded for 18 hits and 15 runs against four UMaine pitchers for a 15-3 shellacking. This one was over early as UM scored once in the first and twice in the second, before burying Black Bear starter John Kowalski amidst an eight-run blitz in the third. Angelo Salustri and Stever Messina each cracked home runs for UM in the romp. Pitcher Bob Kostro, the lucky recipient of the Minutemen run production, raised his record to 3-2.

★ Softball

Continued from page 16

two walks, a passed ball and a deep sacrifice to center, the Catamounts scored a run although Stockley did not give up a hit.

Stockley struck out seven. Against Maine, Stockley struck out four while giving up three hits.

Reed shutout UNH while giving up four hits through five innings. Stanton gave up a hit and loaded the bases before working out of the jam.

The baserunning was off as runners made silly mistakes killing rallies late in the game.

Defensively, the Minutewomen were intense with some super plays. Carol Frattaroli made a great diving catch to end one inning and Ann King threw out a UNH runner while playing with a broken finger. Talbott also threw out a runner in the Maine game.

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Styles by Deborah at University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5810

Faber Castell
Uni-Ball Roller Pen Sale
Medium Point 89¢ each
Fine Point $1.09 each
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

UMass Transit Service presents the Summer Training Program for Bus Drivers
if you:
- have had a drivers' license for a year
- are at least 18 years old
- have 3 or more semesters remaining in a UMass degree program
- want a fun, well-paying student job

you are eligible.
100 applications will be given out. Bring proof of class year (schedule or transcript - no ID's)
Wed. April 18th 7 PM CC 174
UMTS is an EO/AA employer.
Women/minorities/older students encouraged to apply.

The Collegian is now accepting applications for the positions of:
ASSISTANT ADVERTISING MANAGER and ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES for Fall '84.
Deadline is Friday April 20
Pick up application at the Collegian office between 8:45 and 3:30

1984-85
UNDERGRADUATE CATALOGS
For use during pre-registration, catalogs will be available in the first floor lobby of Whitmore, near the Scheduling Office.
one copy per student

COMPUTER ACCESS CENTER INC.
Terminal Time
Word Processing Time
Unlimited Use $20.
until May 30th by reservation only
* Access to UMass Cyber
* Complete word processing systems available
CALL NOW 256-1213
79 South Pleasant Street
(in left rear of Peter Pan terminal bldg.)
Mon-Thurs 9 am to 10 pm
Fri-Sat 9 am to 6 pm Sunday 10 am to 6 pm

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Technics Automatic Turntable with Shure cartridge 2 months old Best offer 546-5143

Auto Speakers 200 watts, 4-way 4x4 deluxe, speakers grills, wiring included. $38.00 Raynald 546-8897

AUTO FOR SALE

75 Dodge Colt selling for parts - $175 new head cylinder for info call Lisa 546-8513

73 VW Beetle runs well body good many new parts $950 256-1080

Celica GT Liftback 1980 excellent cond copper 54000 miles $5400firm 527-8414 keep trying John

73 Marcury Comet good engine new brakes, exhaust, battery. Inspected. Dependable transpo. $700 or BO call 1-772-6259 eves

'77 Buick Skylark ext. needs work eng. & int. good fair 549-6797

74 Ford Maverick. A.T., P.S., many extras, some rust, but reliable. Best offer. Phyllis 5-2364 or 665-3441 late eve.

1973 Duster good condition very reliable new brakes $550 584-7455

1971 Camero 350 eng. Hurst 4-speed great stereo $600 firm 256-1351

CAPE COD

I need room for summer in South or West Yarmouth. Call mark 256-8225

Female roommate wanted in Falmouth Heights on the beach summer call Kate 6-4017

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS 4 years Quality Service at UMass. Why pay more? 256-1393

FOR RENT

Housemates wanted for Northampton house. Near downtown, bus. $150/mo. + call 584-2905

2 rooms for rent in beautiful $100,000 house in Sunderland. $185 includes everything call 549-1218

Fall option - 1 room available July 1st. Entire apt available in fall. Pool, tennis, bus. $137 utilities included! Call Leanne late PM 665-7581 keep trying!

One bedroom apt in Crestview, summer sublet w/fall option 549-5949

Apartment in Sunderland 2 bdrm bus route June 1 fall option 330 mo 665-7044

One bedroom apt 315$/month all included swimming pool tennis courts call Jose 665-7633

FOR SALE

Apple Silentwriter complete with card, cable, three rolls paper $150 call Rupp 5-1902

FOUND

Found: Jacket in front of East Experiment Station March 15th. Call 546-7061 and describe to claim.

HELP WANTED

The UMass Yearbook is now accepting applications for all positions for the 1984-85 staff. Apply in person at 102 CC (next to the Collegian)

COUNSELORS, Private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, gymnastics, softball, photography, radio station (ham), computers, Director/piano accompanist, dance/movement/show choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders and bunk counselors. Good salaries, friendly atmosphere. Contact: Jodi 546-9668

Immediate opening for computer programmer experienced with PDP-11 or VAX computers and MACRO-11. Amherst based company, developing communications and real-time control software, is looking for someone that can work part-time for the rest of the school year, with full-time employment over the summer. For information contact Bernie Volz 549-6994

Enthusiastic Students to apply Asst. to the Speaker/Student Senate. Work on student/campus/social issues. Experience w/in SGA helpful, but not necessary. 10 hrs. wk. $3.35 hr. 545-0341 Pick-up applications in rm. 420 SUB Application deadline April 17, 4:00 pm SGA is an AA/EOE

JOBS FOR FALL '84

Want to be paid for going to class? If your fall class will be taking Field Trips in a bus, you could drive that bus and earn $4.50/hr while attending class. To be eligible you must meet the requirements and qualifications of, and be accepted in, this summer's U-Mass Transit Services Bus Driver Training Program. Their application meeting is tomorrow night. Be there. For details call 545-0056. Ask for Field Trip Service. Aloha.

LOST

Before Break, purple and gray T-teck hand-knit wool sweater. Extreme sentimental value. Reward! If found, please call 253-8046

Tan Irish Tweed Cap Morrill Audit please call 256-8135 great sentim value!!

Lost: Gold Ring w/diamond sentimental value reward offered call 6-9914 ask for Hope or Maria

Pink glesses in a beige case in either SBA, Grad Towers or Hasbrouck. If found please call 6-8861

Lost: at Justin Ryan's Saturday 4/7, A set of keys with Minnie Mouse keychain call 6-8598

PERSONALS

Iota Gamma Upsilon
Open Rush
Thurs. 4/12 8-9 pm
Tues. 4/17 8-9 pm
Wed. 4/18 7-8 pm
For info call 256-6874

WEEKEND IN NYC 10 spaces left May 5-6 reduced rates $18 bus only, or $36 hotel and bus call Matt 546-5530

GABDATA - Thank you for being such a special friend...strange but irreplaceable! love, KASDATA

Girls at Wads, Lacrosse Game We want to know what your most embarassing moments are. Guys in Leather Jackets contact Greg Don, Dave (2479057)

Robin Happy 20th to a great friend we love you Stacey and Lisa

Darla Now you're really 19! Only one more year left. Have an excellent day. Happy Birthday! Love, Beav

Paul Desmarais You gotta love it!!!!

Hey Ross, This one is for you!!. . .Way to go!! Denmark bound; Fall '84!!! Go wild! Love, Mel

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the US Government? Get the facts today! Call (312) 742-1142 ext 5931-A

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

2 female roommates wanted to share 3 bedroom Puffton apartment call 549-5487

Responsible females to share room in sunny Southwood apt. summer/fall 253-5109

Two people wanted to share a room in a very comfortable duplex across the street from Southwest call Peter 549-6985 or Terry 546-8797

Large sunny room in Sunderland house. On bus stop. May 1, or sooner. $155 month. 665-7194 evenings

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite 253-5111

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Brittany Manor summer sublet with fall option call 253-7728 anytime

1 bedroom apt $295 includes everything summer sublet w/fall option 665-2338

Townehouse Apts 3 bedroom near campus on bus route + fair price 549-6797

Southwood Apts summer sublet will negotiate rent call Sherri 253-2268

TO SUBLET

Available for summer: furnished efficiency on Route 9. $205.00 monthly. Call 323-6769 after 7 PM

1 bdrm apt Amherst Center fall option 330 + elec 253-2486

For summer: Large bedroom in 4 bedroom house. 5 min walk to campus, large yard, best offer 549-1084

Townehouse 2 bedroom apt available for summer and fall Please call soon 546-7648

Apartment avail June 1 with fall option 295 mo incl utilities phone 665-7966 Sunderland

3 bedroom apt Amherst June 1 - Aug 30 fall option 549-3818

Room available Brandywine Apts preferably female call 549-7837 with fall option

Puffton three bedroom apartment for summer June 1 - Sept 1 1984 swimming pool, air condition tennis courts rent negotiable call Jim 549-5909

Brittany Manor apt available June 1 call 256-8823

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Someone to take over 1 bedroom apt in Brandywine call 549-0667

Looking for roommates?? 2 females looking to share Townehouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

Wanted 3 bedroom apt will take over summer lease please call reward 546-8311

House parents wanted. Off-campus sorority at UMass. Call 545-2092 or 256-6868 between 2 and 5 for info

WANTED TO RENT

HELP - Looking for apartment in Puffton Brandywine area. Will be well rewarded call Kim 546-4736

2 or 3 bedroom in Puffton will take over summer lease call Jim 546-4445

Puffton Brandywine Townehouse will take summer lease. Will give nice reward. Pam 546-6675, 546-6618

Reward for finding 2 or 3 bedroom Riverglede apartment by early May Jane 527-5407

Looking for one bedroom apt in Colonial Village for summer and fall 84 call John at 546-9382

Looking for house 3-5 bedrooms for next year call Bill 546-4050 or Rick 546-4122

Sports

More Sports on pages 13 and 14

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

Mark Teama (left) was among the many competitors at Saturday's UMass Relays. He is shown here in the 1500 meters.

Gorillas demolish BC, UNH match rained out

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

CHESTNUT HILL — This one was quick and painless. Amidst the cold, rainy element, the Gorillas of UMass Lacrosse laid a methodical beating on the Boston College Eagles here Saturday afternoon, to the tune of 20-4.

Massachusetts never let the Eagles get going as they jumped to a 4-0 lead less than five minutes into the game and led 6-0 after one quarter.

From there they added three more nets for a 9-0 lead before Boston College's Jeff Morgen finally broke his team's drought. One more Gorilla score made it 10-1 at the half and for all intensive purposes, it was over.

"Did you see our passing in the first half?", remarked Coach Dick Garber in exuberance. "Our offense in the first half was flawless. We passed well, we shot well..."

The Gorillas came out flying on the Eagles astroturf and Steve Moreland took a feed from Greg Fisk and rifled home a one-hopper only 1:56 into the game for a 1-0 lead.

That was only the beginning. Tom Lukacovic got the first of his four, (Lukacovic has ripped the nets for 10 goals in two games now), just over a minute later before Mike Fiorini and Lukacovic again made it 4-0 early. When Fisk and Peter Martino added two more it was 6-0 after one.

Karl Hatton scored twice and Fred "Bubba" Sandford took a break from dishing out assists (he had six) for a goal of his own and it was 9-0. After BC's Morgen got the first Eagle goal, Fisk added another for Massachusetts at 12:37 for the 10-1 halftime lead.

Garber said later that it was about time the team offense had clicked together.

Adding without much hint of a smile, Garber said, "I guess I threatened them that they wouldn't be playing if they didn't play it the right way, and they didn't let down after the first couple of goals."

"We don't have that one superstar to just give the ball to 'and say here shoot it', he went on." "But we've got a lot of good players, that if they play together, we'll play great."

The Gorillas got four more goals in the third period for a 14-1 lead and it was most certainly garbage time.

The final 15 minutes saw the Eagles get three meaningless goals while the Gorillas slipped in a final six scores to complete the rout.

All that was left was the accolades bestowed upon the Gorillas from a man who knows them well, former Massachusetts star and Head Coach of BC, Brooke Sweet.

"It's a great team," began Sweet. "When a team's playing that well, its hard to defense them."

A moment later, he added something that touched a little deeper on his feelings for this particular matchup.

"One of the biggest thrills in my life would be to beat UMass," he said. "Because Coach Garber is without a doubt one of the greatest coaches living."

Minutewoman capture Catamount Invitational

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

BURLINGTON, VT. — Like most athletic teams, the University of Massachusetts softball team strives very diligently to win.

For the third time in six years, the Minutewomen swept all three games of the Catamount Invitational with a 5-1 win over Vermont, a 17-1 blowout over New Hampshire and a 7-1 championship win over Maine last Friday and Saturday.

Yet this 16-7 team strives for more than just winning. They also strive for excellence.

Excellence. Defined as exceeding or being first-class or superior, as Massachusetts excelled over their northern opponents in many ways this weekend.

They hit the ball very strong and scored runs in a big way. They didn't commit errors while their opponents did. UMass went out and set the tone of the game from the start and never gave Vermont, Maine or UNH a chance to get in the game.

"It is a big thing for our team to go out and set the tone and rattle the (opposition's) pitchers," co-captain Tina Coffin said. "Everyone hit the ball well. We didn't do that last weekend (when UMass dropped two close games to Rutgers and Maine of Ohio)."

That is not to say that the Minutewomen are perfect. They have a lot of things to work on. The pitching can be better and the baserunning has to improve.

But when UMass performed well, they did really well.

"We hit the ball pretty good," head coach Elaine Sortino said. "It pleased me to see them adjust to the different speeds in pitchers (comparing a slow UNH pitcher and a fast Maine one). They adjusted right away."

Almost every player in one of three games had a field day. Sally Maher knocked in eight RBI with a grand-slam home run against UNH, along with a homer against Maine and a triple against Vermont.

Shortstop Allyson Rioux went 7 for 10 on the weekend collecting a homer and a double along with five singles.

And among the others, Robin Read went 2 for 2 against Vermont, while Emily Bietsch went 3 for 3 against the Catamounts. Tina Coffin went 4 for 5 against UNH while Beth Talbott saw her first action in over a week against Maine and went 2 for 3 with a triple and three RBI.

"The batters seem more relaxed at the plate now," Sortino said, "now that each one of them has shown that they can hit the ball."

The pitching wasn't as sharp as it has been but it was very effective.

"The pitchers are working towards better performances. I don't think that Cathy (Reed), Lynn (Stockley) or Krista (Stanton) thought that they were the best they could be," Sortino said.

"However, they dominated their opponents," she added quickly.

Stockley rolled over Vermont but due to

Continued on page 14

Gazelles drop two matches, host BC for big game today

By ED CUNNINGHAM
Collegian Staff

For the University of Massachusetts Womens Lacrosse team, this past long weekend got real slow late Sunday afternoon. At about 3 p.m. the team dropped their second game of the weekend in the waning minutes against a determined Northwestern University team.

With three minutes to go in Sunday's contest, UMass was trying desperately to secure a 5-4 victory when everything crumbled. The Gazelles tried to control the ball for the last three minutes, but due to inexperience and a pesky Northwestern attack, the game was quickly tied at five.

Less than a minute later a tired UMass defense was beaten again. The final two minutes were played, but when the clock read 00:00 the score was frozen at 6-5 Northwestern.

The Gazelles' defense didn't choke in this one; the inexperience did hurt, but there were other factors involved.

"Sunday's game was real hard to get up for and it was really cold and windy," stated UMass co-captain Carol Progulske.

The reason the third game of the season was tough to get up for, was the second game of the young season against Harvard.

The game against the Crimson seemed to be an easy one for the locals until the second half started. When the first 25 minutes of the battle were gone, the young Gazelles were sporting a comfortable 4-0 lead. Things looked great until the second half had to start.

"We played very well and shut them down in the first half," remarked Progulske. "Yeah, I guess we sat back on our heels in the second half."

While UMass had lulled themselves to sleep, the Crimson began to rise and shine, to put it mildly. Harvard poured in seven unanswered goals in the final stanza. As our Tony Betros would say, "No more need be said." Final score, Harvard 7, UMass 4.

The Gazelles now sport a 1-2 record for the campaign so far. Their record puts their New England and national ranking in

Continued on page 13

AP Laserphoto

UMass attacker Linda Haytayan weaves her way between two UNH defenders in a victory earlier this season. The Gazelles dropped two tough matches over the weekend.

NUMMO NEWS

April 17, 1984 Volume 12 Issue 19 connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution

Expanding the Program

by Michael Nauls
Nummo Correspondent

In the fall of 1982 Ben Rodriguez, director of the Bilingual Collegiate Program (BCP), and Paul Barrows, director of the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black and other Minority Students (CCEBMS) approached the university administration with an idea: the CCEBMS-BCP Summer Program.

Vice Chancellor Dennis Madson was contacted in February and asked to give his approval for the Summer Program. In April the Chancellor gave an administration monetary deposit so that at the end of April the CCEBMS-BCP Summer Program had a monetary pledge insuring its existence.

The program would bring 80 incoming first-year students to the UMass campus three months earlier to attend classes. The concept was that the pre-September exposure would give the students an adjustment period with supervision, so that when they returned in the fall they would not go through the characteristic first-year adjustment period of learning how to balance the increased load of academic work with the greater variety of social activities and freedom. The students would also get credits for the summer courses they took.

The summer courses the students take are usually basic math and English courses and English as a second language courses for bilingual students.

The composition of these students was to be 40 CCEBMS students and 40 BCP students. All hiring other than councelors was to be done by an impartial board made up of Paul Barrows, Ben Rodriguez, Gloria DeGuevera, aid to Vice Chancellor Madson, and Manuel Townes, assistant director of CCEBMS. Both CCEBMS and BCP would hire three counselors to work with their students during the summer.

Last year they requested $75,000 for 80 students and they got it. This year they are requesting $155,000 for 150 students - 75 CCEBMS and 75 BCP. The administration has put aside money for 10 non-traditional students.

Barrows says that he is delighted the administration is commiting money for non-traditional students to enter the program, but he hopes their numbers will be added to the proposed number rather than subtracted. He added that they need a budget to start working with very soon in order to provide an effective program this summer.

Continued on page 3

Paul Barrows, Director of the CCEBMS program. photo by Marc-Elliot Giles

Picture of Marvin Gaye reprinted from the Valley Advocate.

This issue is dedicated in loving memory of Marvin Gaye who died on April 1, 1984.

He was a soulful artist who gave his extraordinary gift back to the community with love.

Editorials and Opinions

An Open Letter to Prof. Phil Green,

What is it that makes Jews so self destructive? Of course I don't mean all Jews, but in my experience there does seem to be a preponderance of Jews/-Jewish spokespersons, as yourself, who choose to remain blind to obvious anti-semitism, often with self destructive consequences.

Frankly, I am enraged and appalled at your column which appeared in today's*Nummo News*. I am amazed at your ability to live in a fantasy world where anti-semitic statements do not reflect anti-semitic belief as long as they're followed by an apology. The fact is, Jesse Jackson is an anti-semite.

Allow me to construct a hypothetical, alternative scenario to Jackson's "Hymie" incident to further illustrate my point. Let's suppose a white presidential candidate, John Doe, is overheard speaking to an aid relating his concern over "the nigger vote". When Doe's reference to the word "nigger" is publicized, he (after a delay) apologizes for his lack of sensitivity. Somehow I cannot imagine a black columnist espousing the belief that Doe is not a racist. I cannot imagine black people actively minimizing the implications of Doe's statement. Indeed, they should not.

What is it then that makes Jews such as yourself apologists for anti-semitism? Are you afraid of "causing trouble", of being "the pushy, loud-mouth Jew"? Is there not a middle ground between the fanaticism of the Jewish Defense League, and the flight from reality of the Jews walking into the showers at Auschwitz, who still refused to believe that the Germans were capable of genocide I believe there is.

Understand me. There may be good reasons for voting for Jackson in the Democratic primary. There certainly are "degrees" of prejudice, and Jackson's comments, and candidacy in general, should be viewed within the larger context of the times. However, anti-semitism, racism and sexism do not go away when we ignore their expression. It is always better to confront the manifestations of even our worst fears than pretend they do not exist.

I look forward to the day when Jews such as you understand this.

by Rob R. Weitz

Forcing "Freedom"

by Oneida Fox
Nummo Correspondent

"Covert Activites" is how the Reagan administration justified the CIA role in the mining of Nicaraguan harbors.

The laying of the mines, in the harbors of key Nicaraguan ports began two months ago. This action on the part of the CIA, has raised doubts about the extensive use of covert acivities to advance U.S. interests in Central America. American allies in Europe and the Soviet Union believe that the incident has hindered more than helped American interest in Centeral America.

A Soviet tanker, the Lugansk, was damaged by a mine while approaching Puerto Sandino on the Pacific coast of Nicaragua. The Soviet Union made a formal protest to the U.S.. But the Reagan administration said, any ships entering Nicaraguan waters give up their right to safe passage.

Some may wonder, what right the U.S. has to mine in Nicaragua. According to adminstration officials, the mining was justified as a form of self-defense by El Salvador and its allies under internaional law.

Where have we heard a similar excuse? A similar excuse was given by U.S. officials to justify the invasion of Grenada. Whatever happened to "front page" Grenada? What is happening in Grenada now?

The Reagan administation once again is insisting that they are fighting to preserve the Democratic way. By harassing Nicaragua and misinterpreting international law to justify their actions. Another reason the CIA gave for taking action against Nicaragua was that Nicaragua is supporting Leftist guerillas in El Salvador.

The Reagan administration was trying to preserve the democracy of an elite few at the risk of the majority (in El Salvador). Nicaragua claims territorial waters up to 200 miles off shore, but the U.S., with democracy in mind, respects a 12-mile limit.

The CIA was given authority to mine (in principal) by Reagan and Robert MacFarlane, his national security adviser. But the New York Times believes that Reagan may not have been given detailed briefing, although White House officials did not comment on the matter.

The last time the U.S. mined a foreign harbor was in 1972, under Richard Nixon (interesting?). He ordered the mining of all Vietnamese ports (of course) to prevent the flow of arms and supplies. The main difference between 1972 and 1984, is that in 1984 the action was done in secret.

The Senate was unaware of the CIA's action. That is why last week they voted 76-19 to provide $21 million in funds for the CIA. While at the same time they increased military aid to El Salvador, by $61.75 million. After the mining was publicized the Senate, on April 10, approved a nonbinding resolution 84-12 to end the use of CIA funds to mine Nicaraguan ports.

The Reagan administration did not end their domination of Nicaragua with mining. There are reports from Nicaragua that Honduran planes staged two raids in Nicaragua, killing four and wounding ten. This action postponed the draft to reform the Fundamental Statute of the Republic of Nicaragua.

According to an official statement, the attacks were directd by the U.S.. At the time of the raids the Reagan administration denied that they would maintain a military presence in Honduras as part of its Central American policy. But within an hour of the first report Secretary of Defense, Casper Weinberger said, that the Pentagon planned to station a permanent force of 700-800 soldiers in Honduras when the current manuevers of the country end.

The U.S. can not let every country and its people choose their own government. They must continue to inflict, in anyway possible, "democracy" on those who may decide that freedom for an elite few is not democracy. The U.S. as guardian of all nations must destroy and/or conquer any alliance wih Communism: U.S.S.R..

The democratic way is sorely laying at wayside, when one views the events that have taken place in Central America and the world, by the holders of "...peace and justice for all" - the United States.

by Tracey Bryant
Nummo Staff

Success Continues for African Students

The African Students Association (ASA), located in room 424 of the New Africa House, began last April and has since drafted a constitution and become a registered student organization.

With the purpose of educating the community, particularly African and African American students about what's going on in Africa and with America's foreign policy, ASA sponsored an African Liberation last May which many termed "very successful."

Using panel discussions as their main teaching tool, the organization attempts to create greater awareness and understanding of the past and present conditions in Africa.

Outgoing president Mulugeta Agonafer (from Ethiopia) says the first year was spent building the foundation - getting an office, a phone, a constitution and submitting a budget. They requested a $9,000 budget from the Undergraduate Student Senate and are told they will receive $1,000.

Agonafer feels that the allotment represents the type of attitude he says the organization is trying to correct; which is that such an organization with foreign students, (who he emphasized pay as much as any other student) is small and inconsequential. He says they could expand and be much more beneficial to the community if they were allowed to, but with such allotments they are merely held back.

Agonafer's last official act has been chairing this year's African Liberation Day. The tentative schedule of events is: A cultural evening on May 4, which will include African dance, and food if they get enough external funding; a panel discussion on May 6 dealing with important issues of concern to Africa, such as oil, liberation movements and Africa, and common problems in America. There will be a dance the same evening at the Top of the Campus.

The ASA is inviting various other interested Third World organizations to participate. "Our aim," says Agonafer "is not to celebrate African Liberation Day, because there is nothing to celebrate. We are still trying to free ourselves from economic domination. We are only past one stage - colonization."

"Our task," he said referring to the organization, "is to raise consciousness among African and African American students and the general body of students."

Succeeding Agonafer as president will be Alfred Jetonje (from Kenya), and Murtala Nbuyi (of Zaire) will be next year's vice-president. With sixty members the group expects to continue growing. Agonafer said "There are some African students that for some reasons haven't joined; we want to get them in."

For more information about the organization or African Liberation Day, call 545-0210.

Keeping Tradition Alive

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

Alice Childress believes that there is a great need for the descendents of Africa to keep the African tradition alive, as shown in her play, "Gullah!".

She was inspired to write this play after meeting many Gullah people and finding out more about them.Her step-father was a Gullah person and there weren't any plays ever written about these people.

Gullah people live off the coast of South Carolina, where there are about 1,000 islands. The name "Gullah" was taken from the country of Angola, in Africa. "When Africans were captured and brought to the U.S., they were from different parts of Africa and spoke different languages, therefore, they had to create their own language to communicate," said Childress.

There is a Gullah Institute in South Carolina, Childress' native state. "These people are being studied more now that they are decreasing in number," she said.

Childress has written novels, plays and young adult books; all receiving acclaim. She went to high school in Harlem, N.Y.C. and then attended Radcliff in Massachusetts from 1966-1968. She will be receiving a medal from the Radcliff graduate society next week.

She is now living on Roosevelt Island in N.Y.C. She will be going to Atlanta University for a panel discussion on censorship with the International Readers Association. Childress says she has experienced "mixed media."

Childress advises young minority students to do first things first. "The second will follow. That may sound simple," she said, "like putting one foot in front of the other, but every writer, no matter who, the greatest writer in the world had to write a first piece."

She continued, "So go ahead and do what yo want to do, whatever your field is, you have to do the initial thing. We all ask someone in the beginning, should I do this or that? I asked Langston Hughes if I should write. He responded, 'What do you think?' How does someone else know if you are capable of writing?"

Childress feels that time is not wasted trying to do something,(like writing) even if in the end it doesn't serve your purpose.

She said, "There is so much to write about! So many untold stories about Black history...that need to be told."

Alice Childress, author of the play GULLAH.

photo by Marc-Elliot Giles

Student Unconcern

by Michael Nauls
Nummo Correspondent

On Sunday, April 8, the Martin Luther King Week celebrations concluded with a Day of Celebration at the Malcolm X Center.

In front of a good crowd Herbert Smith delighted the audience with a number of familiar gospel ballads in a base voice that had the audience cheering.

Smith's a cappella performance led right into a rousing and inspiring speech by Sherwood Thompson, the director of Third World Affairs, who spoke on student apathy versus student responsibility.

A number of students left feeling a sense of guilt about their non-involvement in a variety of Black and Third World organizations.

The speech emphasized that without further input and a little sacrifice from incoming freshpersons the different organizations, such as Afrik-Am, BMCP, Nummo News and the Malcolm X Center, whose past members struggled to make these organizations powerful, would cease to exist.

He said that this year's (past) incoming first-year class was the largest, while their participation has been the least. If students fail to get involved these organizations will wither and die, said Thompson.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Tracey Bryant	Editor In Chief
Andrea Baker	Business Manager
Yvonne Mendez	Layout Editor
Charles Rinehart	Graphics
Judith Russ	Typesetter
Donette Wilson	Researcher
• • • Contributors	• • •
Ed Cohen	Photographer
Segun Eubanks	Correspondent
Oneida Fox	Correspondent
Marc-Elliot Giles	Photographer
Russell Jordan	Correspondent

Address all letters to the Editor to:
NUMMO NEWS, New Africa House 103

Annual Conference

During the week of April 23-28, 1984, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will commemorate the 13th Annual Black Musicians Conference.

Founded over a decade ago by the W.E.B. Du Bois Department of Afro-American Studies, the conference began a unique tradition of bringing together musicians, educators, students and audiences in a celebration and exchange which moved beyond the conventional concert setting.

The overall purpose of the conference is to recognize the major contributions made by Black Americans to American and world music and to explore the impact of this music on American life and contemporary thought.

The conference has addressed a spectrum of artistic disciplines including dance, poetry, and the visual and plastic arts. The conference has also included lectures and panel discussions on the historical and social implications of Black Music.

This year's conference is being dedicated to the living memory of composer, arranger, and pianist Mary Lou Williams (1910-1982).

Highlights of the conference will include concerts by Johnny Griffin, Chico Freeman, with special guest Max Roach, Terry Jenoure, Valerie Capers, the Fred Clayton Ensemble, Willene Barton and the UJC Big Apple Jazz Women.

There will be a panel discussion on "Black Women in Music" featuring D. Antoinette Handy, author of "Black Women in American Bands and Orchestras", critic Thulani Davis, Jazz editor of the Village Voice, Smithsonian folklorist/historian Bernice Johnson Reagon, head of the group "Sweet Honey in the Rock" and Elma Lewis, a scholar of drama, dance, and costume for over 20 years.

Two major gallery opening are also scheduled, one entitled "Jus' Jazz", correlations of painting and Afro-American classical music and a second entitled "Jazz Selects", photos by Anthony Barboza.

A video screening of the 1983 Bright Moments Festival and the film "Say Amen Somebody" are also being featured as part of the week's activities.

For a complete listing of events see Nummo's "Announcements" page.

Continued from page 1

Although there were minor preliminary problems in hiring the councelors and feeding the students, with 80 students, six councelors and a teaching staff, CCEBMS and BCP had accomplished a goal that only nine months earlier had been a dream.

The students interviewed said that the summer was full of academic achievement, good food from Yvonne's and friendships that will last a lifetime.

Although the official format of this year's program has not been formalized, the committee believes it will receive a much needed increase in operating capital.

I Nominate

by Rick Townes
Assistant Director,
CCEBMS

As the 1983-1984 academic year comes to a close I would like to reach out to all CCEBMS students to ask for their participation in the balloting for this year's Shirley Graham Du Bois Community Service Award.

Each year at CCEBMS' Family Day, which will be Saturday, May 5, 1984, the Board of Directors of CCEBMS and the staff honor the CCEBMS student who has done a great service to the community in much the same way as Shirley Graham Du Bois did.

Mrs. Du Bois, the wife of the late scholar, W.E.B. Du Bois, spent a couple of semesters on campus working with students. She gave lectures, tutored the students in writing and she was frequently found conversing with students informally in the corridors of the New Africa House.

She did the same kind of things with the faculty on campus. Overall, she made an outstanding contribution to this campus' community. And that is why the CCEBMS Program chose to honor her by naming the community service award after her.

We all know how difficult it is to work hard in the classroom each and every day. Well there are a number of students who work very hard developing ideas and programs for the benefit of the Third World student community.

They do this after they finish their school work and sometimes, their school work suffers because they are commited to the survival of the Third World student organizaions.

We want each CCEBMS student to take time to recognize the outstanding contributions of all of these students.

Nomination papers for the award can be picked up at CCEBMS, the Nummo News office or from the bulletin boards in the New Africa House.

The nomination papers should be droped of at CCEBMS by 5:00 p.m. Friday, April 20, 1983.

The balloting for the award will take place during the week of April 23-27, 1984. A ballot with instructions will be printed in the next edition of Nummo News.

Further information about the award will be provided at the 7:00 p.m. meeting in Mahar Auditorium for CCEBMS students tonight.

The Struggle Continues

America

by Maya Angelou

The gold of her promise has never been mined

Her borders of justice not clearly defined

Her crops of abundance
the fruit and the grain

Have not fed the hungry
nor eased that deep pain

Her proud declarations are leaves on the wind

Her southern exposure black death did befriend

Discover this country
dead centuries cry

Erect noble tablets
where none can decry

"She kills her bright future and rapes for a sou

Then entraps her children with legends untrue"

I beg you

Discover this country.

Africa

by Maya Angelou

Thus she had lain sugar cane sweet deserts her hair golden her feet mountains her breasts two Niles her tears
Thus she has lain
Black through the years.

Over the white seas
rime white and cold brigands ungentled icicle bold took her young daughters sold her strong sons churched her with Jesus
bled her with guns.
Thus she has lain.

Now she is rising
remember her pain
remember the losses
her screams loud and vain remember her riches
her history slain
now she is striding
although she had lain.

Mother To Son

by Langston Hughes

Well, son, I'll tell you:
Life for me ain't been no crystal stair.
It's had tacks in it,
And splinters,
And boards torn up,
And places with no carpet on the floor -
Bare.
But all the time
I'se been a-climbin' on,
And reachin' landin's,
And turnin' corners,
And sometimes goin' in the dark
Where there ain't been no light
So, boy, don't you turn back.
Don't you set down on steps
'Cause you finds it's kinder hard.
Don't you fall now -
For I'se still goin' honey,
I'se still climbin',
And life for me ain't been no crystal stair.

If We Must Die

by Claude McKay

If we must die, let it not be like hogs
Hunted and penned in an inglorious spot,
While round us bark the mad and hungry dogs,
Making their mock at our accursed lot.
If we must die, O let us nobly die,
So that our precious blood may not be shed
In vain; then even the monsters we defy
Shall be constrained to honor us though dead!
O kinsmen! we must meet the common foe!
Though far outnumbered let us show us brave,
And for their thousand blows deal one deathblow!
What though before us lies the open grave?
Like men we'll face the murderous, cowardly pack,
Pressed to the wall, dying, but fighting back!

Renouned author Maya Angelou

Maya Angelou has never been common, but her commonality has made us strong. She probably doesn't even realize that people carry her (books) around in their bags; and when they face a hostile lawyer or an angry salesclerk, they jerk their heads back with dignity, knowing that someone has jerked theirs before.

She has studied history, made history, and she writes history. She is an African storyteller documenting a people's history in a foreign land. She is an African American storyteller because we own where we've been. She is the ancestor of a generation. She is the word that eases much pain, because she has left a light on her path.

And she is simply a woman, who does not have all the answers, but learns as she walks.

Maya Angelou used every facet of her abilities to further the Civil Rights Movement. She sang, she danced, she marched, she organized, and she wrote.

And although she achieved success in all these areas, particularly writing, we at NUMMO NEWS feel that the most important thing she did was - TO TRY, again and again and again! If her life and writings reveal anything at all, it is the will to overcome and the spirit to fight for itself.

That is why we are featuring below her poems amongst other poems in remembrance of Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, the Civil Rights Movement, and the many other struggles past but not gone:

Forward From The Past

Same In Blues

by Langston Hughes

I said to my baby
Baby, take it slow.
I can't, she said, I can't!
I got to go!

There's a certain amount of travelling
in a dream deferred.

Lulu said to Leonard,
I want a diamond ring.
Leonard said to Lulu,
You won't get a goddamn thing!

A certain amount of nothing
in a dream deferred.

Daddy, daddy, daddy,
All I want is you.
You can have me, baby -
but my lovin' days is through.

A certain amount of impotence
in a dream deferred.

There's parties
On my party line -
But that third party,
Lord, ain't mine!

There's liable to be confusion
in a dream deferred.

From river to river,
Uptown and down,
There's liable to be confusion when a dream gets kicked around.

The Bombing Of Burmingham

by Dudley Randall

Mother dear, may I go downtown
Instead of out to play,
And march the streets of Birmingham
In the Freedom March today?"

"No, baby, no, you may not go,
For the dogs are fierce and wild,
And clubs and hoses, guns and jails
Aren't good for a little child."

"But, mother, I won't be alone.
More children will go with me.
And march the streets of Birmingham
To make our country free."

"No, baby, no, you may not go.
For I fear those guns will fire.
But you may go to church instead
And sing in the children's choir."

She's combed and brushed her night-dark hair,
And bathed rose petal sweet,
And drawn white gloves on her small brown hands,
And white shoes on her feet.

The mother smiled to know her child
Was in the sacred place,
But that smile was the last smile
To come upon her face.

For when she heard the explosion,
Her eyes grew wet and wild.
She raced through the streets of Birmingham
Calling for her child.

She clawed in bits of glass and brick,
Then lifted out a shoe.
"O, here's a shoe, but where's the foot,
And baby, where are you?"

My Guilt by Maya Angelou

My guilt is "slavery's chain," too long the clang of iron falls down the years.
This brother's sold. This sister's gone is bitter wax, lining my ears.
My guilt made music with the tears.

My crime is "heroes, dead and gone" dead Vesey, Turner, Gabriel, dead Malcolm, Marcus, Martin King.
They fought too hard, they loved too well.
My crime is I'm alive to tell.

My sin is "hanging from a tree"
I do not scream, it makes me proud.
I take to dying like a man.
I do it to impress the crowd.
My sin lies in not screaming loud.

Still I Rise by Maya Angelou

You may write me down in history
With your bitter twisted lies,
You may trod me in the very dirt
But still, like dust, I'll rise.

Does my sassiness upset you?
Why are you beset with gloom?
'Cause I walk like I've got oil wells
Pumping in my living room.

Just like moons and suns,
With the certainty of tides,
Just like hopes springing high,
Still I'll rise.

Did you want to see me broken?
Bowed head and lowered eyes?
Shoulders falling down like teardrops,
Weakened by my soulful cries.

Does my haughtiness offend you?
Don't you take it awful hard
'Cause I laugh like I've got gold mines
Diggin' in my own back yard.

You may shoot me with your words,
You may cut me with your eyes,
You may kill me with your hatefulness,
But still, like air, I'll rise.

Does my sexiness upset you?
Does it come as a surprise
That I dance like I've got diamonds
At the meeting of my thighs?

Out of the huts of history's shame
I rise
Up from a past that's rooted in pain
I rise
I'm a black ocean, leaping and wide,
Welling and swelling I bear in the tide.

Leaving behind nights of terror and fear
I rise
Into a daybreak that's wondrously clear
I rise
Bringing the gifts that my ancestors gave,
I am the dream and the hope of the slave.
I rise
I rise
I rise.

In Solidarity

In recognition of International Workers Day, May 1, and to demonstrate solidarity not only with workers, but with people world-wide who are struggling for justice, the Western Massachusetts Latin America Solidarity Committee is organizing a series of events this Spring entitled "Liberation at Home and Abroad."

WMLASC believes that the struggle for liberation embodies issues that range from sexual inequality here in the U.S. to women in Nicaragua participating in the organization of a new society. It ranges from the fight against apartheid in South Africa to the Rainbow Coalition.

WMLASC would like to involve as many labor, student and community groups as are interested because they believe that the scope of issues that the theme of liberation addresses affects everyone and that these issues are more related than they are separated.

The members of WMLASC have drafted a tentative agenda of events for the first week of May. They hope it will represent the minimum that can be done and that with a variety of groups participating the agenda can be revised and expanded to fit the needs and goals of all the groups.

On Tuesday, May 1, WMLASC would like to organize an evening community gathering to discuss labor issues and to forge alliances between labor and student groups. They say that such an event will depend on the input of local labor.

On Thursday, May 3, WMLASC will stage a teach-in-type gathering on campus that will focus on U.S. imperialism in Latin America and the need for material aid to help the struggle for liberation in Nicaragua and medical aid for El Salvador.

An overnight vigil in Amherst center is being planned for Friday, May 4, in honor of those who have died struggling for liberation in Central America and around the world.

And Saturday, May 5, there will be a "material aid drive" in the Amherst area that will meet the vigil on the Amherst Common to exchange 'coffins and mourning' with material aid. They would also like to organize information tables, children's activities, guerrilla theater, artists brigades, etc..

They are asking student groups and individuals to participate and represent the issues that they center their work on, as well as community people and groups. WMLASC asks that you contact them as soon as possible with your ideas and questions. They hope others will join them in what they anticipate to be an effective show of our solidarity for liberation struggles world-wide.

Trumpet player Louis Alfred III looking forward to the program.

Jazz

Jazz Jazz

The University of Massachusetts/Amherst is hosting its seventh annual Jazz in July workshop to be held on the Amherst campus July 9-20, 1984.

Featuring the Billy Taylor Trio and other nationally acclaimed jazz artist-faculty, Jazz in July offers the opportunity for instrumentalists and vocalists to improve their skills in jazz improvisation through summer coursework in jazz theory, composition and arranging; seminars and small combo rehearsals with professional coaches; evening performances by outstanding jazz artists; and informal jam sessions.

Participants are selected on the basis of an application and a taped audition.

The workshop consists of two intensive five day programs and participants may choose to attend either the first, second, or both weeks of the workshops. Co-sponsored by the Fine Arts Center at the University and New York's Jazzmobile, the Jazz in July workshop is sanctioned by the National Association of Jazz Educators.

Scholarships and University credits are available. For further information and application, contact Susan Huetteman, Jazz in July, Department of Music and Dance, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003 or phone (413)545-0519.

★★ MARC - ELLIOTT RECORD REVIEW ★★

Week Ending 4/14/84
Heard on WMUA every Saturday, from 3-6 pm.

SPOT-LIGHT ★★

DOCTOR ROCK & THE FORCE M.D.S.
LET ME LOVE YOU!
on TOMMY BOY RECORDS

Doctor Rock & The Force M.D.'s

Top 20 Singles ★★

1. "Give Me Tonight" - Shannon
2. "Break Dance" - Boogie Boys
3. "Miss Me Blind" - Culture Club
4. "All Night Passion" - Alisia
5. "What People Do for Money" - Divine Sound
6. "Strange" - Cameo
7. "Somebody Watching me" - Rockwell
8. "Beat Box" - Art of Noise
9. "Borderline" - Madonna
10. "Another Man" - Barbra Mason
11. "lollipop luv" - Bryon Loren
12. "Let Music Play" - Shannon
13. "Don't Waste...Time" - Yarborough and People
14. "Plane Love" - Jeffrey Osborne
15. "Upside" - ZENA
16. "It's All Yours" - Starpoint
17. "I've got to find a Way" - ZENA DEJONAY
18. "Rock Box" - Run DMC
19. "Jam on It" - Nucleus
20. "Stay wit me tonite" - Jeffrey Osborn

SURE SHOTS ★★

1. DAVY D.M.X.
   "ONE FOR THE TREBLE"
2. BRYON LOREN
   "LOLLIPOP LUV"
3. DENNIS EDWARDS
   "DON'T LOOK ANY FURTHER"

UP & COMING ★★

1. CHANGE
   "CHANGE OF HEART"
2. JENNY BUETON
   "ROCK STEADY"
3. VISUAL
   "SOMEHOW SOMEWAY"

Special thanks to Nummo News staff, B.M.C.P., many of the fine record stores in the area. If you want to write the Marc-Elliot Record Review, send all letters to P.O. Box 865, Amherst, MA. 01004.

Special thanks to B.M.C.P.

★★★★★ Announcements ★★★★★

April 17

CCEBMS GENERAL MEETING

All CCEBMS students are urged to attend the general meeting.
DATE: Tuesday, April 17
TIME: 7:00 PM
LOCATION: Mahar Auditorium
DON'T MEET US THERE
BEAT US THERE!

SHADES OF JOY

The Springfield College Afro-American Society will be featuring the talented band "Shades of Joy" as part of its Cultural Week.
DATE: April 17
TIME: 9:00-until
LOCATION: Snack Bar on the Springfield College campus in the Beveridge Center.
A small donation will be required at the door.
Come join our musical entertainment.
IT WILL BE AN EVENING THAT YOU WON'T FORGET.

April 18

GOSPEL EXTRAVAGANZA

The Springfield College Afro-American Society will be hosting a "Gospel Extravaganza" as part of its Cultural Week.
DATE: Wednesday, April 18
TIME: 7:30 PM
LOCATION: Dexter Hall on the Springfield College campus.
Come sing and shout and worship in song with several Gospel Choirs of the greater Springfield area.

April 19

Representatives from the KAHNAWAKE Mohawk Community will speak on environmental issues, particularly hydroelectric power. DATE: Thursday, April 19
TIME: 8:00 PM
LOCATION: Herter Auditorium
There will also be open forum in 231 Herter from 2:30-3:45 in the afternoon.

April 20

JEANS AND T-SHIRT VIDEO PARTY

The Springfield College Afro-American Society will be having a "Jeans and T-Shirts Video" party featuring the top 40 songs of the 80's.
DATE: Friday, Apri 20
TIME: 10:00-2:00 AM
LOCATION: Dexter Hall in Bevrage Center on The Springfield College Campus.
A small donation will be requested at the door. Free parking will be provided at the corner of Alden St. and Wilbraham Rd.
Please utilize this space.
THIS WILL BE A NIGHT YOU DON'T WANT TO MISS, SO BE THERE.

CULTURAL TALENT SHOW AND PARTY

The Asian American Students Association (AASA) of the University of Massachusetts cordially invites you and your friends to a cultural and talent show featuring a variety of entertainment presented by the members of the Five-College community.
The evening will include martial arts, dancing, singing, a fashion show and much more!
All are welcome to attend this festive evening which will be followed by an open house PARTY.
DATE: Friday, April 20, 1984
TIME: 7:00 PM - 1:00 AM
LOCATION: Campus Center Aditorium, UMass/Amherst.

April 27

SALES MERCHANDISER
for the Pillsbury Co.
Student will be responsible for the merchandising and selling of Pillsbury products in assigned retail outlets in a way that will create consumer impact.
DEADLINE: April 27, 1984
$250.00/week plus a mileage reimbursement, July-December, 1984 in Hartford CT, Southern CT.
APPLICANT CRITERIA: Completion of Junior year of study, majoring in Marketing or Food Marketing with a 3.0 GPA. Use of a car and a valid driver's license are required.
To apply visit the Co-op Office) at 110 Thompson.

SHOWCASE OF JAZZ

Three jazz greats: Chico Freeman, innovative, young tenor saxophonist, Johnny Griffin, a tenor saxophonist who has performed for over 30 years with such jazzmen as Thelonius Monk, Dexter Gordon and Art Blakely's Jazz Messengers, and in a special guest appearance, exceptional drummer, Max Roach, will appear on the upcoming "Showcase of Jazz" at UMass' Fine Arts Center, Friday, April 27 at 8:00 PM.
This showcase is a Salute to the Black Musicians Conference and is part of the Center's annual American Heritage Arts Celebration.
Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office, all DATATIX outlets and the Springfield Civic Center. Phone (413) 545-2511.

April 28

S.O.S. BAND

The Campus Program Council along with the Association for Pan-African Unity proudly presents the sensational S.O.S. Band.
DATE: April 28
TIME: 8:00 PM
LOCATION: Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke campus.
Tickets are available at Faces in Amherst, Main St. Records in Norhthampton and the Chapin Auditorium Box Office.
BE THERE!

April 30

CCEBMS/BCP SUMMER ADVISOR POSITIONS AVAILABLE

24 hour live-in positions.
DUTIES: Responsble for residential ife of students in the program, enforcement of University and Summer Program policies.
QUALIFICATIONS: Experience working with non-traditional and minority students.
Pick up applications from Greg Roberts, CCEBMS, New Africa House and Manuela Pacheco, BCP, Wilder Hall.
DEADLINE: April 30.

RAINBOW COALITION T-SHIRTS
for the Jesse Jackson Campaign, $8.50. Money goes to the campaign. Call the Office of Third World Affairs at 5-2517.

COUNSELING SURVEY

Please return you counseling survey as soon as possible. Your response can help improve counseling services. THANK YOU!

GOODWIN MEMORIAL
AME ZION CHURCH
is holding services at 11:00 AM, Sundays and Sunday School from 10-11 AM.
Location: 41 Woodside Ave. (off of Rte 9).
Pastor: Rev. Samuel Henderson.
For more information call: 256-0720.

SCULPTURED CLAY MASKS

The Augusta Savage Gallery is hosting the mask works done by Prof. Femi Richards' Afro-American Studies 112 -"Sculpture/Clay" class.

Announcements Announcements

May 3

SUSAN SCHECHTER will speak on "Historical Pespecive of the Battered Women's Movement and its Relationship to Violence Against Women in Our Society."
DATE: Thursday, May 3
TIME: 7:00 PM
LOCATION: Room 168 in the Campus Center, UMass.
Susan Schechter is a feminist activist who has worked for many years in the anti-rape and battered women's movements. She is the author of "Women and Male Violence: Visions and Struggles of the Battered Women's Movement."
There will be a question and answer period following her presentation. This event is free and open to all. For childcare please contact the Educator/Advocate program at the Everywoman's Center.

May5

The Working Women's Program at Everywoman's Cener will be offering a one day workshop, "Doubting Our Own Competence: A Woman's Image of Work and Self.
It will be led by Valerie Young. There will be a presentation, discussion and small groups. Pre-registration is required.
DATE: May 5
TIME: 10-5 PM
LOCATION: Everywoman's Center, Wilder Hall, UMass.
It will be limited to 15 women. For more information call 545-0883.

Tired of the Meal Plan?
For Lunch or Dinner It's

YVONNE'S PLACE

Monday - Friday
12:30 - 6:30 pm
A sample of treats include:

Fried Chicken
Island Curried Fish
Vegitarian Platter
Fried Rice
Curry

Thursday - Friday
Student Discount Days

Lamb
Shrimp
Beef
Curried Goat
Free Dessert

Basement of the New Africa House

545-2012

13th Annual Black Musician's Conference

MONDAY April 23 — Gallery opening: "Jus' Jazz: correlations of Painting and Afro American classical music" Hampden Gallery, UMass 5 p.m. - 7 p.m.

Video screening: "1983 Bright Moments Festival" Hampden Gallery, UMass 5 p.m. - 7 p.m.

Concert: "A Tribute to Great Black Music" The Fred Clayton Ensemble, Hampden Theater UMass, 5 p.m. - 7 p.m.

TUESDAY April 24 — Gallery opening: "Jazz Selects Photos by Anthony Barboza" Augusta Savage Gallery, New Africa House, UMass 5 p.m. - 7 p.m.

Concert: Willene Barton and UJC Big Apple Jazz Women. Augusta Savage Gallery, UMass 5 p.m. - 7 p.m.

Panel: "Black Women in Music". Thulani Davis, D. Antoinette Handy, Elma Lewis, Bernice Johnson Reagon. Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union, UMass 7:30 p.m.

Concert: "Willene Barton and UJC Big Apple Jazz Women". Featuring Willene Barton - tenor sax, Keisha St. John - vocals, Marsha Frazier- piano, Melissa Slocum- bass, Bernadine Warren - drums, trumpet, and possibly Jean Fineberg on Alto and flute. Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union Bldg. UMass 9 p.m.

WEDNESDAY April 25 — Film: "Say Amen Somebody" Student Union Ballroom, Student Union Bldg. UMass 7:30 p.m.

THURSDAY April 26 — Concert: "Tell My Horse: A tribute to Zora Neale Hurston". Terry Jencure String and Vocal Ensemble. Red Barn, Hampshire College. 8 p.m.

FRIDAY April 27 — Workshop: Chico Freeman. Hampshire College 4 p.m.

Concert: *"Salute to the International Black Musicians Conference" with Johnny Griffin, Chico Freeman with special guest Max Roach. Fine Arts Center UMass. 8 p.m. Tickets $6, $7, $5, Students half price

*Distinquished acheivement awards will be given to Melba Liston and Harold Holt during the concert, commending their musical talents.

Saturday April 28 — Concert: "Solos and Duos presents Valerie Capers - Solo Pianist". Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union Building, UMASS 8pm

April 23 - 28 — Continuous Video Screening:

April 17 - 28 — Gallery Exhibits: "Jus' Jazz: American Classical Music". Hampden Gallery, UMASS. m-f 8pm Sunday 2-5.

April 22 - May 2 — Gallery Exhibits: "Jazz Selects: Photos Anthony Barboza". Augusta Savage Gallery, New Africa House, UMASS M-F 8pm

All events are free and open to the public

For Further Information: Call John Folan 545-0107

Today is a Monday Schedule

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIX, Issue 55 ©UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, April 18, 1984

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

ON GUARD—Taking advantage of yesterday's sunny weather the Goju-Ryu Karate Club practices outside NOPE gym.

Regents urged to delay decision on tuition hike

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education will decide today whether to vote on a proposed tuition increase for state colleges and univesities or accept a joint legislative committee's suggestion that they postpone the decision a month.

The regent's finance committee voted 4-1 last week to hike tuition at the University of Massachusetts 15 percent ($167) for in-state undergraduates, with higher increases for out-of-state and graduate students. The meeting today is in Boston at 2 p.m.

The joint legislative committee on education suggested last Thursday at an open hearing that the regents wait until May 18 to vote on the increase, giving those opposed more time to lobby against the hike.

"I think the recommendation by the legislature will be taken by the regents as a challenge to their autonomy and they will vote on, and pass, the tuition increase," said Fran Pheeney, chair of the public policy committee of the Student Government Association (SGA) at UMass.

"It will be up to the legislature to pass an amendment to stop the increase," Pheeney said. "In the process of debating the regent's budget they may try to stop the increase. That's what we're hoping will happen."

The proposed increase has been met with opposition from UMass President David C. Knapp, UMass-Boston Chancellor Robert Corrigan and a host of senators and representatives, and especially Rep. James Collins, D-Amherst, and Sen. Gerard D'Amico, D-Worcester, co-chairman of the joint legislative committee on education.

The regents did not raise tuition last year after a campaign promise by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis. Dukakis, and Chancellor of higher education John B. Duff support the hike, while UMass-Amherst Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey has said he supports about a 10 percent to 12 percent increase.

"They (the regents) have not indicated what they will do," a regents spokeswoman said yesterday. "The matter is on the agenda but no decision has been made."

Another issue before the regents today will be the approval of admissions standards for incoming freshmen at UMass and Southeastern Massachusetts University.

The proposal, whose requirements would be phased in through 1987, would set admissions policies at both UMass and SMU. High school students would then need a minimum of 16 academic units in various disciplines to be considered for admission, and their Scholastic Aptitude Test scores would be weighed on a sliding scale with class rank. Exceptions would be made for educationally disadvantaged, older or handicapped students.

In other regent business, North Adams State College and SMU are expected to have the appointments of their new presidents approved. They are Catherine Tisinger and John Brazil respectively.

Communist candidates need student pull

By LISA MARIE CANTWELL
Collegian Staff

The United States Communist Party is petitioning students at the University of Massachusetts this week, in an effort to get their candidates on the November Presidential Election Ballot and "defeat Reaganism," Communist Youth Director Elena Mora said.

"We have a president who thinks a nuclear war can be won," Mora said. "It is important for us to force debate on these and other issues."

In order for the two candidates, Gus Hall and Angela Davis, to appear on the November Ballot in this state, 41,000 registered voter signatures must be collected before May 7. In 1980, the two Communist hopefuls were on 21 state ballots nation-wide and Massachusetts was not included.

"This state has particularly prohibitive requirements for ballot access compared to other states," Mora said, "by expecting a high number of signatures, with only a four month collection period."

Despite Mora's belief that the Communist Party will not win the election, it is important, she said to "fight for our right to hold different views." Petitioning signatures and talking about Communist political views with people "reinforces and contributes to democratic values," she said.

Mora said people often tie the American Communist movement with the Soviet Union, but "we are concerned with solving problems in the United States," she said. Socialism, the Party contends, will come in a way particular to its individual history, just as the Soviet Union experienced change according to its circumstances, she said.

Mora said the reception at UMass has been a positive one, and the signature rate is good. The Party now has close to 41,000, she said, but another 20,000 will be sought since a great number are not legitimate.

"We are closer this year than other years," to reaching the November ballot, she said.

Jennifer Bird, a sophomore botany major, said she signed the petition because she supported "the co-operative communist system."

Not all students were responsive to the petitioners or the party. Jonathan Higgins, a junior geophysics major said he refused to sign the petition after he "saw the word communist" at the top of the clipboard.

Tina Malek, a freshman liberal arts major, said she "did not believe in what they represent," and declined her signature request.

Inside:

A look at the three who finished last in the Boston Marathon p.2

Editorial on the recent and controversial Klan trial p.5

Men's Lacrosse prepares for battle against Hofstra today p.16

"Ah, but a man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for?— Robert Browning

Travel expenses exploited by profs

By JOHN MILBIER
Collegian Correspondent

Some faculty and staff at the University of Massachusetts have used rental cars for traveling when they could have used their own cars at a lower cost to the University, according to UMass comptroller William Maus of the accounting office.

"We're trying to stop this expensive travel before it goes too far," Maus said.

He said there is a rule that states when University employees sign up for travel to seminars and conventions they must use the least expensive mode available. Employees using their own cars under the travel rules are reimbursed for 20 cents a mile.

"At 20 cents a mile, that just about pays for your gas and oil. On a rental car, we pay everything, tolls, and parking included," Maus said.

Some faculty and staff will rent a car in Campus Travel, drop it off at Bradley Airport in Connecticut, and go on their trip, he said. When they return they seek reimbursement for their travel expenses against their account from which the travel was funded, he said.

"If the statement of expenses isn't justifiable, we return the voucher to them. They in turn have to find another way to pay for it," Maus said.

He said if there is a dispute in letting a voucher pass, Maus lets the respective dean settle it.

Maus wouldn't say which department was the greatest offender, however, he said, "the newer faculty seem to be doing it because they are not aware of the rules."

"We're asking for faculty and staff cooperation, we're trying to put forth the rules and regulations as voted by the Trustees," he said.

Computer fraud bill released by Gov's office

BOSTON - The governor's office has drafted a bill to punish computer fraud - from the clerks who make a mistake and get away with it to the kid in New York who bilked a brokerage firm of $8 million.

The bill, described as a possible model for the nation by Lt. Gov. John Kerry, would impose up to five years in prison and a $20,000 fine, and also makes computer thieves liable in civil cases for triple damages and attorneys' fees when cases go to Superior Court.

The bill was filed with the Legislature Tuesday by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"Twenty states have computer fraud legislation, but this piece is better defined and could become a model for the country," said Kerry, who, along with a private industry consultant, noted that computer crime is increasing.

Robert H. Courtney Jr., formerly International Business Machine Corp.'s data security director, claimed he had investigated or known of investigations of 1,302 such incidents in the last three years in the nation.

"Only 11 percent were prosecuted," he said.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — David Summersby
Copy Editor — Ralph Roberts
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Brian Gonye
Production Supervisor — Peter Soderberg
Production — Pamela Smith, John Wielgus, Mike Lennon, Merrianne Hrycin, Lisa A. Reynolds, Ansel Zinter, Sue Gianetti, Leslie King, Lynn Eisenberg, Shelley Witkiewicz, Ellen Nahigian, Jim Rice

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Digest

By The Associated Press

Man to be sentenced for Hampshire rape

NORTHAMPTON — A Holyoke man pleaded guilty yesterday to kidnapping a Hampshire College student and raping her with his brother as they drove their van along country roads on April 19, 1982.

Lawrence Manning, 32, related the rape under questioning by Judge John Moriarty in Hampshire Superior Court, where a jury last year convicted his brother, Robert, 28, of the rape and abduction.

Moriarty scheduled sentencing for April 30. Manning faces up to life in prison, a sentence given his brother.

Hosts may be liable for their guest's actions

LOWELL — A $1 million lawsuit against Wang Laboratories could set a state-wide precedent that would make party hosts liable for how much alcohol they serve their guests, just as bars can be held liable for accidents and injury caused by their drunken patrons.

The suit has been filed by Joseph Gouveia III, who broke more than 20 bones in a motorcycle accident alst summer after a company picnic at the Wang Institute in Tyngsboro.

Gouveia, of Lowell, was riding on the back of a motorcycle driven by 24-year-old Clarence Johnson. Both men had been guests at a picnic thrown by the institute, an engineering school founded by Wang Laboratories chairman An Wang.

Gouveia, 26, charges in the suit that "agents" of Wang served Johnson free drinks until he became "greatly intoxicated" and then allowed him to leave the party drunk. Johnson was also severely injured in the crash.

Boston Marathon ends with 3 friends in last

BOSTON — For John Archer, Sy Ludington and Luther Lewer, the best was last. The three friends—seasoned veterans of the Boston Marathon—finished Monday's race dead last. But it was still an accomplishment, considering Archer's torn knee, Lewer's bad leg and Ludington's leukemia.

The three friends walked across the finish line at 7:50 p.m.—nearly six hours after Geoff Smith of Great Britain won the 88th running of the marathon with a time of 2:10.34.

"We were last," Ludington said Tuesday before flying back to his home in Naples, Fla. "At least I think we were last. We sure didn't pass anybody."

"We all did the best we could. Nobody can do anything more than that," he said.

Ludington, 57, and his friends have run 14 marathons together, and have finished the 26-mile race with times as good as three hours. But Monday's race was different.

"I've got my problems and the other two fellows had some physical problems," he said.

"We weren't going to break any records so we decided to do it together and walk."

Vietnam Vet awaits trial after fleeing hospital

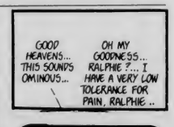
DANBURY, CONN. - A Vietnam veteran who disappeared from a hospital while awaiting trial on charges he burned a Buddhist temple to call attention to his plight was brought to a federal prison Tuesday after he surrendered.

Richard Papineau, 36, of East Hartford, Conn., turned himself in to authorities Sunday night in Berlin, N.H., after being assured by the chief of the Massachusetts Veterans Services Office that he would help Papineau obtain medical care.

Papineau, who authorities said tried to commit suicide Sunday night in his cell, had been missing since April 3 when he walked away from the Rutland Heights Hospital, a private facility in central Massachusetts where he was admitted in February for treatment as he awaited hearings on arson charges.

CLASS ACT.

NIKE



NIKE shoes for women.

You don't have to run to enjoy them.

Mathews Shoes
The Village Common, Amherst

WILD AMERICA IS OUR CAMPUS
Stimulating career-oriented BS, MS secondary and jr high school or summer expedition degree programs. Newfoundland to California. Practical, cross-cultural 1 to 4 years small group camping. Field studies and encounters with deep ecological problems, society and self. Financial aid and postgraduate grants available.
NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY EXPEDITION INSTITUTE
Sharon CT 06069 (203)364-0822

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Faber Castell
Uni-Ball Roller Pen Sale
Medium Point 89¢ each
Fine Point $1.09 each
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Northampton
a shopping event!

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
21 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-3810
Trek - Fuji - Univega - Campagnolo
Suntour and others
Racing, Touring, and Commuting accessories

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's Ice Cream

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

NOW LISTEN UP!—A University of Massachusetts tour guide makes a point to a group of prospective students and their parents yesterday in front of the Whitmore Administration Building.

Former member scolds SGA

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate at the University of Massachusetts is lacking commitment to affirmative action programs, according to a two-term senator, who recently announced her resignation.

Mindy Chateauvert, a former commuter senator and Student Coordinator for the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) since 1983, said "a commitment to affirmative action seems to be missing from the Senate."

"We not only have to try to promote women in certain positions, we have to be aware of how they function and that they are taking a part in the actual workings" of specific organizations and committees, Chateauvert said.

"Why doesn't the Senate have a commission on the status of student women to keep a watch on things? Why don't the Women's Caucus have the power to appoint female senators? "I think these things can be readily achieved but it's still a problem because it isn't viewed as a priority," she said.

Chateauvert, who is resigning so new leadership can take over, said there are certain individuals in the Senate who manipulate parlimentary procedures that limit debate on specific issues.

There is "a problem with the parlimentary procedure that descriminates and keeps people out," she said. "There are ways to allow people who don't usually talk to talk, and ways to address certain issues," that aren't employed by the Senate as much as they could be, she said.

"Women are called upon to speak on 'women's issues'," she said, "but when it comes time to talking about El Salvador or tuition increases, then it becomes the men's problem."

Chateauvert said the Senate has not "done enough" for Title IX, which she described as "an ERA for the University that affects women's position in the University as a whole."

National student enrollment pattern statistics indicate that between 52-55 percent of student bodies at similar state institutions are women, but at UMass only 49 percent of the student body is female.

Chateauvert said the comparatively low number of women students is linked to a high tuition policy at UMass. She said some studies indicate that when there are financial problems, families tend to send their sons to higher quality schools while daughters attend community or Jr. Colleges.

Chateauvert also said institutional problems at UMass has kept the number of non-traditional students low.

"We have a problem with daycare which keeps out older students with children. We have a problem with part-time student status, and the Reagan Administration has cancelled Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG) which were designed to help working women with children who have additional expenses because of family," she said.

Compared to national statistics, UMass lags behind in certain areas relating to women students and women faculty members.

While 1 out of 10 students graduating from college with engineering degrees are women, only 1 in 30 engineering graduates at UMass are women. Also, approximately 10 percent of tenured university professors in the country are women, but only 7.6 percent of the faculty at Umass are women.

There are currently 534 full time, tenured male professors and 46 full time, tenured female professors, Chateauvert said, "the other women faculty members are either assistant or associate professor."

Chateauvert said there was not a "big problem" concerning the earning scale of male and female professors at UMass. She said that while a majority of women faculty members across the country earn 78 cents for every dollar a male professor earns, women faculty at UMass earn almost 90 percent of what male professors earn.

Griffith voted in as new Select Chair

By JULIA MAYCOCK
Collegian Staff

Barbara Griffith, a first-term member, was unanimously voted chair of the Amherst Selectboard last night by the five-member body. Griffith replaces Edith Wilkinson who opted to run.

"I'll try to promise a fast gavel, but I might be a little slower tonight," Griffith said.

Selectman Fred Steinbeck became vice-chair of the board also last night. He filled the position vacated by Richard Minear, a Japanese history professor at the University of Masachusetts. Minear is beginning his second term and Joan Golowich was also welcomed to the board. Golowich, a staff assistant in the Provost's Office at UMass, resigned as chair of the Amherst finance committee upon assuming her duties as a Selectboard member.

In other business, representatives from Amherst Citizens Against Pollution (ACAP), a student-based group, sought the board's endorsement of a Town Meeting warrant article which would set a timeline for the town to cap the old landfill.

"We want the old landfill capped. There's no question that the dump poses great danger to our water supply," said David Donermeyer, an ACAP spokesman.

Members of ACAP said rain or snow which drains through the landfill and into underground water supplies has already contaminated the Brickyard Well and the Lawrence Swamp.

The group wants the town to cap the landfill with an "impervious" clay cover before next winter. Donermeyer said the dump has been left open since December of 1982. He said $622,000 was approporiated last year to cover the site but nothing has been done.

The town has not been able to cap the landfill because Amherst Auto Parts occupies part of the land. Amherst Auto Parts will be moving to a new location since zoning laws were changed at a recent Special Town Meeting.

Town Manager Barry Del Castillo said that he agreed with the intent of the warrant article but "I don't think it's correct to say that it (the landfill) poses a clear and present danger to our water."

The selectboard postponed action on the proposed warrant article until Del Castillo communicates with Amherst Auto Parts.

Pre-Registration!

Pre-registration for fall courses at the University of Massachusetts began yesterday and will proceed as normal through Wednesday, April 25 at 5 p.m., according to the registrar.

Registrar Ralph Jones said he anticipates no unusual problems this spring during pre-registration, although there will be 500 to 600 additional forms to process because of a higher enrollment.

Students with declared majors should pick up the pre-registration forms in their department office, and those who are undeclared can obtain them in the College of Arts and Sciences Information and Advising Center in Machmer Hall. The forms should be returned to the main lobby or the Registrar's Office in Whitmore Administration Building.

Scheduling booklets were distributed Friday in the Campus Center, and a limited number can still be obtained in either the Scheduling Office or Registrar's Office.

Electrical defect starts Kennedy Tower fire

A stovetop fire caused the evacuation of Kennedy Tower in Southwest Residential Area late Monday night, University of Massachusetts police said.

The fire occurred at 11:10 p.m. in the dormitory's fifth floor snack bar and UMass Department of Environmental Health and Safety officials determined an electrical problem to be the cause of the fire, police said.

In other business, police arrested a student from Albany, N.Y. at 12:39 a.m. yesterday when he was observed siphoning gasoline from a state-owned vehicle parked near Fisher laboratory. The man, who was charged with larceny over $100, was accompanied by a second student who was not arrested but will face a show cause hearing.

Police also arrested a Gorman dormitory resident at 1:06 a.m. yesterday and charged him with operating a motorcycle without a license or registration.

By ANN McCRORY

UMass fraternity rolls beer keg for Jimmy fund

Members of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity at the University of Massachusetts rolled a beer keg 100 miles in 22 hours to Boston last weekend to raise about $4,500 for the Jimmy Fund.

The trip started at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the Williams Distributing Company in Springfield, which donated the keg and went on route 20 the entire way.

"It was great, said fraternity associate member Jim Keough. "It was a good time for everybody."

"People (in the towns along the way) were pretty receptive to us," said Keough, who solicited donations for the Jimmy Fund from people along the way in major towns and cities.

By JOHN YONCE

Proletariat finds respect in education

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

Getting a College education, is a way of giving working-class families a sense of self respect, sociologist Dr. Richard Sennett said last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Sennett, in a speech entitled "The Humanities in Education," discussed the relationships between class and culture in the United States, and his book Hidden Injuries of Class which is a study of about 100 working-class families in Boston.

"The working-class family's expectations about education are more important than I thought," Sennett said.

By gaining a sense of self respect through education, he said, working-class families also gain autonomy. These two principles are a way of controlling their vulnerability in front of other people.

Sennett said in the late 1960's the material dream had come true for a large number of working-class families and this material accumulation ultimately resolved in a higher status for them.

He said, as the working class became more affluent they were able to make more changes for their children, for example increasing their education. The idea was to convert their material wealth to qaualitative but this was not working.

"Kids were finding that they also had to drive a taxi after college as well as when they were in high school," Sennett said.

"A.B.A. (Bachelor of Arts degree) is no longer a ticket to a white collar job," he said. "Numbers devalue the status of educational degrees."

Sennett said structural changes such as improved admissions standards force middle-class kids to stay in the same postion and they are no longer autonomous.

"The American dream renews itself as people fail to achieve it and to gain autonomy," Sennett said.

He said currently in the presidential campaign Mondale represents the survivors, those working class people who have gone through disappointment in the American dream.

"Hart represents the autonomous people; what are now called the Yuppies," Sennett said.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Dr. Richard Sennett, talking about the working class of America.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13
(whitewall blem)
$32.00 includes mounting
plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobas Store
549-4704

SUMMER JOB
Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard, and Nantucket have thousands of good paying jobs available to students and teachers this summer.
A Directory listing these jobs by employer also has housing info and job application forms.
For an immediate copy of the 1984 Directory, send $3.00 (includes 1st Class Postage and handling) to:
CAPE COD SUMMER JOB BUREAU
Box 594 Room 212
Barnstable, MA 02630

AMHERST BAGEL DELI
Now Open in FACES
The valley's freshest bagel
is now in Amherst
SPRING SPECIAL
15¢ a bagel $1.65 a dozen
Mon - Sun 8 am - 6 pm
253-9282

Summer at Brandeis
An Educational Adventure
Session I May 29 - June 29
Session II July 2 - Aug 3
• Undergraduate and Graduate Courses
• Humanities, Social Sciences, Natural Sciences, Computer Sciences and Fine Arts
• Theater Arts Program
• Premedical Sciences Program
• Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
• Costume History Field Research in England
Small classes taught by Brandeis Faculty
Suburban campus close to the excitement of Boston/Cambridge
Information, catalog and application
BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL
Waltham, MA 02254 617-647-2796

HOUSING
Christian Housing, Chi Rho
welcomes applications from single grads and undergrads, including freshmen and sophomores.
Contact the First Baptist Church for more information about this Christian Ministry House.
Call 549-3596 or 586-4352.

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Showing
Wednesday - Saturday
King of Comedy
7:00
Broadway Danny Rose
9:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person
Easter Cards
...for sharing and rejoicing in the beauty of the season.
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

AIM HIGH

Want more than a desk job?
Looking for an exciting and challenging career? Where each day is different? Many Air Force people have such a career as pilots and navigators. Maybe you can join them. Find out if you qualify. See an Air Force recruiter today.
Contact TECHNICAL SERGEANT ARTHUR COURTEMANCHE
Federal Building, RM 108, 1550 Main St, Springfield, MA 01103
or call (413) 785-0352
AIR FORCE
A great way of life

RT. 47 SUNDERLAND
You must be 18 to enter
Open 'til 2
665-4937
24 Hour Taped Message
The rusty nail Inn
PROUDLY PRESENTS
Tonight
MAX CREEK
$4.00 cover
Friday
THE STOMPERS
$6.50 cover
Thursday
THE RADIATORS
1960's Rock & Roll
Bring any size mug, we'll fill it for 25¢ 'till the kegs run out.
Tickets on sale Wednesdays in the Campus Center
Saturday
TALKING DRUMS
$6.00 cover

Join us in celebrating the Asian American Student Association's 10th Anniversary at our
"Asian Talent Night"
There will be a party immediately following the show.
Admission for the two events will be free.

Date: April 20th, 1984
Place: Campus Center Auditorium
Time: Show 7:00-9:00 pm
Party - 9:30 pm-1:00am
Dress: Semi-Formal (no jeans & sneakers)

Student Art Show Competition
Dates
April 31 - May 2
Campus Center
Music Room
Awards -
Selection Committee
For more info call 545-0198
* Art Expo is sponsored by UMass Arts Council, Campus Center Administration and the Board of Governors.

Black Affairs

Klansmen-Nazis acquitted in "Greensboro Massacre"

By CHARLES FRANCIS CARROLL
Collegian Staff

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. and AMHERST — Nine klansmen and Nazis were acquitted Sunday for their participation in the "Greensboro Massacre," a 1979 shooting melee in which five anti-klan demonstrators were killed and four others wounded. Five of the nine men charged were also acquitted in 1980 of charges of first degree murder. The verdict came after three days of deliberation by an all white jury in a trial which began January 8, 1984.

All were charged with conspiracy, and then each was individually charged for actions leading to the injury and/or death of the demonstrators. Those charged were Edward Dawson, Virgil Griffin, David Matthews, Coleman Pridmore, Jerry Smith, Roy Toney, Roland Wood, Raeford Caudle and Jack Fowler.

The onus was on Chief Prosecutor Daniel Bell to prove that the Klan/Nazis were venting "racist hatred" in their armed confrontation with the anti-klan demonstrators. A special grand jury which was assembled in response to outrage over the acquittals in the first trial, returned indictments last April with charges of conspiracy to violate the civil rights of those participating in a federally protected activity.

Bell introduced new evidence uncovered since the first trial. New witnesses were also presented. However, defense attorneys countered with the same defense that had worked so well before: their defendants were not "racially motivated," rather they were "acting in self defense." They argued that their clients were "patriots" because many of the victims were communists.

From its inception the second trial has been mired with unprecedented court rulings and restrictions. Despite a legal challenge from the local press, jury selection was conducted in closure. But, prior to the private jury selection and, perhaps, even more significant from a legal perspective, an unusually severe gag order was imposed prohibiting anyone connected to the case from talking about it.

"Past gag orders are narrowly defined, used most often when there is a demonstrable prejudicial effect of publicity (not applicable in as highly a publicized case as this occuring such a long time before this trial); there is no precedent for a blanket gag order so vague and all-encompassing," said Gail Korotkin, an attorney with the Greensboro Justice Fund which represents the widows and widower of the five victims, along with eleven others who were either injured or falsely arrested, in a separate civil suit against the government for forty-eight million dollars.

Korotkin maintains that the gag order was "unconstitutional," and undermines the First and Sixth Amendments which were established at the Continental Congress as a recourse to secresy and censureship under monarchy.

Korotkin called it censureship. "It is, in effect, press censureship by preventing the press from access to the people who actually know what happened on November 3rd."

A month later, when a transcript of the secret jury selection was finally provided to the public, we learned that the jury selected in 1984 had the same chemistry as the jury selected in the 1980 acquittal, and except for gender, were remarkably similar to the defendants.

The jury was white with an average high school education, middle to low incomes, and indigenous to the area. Few read newspapers or knew very much if anything about the Klan or Nazis. Of those who did, some seemed to express almost sympathetic views. All potential black jurors were dismissed.

As a justification for keeping the trial cloaked in secresy and silence, Judge Thomas A. Flannery asserted that he was only protecting the jurors and preventing bad publicity from affecting the trial's outcome. Furthermore, the judge ordered television cameras be excluded from the federal courthouse.

Much of the evidence used in the trial relied upon videotapes taken by cameramen from four local television stations. The videotapes depict the sequence of events as a convoy of cars drove up to an anti-Klan rally in Morning Sides, a black housing project in Greensboro. Words were exchanged. Fighting erupted. Shots were fired. Within minutes, the cars drove away leaving five of the demonstrators dead or dying. Those killed were: Sandra Smith, James Waller, Cesar Cause, Michael Nathan, and William Sampson.

As part of the new evidence offered by the prosecution, shots which government experts were unable to locate with sound analysis in the earlier trial had been re-examined and now attributed to come from Klansmen. However, this evidence was disputed by another "expert" presented by the defense. Later, the government's witness would claim in court what the second witness listened to "filtered tapes," but to no avail.

These technological developments were to be corroborated by new testimony from a former Klansmen, Mark Sherer, who, according to the prosecution, admitted to firing to a number of the early shots in question. But Sherer pulled out of his deal with the prosecutor two weeks into the trial. Sherer's about-face caught the prosecutor off-guard and prompted Bell to charge in court that Sherer had been cooperative until he was visited by a Klan lawyer.

The placement of these shots was crucial to the government's case, as it was also to the defense, for if there was any possibility that the early shots were fired by the anti-Klan demonstrators, it furnished the defense with the ground for an acquittal on self defense.

Lacking much of the substance to their case, the government focused, as did the defense, on whether or not the Klan/Nazis were influenced by the issue of race in attending the anti-Klan rally. All the defendents denied under oath any racial reason(s) for going to the "Death to the Klan" rally in Morning Sides, and declared that they went there only to confront the communists.

Virgil Griffin, former grand dragon (a state leader) of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Klu Klux Klan, was the most eloquent of the defendents in addressing if race was a factor.

Although, admitting to routinely calling blacks "niggers" and being against "race mixing," Griffin denied racism as a motive for the Klan counter-demonstration.

Editorial

"Why go to Guilford County to protest integration when they had it in his own Gaston County," he said. "I could have stayed there. I went to Greensboro because of the communists. I would rather die here fighting communism than let my children have to live under communism," Griffin told the jury, in his red, white, and blue suit.

In the spirit of a defiant, self-righteous patriotism one of the defense attorneys minimized the inhumanity of the original Nazis in upholding the Nazis as anti-communists. And he continued to add insult to injury by demeaning the death of Sandra Smith as a black woman, as if her being a communist diminished her racial status.

In spite of what appeared to be a preponderance of racial discrimination in the events leading up to the outbreak of violence, the jury was unconvinced, perhaps, more convinced by another angle of the government's case showing that the Klan/Nazis were "seeking revenge" for an earlier confrontation in China Grove, N.C., when anti-Klan demonstrators chased Klansmen inside a community center in attempting to disrupt the showing of the film, Birth of a Nation, at a recruitment meeting.

Somehow, the modern Klan which has always tied and typefied themselves with the racist doctrine of the traditional Klan has now been suddenly transformed and has converted its racist hatred for blacks to communists! Why even the name of this order of the Klan, the Invisible Empire, harkens back to the original Klu Klux Klan founded in 1865 and later spreading to North Carolina in 1866 where it was known as the "Invisible Empire."

Not so invisible, the Klan rides a night-time record of fear and violence from its pre-klan, ante-bellum origins in reprisals against runaway slaves, to its terrorist rise to power during Reconstruction, over the turbulent twenties and thirties when they added immigrants and others to their list of enemies, over the fifties and sixties against union organizing and the Civil Rights Movement, until now in the eighties, they can murder people in broad daylight.

On the other side were the men and women killed because they were protesting against the Klan. Always characterized as "communists"-- which they were-- they were also citizens with a parade permit issued by the police to express their freedom of speech and assembly (but not protected by the police who were conspicuously absent until the shooting was over).

The victims of the Klan/Nazis were not simply demonstrators, they were labor organizors attempting to organize cotton workers at the mills around the issues of occupational health hazards, particularly brown lung disease. The Greensboro Justice Fund charges that "union-busting" was actually the motive behind the killings. Furthermore, they charge that there was a government conspiracy which not only allowed a massacre to occur, but also may have planned it.

What constitutes such a conspiracy? Is conspiracy simply two people agreeing to carry out a criminal act? Are there not other types of conspiracy, less tangible and yet just as dangerous?

Even at the most abstract level, there is a critical choice by which a jury conspires against or with a defendant in determining his guilt or innocence. In this case, the jury decided that the Klan/Nazis did not conspire to go to Greensboro to violently disrupt the "Death to the Klan" rally.

In such a case as this, with wide-reaching social implications, it is not only the private interest that is defeated, but also the public interest. I do not intend to exhonorate anyone's wrongdoing on November 3, 1979, but isn't that exactly what the jury has done?

The acquittal sends a message to others that they can get away with such crimes. It all but tells the Klan that they have a license to take matters of the law into their own hand, the license to kill. The Klan is growing in North Carolina and throughout the United States. The labor organizing has ceased to exist at the cotton mills. What is racism if not this unfortunate episode of American history?

Easter Sunday Buffet
featuring a festive buffet which includes Steamship Round
Seafood
Special Salad Bar and many other selections
from 11:30 am to 3:30 pm
$8.95 Adults
$4.50 Children
Please call us today and reserve a special table for your entire family at 549-6000 extension 639.
TOP of the CAMPUS
Restaurant & Lounge
12th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER UMASS

Go Bananas
Read Arts

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Commencement 1984

10:00 a.m., Sunday, May 27

All Candidates
There will be no Commencement rehearsal for degree candidates. Candidates should assemble by school/college at Alumni Stadium no later than 9 a.m. graduation morning, May 27, 1984. Signs will be posted indicating schools and Commencement Marshals will issue specific instructions and distribute programs. Upon signal, candidates will follow the Commencement Marshals to the assigned areas and be seated.

Candidates will receive diploma covers from the deans of their school or college.

Who is Eligible to Participate?

Undergraduate degree candidates who anticipate completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1984. Questions concerning academic status should be directed to the Records Office, 213 Whitmore, 545-0555.

Master's degree candidates who have previously submitted the Degree Application Form by April 27, 1984 to the Office of Degree Requirements stating the intention to complete all requirements. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Doctoral degree candidates who have completed all degree requirements by April 27, 1984. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249 Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Faculty
Faculty and staff should assemble at the SOUTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel between the Facilities/Information Center and the stadium wall. Faculty will be part of the processional and will be seated immediately in front of the candidates from each school and college.

Note: Commencement '84 is on SUNDAY, May 27.

Parents and Invited Guests Plan to Arrive Early — Space is Limited
Since the Commencement Exercises are open to the public, and guest seating is without reservation, parents and friends should plan to arrive early to ensure good seating.

Handicapped Seating
Viewing area for the handicapped will be located on both sides of the stadium on the eastern and western walkways. Since seating is limited, only one person may accompany the handicapped guest.

Invitations
There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend the ceremony and tickets are not required. Each undergraduate/student will receive a packet of six formal invitations. Students are urged to encourage their guests to arrive early for good seating.

Caps, Gowns, and Hoods

Undergraduate Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge (on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Master's Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge (on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels, may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Doctoral Degree Candidates
Doctoral caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 4 p.m., upon clearance by the Office of Degree Requirements. On Commencement Day, caps, gowns, tassels, and hoods may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the NORTHWEST end of the stadium (on the gravel area).

Doctoral candidates who plan to participate in the Commencement ceremony must have a hood. Each Ph.D. candidate's name will be announced over the stadium sound system and two officers of the University will drape the hood on the candidate's shoulders. Doctoral hoods can be purchased only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, A249 Graduate Research Center, at a cost of $26. (Five College Doctoral Hoods will be available at $42.95.) Doctoral hoods may be rented through the University Store.

Rentals
Academic apparel for this year's University Commencement may be rented through the University Store. All faculty members are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. THE LAST DAY TO ORDER IS FRIDAY, MAY 18. Payment must be made at the time of order and there will be no refunds if apparel is not used. Academic apparel may also be purchased. For further information about rentals or purchases, please contact Connie Szelewicki at the University Store, 545-2619.

Accommodations
Many area motels are already booked for Friday and Saturday before Commencement. A limited number of rooms in University housing will be available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 25, 26, and 27. Please contact the Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center, 545-3400, by May 10. There is a $5 cash key deposit — to be returned when the key is returned.

Food Services
Coffee, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at both rotundas on the North side of the stadium.

Commencement Ceremony Schedule

9 a.m.	Robing for Commencement Appropriate signs will be displayed. Graduates should line up according to their school or college
9:30 a.m.	Seating of Graduates
10 a.m.	Procession starts
12 noon	Ceremony ends

Parking
Parking at the stadium is extremely limited. Commencement traffic will be directed to several parking lots located nearby and shuttle buses will transport you the short distance to the stadium. You will be dropped off directly in front of the stadium and buses will return you to the lots immediately following the ceremonies.

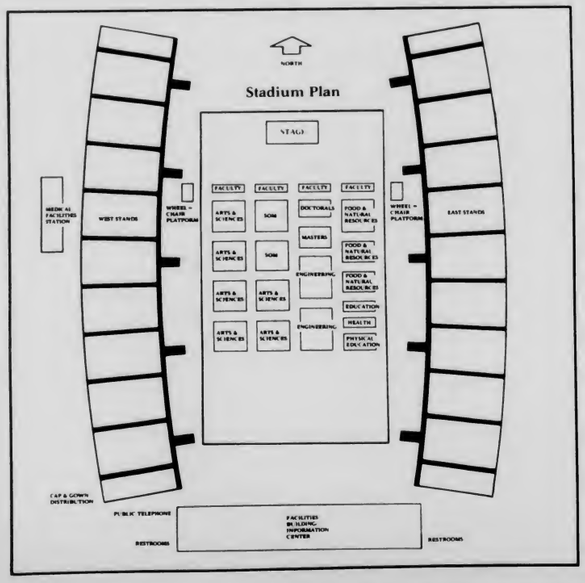
Radio Traffic Control
In an effort to aid the traffic flow at Commencement, WTTT radio in Amherst 1430 on the AM dial will broadcast traffic reports throughout the morning. Please tune to 1430AM once you arrive in Amherst for the best route to the ceremonies.

General Information
Diplomas will be mailed to graduates in the fall.

Medical facilities will be located in the van under Section 8 of the stands.

Public telephones will be located on the west side of the Facilities/Information Center.

Restrooms are located at either end of the Facilities/Information Center at the south end of the stadium.



Viewing areas for those confined to wheelchairs will be located on both sides of the stadium, on eastern and western walkways.

For additional information, contact the Office of Community Relations, 390 Whitmore, 545-2560.

ALCOHOL IS NOT PERMITTED IN THE STADIUM.

RAIN DATE
There is no alternative rain site. The ceremony will be held outside regardless of the weather. The ceremony will be delayed a maximum of two hours in the event of heavy rain. In the event of torrential rains the ceremony will be cancelled. Listen to local radio stations early Sunday morning to hear if the decision to delay or cancel has been made.

Schedule of Events	Date	Time	Place
Stockbridge Commencement	Sat., May 26	1:30 p.m.	FAC Concert Hall
ROTC Commissioning Ceremony	Sun., May 27	8:00 a.m.	FAC Concert Hall
Nursing Commencement	Sun., May 27	1:00 p.m.	Rhododendron Garden Rain site: 329 Morrill Science Center
1984 Commencement Ceremony	Sun., May 27	10 a.m.-12 noon

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Regents must reconsider

The Masachusetts Board of Regents is voting today on whether or not to delay a scheduled vote on a proposed tuition increase for state colleges and universities.

We urge the Regents to seriously consider the advice of the state legislature's joint committee on education, which last week unanimously passed a motion recommending a one month extension of the vote to allow more discussion on the issue.

The Regents have stated that they support a 15 percent tuition increase, raising the tuition cost by as much as $167 for in-state students next year. While the 15 percent increase is the maximum, a school such as UMass, which is well under the 33 percent tuition ceiling, could face the full amount of the increase. (The 33 percent is the amount of tuition relative to the total cost of education.)

While we feel that the idea of a uniform state tuition policy is sound, evidence suggests that the increase would make UMass less accessible to lower income students. In 1983, 23 percent of the students determined to have need received none at all. Shifts from grants to financial aid loan and work-study packages has also helped increase the burden of the cost of education onto those students who are most in need of aid. While Massachusetts ranks 48th in appropriations of personal income for public education ($5.38 per $1,000), the cost to students is one of the highest in the country (90 percent are lower).

The Regents claim that students don't assume a fair share of the cost of their education. We think that they do, and urge the Regents to not only vote for a month long extension on the proposal, but to reexamine their position as well.

Policy editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Make your voices heard

Nicaragua has become the only nation in Central America to have a rising Gross National Product. Since its 1979 revolution, literacy in Nicaragua has doubled; 40 percent of the population is in school and all education is free; infant mortality has fallen by 33 percent, and in 1983 the World Health Organization cited Nicaragua as a model country for its advances in health care. According to the Overseas Development Council of Washington D.C., Nicaragua leads all Latin American countries in the physical quality of life index. In response to pressure from the United States, they have agreed to hold their elections ahead of schedule. According to the Washington Post, "Even the American Embassy reckons the Sandinistas would win a popular election today."

The troop exercises in neighboring Honduras are, by the admission of Pentagon officials, designed in part to "intimidate" Nicaragua. The CIA is carrying out a "covert" war against Nicaragua by financing raids from "contras" and the mining of Nicaraguan harbors. The reason given for this activity is a mythical arms flow from Nicaragua to El Salvadoran rebels. Our extensive intelligence services in Central America have not uncovered so much as a single pistol going over the border, only medical supplies and transistor radio batteries. It would seem that Nicaragua's real "threat" to Central American "security" lies in the example it sets for its Latin American neighbors; that socialism can work.

The United States is becoming more and more committed to its interventionist policies, particularly in Central America. With this in mind, we as citizens of the United States should take a close look at our nation's foreign policy and make our voices heard. Congress will soon be voting on whether or not to continue aid and support for the contras. The time for you to act is now.

Tim Harris
Joe Shartrand
Amherst

How to bully thy neighbor

They are at it again. The present administration is faithfully upholding the grand old American tradition of trying to dictate exactly how our southern neighbors will govern themselves. In a style reminiscent of the early part of this century, President Reagan and his allies are using the power at their disposal to create suffering and chaos in a small Latin American country. It would appear that they feel it is best to restore relations with Nicaragua to the master-slave level that was the rule for so long.

ask yourself who has benefited the most from past American policy in the region. Huge multi-national corporations and wealthy individuals are the ones who benefit, along with small native elites.

It is one thing for the United States government to protect our system of free enterprise and quite another for them to use the taxpayer's funds to actively force it on other nations. There is no danger that revolutionary governments in Central America will stop selling us their agricultural and mineral products. Even the most devout Marxists have been known to come running at the offer of Yankee dollars. Fidel Castro has repeatedly stated his willingness to sell us Cuban sugar at competitive prices. We slapped an embargo on it many years ago after several large American sugar companies lost their obscene mark-ups when he nationalized the plantations. Now Cuba is an armed camp in the Soviet bloc all because of our government's inclination for protecting big business interests.

If there is any danger to our southern border from revolutionary movements, it is because short-sighted politicians and businessmen opened the door a long time ago. Think about it—why would these governments go to the Soviets for help when we are "Big Daddy" in the hemisphere? Maybe it stems from the fact that Americans have been willing to stand by and watch the people get treated like garbage as our corporations enrich themselves.

I will not go and fight in Central America, and if it comes to that, I will encourage others to do likewise. Some might call it treason, but it is my sincere hope that if Reagan tries any of the heavy-handed military tactics that have worked so well in the past, American forces will get their collective asses kicked, but good.

William J. Spain is a Collegian correspondent

William J. Spain

Perhaps someone should inform our proud leader that the good old days are no more. Revolutions in Cuba and Nicaragua have shown that their people are not going to keep taking abuse from us. They realized that American influence was responsible for the unspeakable tyrants who ruled so brutally. And as if the majority of the population down there hasn't already been given ample reason to hate the United States, the executive branch is using our money to raise hell with their economies and generally disrupt their lives. We are paying to introduce more weapons into an already violent situation. What is worse is that those guns are an attempt to solve a problem caused, not by communists, but by poverty. All the gunpowder in the world won't keep a hungry child from crying.

According to top Reagan administration officials, military means are justified because of a "threat" to U.S. national security. This "threat" is always spoken of in vague terms. Why is there more danger to the American way of life from left-leaning repressive governments than from the right-wing fascist dictatorships that so many of our presidents have happily jumped into bed with? Who, precisely, is threatened by them?

It is really quite simple. You just have to

Time to think in Boston

After a weekend highlighted by a cold walk around Newport, cancelled Red Sox games and wet treks to subway stations I thought the Boston marathon would be just the thing to rescue a vacation that fell short of my high expectations.

I was right. As my friend and I viewed the awesome sight of weary runners crossing the fabled finish line at the Prudential Center my spirits picked up. The rain, wind and cold were hardly noticeable as we waited for the first wheelchair marathoner, then the first man, then the first woman.

Peter Abraham

The night before I had found a walk through the Boston Sheraton amusing because the elegance of the hotel was set off by the casual attire (sweats and Nikes) of the competitors who nervously paced the lobby deep in their own thoughts about the upcoming task. The marathon was doing its best to make my weekend. Until we decided to leave the finish line and get something to eat.

His name was Tony Nota, and from all accounts he was an expert on the Boston Marathon, a man who sacrificed much of his time to the event, someone loved by all connected with the race.

Tony Nota had collapsed from a cerebral hemorage and lay on the cold cement of the Prudential Center's basement dead. He wore his sweats and Nikes along with a yellow officials jacket. Various policemen and EMT's tried to bring him back, but it was easy to see, despite my limited knowledge of first aid, that their efforts would fail. Not many come back after a cerebral hemorage.

We walked by, pausing involuntarily to look. We shook our heads, said "That's terrible" but walked on to a nice warm restaurant where we talked of other things. I did my best to brighten the situation with a few "Maybe he'll be all right," type of mutterings, but not mentioning it at all seemed to work better. A couple of subway rides later and some conversation pushed it out of the picture, but only for a while.

Seeing death among all that life at the Marathon isn't easy to take. In my own mind I was mad that this guy ruined my day by dying as I walked by. It wasn't fair, i reasoned. I'm a young, healthy college student in Boston with my girlfriend, I shouldn't have to deal with death five feet in front of me.

But I did deal with it. At least Tony Nota was doing what he enjoyed doing. The Associated Press sends out a few lines, The Globe mentions in the sports pages that his obit is on page 71, and the people I tell what happened say "Wow, that's too bad."

Peter Abraham is a Collegian staff member

Letters

Boycott classes on Good Friday

To the Editor,

This letter is to assert that the judgement of the University of Massachusetts - Amherst, in specific regards to the acknowledgement of particular religious holidays, is lacking.

Please understand that this letter is not to denounce any religion in any way. Rather, the Jewish community, in particular, is to be commended for its successful solicitation of campus-wide acknowledgement of their highest holidays. It is our intention that this letter will be a catalyst for Christians to establish and convey similar concern. In an effort to demonstrate this concern to the University Administration, we ask that ALL students and faculty not attend classes or participate in University activities scheduled on Good Friday, April 20th.

of the university community is of Christian denomination; therefore, we feel that this request bears substantial merit and justification. It is common practice for some professors to cancel classes or give students the option to attend. We certainly appreciate their individual efforts and encourage all faculty to acquiesce in this matter. We feel, however, that it would not be unprecedented for the University to recognize Good Friday, in the future, as an official holiday.

Bearing that goal in mind, we thank you in advance for your active support.

John P. Anderson Jr.
Kathleen M. Collins
Robert Smith
Timothy Searls
Richard Rymsza
Van Meter

BLUE WALL
CAFETERIA
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

POLISH LUNCHEON

GOLOMPKI
(CABBAGE ROLLS STUFFED WITH GROUND BEEF, GROUND PORK, RICE & ONION)
FLUFFY POTATO PANCAKES
SAVORY CARROT PENNIES
BABECZKA
(SMALL BABKA - HOT ROLLS)
CHEESECAKE
KIELBASA WITH KUPUSTA
(CABBAGE)

WEDNESDAY
APRIL 18,
1984

Vision Showcase
Your locally owned Optical Shop

High-Fashion Nylor® Rimless Frames.
- Lightweight for all day comfort
- Extremely strong and flexible
- World's leading rimless frames

LOGO PARIS FRAMES.
SHEER ELEGANCE.

Logo

Ask for FREE Contact Lens Demonstration

$15.00 OFF a complete set of Eyeglasses or Contact Lenses or 40%
OFF the second set of prescription eyeglasses or sunglasses when purchased with a complete set of eyeglasses at the regular price. Offers preclude previous discounts.(Discount applies to lesser priced pair.)

Vision Showcase

Expires 4/21/84

Hampshire Mall
(Across from KMART) 584-8324

For information and the latest news I read the Collegian.

PUB MUG NIGHT
- Every Wednesday -
35¢ BEERS
Miller - Miller Lite
Music by
Al Stoner
- Dancing -
No Cover

THE PUB
EATING & DRINKING
AMHERST

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

James H. McManus eating place
Hadley Campus Shopping Center, Rte 9 next to Super Stop & Shop
256-6889
please present when ordering

BREAKFAST FOR 2
Only $3.95
Or $1.99 For One
WITH THIS VAL-PAK® COUPON
REG. PRICE $5.10
Each Breakfast Includes
- 2 Large Fresh Eggs
- 2 Strips Crisp Bacon
- 2 Sausage Links
- 2 Pancakes

Breakfast Served Anytime
OFFER VALID THRU APRIL 30th

1/2 PRICE DINNER
WITH THIS VAL-PAK® COUPON
Buy One, Get One 1/2 PRICE
Purchase any dinner entree and receive the second of equal or lesser value 1/2 PRICE
Any Day 11:30 am to 8 pm
- Fresh Fish & Chips
- 3 Pc. Fried Chicken
- Fried Clam Plate
- Broiled Pork Chops
- Boneless Chicken Breasts
- Steak
- Broiled Liver
- Scallops
- Fried Shrimp

OFFER VALID THRU APRIL 30th

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Paul Mariani

"Summoning the Dead: Politics and the Sublime in Contemporary Poetry"

Thursday, April 19, 1984, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Arts

Trailers
by Andy Gordon

Yeah, I've matured over the past four years. While my peers were grooving to the sounds of Elvis at the F.A.C. Monday night, I was in a dark theatre with three or four hundred high school students screaming for a deranged man in a goalie mask to carve up another teenager. Last week I mentioned exploitive nudity as a guilty pleasure, something that sociologically can't be too good, but which nevertheless I enjoy. Well add to that list screaming and laughing and shouting "Kill. Kill." at a movie screen.

That's right, Friday the 13th Part IV: The Final Chapter is playing out at the mall and it's a pretty good time, let me tell you. Following identically in the dark path of it's predecessors, the film offers no surprises whatsoever; but at this stage in the game suspense is not what fills the theatres. With the telltale ch-ch-ch echo sound and obvious camera devices-- tight close-ups and two-shots with only one person-- there's not a single scare that you don't see coming well in advance. The only surprises are what object will pierce what part of the next victim's body. Goremaster Tom Savini (Dawn of the Dean, Maniac) lets the blood flow in several clever dismemberments (this is starting to sound like a parody) but in general does not live up to the levels of grossness we know he is capable of. Savini is one really sick man. The way I hear it he lost his shit in Vietnam, where he spent two years on the front lines.

Like the previous films, The Final Chapter operates as a morality tale, albeit a misguided one. It is always the sexually active characters that buy it early in the film, and the sole virgin who ultimately destroys Jason (until the next film). The new film perplexed me at first, because there were three virgins. Sure enough, two of them lose it during the course of the film, in surprisingly tender sequences, and are subsequently dispatched by axe and machete, respectively. One has to question the integrity of the writer here.

They do give the people what they want, and the astounding 11.1 million dollar opening weekend gross attests to that. The decent cast includes such recognizable faces as Kimberly Beck, from the classic Suzanne Somers T.V. movie Zuma Beach, and Lawrence Monoson, the gueeby title character in The Last American Virgin. As for the claim of being the "Final" chapter; I think not, the closing shot demands another sequel.

Goldie Hawn stars in Swing Shift, coming soon to the area.

Opening two short days from now at the Dead Mall is Goldie Hawn in Swing Shift. The World War II film features Hawn as a devoted Navy wife who becomes an assembly-line production worker and Kurt Russell as a musician enlisted as her supervisor. Although the press release doesn't say so, one must presume the two enter into a relationship. It sounds a lot like a commercial version of the documentary Rosie the Riveter. Interesting supporting characters pop up throughout the cast list, including Maggie Renzi (of Return of the Secaucus Seven), Rod Stewart's wife Alana, Go-Go's lead singer Belinda Carlysle and film czar Roger Corman, who gave director Jonathan Demme his start.

Local Best Bets: The Amherst Cinema is showing a double bill of The King of Comedy and Broadway Danny Rose at 7 and 9 respectively. The Academy of Music has Entre Nous, with The Dresser expected Friday. As a side note, Lisa Marie Cantwell, president of the UMass furniture club, announced yesterday that she will raffle off two mahogony chairlegs to subsidize the cost of the club's undersubscribed newsletter, "Woodgrain this week."

TRAILERS Trivia: Edward P. Jeye got half of last week's questions. Had Mariel Hemingway not copped the part, Daryl Hannah would have played Dorothy Stratton in Star 80. The part of the question no one got is that runner-up for the Night Shift Michael Keaton character was Fee Waybill, lead singer of The Tubes. This week's question: All My Children's Tad Martin (hated by women and idolized by men) made his motion picture debut in what film, alongside what kid I went to high school with? The first correct answer will receive an 8x10 glossy photograph of a mud-covered Tarzan from the film Greystoke, which looks like a helluva boring flick, no matter what anyone says.

The evil Jared-Syn from Metalstorm, not mentioned in today's TRAILERS.

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF

The Stories of Breece D'J Pancake
"A young writer of such extraordinary gifts that one is tempted to compare his debut to Hemingway's."
—Joyce Carol Oates
The New York Times Book Review

Foreword by James Alan McPherson Afterword by John Casey

The Stories of Breece D'J Pancake
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

We're ready for Spring! "Grendha" by Bellini an "airy" all leather flat in black, grey, yellow, white, and beige.

Open Sunday
SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst

UMass Transit Service presents the Summer Training Program
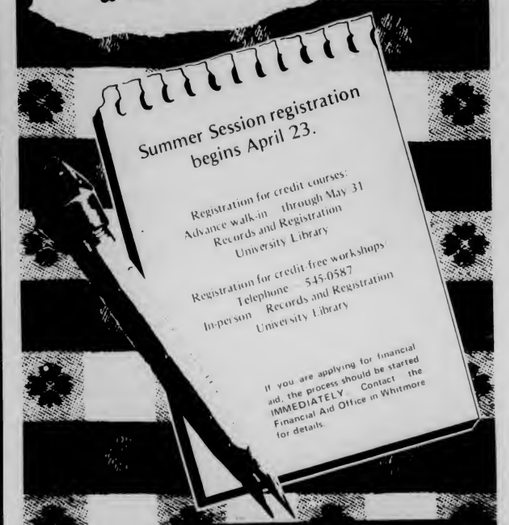
for Bus Drivers
if you:
- have had a drivers' license for a year
- are at least 18 years old
- have 3 or more semesters remaining in a UMass degree program
- want a fun, well-paying student job
you are eligible.
100 applications will be given out. Bring proof of class year (schedule or transcript - no ID's)
Wed. April 18th 7 PM CC 174
UMTS is an EO/AA employer.
Women/minorities/older students encouraged to apply.

$469.00
List $525.00

Complex Calculations
Have Never Been So Fast!



HP-71B Handheld Computer addresses the multiple needs of technical or business professionals. The combination of calculating and BASIC language programming capabilities in a single portable product will increase your productivity, as well as provide a base for your future needs.
- 250 keywords - 64k byte operating system - file management system - additional peripherals and software available

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Get more than a tan this summer.

DCE DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

ATTENTION STUDENTS FROM WESTCHESTER AND ROCKLAND COUNTIES, THE BRONX AND NEW YORK METROPOLITAN AREA!

STUDY THIS SUMMER AT MERCY COLLEGE

Make this summer count! Get ahead or catch up on your coursework. Take advantage of Mercy College's flexible scheduling, low cost ($102.00 per credit) and six convenient locations: Dobbs Ferry, Peekskill, Yorktown, White Plains, Yonkers and The Bronx.

More than 500 course offerings in the following areas:

Accounting
Biology
Business Administration
Chemistry
Computer Information Systems
Criminal Justice
Education
English
History & Political Science
Mathematics
Paralegal Studies
Psychology & Sociology

Six and twelve week sessions. Day and evening classes begin June 4th and July 16th. Registration for all summer sessions begins May 21, 1984.

For information about Summer Sessions at Mercy College, please call Andrew G. Nelson, Dean of Admissions at (914) 693-7600; or return the attached coupon.

MERCY COLLEGE
555 Broadway, Dobbs Ferry, New York 10522
☐ Please send me more information about Mercy College's Summer Session Courses
Name _____ Telephone _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

TONIGHT! (AND EVERY WEDNESDAY)
LIVE NEW YORK COMEDY SHOW
FEATURING...
VENTRILOQUIST
KENNY WARREN and JERRY DINER
75¢ MIXED DRINKS 8–11
NO COVER
You've seen them on HBO, David Letterman, Thicke of the Night, and Evening at the Improv.....
NOW SEE THEM LIVE!
THURSDAY:
2 FOR 1 ALL NIGHT LONG
THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!
Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

ROOM CHOOSING PROCESS

FOR SPRING 1984

Please read carefully

RESERVING YOUR CURRENT ROOM ASSIGNMENT

If you intend to keep your present residence hall assignment, personally sign up with your Resident Director/Residence Hall Manager on Monday, April 23. DEADLINE FOR ROOM RESERVATION IS MONDAY, APRIL 23.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR PRESENT RESIDENCE HALL ASSIGNMENT WHILE ALSO SUBMITTING A PREFERENCE FORM YOU MUST DO THE FOLLOWING:

1. Sign up for a room in your current residence hall on either Monday, April 23 or Tuesday, April 24.
2. Fill out a Preference Form. On the Preference Form in the lower right corner is a box you must "check" if you wish to be returned to your residence hall if your residence hall or area choices cannot be met

YOUR OLD RESIDENCE HALL ASSIGNMENT IS GUARANTEED ONLY IF YOU DO BOTH STEPS

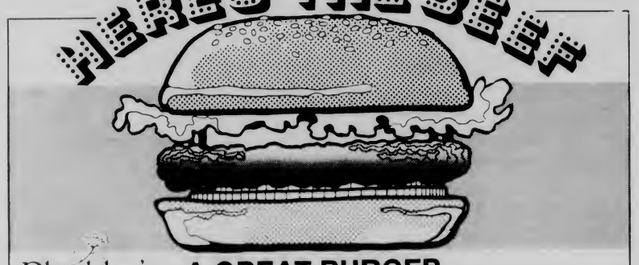
CHANGING YOUR ROOM ASSIGNMENT

If you wish to move to another room in the same residence hall, you must sign up with your Resident Director/Residence Hall Manager. DEADLINE FOR MOVING WITHIN A RESIDENCE HALL IS TUESDAY, APRIL 24.

If you wish to move to another residence hall, you must complete a Housing Preference Form. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING COMPLETED HOUSING PREFERENCE FORMS TO THE HOUSING ASSIGNMENT OFFICE IS FRIDAY, MAY 4. Prefernce Forms may be dropped off at any Area Operations Office (Southwest-JFK Lobby, Northeast/Sylvan-Johnson, Central/Orchard Hill-101 Baker).

ROOMMATE REQUESTS

If you wish to move to another residence hall to room with a student already assigned to that residence hall, you must together complete a ROOMMATE REQUEST FORM. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING ROOMMATE REQUEST FORMS TO THE HOUSING ASSIGNMENT OFFICE IS WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25.



If you wish to become roommates with a student in a residence hall to which neither of you is currently assigned, you must each complete a Housing Preference Form. These forms should be identical (with the exception of the "check" box) and stapled together. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING HOUSING PREFERENCE FORMS IS FRIDAY, MAY 4.

IN-HOUSE ROOM REQUEST FORMS

If, during the regular In-House Room Choosing period, you were unable to secure a particular type of accommodation (a particular single or double room), please contact your Resident Director/Residence Hall Manager and fill out an In-House Room Request Form. Rooms that become available during Intersession will be assigned according to seniority, to those students who have filled out this form and returned it to their Resident Director/Residence Hall Manager.

QUESTIONS?

If you still have questions about the Room-Choosing process, please contact your House Staff or the Housing Assignment Office (545-2100), 235 Whitmore. Thank you.

Plumbley's
off the commons
30 Boltwood Walk
Amherst 253-9586

A GREAT BURGER
1/2 pound ground choice sirloin served the way you like it

A little bit of everything for everyone.

PUBLIC NOTICE
2 Days Only
Selling At The
HOWARD JOHNSON MTR LODGE
Rte. 9, 401 Russell St., Hadley

HOTEL SURPLUS $48.00 AND UP

TWIN SIZE MATTRESS $55.00
TWIN SIZE FOUNDATION $48.00
FULL SIZE MATTRESS $68.00
FULL SIZE FOUNDATION $58.00

Be Early For Best Selection
No Phone Orders, Please

Not to be confused with bedding used in this motel, every piece is brand new, factory sealed in heavy clear plastic for your inspection and weather protection. Bring your car, truck or station wagon. We will load for you. SALE CONDUCTED INSIDE BUILDING.

..MASTERCARD...VISA...CASH & CARRY

Wed. April 18 2-8 PM Thurs. April 19 10 am - 6 pm

Share the joy of Easter with a beautiful thought.
Easter Greeting Cards
AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person
UNIVERSITY STORE
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5 sat 11-4

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day they take place. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

CONCORD STRING QUARTET — Chamber Music concert to include works by Haydn, Ives, and Beethoven. 8:00 p.m., FAC Concert Hall.

MICROCOMPUTER USERS GROUP MEETING — Second meeting of the newly-formed Users Group for users of IBM-PC's and PC-compatible microcomputers. Program: elect officers, roundtable discussion of word processing software. 7:30 p.m., SOM 108.

UPC GENERAL MEETING — Spring events are coming up. Everyone's help is needed. Now's the time to be involved! 6:30 p.m., CC163C.

SPECTRUM POETRY STAFF MEETING — All members please attend — for our final selections. 6:00 p.m., Spectrum Office, CC102.

ASIAN TALENT NIGHT DRESS REHEARSAL — Mandatory dress rehearsal for all participants of the Asian Talent Night. Be on time! 7-1:00 a.m., CCA.

BIKE CLUB MEETING — Demonstration, cross-country discussion group, tour leader training. 7:30-9:00 p.m., CC905-09.

STUDY IN ISRAEL — Interested in studying in Israel? Call Hillel for an appointment with Danny Pins on Tuesday, May 1.

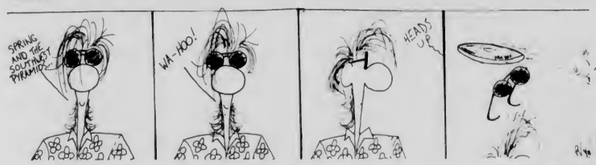
ORCHARD HILL AREA GOV'T ELECTIONS — Elections for '84-'85 officers of Orchard Hill Area Gov't will be conducted today in the elevator links of Orchard Hill dorms. 4-6:30 p.m., OH dorm lobbies.

AREA CONCERT SECURITY WORKSHOP — Mandatory meeting for all East and West Side Concert security crews. In order to work a show you must attend this workshop! 6:30-7:30 p.m., CC168C.

WOMEN'S ISSUES TEAM MEETING — Join us to discuss pornography and what we can do. New members welcome. 4:30 p.m., CC802.

NATIVE PEOPLE FROM THE MOHAWK NATION — will be on campus April 19th to give a presentation on their culture, traditions, and philosophies, as well as their views on some current ecological and political concerns. The presentation is open to the public. 8:00 p.m., HERT Auditorium.

HUMAN RELATIONS FORUM — Forum cancelled. 12-1:00 a.m., CC804-08.



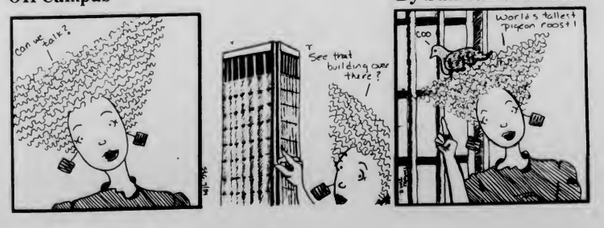
PREPARE FOR
MCAT • LSAT • GMAT
SAT • ACT • DAT • GRE • CPA
Our 40th year
Enrolling Now For
June 18
LSAT
Transfer to a Kaplan Center near home after finals
Stanley H. KAPLAN Educational Center
Call Days Eves & Weekends
358 N. Pleasant St
Amherst
549-5780
For information about other centers Outside NY State CALL TOLL FREE 800 223-1782
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

Read the Arts Page!

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

ZED P.V.

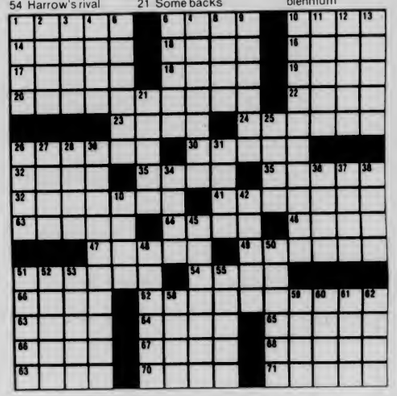
The Strip Jim Walsh



Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

FRED BAKER By T.A.D

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Shoe grip
6 Food fish
10 Walking (with "on")
14 Debussy opus
15 Remedy
16 About
17 Award-winning musical
18 Neglect
19 "Rio ——"
20 On all sides
22 Provender
23 Indifferent
24 Popular garnish
26 Trevino, for one
30 Music combo
32 Grecian goddess
33 "Your majesty"
35 Capital of Ghana
39 Kind of tire
41 Botticelli contemporary
43 Like a take-charge person
44 Dripping
46 River in N. Ireland
47 Setter or stew
49 Boston players
51 Former California governor
54 Harrow's rival
56 Engrave
57 To the highest degree
63 Before eye and out
64 Out on a ——
65 Castle of note
66 Place for a chapeau
67 Iridescent gem
68 Panorama
69 Toboggan
70 Potion for Bacchus?
71 After smoke and lotus

DOWN
1 Musical key
2 Molten rock
3 Mideast potentate
4 Philippine native
5 Dreamy abstraction
6 Disapproving look
7 Cigar receptacle
8 Jejune
9 Perceive
10 Exaggerated
11 Dogwood
12 Mink's cousin
13 Yes man
21 Some backs
25 Large amount
26 Attire
27 Market purchase
28 "—— make a deal"
29 Astute
31 Mackerel-like fish
34 One of the Argonauts
36 Parts of the street scene
37 City on the Truckee
38 TV actor Karras
40 Wildcat of South America
42 Garment with strings
45 Civil War general
48 Confluence
50 Salad ingredient
51 Goes on holiday
52 Name of fame on Broadway
53 Trenchant
55 —— d'hote
58 Cassava
59 Popular recording
60 Direction for Greeley?
61 Part of A.M.
62 Half of a biennium

Candidates for Editor's Positions
Meeting in the newsroom
Wednesday at 5:00
To discuss the ballot, debate, etc.

D.C. Menu

Lunch
Open Face Roast Beef Sandwich
Cheese Mushroom Fondue Bake
Fruit and Sherbet Special

Dinner
Stir Fry Beef and Vegetables
Sausage Grinder
Antipasto Cold Plate with Bread Sticks

Basics Lunch
Swiss and Sprout Sandwich
Cheese Mushroom Fondue Bake
Fruit and Sherbet Special

Basics Dinner
Baked Cod with Lemon Wedge
Italian Tofu Balls and Sauce with Grinder Roll
Vegetarian Antipasto with Bread Sticks

Weather

Mass., R.I., Conn.—Wednesday, cloudy with a chance of a few showers or a thunderstorm. Highs in the 50's. Wednesday night cloudy and chance of drizzle. Lows in the 40's. Thursday a chance of showers. Highs in the 50's.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

N	O	A	M		R	A	I	T	E		S	I	L	T	A	S
A	R	I	A		A	W	A	Y		T	A	C	T
B	A	C	K	S	T	A	G	E		R	E	V	U	E
S	I	L	E		E	P	E	R		A	M	E		L	Y	E
				S	T	O	R	I	E		P	R	E	S	I	D
A	S	S	E	S	S		S	P	A	M	E
T	O	K	Y	O		S	T	E	W		E	A	S	T
O	B	I	E		S	T	E	A	D		E	C	H	O
P	E	R	U	S		A	R	I	A		A	M	E	N
			A	D	M	A	N		G	R	E	E	D	Y
S	E	G	R	E	T	I	O	N		W	A	I	T
A	V	E		O	P	A	L		E	L	U	D	E
N	E	T	T	L	E		B	A	S	I	L	E	E	D
Y	A	L	E	S		S	H	O	E		V	E	N	T
A	S	S	E	M		L	A	M	E		S	I	S	E

TOP of the CAMPUS

Dinner for Two Enjoy
any two entrees
(except steaks)
with a complimentary non-alcoholic beverage
12.95
Every Friday

TOP of the CAMPUS

PRODUCTIONS PRESENTS
THE GREAT DINNER MOVIE DEAL!
TOP of the CAMPUS RESTAURANT & LOUNGE fine dining ....a meal with a view
CHOOSE from our starring entrees:
★ CHICKEN KIEV
★ T.O.C. SCROD
★ CHOPPED SIRLOIN
★ COUNTRY FRIED CHICKEN
★ ½ served with our SALAD BAR and your choice of beverage, and RECEIVE a FREE MOVIE PASS
ONLY 6.95
8 Theaters... Your choice for entertainment
amc THEATRES 584-7550 584-9153
DINNER SPECIAL is available TUESDAY-THURSDAY nights
MOVIE PASS is valid SUNDAY-THURSDAY

INTRODUCING:
A NEW LUNCH ALTERNATIVE
TOC LOUNGE
LUNCHEON BUFFET
M-F 11:30 AM-1:30 PM
- TOC HOT CHICKEN WINGS
- CHICKEN BITES
  Golden Fried Chicken Nuggets with your choice of sauces: mustard, sweet and sour, barbeque
- POTATO DELIGHTS
  Potato skins with delicious toppings
- CARROT & CELERY STIX
  with Vegetable Dip

All For Only
$2.75

TOP of the CAMPUS

Attention:
Meal Plan Students
Use Your Meal Tickets in the TOC Restaurant

Campus Center Food Services, in conjunction with University Food Services, is proud to announce a new Dining Experience! Students enrolled in a University Food Services' full board plan may use their meal ticket for a $3.00 credit on Wednesday Evenings in the Top of the Campus Restaurant. Also, students will receive the usual 15% discount. Reservations must be received by noon on Mondays. Call 549-6000 ext. 639 or inquire at the T.O.C. Restaurant.

TOP of the CAMPUS
Restaurant & Lounge
11th FLOOR/CAMPUS CENTER/UMASS

HAPPY HOUR
2 FOR 1
MIXED DRINKS
MON.-FRI. 3-6
TOP of the CAMPUS

THE ORIGINAL DYNASTY
DRINK SPECIALS 8-10
Try the "Carrington Cooler," "Alexis' Revenge" or the "Frosty Fallon" ...each 1.50
TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor · Campus Center · UMass

HAPPY HOUR
2 FOR 1
MIXED DRINKS
MON.-FRI. 3-6
TOP of the CAMPUS

THE ORIGINAL DYNASTY
DRINK SPECIALS 8-10
Try the "Carrington Cooler," "Alexis' Revenge" or the "Frosty Fallon" ...each 1.50
TOP of the CAMPUS
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
11th Floor · Campus Center · UMass

THE BEST PLACE IN TOWN TO START A CONVERSATION
is
Time Out
Free Popcorn
Two TV's

AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. PLEASANT ST AMHERST. MA
Closed Easter Sunday

CLASSIFIED ADS!

TV SALE
19" Color Portables
at take them away prices
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
RTE. 9, 401 RUSSELL ST., HADLEY
Wednesday April 18 from 3 to 8 PM
Thursday April 19 from 10 AM to 6 PM
MASTERCARD. . .VISA. . .ACCEPTED
No Phone Calls Please
Sale held by RBM Sales Corp.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Technics Automatic Turntable with Shure cartridge 2 months old Best offer 546-5143

AUTO FOR SALE

Celica GT Liftback 1980 excellent cond copper 54000 miles $5400firm 527-8414 keep trying John

73 Mercury Comet good engine new brakes, exhaust, battery. Inspected. Dependable transpo. $700 or BO call 1-772-6259 eves

'77 Buick Skylark ext. needs work eng. & int. good fair 549-6797

74 Ford Maverick, A.T., P.S., many extras, some rust, but reliable. Best offer. Phyllis 5-2364 or 665-3441 late eve.

1973 Duster good condition very reliable new brakes $550 584-7455

1971 Camaro 350 eng. Hurst 4-speed great stereo $600 firm 256-1351

73 Chevy Caprice auto, PS/PB good cond. 665-4117 $1450

Foxy Fiat X1/9 low miles excellent condition 3500 BO call Larry 256-0080

Ford Mustang 1979 for sale good condition. A/C stereo miles 36000 call 549-0056

CAPE COD

I need room for summer in South or West Yarmouth. Call mark 256-8225

Female roommate wanted in Falmouth Heights on the beach summer call Kate 6-4017

EASTER BASKETS

Send one to your friends sign up- Wed Thurs Fri in Hamden (Southwest) or call 546-7294 546-7268

ECKANKAR PRESENTS

Intro Lecture "In My Soul I Am Free" the study of out of the body experience Th. April 19 7:30 rm 802 CC

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS 4 years Quality Service at UMass. Why pay more? 256-1393

Balloon Delivery by Clowns Birthdays, all occasions; juggling, songs, more, reasonable rates; call 586-4256

FOR RENT

Housemates wanted for Northampton house. Near downtown, bus. $150/mo. + call 584-2306

Fall option - 1 room available July 1st. Entire apt available in fall. Pool, tennis, bus. $137 utilities included! Call Leanne late PM 665-7581 keep trying!

One bedroom apt in Crestview, summer sublet w/fall option 549-5949

Apartment in Sunderland 2 bdrm bus route June 1 fall option 330 mo 665-7044

One bedroom apt 3158/month all included swimming pool tennis courts call Jose 665-7633

4 bed houses - Country setting with acres near city. Other near Smith College. $525 without utilities. For Sept. Call Northampton 584-3428, 5-8 pm, Skibiski, Realtors

FOR SALE

Apple Silentwriter complete with card, cable, three rolls paper $150 call Rupp 5-1902

Electric Typewriter. Smith-Corona super-12 Very good condition Best offer 549-6994

Airplane Ticket good anywhere in US on TWA good thru 5/24/84, 546-6629

FOUND

Found: Jacket in front of East Experiment Station March 15th. Call 546-7061 and describe to claim.

HELP WANTED

Immediate opening for computer programmer experienced with PDP-11 or VAX computers and MACRO-11. Amherst based company, developing communications and real-time control software, is looking for someone that can work part-time for the rest of the school year, with full-time employment over the summer. For information contact Bernie Volz 549-6994

Government Jobs. $16,559-$50,533/year. Now hiring. Your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext. R-9616

Mobile Vending Vehicle Drivers wanted Cape Cod summer Pete 584-9580

COUNSELORS WANTED - Trim-down physical fitness coed NYS overnight camp. Great times helping kids! All sports, WSI's theatre, arts and crafts, piano, guitar, dance, aerobics, computers, go-carts, rocketry, general, needlecraft, weight training, kitchen. Camp Shane, Ferndale, NY 12734

Counselors: Camp Wayne, co-ed Northeast, Penna. Interviews arranged. Unusual opportunity. 12 Allevard St. Lido Beachm NY 11561 (include your telephone number)

LOST

Before Break, purple and gray T-teck hand-knit wool sweater. Extreme sentimental value. Reward! If found, please call 253-8046

Lost designer denim jacket at The Pub 4/12. Call Julie 546-1282

PERSONALS

Iota Gamma Upsilon
Open Rush
Thurs. 4/12 8-9 pm
Tues. 4/17 8-9 pm
Wed. 4/18 7-8 pm
For info call 256-6874

Paul Desmarais You gotta love it!!!!

Please take over our lease as of June 1st. 2 bedroom apartment, Sunderland, on bus route, wall to wall carpeting, A/C, dishwasher, $325/month + electricity, hot water FREE. Call anytime - 665-4278

- University Women invited to open rush at Alpha Chi Omega Thurs. April 29 - Dinner and build your own sundae at 4:45
- Wed., April 26 - Bar-B-Q dinner at 4:45
- RSVP Linda Baker or Stacy at 545-2152 or 549-4159

WEEKEND IN NYC 10 spaces left May 5-6 reduced rates $18 bus only, or $36 hotel and bus call Matt 546-5630

Collegian Staff Elections for Board of Editors will be Wednesday, April 25, from 9:00 to 8:00 all staff members (business, graphics, and newsroom!) eligible to vote

Collegian Staff candidates for editors' positions will have a debate Monday, April 23 at 7:00 in the Commwealth Room (next to Student Union Ballroom) all staff members should attend. Know what you're voting for.

JPT #5 Happy Birthday (a day late-- Monday was a holiday!!) ILYA LTWT4 #2

Problems with the University bureaucracy? call LSO 545-1995

Lost in Presidential Apartments - blue pocket-size bag. Keep the dope and a $15 reward, just give the pipe back - sentimental call 549-4778

Lise, what more can I say
....'it's been GREAT!"
♥Je T'aime, AZ

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

REWARD FOR STOLEN VEHICLE

1979 White Mercury Monarc with green landau roof taken from Lot 21N sometime Wednesday April 11 584-0242

RIDERS WANTED

Driver(s) to drive car to Milwaukee area. Some expenses paid call 367-2473 evenings

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

2 female roommates wanted to share 3 bedroom Puffton apartment call 549-5487

Responsible females to share room in sunny Southwood apt. summer/fall 253-5109

Two people wanted to share a room in a very comfortable duplex across the street from Southwest call Peter 549-6965 or Terry 549-8797

Large sunny room in Sunderland house. On bus stop. May 1, or sooner. $155 month. 665-7194 evenings

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1 with fall option call 549-0137

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite 253-5111

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Brittany Manor summer sublet with fall option call 253-7728 anytime

1 bedroom apt $295 includes everything summer sublet w/fall option 665-2338

Townehouse Apts 3 bedroom near campus on bus route + fair price 549-6797

Southwood Apts summer sublet will negotiate rent call Sherri 253-2268

TO ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN:

CHI OMEGA invites you to rush dinner! Come see an alternative to dorm living! Join the Greeks! Thursday April 19 5:15 call 545-0162 for rides or information. Ask for Kristin or Patty

TO SUBLET

For summer: Large bedroom in 4 bedroom house. 5 min walk to campus, large yard. best offer 549-1064

3 bedroom apt. Amherst June 1 - Aug 30 fall option 549-3818

Room available Brandywine Apts preferably female call 549-7837 with fall option

Puffton three bedroom apartment for summer June 1 - Sept 1 1984 swimming pool, air condition tennis courts rent negotiable call Jim 549-5909

Brittany Manor apt available June 1 call 256-8823

From June 1 with fall option two bedroom on Sunderland bus route 330/month call 665-8314

Summer Sublet/Fall option furnished bedroom in Squire Village you pay $130 for June and July August free call Karen 665-8312

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Someone to take over 1 bedroom apt in Brendywine call 549-0657

Looking for roommates?? 2 females looking to share Townehouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

WANTED TO RENT

Looking for one bedroom apt in Colonial Village for summer and fall 84 call John at 546-9382

Looking for house 3-5 bedrooms for next year call Bill 546-4050 or Rick 546-4122

Wanted 3 bedroom apt in Puffton summer sublet w/fall option call 546-9978

Easy to live with fun loving looking to share apartment. Prefer near campus call eves, Lisa 546-5517

Sports

Intramural lifeguard testing for on-campus employment this summer and/or fall will be on Tuesday May 1 or Wednesday May 2 at Boyden pool at 6 p.m. sharp. You must have current certificates in CPR, advanced lifesaving and standard first aid. Questions? Call Valerie Turtle at 545-0093

Gazelles slaughter Boston College

By ED CUNNINGHAM
Collegian Staff

Whoever composed the 1984 women's lacrosse schedule for the University of Massachusetts made a super date for April 17. The locals faced off against an inferior Boston College team yesterday and soundly trounced the Eagles by an 11-1 margin.

This victory is particularly important because it comes on the heels of two tough losses this past weekend to Harvard and Northwestern. The young corp needed to bounce back quickly and they did it with ease.

Susan Kosloski got the Gazelles out of the starting blocks with the first of her two tallies at the 22:45 mark.

Kosloski was followed on the scoring chart by Pam Moryl and Linda Haytayan with four goals each. Bunny Forbes had the prettiest goal for UMass on a great individual effort and a fine back hand bullet past the beleagured Eagle goalie Cathleen O'Brien.

Defensively, UMass had very little trouble with the impotent Eagle offense. The defense was supported in the midfield by freshmen Rebecca Bekampis and Christine Kocot who was playing only her fourth lacrosse game.

When the ball intermittently reached deep into the Gazelles' zone, Carol Progulske was there to pressure the ball and net-minder Debbie DeJesus was equal to the task.

After surging to a 7-1 lead in the first 25 minutes, the locals put it in neutral for the first ten minutes of the second stanza. The attack picked up again though, and UMass pushed across four more shots for the 11-1 final margin and a 2-2 record.

With the 'gimme' being recent history, the attention quickly turns to Thursday night and Dartmouth College. Last year's contest at NOPE ended in a 12-8 victory for the Gazelles over the Big Green.

"We still need time, but today we pulled together and made it work," stated UMass coach Polly Keener. "Dartmouth will be tough, they have some fast, tall kids."

UMass co-captain Linda Haytayan echoed Keener's assessment of their next opponent but also looked just one game beyond that. "Dartmouth is tall and they have good stickwork, but Penn State will be real tough. We beat them in double overtime last year and we were really up for that. They're going to be really up for us."

Now possessing a respectable .500 record, the laxwomen are only thinking in terms of wins in the hopes of hopping on a legitimate winning streak. B.C. was a much needed break but Dartmouth and Penn State will be the much needed tests for this young team.

Collegian photo by Brian Gonyo

Pam Moryl moves through the pack as the Gazelles crushed BC yesterday at NOPE.

It's no accident -Softball double winner over Springfield

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD—There was a car accident just before the University of Massachusetts-Springfield College softball game was to get underway yesterday, but it was no accident that the Minutewomen swept a doubleheader from the scrappy Chiefs.

A pickup truck ran a stop sign and nailed a car in the back across from the ball field. On the field, UMass took 3-2 and 8-3 triumphs.

Massachusetts, now 19-7 and riding a nine game winning streak, started off slow but once they got going, life was one big headache for Springfield.

Terri Schenk held UMass to just one hit through four innings in the opener before UMass exploded for three runs and four hits in the fifth inning.

"We started off a little on the laid-back side," head coach Elaine Sortino said. "But, we quickly took matters into our own hands and got into gear."

Catcher Beth Talbott, who had four hits in the two games, singled to left and was followed by Carol Frattarolli's single which was followed, two batters later, by Debbie Cole's single that plated Talbott.

Tina Coffin nailed a shot down the first base line scoring Frattarolli and Sally Maher singled up the middle, scoring Cole for the 3-0 lead.

Springfield hung tough and had runners on first and second in the sixth when Ann Marie Rodrique sent a deep shot to left scoring two. Rodrique could have scored but her coach held her up at third—a big break for UMass.

In the second game, UMass didn't waste anytime and jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the third inning, highlighted by Allyson Rioux's home run to center and Janet Miller's (four for four in the second game) double.

Among the extra-base wonders, Maher collected a triple, while Talbott and Lynn Pekarski also hit triples for the Minutewomen who led 8-1 going into the top of the seventh.

Then Krista Stanton replaced Cathy Reed, who pitched a very good game scattering four hits and giving up a run.

Stanton came in the top-of-the-seventh and got into some trouble with some wild pitches and passed balls with catcher Ann King, who replaced Talbott. Here, the Chiefs eked out two but it made no difference in the long run.

"We played fundamentally good softball," Sortino said. "We seized the opportunities we had to score. Cathy Reed threw a very fine game."

And it was no accident that UMass won.

Baseball starts big homestand

The University of Masschusetts baseball team will open up an important seven-game homestand today, when they take on the University of New Hampshire for a double-header at Lorden Field, at 1 p.m.

The Minutemen, now 9-17 on the year, will be facing a pretty tough Wildcat ballclub according to UMass coach Dick Bergquist. The 7-4 Wildcats are paced by hard-hitting third baseman Bill Peach and catcher Bob Conner. Bergquist believes both should play a key role in today's games.

Since the Minutemen face three big Atlantic 10 games with the Rhode Island Rams this weekend, a Friday doubleheader and a single game Saturday, Bergquist plans to use a variety of his pitchers against New Hampshire today.

"We'll shuttle our pitchers around for UNH, with each going for about an inning or two for one of the games. Steve Allard will pitch the other," said Bergquist.

Allard, a freshman, is 0-2 on the year but has only had eight innings of work over the season, with most of that coming during the New Mexico Tourney that opened the season.

Following today's games with New Hampshire, the Minutemen will host Rhode Island this weekend and Fairfield University next Monday.

-BOB BROCK

Lax hosts Hofstra

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The 13th ranked University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse open up a four-game homestand today as they do battle with the 14th ranked Flying Dutchmen of Hofstra University on Boyden Hill beginning at 3 p.m.

"Hofstra has more athletes playing lacrosse than we do, and they always come out and surprise us by running right past us. They are probably a lot bigger than we are, and are strong and physical too," said Coach Dick Garber.

In last year's contest played in Hempstead, Long Island, Hofstra jumped out to an 8-2 halftime lead, but the laxmen made a furious comeback which fell short by a 10-8 count.

"We've always had really tough games with them. Most of them are usually one or two goal games," added Garber.

Hofstra is led by sophomore midfielder and co-captain Dave McCollach. He is a good shooter who goes up top from the right side, and who also goes anywhere from behind the net. He is a good player, but as assistant coach Peter Schmitz noted, "If we shut him down, we shut down a lot of their offense."

Other Dutchmen to look for include Tim Goldstein, who likes to go behind the net and is dangerous. He can play attack as well as midfield. Anthony Perettine is a fast midfielder who will take the shot or run straight to the cage and can handle the ball with his left hand as well.

The Dutchmen can be a scrappy team and is called hungry on ground balls, where they beat Maryland 5-1 to them in their earlier victory this season. Their goaltender Bill Els is a very big guy and can be a factor.

Garber's Gorillas are no slouches either. They are led on attack by Tom Lukacavic who has 10 goals along with one assist. Fred "Bubba" Sandford is the major playmaker who has contributed six goals along with seven assists to lead the team with 13 points.

Mike Fiorini has been consistent on attack and has come up with three goals and eight assists thus far. Greg Fisk, last year's leading scorer with 34 points, has four goals and four assists for eight points.

Karl Hatton, who has been hitting everyone in sight, has also collected five goals along the way, and Peter Martino also has five points.

A confident Rick Zoerner, a defensive midfielder said, "Our passing and shooting was on against BC. The defense will close them down and shut them off."

Carleo highlights UMass relays

By M.E. MURRAY
Collegian Staff

Hundreds of athletes participated in the UMass relays Saturday and many fine performances were turned in despite grey skies and intermittent downpours which put a damper on the day.

With wet and windy conditions similar to those faced by runners in Monday's Boston Marathon, many of the individual efforts were outstanding.

In the highlight of a day filled with exceptional showings by University of Massachusetts tracksters, UMass' Tom Carleo was the upset winner in an exceptional field running the Invitational 1500 meters.

It was an exciting race which came down to a sprint in the last 100 meters as the top four finished within one second of one another.

Carleo's time of 3:49 was a personal best, as the talented sophomore appeared in top form. "The circumstances were just right for Tom," said UMass Coach Ken O'Brien. "It was a perfect pace for him, he was on his home-track, and he ran a smart race. We're hoping this big success is an indication of more to come."

Also in top form was UMass' Cindy Krupa who set her own personal best in the javelin with a heave of 135 feet 7 inches, good enough for first-place as her closest competitor was more than two feet shy.

Kayla Morrison scored well in a number of events as she took top honors in the 100 meters (12.2), second in the 200 meters (25.5), and anchored the four by 100 meter relay team of Barbara Cullinan, Sue Goldstein, and Leah Loftis which finished first (50.2).

That same relay team, with Deb Smith replacing Morrison, also swept first-place in the four by 400 meters with a time of 4:02.6.

The Minutewomen fared well also in the longer distances as Chris Pratt set a personal best time of 17:35 in the 5,000 meters and finished second, just back of the leader. Teammate Deidre Doyle was fifth.

In the men's 800 meters, John Keelan tied for third (1:54) and Ted White finished fourth. Ferde Adaboe leapt to second-place in the triple-jump (45 feet 2 inches) and fellow Minuteman Darrin Whittaker was fourth.

Maureen O'Reilly's time of 4:56.9 in the 1500 meter earned her third-place. The UMass women's four by 800 relay team finished second in 9:40.3.

All in all, a successful meet for the host-school and a satisfying, if wet, day for all the competitors. Both men and women squads will head for the hill Saturday, Chestnut Hill, site of the Boston College Relays.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 56 © UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, April 19, 1984

We lose: Regents pass tuition hike

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff
and The Associated Press

BOSTON--The Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education approved a controversial 15 percent tuition hike for University of Massachusetts students yesterday.

The regents, by a 10-4 margin, passed the plan despite appeals students and the chairmen of the Legislature's joint committee on education to delay the vote a month. The hike will increase tuition revenues by $13 million by raising costs $167 for in-state undergraduate students. Out-of-state and graduate students will pay proportionally higher increases.

Several Capitol police officers attended the regents meeting to guard against any student demonstrations. Three student leaders spoke calmly against the increase saying many of their friends will have to drop out of school due to the higher costs. No problems occurred.

In Amherst, Arthur Jackson, UMass' financial aid director said he felt that administrators and students "didn't have enough input when the tuition plan was formulated."

"I wish that the regents had waited a month to carefully review the plan," Jackson said. "The mounting problem of unmet financial need for students here at UMass will not go away and tuition increases do not help."

Verbal fireworks were ignited at the regent's meeting when Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' top education advisor told the regents that Dukakis was "unequivocably opposed" to the way the increases were enacted and wanted the vote postponed a month.

The testimony by Gerard Indelicato angered Higher Education chancellor John B. Duff, who accused him of changing his view at the last moment as public opposition to the increases mounted.

"Last week you had no problem with the tuition policy or increases," Duff said, his voice rising. He then read Indelicato's testimony before legislative committees which seemed to support some form of tuition increase.

Dukakis has included about $15 million in tuition hikes in his fiscal 1985 budget and the regents need to supply the money, Duff said.

The vote yesterday sets into motion a new tuition policy designed to have Massachusetts public college and university students pay up to 33 percent of the cost of their education.

Students currently pay between 24.4 percent and 32.4 percent with the plan slated to end the inequalities and supply additional money to the state's educational system.

Under the plan no single-year tuition increase could exceed 15 percent.

Worcester senator Gerard D'Amico and Amherst representative James Collins, Democrats, said that they would immediately file bills to "modify" the increases.

"The legislature has to do something or we are in for the increases," said UMass student Fran Pheeney, the chair of the Student Government Association's public policy committee.

"Students have to make the legislature know they oppose the hikes, they're unreasonable, they'll hurt poorer students and they weren't carefully planned," Pheeney said.

Collegian photo by David P. Deubes

GIMME FIVE — UMass Lacrosse players Michael Fiorini, left, and Tim Cutler, right, give each other a High Five in celebration after a UMass goal late in the second period yesterday at Boyden Field. UMass won 12-5 over Hofstra. (see p. 16).

Cheap Trick tops Southwest concert

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Southwest Area Government announced that it will cap their 10th annual Southwest Festival with rock artists Cheap Trick, Clarence Clemons and the Stompers.

In addition, this year's festival will be dedicated to the first against world hunger, said SWAG co-president David McCarthy.

"Events like this create their own momentum and we hope that the forces we set in motion will stir others to action," McCarthy said.

The festival will begin on Monday with a debate between two members of President Reagan's Hunger Task Force, Betsy Rollins and Dr. Kenneth Clarkson, and two members of the Citizen's Commission Hunger in New England, J. Larry Brown and Lewis Feldstein.

The debate will be held at 8 p.m., Monday in Thompson 104.

Throughout the week, there will be live bands on the Southwest pyramids during the afternoon, a barbecue stand, fundraising and symposiums.

In conjunction with the activities, the UMass Recycling Project will redeem four cents for beverage cans, donating the remaining penny from each redemption to Oxfam America.

There will also be a performance of the musical "Grease" on Tuesday, a Las Vegas night Wednesday, an International Dance Thursday, a Block Party Friday and the Southwest Concert on Sunday.

SWAG co-president Michael Bean said, "Without support from the business community, the administration, and campus organizations, an undertaking of this sort wouldn't be possible."

Altogether, SWAG raised $34,000 from the festival from their own funds the Student Government Association, administrative and business sources, the UMass Arts Council, and the Hampden Board of Governors also contributed.

UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey has said that the administration "encourages this effort and is currently working with students in the planning of specific events."

McCarthy also said the Sunday concert "was made possible, in part, by a grant from the Undergraduate Student Senate. During the concert, the Western Mass. Food Bank will be soliciting contributions and we'd like to remind people that coolers, kegs, and beer balls are prohibited on the Southwest Fields."

No refund for arson plagued Crampton dorm

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

The vice chancellor for student affairs at the University of Massachusetts has rejected a student petition seeking a partial rebate of housing fees for residents of a dormitory plagued by arson last year.

The petition, drawn up by 150 of the 170 residents living in the all-women Crampton House last fall, charges the University with negligence in providing adequate security during the 16 fire arson crises in the dormitory last semester. It seeks full rebate of the semester's $621 rent fee, an amount reduced to $71 during a residential system appeals committee hearing whose discussion is confidential, said Ann Koski, committee chairperson.

The document was forwarded to Vice Chancellor Dennis L. Madson for approval but was overruled Tuesday.

Madson "did not find the rationale forwarded by the appeals committee convincing and declined to give them a refund based on that," said Sarah Boy, a special assistant to the vice chancellor. Madson is out of town until Friday.

"I am very angry--this is a great injustice to the women of Crampton," Sue Reiche, one of 51 students who have moved out of Crampton, said of Madson's decision. She said the petition will now be brought before Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, whose approval is not part of the ordinary appeals process. Duffey could not be reached for comment.

The petition, charging the administration with violations of the residence hall contract, states in part that "the University was negligent because it believed the situation was dangerous enough to summon the help of the district attorney but not dangerous enough to implement 24-hour security to protect our physical and mental health until late November. It also charges physical, mental and academic hardships incurred during late night fire evacuations, police and media interrogations.

Four arrests were made in connection with last semester's series of small fires, three of which were settled in court. A Crampton resident assistant charged with setting the only fire to occur in a student's room had all charges dropped against her, and attorney Charles DiMare of the UMass Legal Services Office is now preparing four lawsuits against University officials and investigators.

The suits, which will charge rights violations in the arrest and investigation of the students, should be filed by the end of the semester, DiMare said.

INSIDE:

U.S. Senators' helicopter shot down..... p. 2

Senate passes resolution to request removal of 'pornographic material' from University Store p. 3

Coolidge hit by three break-ins..... p. 5

A Summer in Beirut..... p. 7

UMass lacrosse team wins 12-5..... p. 16

"You can no more win a war than you can win an earthquake."
— Jeannette Rankin

Jeannette Rankin: First Lady in Congress

World and National News

British surround Libyan Embassy

LONDON (AP) — Police sharpshooters ringed the Libyan Embassy yesterday and British officials negotiated with its occupants a day after a burst of submachine gun fire from the mission killed a policeofficer and wounded 11 demonstrators.

Britain said Libyan authorities lifted a retaliatory siege of the British mission in Tripoli.

A Foreign Office spokesman said British Ambassador to Libya, Oliver Miles, and 24 other Britons were permitted to leave yesterday afternoon and "some did so." The Britons have been trapped in their embassy for more than 24 hours.

"We welcome this," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified. Further information was not immediately available.

British police released without charge four Libyans detained after a gunman Tuesday fired from an upstairs embassy window on exiles demonstrating against Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy.

Five senior Cabinet ministers, members of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's "crisis committee," met for 90 minutes to plot strategy; official sources said later that "the waiting game" would continue.

AP Laserphoto

CONSTRUCTION SUSPENDED — Public Service Co. of New Hampshire, announced yesterday that it would temporarily halt work on Unit I of the Seabrook nuclear power plant.

Helicopter, senators downed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Army helicopter carrying two U.S. senators was hit by gunfire in Honduras near the border with El Salvador on yesterday and forced down, but all seven people aboard were unharmed, according to aides to one of the senators and State Department officials.

"The senator...was in a helicopter that was shot down," said Charles Canady, an aide to Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla. The other senator aboard the aircraft was J. Bennett Johnston, D-La.

Chiles called his wife late yesterday afternoon and reported he and Johnston had been on a helicopter that was fired upon and forced down, according to Dennis Beal, an aide to the Florida senator. But Chiles said he and Johnston escaped injury and were airlifted from the scene to the Honduran capital of Tegucigalpa, according to Beal.

U.S. seeks chemical warfare ban

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)- The United States yesterday proposed a new treaty banning chemical weapons and Vice President George Bush told the Geneva Disarmament Conference it would eliminate "the possibility of chemical warfare forever."

In an address to the 40-nation conference, Bush said the 66-page draft provisions are "indispensable to an effective treaty" and urged the Soviet Union and other countries to adopt "open invitation" provisions allowing on-site inspections of chemical weapons facilities any time, anywhere.

"The goal of our proposal is a treaty to require states to declare the sizes and locations of their chemical weapons stocks and production facilities, to destroy the stocks and facilities and to forswear creating new chemical weapons," the vice president said.

In the first direct response to the full U.S. proposal, Victor Issraelyan, the chief Soviet delegate, said it would be studied "like any other paper," but then seemed to link it to the U.S.-Soviet negotiations on medium and long-range missiles that collapsed here last year.

"Disarmament is hardly probable without control, and likewise, there cannot be control without disarmament," Issraelya told the conference. On Tuesday, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko seemed to reject the chemical proposal as a cover for building up U.S. chemical arms.

Although Bush called the treaty a "bold example for overcoming barriers," some Western diplomats said it was not likely to bring a rapid conclusion to negotiations on the issue, which has kept the conference at an impasse for 15 years.

Bush acknowledged that provisions of the treaty, including mandatory inspection of production and storage sites on 24-hour notice, were unprecedented in their stringency, and were "not easily digestible for any society, including my own."

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Cris Schuster
Copy Editor — Ken Bazinet
Layout Technician — Paul Basken
Photo Technician — David P. Deuber
Production Supervisor — Peter Soderberg
Production — John Wielgus, Lynn Eisenberg, Joy McCarty, Martha Connors, Beth Bazinet, Jim Rice, Marianne Walsh, Catherine Hall, Tim Riviere, Karen Darr, Amy Keefe, Shauneen Vail

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

closed
See you next week!
THE WEEKENDER
Due to long weekend!

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95 6 Cyl $39.95 8 Cyl $44.95
We'll install new resistor spark plugs, points & condenser, adjust idle speed, set timing, test battery and charging system, inspect distributor cap, PVC valve, ignition cables, air filter and vapor canister filter. Includes Emission Test and Printout.
Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99
Includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

CAR STEREOS • ALARMS
SUNROOFS
Sales and Installation
Call us BEFORE you buy.
SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main St., Amherst 253-9341

Student Art Show Competition
Dates
April 31 - May 2
Campus Center
Music Room
Awards -
Selection Committee
For more info call 545-0198
* Art Expo is sponsored by UMass Arts Council, Campus Center Administration and the Board of Governors.

COPIES
OPEN 8AM TIL MIDNIGHT MONDAY THRU FRIDAY
SATURDAY 9-5 SUNDAY 11-5
COLLECTIVE COPIES 256-6425
25 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
HOT ACOUSTICS
Gary Bertz & Alyce's Violin
THURS.

Photo by Paul Desmarais

ROCKIN' AND ROLLIN' — Leslie Marcucella, a junior psychology major practices her skating near the Fine Arts Center.

Student senate urges banning of 'degrading' pornographic magazines

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate passed a resolution last night requesting that the University Store stop selling sexually "degrading and demeaning" material.

The resolution was aimed primarily at getting Playboy, Penthouse, and Playgirl magazines off the University Store's shelves, said members of the five college Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography who spoke in favor of its passage.

Committee member David Martin said it was wrong to think that these publications did not promote violent and exploitative sexuality simply because their content was mild compared to "hardcore" porn magazines.

"They have the same message as hardcore material, just with slicker packaging," he said.

The committee showed the senate slides which included a Penthouse photo of a near-naked woman bound and gagged in the trunk of a car and a Playboy cartoon in which a woman who has been raped gasps "encore" to her fleeing assailant.

Deborah Murphy, who narrated the slide show, also read from a recent Collegian column she wrote, drawing parallels between magazines' references to women as "less than human...foxes, pets, beavers, pussies, pieces" and the frequency of violence against women.

Martin said pornography promotes self-destructive tendencies in men as well. It provides an excuse for us not to relate to women as people, to objectify ourselves... we are to be a playboy, a hustler, a stud, and nothing more."

Some senators advocated holding a referendum asking students whether the University Store should continue selling the magazines. "It's too important an issue for (just) the senate to decide," said Senator Dave McCarthy.

"The senate should set an example, not wait around for someone else to join in," Senator Joel Weissman responded.

As proposal to change the wording of the resolution was also debated for over an hour. Senator Laura Bozzi expressed anger at "all this bullshit (which amounts to) trying to put it off. The issue is pornography- one which needs to be addressed."

"This motion is too weak, in fact. We should organize a boycott of those materials," Weissman added.

Ad Hoc Committee member Kathleen Engel said the resolution was only a first step toward eradicating pornography on campus, but she predicted that "this vote tonight will mean that the managers of the University Store will get rid of the magazines."

John Kuusisto, assistant manager of the store, said in a telephone interview that he did not know whether the magazines would be removed.

"I'd have to review the proposal with the manager," he said.

Family planning services in jeopardy

By TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts as well as out-of-state residents must work to keep family planning programs legal in the state and throughout the country, according to the director of Family Planning Council for Western Massachusetts.

Leslie Laurie, former president of the National Planning and Reproductive Health Association said, "If people care about family planning services, they must get involved. It does make a difference." Last night at Amherst College Laurie spoke about "The Politics of Family Planning". "This is an especially important time to think about family planning," she said.

By May 30th the United States Congress will decide if the National Family Planning Legislation is still worthy of receiving federal money.

About $130 million is spent annually in the U.S. on family planning services serving 4.5 million women. There are more than 800,000 unintended pregnancies annually in the U.S., Laurie said, and with more than 1.2 million teenage pregnancies. Of these, more than 400 teenagers have abortions and more than 500 carry babies to the full term.

"We (at the Family Planning Council) have always had a pretty progressive view as to who should use the service — and that is anyone who wants it," Laurie said. Family Planning Legislation must not be restricted or deemed a "non-discretionary program," one in which the state, not the federal government determines the allocation of family planning funds, she said.

"I think it's important for people to know how affected we are by the individuals who are in power," Laurie said. Ronald Reagan is trying to make it mandatory for women under 18 to notify their parents should they use family planning services. He is also trying to prohibit the distribution of federal family planning funds to hospitals and clinics that provide abortions.

"This seems pretty ridiculous. If this went through we would not have a family planning clinic at Cooley Dickenson Hospital," Laurie said.

U.S. foreign policy should focus on non-intervention

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

President Carter's chief arms negotiator, speaking last night at Amherst College on intervention and isolationism, said the United States should focus on "when and how we should intervene" in foreign wars rather than if it should at all.

Paul Warnke, who is presenting a limited series of lectures on arms control at Amherst College, said the United States has historically had to choose between positions of intervention in foreign conflicts and positions of abstaining completely from participation, which he called isolationism.

The lecture, the second in a short series at Amherst College, took place in the Converse Assembly Hall with an audience of more than 65 people.

Warnke said that like most campaigns, the current US presidential campaign hasn't focused on foreign policy issues, and this is a "fundamental" flaw in the electoral process, since it curbs public interest in foreign policy from the outset of a presidency.

Warnke said that nuclear arms is "the most compelling issue" this year. The main issue, however, is the growing attitude among leaders that the U.S. must be "the world's policemen."

"The choices are not only between 'Pax Americana' (the doctrine of US police role) and isolationism," he said.

He said U.S. foreign policy should focus on the legitimacy of intervention, rather than look at any intervention as absolutely necessary. "We have to live with diversity" in foreign policy, something which the Reagan administration is not doing, he said.

"Many of our political representatives are concerned with the covert action" in Central America and elsewhere. Asking the audience how a publicly debated military action can be called "covert," Warnke called recent US intervention "a Keystone Cops kind of covert action."

"Our interests would be much better served by a policy of non-intervention," he said. He supported this statement by noting that El Salvador "is not vital to our interests," nor is it a threat to the U.S.' borders. "The US' position is not so unstable as to worry about every problem everywhere," he said.

"No serious presidential aspirant would support isolationism," Warnke said. "The real issue is when and how we should intervene" in countries where insurgencies are in progress.

"The Soviet Union is not going to disappear," and that the US' primary responsibility as North Atlantic Treaty Organization members is to keep East-West dialogue going," he said.

"We have to fear Soviet military force, but we don't have to fear Soviet ideas," Warnke concluded. He said there is a "need for more diversity in President Reagan's foreign policy."

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Peter Quigley, 22, a senior from Taunton (left), and Robert Dermody, 21, a junior from Needham test out the Minnow.

Concrete canoe is launched on pond

By SANDRA KONOPKA
Collegian Staff

It may have taken five attempts to break the champagne bottle to christen the University of Massachusetts Minnow, but the 2000 pound concrete canoe was successfully launched yesterday on the Campus Pond.

The canoe was built and designed by eight members of the Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers and was finished at 8:30 Tuesday night in preparation for its launch yesterday. The canoe will be competing against 15 other student designed canoes this Saturday at Seneca State Park in Maryland.

Members of the society had a difficult time getting the funding and finding a place to build the canoe, but after a month of planning and another month of building, the UMass Minnow is ready to race.

"We should win at least one race," said Michail Chajes, president of the Student Chapter. "It floats even when it's filled with water."

The 17 foot long canoe is built out of a concrete mixture, wire mesh and styrofoam. Dan Debellis, creator of the Collegian comic-strip Scrod, adorned it with his cartoon character. The canoe has no seats and is paddled from a kneeling position.

The cost of the canoe was approximately $1000 with $400 donated by the Western Branch of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. The Alumni Association donated $500 and the Student Chapter raised $100, Chajes said.

The society has built canoes almost annually for the last 10 years with advice of Professor Denton Harris, assistant professor of civil engineering.

"Students receive no credits for this, but we provide plenty of encouragement, and help them find a place to build," engineering staff assistant Irene Clarke said.

"Because students carry such a heavy load they don't have much time to participate in extra-curricular activities, and this is about the only one," Clarke said. "The students deserve all the credit."

Clarke participated by breaking the traditional bottle of champagne over the canoe's bow when it was launched.

The members of the chapter only had an old report to go by when building the canoe, said Peter Quigley, one of the builders. The canoe is a lot heavier than its been in the past years, but it meets the requirements of the race. The canoe must float even when filled with water to be in the race, Quigley said.

"Everyone thinks concrete doesn't float, but if they were at the Campus Pond today they saw differently," Quigley said.

"We just finished last night after a lot of trial and error, and we can't wait to race it," he said.

The Student Chapter will be racing in flat water this year, rather than white water rafting. According to Professor Harris, the chapter will need "some strong paddlers."

Come to Air Force ROTC's OPEN HOUSE

Speak with officers and cadets about Air Force career and financial aid opportunities

Thursday, April 19th, 4 pm

Dickinson Hall, top floor, Room 206 literature and refreshments provided

COMPUTER ACCESS CENTER INC.

Terminal Time

Word Processing Time

Unlimited Use $20.

until May 30th — by reservation only

* Access to UMass Cyber
* Complete word processing systems available

CALL NOW 256-1213

79 South Pleasant Street

(in left rear of Peter Pan terminal bldg.)

Mon-Thurs 9 am to 10 pm

Fri-Sat 9 am to 6 pm; Sunday 10 am to 6 pm

Attention Students

Campus Center/Student Union Board of Governors

is accepting applications for the following coordinator positions:

Governors Program Council
University Store Retail Services
Food Services
Space Economic Development
Finance
Special Projects
Public Relations
Conference Services/Accomodations
Display
Building Operations
Vendor Certification

Jobs begin Sept. 1984

Applications available in Campus Center 817

Deadline: Monday, April 23, 1984

Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

Feel Expensive!! Look Great!!

Expensive in every way, except PRICE!!

Hair styling for today's men & women at reasonable price;

$7.50 for a style

Marjon Hair Design

Rt. 9

Mountain Farms Mall

Hadley, MA 586-4551

Hours: Sat 10-4

Tues thru Fri 10-6

LIFE AFTER LIBERAL ARTS

Don't Face Underemployment Because You Lack the Attitude and Aggressive Job-Hunt Skills Needed to Find the Jobs and Be the Best Candidate.

NATIONAL CAREER EXPERTS:

- RICHARD NELSON BOLLES - author of What Color is Your Parachute?
- KIRBY STANAT - author of Job Hunting Secrets and Tactics
- plus others...

- APPLY LIBERAL ARTS SKILLS TO THE JOB-HUNT
- HOW TO FIND THE 85% OF ALL JOBS THAT GO UNADVERTISED
- WRITE A RESUME TO GET NOTICED
- WHAT TO EXPECT AND HOW TO PREPARE FOR INTERVIEWS

Careers Without Reschooling. 4 one hour cassettes, is your personal job hunt seminar. The first three cassettes teach you all the skills and the fourth cassette is two informational interviews with liberal arts grads successfully working in exciting professional careers.

Liberal arts grads discuss how they got their jobs, what their careers are like, and how you may find a similar job.

#1. Editor & Copywriter
#2. Ad Agency Exec & P.R. Specialist
#3. Small Business Owner & Retail Management
#4. Stockbroker & Life Insurance Sales
#5. Fundraiser & Non-Profit Agency Management
#6. Real Estate & T.V. - Radio Production
#7. Counselor & Law Enforcement

YOU SELECT WHICH CASSETTE WILL BE IN YOUR SET.

All this for only $27.95!

Far less than what you may sacrifice in job-satisfaction and salary if you're underemployed.

CALL NOW! SAVE THIS AD!

1-800-356-5324 ext 1308

Master Card and VISA accepted

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR FULL REFUND!

ArGee Productions 905 University Ave., Madison, WI 53715 (608) 255-8480

BLUE WALL

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

Mon.-Fri.

Happy Hours

3-6

DRAFT PRICES YOU CAN AFFORD

2 for 1 MIXED DRINKS

This Friday, Happy Hour with

CLIFF MYERS

Mohawk Indians to speak

By JULIA MAYCOCK
Collegian Staff

Representatives from the Mohawk community of Kahnawake will be speaking tonight in two open forums at the University of Massachusetts on issues of education, ecology and cultural survival.

The first forum will be held from 2:30 to 3:45 in Herter 231. In the second event the Mohawks will address hydroelectric power and its impact on the environment at 8 p.m. also in Herter 231.

The Kahnawake community is located outside of Montreal, just across the United States-Canadian border where the St. Lawrence Seaway divides the two countries.

When the Seaway was constructed, the Canadian government took Mohawk land. "There was substantial resource and property loss. It (the Seaway) changed the environment, bringing about pollution and erosion. And people were relocated against their will," said Education Professor Emma Cappelluzzo, a sponsor of the events.

Cappelluzzo said the Kahnawake community is concerned about losing their land because of a contract between the Northeastern states and the government of Quebec to buy hydroelectric power.

"In the process there is always the threat of the land being taken away and misuse of Indian resources," Cappelluzzo said.

Members of the Mohawk community including parents, school committee members, high school students, members of the cultural center, teachers from the Survival School and community elders will participate in the forum.

Photo by Larry Cabana

NEXT! — This canine waits his turn as Bailey, left, and Jon Montgomery sell hot dogs yesterday near the Student Union Building.

Contemporary poetry explored

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts professor and author will be speaking on contemporary poetry 8 p.m. today in the Campus Center Auditorium, as part of the Chancellor's lecture series.

Paul Mariani will be speaking on the problems of modern American poetry in a lecture titled "Summoning the Dead: Politics and the Sublime in Contemporary Poetry."

"I find a lack of seriousness in American poetry. Poets must deal with more serious issues that confront us in American society," Mariani said. These issues he said include the boom and oppression of minorities. In his lecture, Mariani will discuss poets like Dante, Homer and T.S. Elliot. He will also refer to Seamus Heamey, and Derek Willeot as examples of what he feels poets should deal with, he said.

Mariani teaches American 20th Century Literature and American Poetry and Politics at UMass. He has also published two books of poems, Timing Devices: Poems and Crossing Cocytus. Mariani also has another book coming out in the spring of 1985 called Prime Mover. He has written three books on poetry including Commentary of the Complete Poems of Gerard Manley Hopkins, William Carlos Williams: a New World Naked, and The Poet and his Criticism. UMass Publishing House will print A Useable Past, a collection of his own essays in the future. Mariani has also published 40 essays on contemporary poetry.

In other poetry news, poet Robert Francis was this year's recipient of the annual Fellowship Award of the Academy of American Poets. The $10,000 award is given for poetic achievement.

Coolidge breaks logged

University of Massachusetts police received a report around 9 a.m. Wednesday that a woman's room on the 21st floor of Coolidge dormitory was entered while she was in the shower. According to police, a man took the woman's bathrobe and over $600 worth of items.

On the 10th floor of Coolidge, a woman returning from the shower at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday was surprised by a different male who "exploded" from her closet, police said. According to police, the woman's roo mate was still asleep and nothing was stolen.

At 5:40 p.m. Wednesday police received a report that a woman on the 22nd floor of Coolidge left her room unlocked and later discovered her bookbag missing. Items worth $115 were taken police said.

-TOM MIDDLETON

HOUSING

Christian Housing, Chi Rho

welcomes applications from single grads and undergrads, including freshmen and sophomores.

Contact the First Baptist Church for more information about this Christian Ministry House.

Call 549-3596 or 586-4352.

LAST CHANCE!

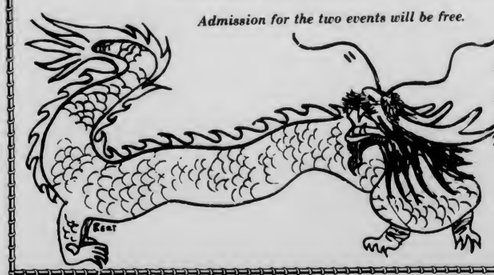
For Summer and Fall, 1984 Internships.

Planning Sessions End

Wednesday, April 25, 1984

Contact:

Office of Internships



16 Curry Hicks

545-0727

Join us in celebrating the Asian American Student Association's 10th Anniversary at our "Asian Talent Night"

There will be a party immediately following the show.

Admission for the two events will be free.

Date: April 20th, 1984

Place: Campus Center Auditorium

Time: Show 7:00-9:00 pm
Party - 9:30 pm-1:00am

Dress: Semi-Formal (no jeans & sneakers)

TONIGHT

Hear the new music of

Rack-A-Disc

Requests Welcome

Two For One 9 til 11

- All Liquor Drinks -

No Cover

THE PUB

15 East Pleasant St.

AMHERST

RT. 47 SUNDERLAND

You must be 18 to enter

Open 'til 2

665-4937

24 Hour Taped Message

The rusty nail Inc. PROUDLY PRESENTS

Tonight
THE RADIATORS
1960's Rock & Roll

Bring any size mug, we'll fill it for 25¢ 'till the kegs run out.

Tickets on sale Wednesdays in the Campus Center

Friday
THE STOMPERS
$6.50 cover

Saturday
TALKING DRUMS
$6.00 cover

The best has a taste all its own.

A taste that's not easy to find. It's something you have to strive for. In everything you do. And when you've done it, when you've found the best in yourself, taste it in the beer you drink. Ask for Bud Light.®

Bring out your best,™ Minutemen.

INDRANI & SUKANYA

"One of the most brilliant and joyful presentations of Indian Classical Dance"
Anna Kisselgoff, The New York Times

The Graduate School and The Graduate Student Senate invite you to attend the Graduate Forum, featuring Classical Dances of India.

Monday April 23, 1984
7:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium
Free Admission

Cheese and wine reception following the recital.

The Graduate Forum is an effort by the graduate student community to develop a better climate for intellectual and social exchange.

IDB TIPS

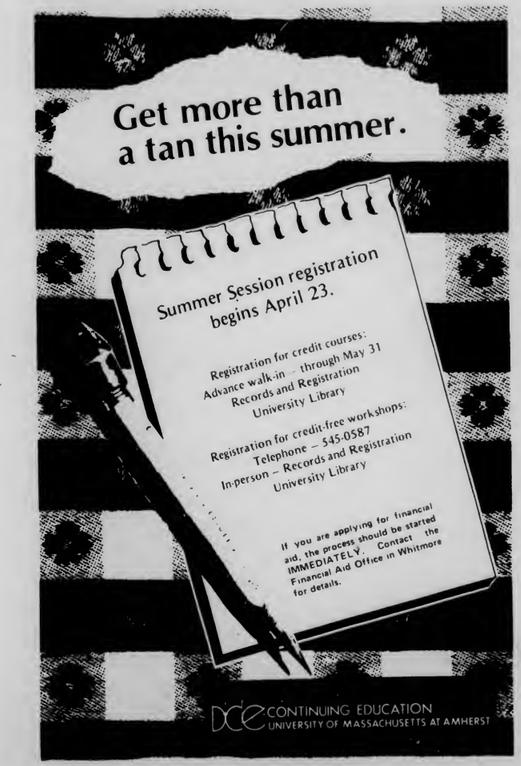
PAID POSITION AVAILABLE

Office of the Dean of Students

Coordinator, Information Data Bank (IDB) and Taped Information Phone Service (TIPS)

AVAILABLE	Individual must be available part-time in May (10-20 hours), full-time mid-July and August (37½ hours), and during the subsequent semesters 20-25 hours. Full-time option possible June to mid-July.
ELIGIBILITY	Undergraduate or graduate student with at least three semesters remaining at the beginning of the Fall Semester 1984.
QUALIFICATIONS	Demonstrated organizational and supervisory skills, some communications background. Creative writing experience desirable.
PAY SCALE	Hourly rate, beginning at minimum of $4.00, based on experience.
DEADLINE	April 30, 1984. Applications available at 227 Whitmore (Dean of Students Office).

The Coordinator is responsible for maintaining and updating the IDB and TIPS "library"; rewriting scripts and editing tapes, promoting/marketing IDB/TIPS; expanding resources; coordinating schedules and assignments of student staff (10); arranging and monitoring production schedules for Student Telephone Directory and Registration Update; and related assignments.



IDB is a telephone and walk-in referral service which maintains information on a variety of University-related policies, procedures, and details about how various agencies function; provides schedule information (e.g., library hours, buses, athletics, extra-curricular events, etc.), and hundreds of other items of interest to students and other members of the University community.

TIPS is a library of 300+ cassettes with information about the University (academic policies, financial aid, health facts, consumer information, etc.).

The combined number of inquiries to IDB and TIPS in an academic year exceeds 6,000.

For additional information, contact Hannah Hosom or Robert Brooks, Dean of Students Office, 227 Whitmore or call 545-2684.

a service of the Dean of Students Office

Butterfield Information Session

Any student interested in living in Butterfield for the fall 1984 semester should plan on attending an information session. This information session will be be scheduled as follows:

MONDAY, APRIL 23, 1984

7:30 p.m.

BUTTERFIELD MAIN LOUNGE

Those attending the information session will be given Butterfield House Contracts and Butterfield House Housing Preference Forms to sign. Questions: Call the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore Administration Building, 545-2100. Thank you.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Soviet ambition presents threat

Soviet ambitions present the United States with a strategic challenge of global proportion which require a new strategic consciousness and response. The basic rule of Soviet behavior was laid down years ago by Lenin: "probe with bayonets, if you encounter steel withdraw, if you encounter mush continue." The question the people of the free world must ask themselves, especially in the United States is, which shall they encounter, steel or mush?

Since World War Two, the Soviet military buildup has been continuous, and the Soviet expansionist pressure has been relentless. Afganistan, South Yemen, Mozambique, Laos, Cambodia, Ethiopia and South Vietnam have all been brought under Soviet domination since 1974; a population of almost 100 million people in the last decade. The fate of the oil fields of the once pro-Western country of Iran is best described by Soviet foreign minister

Matthew Levin

Vyacheslov M. Molotov: "the area south of Batum and Baku in the general direction of the Persian Gulf is the center of the aspirations of the Soviet Union." In Africa and Latin America, Cuba increasingly acts as an agent of wideranging Soviet ambitions. Several countries like Poland are held against their will under Soviet control, with the West idly standing by. One thing is certain, the Soviets have been encountering not enough steel.

No people has ever freely chosen to live under communism. No nation remains under communistic rule except through force. No system of government has been more successful at extending it's domination over other nations and less successful at winning the approval of the people of those nations. America has friends and allies; the Soviet Union has satellites and puppet governments. We Americans fought long and hard for our freedom and, on occasion, had to defend this freedom, both for us and our friends.

Lately, because of much opposition at home, we are not meeting enough of these demands. Because many people like to hop on a "political bandwagon" that so-called political leaders or intellectuals support, much of the country is deceived. The people as a whole often lack sophistication, but they usually have a good gut common sense. But too many of America's intellectual and cultural elite have shown themselves to be brilliant, creative, trendy, gullible, smug and blind in one eye: they tend to see bad only on the right, not on the left. Extremely sophisticated about ideas in the abstract they can be extremely simplistic and naive about the realities of the actual global conflict we find ourselves engaged in.

Perhaps Richard Nixon sums it up best: "Lenin was fully aware of how helpful naive Westerners could be to the communist cause. He contemptuously called them, "The useful idiots". More out of ignorance than by design, the useful idiots earnestly plug ridiculously simplistic answers to our most complex problems. They are the sloganeers whose idea of thoughtful analysis is often limited to what will fit on a t-shirt or a bumper sticker. "Make love not war." "You can't hug your child with nuclear arms." "Honk if you want peace." Most of this fatuous nonsense is harmless, but unfortunately not all the useful idiots occupy themselves by marching and honking for peace. Some teach in our universities; some write newspaper columns; others pontificate on television."

Lately, much of America seems to be suffering from a lack of will. One way to illustrate this is to check the Army Reserves. In a time of emergency America could call up 300,000 reserve troops in roughly a week. The Soviet Union, a country with roughly the same population has an army almost twice the size of ours, and over ten million men in the reserves.

The other day I saw a bumper sticker which read, "What if they gave a war and no one came?" Well to those of you who listen to such propaganda, I have some news for you. It really is the first line of a poem which then goes on to say, "Then the war will come to you! He who stays home when the fight begins and lets others fight for his cause should take care: He who does not take part in the battle will share in the defeat. Even avoiding battle does not avoid battle, since not to fight for your own cause really means...fighting on behalf of your enemy's cause."

To chart our course for the future, we must know our enemies, understand our friends and know ourselves — where we are, how we got here, and where we want to go. Let us heed the advice of General Douglas MacArthur: "The history of failure in war can be summed up in two words; Too late. Too late in comprehending the deadly purpose of a potential enemy; too late in preparedness; too late in uniting all possible forces for resistance; too late in standing with one's friends."

Matthew Levin is a UMass student

Why Ronald Reagan is so popular

Much ink has been spilled and no expense spared to chronicle the statements issued and the speeches made by this years crop of Democratic candidates. Not a word leaves their mouths or the mouths of their subordinates without its being dissected by the national media; when their words are less than circumspect the media are there with bared teeth and claws — and so are we; the public. This is as it should be — one who cannot stand the harsh glare of the political spotlight for the duration of the campaign is likely not the nation's best choice for Chief Executive. Would that the media cover and castigate our current Chief Executive with that same zeal — and that we the public pay more attention when they do.

Andrew M. Paven

We are told that we have a President who often dozes off at staff meetings, and on occasion, at meetings with foreign dignitaries.

Still the President is popular.

Now comes word that not only does the President fall asleep at meetings, but he also makes up stories (embellishes, if you will) to win friends and influence people.

In a column that was run on the Boston Globe's Op-Ed page on Monday, March 5, written by Lou Cannon, the following story was related:

When Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir visited the White House last Nov. 29, President Reagan told him that during World War II he, Reagan, had served as a photographer in a US Army unit assigned to film the Nazi death camps. Reagan told Shamir that "he had saved a copy of this film because he believed, in time, people would question what had happened."

Reagan said that many years later he was asked by a family member if the Holocaust actually occurred. To quote it as Mr. Cannon described it: Shamir quoted Reagan as saying, "That moment I thought, "this is the time for which I saved the film, and I showed it to a group of people who couldn't believe their eyes. From then on I was concerned for the Jewish people."

This story was also related by Reagan to Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal on Feb. 15. In short, it was heard by enough people that its veracity cannot be doubted.

Now, Lou Cannon is a journalist of some distinction who has covered Ronald Reagan's career since Reagan was governor of California — he has also written two biographies of Reagan, and has "interviewed many who knew Reagan during World War II." According to Mr. Cannon, after serving briefly at Fort Mason in San Francisco, Reagan "spent the war with the First Motion Picture Unit of the Army Air Corps, making training films in Hollywood."

This is not the first incident of this type involving our President. Cannon relates a Reagan tale in which, during a highschool football game, in which his Dixon, Ill. team was playing against their school's rival Mendota, and his team ws called for a penalty. According to Reagan the referee asked him if he had committed the penalty, and he "told the truth, the penalty was ruled and Dixon lost the game." Says Cannon of this tale. "The only time Dixon lost to Mendota when Reagan played was by a 24-0 score."

Two days after Cannon's column ran there was a story in The Globe, with the headline "Aide denies Reagan said he photographed Nazi camps." The story was a typically well-written UPI account of the facts. There were no editorials; no first hand reports; I didn't even notice any letters-to-the-editor.

A recent public opinion poll has Reagan leading Gary Hart by 5 percent, and Walter Mondale by 20 percent.

Maybe you can explain it to me:

Syndicated columnist Mary McGrory has a theory to explain this. She says that since President Reagan doesn't hold himself, or subordinates, up to a high standard, the American people don't hold the President up to a high standard. Expect mediocrity and you'll get mediocrity.

Author H.L. Mencken had another theory. He once wrote: "No one ever went broke underestimating the intelligence of the American people."

Andrew M. Paven is a UMass student

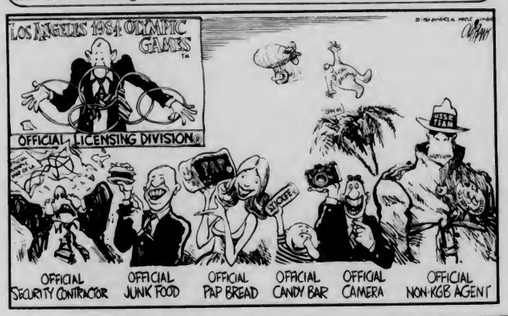
Hypocritical sexism at UMass

I can't help finding the UMass feminist brigade hypocritical. The names of their programs bother me. Three in particular: The Everywoman's Center, The Women's Studies Department and the Women's Forum.

Correct me if I'm wrong but most women believe the responsabilities of birth control should be shared by both partners. And no self-respecting feminist will say that a man has a right to force a woman to have sex. And isn't sexual discrimination the fault of small-minded men who do not realize the capabilities of women?

Carolyn Rosenbaum

If feminists support these claims, why do they try to change the status quo with programs directed primarily at women? Let's face it, not too many men are going to sign up for a class called "Intro to Women's Studies" and if a guy gets off on whistling at "chicks" on the beach will he really be motivated to stop by the Everywoman's Center for a colloque on sexual harassment?



Let's stop supporting these segregational programs and make some changes. How about combining the Men's Center and the Everywoman's Center into the Center for Human Relations (that's the CHR for all you acronym lovers)? And why not change Women's Studies to Human Relations Studies? And for gosh sakes, why can't the activities listed in the Forum just be scattered into the other Hypercurricula listings instead of designating them as women's (only) activities.

Programs which reinforce the image of women as down-trodden belly-achers give many women a negative image of their sex, not a proud one. The programs also separate "us" from "them," actually causing a gap, not closing one.

Black people didn't gain equality by educating themselves in separate but equal schools, they got it by demanding to be integrated into previously white, superior schools.

I don't mean to argue a silly problem of semantics. But if we make our programs more accessible to men, voice our accomplishments and grievances in the company of men and teach both sexes about our past and future roles in society, we will not only protect our rights but also contribute towards a unified, civil environment in which to live and learn.

Carolyn Rosenbaum is a Collegian correspondent

The conviction of Rev. Moon

To read the Editorial/Opinion page of the Collegian one might think that Rev. Sun Myung Moon and the Unification Church are totally corrupted. Not so.

Fair-minded, kind-hearted people can read between the lines and simply dismiss these articles. But even the most open-minded person must wonder about Rev. Moon's recent conviction on charges of tax evasion. Therefore, let's hear the case in the Collegian.

Lawrence Tribe, a leading expert in Constitutional law and a professor at Harvard University Law School, says Rev. Moon's conviction "is the most significant threat to religious freedom in the U.S. in many decades." He says that this is why he is handling Rev. Moon's case as it is reviewed by the Supreme Court.

Tom Wojcik

The government is arguing that accounts in Rev. Moon's name were solely controlled by him and so any income flowing into them was taxable. Rev. Moon argues that the funds and stocks are the property of the church and not taxable. He is simply the trustee. It is the case that in many denominations, ownership of church property and funds is in the name of the bishop, pastor or church leader, who exercises sole control of the funds. Also, many religious groups invest their funds in interest-bearing accounts or profit-making enterprises.

"What happened in this case is that you had a jury determining what is valid religious use of funds", says Tribe. The government presented no evidence that any use made of these funds was in fact non-religious from the perspective of the Unification Church." The Constitution requires the government and its courts to accept a church's own definition of what is religious use. It can't, after the fact, substitute its own defintions.

The IRS may establish regulations defining allowable use of religious funds for tax purposes. Religious organizations could appeal and test prepared laws in court before they went into force. "But there are no such laws", says Tribe. "To come along as has been done in the Moon case, ex post facto, and let a jury substitute itself for the church is I believe clearly unconstitutional."

The very thought of this worries many churches. An amicus brief supporting Rev. Moon was filed in the Court of Appeals by lawyer Earl Trent representing the American Baptist Churches, the National Council of Churches, the United Presbyterian Church, the Unitarian Universalist Association, the National Black Clergy Caucus and others. These Churches represent over 45 million Americans. Trent argued that "affirming such governmental authority over a church's choices of structure and spending practices would threaten religious freedom and church autonomy." That's also why Tribe believes in the Supreme Court battle most- if not all- major churches will join Rev. Moon in presenting the case to the justices.

So legal issues have made some strange bedfellows indeed. Even considering major theological differences, we can not find in this broad base of support for Rev. Moon such rabid intolerance as evidenced in recent opinions on this Editorial/Opinion page. The bottom line is survival, i.e. religious freedom. You're either for it or against it.

Tom Wojcik is the campus Unification Church coordinator

LETTERS POLICY

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Letters

Some just can't take a joke

To the Editor,

I was surprised to read the negative reaction in the Collegian to Elizabeth Luciano's article of April 5 on caffeinated drinks, the benignly sarcastic intent of which seemed to me to be readily apparent.

Frankly, I found it funny. Certainly, no one likes to have their favorite controversy be the subject of jokes, but it seems to me that there is a point where the more-informed-than-thou attitude becomes futile.

At least it is clear that in such a diverse community as ours it is truly impossible to write something that is offensive to on one. Now I can only wonder if in fact it would be possible to offend absolutely everyone in a single article. Actually, I think I've met a few people who wouldn't have much trouble with that. Give Ms. Luciano a break.

Clyde Tressler
Sylvan

The truth isn't easy to digest

To the Editor,

It has come to my attention that several people have found the Newman Run-For-Ritter table tents offensive. As Publicity Director of the race and creator of these "offensive" ads, I would like to share a few thoughts concerning them.

I agree wholeheartedly that 10 year old boys selling their bodies on the street and 17 year old girls chopped into a dozen pieces are not the most pleasant things in the world.

The unfortunate truth is that these are only two of the 100,000 runaway kids in New York City alone every year who face the same struggle for survival. Nationally, there are one million such children every year. The reason the table tents were created was to build an awareness among the student body of a hidden social problem.

These children need the help of Fr. Bruce Ritter and Covenant House if they are to survive. Most have already been abused physically and sexually at home before taking to the streets. Traditional social welfare agencies have rejected them. I hope that these table tents will bother you enough so you won't reject these kids, too. Please RUN FOR RITTER and help these kids find a better life. Thank you.

Bob Coulter
Publicity Director
Run For Ritter Road Race

We need columnists!
Drop by with a piece, CC 113

Among the living and the dead in Beirut

Mazen Iskandar

Summer of 1982 Beirut. Lebanon was the last place any person would want to be then, now and in the future. In Beirut, especially, it was hell. The invasion of Israel into Lebanon and later into Beirut, fighting all over the country, every city, town, area, block. Every building, family, car got their own share of the fight. Many people were dead. Some thought, later, that those were the lucky ones.

Every day, every night fighting was going on from land, sea and air for the whole three months of that summer.

The life savers

Between all this evil there was, a small group of life-savers, a group of paramedics. They were a team of Civil Defense who believed in God and to which I belonged. They gave some people a little bit of hope in life. They were in the midst of the fighting with no guns or bullets, but a white flag and first aid kits. Trying to save people's lives with what strength they had left in them. This team was of about 15 young men, living in a school which they took as their headquarters. They slept between sandbags and in bathtubs.

We still had the luxuries of life then: food, water and gas for the ambulances. But we did not see our parents for weeks or months. Our parents only lived blocks away, but we still didn't have time to see them or check on them.

The feeling that we might not make it alive was a constant reminder of where we were. Each person used to have this special feeling toward his friends, making them sure that he was willing to risk his life for them any day. This was a common feeling.

The team kept on going, not fearing the big bombs that were knocking buildings down in many numbers. This team was something else. It kept on going with fear in their hearts all the time. They saw death in their own eyes and they defied it.

I was so scared most of the time that nothing could scare me anymore. I thought I'd never see my parents anymore. Dreaming and laughing how I might die and with which weapon. There were so many of them that I couldn't even guess. I hoped that if I was to die it wouldn't be by a phosphorous bomb. I couldn't get over the thought of burning to death by this bomb. There would be no way of putting me out and later, my parents would have to see my body. They might not recognize it. That was one of my most terrifying dreams which I used to have from one time to another.

The horror of man

Church used to help me in past years when the war wasn't so tough. But, during this war I thought even God would be amazed at what man could think of and do to another man.

We used to live an everyday life and try to enjoy and make the best out of each day, for tomorrow may never come for you. All this war going on while we were going around the city, with its ruined buildings and blocked streets and mined highways, trying to pick up the casualties that battles left behind. We tried to save peoples' lives during and after the battles, working under building's rubble, pulling people out, in whole or in pieces. It depended on how lucky they were. We would do all that, and the fighters would still be shooting at you for no reason. But we fought back. We fought death with life and many, many times we won.

My friends and I did all that for nothing. We didn't get any money. We didn't have to do it, but we wanted to do it. We did it for nothing at all because we believed in our work. We had been doing it for many years and were the best team in Lebanon. The United Front of Ras Beirut was the team who volunteered to defy death.

We liked our work, not because people were dying, but because we could help them ease the pain and put hope in their hearts. It was either work or sit in the shelter with your parents. The answer for us was, "No way."

A relieved mother

My mother had so many nervous breakdowns that I couldn't count them all. She would be relieved every time someone would tell her that they saw me in the Emergency Room bringing the wounded in. It was a life a dog wouldn't accept to live, that was what we used to say all the time. But, we lived through it, we had to. It was forced upon us.

Every day that was quiet for a change, I would sit with a friend. We would talk about life, and whether it was going to pass us by. Teenagers playing around in a war bigger than anything in the world. Even the Americans didn't want anything to do with it then. Not enjoying life, nor our youth, not seeing things or going places, while many other boys like us in other cities are going around having fun and enjoying their time with girls and parties. That used to make us cry. Its not easy to watch your life get messed up, and the best part of your life not being enjoyed. It was too much for all of us, it hurt inside. We didn't deserve this treatment. We didn't ask to sit in a hole like this and witness hell in there.

A life wasted by war

I am twenty years old and the war has been going on for ten years now. That makes half of my life being wasted in war. The other half, which is supposed to be good, is my childhood which I don't remember. The best years of my life, gone with the winds of war. They will never come back. I missed them. The good memories would be the years I spent with my friends playing around and having fun while the war was starting. But, even those memories would take but a half hour to review. Those friends of mine, some have betrayed me and got themselves killed in the war and left me. So much for memories, and so much for teenage life.

I have to play adult now. Act like a big man in some situation while still feeling like a teenager. I am missing years. After all I have gone through, I have something to remind me of those years: the emotional fatigue. It is still with me in the United States.

The summer of 1982 was a bad summer. The memories will stay with me for a lifetime.

Mazen IsKandar is a UMass student

GENUINE

Budweiser.
KING OF BEERS.

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

Men's and Women's Spring Track Meet will be held on Tues. April 24
Sign up at Derby Track from 3-3:30
Field events start at 3:30 pm
Track events start at 4 pm

Playoff Drawing for Softball and Soccer
Mon. April 30th at 5 pm
215 Boyden

Men's Badminton Championship
April 24th 6 pm
Co-Rec Championship
Wed. May 2 at 6 pm

Squash Championship
April 25 at 7 pm

GENUINE

this Bud's for you!

Chancellor's Lecture Series

Paul Mariani

"Summoning the Dead: Politics and the Sublime in Contemporary Poetry"

Thursday, April 19, 1984, 8 p.m.
Campus Center Auditorium
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Students, you can now get a MasterCard.

MasterCard

- available in all 50 states
- no income requirements
- without a credit check
- moneyback guarantee

SHOPPING AND TRAVEL CONVENIENCE. With a MasterCard, you have charge privileges at more than 3 million places around the world. So you can travel, dine, or shop for things like a new stereo without carrying cash or having to worry about getting your check cashed where they don't know you. Or you can order mail-order gifts . . . reserve a hotel or motel room . . . send flowers . . . even reserve tickets to concerts, sporting events, and shows of all types.

First National believes that students like you have unlimited potential. But even more than that, we believe in you right now. That's why we want you to know about the special relaxed requirements that enable college students to get a MasterCard.

This is the easiest, fastest, and most certain way for students to get a MasterCard. And we prove it – by protecting you with an Unconditional Money-back Guarantee. The MasterCard that you can receive is the same one that is honored by 3 million merchants worldwide – and you'll have a credit line of at least $300.

ENJOY THE CONVENIENCE, SECURITY, AND PRESTIGE OF A MASTERCARD.

But why do you need a MasterCard now? Here are just a few of the reasons why.

ESTABLISH YOUR CREDIT HISTORY. The special relaxed requirements make this the easiest, fastest, and most certain way for you to establish your credit history. In addition, a MasterCard is the perfect credit reference to get credit with merchants and department stores for T.V.'s, furniture, clothes, sporting goods, major appliances, and auto loans. So you are now able to build an excellent credit rating starting from scratch.

HELP IN AN EMERGENCY. Charge gas, car repairs, and servicing . . . at home or while traveling. For medical bills, MasterCard is accepted by physicians, dentists, optometrists, hospitals, pharmacies and veterinarians.

CHECK-CASHING CONVENIENCE. A MasterCard is the perfect I.D. to help you get your check cashed where they don't know you. Or get a Cash Advance at more than 100,000 Banking Institutions around the world.

CHOOSE YOUR OWN PAYMENT PLAN. You can pay the full amount of your bill at the end of the month, or if you prefer, you can extend your payments over 36 months on a revolving charge plan. Either way, you have the flexibility that only a credit card can offer.

IT'S EASY TO GET STARTED

This is but a sample of what is available to you when you carry a MasterCard. There is much, much more, and it's completely described in our Credit Card Service Guide you will receive – and it's all yours for just $30. And you take NO RISK: you're protected by First National's Unconditional Guarantee: if you should fail to get a MasterCard after following the simpel step-by-step instructions, you will receive a full refund.

THERE'S NO BETTER TIME THAN RIGHT NOW TO APPLY.

So if you'd like to take advantage of these special relaxed requirements to get a MasterCard – take a moment right now to fill out the coupon and mail it to First National along with your payment. This could prove to be the most rewarding investment you will make this year . . . and for many years to come!

Special Note: Because of constantly changing credit conditions and bank policies, we are unable to know how long this special program will continue to be in effect. Therefore, we urge you not to delay. To ensure that you get your MasterCard, please reply promptly.

MAIL NO-RISK COUPON TODAY

First National Bancard, P.O. Box 5128, San Jose, Ca. 95150-5128

Yes! I want to take advantage of the special relaxed requirements that enable students to qualify for a MasterCard. The MasterCard offered in this special program is the same one that is honored by 3 million businesses around the world, and is good for shopping, dining, traveling, and Cash Advances. I am enclosing $30 with the understanding that I am also protected by First National's Unconditional Guarantee: if I fail to get a MasterCard after following the simple step-by-step instructions outlined in the Credit Card Service Guide, I will receive a prompt and full refund.

Print Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____ Zip _____

School _____

Phone ( ) _____ Best time to call _____

Arts

The affordable Goodman

By ED BEEN
Collegian Staff

My initial reaction to being handed this album to review was, "C'mon, gimme a break, an acoustic guitar album?" Such are the joys of life's unexpected pleasures like Steve Goodman's ninth release (second on the independent Red Pajamas label), Affordable Art. The 12 song disc, comprised of live and studio cuts, features some hot guitar and mandolin picking, touching ballads and Goodman's acute sense of humor.

In "Vegematic", Goodman laments the nightmare of receiving all the television mail order products, only to wake up and find it was no dream: They brought the Vegematic and the Pocket Fisherman too/The Illustrated Illuminated History of Life/And Boxcar Willie with a gimu knife/....An Egg Scrambler with the Seal-A-Meal carrying case/A set of presidential commemorative plates so I could eat my eggs off a president's face.

"Watchin' Joey Glow" a poke at both the arms race and the old Bobby Goldsboro tune, features Goodman singing such witticisms as At breakfast Mom hands Joe the bread and he turns it into toast/Last night he hugged a leg of lamb and soon we had a roast. Funny stuff. Other humorous highlights here include "Talk Backwards", and "A Dying Cub Fan's Last Request."

Goodman does however find time to get some serious music on the record, but it is not half as entertaining as the previously mentioned material. Exception to this are the duet "Souvenirs", with John Prine, and the ballad "California Promises." He shows he can pick too on "If Jethro Were Here", and gets help in this department from Jethro Burns on "Take Me Out To The Ballgame."

Affordable Art is a good middle of the road country flavored album that is simply very pleasant to listen to. Goodman is a consistent performer and will soon be embarking on a college and night club tour. Perhaps best known for his classic composition "City of New Orleans", Goodman's work has been covered by Jimmy Buffet, The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, and Randy Crawford.

Elvis: brazen yet eloquent

ELVIS COSTELLO
Monday, April 16
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

By JIM FEIN
Collegian Staff

I'm just the mere shadow of my former selfishness...

Elvis Costello, 1982

It's not often that one has the opportunity to experience, within the cozy confines of a near acoustically perfect hall, a solo performance by a budding superstar musician such as Elvis Costello.

Yet that is exactly what the sellout crowd of nearly 2000 students were treated to on Monday, April 16th, at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Elvis Costello showed, beyond the shadow of a doubt, why he is considered the major singer/songwriter of his generation.

Never one to do what's expected of him, Elvis kept even the most knowledgeable of his fans in a state of surprise throughout the evening. Familiar, previously recorded Costello originals comprised only about half of the evening's material. These songs were drawn from eight of his nine albums (which he recorded over a span of only seven years) and gave a fairly accurate representation of the various stages in his career.

Elvis played only a few songs from early in his career, better known as the 'Angry Young Man' era. The frustration, guilt, and revenge that were so much a part of his early works were more noticeably absent from "Red Shoes," "Allison," and "Accidents Will Happen."

Around 1980, Costello abandoned the 'Angry Young Man' image which had put him at the forefront of the 'new wave' music scene. During this period of transition Elvis released two twenty song L.P.'s, on which he experimented with different musical styles. Fom the Motown influenced Get Happy, Elvis played "Man Called Uncle" and "Riot Act," while from the Taking Liberties compilation he did convincing renditions of his pop masterpiece "Girl's Talk," and the country western "Stranger In The House."

As hinted at earlier, Elvis did a slew of new, unrecorded originals and cover songs. Though unfamiliar, the songs were well received by the audience, especially the ironic humor of "Your Girlfriend, Not You" and sly sarcasm of "You Worthless Thing." Elvis also ended the show, during his fourth encore, with a new song. This, entitled "Peace In Our Time," was an intensely political and sarcastic song in which he made a direct reference to the White House.

Elvis Costello, though a great songwriter, was not gifted with natural singing voice. This became especially apparent without the accompaniment of his tight-knit, talented, and extremely versatile band, the Attractions. However, Elvis has worked hard at minimizing his vocal limitations and has succeeded. His constricted baritone has developed into a versatile, complex, and most effective singing tool. This was most apparent Monday evening as his fifty-five minute plus four encoure performance was set to the tune of only a sole guitar, piano or keyboard.

I do have one minor complaint about the show, it tended to drag at a few points in the evening. This occurred when Elvis over overindulged in playing new unrecorded originals and obscure cover songs with similar tempos which, though well accepted, were unfamiliar to most of the crowd. Yet it is precisely this type of action, to do the unexpected, for which I've always respected him and consequently grew attached to his music.

Armed with complete artistic freedom and showing a total disregard for commercial acceptability, Elvis Costello has concentrated throughout his entire career at making quality music, not commercially successful music. The result has been that he's been adored by rock critics (whom he disdained until only recently) and developed a cultish, yet fiercely devoted following.

Commercial success has eluded him until just recently as well. Costello's music, though it's always done well on the college and underground radio circuits, did not fit into the business-orientated, AOR format of the more successful radio stations. For this reason his music never got widespread airplay and thus didn't sell as well as it might have.

Now it appears, however, that a widespread commercial success will be his as his music is getting substantial airplay. His music, brazen yet eloquent early in his career, has evolved into a more mature, equally eloquent brand over the interim. This was not a conscious effort or a 'sellout' as some might purport. It was, rather, a natural progression. Costello has always, and still persists in, writing droves of new material, refusing to look backward. It is for this reason that he has become the major singer/songwriter of his generation.

For information and the latest news I read the Collegian.

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB
Disco • Top 40 • Rock

TONIGHT!

FOR 2 1 ALL NIGHT LONG

FRIDAY and SATURDAY

8 to 10:00 2 for 1

THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!

Poor Richard's IS ALSO AVAILABLE FOR CATERED PRIVATE PARTIES AT THE lowest PRICES AROUND

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB
Disco • Top 40 • Rock

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's Ice Cream

Winter in May

An Earth Celebration with
The Paul Winter Consort
Tuesday, May 1, 1984 at 8 p.m.
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Tickets available from Daraty and Satelite Box Offices
On Sale April 10, 1984
For info. call F.A.C. Box Office at 545-2511

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Spring Special
Thursday Nites
Free Champagne
for Ladies
9:30-11:00 PM
Two for One for everyone 9:30-closing
Schaefer Beer $2.25 Pitcher anytime
REMEMBER FRIDAY AFTERNOON BUFFET

DOCUMENTS:
3 PLAYS & SOME FRAGMENTS OF THE EARLY THIRTIES
WAITING FOR LEFTY CLIFFORD ODETS
PULLMAN CAR HIAWATHA THORNTON WILDER
BURY THE DEAD IRWIN SHAW

Directed by Richard Edelman
Kirby Theater, Amherst College
April 20, 21 & 26, 27, 28
8:00 P.M.

General admission $4.00
Students and Senior Citizens $2.00
AC students free with ID
For reservations call 542-2277
Box office hours: 1-5 weekdays

Box office opens April 9

The Collegian is now accepting applications for the positions of:
ASSISTANT ADVERTISING MANAGER and ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES
for Fall '84.
Deadline is Friday April 20
Pick up application at the Collegian office between 8:45 and 3:30

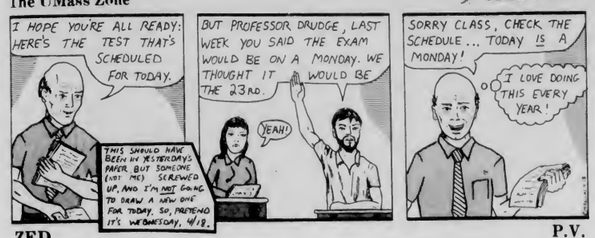
Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

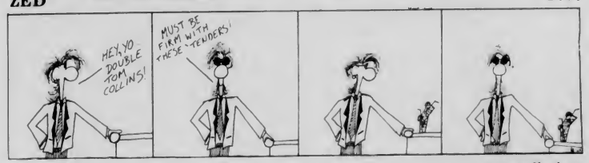
We Congratulate All Brides-to-be...
. . .and invite them to view our extensive collection of elegant trousseau items.
You deserve the very best for your wedding night.
We can help you to plan a lingerie shower as well. Call for info.
Carriage Shops, (upper level) NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 1-4:30
233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-0923

BOOK SALE
By The Pound!
OVER 15,000 TITLES
• all subjects • new and used •
ONLY 35¢ per pound
Special truckload shipment from midwest warehouse!
Textbook Annex
Mon - Fri 9:00 - 4:00

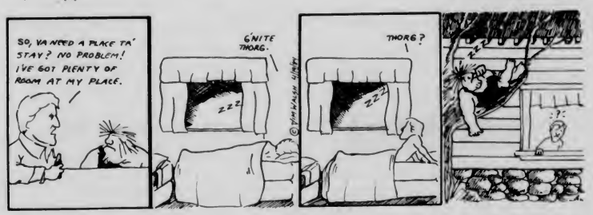


AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person

Easter Cards & Gifts
Pick from our spring garden of beautiful remembrances for sharing the joy of the season.
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE



Bloom County by Berke Breathed



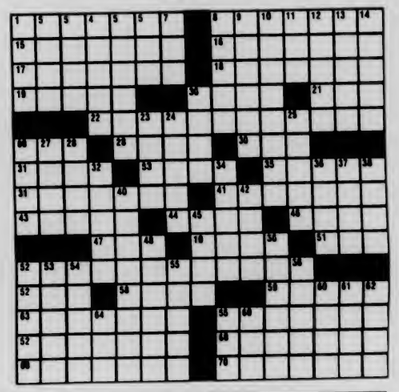
The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

ZED P.V.

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

FRED BAKER By T.A.D

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Berlin subject
8 Item in a make-up kit
15 Legislator
16 Puts in containers
17 Ape
18 Nimbleness
19 Protuberances
20 Beings
21 "The —— is cast"
22 Periodical of a sort
26 Name for a lad in Baghdad
29 Lily plant
30 —— Canals
31 South American capital
33 Capture
35 Actor McDowall
39 Brooklyn and London
41 Dim
43 Title, in Mexico
44 "—— does it!"
46 Fervor
47 —— relief
49 Deborah, from Scotland
51 Night or light prefix
52 Preoccupied
57 Cook's cooker
58 Small portion
59 Bedtime story trio
63 Having blood deficiency: Var.
65 Devise
67 Apply new surface to 68 Coal miner
69 Locks
70 Christie forte

DOWN
1 "A —— apple pie..."
2 Informal letter
3 City in Oklahoma
4 Prices
5 Northern Minnesota lake
6 Tent item
7 Metric measure
8 "Little Things —— Lot"
9 Good people
10 Shears
11 Presidential nickname
12 Separately
13 Fasten again
14 Up to now
20 Concert halls
23 Germany's "Der ——"
24 Scandinavians
25 Moonshine
26 Sunday wear, for some 27 Coins, from Capri
28 "—— the Mood for Love"
32 Hopi material
34 City on the Warta
36 Twosome
37 Sketch
38 The Abominable Snowman
40 Relatives
42 Polar explorer
45 Actor Tamiroff
48 Long step
50 Mutineers
52 Separated
53 Foolish blunder
54 Theater platform
55 War clubs
56 Distributed
60 French friend
61 Regrettul one
62 Nimble
64 Comparative endings
65 Brit. medal
66 A Rogers

Candidates Night
Monday at 7:00
In the Commonwealth Room
Next to S.U.B.

T.C. Menu

LUNCH
Fried Clam Strips
Reuben Sandwich

BASICS LUNCH
Boursin & Sprout Sandwich
Fried Clam Strips

DINNER
Chinese Chicken Wings
Chicken Chow Mein
Meat Loaf

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Nut Loaf with Mushroom Sauce
Chicken Chow Mein
Chinese Chicken Wings

Weather

Today, cloudy with a chance of a few showers or a thunderstorm. High near 50 along the coast and 55 to 60 inland. Tonight, cloudy and foggy. Low in the 40s. Tomorrow morning, fog giving way to a cloudy afternoon. High in the 60s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

C	L	I	E	A	T		S	H	A	I	D		F	O	I	T
L	A	M	E	R		C	U	R	I	E		A	S	T	O
E	V	I	T	A		O	N	I	T		S	I	T	A
F	A	R	A	N	D	W	I	D	E		F	E	E	D
			C	O	I	L		C	H	E	R	R	Y
G	O	P	E	R		O	C	T	E	T
A	L	I	E	A		S	I	D	E		A	I	C	I	B	A
R	E	T	I	R	E	A	D		R	A	P	H	A	E	L
B	O	S	S	Y		A	E	S	O	P		E	R	N	I	E
			U	N	I	S	O	N		A	E	D	O	I	X
A	E	I	A	G	A	N		E	M	O	N
E	T	C	H		F	A	N		A	N	D	A	W	A	Y
S	H	U	T		L	I	M	O		L	I	N	E	N	T	E
Y	E	N	T	E		O	P	A	L		V	I	S	I	T	A
S	L	E	D		W	I	N	E		E	A	T	E	R

Attention National Exchange Students!

We are holding the final Happy Hour at The Pub for all of you here on exchange and for those of you preparing for exchange for Fall '84.

Date: Tuesday, April 24, 1984
Time: 6-9 p.m.
Place: The Pub in Amherst
(located behind the Carriage Shops in town)

Munchies will be served, beverages available
(Mass. legal drinking age is 20 -- Bring an I.D.)
--- 18 year olds welcome! ---
Great time to "exchange" info and ideas about your campus with outgoing students.
Everyone Welcome, SEE YOU THERE!

THE CHEQUERS' SPRINGTIME SPLURGE

PRIME RIB SPECIAL — ONLY $8.95

SAVE $3.00

This coupon entitles the lucky bearer and guests to a hearty 10 ounce portion of the Chequers' famous, tender, freshly roasted prime rib, hand carved to order complete with fresh garden salad, choice of potato, fresh vegetable of the day and French bread all for a special $8.95. Offer available only with this coupon at The Chequers, University Drive, Amherst, now through April 30, 1984.* If you love juicy prime rib and savings, better rush to The Chequers.

* Offer good Thursday through Sundays

UNIVERSITY DRIVE - AMHERST

Reservations 549-5861

In the mood for a light dinner?

SANDWICH MENU Now Available in the

T.O.C. LOUNGE

for Dinner:
TUES.-THURS.
5:00-7:30 pm
FRIDAY
6:30-8:30 p.m.
SATURDAY
5:00-8:30 pm

TOP of the CAMPUS

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day they take place. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

UNITED ARMS COUNCIL MEETING — 4 p.m., check C.C. schedule for location.

HILLEL COUNCIL MEETING — 6 p.m., Dukes Room, Thursday night.

FREE WRITING TUTORING — The Southwest Writing Center offers free confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignment or writing project. Drop-in, no appointment needed. 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Pierpont dorm, Southwest.

ORCHARD HILL AREA GOV'T ELECTIONS — Last day of voting in the OHAG Elections. Voting is for President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer. Turn out and choose your leaders. 4-6:30 p.m., Orchard Hill's elevator lobbies.

Read the Arts Page!

Students
Summer Jobs
with Mass Fair Share

Get paid for what you believe in - hazardous waste clean up, economic reforms - with our grassroots political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid Training. Hours 1:30-10 PM M-F, $156-225/wk Call 586-8713

Student Affairs

Open Invitation to all interested students

First Week Fall '84 Planning Group

Thursday, April 19th
3 PM CC 168

Help make first week a great week for the class of 89!

ROZ'S PLACE
vintage fashion

Hawaiian Shirts and Shorts

6 bridge st.
northampton, ma
01060 open 7 days a week

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 3/31/84
Valid Mon - Thurs
FREE CONSULTATIONS
Please Call for an Appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA/549-5610

Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE

21 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-3810

Trek - Fuji - Univega - Campagnolo
Suntour and others
Racing, Touring, and Commuting accessories

Social Change Job Opportunities In Boston

9 to 5, Boston's Working Women's Organization concerned with wage, promotional and discrimination issues, is now hiring individuals to do community outreach, fundraising and to move people to action on issues that affect women in the workplace. Hrs: 1:30-9:30. Training and benefits included.
Call: 617-423-3254
9 am to 1 pm
Permanent & Summer Positions Available

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Receiver, tape deck, great speakers, turntable $250/BO call 20E 546-5253

Garwin-Vega Speakers Vector receiver Akai deck Sony turntable - almost new reasonable offers call Matt 253-3907

Tapedeck: AIWA ADL300U many features. Only $130.00 paid $300. call Rob 6-7762

AUTO FOR SALE

Celica GT Liftback 1980 excellent cond copper 54000 miles $5400firm 527-8414 keep trying John

'77 Buick Skylark ext. needs work eng. & int. good fair 549-6797

'74 Ford Maverick. A.T., P.S., many extras, some rust, but reliable. Best offer. Phyllis 5-2364 or 665-3441 late eve.

1973 Duster good condition very reliable new brakes $650 584-7455

'73 Chevy Caprice auto, PS/PB good cond. 665-4117 $1450

Foxy Fiat X1/9 low miles excellent condition 3500 BO call Larry 256-0080

Ford Mustang 1979 for sale good condition. A/C stereo miles 36000 call 549-0056

'75 Datsun rebuilt engine 950 or BO Kathy 549-4035 snow tires

CAPE COD

Female roommate wanted in Falmouth Heights on the beach summer call Kate 6-4017

EASTER BASKETS

Send one to your friends sign up Wed Thurs Fri in Hamden (Southwest) or call 546-7294 546-7268

ECKANKAR PRESENTS

Intro Lecture "In My Soul I Am Free" the study of out of the body experience Th. April 19 7:30 rm 802 CC

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS 4 years Quality Service at UMass. Why pay more? 256-1393

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt 315$/month all included swimming pool tennis courts call Jose 665-7633

4 bed houses - Country setting with acres near city. Other near Smith College. $525 without utilities. For Sept. Call Northampton 584-3428, 5-6 pm, Skibiski, Realtors

Responsible persons wanted for 2 rooms in Amherst house w/lg yard. Summer and fall. $150 plus. Call 253-3362 Peter

Millhollow Apt by Puffers waterfall on bus route take over June 1 549-2731

Room in house from now and June, very close to campus. $200 includes. Quiet serious only. Call 6-10 PM John 549-1358

One bedroom apt in Cliffside, summer sublet w/fall option 295 mo utilities included 665-4706

Looking for one or two quiet persons for one bedroom in Brandywine Call Laurie or Mike evenings 549-5416

FOR SALE

Electric Typewriter. Smith-Corona super-12 Very good condition Best offer 549-6994

Airplane Ticket good anywhere in US on TWA good thru 5/24/84, 546-6629

Bikes for sale - women's and men's ten and three speeds. Good condition, prices negotiable. call David 546-7061 late nights

SUNN Bass Amp 2 - 15" speakers, $200; HONDOII SG, $125; Boss Chorus $60; Ibanez compressor $40; all in good shape -prices negotiable Ted 549-0159

Guild Electric Guitar w/case exc. cond. $195. or BO Scamp Amp - brand new $90 call Gary 665-3013

FOUND

Found: Jacket in front of East Experiment Station March 15th. Call 546-7061 and describe to claim.

HELP WANTED

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

Babysitter Mid June to end of August. 8 am to 3 pm Four 5 year olds. Car necessary. Letter to C. Goldstein 811 East Pleasant Street, Amherst

LOST

Before Break, purple and gray T-teck hand-knit wool sweater. Extreme sentimental value. Reward! If found, please call 253-8046

Lost designer denim jacket at The Pub 4/12. Call Julie 546-1282

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Yamaha 650E excellent condition. Low mileage must sell $995 6-5039

PERSONALS

WEEKEND IN NYC 10 spaces left May 5-6 reduced rates $18 bus only, or $36 hotel and bus call Matt 546-5530

Please take over our lease as of June 1st. 2 bedroom apartment, Sunderland, on bus route, wall to wall carpeting, A/C, dishwasher, $325/month + electricity, hot water FREE. Call anytime - 665-4278

University Women invited to open rush at Alpha Chi Omega Thurs. April 29 - Dinner and build your own sundae at 4:45 Wed., April 26 - Bar-B-Q dinner at 4:45 RSVP Linda Baker or Stacy at 546-2152 or 549-4159

Collegian Staff Elections for Board of Editors will be Wednesday, April 25, from 9:00 to 8:00 all staff members (business, graphics, and newsroom!) eligible to vote

Collegian Staff candidates for editors' positions will have a debate Monday, April 23 at 7:00 in the Commwealth Room (next to Student Union Ballroom) all staff members should attend. Know what you're voting for.

Lost in Presidential Apartments - blue pocket-size bag. Keep the dope and a $15 reward, just give the pipe back - sentimental call 549-4778

Management Club Speaker
Roland Costes
will be speaking on
"Particpative Management"
Tonight CC 904 7:30
Everyone Welcome

Queen of La Mancha, Happy 21 of course! Guess Who?

Happy B-Day, Kath M. from Cath S. and Cath D, Roomies

Teach in Massachusetts complete employment listing of all public and private schools in Massachusetts---plus latest openings! $8.00, Betterway, PO Box 2153, Centerville, MA 02634

Smikel I love you Torpedo Head

David Oliver & Lisa Carey - Happy Birthday to two of the best friends a person could have - Love, Maureen

To the girl with the nice tan at the Bluewall Dance: hope to see you around Ron Isabel Cachopo - where is the glitter of your eyes and that radient smile? Be Happy!

Sandy - Great weekend! Don't worry about the fans - this kid is someone else's #1 Fan - Love ya, Pete

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

REWARD FOR STOLEN VEHICLE

1979 White Mercury Monarc with green landau roof taken from Lot 21N sometime Wednesday April 11 584-0242

RIDERS WANTED

Bus going to April 23 Grateful Dead concert in New Haven. Call for details 546-4308

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

2 female roommates wanted to share 3 bedroom Puffton apartment call 549-5487

Two people wanted to share a room in a very comfortable duplex across the street from Southwest call Peter 549-6985 or Terry 546-8797

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1 with fall option call 549-0137

Responsible roommate(s) needed beginning June 1st to share Riverglade townhouse call 253-3949

Room available two bedroom Brandywine apartment quiet, non-smoking, call Cliff 549-7858

Sublet beginning June 1 Presidential within ½ mile of campus nonsmoker /Junior or Senior $215 / month 549-3885

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite 253-5111

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Townehouse Apts 3 bedroom near campus on bus route + fair price 549-6797

Southwood Apts summer sublet will negotiate rent call Sherri 253-2268

Rolling Green apt available June 1st with fall option all utilities included call Paula 253-2897

3 bedroom Northwood Apt avail June 1st fall option call 665-8514

Summer sublet only. Fully furnished. Must be seen to appreciate. Negotiable call 256-8788

Puffton apartment available for summer sublet. 3 bedroom call 546-4790 Cory or Lisa

Share house for summer 150$/month a beautiful 4-bedroom house. It has kitchen walk-in pantry dining living rooms more than one space. Within walking distance to UMass 546-5186

TO ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN:

CHI OMEGA invites you to rush dinner! Come see an alternative to dorm living! Join the Greeks! Thursday April 19 5:15 call 545-0162 for rides or information. Ask for Kristin or Patty

TO SUBLET

3 bedroom apt. Amherst June 1 - Aug 30 fall option 549-3818

Brittany Manor apt available June 1 call 256-8823

From June 1 with fall option two bedroom on Sunderland bus route 330/month call 665-8314

Summer Sublet/Fall option furnished bedroom in Squire Village you pay $130 for June and July August free call Karen 665-8312

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

Fully furnished 2 bdrm Southwood Apt call after 10 PM cheap 256-1318

Summer sublet with possible fall option. Large bedroom in two-bedroom Southwood apartment for one or two females. 256-8379

Townhouse apt available for summer 549-0711

3 bedroom Puffton summer only 110/room Kathy or Luann 549-4035

Female wanted for own room in Rolling Green apts available June 1 graduate or older student preferred call evenings 256-0304

2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village June 1 to Sept 1 call Cinde 545-0162

Arlington Mass (next to Cambridge) Juen 1 - Sept 1 $234/month gorgeous house 617-643-3726 keep trying

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

4 females looking for house/apt near campus or on busroute willing to take over summer lease & fall opt 6-4349/4347

WANTED TO RENT

Looking for one bedroom apt in Colonial Village for summer and fall 84 call John at 546-9382

Looking for house 3-5 bedrooms for next year call Bill 546-4050 or Rick 546-4122

Wanted 3 bedroom apt in Puffton summer sublet w/fall option call 546-9978

Easy to live with fun loving looking to share apartment. Prefer near campus call eves, Lisa 546-5517

1 bedroom apt Puffton for summer and fall call John, Bob 546-7444 Reward

Two bedroom apartment Colonial Village will take over summer Mike 546-6161

Sports

Gorillas dispose of Flying Dutchmen

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

All the aspects of their game finally came together yesterday as the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team dominated the Flying Dutchmen of Hofstra University en route to a 12-5 victory.

The offensive attack was well rounded as Mike Fiorini scored three goals and two assists for five points to lead the team. Greg Fisk poured in four goals of his own, and Tom Lukacovic had a hat trick and an assist for four points as well.

The defense was strong. Time after time they thwarted Hofstra attackers away from the front of the net, and also came away with the ball on several occasions. Even if Hofstra did manage to penetrate the defense, Gerry Moreau stood tough in front of his cage and stopped several one on one plays dead on.

"The kids played really well. Hofstra is a good lacrosse team. The secret is to convince the guys you have to play for 60 minutes. We really made our shots count and the defense was tough. Barry Cain was awesome as was (John) Mincone and (Tommy) Aldrich," said Coach Dick Garber.

Fiorini opened the scoring at the 3:04 mark of the first quarter, as he stole the ball from an unprotected Hofstra goalkeeper and put it into the empty net. It turned out to be all UMass' quarter as they added three more goals in opening up a 4-0 lead.

Fisk made it 2-0, 16 seconds after the first goal as he bounced a Bubba Sanford pass by goalie Bill Els. He then made it 3-0, three minutes later, bouncing a Karl Hatton feed in from about 20 yards out.

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

THE TOUGH D — University of Massachusetts junior Rick Zoerner blankets a Hofstra attackman during yesterday's action. Zoerner and the other Gorillas jumped to an early lead and never looked back, winning 12-5.

After UMass went up 4-0, the Dutchmen showed signs of life as they cut into the UMass lead. But after a furious attack by the Dutchmen only netted them three goals for the quarter, while the Gorillas managed two of their own, they had to be asking themselves what was necessary to beat UMass.

Tommy Aldrich got the first goal of his young sophomore career in the quarter, flew to the goal and surprised the goalie by putting it right under him. Hofstra later cut the lead to 5-3, the closest they would come, until Lukacovic put another nail in their hearts by scoring on a rebound of a Matt O'Reilly shot with only three ticks left on the clock until halftime.

Fisk got a hat trick one minute into the second half, rifling a shot past Els from the right side. After Hofstra cut the lead to 7-4, Moreau came up big as he had all game, and stopped Dave McColloch, their big gun alone in front, further demoralizing an already frustrated Hofstra squad.

Fisk scoretl his fourth goal, and Fiorini followed with his second to make it a 9-4 lead for the Gorillas, the biggest lead they had thus far.

They built more on the lead in the fourth quarter as the game was pretty much out of reach for the Dutchmen. Perry Seale came off the bench to receive a Fiorini feed and go in to score a goal. Lukacovic got his hat trick 43 seconds later, and another Hofstra goal and Fiorini's hat trick closed out the scoring at 12-5.

Minutemen claw to twinbill win over Wildcats

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

No, the fans weren't holding straw brooms aloft menacingly, screaming "sweep, sweep," a la hoop fans in Milwaukee one year ago when the Bucks dispatched the Celtics in four staight. It was too cold for anybody to get that excited. But the action on the field certainly warmed their hearts, especially the dramatic ending to the nightcap which saw Tony Szklany, with the bases loaded in the bottom of the eighth inning, bang a single off the glove of New Hampshire pitcher Jay Wickham to drive in the game-winning run giving the Minutemen a 4-3 victory and completing a UMass sweep of the Wildcats. UMass won the opener, 6-3.

It was not the best of days for baseball. Mother Nature threw a full menu of environmental variables at the respective teams, including a cold wind, thunder and lightning, and rain. And, in the early going anyway, it didn't look like Father Fortune was with the Minutemen either, as UNH jumped out to 3-0 lead after an inning-and-a-half of the opener.

In the first, Mike Sgriner ripped an RBI double with men at first and second, followed by a run-scoring single by Steve Rewucki. In the second, Tom Murphy doubled and eventually scored on an error by UMass first baseman Jeff Cimini. UM fought back in the bottom of the inning, drawing to within one run.

After Steve (three-for-three) Messina bunted for a hit and Todd Ezold reached on an error, Bruce Kingman sacrificed them to second and third. Tom (a team leading .394) Fabian rocketed a shot off the right field wall for two runs. Messina deadlocked the game at 3-3 when he jumped on a 2-2 fastball from UNH starter Dennis McCarthy and lofted it over the left field fence.

The Minutemen iced the game in the fourth when they scored three runs. Kingman reached on an infield single, but was erased on a fielders choice by Tom Fabian. However, the chance for the DP was erased when McCarthy threw high at second. After Jack Bloise struckout (which should have been the third out), and steal of second by Fabian, successive RBI singles by Andy Connors and Angelo Salustri gave UM a 5-3 bulge. Salustri scored the final run of the inning on a wild pitch.

A parade of UMass relievers, including Tony Presnal, then shut the door in the last three innings, allowing only one hit.

For close to five full innings the second game was a pitchers' duel between the Wildcats' Steve Salsman and UMass' Steve Allard. UNH scored in the first inning on an error by Salustri but leadoff hitter Tony Szklany quickly knotted it with a home run to left.

UM broke the deadlock in the fifth, and knocked out Salsman in the process, on a sacrifice fly by Connors and RBI single by Salustri. However, before you can say "This game's over, let's blow the joint', the game was tied as Bill Peach's leadoff single in the UNH sixth was succeeded by a towering home run by Shriner. Goodbye Mr. Allard, hello Matt Subocz.

UMass had a chance to win it in the bottom of the seventh as they loaded the bases with one out. However, Messina popped to first and Fabian bounced to the pitcher. In the eighth, Kingman led with a walk, and went to third on a hit-and-run single by Jack Bloise that grazed inches by Kingman's head. Dan Clifford was intentionally walked, setting up Szklany's heroics.

Crew team wins and loses

By ED ROBINSON
Collegian Correspondent

It is customary in rowing for the coxswain of the winning boat to be heaved into the river by his teammates. Paul Canty, coxswain for the University of Massachusetts men's freshman eight boat was one of the lucky victims of this tradition after he steered his boat to victory in one of the crew races versus Temple and Trinity this past rainy and cold Saturday in Hadley.

"I think it has something to do with the coxswain not having to sweat and suffer physically like everyone else in the boat," said Canty, trying to explain the rationale for the custom after he had dried himself off. "I think I'd rather have rowed than go for a dive."

Unfortunately, Canty doesn't have that choice as he falls slightly short of the height necessary to row. He did a fine job as cox though, as his boat won an exciting race, beating Trinity by only one second. Temple finished third, nine seconds behind the UMass freshman.

Gerry Keavany, the UMass varsity eight coxswain stayed dry, unfortunately, as his boat finished third. Keavany still called it "our best race of the season" as the varsity made up a lot of ground after a poor start. "They started the race without waiting for me to signal that we were ready," Keavany said. "When the race started some people hit it, some were only at half slide."

The slide is the moveable seat in the boat which enables each oarsman to fully utilize the power of his legs in a stroke. At the beginning of the race the seat is normally at the front of the slide, with the knees bent and next to the chest, the oarsman ready to straighten his legs and begin his stroke.

Despite their poor start, the varsity almost caught Trinity, gaining seven seats on them in the last 500 meters and losing to them by less than a second. They were eight seconds behind Temple, last year's national champions.

The JV eight had a disappointing race, losing by two lengths to Temple. However, the JV four, composed of the sternmost members of the JV eight, blew away the fours of Trinity and Temple, duplicating a decisive victory over Wesleyan last week.

Sports Log

By TONY PETROS
Collegian Staff

Just a few thoughts...

Well, the Islanders are once again showing their domination in the NHL. After a grueling series with the Rangers, they had their backs against the wall against the surging Capitals. But, as true champions, they responded...This column picked Washington to not only beat the Islanders, but go all the way. But as of this reading, it could be over. The Capitals do possess probably the best goaltending in hockey, yet Billy Smith has risen to the occasion as he did against the Rangers...The Canadiens developed a definite need for Sucrets by choking in overtime against Quebec, after holding a 3-1 lead. The Nordiques have one of the better offenses in the NHL and have the big "Mo" going into the final few games (for all you laymen, the big "Mo" is momentum, a concept which I just couldn't grasp in high school physics).

The NBA playoffs are under way, with the finals not expected to come until June. Gone are the first-round byes and the best-of-three mini-series, included are four more teams and a few surprises...It's another playoff season to see if someone will repeat — it hasn't been done since the 68-69 Celtics...The Sixers are the defending champs, but they already have their hands full with the Nets, who played them pretty tough in the regular season. I wonder if Moses is going to be saying "fo, fo, fo" in reference to the four-game sweeps he predicted last year. I'm really looking forward to more insightful comments from Moses.

The Celtics and Knicks are on a bee-line to face each other, which should make for a beauty of a playoff series. The Knicks have to get by the Pistons, who had their best finish in a long time...Game no. 1 went to the Knicks, as the Pistons blew a big lead in the fourth quarter. Detroit committed the cardinal sin (thought I'd put in something for Easter) by turning the ball over three times in the last minute...Not even the Heimlich method could have revived them...The Celts shouldn't have much trouble with the Bullets, as their depth will take over here and throughout the playoffs. But if they do play the Knicks, watch out for the dreaded upset (I hear Terry O'Reilly and Ray Bourque still haven't corrected their slices).

Baseball is two weeks old, yet there are already a few trends developing with a few surprises...The Red Sox are true to form, losing five in a row. I think that players are sick of seeing the back of Dennis Ekersley's jersey as he watches another home run deposit into the nets. Once again, pitching is the problem...The defending champion Orioles are also off to a wicked slow start, but with their pitching and defense, they should be like, totally awesome, you know? (I've been here way too long)...The Padres are on top in the NL west, with ex-Yankees Goose and Craig leading the club. They should give the Dodgers and Braves a few fits before it's over, but they are still not quite good enough — yet...Pascual Perez is back in the majors, but only after May 16. That's when his suspension is lifted. In case anybody didn't see it, Mr. Perez was arrested for cocaine possession in the Dominican Republic. It would be tough for him to throw a spitter, because I don't think he could pass the saliva test.

No more need be said.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 57 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, April 20, 1984

Pornography foes deny censorship

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

Several members of the Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography yesterday said their attempt to remove pornographic magazines from the University Store should not be categorized as censorship, but an attempt at setting "community standards."

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

Magazines both controversial and non-controversial line the racks in the University Store yesterday afternoon.

The committee, which has made a semester-long effort to educate the UMass community about pornography, introduced a resolution passed earlier this week by the Undergraduate Student Senate which urged the University Store to stop the sale of Playboy, Penthouse, and Playgirl.

Stacy Roach, a committee member and chair of the senate's Women's Caucus, submitted the resolution, which also called for a student referendum next fall to determine whether the magazines should be sold.

"We're not censoring anything because the store already chooses to censor magazines. If a group of students wanted anti-Semitic magazines, the University store wouldn't carry them," Roach said.

S.E. Chase, another member of the Ad Hoc Committee, said she agreed with Roach. "Magazines are censored even before they get to the shelves," Chase said.

It's sort of like people are upset when things are removed from the shelves, but not upset that certain magazines aren't there in the first place," she said.

Chase said the most important thing the committee is doing is educating the UMass community about pornography.

"We're not the state or larger body intervening and taking something away," she said. "The Supreme Court ruled that communities could decide among themselves what matter is obscene. All we're doing is being part of a community that is trying to set some kind of standard."

Roach said the resolution and the committee's actions to stop the sale of the magazines is legal based on the Supreme Court ruling.

"Students have a right to say what is sold because the Campus Center is run by students, and we do have the right to say what is sold or not," she said.

Chase said most people have never questioned the ramifications of pornography in our culture, or the difference between pornography and erotica.

"What we wanted was erotica, what we got was pornography," she said. "People have been accepting this as the norm."

She said the distinction between erotica and pornography is that "pornography has a link with violence, non-mutual power play, and degrading images."

Student pornography opinions mixed

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

Student reaction to the Undergraduate Student Senate's resolution urging the University Store to stop selling pornographic magazines included both support for the resolution and concern for First Amendment Rights.

The resolution passed calls for a student referendum next fall to decide whether or not Playboy, Penthouse, and Playgirl should be removed from the University Store.

In a random poll yesterday, Sheila Hemeon-Heyer, an electrical engineering graduate student, said she believes "in free speech and freedom of the press but on the same token" believes pornography is "bad and derogatory toward women."

"I'd be all for removing them," she said. "I don't read them and no one I know reads them. But then again, I don't want that to lead to women who don't like make-up saying ban Glamour magazine. It could lead to bigger things."

Tim Maguire, a first-year student from Ashland, said he does not think the magazines should be removed.

"It's people's right to look at it if they want to," he said. "If they can sell them in a store in town, they can sell them here. People here are all over 18. I think they can make their own decisions."

Linda Sckalor, a senior human services major, disagreed with the First Amendment argument, and said supporters of the resolution are not saying "ban this."

"The idea is to get rid of images that violate and offend half the population of the earth," she said. "I wonder if that agrument would be used if men were portrayed offensively, if the tables were turned."

"People aren't saying 'don't be sexual.' They're saying 'I don't want to be afraid of being looked at as something I'm not'" Sckalor said.

One student said he disagreed with the idea of censorship, but suggested an alternative way of eliminating pornography.

"I think what should be done toward offensive pornography is that publishers and people should be persuaded against publishing such things," said Richard Vigeant, a senior communications studies major. "The people at large should be educated about the causality of pornography and violence against women. They really have to understand the cause and effect relationship between the two."

Other students interviewed said removing the magazines depended on whether or not there was a majority of people on campus who wanted to stop the sale of pornographic magazines at the University.

BOG defers magazine ban, senate plan

By RALPH ROBERTS
Collegian Staff

Members of the Campus Center Board of Governors last night expressed their disapproval of the Student Government Association's proposal to ban three magazines from the University Store without consenting the BOG.

While postponing a full discussion of the pornography issue until next week's meeting, Chair Michael Reilly said by not speaking with the board first, the SGA "has again failed to communicate with the BOG."

"Both groups are set up to represent students," Reilly said. "We might get much more accomplished if we discussed current problems with each other, rather than work around each other."

Along with the SGA's proposal was a suggestion to the BOG to reevaluate their current stand of possibly removing Playboy, Playgirl, and Penthouse from the University Store.

continued on page 3

Faculty request funding hike to aid Library

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Citing a declining and deficient University of Massachusetts library system that has dropped from 44th place in national rankings in 1973 to its current 86th position, the Faculty Senate yesterday passed a motion urging increased fuding.

The motion, according to faculty members, is directly aimed at helping UMass Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey convince the Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education that both the level and manner of funding for the library system is inadequate for a university of this size, making competition with other institutions difficult.

The National Association of Research Libraries, which conducts an annual survey of the country's top 100 research facilities, has continually downgraded the UMass library system in rank for the past 10 years, and more rapidly over the last five.

The library's biggest problem and major reason for its decline has been its inability to fill the shelves with journals, periodicals, and other research materials, Director of the UMass libraries Richard Talbot said.

"In the past several years our competitors have been spending more than us on such items which has led to our decline," he said. As a result, he said, UMass has been slipping behind colleges and universities of equal size.

Miriam Chrisman, chair of the Faculty Senate's Library Advisory Committee, told colleagues the system will continue to slip unless the regents change the way they fund the libraries.

"What we have to say to the regents is 'thank you, but what we want is [more than they are currently willing to give].' And we must say it over and over again," Chrisman said.

The University's fiscal year 1985 budget request for library acquisitions was $1.5 million, but the regents cut that figure to $500,000, which many believe is insufficient if the system is to increase its national rankings.

In March, Duffey attempted to make up for some of the money problems by allocating $94,000 from campus reserves.

Chrisman said it is important that people realize a problem does exist with the library system and help is needed now, otherwise UMass will slip down to last place behind the University of Mississippi, she said. "If we don't look out, it will happen."

In other action, the senate recommended Duffey appoint a high-level administrative task force to work with the University Computer Committee in looking into the future of personal computers on campus.

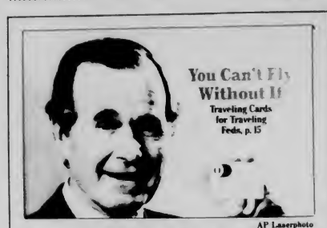
According to a committee report, "Personal computers have become a basic tool for learning." As a result the committee recommend that the University look closely at how funding for and acquisition of computers is to be made.

Howard O. Brogran, an English professor, spoke harshly of the theory behind the report, saying campus priorities are becoming cloudy.

"Here we have a library that is sinking and we can't get funds to buy books and journals...it's an exercise in futility," he said.

"It's a problem of priorities. After all, computers have to have materials to work on. Are we putting our money in the right place? We have to give materials a certain amount of priority."

Inside:



Concentration camp survivor tells of lessons of life p.3

Poet writes messages from dead p.3

Baseball, lacrosse action this weekend p.12

"I guess you could call me sort of a revisionist Marxist."
— Joseph Duffey (1968)

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

Vice-President George Bush smiles as he appears on the cover of "Management" magazine, a government publication, while hawking the Diners Club card, which is to be distributed to 350,000 government employees for use while on official business.

Tufts seeks to help Soviet Jew student

MEDFORD [AP] — Students built a mock jail on campus and Tufts University President Jean Mayer yesterday accused the Soviet Union of "blatant anti-Semitism" for refusing to let a young Soviet Jew attend school in the United States.

Misha Taratuta, a 23-year-old Leningrad resident, wants to study art and architecture but was denied university admission in his country, according to Tufts spokeswoman Maura FitzGerald.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul Basken
Copy Editor — Jim Finkle
Layout Technician — Steve Anderson
Photo Technician — Katie Watters
Production Supervisor — Will Hopkins
Production — Ellen Waxman, Kim Foster
Lynn Eisenberg, Marsha Wilcon, Michele Phelan, Shelley Witkiewicz, Ellen Nahigian, John Wielgus, Jane Hirshberg, Suzanne Lewis, Dode Levenson, Conor Plunkett

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Communists back French government

PARIS (AP) - Communist deputies in the National Assembly formally endorsed the policies of the ruling Socialists early today under pressure to toe the line on economic strategy or face expulsion from the government coalition.

All 43 Communists supported the government in the vote of confidence. The opposition conservatives cast 156 no votes. President Francois Mitterrand's Socialists hold 263 of the 491 seats and the final tally was 329-156 for the government, with one abstention and five absentees.

Had the Communists failed to support the government, it would almost certainly have meant the dismissal of four Communist Cabinet ministers and a complete rupture of the uneasy three-year political alliance between the two leftist parties.

With their majority, the Socialists were never in danger of losing the vote and being forced to resign.

The Socialists called for the vote of confidence to force the Communists to drop their open criticism of the government's economic austerity and industrial policies.

The implied threat was that anything short of support would bring dismissal of the four Communists who have held Cabinet posts since the left ended 23 years of unbroken conservative rule here in May 1981 elections.

The Socialists were betting that the Communists, whose share of the French vote has dropped from 20 percent to 10-15 percent over the past few years, would back down because their only hope of remaining influential was to stay in the government.

Armed unionist stopped near Mondale

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Secret Service agents, in the second such incident in recent weeks, hustled an armed union offical away from Democratic presidential contender Walter F. Mondale during a campaign appearance yesterday.

The man offered no resistance and was released a short time later.

He was identified by the Secret Service as William Polakowski. In Washington, Secret Service spokesman Jack Smith said agents released Polakowski after questiong and deciding there had been no threat.

Smith said Polakowski had a permit for he gun he was carrying in his back pocket.

He was reaching over between himself and Mondale, apparently to shake hands, when agents noticed a gun in his rear pocket. Mondale was talking to Polakowski at the time.

One agent locked the man's arm behind his back and rushed him into a men's room at the rear of a banquet hall where Mondale had been speaking to a $50-a-person reception.

Ray Majerus, UAW secretary-treasurer, said Polakowski had a permit for the pistol and had forgotten that he had the gun with thim.

Connecticut limits Seabrook payments

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - The State House of Representatives yesterday unanimously approved a bill aimed at preventing the use of Connecticut electric customers' money to bail out the beleaguered builder of the Seabrook nuclear power plants in New Hampshire.

"We are going to protect our ratepayers against costs being charged to them that should not be," said Rep. David Lavine, D-Durham, co-chairman of the Energy and Public Utilities Committee.

The 144-0 vote, which sent the bill to the Senate, came one day after officials of Public Service Company of New Hampshire suspended construction at the Seabrook 1 reactor. Work on Seabrook 2, the other reactor at the complex on the New Hampshire coast, was halted in September.

Joel Myerson
Editor in Chief

Bill Wall — Managing Editor
J.P. Shanahan — Production Manager
Andrew May — Business Manager
Josh Meyer — Editorial Editor
Drew Ogier & Dave Deuber — Photo Editors
Anne McCrory — News Editor
Gerry deSimas — Sports Editor
Minam Zoll — Women's Issues Editor
Lisa Mosley — Arts Editor
Yadira Betances — Black Affairs Editor

Monsanto to monitor for water pollutants

PRINGFIELD (AP) — Monsanto Co. will study whether the Chicopee River and soil near its plant were polluted for 34 years by chemicals, and, if necessary, clean up the waste, government and company officals said yesterday.

Monsanto promised the work in agreements with the U.S. Evironmental Protection Agency and the state Evironmental Quality Engineering Department, according to a Monsanto statement issued by personnel director Mike Starr.

The agreement follows a year of negotiations after federal officials ordered Monsanto last year to study the soil and water.

The government agencies said yesterday, the company agreed to "examine cleanup alternatives and implement and monitor any necessary cleanup actions."

Starr said the study will cost about $600,000. It will begin this month and possibly end this fall, he said.

Hippity-hop your way into someone's heart with an Easter Card!

AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Located in the Campus Center

AMERICAN GREETINGS
...for that special person

Easter Cards
...for sharing and rejoicing in the beauty of the season.

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

After Nazi death camps, survivor says 'never give up'

By PAUL DESMOND
Collegian Staff

A survivor of the Holocaust came to Smith College yesterday to bring a message of hope and thanks after spending six years in Nazi concentration camps.

Author, historian and journalist Gerda Klein spoke, often emotionally, to about 75 people at Smith's Neilson Library.

"It is impossible to talk in terms of millions," Klein said. She chose instead to talk in terms of two: herself and her childhood friend, Ilse, with whom she was sold on the German slave market in 1938 for the equivalent of $3.50.

Ilse gave her two very important gifts, Klein said.

The first was at Camp Gruneberg, where they both spent three years. At a time when all inmates were literally starving, Ilse found a single raspberry and, rather than eat it herself, gave it to Klein. The gesture moved her deeply.

"Can you imagine a world where all possessions become one raspberry?" she said.

On the "Death March," a 1,000-mile trek that only 120 of 4,000 Jews survived, Ilse gave Klein "the greatest gift of all." Just before Ilse died in Klein's arms somewhere in Czechoslovakia, she urged her friend to continue for one more week.

"A week at that time was a very long time," Klein said. But it was a week to the day after Ilse's death that the surviving 120 were liberated by American forces.

At that time, after six years of captivity, Klein was 21 years old, had white hair, and weighed 68 pounds. An American led her to his jeep.

"He did something I couldn't understand. He simply held the door open for me and in that simple gesture restored my humanity," she said. That American is now her husband.

Each year, on the anniversary of Ilse's death, "I always stop and look back on what that year has done for me...and ask myself, 'What have I done to deserve this and why has she been deprived?' " Klein said. "I don't know the answer to the question but I feel that the partial answer is to talk about Ilse and to make sure, somehow, that it never happens to anyone again."

Klein then offered some advice for coping with difficult situations.

"If you think there is no way out, never, never give up," she said. "The darker the night, the brighter the dawn. And when it gets really, really dark, this is when one sees the brilliance of the stars."

Klein is the author of All But My Life and the children's books, The Blue Rose and Promise of a New Spring. Her lecture was sponsored by the Five College Hillel and the Smith/Amherst Hillel Foundations.

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

A LONG AND WINDING ROAD--The route north from the campus cuts a curved path through the trees as viewed from the Graduate Research Center.

Indians tell students their government threatens them

By JULIA MAYCOCK
Collegian Staff

Representatives of the Mohawk community of Kahnawake spoke about the survival of the Mohawk Nation before an audience of approximately 150 people at the University of Massachusetts last night.

Kahnawake is located outside of Montreal just across the United States-Canadian border, where the St. Lawrence Seaway divides the two countries.

The Mowhawks said they are angered because the government of Quebec is considering the construction of a dam to produce hydroelectric power for sale to the Northeastern states.

However, representatives said the construction of Project Archipelago will cause flooding of the St. Lawrence River and the destruction of Mohawk land.

Mohawk representatives elicited support from the UMass community, calling upon students to voice opposition to Project Archipelago by writing to Canadian government officials and the Massachusetts legislature.

"You are the people who are going to make the decision whether the Mohawk Nation will survive or not," Mohawk Selma Delisle said. "If the dam goes through lives will be lost on both sides."

The Mohawks stressed the importance of communication and negotiation within their own community and the outside society.

"The way of the Mohawk is to talk solutions to the very end. Our weapons have been buried under the tree of peace," said Alex McComber, a teacher at the Survival School in Kahnawake.

"But if all else fails, we will defend ourselves in any way possible. We are being put up against the wall in the name of progress. We will not be the aggressor. We'll only protect ourselves," said Cookie McComber, another teacher at the school.

The Mohawks said the urgency of their message stems from their identification with the Earth.

"The land is what gives the Mohawks life," said Alex McComber. He said they believe in respect for nature and "all the creatures within the circle of the universe."

The Great Law of Peace dictates that the Mowhawks must provide for the next seven generations so that each act must take into account "all the faces yet to come," he said.

"The Mohawks are caretakers of the land," said Cookie McComber. "They do not own it. They protect it."

"Our message is that we want to make people aware that it's not too late to respect the Earth, our mother," Alex McComber said.

Before the construction of St. Lawrence Seaway was completed in 1959, Kahnawake encompassed roughly 35,000 acres of land, Delisle said. Now the community of 5,500 Mohawks live on less than 13,000 acres, she said.

"We're on a postage stamp," said Muriel Deer, another member of the Kahnwake community.

Delisle maintained that the Mohawks have their sovereignty. "But," she said, "we're not asserting it to the fullest."

The governments of Canada and the U.S. have violated the Two Row Wampum, an agreement that the Mohawks can coexist with other nations on Turtle Island (North America) without interference, Delisle said.

She told of the prophesy of two great serpents which would surround the Mohawk Nation, saying the Canadian and the U.S. governments were the vipers. Delisle said the snakes lay eggs and that UMass students were "hatched" from them. Then she asked how the members of the audience would fit back into the serpent or the mainstream society.

"Once you come out of your shell, you will have to make a decision," Delisle said.

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

John Peters (Slow Turtle), commissioner of Indian Affairs in Massachusetts

Poet finds his inspiration communicated by the dead

By CAMDEN PIERCE
Collegian Staff

By summoning the dead, poets find new meaning for the living, a distinguished poet said last night at the University of Massachusetts, in the conclusion of this year's Chancellor's Lecture Series.

"Poets need to tell the truth," said Paul Mariani, a professor of English at UMass who has published several books of poetry, as well as the acclaimed biography William Carlos Williams: A New World Naked.

Because living poets are subject to the weaknesses, the pressures, and the blindness of this world, they must summon the dead to gain "the perspective of their unblinking eyes," he said.

Mariani said he first became aware of the power of the human unconscious to summon the dead when he underwent self-hypnosis and "descended into the depth of his own private world." While in this hypnotic state, he said the image of the French poet Baudelaire appeared to him, and caused him to "record things I didn't know I was capable of saying." He titled the poem he wrote while in the hypnotic state, "Baudelaire at Gamma Level."

The tradition of poets summoning the dead is as old as the Greeks, Mariani said, but Dante serves as the prime example of a poet serving as a medium of communication between the living and the dead.

Because much of Dante's work is the "bringing into the vernacular" words of the dead, Dante communicates the reality of life, Mariani said.

"The dead say what really happened. The dead no longer have anything to hide," he said.

The tradition can be traced to the present through the works of such poets as Shelley, Yeats, Elliot, Pound, and Heaney, he said. The power of poets to evoke the voice of the dead dignifies the voice of the living, Mariani said.

"We should not be surprised to hear our own voices rising above the wasteland," he said.

Central America protest planned

The Amherst Disarmament Coalition is sponsoring a demonstration from 1 to 3 p.m. today to protest the Reagan Administration's policies in Central America.

The protest is being held on the Amherst Common during the end of holy week because "there's an element of being closer to one's faith and being more conscious of other people's suffering," Daniel King, a spokesperson for the University of Massachusetts Peacemakers, said.

Reagan seems willing to shoot first and talk never. Everything being done there [illegible] aggregate the situation," King said, referring to recent reports of the mining of Nicaraguan ports by the CIA.

--DAVID LINTON

★B.O.G.

continued from page 1

"As it stands now, we voted two weeks ago in favor of keeping the magazines in the store. This issue, however, is far from over," Reilly said.

Next week's BOG meeting should be the last dealing with the pornography issue, though, since he said it will be attended by representatives of people both for and against the magazines in the store.

Professor Roger Libby of the Home Economics Department said he will speak on the constitutional rights of the magazines to be sold at the store, while a representative from the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy will be speaking against the sale of the magazines.

BOG Vice-Chair Allison Hughes said it is "quintessential that the board hears from both sides (of the issue).

"So far we've really only heard from people who are against the magazines sales.

We are sure that there is two sides to it, and now it's important to educate all the board members before we make any more decisions," Hughes said.

Other disgruntled board members also chastised the SGA for bypassing the BOG's border lines in their actions.

"This isn't the first time that the SGA has usurped on to our grounds without even asking us for an input," said board member Laurence Cohen. "It's hard to work with them under these conditions."

BLUE WALL
18 + Welcome
A NEW SENSORY EXPERIENCE
Friday
"1984"
4/13
DANCE!
SOUND!
LIGHTS!
NIGHTCLUBBING
Live D.J. from WMUA
MIX MASTER MIKE
Happy Hour Prices 91 ¢ Cover

AMHERST BAGEL DELI
Now Open in FACES
The valley's freshest bagel
is now in Amherst
SPRING SPECIAL
15¢ a bagel $1.65 a dozen
Mon - Sun 8 am - 6 pm
253-9282

SUMMER JOB
Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard, and Nantucket have thousands of good paying jobs available to students and teachers this summer.
A Directory listing these jobs by employer also has housing info and job application forms.
For an immediate copy of the 1984 Directory, send $3.00 (includes 1st Class Postage and handling) to:
CAPE COD SUMMER JOB BUREAU
Box 584-Room 212
Barnstable, MA 02630

DELANO'S
our APRIL Special
Kronenbourg
Proper ID a Must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
Valid Mon - Thurs
Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610
FREE CONSULTATION

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's Ice Cream

ADELPHI UNIVERSITY
offers graduate studies for
The Master of Social Work degree in VERMONT
Part Time and Full Time
Advanced Standing for qualified applicants
Work Study Options for Experienced Workers
Rural Social Work Concentration Available
Call or Write Today:
Adelphi/Vermont Program c/o Trinity College
Burlington, Vermont 05401 Phone: 802 863-5731

ICELANDAIR IS STILL YOUR BEST VALUE TO EUROPE.
LUXEMBOURG
ROUNDTRIP FROM:
$499 NEW YORK
$509 BALTIMORE/WASHINGTON
$560 DETROIT
$569 CHICAGO
ALSO LOW COST SERVICE TO PARIS, FRANKFURT AND NICE.
REMEMBER, ONLY ICELANDAIR FLIES YOU TO THE BREATHTAKING BEAUTY OF ICELAND, AND INCLUDES ALL THESE EXTRAS:
■ Free deluxe motorcoach from Luxembourg to select cities in Germany, Belgium and Holland. ■ Bargain train fares to Switzerland and France. ■ Super Saver car rentals from $69/week in Luxembourg. ■ Free wine with dinner, cognac after.
Super APEX Fares: May 1-June 9, 1984. 7-60 day stay, 14 day advance purchase required Icelandair to Luxembourg. Lunair connecting service to other destinations. Purchase tickets at U. S. All fares subject to change and government approval. See your travel agent or call 800-555-1212 for the toll-free Icelandair number in your area.
ICELANDAIR
NOW MORE THAN EVER YOUR BEST VALUE TO EUROPE

Join us in celebrating the Asian American Student Association's 10th Anniversary at our
"Asian Talent Night"
There will be a party immediately following the show.
Admission for the two events will be free.

Date: April 20th, 1984
Place: Campus Center Auditorium
Time: Show 7:00-9:00 pm
Party - 9:30 pm-1:00am
Dress: Semi-Formal (no jeans & sneakers)

RT. 47 SUNDERLAND
You must be 18 to enter
Open 'til 2
665-4937
24 Hour Taped Message
The rusty nail Inn
PROUDLY PRESENTS
Tonight
THE STOMPERS
$6.50 cover
Saturday
TALKING DRUMS
$6.00 cover
Tickets on sale Wednesdays in the Campus Center

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Pricing education too high

At the urging of private colleges and universities in Massachusetts, the Board of Regents has attempted to alter the higher education marketplace by shifting the industry's critical resource from public to private hands.

That critical resource, of course, is students, particularly those in the college-age group. Their numbers will drop by more than 35 percent by 1990.

The tuition policy recently approved by the Regents will strengthen the ability of private colleges and universities to compete against public institutions for this dwindling pool of students.

Jack Polidori

According to Chancellor John Duff, the Regents have taken a "bold step forward" with the adoption of a tuition policy that may well cause the doubling of tuition rates by 1990.

That spells access problems for students. Then again, that's precisely the intended effect. But the tuition policy is not an isolated incident. Good boxers throw punches in combinations.

Private colleges and universities propose as an accompaniment to the doubling of tuitions at public institutions a five-fold increase - from $40 million to $190 million - in state scholarship funds, also by 1990. By law, 75 percent of those funds are allocated to students attending private institutions.

As private-college costs skyrocketed over the past decade, a growing number of middle-class families joined their working-class and minority counterparts by turning to Massachusetts' public colleges and universities. The Regents' new tuition policy hopes to make private colleges more attractive by making public schools more expensive.

Students of lower-middle-class and lower-class families won't have the same options as the middle-class students. They reside on the margin of the price curve. For them, the more likely choices will be the armed services, low-paying service jobs and part-time pursuit of studies.

Particularly at peril are the students at the nine remaining state colleges. Having evolved out of their original role as teacher-training institutions, these residential colleges have modernized their curriculums, responding to students' desires for additional business and computer-science offerings.

Because of a state policy of low tuitions, these colleges have been the doorways of opportunity for children of working-class and minority families.

The gamble in the Regents' policy is that these children will follow the signposts to private institutions. But if they don't, they will more than likely find themselves on a dead-end street, priced out of higher education at a time when the state's post-industrial economy grows increasingly dependent on a highly educated work force.

The source of this policy contradiction can be traced to the ideological headwaters of the Regents.

The policy body sprang to life under former Gov. Edward J. King in 1980. Aware of the power centralized in the board, King entrusted its stewardship to business leaders who shared his distrust of the public sector: James Martin, chief executive officer of Massachusetts Mutual Life; David Beaubien, vice president of the high-tech firm of EG&G; James Howell, chief economist for the First National Bank of Boston; David Paresky, chief executive officer of Crimson Travel; and Ray Stata, chief executive officer of Analog Devices, among others.

The working-class and minority people who avail themselves of public higher education in large numbers were drastically underrepresented on the board.

King's appointees are still on the board, under a progressive, Democratic governor who, in 1982, campaigned vigorously against the large tuition increases sponsored by his predecessor and who persuaded the Regents during his first year in office to go along with his request for a one-year moratorium on tuition increases.

But requests from Gov. Dukakis to the Regents to proceed slowly and provide for public input before the adoption of the tuition policy went unheeded.

A fundamental question of values now confronts the governor. At stake is Massachusetts' post-World War II policy of low tuitions for public colleges and universities: a continuing testament to the political aspirations and economic hopes of working-class people.

As a self-described "low tuition guy," Dukakis must decide whether to fight to protect that tradition. If he does, he may have to move beyond the no-conflict, consensus-oriented style of his second administration and cross the line drawn by ideological adversaries on a board that he does not control statutorily or politically - yet.

Or, he can sit back, allow implementation of the policy, and lay the blame on a board he did not appoint. In the meantime, caught in the cross fire are the children of working-class families, whose dream of going off to college may soon be a distant memory.

Jack Polidori is a communications consultant with the Massachusetts Teachers Assn, and was formerly chief negotiator for the Mass. Society of Professors/Faculty Staff Union. Reprinted from the Boston Globe.

I'd like you to meet my...

There are some people in this world who are "lucky in love." These are people who can end one relationship on a Tuesday afternoon and have a new one going strong by the following Saturday night. The same people who attract romance the way Pepsi and garbage trucks attract flies.

I am not one of those people. The problem isn't meeting somebody, (or somebodies) nice. I know lots of nice people, and some of them even think I'm nice, too. The problem is my clumsiness with the words that accompany romance; the terminology of relationships.

For instance, what do you call someone who's, er, "more than a friend?" I've discounted the following terms for the reasons indicated:

Boyfriend/Girlfriend: How high-schoolish can you get? These words are fine for Barbie and Ken, but adults need something with a little more sophistication.

Lover: Maybe it's my Roman Catholic upbringing, but I think this one's too far at the other end of the spectrum. Despite being a modern woman, there is no way in hell I could look my grandfather in the eye while introducing someone as "my lover," without blushing and choking. Or being choked.

Elizabeth Luciano

Partner: Unless said by Ginger Rogers or Fred Astaire, this word is just too mechanical. It sounds like the couples who use it are always cuddling up to re-read The Hite Report together.

Significant Other: Too wordy. You'd never have time to say anything else. It's kind of cold, too.

Sweetheart: Although I personally am an advocate of this word, --I think it denotes warmth and respect--my classier, more dignified friends tell me that it went out with the Edsel. So you'll have to decide on this one for yourself.

Dreamboat: I'm interested in men, not sea-faring vessels, thank you.

That's not the only problem. Once you've decided what to call The Person, what do you call The Romance, itself?

Dating: Kind of passe. Besides, it reminds me of dates. As in the fruit. Okay, that's weird, I admit it. But nevertheless, the word is out of the question, as far as I'm concerned.

Seeing Each Other: I always picture two people, just staring at one another, for hours on end, when I hear this phrase. So much for that.

Going Out: Going out to where? The Pub? Northampton? North Dakota? Granted, I'm no grammarian, (as evidenced in this column), but I'd really welcome a little clarification, here.

Having a Relationship: Most people who use this term are big fans of Leo Buscaglia, who writes books about how everybody should love everybody else. Not that it's not a great idea, or Leo's not a great guy, but Having a Relationship smacks of pop-psychology. Sorry.

See what I mean? Plowing through the terminology is almost enough to make a person give up on love. But not quite.

Elizabeth Luciano is an unattached Collegian columnist.

Letters

One can make a difference

To the editor,

I am writing in response to the column in Thursday's Collegian, by Mazen Iskandar.

It was the most powerful and touching account I have ever read in the Collegian. That a man would be willing to risk his life for the welfare of the suffering, dying people around him is the most noble and respectable way to spend those precious teenage years. I refer to Mr. Iskandar as a man because, although he was a teenager at the time, he displayed the inner strength, determination, and maturity of a person well beyond his years.

Striving to heal the horrible damages of war, amidst tragic situations he could not change, Mr. Iskandar revealed the strength with which one person can endure.

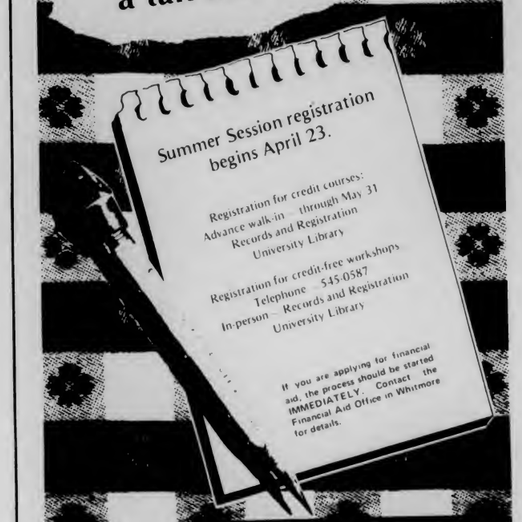
You, Mr. Iskandar, have not wasted your life in what you have accomplished. It is we who have wasted time pursuing selfish goals when there is the essential goal of peace to be won. Now we know that one person can make a difference.

Kimberly Ronca
Southwest

We need columnists!
Drop by with a piece, CC 113

THE WOK

Rte. 9 Hadley, Ma.



Special Appearance
Friday and Saturday

BRAFT

Fri & Sat Open till 2 a.m. 586-1202 proper attire required
available for private parties

Get more than a tan this summer.

DCE CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

ON-CAMPUS JOBS
VALUABLE EXPERIENCE and TRAINING

I WANT YOU

If you are an upperclassman or a graduate student, we will train you to discuss the financial needs of your University with its alumni.

Telefund will pay $4-6 an hour for your time a few evenings a week. You will talk to alumni from all walks of life, from every type of profession about the University Alumni Fund.

HIRING FOR SUMMER

Telefund is located at Memorial Hall.
Stop in and pick up an application
or call us at 545-3509
if you have any questions.

Black Affairs

Author speaks on ethnicity

By DARLENE JACKSON
Collegian Staff

Relating his experiences as an aspiring black writer struggling to achieve fame in a multi-cultural and multi-lingual society, John Wideman spoke on America and the Ethnic Experience Wednesday at the University of Massachusetts.

Wideman read from his paper "Black Fiction and Black Speech" as a basis for his discussion.

Wideman said he wanted to write books his relatives could read while also reaching all people.

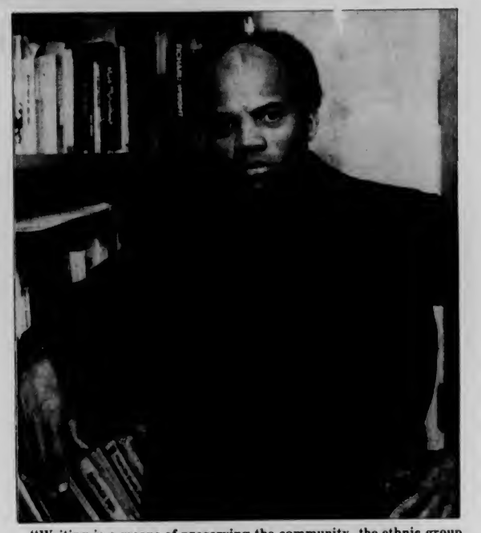
"My books are my laboratory. I was learning how to write," he said.

Wideman is the author of several novels on the black experience in America. He is a Rhodes scholar graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and is presently a professor of English at the University of Wyoming.

He said he did not want to write to a specific group of people, but to a wide audience to expand his own frame of reference.

"I was university trained, (and) university educated. You don't begin to guess what the best is, people tell you what the best is. Lessons, styles began to creep in," Wideman said. "I was becoming acculturated," he said.

Wideman said he took linguistic courses to understand what was referred to as black mainstream speech. "My writing has been transformed by Afro-American studies and literature," he said.



He said he was learning a new language to tell about his experience. "The inside of black speech is just as important as the outside," he said.

"To protect ourselves as critics and artists, we are forced to jump back and forth," he said. "In contrast to Tom Wolfe, I can go home again. Afro-American is conservative and it gives you a chance to go back," he said.

Writing is a form of display as well as a mastering of a craft, Wideman said. "Once you have the fundamentals mastered, then you can jive around."

"I don't want to know where I'm going. I want to get there and deal with them."

"If you are dealt a multi-cultural background, it is something to build on. Writing is a means of preserving the community, the ethnic group as well as the writer," Wideman said.

"Writing is a means of preserving the community, the ethnic group as well as the writer," John Wideman

DRUM to feature Jackson

By DARLENE JACKSON
Collegian Staff

DRUM, the literary magazine of the Third World community at the University of Massachusetts will have the lion's share of this year's effort going to Democratic presidential hopeful Rev. Jesse Jackson, said Nelson Stevens, DRUM coordinator and professor in the Afro-American Studies Department.

"We are dealing with him as a world figure in terms of his consciousness and his effect," he said. "I think the world is looking at a slightly different 'view' than the United States white population and we tend to reflect some of that in the magazine," Stevens said.

The magazine will contain interviews with Mary Barraca and LeRoi Jones regarding Jesse Jackson's campaign and Jones' thoughts on contemporary America, Stevens said.

There will be an interview and article about Quincy Troupe, who Steven considered "one of the great poets of our time."

Troupe publishes a contemporary magazine in New York called The American Rag. Stevens said he would like some ideas from Troupe regarding DRUM and hopes to "build a bridge between that community and ours," he said.

The magazine will also contain an interview with producer and fight promoter Don King.

"We are dealing with the art of former students here at UMass. During the 70's, there were maybe 15 or 17 black students in the art department," Stevens said.

Stevens said DRUM's feature artist will be John Kendricks who graduated from UMass with an MFA. John Kendricks died two years ago of a heart attack.

The magazine will also feature an article on the recently deceased Marvin Gaye, he said.

"90 percent of the articles are generated and written by students," Stevens said. "In previous years, we have had professional writers submit things. They like and support our magazine, but the magazine is really the students'," he said.

Stevens said he hopes to publish the magazine by the close of this semester. Due to late publication, last year issue missed the competition for the Columbia School Journalism Award which it had successfully won the previous year, he said.

"This year's magazine," Stevens said, "is in direct competition with our best magazine, which was last year's, which was about Dr. King; which I believe helped to make his birthday a holiday," he said.

"This year, we believe that we will put out a magazine that will rival any publication anywhere in terms of content and in terms of form," Stevens said.

"It will be an artistic informational piece for black people about their contemporary culture," he said.

Announcement

An evening of black classical music featuring a multimedia presentation on the life and work of composer, arranger and performer Mary Lou Williams will be held Monday April 23 at 8 pm in Hampden Theater, Southwest and Thursday April 26 in Webster's main lounge in Orchard Hill.

Playing will be Barry Haq (saxophone), Raqib Hassan (saxophone), Mark Weidenfeld (piano), Fred Gibbs (bass) and Claire Arenius on drums.

The Collegian is now accepting applications for the positions of:

ASSISTANT ADVERTISING MANAGER and ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES for Fall '84.

Deadline is Friday April 20
Pick up application at the Collegian office
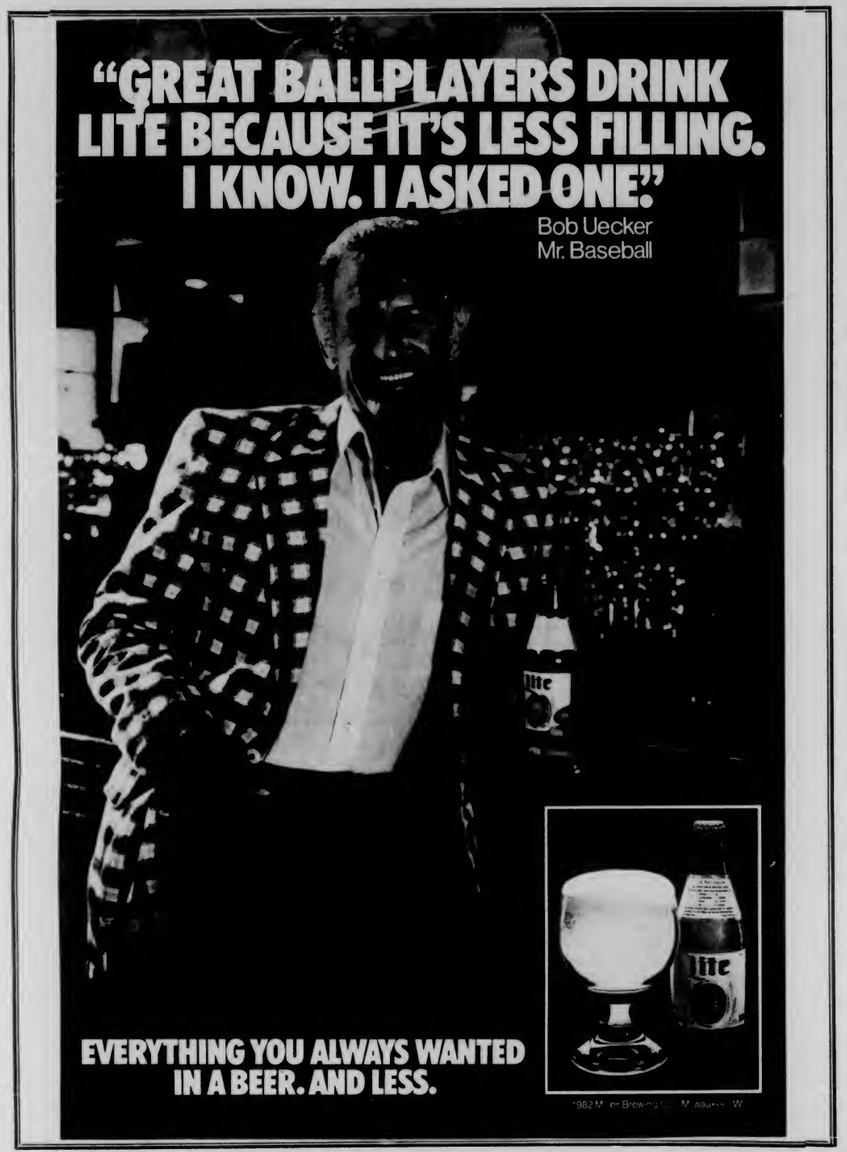
between 8:45 and 3:30

FOUR SEASONS



Location: On Route 9 In Front of Mountain Farms Mall
Just a quick jaunt from free bus stop at Hampshire Mall

GENESSE BEER	bar bottles	$6.95
GENESSE ALE	bar bottles	$7.95
NEW MILWAUKEE'S BEST	cans	$7.99
BUSCH	bar bottles and cans	$8.99
STROHS	cans	$9.99
ST PAULI GIRL	bottles	$13.99
VODKA and GIN	1.75 L	$7.99
RUM	1.75 L	$9.99
GILBEY'S GIN	1.75 L	$12.69
SMIRNOFF VODKA	1.75 L	$11.99
PHILLIPE PEPPERMINT SCHNAPPS	1.75 L	$8.99
ALMADEN TABLE WINES	3 L	$7.99
GALLO TABLE WINES	1.5 L	$3.99
GALLO VARIETALS	(3 kinds) 1.5 L	$3.99

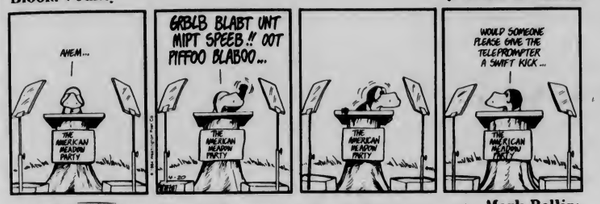
George Duboeuf 1983 Beaujolais has arrived

And don't forget - your empties are welcome here.

Beer Balls - Kegs - Cups
Free Delivery

安城中國餐館
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7835

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880



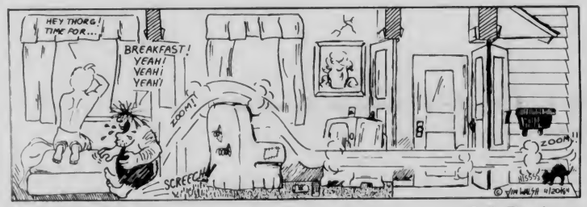
amc THEATRES
$2.99 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW
HOLYOKE 6 RT 5 FARMS 6 584-5153
ROBIN WILLIAMS
MOSCOW ON THE HUDSON
(2:00 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:45
What an Institution!
POLICE ACADEMY
(2:00 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:45
TIMOTHY HUTTON
ICEMAN
(12:15 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
GOLDIE HAWN KURT RUSSELL
SWING SHIFT
(2:30 & 5:00 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7506
FRIDAY THE 13TH
THE FINAL CHAPTER
(1:45 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:55
From the Boys Who Brought You Animal House
Splash
(2:00 & 4:30 @ $2.00) 7:30, 9:30
GREYSTOKE
THE LEGEND OF TARZAN
(1:30 & 4:15 @ $2.00) 7:00, 9:45
MICHAEL DOUGLAS KATHLEEN TURNER
For a fabulous treasure, they share an adventure no one could imagine...
Romancing The STONE
(2:15 & 4:45 @ $2.00) 7:15, 9:45
THE CYPRESS LATE SHOWS
FRI & SAT NITES SEATS $3.50
The Rocky Horror Picture Show
Groovetube
Pink Floyd - The Wall
The Keep

ARTISTS!!!
Juried Student Art Show
* Grand Prize $100 *
2nd Prize $50 - 3rd Prize $25
April 31 - May 2 CC Music Room
for more info 545-0198

CAR STEREOS • ALARMS
SUNROOFS
Sales and Installation
Call us BEFORE you buy.
SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main St., Amherst 253-9341

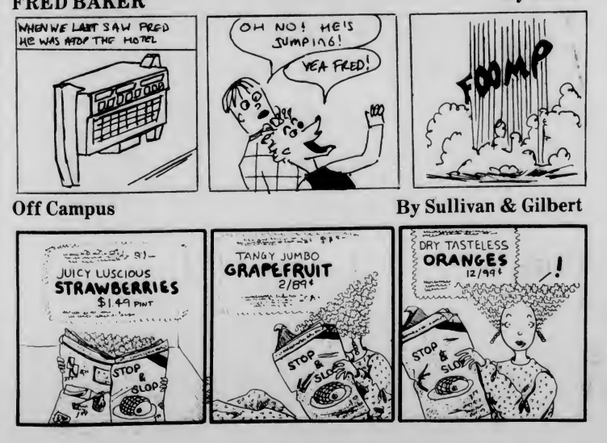
SUMMER STUDENT EMPLOYMENT BUDGET OFFICE, UMASS/AMHERST
Responsibilities include data collection, file maintenance, and general office assistance. Accuracy a must. Twenty hours per week May 15 through August 31. Possible employment during academic year. Send letters and resumes attention of: Fred Goodhue or Gail Matthews, Budget Office, Room 343 Whitmore. Salary $3.90 - $4.10 per hour.

Bloom County by Berke Breathed



The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

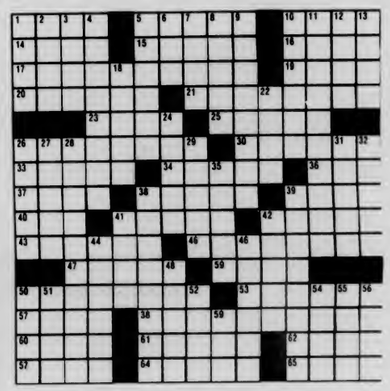
ZED P.V.



Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

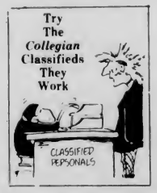
FRED BAKER By T.A.D

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe



©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Feed the kitty
5 Lobster or salmon
10 Unwelcome weather
14 Wild sweet cherry
15 Frankie of refrain
16 Prefix with trooper
17 Labored
19 Sig. feature
20 Seem
21 Quagmire problem
23 Historical divisions
25 Rawboned person
26 Undercover
30 Aptitude
33 Alternate
34 Industrialist Cyrus
36 Publicize
37 Deposited
38 Romero or Chavez
39 With competence
40 Mil. newcomer
41 —— four
42 Certain footwear
43 More disconsolate
45 Farthest out
47 Wait on
49 Tabloid section
50 Gourmet's specialty
53 Skulk
57 Undaunted
58 Awkward
60 Calf's cry
61 Amigo's farewell
62 Music arrangement
63 Toy chest item
64 Dormouse
65 Game units

DOWN
1 Moslem leader
2 Kind of tide
3 Cover, for short
4 Made beloved
5 Table wine
6 Sculling need
7 Singer Jenny
8 Special people
9 Editor
10 —— cord
11 Wieldy
12 Not stereotyped: Abbr.
13 Entryway
18 Enthusiastic
22 Oil-rich land
24 See 10 Across
26 Feet features
27 Mythical eagle rider
28 Simple task
29 Arafat
31 Blue and White rivers
32 Secret meeting
35 Potato, in some areas
38 Associated with 10 Down
39 Car owners
41 Impudent
42 Go for a drive
44 Sign over, as by a document
46 Bother
48 Musical piece
50 "Dear ——"
51 Game played with mallets
52 Native ruler
54 Rent
55 Give off
56 Vintage cars
59 Startling word

Candidates Night
Monday at 7:00
In the Commonwealth Room
Next to S.U.B.

Weather

Fair Sunday and Monday. Cloudy Tuesday. Daytime highs in 50s Sunday and Monday, and in the 40s Tuesday. Overnight lows in the 30s Sunday, and in the upper 30s and 40s Monday and Tuesday.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	M	E	N	A	T	I	C	I	A	M	A	S
S	E	N	A	T	O	R	I	A	L	C	H	E
T	I	M	I	D	A	T	E	A	G	I	L	E
N	O	D	D	E	D	■	L	O	N	E	L	Y
■	■	S	P	E	A	K	E	R	P	R	O	D
A	L	O	■	A	M	O	E	■	S	O	T	O
L	I	T	T	L	E	M	A	■	A	T	T	Y
S	T	A	T	E	S	■	C	O	S	T	A	R
S	T	R	E	S	S	■	S	T	A	T	E	S
■	■	■	S	A	N	D	■	■	■	■	■	■
P	O	I	N	T	■	A	N	A	■	S	H	E
A	N	A	T	E	M	I	C	■	G	E	A	M
A	T	E	D	I	A	T	E	■	G	O	L	F
T	I	N	E	S	S	E	S	■	A	V	E	S

Arts

Trailers by Andy Gordon

There was some surprising negative reaction for this column's decision to discuss Friday the 13th Part IV in anything but a negative manner. To heck with that, the picture is a genre film, and even if the genre is the particularly sick slasher genre, it still must be covered for what it is. I can't really defend the genre; explicitly documented murder can't be a good thing for our society to be treated to semi-annually, but as long as it does exist, one might as well fill their pockets with beers, forget they're a college student and go have a good time. In defense of the new film, however, I will say they have smartly returned the audience's sympathy to the victims and kept the subjective camera to a bare minimum. What was particularly upsetting about the earlier films was the director's decision to overuse subjective camera, a device which puts us in the role of killer.

Jason ruins Bruce Mahler's day.

Speaking of slasher films, HBO this month is showing a fascinatingly different one. Titled The Unseen and starring Barbara Bach and Sydney Lassick, the flick plays games with the normal conventions of the slice-and-dicers. One particularly excellent sequence comes at the climax of the film; Bach is on the ground outside, frantically crawling away from the hatchet wielding killer, and out of nowhere comes the ex-football player hero, charging forward to save the day. Typical, right? Wrong, the hero gets like thirty feet from her when his knee goes out and he falls to the ground helpless. Brilliant stuff. Stephen Furst, (Flounder from Animal House) turns in a bizarre tour-de-fource as Junior, Lassick's demented son kept locked in the cellar.

I would like to mention that today the Graduation speech review committee is convening to go over the student speeches submitted and selecting several for that fateful day in May. Many good speeches have been submitted, some even from writers from this paper. A film writer even submitted one from what I understand. In any case, I think the committee is doing a heck of a job and deserves a lot of credit. That out of the way, I can get off my knees and talk about movies some more.

National Lampoon writer John Hughes has set up house in Hollywood and is taking over the motion picture industry. Last summer he wrote the very successful Vacation, adapted from a short story he wrote for the magazine. He followed that with less successful but nevertheless attention getting screenplays for Mr. Mom and Nate and Hayes. He's partly responsible for the upcoming Ghost Busters, an outrageous Bill Murray/Dan Akroyd comedy based on the Abbott and Costello classic, and now he's been signed to write and direct two back to back adolescent comedies. The first, Sixteen Candles, stars Molly Ringwald (the daughter in Tempest) and is scheduled for release on May 11. Ringwald also stars in Hughes' next film, Breakfast

Jason interrupts Peter Barton's relaxing shower.

Club, about a group of complete opposites forced together by high school detention. Emilio Estevez (The Outsiders) and Ally Sheedy also star.

Local Best Bets: Someone just asked if Splash is a good film to see this weekend. Yes, it is. Swing Shift, with Goldie Hawn, opens today at the Mountain Farms and the Amherst Cinema has The King of Comedy and Broadway Danny Rose. The Academy of Music has The Dresser opening tonight. L. Marie Cantwell considers the film a forerunner to a projected new wave of furniture films. The Hampshire 4 still has Greystoke, a rich, lush, furniture-filled film, and the Mt. Farms has Iceman, considered to be an inadequate picture, furniture-wise.

TRAILERS Trivia: The film Baby it's You featured Michael Stewart, All My Children's Tad Martin, and my old Stuyvesant High buddy Vinnie Spano. No one got it right. This week's question: The fellow getting his head crushed like an egg in the photo above starred in what recent crummy T.V. show? The first correct answer will receive eight sheets of blank typing paper. Good luck, and Happy Easter to all those silly old gumper bunnies out there.

WIN WITH THE HOT SPOT!

$99,300 IN CASH & PRIZES.

HOW

1. Sign up at a participating merchant and be eligible to win our Grand Prize, $9,930.
2. Show your Hot Spot button to any participating merchant and win an immediate discount.
3. Put a Hot Spot bumper-sticker on your car. If we spot your sticker, we'll announce your license plate number on the air. Then you call the station and you're a prize winner.

WHAT

Listen for details on

THE 99.3 FM HOT SPOT

Easter Sunday Buffet

featuring a festive buffet which includes Steamship Round Seafood Special Salad Bar and many other selections from 11:30 am to 3:30 pm

$8.95 Adults

$4.50 Children

Please call us today and reserve a special table for your entire family at 549-6000 extension 639.

TOP of the CAMPUS

Restaurant & Lounge

11th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER UMASS

Spring Clothing

Skirts • Blouses • Shawls

India Print T-Shirts

SPECIAL

Cosmic Zoo T-Shirts NOW $8.00

EARRINGS - EARCUFFS

THE MERCANTILE

Open Daily 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Amherst Carriage Shops

18 Center St., Northampton

Hypercurricula...

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day they take place. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

KABBALAT SHABBAT — at 6:30 p.m., 72 Triangle St., Amherst.

SHABBAT SERVICES 7p.m. Friday night, Dukes Room.

VALLEY WOMEN'S RUGBY GAME! — Witness the Valley's Best Ruggers pit their strength and skill against the National Champs: Beantown. Elegant Violence — watch the destruction! Saturday 1 p.m. kickoff at Rugby Pitch, Boyden Playing fields.

RADICAL STUDENT UNION MEETING — Discussion on U.S. aggression against Nicaragua. Everyone welcome Sunday at 7 p.m. at SUB 413

EASTER SERVICE — All are welcome to join us for the Easter Service of the Amherst Area New Testament Church. Come celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ! Sunday at 10:15 a.m., see Campus Center Schedule for room number.

LECTURE: "AZUL DE RUBEN DARIO" — A lecture by Professor Diana S. Goodrich of the department of Romance Languages, Wesleyan University on Azul De Ruben Dario."

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Monday - Friday • Deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Receiver, tape deck, great speakers, turntable $250/BO call Zoe 546-5253

Gerwin-Vega Speakers Vector receiver Akai deck Sony turntable - almost new reasonable offers call Matt 253-3907

AUTO FOR SALE

74 Ford Maverick. A.T., P.S., many extras, some rust, but reliable. Best offer. Phyllis 5-2364 or 665-3441 late eve.

1973 Duster good condition very reliable new brakes $550 584-7455

73 Chevy Caprice auto, PS/PB good cond. 665-4117 $1450

Foxy Fiat X1/9 low miles excellent condition 3500 BO call Larry 256-0080

Ford Mustang 1979 for sale good condition. A/C stereo miles 36000 call 549-0056

75 Datsun rebuilt engine 950 or BO Kathy 549-4035 snow tires

CAPE COD

Female roommete wanted in Falmouth Heights on the beach summer call Kate 6-4017

I need room in Hyannis near Dunfeys call Michelle 5-0527/549-6559

EASTER BASKETS

Send one to your friends sign up Wed Thurs Fri in Hamden (Southwest) or call 546-7294 546-7268

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

PROFESSIONAL DJs FOR LESS 4 years Quality Service at UMass. Why pay more? 256-1393

New Teen Titans #1. This weekend at Moondance Comics.

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt 315$/month all included swimming pool tennis courts call Jose 665-7633

4 bed houses - Country setting with acres near city. Other near Smith College. $525 without utilities. For Sept. Call Northampton 584-3428, 5-6 pm, Skibiski, Realtors

Responsible persons wented for 2 rooms in Amherst house w/lg yard. Summer and fall. $150 plus. Call 253-3362 Peter

Millhollow Apt by Puffers waterfall on bus route take over June 1 549-2731

Room in house from now and June, very close to campus. $200 includes. Quiet serious only. Call 6-10 PM John 549-1358

One bedroom apt in CLiffside, summer sublet w/fall option 295 mo utilities included 665-4706

Looking for one or two quiet persons for one bedroom in Brandywine Call Laurie or Mike evenings 549-5416

1 bedroom Brittany Manor AC 2 pool tennis partially furnished fall option beat the rush rent negotiable Andy 256-8498

Four bedroom house, large yard with garden, cool in summer available June 1st with fall option call 253-3968

Townehouse Apts - 3 bedroom apt. 1 double room and 1 single room available Cheryl 549-5990

Female wanted nonsmoker for summer sublet and fall option, own room, pool, bus route, $150/month plus utilities, call 253-7806 evenings

Available now 1 bdrm apt on bus rte 31 Mill Hollow Apts Amherst 549-1602

FOR SALE

Airplane Ticket good enywhere in US on TWA good thru 5/24/84, 546-6629

Guild Electric Guiter w/case exc. cond. $195. or BO Scamp Amp - brand new $90 call Gary 665-3013

FOUND

Found: Jacket in front of East Experiment Station March 15th. Call 546-7061 and describe to claim.

Fnd Red Leather Jacket at Elvis if yours enter classified with descrip pf pocket contents, your name & num I'll get in touch

Light jecket found near Graduate Research Center lowrise on 4/18. Describe to claim. Call 545-1309

Amy E. Magnant!! I found your purse in the Coffee Shop. Call me at 256-6659

HELP WANTED

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

Babysitter Mid June to end of August. 8 am to 3 pm Four 5 year olds. Car necessary. Letter to C. Goldstein 811 East Pleasant Street, Amherst

Cruiseships Hiring $16,000-30,000! Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-(916) 944-4444 X Massachusetts Cruise

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Yemehe 650E excellent condition. Low mileage must sell $995 6-5039

PERSONALS

Pleese teke over our lease as of June 1st. 2 bedroom apartment, Sunderland, on bus route, wall to wall carpeting, A/C, dishwasher, $325/month + electricity, hot water FREE. Call anytime - 665-4278

Collegian Steff Elections for Board of Editors will be Wednesday, April 25, from 9:00 to 8:00 all staff members (business, graphics, and newsroom!) eligible to vote

Collegian Steff candidates for editors' positions will heve a debate Monday, April 23 at 7:00 in the Commweelth Room (next to Student Union Beliroom) all staff members should attend. Know what you're voting for.

Lost in Presidentiel Apertments - blue pocket-size bag. Keep the dope and a $15 reward, just give the pipe back - sentimental call 549-4778

Teach in Massachusetts complete employment listing of all public and private schools in Massachusetts---plus latest openings! $8.00, Betterway, PO Box 2153, Centerville, MA 02634

CHATA muchas gracias por esta semana inolvidable tuyo Phillip

Hey Murph, It's been a fantastic seven months. Luck's on our side. All my love KLK

CRIS,

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

I LOVE YOU

DONNA

Think you're a victim of consumer ripoff? Call LSO 545-1995

To the cute busdriver with black hair cashing his check on April 18. I'm watching you! Karen

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

REWARD FOR STOLEN VEHICLE

1979 White Mercury Monerc with green landau roof taken from Lot 21N sometime Wednesday April 11 584-0242

RIDERS WANTED

Bus going to April 23 Grateful Dead concert in New Haven. Call for detials 546-4308

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommete wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

2 female roommetes wanted to share 3 bedroom Puffton apartment call 549-5487

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1 with fall option call 549-0137

Responsible roommate(s) needed beginning June 1st to share Riverglade townhouse call 253-3949

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1st with fall option 549-6715

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite 253-5111

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leeving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurent - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Southwood Apts summer sublet will negotiate rent call Sherri 253-2268

Rolling Green apt available June 1st with fall option all utilities included call Paula 253-2897

Summer sublet only. Fully furnished. Must be seen to appreciate. Negotiable call 256-8788

Puffton apartment available for summer sublet. 3 bedroom call 546-4790 Cory or Lisa

Share house for summer 150$/month a beautiful 4-bedroom house. It has kitchen walk-in pantry dining living rooms more than one space. Within walking distance to UMass 546-5186

Townehouse Apts 2 bedroom from June 1 to August 31 rent negotiable call Joe 549-0902

One bedroom apt at Crestview, summer sublet w/fall option, availa June 1 360/mo 549-2641

Room in house fall option negotiable Main St 256-0967

Townehouse Apt - large single room on bus route 1 mile from campus. Normally $150, will sublet for $100/mo Ann 549-5990

Apt. available for summer in Puffton. Price negotiable. Please call 546-7986 or 546-7968

TO SUBLET

From June 1 with fall option two bedroom on Sunderland bus route 330/month call 665-8314

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

Fully furnished 2 bdrm Southwood Apt call after 10 PM cheap 256-1318

Summer sublet with possible fall option. Large bedroom in two-bedroom Southwood apartment for one or two females. 256-8379

Townhouse apt available for sumemr 549-0711

3 bedroom Puffton summer only 110/room Kathy or Luann 549-4035

Female wanted for own room in Rolling Green apts available June 1 graduate or older student preferred call evenings 256-0304

Arlington Mess (next to Cambridge) Juen 1 - Sept 1 $234/month gorgeous house 617-643-3726 keep trying

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

Brandywine 1 br furnished June-Sept pool 549-5825

For summer: 5 bedroom house on Main St. next to bus stop 256-6352 Sue

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

4 females looking for house/apt near campus or on busroute willing to take over summer lease & fall opt 6-4349/4347

Very generous reward for a 2 or 3 bedroom apt at any major complex call Brad or Dave at 546-6782

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted 3 bedroom apt in Puffton summer sublet w/fall option call 546-9978

Easy to live with fun loving looking to share apartment. Prefer near campus call eves, Lisa 546-5517

1 bedroom apt Puffton for summer and fall call John, Bob 546-7444 Reward

Two bedroom apartment Colonial Village will take over summer Mike 546-6161

Sports

Gorillas are out to eliminate the Elis

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

Garber's Gorillas will try to make it three in a row this Saturday as the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team (3-2) hosts the fourth ranked team in New England, Yale University (4-5) on Boyden Hill.

Yale has been coming on strong and is probably the most improved team in New England. They are led on attack by Adam Snow who is coming off of a four goal, two assist performance in their 13-5 win over Harvard. They also defeated Boston College 18-6.

"They've had one of their better teams this year. They're a real good team and are real aggressive defensively. They play a pressure type of defense. Against Hofstra, we were able to do what we wanted offensively. I respect Yale's defense," said assistant Coach Eric Kemp.

"Yale is a big squad who likes to control the ball and slow the tempo of the game down. They're a well coached club who like to take their time in setting up a play and play a slower game because of it.

"They don't have the depth that we do. Their top players are just as good as ours, but they will play a lot and get tired. We have to play a hard game defensively and play our game and run. We're playing pretty good, solid defense and yesterday we played great," noted Kemp.

In last year's contest with the Elis, it was a seesaw battle for much of the way as UMass led 6-3 at halftime only to have Yale come back and cut the lead to 8-7, before the Gorillas finally scored four unanswered goals of their own to put the game out of reach and win, 13-8.

The team was still buzzing about its big 12-5 victory over Hofstra on Wednesday. The Gorillas, ranked 13th in the country, are looking to move up in the rankings for a possible shot at the playoffs. They will be helped by Harvard's 13-11 win over Brown on Wednesday as well.

Coach Dick Garber had nothing but praise for his team and its impressive performance. He talked about the improved play of two of this starting attackmen and the fine play of his goaltender.

"Tom Lukacovic and Mike Fiorini had some tough luck last year. We have been working on some moves for them, and they are moving the ball better, so it's paid off, Gerry Moreau made some really big plays against Hofstra. Each game he's playing better and better. He's directing the crease really well. Seamus McGovern has also been a big factor. He has been super on face-offs (winning almost every one in the important opening quarter)," added Garber.

Baseball hosts URI for three

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Well, it's kill or be killed time for the University of Massachusetts baseball team this weekend against the University of Rhode Island. The schedule calls for three games (doubleheader today 1 p.m., single game tomorrow 1 p.m.). UMass is in a must sweep situation. Anything less and it's goodbye for the Minutemen from contention for the Atlantic 10 tournament.

It's been an uphill struggle for UMass since they returned from New Mexico with a 4-9 record and were promptly swept in three games by Temple. UM has won 7 of the last 11 games, including a doubleheader sweep over New Hampshire on Wednesday.

The top performers for the Rams include pitchers Tom Messier, Joe Ward, and Tony Hill and catcher Dave Haring. Messier threw a no-hitter at Murray State in March.

Haring clubbed two grand slams in the game against Kentucky Wesleyan, setting a URI record for most RBI's in a game (8) and most grand slams in a game (2).

Coach John Norris is in his 15th season at Kingston and has won 149 games, second only behind Frank Keaney (177 wins) in URI baseball history.

UMass Stat Look: Steve Messina leads the Minutemen in hitting (.385), RBI (31), Home runs (5), and triples (2)...Messina has completely turned it around from 1983 when he hit .225 and drove in only 5 runs...Steve Allard's fine performance vs. UNH Wednesday lowered his ERA from 19.45 to 13.50...The lowest ERA on the staff with more than two innings worked is 4.57, which belongs to Tony Presnal...Matt Suboez has pitched only 16 innings all season, giving up 28 hits and 18 runs, yet has four wins...UM has ten players hitting over .300. The team batting average is .317. However, the opponent's average is .327, including 28 home runs.

Collegian photo by David P. Dember

James Knopf (24) checks on the UNH runner while Jeff Cimini waits at first in Wednesday's game. URI is in town for 3 this weekend.

WMUA Sports branches out

For the first time ever, WMUA-FM (91.5) Sports is covering UMass baseball games. The station covered a doubleheader against New Hampshire on Wednesday.

WMUA will air the Rhode Island game starting at 12:50 p.m. on Saturday.

Brian Murphy, the sports director, and Dave Goldfield are doing the play-by-play.

"I know that I have had a lot of fun this year covering UMass sports for WMUA," Murphy said. "I never knew how hard it was to announce a sporting event, but believe me, it takes a lot of work and preparation. I've spent many a weekend night reviewing an opponent and trying to learn as much as possible on the team."

Murphy and Goldfield also teamed to work on UMass basketball this past year. Football was also covered by the station.

"We are sports junkies who love what they do," Goldfield said. "We take a lot of pride into what we do.

Murphy said that the station's goal is to provide the latest and all the sports news that they can.

"It requires a lot of time and effort," Goldfield said, "but we have fun."

— GERRY deSIMAS

Softball marathon next week

By Gerry deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Some people are amazed that the minor league baseball teams in this country can play every single day for the entire season, except for washouts.

In college, a schedule like that is unheard of. The closest anyone comes to that is the baseball team which has at least three-four games a week.

Next week, the University of Massachusetts softball team, who face Harvard in a double header at NOPE Saturday at 1 p.m., will top that. They are going to be involved in some marathon softball next week.

Thanks to yesterday's washout of a doubleheader at UConn, Massachusetts will play five doubleheaders in six days next week.

That is 10 games in six days or eight games in four days. And you thought the minors was tough.

Fortunately for UMass, four of the five doubleheaders will be at home. Here's the big picture: Central Connecticut comes to NOPE for two on Tuesday. Wednesday is a day off. Thursday New Hampshire, who UMass trounced 17-0 last weekend, come to Amherst for two.

Friday are two of the biggest games of the season as Rhode Island comes to town for two. UMass and URI are fighting for an Atlantic 10 playoff berth and UMass needs a sweep.

Saturday, UMass is off to Storrs for two with Connecticut and on Sunday the marathon comes to a close with two with Temple at NOPE.

As a reward for successfully completing this trial, the Minutewomen will get a week off with their next game being the Atlantic 10 championships, if they qualify.

NOTES — This week, UMass takes on HARVARD on Saturday for two at NOPE starting at 1 p.m. UMass now sports a 19-7 record.

Women's novice bout a winner on the river

By ELLEN HASKINS
Collegian Staff

HADLEY - The Law of Conservation of Matter states that matter cannot be destroyed. The University of Massachusetts' novice four crew proved this law invalid as they annihilated the Trinity College crew last Saturday on the Connecticut River. The UMass shell sliced through the 1800-meter course in 8:11, a full fifteen seconds ahead of the Trinity boat.

"We pulled away in the first twenty strokes," said coxswain Deborah Jezior, "and they never challenged. It was the first time I've ever seen smiles on the women's faces as they were racing."

The UMass varsity eight crew did not have as much to be elated about as the finish line flag tipped first to the Trinity eight. Trinity crossed the line at 6:15 with UMass trailing six seconds behind.

Trinity caught a fast start and 200 meters into the race found them four seats up on the UMass shell. Despite Trinity's higher cadence (rowing 33 strokes per minute as compared to UMass' 31) the UMass women never let Trinity capture more of a lead than the four seat margin.

"We had a poor start, all eight blades didn't move together," said coxswain Beth Millette, "But we never let them walk away from us."

The women's schedules are open this weekend. The UMass women will be preparing for the Valley Girl Championship to be held next Sunday at the Hadley boathouse. Smith College, Mount Holyoke College, Amherst College and UMass will align and attempt to earn the Pioneer Valley title.

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXVI, Issue 58 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Monday, April 23, 1984

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Index workers talk to interested students in the Campus Center Friday.

'84 yearbook Index at UM may be the last

By LISA MARIE CANTWELL
Collegian Staff

1984 will be the 102nd and possibly the last publication of the University of Massachusetts yearbook, the Index.

The Student Government Association (SGA) Budget Committee voted late Thursday night to cut off all funding to the nation's second oldest continuously published yearbook.

According to Joseph Sparks, chairman of the budget committee, a combination of past mismanagement of money along with a large-scale decrease in allocatable Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF) money, led to the committee's decision to deny funding.

Index Editor-in-Chief Kevin Fachetti said they are surprised and angry at the decision handed down by the committee. "It is important to students, and is the only thing you can take with you that reflects your college years," he said.

The Index submitted a $39,000 budget for the 1985 production, and the committee cut $12,000 from the request.

"They (Index editors) told us for $28,000 the Index would not get out," Sparks said. In response to this, the committee voted to reject all funding because "if it is not going to be produced at that amount, why give them the money," Sparks said.

A history of mismanagement was also a factor in the committee's decision of zero allotment. Currently there are an estimated 2,400 1982 yearbooks stacked in the Campus Center, "waiting for customers," said Index Managing Editor Cindy Orlowski. "The demand for the '82 books is not there," she said.

SGA co-President Rick Patrick said, "the way I see it, the yearbooks in the past have been wasted, thrown away. This is obviously not the best use of student funds."

Fachetti admits that there have been management problems in the past, but said the actions of the budgets committee are unwarranted.

"1984 will be the first book delivered on time," he said, and past problems should not be applied to a staff currently meeting publication deadlines on time.

continued to p. 5

Amherst drug raid nets $104,000

AMHERST (AP) — An Amherst man faces arraignment Monday on drug charges stemming from a raid by state troopers and Amherst police netting $104,000 in cash.

Bruce Crawford, 34, charged with possessionof marijuana and hashish and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, was released on personal recognizance pending the court session, police reported Sunday.

The raiding party, armed with a search warrant, confiscated $104,000 in cash and about one third pound of high grade marijuana Friday night, the Springfield Union reported.

"I think it was the most money ever confiscated in a drug raid in this district," District Attorney W. Michael Ryan commented.

State Police Lt. George W. Powers said it appeared the raiders arrested a major drug supplier in the University of Massachusetts area.

Officers said Crawford, a self-employed antiques dealer, was at work when they arrived at the house, but returned with his attorney.

Police said the money was in a safe and had been counted into piles of $1,000 each. They reported finding drug-related paraphernalia, including two scales, pipes and plastic bags.

Residents protest planned Louis' move

By MARGE DEACUTIS
Collegian Correspondent

After a demonstration outside Louis' Foods supermarket on Saturday, representatives of about 25 community organizations began circulating petitions asking that supermarket owner Richard Vincent not go through with his plans to move the store from downtown Amherst.

Members from organizations for the elderly, the physically disabled, and athletic and student groups gathered outside the N. Pleasant St. store at 2 p.m. Saturday to protest the proposed move to a site on the corner of Amity Street and University Drive.

Bob Weiner, a member of the Grey Panthers, an advocate group for the elderly, said many residents of Amherst housing for the elderly located downtown use Louis' for food shopping.

Besides being convenient, the shopping trips provide the only exercise some elderly residents get, Weiner said.

More than 25 people stood in front of the store, carrying signs saying "We love Louis' where it is" and "Better to be small and successful than big and bankrupt."

Vincent asked the Amherst select board last week to consider rezoning the Amity street property for commercial use so he can build a complex that would include a new Louis' Foods, plus office space for rent.

The area is now zoned for offices only. Vincent told selectmen the project is geared toward community development.

"We want to provide an atmosphere that is far different from that seen on Route 9," said Vincent.

Selectman Dick Minear said this project seems to be "geared towards a community on wheels."

Vincent does not want to move Louis' Foods, but Phyllis Rodin, a member of the Grey Panthers, said Vincent's rent has recently tripled.

"This is the result of not having rent control," Rodin told the board.

Rodin is concerned with what would go into the space that Louis' Foods occupies now. Another bar? She sees the move as a threat to the life of Amherst.

However, the main concern is the effect the move would have on the elderly community. For many of the elderly, the only recreation they get is from their trips to the conveniently located market, said Rodin.

"The Board should brainstorm and find a way to help Louis' stay," said Weiner. "Louis' may be able to expand on their own ground."

The Board of Selectmen will not make any decisions until the Planning Board makes recommendations. Meanwhile, the Grey Panthers plan to meet this Thursday at the Ann Whalen Lounge to gather support.

Hunger in U.S. to be debated tonight

Two authors of a Harvard University report on the "American Hunger Crisis" will debate two members of a Presidential Commission on Hunger in America on "How much hunger is there in America?" at 8 p.m. tonight in Thompson 104.

The debate will kick off the Southwest Fest United to Fight World Hunger, a week-long event sponsored by the Southwest Area Government (SWAG).

SWAG co-President Dave McCarthy said the four will also debate the effect that Reagan Administration social service and economic policies have affected hunger in this country.

Betsy Rollins, executive director of Community Kitchens in North Carolina Episcopal Churches, and Dr. Kenneth Clarkson, director of the Law Economics Center at the University of Miami, will take the Reagan position that hunger in the United States has not reached critical proportions, McCarthy said.

J. Larry Brown, who directed the Harvard study, and Lewis Feldstein, dean of the Antioch Graduate School in Keene, N.H., will argue that there is a "hunger emergency" in the United States, McCarthy said.

Inside:

University Store manager says they'll keep selling their Playboy magazines.....p.3
At last, a cure for hic-cups.....p.5
Wear a yellow star to remember the Holocaust.....p.7
Regents ignore students and officials by voting a $167 tuition hike.....p.7
Gorillas outlast Yale.....p.16

"There is nothing new under the sun."

—Ecclesiastes

World and National News

Reagan on peace mission to China

HONOLULU (AP) — President Reagan told an Easter Sunday audience on an island steeped in the nation's military history that the United States is determined to avoid war and pursue peace "by remaining strong and remaining ready."

In remarks prepared for delivery at welcoming ceremonies at Hickam Air Force Base here, one of the stops on his approximately 11,000-mile flight to China, the president said he was beginning "a long journey for peace."

"The mission we undertake is another careful, yet sure, step toward peace and friendship between the Chinese and American people," he declared.

Reagan, in resuming his slow progress toward China, wound up two days of rest at his California ranch Sunday morning and headed for another day of relaxation and briefings in Hawaii.

Reagan described the nation's evolving relationship with China as "one of the critical developments in our country's post-war foreign relations," and one that has taken more than a decade to develop.

"This week, we hope to continue the process of reconciliation," said the president, who has long been a vociferous critic of the communist People's Republic of China and an ardent supporter of the Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan.

In Peking, meanwhile, there was a report Saturday of a bomb threat against Reagan. But there was speculation that the police report was simply intended to encourage a hotel where the president will give a dinner to tighten its security arrangements.

AP Laserphoto

REAGAN SPEAKS AT HICKAM — A flower-lei bedecked President Reagan speaks to a crowd assembled at Hickam Air Force Base in Honolulu, upon his arrival yesterday.

State House back to budget debate

BOSTON (AP) — The Masachusetts House embarks on another marathon budget debate this week after making little initial progress on the $8 billion spending plan for the commonwealth in 1984-85.

The House hearings on the state budget are usually wrapped up within five days. But this year the lawmakers only made it to page 37, then decided to take last week off due to the religious holidays.

The hearings, set to run 12 hours a day through Friday, resume today.

House Republican Leader William Robinson says he'll continue his battle to have about $30 million in additional state aid sent to cities and towns in fiscal 1985, which begins July 1.

The Melrose Republican has skillfully used the TV cameras and lights in the chamber to draw more attention to the GOP proposals.

During the first week of debate, some legislators looked like they wanted to crawl under their desks when Robinson got up, stared into the cameras and listed how much extra state money every Massachusetts city and town would lose unless his bill was approved.

Lawmakers said they felt pressured from Robinson's gambit and feared telephone calls from constituents, who might have seen the floor debate on live television or a clip on the 6 p.m. news and wanted to know why they weren't doing all they could to aid their district.

But the maneuver was rejected on the first two votes when legislators stuck by Gov. Michael Dukakis's plan to supply an additional $157 million in local aid to cities and towns in fiscal 1985, which begins July 1.

The Massachusetts Municipal Association endorsed the original local aid plan in January, saying it was adequate to cover local costs.

"It's been a very good debate — the kinds of debates we always should be having," Robinson said last week.

"Once those klieg lights come on and the cameras roll, the legislators realize that people are watching and they act differently — usually for the better," said Robinson, whose party holds only 29 of the 160 sets in the House.

The debate has been slowed by a leadership challenge to Speaker Thomas McGee and increased by the Republicans to play a larger role in the process.

McGee, whose firm control of the House went unchallenged for his first eight years in office, must contend with a challenge for the speaker's position in 1985 from his one-time top lieutenant, Rep. George Keverian of Everett.

Guilt ridden taxpayers return money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conscience bothering you, only a week after the income tax deadline? Can't forget about that little item you kept from Army days? Want to help reduce that monster budget deficit? Or just grateful to be living in the United States?

If so, the government has a special place for you and your money.

The Treasury Department's bureau of government financial operations handles four special accounts for Americans who want to contribute something extra to the government — or want to clear their conscience about something they should or shouldn't have done.

The oldest account is the Conscience Fund, set up in 1811 when "somebody sent us $5," William E. Douglas, commissioner of the financial operations bureau, recounted in a recent interview.

Douglas said the biggest reason for sending in the money has to do with "the feeling that they have done something they shouldn't have done or should have done regarding the country or government very broadly."

One man confessed he had "misappropriated" a $5 pair of bathing trunks from the military. Two decades later, he sent in $13.85 to cover the cost of the swimsuit the public debt may be better known because IRS Commisioner Roscoe Egger included a message inviting such contributions with this year's tax returns. He noted that such gifts are tax-deductible.

Through April 13, the IRS said, 1,705 of this year's returns included checks totaling $217,189 to erase some of the $1.4 trillion-plus deficit. The smallest contribution: one cent. The biggest: $40,000.

AP Laserphoto

TORNADO DAMAGE — Residents of Water Valley, Miss., return to an area of their town devastated by a killer tornado Saturday night. The tornado cut a path 100 yards wide destroying homes and a shopping center. At least 50 people were injured and 7 killed.

AP Laserphoto

REFUGEES — These were among about 1,000 Thais who abandoned their villages near the Cambodian border for the safety of the interior Sunday as Vietnamese shells strayed into Thailand. The Vietnamese continued their shelling of Ampil, a Cambodian resistance camp on the central tier of the Thai-Cambodian border.

The Collegian
1984 Board of Editors

Andrew May, Business Manager
Joel Myerson, Editor in Chief
Josh Meyer, Editorial Editor
Drew Ogier & Dave Deuber, Photo Editors
Bill Wall, Managing Editor
Anne McCrory, News Editor
Gerry deSimas, Sports Editor
Miriam Zoll, Women's Issues Editor
Lisa Mosley, Arts Editor
J.P. Shanahan, Production Manager
Yadira Betances, Black Affairs Editor

Today's Staff

Night Editor — John O'Connell
Copy Editor — Mary-Sheila Loughlin
Layout Technician — Ellen Waxman
Photo Technician — Andy Heller
Production Supervisor — Ed Tausky
Production — Laura Zigman, Suzanne Lewis, Dode B. Levenson, Judy Hayden, Ansel Zinter, Pete Soderberg

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Collegian photo by Mitch Drantch

GOT IT! — Jeremy Seeger makes a flying grab as Zoo Disc breezed through the New England Ultimate Frisbee sectionals.

Porno media "unlikely" to leave campus stores

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

Though an ad hoc committee on campus pornography has succeeded in gaining the support of the Undergraduate Student Senate and a second vote by the Campus Center Board of Governors to recommend the banning of three magazines from campus stores, the manager of the University Store said it is unlikely the publications will be taken from the shelves.

W.L. Cummings Jr. has taken a strong First Amendment stance and said the issue may be reconsidered if students vote overwhelmingly in a referendum to ban the material.

So far, following the senate vote, the store has received several dozen calls on the subject and response to a ban is split 50-50, Cummings said.

"We have a responsibility as a bookstore not to let the group pressure us into removing an item that quite a number of students purchase," Cummings said, noting that 200 to 300 copies of Playboy, Penthouse and Playgirl magazines are sold each month, down from 500 in the past. "We aren't promoting pornography-those books are very quitely displayed. They're there and if people want to hunt them out they can.

"We're an adult community; we're also an academic community, and we've got to try to avoid any kind of censorship," he said. "I'm not without sympathy for some of the people who are concerned, I can appreciate where they are coming from. But we've got to maintain our stance--we have that responsibility as bookstore people. The way to stop it is to get at the publisher."

A University Press employee who initiated the anti-porn campaign argues that pornography incites violence against women and said the effort to ban the magazines does not violate the First Amendment.

"We are not prohibiting (publishers) from making the magazines--people who want to buy them can go in town," said Deborah Murphy, a Press marketing assistant. "There is a difference between the state intervening to (end the production of) the Magazines and the community saying we don't want it (the materials) here."

Reagan's re-election could alter birth control legislation

By JULIE LANZA
Collegian Staff

The use and availability of certain birth control methods could become legislatively restricted if Ronald Reagan is re-elected and current abortion legislation is altered, according to local pro-choice activists.

Representatives from the Family Planning Center in Northampton and Mass-Choice in Springfield said if Reagan is re-elected he will have the opportunity to appoint at least two Supreme Court Justices who would share his anti-abortion views.

If this happens, they said, it is likely the 1973 Roe V. Wade Supreme Court ruling that legalized abortion would be overturned and, subsequently, the use of birth control methods like the Intrauterine device and certain forms of oral contraceptives would be outlawed.

Ellen Story, who works for Family Planning, explained that the I.U.D. alters the environment in the uterus so implantation of the fertilized egg can not occur. If any changes in abortion laws occur, the I.U.D. and the mini-pill could be placed in the same legal category as abortions, Story said. They could be labeled "abortifacients", or methods "that would cause an abortion to happen," she said.

"Then the only methods that would be legal in this light would be the barrier methods - the diaphragm,foams and condoms. Also, most forms of the Pill would not be made illegal," Story said.

Ms. Humphrey, a member of Mass-choice, called the abortifacient issue "a piece of the whole (pro-choice) issue." "But it is just not often mentioned by anti-abortionists, they focus on the abortion issue itself because it is "controversial and emotional," she said.

Humphrey said the possibility of birth control regulations or prohibitions was "not unlikely." In terms of the actions of Right-to-Lifers' advocates and legislation acts against abortion, their control over contraceptives is a "natural progression," she said.

"I think that the reasons behind why Right-to-Lifers are doing what they are doing has to do with how they think society should be and their picture of how women would fit in there; that they should be back home raising children, the way it used to be. The idea of women having more control over their bodies and reproductive cycles is very threatening to them," she said.

Humphrey said many pro-choice advocates take the rights women now have for granted, and don't make themselves vocal enough.

"I think that young women today don't realize what it would be like if many rights weren't available. They don't realize the impact it would have if abortion wasn't legal," she said.

In addition to possible changes on the national level regarding abortion laws, there is currently anti-abortion action on the state level. On May 9, the State Legislature will vote on a proposed amendment to the state constitution that could, if passed, cut state fundings for abortions. If the legislature passes the amendment it will become a binding referendum on the November ballot and Massachusetts voters will decide whether or not to make it law.

Story said many people believe the amendment will pass in the legislature and approved on the ballot. She said many people in Massachusetts believe abortion should be kept legal but "draw the line" at funding.

"This amendment would also certainly open the door for a lot of other measures that would be very intrusive and difficult for a lot of people to live with if they believe that abortion is a choice and a right that women should have," Story said.

Story noted that Massachusetts was the last state in the union to legalize the use of contraceptives by married couples in August of 1966.

"So Massachusetts does not have a sterling history in terms of reproductive issues," she said.

Bomb threat forces police to evacuate UMass library

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts police said a threat that a bomb had been planted in the Library Tower yesterday afternoon caused them to sound the fire alarm and evacuate more than 300 people from the building.

No bomb was found, police said, and the building was reopened at 7:45 p.m.

According to library security guard Andrea Morris, a female called library security from an on-campus phone and said there was a bomb planted in a paper bag on one of the upper floors set to go off 40 minutes after her phone call.

"It could have been someone who had been refused admittance," Morris said. She said threats to security personnel are common.

"I've been threatened to have my head cut off with a chainsaw," she said.

Police took measures to keep people away from the area after the 5:20 p.m. evacuation, but at about 6 p.m. a man who would not identify himself walked out of the tower. The man said he had been in the Plato room on the seventh floor and did not hear the alarm clearly.

"Not until I got out (of the room) did I hear the alarm," he said. "I heard a buzzing but I thought it was some sort of light," he said.

At 6:25 p.m., police entered the building and searched for the bomb. The building was reopened at 7:45 p.m. police said.

While waiting for the library to reopen, sophomore political science major Jonathan Bruce said, "I'm just mad that I'll have to wait another hour." About 30 other people waited for the building to be opened but the crowd slowly dispersed as it became evident that the wait would be long.

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's News Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

An all-day conference titled "Breaking the Connection Between Sex and Violence: The Case Against Pornography," will be held this Saturday, from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. Guest speakers include Sharon Sales Belton, who is involved in an effort to regulate pornography in Minneapolis, and Lauri Lewin, ex-stripper and author of the book "Naked is the Best Disguise: My Life as Stripper." Various workshops will be conducted throughout the day, followed by a martial arts demonstration and the film "Not a Love Story."

Monday — The Women's Issues Team will meet at 4:30 p.m. in CC 165.

A lesbian health workshop will be held at 7 p.m. in the Women's Center at Hampshire College. Topics will include sexually transmitted diseases, and the advantages and disadvantages of coming out to your health care provider.

Republican U.S. Senate candidate Mildred Jefferson will speak on "Why the Republican Party is Best for Women and Minorities," at 8 p.m. in CC 905.

Tuesday — Judith Kaye, the first woman justice of the New York State Court of Appeals will speak on "Personal Perspectives of lawyers and judges" as part of the Harland Fiske Stone Law Society lecture series at 8 p.m. in the Babbott room of the Octagon at Amherst College.

Wednesday — The Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom will meet at 4 p.m. in CC 801.

Thursday — Several representatives from the Boston Lesbian and Gay History Project will present a slide show depicting lesbians and gays in the 19th and 20th century at noon in the East Lecture Hall in Franklin Patterson Hall at Hampshire College.

Contraceptive Education Sessions offered to UMass couples

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

Sexually active University of Massachusetts couples who want to learn more about safe and effective contraception can do so every Wednesday night at the Couples-Only Contraceptive Education sessions.

The sessions, which are facilitated by a co-ed team of Peer Sexuality Education (PSE) educators, familiarize couples with four specific birth control methods available at the University Health Center; the pill; the intrauterine device (IUD); the diaphragm and spermicides; and the condom with foam.

Chris Laird, a third semester PSE educator, said the couples-only sessions "are there so men can learn about contraception if they want to. We want to see more men concerned and interested in it."

Scott Holman, a senior management major and PSE instructor who teaches the couples-only sessions with Laird, said they try to "emphasize male involvement."

"A lot of men think only women should be concerned with birth control. Probably because birth control is designed (predominatly) for women," he said.

Holman said they try to encourage couples to talk about issues such as birth control and the possibility of an unwanted pregnancy before they have sex.

"A lot of statistics show that problems with lack of using birth control is linked with lack of communication between couples," he said.

Laird siad every woman student who receives a prescription contraceptive from the Health Center must have a "pink slip" which is awarded at the end of each contraceptive education session.

"It's more to give the practitioner an easier job" when women come to get birth control, she said. "It helps the women make an educated and informed choice."

Holman and Laird said they try to dispel some of the myths and false notions people have about sex and contraception. One myth they mentioned regarded "safe times" to have sex.

"A lot of men and women think there is a safe time during the month" to have unprotected sex, they said. "But there is no time that is 100 percent safe."

Laird said the couples-only sessions, which are held every Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in room 302 in the Health Center, "are comfortable" and "not purely educational."

Holocaust Memorial Day

On Thursday, April 26, all faculty, staff, and students will be invited to wear yellow stars. . .

- In memory of the 6 million Jews who were tortured and murdered in the Nazi death camps.
- In honor of those who risked their lives and gave their lives in the resistance movements throughout occupied Europe.
- In recognition of our commitment to work in solidarity with others resisting oppression and persecution everywhere.

Buttons displaying the yellow star will be available at central campus locations including: (Campus Center Concourse, Residential Cluster Office, Dean of Students Office, Whitmore) beginning April 23.

Complete list of events will appear in tomorrow's paper

Endorsed by:
Chancellor Duffey, Commuter Area Government Staff, Hillel, Housing Services/Residential Education/Maintenance Operations, Jewish Awareness/Anti-Semitism Task Force, Newman Center, Office of Human Relations, Office of Third World Affairs, SCERA, Student Activities Office, Student Government Association, United Christian Foundation, PGA, Graduate Student Senate, Anacanona Cultural Center, MLK Jr. Center, NE/Sylvan/Orchard Hill/Central Woman's Center, East Men's Center, Center for Racial Studies, Hamden Board of Governors, SWAG, Central Cultural Society.

LIFE AFTER LIBERAL ARTS

Don't Face Underemployment Because You Lack the Attitude and Aggressive Job-Hunt Skills Needed to Find the Jobs and Be the Best Candidate.

NATIONAL CAREER EXPERTS:
- RICHARD NELSON BOLLES - author of What Color is Your Parachute?
- KIRBY STANAT - author of Job Hunting Secrets and Tactics
- plus others...

- APPLY LIBERAL ARTS SKILLS TO THE JOB-HUNT
- HOW TO FIND THE 85% OF ALL JOBS THAT GO UNADVERTISED
- WRITE A RESUME TO GET NOTICED
- WHAT TO EXPECT AND HOW TO PREPARE FOR INTERVIEWS

Careers Without Reschooling, 4 one hour cassettes, is your personal job hunt seminar. The first three cassettes teach you all the skills and the fourth cassette is two informational interviews with liberal arts grads successfully working in exciting professional careers.
Liberal arts grads discuss how they got their jobs, what their careers are like, and how you may find a similar job.

#1. Editor & Copywriter
#2. Ad Agency Exec & P.R. Specialist
#3. Small Business Owner & Retail Management
#4. Stockbroker & Life Insurance Sales
#5. Fundraiser & Non-Profit Agency Management
#6. Real Estate & T.V. - Radio Production
#7. Counselor & Law Enforcement

YOU SELECT WHICH CASSETTE WILL BE IN YOUR SET.

All this for only $27.95!
Far less than what you may sacrifice in job-satisfaction and salary if you're underemployed.

CALL NOW! SAVE THIS AD!
1-800-356-5324 ext 1308
Master Card and VISA accepted
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR FULL REFUND!
ArGee Productions 905 University Ave., Madison, WI 53715 (608) 255-8480

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF

In Search of Excellence — Thomas J. Peters and Robert H. Waterman, Jr.

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

INDRANI & SUKANYA

"One of the most brilliant and joyful presentations of Indian Classical Dance"
Anna Kisselgoff, The New York Times

The Graduate School and The Graduate Student Senate invite you to attend the Graduate Forum, featuring Classical Dances of India.

Tonight

Monday April 23, 1984
7:00 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium
Free Admission

Cheese and wine reception following the recital.

The Graduate Forum is an effort by the graduate student community to develop a better climate for intellectual and social exchange.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

SHEAR BEAUTY — Diane Plosia puts the final touches on M'am, a Stockbridge sheep.

Cure for hic-cups still topic of debate

By CARL DEMROW
Collegian Correspondent

Doctors and just ordinary sufferers have been trying to solve the mystery of hiccups for centuries, and here in Amherst an acupuncture practitioner claims she has found a cure.

Rebecca Birkel, a licensed acupuncture practitioner, says that sticking your finger in your ear will cease the hiccups almost immediately. But a University of Massachusetts doctor disagrees, saying the old sugar on the tongue method has proven most effective in his home.

Birkel, 24, said she discovered the cure last August while vacationing with her fiance, who had developed a stubborn case of the hiccups.

The discovery was made by accident when Birkel stuck her finger in the man's ear in between the Chinese diaphram and stomach acupuncture pressure points in the outer ear. The hiccups ceased within 10 seconds, Birkel said.

Birkel, a graduate of the New England School of Acupuncture in Belmont, has since tested her method out on 20 hiccup sufferers such as friends, patients, and even strangers. The method has proven 100 percent effective, she said.

Index

continued from p. 1

Fachetti said the budget committee inaccurately cited lack of student interest in the yearbook, as part of their decision to cut the budget 100 percent. "We have petitioned students, and have collected over 1,000 signatures in four hours (on Friday). If we can get that kind of response, there is an interest," he said.

According to Fachetti the 1984 Index will be available to seniors at no cost, and to other students for five dollars, "by the first day of classes next fall." The 1983 Index, which encountered serious delays, is expected to be available this summer.

The SGA also maintains that the Index has not actively sought other sources of funding, relying soley on grants from the SATF. "If it is a credit to University history, then why is it the SGA is being stuck with the tab?" Sparks said.

U.S. Senate candidate will lecture at UMass

A Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate will speak on the roles of women and minorities in the Republican Party tonight at the University of Massachusetts.

Dr. Mildred Jefferson, a candidate for the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass, will speak at 8 p.m. in Campus Center room 902.

Among other issues, Jefferson will speak on "why the Republican Party best represents minorities," said Stephen Erikson, a member of the UMass Republican Club, which is sponsoring the speech.

The speech is the first in a series. Richardson is scheduled to speak on the steps of the Student Union Friday, Erikson said.

— David Linton

Democracy topic in Central America

A Nicaraguan exiled by the Sandinista government and a Costa Rican government official will speak on the overall situation in Central American tonight at the University of Massachusetts.

Nicaraguan Alvaro Montalvan and Costa Rican Jose Baldizon will address the present and future state of democracy in the region and from their perspective as rightist politically-involved Central American youth at 7:30 p.m. in room 904 of the Campus Center. They will also speak on human rights violations, and U.S. aid in the region.

Montalvan, forced into exile by the Sandinistas despite many years as an opponent of dictator Anastasio Somoza, has repeatedly told his first-hand account of how the Sandinistas threatened his family with death and set their house on fire while they were inside.

Baldizon has spoken from his perspective as a staff member of President Monge of Costa Rica and as Secretary General of the Liberation Party Youth.

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Monday and Tuesday
Gallipoli with Mel Gibson 7:00
Breaker Morant 9:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00 * (with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
*Valid with Barb & Julie only
Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
85 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610
FREE CONSULTATION

Feel Expensive!! Look Great!!

Expensive in every way, except PRICE!!

Hair styling for today's men & women at reasonable price;
$7.50 for a style
Marjon Hair Design
Rt. 9
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, MA 586-4551

Marjon Hair Design Inc

Hours: Sat 10-4
Tues thru Fri 10-6

Flagstone Cafe
CAMPUS CENTER
Located Outdoors on the 3rd Floor Terrace
Lunch: 11 am-2 pm/ Monday-Friday
Weather Permitting

Letters

The need to work together

To the Editor,

Physical violence against women has recently been the focus of the media spotlight — and it's about time. Slowly women are gathering their courage and their strength to combat the tremendous horror of violence and in particular, rape. In the struggle to erase the reality of rape from our society, a fundamental strategy is realized through consciousness-raising education. The media plays a key role in that education.

It is within these lines that I want to address a peculiar deformity in the progress of rape prevention. After having the opportunity to research the specifics through the guidance of the Everywoman's Center and its Violence Against Women Project, I am disturbed to discover that physically challenged women are seemingly invisable in rape prevention considerations. All those who share in the vision to make our world safe for all women must work together in our efforts. A coalition of physically challenged women, counselors, martial arts experts, etc. can create and adjust prevention techniques for various forms of physical challenges.

We want to take this opportunity to formally invite the community in this effort for input and participation through ideas, comments and suggestions.

Peggy Shaw
Amherst

Get involved

To the Editor.

Thank you Peter Graham for bringing up enough points of controversy to fill the pages of the Collegian for weeks to come. I too am outraged at the blatant violation of Mass. General Law Chapter 75 section 10. Why hasn't SGA passed any resolution opposing the administration's misuse of interest earned on our Activity Fee? Why aren't students more concerned about the misappropriations which ultimately lead to a need for greater tuition increases?

And speaking of tuition hikes, have you heard the latest brilliant proposal for a University Resource Fee? The Commuter News reported in their spring issue that the University of Massachusetts Amherst Building Authority wants to establish a new student fee. It actually calls for restructuring current fees which would lead to a decrease in tuition for on-campus students, while calling for an $150.00 increase for off-campus students. Not only that, but the restructuring that would take place to include the new fee would result in decreases in all other charges to students (like the Athletics and other fees). What would happen to the quality and quantity of activities supported by the fees they propose to cut? Finally, this is not the only tuition increase being proposed! Although tuition increases are to be expected, the type of increases being proposed are for the maximum increase that is allowed — 15 percent — for the next two years. The problem: financial aid will not be increased in proportion. And as has been pointed out before, this would effect the lower and lower-middle class students the most, and make UMass inaccessable to many of us. If we maintain tuition at its current level, or even lower it through more efficient and cost-effective management, we can continue to attract people from diverse backgrounds, and maintain the quality of the student body at UMass.

A final question: Why is financial aid so hard to come by? The answer: REAGANOMICS (which is geared totally to the containment of communism instead of to the development of our nation's future leaders and voters — us). What can we do? VOTE. GET INVOLVED with what is affecting YOUR LIVES, YOUR FUTURE, and the future of the University of Massachusetts. If we do not express our position on issues that concern us and make clear our demands, we cannot complain when our needs as students are not met. Criticism can be a positive influence in all our lives.

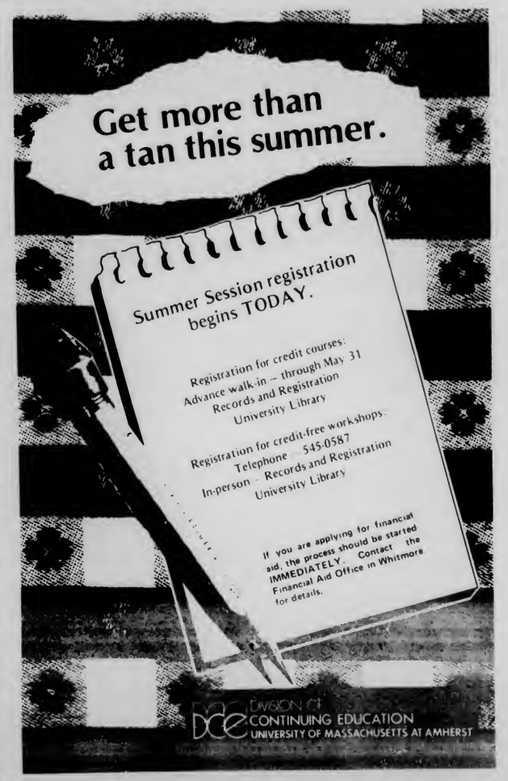
Kelly Scott
Amherst

SGA mistake

To the Editor,

The recent action of our "representative body" of students to eliminate funding for the student yearbook is dismaying. This representative body that I am referring to is the Student Government Association. The action that was taken by the Budget Committee reflects on the entire SGA and shows the lack of consideration that is given to many issues that concern students. As of this writing approximately 2000 signatures have been secured in petition of the abolishment of the Students Yearbook. An overwhelming response such as this clearly states that We Want Our Yearbook!

The Student Activities Office is largely an administrative office that oversees student activities. S.A.O. and UMass Transit received substantial increases in funding for the upcoming fiscal year. Although the Budgets Committee is not obligated to allocate any more money to other groups outside of S.A.O. and UMass Transit, rising prices and growth of groups has made increased allocation necessary. It is not hard to see the challenge that the Budget Committee has.



However, my concern is for the Student Yearbook. The group responsible for the publication of the student yearbook had been previously plagued by poor management. This led to problems in publication of our yearbook and improper use of money. This has changed.

In speaking with members of the Student Index, I was impressed with their enthusiasm and team spirit. They promised good management and to repair severe damage done in previous years with an increase in budget allocation of $8,302 from the previous year to a current budget of $39,843. This is not an unreasonable increase considering they have to allocate money for the 1985 yearbook, but also for the 1983 and 1984. Our yearbook will simply not exist if financing is not available. The yearbook is something that we should value.

The UMass Yearbook has existed for 102 years. The yearbook should be saved on this merit alone — it's part of a UMass heritage. The yearbook is something that we can cherish in the future, it stands as a symbol of our values and reminds us of our enjoyable times here at UMass. Let us not lose this important part of UMass life.

Brian Reynolds
Central

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Regents ignore us again

Ignoring pleas by students, parents, legislatures and even Gov. Michael Dukakis, The Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education last Wednesday voted to increase tuition for next year by 15 percent, or $167. The Regents ignored an appeal to extend the discussion period by one month.

By raising tuition without properly soliciting input from a wide-range of individuals, specifically those people who will be affected most by such a hike (students, parents) the regents have set a very scary precedent. What other major decision will they make without seeking out the opinions of those who should be directly involved in the decision making process, but are for some reason excluded?

Even scarier is that not only did the regents fail to listen to students, but also to the legislature. On April 12, the state joint committee on education unanimously passed a motion urging the one month postponement of last week's vote. The regent did not listen.

The regents also did not listen to University of Massachusetts President David C. Knapp, an outspoken critic of the new tuition policy, (which forces consideration of automatic increases in tuition every year).

The regents also failed to listen to UMass chancellor Joseph D. Duffey. The regents are not to blame because Duffey has been silent on the tuition increase, and refused to take a stand. Of all the three state-wide UMass chancellor's Duffey was the only one who chose to be silent. Duffey, the same man who proposed a $50 tuition hike last semester, which was rejected by the Board of Trustees, was also the only chancellor of the three (Worcester, Boston, Amherst) who chose not to attend the education committee's hearing on the proposed increase two weeks ago. His absence showed his lack of commitment to all students, and particularly low income family students.

Students are also to blame for the increase. Except for a handful of concerned lobbyists, most students chose not to get involved in the tuition controversy. The SGA rented a bus to go to the legislature's education hearing and only seven of the 47 seats were filled. A tuition rally was held outside of the Student Union Building two weeks ago and reporters outnumbered the demonstrators.

It is a sad situation that public higher education will be denied students. It is tragic that students here did not show they cared. And it is even sadder that the regents failed to find out what everyone thought before they acted.

Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

An unusual class experience

Like a good many of the students at this University, I have spent a large portion of my time not knowing what's good for me. I have tried to make wise and logical decisions about my future, and have often found myself taking wrong turns. Well, I finally feel like I can now confidently say that I made one correct choice, although entirely by chance. I am currently enrolled in a class named The History of Civil Rights. The class pivots around the lectures of James Baldwin, the well-known author. I tell of this class because of its profound effect on my life.

Considering myself an open-minded liberal for the better part of my life, has been a grave error on my part. While my childhood was one of constant exposure to people of different races and religions, I was still shielded, due to my white middle-class existence. Up until now, I had fooled myself into thinking that it was enough to simply be aware of the injustice in our country when it came to the lives of blacks, as well as every other conceivable minority.

For the most part, knowledge of the wrongs done to the black person in America is hard to avoid. To what extent the average white person in the United States is aware of these wrongs, is another story. We are fed bits and pieces which are never cohesive in detail. This class has made me feel, through the personal experiences of James Baldwin and others, a great deal of sorrow, anger, and frustration.

Nothing else at this University has hit me the way this experience has. It's made me cry, it's made me hate and it's made me applaud. Above all else, it's made me think. I'm astounded at how little I really knew about the black fight for civil rights. Rights that were systematically denied citizens of our country for countless years. It's easy to become overly sentimental about having a part in an event such as this class. I don't want that to happen. My message is to all white middle-class liberals who are content with things as they know them. It's time to wake up and realize that things were really ugly a few years back, and aren't much better now, despite what we appear to see.

Kimberly McGrath
Amherst

A yellow star of courage

Acts of resistance against oppression happen daily, on large and small scales. Single acts of individuals and strong stands of institutions can, and do, change the course of history. The public demonstration of moral courage and outrage determine when, and how, a society swings from passivity and repression to actively chosen freedom.

Marcia Black

There are times in our history which cry out for moral courage and outrage. Nazi Europe was one such time. Yet the silence of the people in the occupied countries was so loud, that it deafened the cries of the 13 million who were murdered. There were resistance movements throughout occupied Europe, among both Jews and those who were not Jewish, but even those calls to courage were muted by the surrounding silence.

Now, 40 years later, as we look back, we ask:

What enables people to close their eyes to the sight of murder, to close their ears to the cries of agony, to close their nostrils to the stench of burning bodies, to close their minds to the knowledge of atrocity?

What allows people to convince themselves that murder and imprisonment of thousands of people is justifiable?

What prevents people from taking a stand against that which they know is wrong?

Equally important, we ask:

What enabled those people who did resist to do so?

What quotient of will plus despair enabled the several hundred minimally-equipped Jews that remained in the Warsaw ghetto to resist liquidation for several months against 10,000 well-armed German soldiers and police? What enabled the inmates of Soribor, a death camp where 15,000 Jews were sometimes burned in a single day, to plan and carry out a spectacular, armed revolt in which several hundred Jews escaped?

What degree of compassion enabled non-Jews to put the suffering of other people above concern for their personal safety?

These questions are essential to our understanding of the Holocaust which claimed the lives of 13 million people, including 6 million Jews, hundreds of thousands of lesbians and gay men, as well as thousands of gypsies, prisoners of war, and all others deemed unfit by the Hitlerian standards of ethnic purity.

These questions are equally essential to our understanding of contemporary America, another time in history which cries out to us for courageous action on our own, and other's, behalf.

Among the darkness and silence that prevailed in Nazi Europe, there were a few flickers of hope, compassion, resistance. This year, during Holocaust Memorial Day at the University of Massachusetts the Jewish Awareness Task Force has decided to focus on these acts of resistance, in the hope that a focus on courage will inspire and empower us in our own lives. We do this with full recognition of the suffering endured by millions at the hands of the Nazis, and compassion for the legacy of pain still carried by Jewish people. Along with this recognition, we feel the need to bear witness, in memory of those who died, and in honor of those who resisted.

The Jewish Awareness Task Force, along with many sponsors, asks that faculty, students, and staff wear a yellow Jewish star on Holocaust Memorial Day, Thursday. We recognize the complexity of the Jewish star as a symbol, and the pain that it may evoke. The yellow Jewish star was used to single out Jews for death, and became the mark of degradation during the holocaust. Yet by wearing the star, we at UMass can, for one day, step through the isolation inflicted on us by history. Like the Danish people who refused to allow the Nazis to single out the Jews, we can take a symbolic stand against persecution. For those who are not Jewish, wearing a Jewish star can say, "I recognize that my fate is inextricably woven with the fate of others; their oppression is my oppression, their freedom my freedom." For those who are Jewish, wearing a Jewish star can say, "I will wear the sign of my people with pride not shame, with courage not fear."

There is a well-known Jewish saying, from Rabbi Hillel:

If I am not for myself, who will be for me?

But if I am for myself only, what am I?

And if not now, when?

Marcia Black is a Jewish Awareness Anti-Semitism Trainer at SCERA

The new 'Vietnam'

Having followed the news of El Salvador fairly closely for the last three years, I am convinced our government is poised to "Americanize" the war there with disasterous consequences for the people of El Salvador and for American society. As Holly Sklar wrote in Beyond Survival (South End Press, 1983): "Popular protest has kept U.S. intervention in Central America on a leash, but the leash is getting longer with dangerous increments of military aid, advisers, and covert operations."

Patrick J. Sullivan

If this administration does not hear from us, the public, loudly and in strong protest to the current policy, then we will soon see Salvador take on the characteristics of South Vietnam in the middle sixties: garrison-type city defenses, increased aerial bombardment of the countryside and its population with Americans in command of the bombings, slaughter and bloodshed inflicted on a people because the U.S. betrayed its highest ideals and principles (as well as its more rational "options") by imposing false and ruthless military solutions to political and economic problems.

I write the Collegian because we have a choice now. Either the government heeds the electorate and chooses another course or it is emboldened to commit greater spending and numbers of soldiers there, and not just in Salvador. In Honduras right now there are military bases like those made in Vietnam from which Mohawk surveillance planes with U.S. pilots fly over Salvador supplying intelligence for spotting the elusive guerrilla forces. Big Pine III military exercises in Honduras are both provocations in the region and of a size far beyond anything done like this before. Our troops there are by and large your age, their mission like the contras a mercenary's undertaking.

Unlike the Vietnam era, today there is more information about what is happening, more groups in vocal opposition, and far more scepticism about what the government is doing in Central America. But the minority opposition must grow rapidly; and the situation is volatile, the outcome unknown. The Grenada invasion last fall set an ugly and dangerous precedent of news censorship, this administration's tolerance for dissent is in most respects lower than others, and the President has identified our "credibility" with the defeat of hostile forces in Central America.

Many of you are voting for the first time in a national election. I hope you will now see to it that your voice is heard as well: speaking out, inviting speakers to your dorm, writing your Congressman Silvio Conte and others, joining groups opposed to our current foreign policy. I see ahead if things do not change a nightmare of destruction for other people and for ourselves. For the past three years this government has acted, not as a considerate ally with our neighbors to the south, but as the Goliath bully, repudiating human rights and having only repressive cronies and companies to "support."

The bottom line is whether we side with radical and/or nationalist alternatives in the Third World to American client states or side with a foreign policy completely at odds with our beliefs in democracy, human rights, and the promise of a just social order. Our silence means assent to the latter.

Patrick J. Sullivan is a professor in the school of education.

paid advertisement

APRIL 23rd

Thompson 104 8:00 pm

Debate

How Much Hunger is There in America?

President Reagan's Task Force on Hunger Representatives:

Betsy Rollins & Dr. Ken Clarkson
Executive Director of Community Kitchens, St. Episcopal's Church North Carolina Director of Law and Economics Center U of Miami

v

Citizen's Commission on Hunger in New England Representatives

J. Larry Brown & Lewis Feldstein, Dean
Chairman of Commission Harvard School of Public Health
Antioch-N.E. Graduate School Keene, N.H.

This forum will discuss the extent of hunger in America, and determine what, if any, effect Reaganomics has had on the number of hungrey Americans.

Southwest Fest

Hampden Theatre 5:00 - 7:00

Freddy Clayton Trio will perform in conjunction with the Black Musician Just Jazz Hampden Gallery Conference 5:00 - 7:00

APRIL 24th

World Hunger Event

Hampden Southside 5 - 8 pm

Topical Symposium

"Why Is There Hunger in the World, and What Can Americans Do About It?
(A Presentation by Hunger Project's Northeast Coordinator Tim Kelley)

With slides, movies, and a workbook, this three hour teach-in will give students a comprehensive view of the hunger issue and will present a plan to eliminate hunger by the year 2000.

Southwest Fest

Bands on the Pyramids
2:00 - 3:00 Nexus
3:30 - 4:30 First Circle
5:00 - 6:00 Whirling Dervishes

Southwest Bar-be-cues

Hamburgers, Hot Dogs, soda and chips will be sold near the Berkshire D.C.

Elections for S.W.A.G. Officers will be held May 1 and May 2

APRIL 25th

World Hunger Event

Campus Center Aud.
8:00 - Midnight

Las Vegas Night

A night of roulette, Chuck-a luck, Black-jack, Beat the Dealer, Acey-duecy, and Horse race will raise money for Catholic Relief Services of Central America. (Free Admittance)

Tokens, used for wagering, can be redeemed at the end of the evening for prizes and gift certificates donated by: Frankies, J. Ryans, Faces, The Sub. Classe Cafe, and Hungry U. Also, live music by Mass Transit.

Southwest Fest

Bands on the Pyramids
2:00 - 3:00 Corporate Actors
3:30 - 4:30 Attic
5:00 - 6:00 The Young Men

Southwest Bar-be-cues

Hamburgers, Hot Dogs, soda, and chips will be sold near the Berkshire D.C.

Related Event

"Grease" 8:00 - 10:00, near the Hampden Snack Bar. Performed by the UMass Theatre Guild.

APRIL 26th

World Hunger Event

Hampden (Southside) 9 - 1 am

An International Dance

The 1st annual International Dance links the Southwest Cultural Centers with the University Community. The $1.00 admission will be donated to the Hunger Project of San Francisco.

D.J.'d by WMUA's Mark Elliot
Equipment donated by Hilton Music, Hampshire Mall

Sponsored by the Malcolm X Center, the Center for Racial Studeies, Prince International House, S.W.A.G., and University Housing Services

paid advertisement

Southwest Fest

Bands on the Pyramids
2:00 - 3:00 The Stand
3:30 - 4:30 Imminent Danger
5:00 - 6:00 The Systems

Clay Demonstration

Hampden Craft Shop
7 - 8 pm

Southwest Bar-be-ques

Hamburgers, Hot Dogs, soda, and chips will be sold near the Berkshire D.C.

Related Event

Holocaust
Memorial Day
12:30 p.m.
Cape Cod Lounge

In honor of those who resisted; in memory of those who died. Commemorative gathering at Cape Cod Lounge at 12:30 p.m. Guesr Speaker -Chancellor Joseph Duffey (sign language interpreter available)

APRIL 27th

Southwest Fest

2:00 - 4:00
Breakdancers, UMass Gymnastic Team

APRIL 28th

World Hunger Event

The University Community can help fight world hunger by sending a tax-deductible donation to our office; Southwest Area Government make check payabel to Oxfam America/Hampden Student Center/UMass/Amherst, MA 01003.

Other Events

East-side Concert

12:00 noon

Run for Ritter 10:00 am; a marathon run benefitting, Father Ritter's work with homeless and abused children for more information call John Reese at 549-0300.

APRIL 29th

Southwest Concert

Southwest Fields
Music by various bands
from 11:30 am to 6:45 pm

Made possible, in part, by a grant from the Undergrad student senate. Also, the event will be D.J.'d by WHMP 99.3 radio.

If you bring a T-shirt to the concert, the S.W. Craft Shop will silkscreen the S.W. Fest logo on it for only a nickel.

Coolers, kegs or beer balls are prohibited on the Southwest Fields.

World Hunger

The Western Mass Food Bank will be soliciting contributions during the concert. Please be as generous as your budget allows.

$469.00
List $525.00

Introducing
The HP-71B
Handheld Computer

Complex Calculations
Have Never Been So Easy!

HP-71B Handheld Computer addresses the multiple needs of technical or business professionals. The combination of calculating and BASIC language programming capabilities in a single portable product will increase your productivity, as well as provide a base for your future needs.
- 250 keywords - 64k byte operating system - file management system - additional peripherals and software available

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

MONDAY NITE SPECIAL
Time Out

Giant Bar Drink $1.65
16 oz. Draft 85¢
Two T.V.'s
Free Popcorn

Happy Hour Prices
4 PM to closing
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA

CATCH A RISING STAR
ON CAMPUS
BLUE WALL

TUESDAY APRIL 24

Come see three comics from the touring company of Catch A Rising Star PLUS The Winner of the UMASS CATCH

A RISING STAR NIGHT
sponsored by GPC

THE SOS BAND

Mount Holyoke College
Saturday, April 28
Chapin Auditorium 8:00 pm
TICKETS: $ 7 general $8 at door available at: FACES Amherst
MAIN ST RECORDS Northampton
NEW BOX OFFICE, MHC
413 538-2178
a presentation of Campus Program Council and the Association of Pan African Unity

BLUEWALL CAFETERIA
This Weeks Menu

Mon — Roast Sirloin of Beef Au Jus
Manicotti

Tues — Stuffed Peppers
Chicken Ala King

Wed — Barbecued Ribs
Baked Meat Loaf

Thurs — Roast Turkey w/Stuffing
Liver and Onions

Fri — Fried Fish
Macaroni and Cheese

All above entrees served with vegetables, rolls and butter.
Also daily home made soups and chowders.
Large assortment of desserts and beverages.
Don't forget our deli sandwiches.

MON.-FRI. 11:15-1:30

Arts

This week in the arts...

This week promises to be one of the busiest in the semester for the arts. Lectures, concerts, and performances, many of them free, will keep you busy if your classes don't. So soak up some of this lovely sunshine and take advantage of spring arts offerings in the Happy Valley.

.....

This evening the Graduate Forum will present an evening of Indian classical dances featuring India's most famous mother-daughter dancers, Indriani and Sukanya. The program begins at 7:00 p.m., will be held in Bowker Auditorium, and is free and open to the public.

.....

During the week of April 23-28 the University will commemorate the 13th Annual Black Musicians Conference. Highlights of the conference will include concerts by Johnny Griffin, Chico Freeman, with special guest Max Roach, Terry Jenoure, Valerie Capers, The Fred Clayton Ensemble, Willene Barton, and the UJC Big Apple Jazz Women. For further information on specific events, call John Folan at 545-0190.

.....

On Tuesday, April 24, the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Seiji Ozawa will perform at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall at 8:00 p.m.. For ticket information call box office at 545-2511.

.....

The UMass Musical Theater Guild continues its tradition of presenting free outdoor spring shows with this year's production of Grease. Catch the show at the Hampden (Southwest) picnic Area at 8:00 p.m. on April 24 and 25.

.....

On Tuesday, April 24, the Distinguished Visitors Program will present a lecture on "The Pop Music Bop Art Connection" by noted writer and critic Glenn O'Brien. O'Brien, a regular columnist in both Interview and Artforum magazines, will discuss the effects of popular culture on modern aesthetics. The lecture is free and open to the public. It will be held in the Campus Center 168 at 8:00 p.m.. For more information call EVP at 545-0920.

.....

Clarinetist Michael Sussman performs Wednesday, April 25, at 8:00 p.m. on the University of Massachusetts Faculty Recital Series. The concert is free and open to the public and will take place in Bezanson Recital Hall in the Fine Arts Center. For further information call 545-2227.

Tim Joliat takes a stand in "Waiting for Lefty," one of three plays in Documents, playing this week at Amherst College. See this week in the arts for more information.

Enjoy a performance of classical Indian dance tonight at 7 pm in Bowker Auditorium. For more information see this week in the arts.

DOCUMENTS: 3 Plays & Some Fragments of the Early Thirties will be presented by the Department of theatre & Dance of Amherst College in Kirby Theater on April 26, 27, and 28 at 8:00 p.m.. For ticket information call 542-2277.

LEGAL PROBLEMS?
Call LSO serving the students of UMass

Housing • Family • Student Rights • Civil Rights • Workers Rights • Criminal and Consumer Law •

call 545-1995

RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13 (whitewall blem)
$32.00
includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No Amherst MA
Across from Wetrobes Store
549-4704

To members of the UMass community:

On Thursday, April 26, 1984 the Collegian will be holding a public forum to discuss the Editorial Page. The forum will be in Campus Center room 805-809 from 3:00 to 4:30. In addition to discussing the Editorial Page, there will be time left open to discuss any aspect of the Collegian that people are interested in.

All interested members of the community are invited.

In the mood for a light dinner?

SANDWICH MENU Now Available in the
T.O.C. LOUNGE
for Dinner:
TUES.-THURS.
5:00-7:30 pm
FRIDAY
6:30-8:30 p.m.
SATURDAY
5:00-8:30 pm

TOP of the CAMPUS

Are you wondering what to pre-register for?
...Consider the Health Aide Program

As a Peer Health Promoter, you

★ LEARN ABOUT YOURSELF
★ TEACH YOUR PEERS ABOUT HEALTH
★ GAIN CAREER EXPERIENCE

For more information about this 3 credit course sponsored by the University Health Services, call the Health Education Office at 549-2671 ext. 181

PREPARE FOR
MCAT • LSAT • GMAT
SAT • ACT • DAT • GRE • CPA
Our 46th year!

Enrolling Now For
June 18
LSAT
Transfer to a Kaplan Center near home after finals

Stanley H. KAPLAN Educational Center
Call Days Eves & Weekends
368 N. Pleasant St Amherst 549-5780
For information about other centers Outside NY State CALL TOLL FREE 800 223-1782
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

AIM HIGH

Want more than a desk job?

Looking for an exciting and challenging career? Where each day is different? Many Air Force people have such a career as pilots and navigators. Maybe you can join them. Find out if you qualify. See an Air Force recruiter today.

Contact TECHNICAL SERGEANT ARTHUR COURTEMANCHE
Federal Building, RM 108, 1550 Main St, Springfield, MA 01103
or call (413) 785-0352

AIR FORCE
A great way of life

ARTISTS!!!
Juried Student Art Show
 Grand Prize $100 ***
2nd Prize $50 - 3rd Prize $25
April 31 - May 2 CC Music Room
for more info 545-0198

Graduate Student Senate Elections

Nominations are now open for next year's officers of the Graduate Student Senate. There will be a candidates night for President and Vice Presidential candidates on Tuesday, May 1st. 1984.

The President and Vice President will be elected by a general ballot of all graduate students. On Monday and Tuesday, May 7th and 8th, there will be a ballot box on the Campus Center Concourse. Any enrolled graduate student may vote.

The Treasurer and Secretary will be elected by graduate student senators at the regular Graduate Senate meeting on May 8th. This meeting will also serve as the Candidate's Night for Secretary and Treasurer and the results of the elections of all four offices will be announced that night.

The Elections Committee of the GSS urges any graduate student who might be interested in running for office to come by the GSS office at 919 Campus Center for more information on duties, responsibilities and election procedures. Nominations may be made in person or through the mail. Nominations for all officers will close on May 1, 1984.

PRESIDENT - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period June 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

VICE PRESIDENT - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period September 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

EXECUTIVE OFFICER - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period September 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

TREASURER - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period June 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

Save 95¢
Atra
$1.73 atra's reg. $2.68

SAVE
Dry Idea Reg. or Unstd. 1.5 oz.
$1.60 reg. $2.45
SAVE 85¢
DRY IDEA

Introducing
DOUBLE MANUFACTURER'S COUPONS on all Health and Beauty Aids Products offer valid through May 31, 1984

SAVE $1.14
Reg and ExBody

SAVE
Flex Care 12 oz.
$2.70 reg. $3.84
SAVE

HDR by Revlon
7 oz. $1.50 reg. $2.64

Vaseline Int. Care 6 oz. reg, Xstr, Herb
$1.20 reg. $1.94
SAVE 74¢

Many unadvertised specials also available

J + J Oil 4 oz.
$1.29 reg. $2.05
SAVE 76¢

SAVE
All sale items available at the Mini Store

Open 9-5 M-F
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

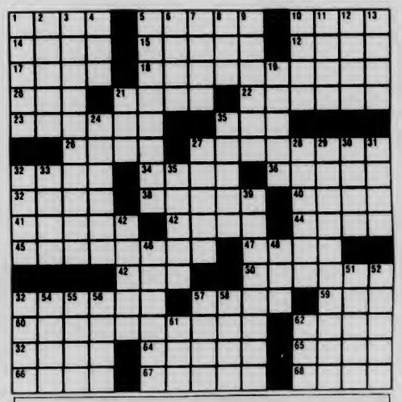
The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

The Strip Jim Wals.

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

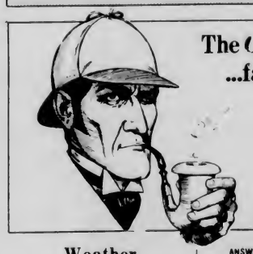
FRED BAKER By T.A.D

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe



©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Sandy's replies
5 Not so exciting
10 Gil ——
14 Urgent, as a need
15 Cuban city, Cockney style
16 Small amount
17 Cooler
18 Banner for 3 Down
20 Shoe width
21 All: Prefix
22 Tea type
23 Illinois college town
25 Chromosome part
26 Large ocean fish
27 So-so
32 Housing, farm style
34 A long way off
36 Leveled
37 Certain voice
38 Bathed
40 13th cen. date, Latin style
41 Baseball's Pee Wee
43 Ancient Asian
44 Deed, in Dijon
45 Raised offspring
47 Finale, musically
49 Agreeable gesture
50 Actress Blake
53 Salt
57 Wax's alternate
59 Eternity
60 Pirate with pen
62 Word on a wall
63 Roman statesman
64 Pierre's aunt
65 Persia, now
66 Maintain
67 George Burns movie
68 "Helpful" abbr.

DOWN
1 Pierre's farewell
2 Kitchen utensil
3 Long John Silver, e.g.
4 Homily, shortened
5 Sight in Agra
6 Stratford's river
7 Neighbor of Algeria
8 Join up: Abbr.
9 Certain fabrics
10 School subj.
11 Firm's symbol
12 Solar disc
13 Puppeteer Toni
19 Cook's pride
21 "—— clear day..."
24 Put alongside
25 Ventured
27 Surfaced
28 Spanish force of old
29 Pirates
30 Prof's talk
31 Musical Adams
32 Find fault
33 Olive tree
35 In the limelight
39 Poured
42 State of tedium
46 Love apple, today
48 Cockney's residence
51 Senoras' titles
52 Concerned with
53 Protective org.
54 Popular name, in Norway
55 Tryst
56 Stravinsky
57 Pitching arm
58 Regarding
61 Good cheer
62 "Mama ——!"

TONITE!
☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆
The Collegian Candidates Speak
☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆
At 7:00pm
In the Commonwealth Room
Next to S.U.B.

The Collegian...
...fascinating

Weather

Today will be cloudy with rain in the 50s. Rain will continue into the night with 40 degree temperatures. Tuesday will be cloudy with some showers, temperature 55-60 degrees.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

A	N	T	I	E		D	I	D	I	O		M	O	G
C	L	E	A	N		D	A	N	T	E		P	A	N	A
H	A	I	D	E	A	N	N	E	D		E	N	T	I	T	Y
A	P	P	E	A	L		O	R	A	N	G	E		A	G	E
			A	S	E	S		S	C	R	A	G
S	E	C	R	E	T	A	R	Y		T	A	U	E	N	T	Y
O	H	I	O		E	L	A	N	O	N		A	I	L	E	N
L	A	I	D		O	E	S	T	A	N		A	D	L	Y
E	N	E		P	E	P	P	Y		M	U	M	F	O	R	D
S	A	D	D	L	E	R		M	E	R	C	E	D	E	S
		S	E	A	M	E		L	O	U	I	S	E
A	P	P	E	T	I	T	E		S	O	L	I	T	A	R	Y
B	I	O	L	O		G	O	M	U	L	E		S	O	M	E
D	I	T	A	M		L	O	T	I	O	N		S	P	I	T
Y	I	D	D	I	S	H		L	E	M	O	N		S	E	L	S

Collegian photo by Robert Falk

The Valley Women's Rugby team (shown with the ball) runs against Beantown, the defending national champions Saturday near Lorden Field. Beantown defeated the local entry.

Men's tennis struggles

By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

Mother Nature sure can be a fickle lady. She can give us pouring rain during our last three-day weekend of the year, then turn around and give us beautiful weather the first day back.

The University of Massachusetts men's tennis team won't argue, though. Mother N. let the netmen get a match in against Springfield College last Tuesday, and the good guys walked away with a 6-3 win.

Steve Jordan and Wayne Peterson, the number one and two singles players, led the way for UMass, as Jordan took a 6-2 6-4 decision from Tony Driscoll, while Peterson defeated Scott Smith 7-6, 0-6, 6-2 for his fourth straight singles win. The two of them then teamed up in number one doubles to thrash Driscoll and Jeff Morse 6-0, 6-0.

Meanwhile, Earl Small defeated Dan Marinello 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 at fourth singles for his first win of the season, and Paul Zaretsky beat John Vasaturo 7-6, 2-6, 6-3 at sixth singles. Small also teamed up with Marc Weinstein at second doubles to take a 6-1 6-4 decision from Vasaturo and Keith Strong.

Mom Nature wasn't as generous last Wednesday, as the netmen were rained out of their match with Central Connecticut. The teams completed one set of the singles competition before the clouds opened up and washed everything out. The match will be completed May 1. Meanwhile, no makeup date has been set for the rained-out Clark match from April 15.

Aside from those matches, the Minutemen, now 2-3, have a match at Tufts on Wednesday, the Atlantic 10 Championships on Friday, and a home match against A.I.C. on May 5. We'll see if Mother Nature (or for that matter, Lady Luck) will shine on UMass for those matches.

★ Baseball

continued from p. 16

After he hit the next batter, Presnall was relieved by Scott Foster, who was ripped in the fifth for a two-run single by Haring making it 9-1.

The UM lowlights continued into the ninth. In a three minute span, Foster hit two batters and threw two wild pitches, enabling the final URI run to plate. Ugh.

The Minutemen woes continued in the first game of a doubleheader on Saturday. Zalobowski opened the game with a walk, then advanced to third on a wild pitch and a passed ball before scoring on an infield out. The Rams gained a 4-0 lead in the fourth, collecting three walks, two legit hits, and a bunt single off UM starter Bob Kostro (3-3).

The URI fifth tells the whole story for UMass. Steve Godin opened the inning by popping a bunt straight up in front of the plate. Catcher Dan Clifford was unable to locate the ball and just as he looked up the ball plopped squarely on his face mask and fell harmlessly to the ground. Godin later scored on a groundout.

The final game began on an interesting note as Joe Ward, who hurled all seven innings of the first game to gain the victory started the nightcap. However, he lasted all of 1 1/3 innings, getting buried in a UM five run second, climaxed by a bases-loaded triple by Todd Comeau. URI struck back quickly scoring three times in the third and twice in the fourth. Godin and Haring run scoring singles and a sacrifice fly by David Rackie cut the defecit to two in the third. In the fourth, the Rams tied it on a two-run double by Gary LaMond.

Both clubs drew blanks until the eighth thanks to outstanding relief work by Marquis and UM's Jon Martin. Marquis K'd eight Minutemen hitters in seven inning worked, while Martin came on to shut the door in the fourth, then held the Rams to two hits the rest of the way.

Bruce Kingman commenced the UM winning rally in the ninth by grounding to third baseman John Pignataro, who promptly threw the base past first enabling Kingman to advance all the way to third. After Tom Fabian bounced to the pitcher, Clifford hit a bouncer to Pignataro with Kingman moving.

Pignataro's throw to the plate was high and the ump ruled that Kingman slid under Haring's tag, prompting coach John Norris leading a URI cavalry charge out of the dugout and Haring to hurl this glove in disgust. Sorry about that guys.

Breakers pull it out

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Buford Jordan ran for 182 yards and two touchdowns Sunday to lead the New Orleans Breakers to a 20-18 victory over the Denver Gold in a United States Football League game.

The Breakers narrowly avoided overtime — and a possible loss — when backup Gold quarterback Fred Mortenson hit Kevin Williams just out of the end zone on an abortive two-point conversion try that would have tied the game with 31 seconds left.

Jordan, in his third 100-yard game of the season, gained the most single-game yardage ever by a Breaker running back. The outcome left both teams with 7-2 records.

Jordan's touchdowns came on a nine-yard burst in the first quarter, and a 13-yard spring in the third quarter.

Tim Mazzetti added field goals of 29 and 22 yards getting his first one with 1:51 left in the first half and his second midway through the fourth quarter.

Sports Notice

INTRAMURAL LIFEGUARD TESTING for on-campus employment this summer and/or fall semester. Candidates must attend testing on Tuesday, May 1 or Wednesday, May 2 in the Boyden Pool at 6 p.m. sharp. Test requirements include a timed 500 yard swim, written test, water rescue, and CPR practical. You must bring your current certificates in CPR, Advanced Lifesaving and Standard First Aid. Questions? Contact Valerie Turtle at 545-0093.

★ Softball

continued from p. 16

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Lynn Stockley...third no-hitter.

"I was pretty excited," Rioux said. "We are starting to pick up the pieces. We did well. Our pitchers did well and we just overall had a nice day despite the weather." The weather was unforgiving. It was overcast, raw and cold and a gusting wind blew constantly chilling everyone.

UMass jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the first inning of the opener on four singles and a Frattaroli double. It was all UMass would need despite a run getting across from Harvard in the fourth.

In the second game, Janet Miller and Sally Maher (2-for-4, double) knocked in Talbott and Rioux for a 2-0 first inning lead.

The Crimson never came close as they managed to get only two runners on base as Reed hit them both. Debbie Cole went 2-for-2 and Coffin had 2 RBI.

The wins boost UMass to 21-9 and with five doubleheaders coming up this week Talbott and Stockley and Reed will see a lot of action.

(than the no-hitters). Lynn and Cathy were freezing," Talbott said.

Elaine Sortino praised both of her pitchers and her hitters as well. "If the ingredients keep . ing and growing we should do very well," she said.

A fact overlooked in the wake of double no-hitters was that the Massachusetts hitters were hitting. Hard.

Rioux went 4-for-4 in the opener with 3 RBI and a double. Lynn Pekarski, Tina Coffin, and Carol Frattaroli all gathered in two hits as UMass got 12 hits in the opener.

Think you're pregnant?

Use Predictor In-Home Pregnancy Test. It's the same as a hospital test.

You're on your own for the first time and life is a lot different now. If you think you might be pregnant, you want to know for sure. This is the time to use Predictor In-Home Pregnancy Test. It's the exact same test method used in over 2,000 hospitals and 13 million laboratory tests nationwide. So you know Predictor is accurate.

Predictor can be used as soon as nine days after you miss your period. It's convenient and gives you results in just one hour. Think you're pregnant? Remember, you can use Predictor with confidence, it's the test method used in over 2,000 American hospitals.

Nothing Predicts Pregnancy more accurately.

FLIGHT ATTENDANTS

Eastern Airlines, one of the world's largest air carriers, is now hiring Flight Attendants to be based in Miami, Atlanta, and New York. (Must be willing to relocate).

There are exotic places to see and fascinating people to meet...considering we fly to more than 128 cities in 22 countries. Add to that 12 guaranteed free days/month, great travel privileges, excellent salaries and complete benefits...and you've got a first-class career.

If you're at least 21 years of age, 5'2" to 6'2" with weight in proportion to height, and in good health...check in with Eastern.

To obtain an application, send a legal size, 40¢ stamped, self-addressed envelope to:

Flight Attendant Recruitment Eastern Airlines Miami International Airport Miami, FL 33148

Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

EASTERN
We earn our wings every day

ROCK & ROLL
DYNAMITE RECORDS
We buy albums
We pay cash or you may trade for 25% more off new albums
Maxell UDXLII S90
this week only $2.50/ea.
Thornes, a marketplace plus!
150 Main Street, Northampton 584-1580
SOUL JAZZ CLASICAL

AMHERST BAGEL DELI
Now Open in FACES
The valley's freshest bagel is now in Amherst
SPRING SPECIAL
15¢ a bagel $1.65 a dozen
Mon - Sun 8 am - 6 pm
253-9282

SUMMER STUDENT EMPLOYMENT
BUDGET OFFICE, UMASS/AMHERST
Responsibilities include data collection, file maintenance, and general office assistance. Accuracy a must. Twenty hours per week May 15 through August 31. Possible employment during academic year. Send letters and resumes attention of: Fred Goodhue or Gail Matthews, Budget Office, Room 343 Whitmore. Salary $3.90 - $4.10 per hour.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Cerwin-Vega Speakers Vector receiver Akai deck Sony turntable - almost new reasonable offers call Matt 253-3907

Receiver, tape deck, great speakers, turntable $250/BO call Zoe 546-5253

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Chevy Caprice auto, PS/PB good cond. 665-4117 $1450

Foxy Fiat X1/9 low miles excellent condition 3500 BO call Larry 256-0080

75 Datsun rebuilt engine 950 or BO Kathy 549-4035 snow tires

1968 Volkswagen Bug Engine good front end, brakes poor AM/FM radio $150. 256-8088

CAPE COD

I need room in Hyannis near Dunfeys call Michelle 5-0527/549-6559

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FOR RENT

One bedroom apt 315$/month all included swimming pool tennis courts call Jose 665-7633

4 bed houses - Country setting with acres near city. Other near Smith College. $525 without utilities. For Sept. Call Northampton 584-3428, 5-6 pm, Skibiski, Realtors

Millhollow Apt by Puffers waterfall on bus route take over June 1 549-2731

Room in house from now and June, very close to campus. $200 includes. Quiet serious only. Call 6-10 PM John 549-1358

One bedroom apt in CLiffside, summer sublet w/fall option 295 mo utilities included 665-4706

Looking for one or two quiet persons for one bedroom in Brandywine Call Laurie or Mike evenings 549-5416

1 bedroom Brittany Manor AC 2 pool tennis partially furnished fall option beat the rush rent negotiable Andy 256-8498

Townehouse Apts - 3 bedroom apt. 1 double room and 1 single room available Cheryl 549-5990

Female wented nonsmoker for summer sublet and fall option, own room, pool, bus route, $150/month plus utilities, call 253-7806 evenings

Availabla now 1 bdrm apt on bus rte 31 Mill Hollow Apts Amherst 549-1602

Beautiful house furn. six roommates wanted 3 miles from UMass var. price 549-7865

4 bdrm twnhse in Squire Vill available June 1 w/fall option on bus route cheap rent 665-7595

2 bedroom apt available June 1 with fall option Brittany manor $450.00 call after 10. 253-5907

Furnished efficiency with carpet, AC. Summer sublet, fall option $205. 323-6704

FOR SALE

2 couches excel condition best offer 253-5288

New Batavus Motor Bike modified must sell call 549-0663

Mens 10 speed, brand new, 33% off reg. price, $100, 584-0569, Wayne, afternoon - night

FOUND

Fnd Red Leather Jacket at Elvis if yours enter classified with descrip of pocket contents, your name & num I'll get in touch

Light jacket found near Graduate Research Center lowrise on 4/18. Describe to claim. Call 545-1309

Amy E. MagnentiI found your purse in the Coffee Shop. Call me at 256-6659

HELP WANTED

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk+ benefits call 586-8713

Babysitter Mid June to end of August. 8 am to 3 pm Four 5 year olds. Car necessary. Letter to C. Goldstein 811 East Pleasant Street, Amherst

Cruiseships Hiring $16,000-30,000! Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-(916) 944-4444 X Massachusetts Cruise

Counselors, Private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, gymnastics, softball, photography, radio station (AM), computers, director/piano accompaniest, dance/movement/show choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders and bunk counselors. Good salaries, friendly atmosphere. Contact: Jodi 546-9668

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

Open Rush
All University Women Invited
Tues 4/24 5:00 Pizza Party
Wed. 4/25 7:30 Taco Fiesta
For Info: call 256-6874

LOST

Wednesday, girls pin-striped jean jacket, call Robyn after 5 PM 1-536-3690

Red plaid MacGregor scarf in Cape Cod Lounge Mon 4/9 546-4400

Jean Jacket and keys at the Pub returnl to Pub or call 549-7566 Reward!

MARGIE TUCKER

Margie - There aren't words we can find other than we love you! Happy Birthday always - Suzy and Ilene

MOTORCYCLES

1978 Yamaha 650E excellent condition. Low mileage must sell $995 6-5039

MUST RENT IMMEDIATELY

Space in Brittany $117.50 call Tracy 256-0011 leave name & number

PERSONALS

Please take over our lease as of June 1st. 2 bedroom apartment, Sunderland, on bus route, wall to wall carpeting, A/C, dishwasher, $325/month + electricity, hot water FREE. Call anytime - 665-4278

Collegian Steff Elections for Board of Editors will be Wednesday, April 25, from 9:00 to 8:00 all staff members (business, graphics, and newsroom!) eligible to vote

Teach in Massachusetts complete employment listing of all public and private schools in Massachusetts---plus latest openings! $8.00, Betterway, PO Box 2153, Centerville, MA 02634

Happy 20th Birthday Debbie Borci Love Steph

Contact Lenses Replaced. Bausch Lomb $25. other brands available Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8561

Bob Happy 2 years I love you always Jennifer

Elections for North East Area Government will be held on May 8th. The positions open are President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and Secretary. Nominations will open on Monday April 23rd and will close Sunday April 29th at 8 PM. Nomination papers are available from Dianne Rossi 304 Dwight (546-5542)

Sue E. Whooose ya buddy? Happy 2-0ll Luv ya Me

Diane - O'man I really hope you have a most enjoyable birthday, really. - anonymous

Wa have the lowest airfares to Europe and across America for free color brochure, write to: Campus Travel Box 11387 St. Louis, MO 63105

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the US Government? Get the facts today! Call (312) 742-1142 ext 5931-A

Collegian staff Candidates Night - Tonight! 7:00 Commonwealth Room (next to SUB)

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertetions, Theses, Ceses, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RICKY F.

Happy Birthday Richie (they made me write it that way) Have a good one! Love, your neighbor

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1st with fall option 549-6715

Wanted two roommates to share Southwood Apt. call 546-5271 or 546-5265 between 5-10 PM

Share two bedroom apt male or female immediate thru June. South Amherst. Jeffrey Manor condominiums. Furnished. Busline. 127+/month 256-6838 John or Dave

Responsible women to share sunny Southwood apt summer/fall 253-5109

Looking for 2 mature UMass students to share quaint 3 bedroom Northampton apt. Summer with fall option call evenings after 6 586-4555

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom apartment mid May with fall option call 253-2140

Furnished room available in three bedroom townhouse in North Amherst. Clean, quiet, non-smoker please. Call 549-4861

Two moles to share house in W Yarmouth for the summer $600.00 each call Maureen 549-7621 or 545-0239

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite 253-5111

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Rasteurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Southwood Apts summer sublet will negotiate rent call Sherri 253-2268

Summer sublet only. Fully furnished. Must be seen to appreciate. Negotiable call 256-8788

Shere house for summer 150$/month a beautiful 4-bedroom house. It has kitchen walk-in pantry dining living rooms more than one space. Within walking distance to UMass 546-5186

Townehouse Apts 2 bedroom from June 1 to August 31 rent negotiable call Joe 549-0902

One bedroom apt at Crestview, summer sublet w/fall option, availa June 1 360/mo 549-2641

Townehouse Apt - large single room on bus route 1 mile from campus. Normally $150, will sublet for $100/mo Ann 549-5990

Apt. available for summar in Puffton. Price negotiable. Please call 546-7988 or 546-7968

Brittany $353.50 June, July, August call Tracy 256-0011 leave name and number

Fall option 2 bedrooms in 4 bedroom house on bus route 256-1337

Furnished 1 bedroom Brandywine Apt rent negotiable mary 549-6660

2 bedroom Brandywine apt. Jane 549-6660

Swiss Village 4 bedroom 2 bath spacious convenient modern apt 256-8247

Prime Amherst Center location, three bedrooms, spacious, renovated, 6-4984, fall option

Two bedroom Townhouse summr sublet fall option Squire Village rent negotiable 665-4793

Summer sublet with fall option 2 bedroom townhouse in Southwood apartments 256-6708

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

Fully furnished 2 bdrm Southwood Apt call after 10 PM cheap 256-1318

Summer sublet with possible fall option. Large bedroom in two-bedroom Southwood apartment for one or two females. 256-8379

3 bedroom Puffton apt summer only 110/room Kathy or Luann 549-4035

Female wented for own room in Rolling Green apts available June 1 graduate or older student preferred call evenings 256-0304

Arlington Mass (next to Cambridge) Juen 1 - Sept 1 $234/month gorgeous house 617-643-3726 keep trying

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

For summer: 5 bedroom house on Main St. next to bus stop 256-6352 Sue

3 bedroom Puffton apt summer cable 2 bathrms call after 11 PM cheap 546-7267

Summer w/fall option - Brittany Manor - pool, tennis, airconditioning, busroute 256-0097

4 bdrm 2 bath, Swiss Village apt fall option $174 per bdrm per month, utilities included. Leaving most living room, kitchen furniture 256-0089

Two bedroom apartment on scenic Puffer's Pond. Summer sublet with fall option. 549-6500

3 bedroom apt in Northwood 330 on bus route, fall option call 665-8514

2 bedroom summer sub/fall option pool laundry bus low rent June 1 call 665-8125

2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village June 1 to Sept 1 call Cinde 545-0162

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Very generous reward for a 2 or 3 bedroom apt at any major complex call Brad or Dave at 546-6782

Looking for roommates?? 2 females looking to share townhouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

WANTED TO RENT

Easy to live with fun loving looking to share apartment. Prefer near campus call eves, Lisa 546-5517

Two bedroom apartment Colonial Village will take over summer Mike 546-6161

2-3 bedroom apt wanted North Amherst willing to take over June Mike 546-9387

3 people need living space in Northampton June 1 - next year 546-8973 keep trying

Sublet wanted for summer, professional couple, no children/pets, excellent references. 203-763-0323

Sports

Gorillas prevail in Yale win 15-9

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

Mike Fiorini scored five goals and added one assist, while teammate Bubba Sandford collected six assists and two goals of his own to lead the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team to its third straight win, a 15-9 victory over Yale on the Hill Saturday afternoon.

The crowd was small and the weather was rotten. High gusty winds, cool temperatures and even a few snowflakes were felt by the brave faithful who sat on Boyden Hill.

Garber's Gorillas got off to a slow start as attackman Ted Moran of Yale scored the first two of his five goals in the game to give the Elis a 2-0 lead at the 4:25 mark of the first quarter. Perry Seale got UMass on the scoreboard one minute later as he took a Rich Messina feed, went straight to the cage and bounced it in. Then Fiorini tied it at 2-2, three minutes later, scoring off of a Sandford pass.

However, the tie was shortlived as freshman Adam Snow gave Yale the lead back 37 seconds later, breaking in alone and beating goalie Gerry Moreau. Greg Fisk's only goal of the game gave UMass another tie at 3-3 as Sandford got another assist.

Moran put the Elis ahead again scoring two straight goals, his third and fourth of the quarter to make it, 5-3 Yale after one.

Fiorini started a productive second quarter for the home team as he scored his second of the game at 4:51 to cut the lead to 5-4. Ed Boardman, who had the most productive day of his freshman career, scored two goals in a 28 second span to give the Gorillas their first lead of the game, which they would not relinquish again.

Sandford scored his first of the game, winging a Karl Hatton pass over the goalie's shoulder for a 7-5 lead. They looked like they were going to start running away with it when defender Tommy Aldrich attempted to pass back to Moreau, who was beaten to it by Yale's Moran, who scored his fifth and final goal of the game into an unprotected net. But, the Gorillas came back after the mistake and took an 8-6 halftime lead as Fiorini got the hat trick from Boardman.

The Gorillas came storming out in the second half as they put three scores on the board in the first 56 seconds to pretty much put the game out of reach. Fiorini got his fourth from Tom Lukacovic 15 seconds in, then Hatton scored unassisted, 14 seconds later and Lukacovic scored one 27 seconds after Hatton's from Sandford to make it 11-6.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Bubba Sandford, who had six assists and two goals in the 15-9 win over Yale, moves from Tom Conroy Saturday at Boyden.

Neal Cunningham got his first UMass goal at the 3:43 mark, scoring off a Fiorini pass to give the Gorillas a 12-6 lead. Fiorini got his final tally of the afternoon from Sandford to make it 13-6.

Senior co-captain Stuart Orns, who has recovered from a pre-season ankle injury, made his first appearance of the regular season and promptly scored a goal, the sixth straight for UMass to make it 14-6 after three quarters.

"Stu's been itching to get back in. I'm glad to see him back. You hate to see anyone miss his senior year of play. He has a good attitude. He can be an asset to the team," said Coach Dick Garber.

The big third quarter and eight goal lead may have led the laxmen to complacency as they made several costly errors and were outscored 3-1 by a-not-dead-yet-Yale squad.

The Elis cut the lead to 14-7, 1:16 into the fourth quarter as they scored their first goal of the half, and first since the 8:48 mark of the second quarter. They made it 14-8 about three minutes later as Moreau was late getting back to the net. Another Eli goal only 13 seconds later made it a five goal margin at 14-9, a cause for a little concern from the home crowd.

But those minor fears were laid to rest as the defense tightened up and the offense put on a passing clinic until Sandford put in his second score of the game from Messina to make it a 15-9 final.

"They played a very good overall game, but there were too many moments of dumb play. The hardest thing to strive for is consistency. You can't have lapses of mental thinking. In a tight game, those things will make a difference," added Garber.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Angelo Salustri takes a lead Saturday against URI. The Rams took two of three from the Minutemen dropping UMass to 12-19.

URI takes 2 of 3 from baseball

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Like a major league team buried in the cellar, the sun is quickly setting on the University of Massachusetts baseball team. The late April version of the September blues are here. Beholders of a 12-19 record, (2-7 in the Atlantic 10), the boys of '84 have already lost more games than all of 1983. And there still are three weeks left in this campaign. Swell.

UMass charged into this weekend's series with Rhode Island desperately needing a sweep to stay in the Atlantic 10 race. Instead they came close to being swept themselves, having their bats shackled in the first two contests (10-3 and 5-1 losses) before escaping with a 6-5 extra-inning win the series finale Saturday afternoon. And that victory took on a tarnished look as the Minutemen caught the breaks on several questionable umpire's calls, including the game-winning play at the plate in the eighth inning.

There can be no doubt as to the dominant prescence on the diamond in the series first game on Friday. URI pitcher Tom Messier, with pro scouts noting his every pitch (he was clocked at 87 m.p.h.), blew away the UMass batters to the tune of 15 strikeouts and six hits. Only two went for extra bases in the 10-3 Ram victory.

"Now we can just go out and play ball. When we play well we can play with anybody," said UMass coach Dick Bergquist. "I'd like to go down to Rutgers and beat them three in a row. This season is not over because we've lost in the conference."

URI gave Messier all the runs he would need in the first, scoring four times. Leadoff Joe Zalobowski got the ball rolling with a homer to right. After a walk and two singles loaded the bases with one out, URI's Tony Hill lofted a fly ball to right field which Tony Szklany dropped, allowing three runs to score.

UM got one back in the fourth on an RBI single by Steve Messina that scored Todd Comeau, but URI salted the game with five runs in their next two at-bats. In the fifth, with two runners aboard on a fielders choice and a single, Dave (five RBI) Haring threw his 6-1, 223 pound frame behind a Tony Presnal Meatball and crushed it to left. It came down somewhere in Sunderland.

continued on p. 14

Two hurlers toss no-hitters

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Cathy Reed...first no-hitter of '84.

Catcher Beth Talbott takes a lot of abuse and gets a lot of work behind the plate for the University of Massachusetts softball team. She gets hit by foul tips and catches at least 80 pitches a game. And she calls the pitches.

This past Saturday she caught even more balls pitches, than usual, as she caught two no-hitters, one by Lynn Stockley and one by Cathy Reed, as Massachusetts extended their winning streak to 11 games with a 9-1, 5-0 sweep of Harvard at NOPE.

It was Stockley's third no-hitter of the year while it was Reed's first. Stockley defeated Ohio University in South Carolina and shutdown New Hampshire two weeks ago 17-1.

"It felt pretty good," Reed said after the game. "Having the wind at my back helped and the defense played well."

A great defensive play by second team All-American shortstop Allyson Rioux saved Reed's no-hitter on the last play of the game. Trisha Brown popped up and the ball fell in front of Rioux, who barehanded it and threw out the runner at first.

"It looked easier than it was," Rioux said. "The ball had so much spin on it that it was difficult to grasp."

Reed only allowed two runners in the 5-0 win, while she struck out nine in raising her record to 11-2.

"Both pitchers threw really well," Talbott said. "Cathy did really well. It was one of her better games of the year."

Stockley (12-5) had six strikeouts but allowed a run in the fourth after two walks, a wild pitch and a passed ball. Other than that, it was 1-2-3 for Harvard each inning in the 9-1 UMass win.

Talbott caught all but the last inning of each pitcher's no-hitter when Anne King came in to get some playing time.

"I was thinking more about getting the outs and getting both off the mound

continued on p. 14

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 59 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Tuesday, April 24, 1984

Collegian photo by Larry Cabana

Demonstrators protest the views of two speakers last night in the Campus Center.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Tim Rudolph and protestors square off following last nights confrontation.

'Guerrilla theater' interrupts speakers

By LISA MARIE CANTWELL and
DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

A Nicaraguan exile and a Costa Rican met with a vocal group of demonstrators as they attempted to state their views on Central America last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Alvaro Montalvan, a 27 year old Nicaraguan exile and Alvaro Baldizon, 24, a Costa Rican Native, were repeatedly disrupted by a group of 60 demonstrators who staged a mock guerilla war with plastic guns and fake money symbolizing U.S. and C.I.A. supported intervention in Nicaragua.

The protesters, some with fake blood on their faces, hung a red and black banner on the wall of the Campus Center room and held signs reading "Stop U.S. War Against Nicaraguan People" and "Nicaragua Wants Peace." Montalvan, who spoke first, appeared nervous and suprised by the demonstrators.

"I only hope that I could do this in Nicaragua," Montalvan said in response to the mock war and the vocal opposition of the demonstrators.

Lori Bozzi said she and the other students who participated in the demonstration supported the Sandinista government and the sovereignty of Nicaragua. The demonstration was against the "new right wing strategy" in which college campuses are allegedly being used to create a base of support for U.S. intervention in Central America by hosting conservative speakers, she said.

"This man (Montalvan) is portraying himself as a typical Nicaraguan, and he is not," Bozzi said. "We are trying to show student support for just one side, it is not there," she said.

Montalvan said he and Baldizo travel to college campuses to speak but "do not represent any political organization."

"I do not support any anti-Sandinista movement. I come only to tell you what is going on down there," Montalvan said. "What is going on down there does not have anything to do with C.I.A. involvement."

Later, Montalvan said that he is "personally in support of the Contras," and said above jeering from the crowd that the conflict in the region is the result of communism, not "CIA or U.S. Military involvement."

The exchanges between the speakers, several audience members and the demonstrators became heated at several points. Louis Leopold, an Easthampton resident said he came to the speech to "hear the other side. Your idea of freedom of speech is sick," Leopold angrily told the demonstrators before he left.

Montalvan continued his speech charging that the Sandinistas are a "totalitarian regime" who "can do whatever they want." He said he was forced to flee Nicaragua after the Sandinistas burned down his house while his family was inside.

Reagan group, scholars clash on hunger issue

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

The accountability of the private sector to feed the hungry people in the U.S. is based on love, according to a representative of President Ronald Reagan's task force on hunger in a debate last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Representatives of the Citizens Commission on Hunger in New England disagreed with the Reagan task force, citing a study conducted on hunger by Harvard University.

The event was organized by the Southwest Area Government as the first in the week-long Southwest Fest United to Fight World Hunger.

"Clearly hunger is one of the most critical issues in our nation," said J. Larry Brown, director of the Harvard study.

Brown said recent studies conducted in America concluded that the number of hungry people has increased in the last three to four years and this is leading to health problems.

"It is embarrassing to have hunger in America," he said.

Dr. Kenneth Clarkson, director of the Law Economics Center at the University of Miami and a representative of Reagan's task force said, "we found hunger, but we also found it difficult to find hunger.

"Claims of massive and increasing hunger are not as serious as we are led to believe," Clarkson said. "We found people seeking food. We also found something else—they were getting it."

Lewis Feldstein, dean of the Antioch Graduate School in Keene, N.H. and representative of the Harvard University report said, "It is difficult for me to understand why there is even a debate on hunger in America. There is no issue about whether there is hunger in America. The question ought to be what are we going to do about it."

Feldstein said hunger is not only widespread but it is growing and no longer restricted to the traditional groups in America, such as minorities.

"In many ways hunger has become an equal opportunity employer in America—it equally involves everyone," Feldstein said.

He said the Reagan administration is curbing abuses and cutting waste but it is not addressing the problem.

"Do we want to spend time and energy chasing the small percent of abusers of the system or help those who are not being helped?" Feldstein asked.

Betsy Rollins, executive director of Community Kitchens in North Carolina Episcopal churches and a representative of Reagan's task force said, "Hunger is not an epidemic but it can be if we in the private sector do not try to help."

"The private sector does not ask questions. The private sector helps people in need. The whole basis is on love. They want to help them more than with just food," she said.

Feldstein said people can't expect the private sector to do it. They are getting "killed."

"They need help and they can't do it by themselves," he said.

UM prof: billions and billions of words?

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

A few years ago, an author and astronomer from Cornell University named Carl Sagan began a public television series called "Cosmos," introduced many viewers to the wonders of the universe.

And in two years, if all goes according to plans, a University of Massachusetts English professor will begin a television series called "Logos," which he hopes will do the same for language.

David Porter, who has been working for two years on "ways for people in the humanities to have a wider impact on the public media," received a grant this month from the National Endowment for the Humanities to begin writing the first six episodes of what may eventually be a 10-part series for Public Broadcasting System.

"The objective is to bring to a wider audience in this country the insights of recent research in language as it operates in society, as language operates in determining cultural values, in the way language operates in our own personal lives," Porter said. "Language permeates everything that we do."

Porter, also named this month as the University's only Guggenheim Fellowship recipient this year, will take a leave of absence during the coming academic year. He will use the fellowship, which pays for his year's salary, to finish a book he has been working on concerning the application of linguistic theory to visual arts.

Meanwhile, he will also begin work on the series, which will feature episodes on: the role of language and society, language and reality, language and creativity, the structure of language, the history of language, and language studies over the past 25 years.

"We're dealing with language, which really comes home to everybody," Porter said, comparing his project to Sagan's famous production. "Language is the main activity of our social life and the cosmos is that dark mysterious space out there— and it's always out there. And language is what we construct against those great mysteries. Some of the great geniuses of humankind (have) expressed themselves in language — not in numbers, not in formulas, but in language."

INSIDE:

Nuclear Protest Rally held in Germany ..... p. 2

Day care workers to sue University ..... p. 3

Turnstyles reviewed..... p. 5

Baseball team comes up short 10-9 ..... p. 12

"It's a better thing to travel hopefully than it is to arrive."
— Robert Louis Stevenson

World and National News

Accused mother pleads 'not guilty'

BARNSTABLE — A woman charged with murder after reportedly telling Mormon Church leaders she drowned her daughter a decade ago pleaded innocent yesterday and her lawyer said he would employ an insanity defense.

Nancy M. Cross, 41, was released on recognizance by Barnstable Superior Court Judge Elizabeth J. Dolan and ordered to undergo psychiatric examination at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston.

"There is a question of insanity in this matter," said District Attorney Philip Rollins, who requested the examination.

"We know about it the alleged murder because she walked in and told us about it."

Cross, of Acton, was indicated for first-degree murder on April 2 in the death of her 8-year-old daughter, Wendy Lynn. The girl drowned off Nauset Beach on Cape Cod on Sept. 20, 1973.

The death was ruled accidental at the time.

The case was reopened after Cross came to authorities early this year and said she had drowned her daughter.

Local leaders of the Mormon Church said Cross, a recent church convert, told them of the killing last fall while discussing the biblical commandment, "Thou shalt not kill."

American activist raps Euromissiles

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — An American anti-missile activist yesterday told thousands of applauding West Germans that the Reagan Administration deployed nuclear missiles in Europe so it could interfere in the Third World and Mideast.

Judy Freiwirth, co-founder of the New England Campaign to Stop the Euromissiles, said that the connection was obvious "at a time when the U.S. government is actively mining the ports of Nicaragua and supporting repressive dictatorships" in countries like El Salvador.

"The real reason these missiles were stationed was to achieve superiority over the Soviet Union. And then the Reagan Administration can simply interfere in areas like the Third World and Middle East," said the 30-year-old activist from Boston.

AP Laserphoto

PEACE PROTESTS — Nearly 15,000 West German protesters marched Monday from Schwaibisch-Gmuend to the U.S. Mualangen airfield where Pershing II nuclear medium range missiles have been deployed since last November.

The organizers claimed that 70,000 attended the rally at Paul's Square near city hall. Police estimated the crowd at 18,000.

The crowd ranged from babies in strollers to white-haired men and women in their Sunday best, though the majority were teenagers and young adults.

About 6,000 protesters ringed a Pershing missile maintenance installation on the edge of Frankfurt before marching to the rally, snarling traffic along a sanctioned march route.

COPIES 2¢

OPEN 8 AM TIL MIDNIGHT MONDAY THRU FRIDAY
SATURDAY 9-5 SUNDAY 11-5
Collective Copies 256-6925 25 N. Pleasant St. Amherst

TUESDAY
TWO FOR ONE
all liquor drinks
9 till 11
with music by
RACK-A-DISC
9 til 1 NO COVER
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

PREPARE FOR
MCAT • LSAT • GMAT
SAT • ACT • DAT • GRE • CPA
Our 46th year
Enrolling Now For
June 18
LSAT
Transfer to a Kaplan Center near home after finals
Stanley H. KAPLAN Educational Center
Call Days Eves & Weekends
368 N. Pleasant St Amherst 549-5780
For information about other centers Outside NY State CALL TOLL FREE 800 223-1782
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

Need an Ice Cream?
REAL ICE CREAM?
Hurry!
the hatch
ice cream shop

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95 6 Cyl $39.95 8 Cyl $44.95
We'll install new resistor spark plugs, points & condenser, adjust idle speed, set timing, test battery and charging system, inspect rotor, distributor cap, PVC valve, ignition cables, air filter and vapor canister filter. Includes Emission Test and Printout
Lube, Oil & Filter
$15.99
includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00 * (with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
*Valid with Barb & Julie only
Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
85 University Drive Amherst, MA 549-5610
FREE CONSULTATION

MOLLY'S
ANTIQUE AND VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-549-6446 MON-SAT. 10-5:00

Day Care workers will file lawsuit for more benefits

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Members of the University of Massachusetts Childcare Employees Association are expected to announce today legal action they plan to take against the University in order to change 22 employees' staff status.

The Association represents childcare employees at the three University day care centers.

Claire Hamilton, an Association member and teacher at the North Village day care center said, "These workers have 03 status, where they receive no employment benefits, and we're trying to change this so they could receive some benefits," Hamilton said.

"We're not specifically looking for pay increases for these workers— the major push is to secure benefits, although there would be a salary difference if their status was elevated," Hamilton said.

An administrative source said that a proposal had been presented last fall to the University requesting additional funding for benefits for some childcare workers, but was turned down this semester because of lack of funding.

Elizabeth Perkins, director of University Childcare, agreed and said, "At that point, the administration did recommend that childcare be included as a line item of the University budget for fiscal year 1986 to secure more funding."

"Childcare is actually a social policy issue," Perkins said. "The question is who will share the responsibility for the care of children under six with working or student mothers. The real problem is the funding for childcare."

USSR said to crack down on dissidents

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

One of the leading authorities on the human rights movement in the Soviet Union spoke last night at Amherst College on Soviet policies on dissent and emigration.

Peter Reddaway, senior lecturer in political science at the London School of Economics and Political Science said that the U.S.S.R. has adopted a much tougher policy on dissent and emigration since 1979.

This tightening of policy results from increased Soviet concern for law and order and the KBG's lack of control over spreading dissent groups.

Reddaway said Russian officials allowed some emigration because they thought there would be a small number of dissidents "they could get rid of in a few years." But "the line of people is getting longer to leave," he said.

He said the new policy was implemented to raise the morale of the Russian people after the Soviet Afganistan occupation and the "outside world's" negative response to it. At the 1980 Olympic games in Moscow, the KGB was told to control the dissidents.

Since then, he said, more arrests have been made and the prison terms of dissidents have been lengthened. "There has been a sharp increase of physical thuggery," Reddaway said. There also has been an increase of border officials in the Soviet Union limiting travel, he said.

Communication has also been regulated with the systematic jamming of Western radio broadcasts and the cutting of two thirds of all telephone circuits, Reddaway continued. Mail has been censored and there has been an increase of refusals of visas issued to "people who are thought to be associated with dissidents," Reddaway said.

Reddaway is spending this academic year at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington D.C. He has written three books on the U.S.S.R.: Russia's Political Hospitals, Uncensored Russia: The Human Rights Movement in the Soviet Union and Authority, Power and Policy in the U.S.S.R. He also has book coming out this year, Soviet Abuse, Psychiatric Abuse: The Shadow Over World Psychiatry.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

SUPER SUB — Graduate Sculpture major Tom Kellner puts the finishing touches on his mock-up Trident Submarine. His thesis project is designed to increase awareness of nuclear subs.

Five college deans, professors invited to UM conference

By JOHN MILBIER
Collegian Correspondent

A five college conference for deans and faculty will be held tomorrow to promote use of the University of Massachusetts' Conference Services, said R. Marc Fournier, sales and operations manager for the Service.

The event is slated as a marketing tool for Conference Services, a coordinating agency which handles conferences in the Campus Center, Fournier said.

"It's just like advertising but in a different form," he said.

Fournier said that in 1980 a strategic marketing plan was implemented, resulting in increased sales. He said the organization thought it would be good to let the five college area know what it offers.

Conference Services redesigned their brochures, mailed them directly to scientific and technical organizations, and conducted telephone marketing for educational conferences, Fournier said.

Five College coordinator E. Jefferson Murphy said, "when the annual meeting of the department heads of the Arts and Sciences Colleges rotates to UMass, we hold the meeting at the Conference Services."

He said the department heads discuss faculty exchanges, bringing in outstanding lecturers, new equipment and cooperation within their respective fields.

Fournier said that though 1,000 invitations are sent, only 75 administrators are expected.

Earth Awareness Week starts tomorrow

By JOSEPH MCCORMACK
Collegian Correspondent

A week of films, lectures and activities including a "submarine invasion" at the Campus Pond to celebrate Earth Awareness Week will begin Wednesday at the University of Massachusetts.

Earth Awareness Week is being sponsored by The Coalition for Environmental Quality (C.E.Q.). The event has been expanded because of the increasing complexity of environmental issues, James Bock, secretary for C.E.Q. said.

"The purpose is to increase students' awareness of the environment and how they can become involved in issues both locally and nationally," he said.

On Wednesday, Earth Day, a student information fair will be held on the lawn in front of the Tower Library. The fair will include about 25 groups including campus organizations, statewide environmental groups, and safe energy businesses. The fair will also include mural and barrel painting.

The rain site for the fair will be the Student Union Ballroom.

Bock also said, "There will be a submarine invasion of the campus pond," but he declined to give any more detail, calling it "top-secret."

Other events in the week will focus on issues of acid rain, environmentalism, nuclear winter, and energy. Events will include speeches, seminars and an animal masquerade.

Monday's theme is toxic waste will include a speech given by Allen Johnson, Massachusetts undersecretary of environmental affairs.

Tuesday, the last day of Earth Awareness Week, will feature a concert by the Paul Winter Consort at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

The $1,000 funding for the week was given by several campus organizations, Bock said.

'Rock Against Contras' at Smith Wednesday

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

Rock Against the Contras, a cdance benefit for the government and people of Nicaragua, will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight Wednesday at Smith College's Davis Center, with all proceeds going toward non-military aid for the country.

Perry Amsellem, an organizer and member of Western Mass. Latin America Solidarity Committee, the sponsor group, said the dance will be a chance for people to "dance and have a good time, and put money toward a good cause." Musicians Mitch Chakour, Orquestra Juventud, and The Bounce will perform.

Amsellum said the event is part of an ongoing effort by the group and the Northampton Organizing Committee on Central America to help Nicaraguan people live independently of the U.S. government.

Tickets are $2 in advance and $3 at the door. Refreshments will be sold.

Panel to address urban issues today

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Correspondent

Robert Wagner, former deputy mayor of New York and former chairman of the New York Planning Commission, will be one of three panelists discussing "Dealing With the Urban Challenges of Crime, Poverty and the Decaying Infrastructure" at 3 p.m. today in Campus Center Room 163.

Wagner is currently teaching at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University and is regarded as a future candidate for mayor of New York City. His father Robert once held this office. In Mayor Ed Koch's new book, Mayor, Koch expresses "undiluted praise" for Wagner, and had originally nominated him to be commissioner of schools for New York City.

He will be joined on the panel by Theodore DiMauro, former mayor of Springfield and George Sicaras, former police chief of Hartford, Conn.

David Booth, chairman of the panel and professor of political science at the University, said "The deterioration of the intrastructure of American cities is reaching crisis proportions. The state of disrepair of the bridges here in Massachusetts is a prime example of the problems we're talking about."

Other facilities in disrepair include highways, viaducts, underground tunnels, and loading and unloading facilities for garbage, he said.

"Most urban expansion occured in the 1920s and '30s, so the capital investments which must be replaced are 40 and 50 years old," he added.

Booth said past presidents have not made urban revitalization a priority. Because of the magnitude of the problem, he said, the nation's authorities estimate that it will take "at least 800 billion dollars and 5 to 10 years to complete the necessary repairs and replacements."

This panel discussion is the fourth in a series of five colloquia in which students have an opportunity to hear leading experts on "Managing the Modern Municipality." Other topics include urban revitalization in medium-sized cities and affirmative action for leadership positions in urban management.

Good Things are Worth Waiting For!

Alumni Skills Bank Night

School of Management

Rescheduled

Wednesday, April 25, 1984

8:00 P.M.

Campus Center Room 163

Delores Bowens: Vice President, Goldman-Sachs
Jeff Cohen: Controller, Instron
Paul McDonald: Vice President
- Friendly Ice Cream Corp
Dennis Mullin: Assistant Product Manager
- Union Carbide

will discuss critical topics such as

* Making the transition from college to corporation
* Planning career moves
* Prospects in the field

Followed by a Wine and Cheese Reception
All Students, Faculty and Staff Invited
Sponsored by: Alumni Office, University Placement Service, School of Management

To members of the UMass community:

On Thursday, April 26, 1984 the Collegian will be holding a public forum to discuss the Editorial Page. The forum will be in Campus Center room 805-809 from 3:00 to 4:30. In addition to discussing the Editorial Page, there will be time left open to discuss any aspect of the Collegian that people are interested in.

All interested members of the community are invited.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Showcase of Jazz

Johnny Griffin and his quartet
Chico Freeman and his quintet
with a special guest appearance by
Max Roach

FRIDAY, APRIL 27, 8PM
TICKETS: $9, $7, $5

Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

Distinguished Visitors Program
and
Governors Program Council
presents

Dr. Ruth Westheimer

"SEXUALLY SPEAKING"

Monday, May 7, 1984 at 8:00 PM

Student Union Ballroom

Tickets $2. 5-College Students
$4. General Public
available now at Fine Arts Center Box Office and all Datatix locations

BLUE WALL

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

HUNGRY?

ENJOY YOUR FAVORITE PIZZA OR GRINDER IN THE BLUEWALL!

PLACE YOUR ORDER WITH THE BARTENDER OR WAITPERSON AND LA CUCHINA WILL DELIVER!

HOURS: 5:00-10:45

EDITORIAL/OPINION

A call for judicial reform

For those of you who are reading this editorial and have never been involved in judicial proceeding at the University of Massachusetts you are lucky. For those of you that have been involved know how the system is chaotic. In fact, just as in state and federal courts, justice at this University often fails. Furthermore, the system for those involved in proceedings is frustrating.

Brian Cantor

First, let me state that it is great that we have a student dominated judiciary. Since the breech of rules and regulations affect fellow students, a disciplinary process should involve other trained students. However, this system has arisen not out of the goodness of the administration's hearts, but, rather out of court cases of the late 1960's and early 1970's.

What am I concerned about? The insufficiency of the training for the hearing board members (student judges). Problems within the wording in the student code of conduct and the fact that certain people are excluded from the proceedings (advocates). I have served as advocate for students at several hearings. I find it an extremely frustrating ordeal. Why? Because the advocates are prohibited from speaking. Mind you, the advocates may be present — that is questionable because they are made to feel unwanted at these hearings. I ask you a question, what is the worst that could happen? The worst that can happen is that the truth comes out.

However, this is a new development. Previous to this September, advocates would question, cross examine, make introductory statements and concluding statements for their clients. However, the administration felt that the elimination of the advocate role would enhance "finding" the truth or getting to the bottom of the matter. However, instead they have created chaos at the hearings. That is the function of a trained advocate. They (students) become emotional, introduce irrelevant material which angers the hearing board. They also make it much more difficult for the hearing board members to separate the relevant explaination from the irrelevent. Even though the judges are trained to separate relevant from irrelevant material in essence, they are not trained enough.

This system may result in the conviction of a high number of innocent students. Granted, occasionally overzealous student advocates may hinder proceedings. However, the chaos without the advocates' active role is much worse.

While it is true that the right to these proceedings does not provide the students the right to have the advocate speak for them, the University should permit the advocate to take an active part in their proceedings. Right now a dangerous system exists. The administration, due to fear and hatred of LSO, has successfully excluded advocates from these hearings. The system can work and students should petition the University to return the advocate to the proceedings. Don't wait until you are victimized.

When I first learned of the changes in the judiciary concerning the advocate's right of speech at the hearing, I was outraged. After discussion with administrators I took a "wait-and-see" attitude. Now after seeing, I believe we should return to normalcy. Bring back the advocate!

This commentary represents my personal views as the Southwest area Head Advocate, as well as the policy of the student Attorney General's office.

Brian Cantor is the Southwest area Head Advocate

Turnstyles is a Marxist view

Dan Goldstein and Rob Laporte

We are grievously penitent for our editorial, "The Other Side of Inequality." We were victims of some grand illusions concerning turnstyles. After reading some of the editorial replys, we plunged into a deep depression over the possibility that we — Dan and Rob — could actually be wrong! So confounded were we that we went to Rome over the weekend via a Peoples Express cheapie flight to research the history of turnstyles from the origins of Australopithecine man up until March 16th, 1973, the point at which research on this subject was terminated because scholars realized that turnstyles are an absurd thing to study.

After days of rigorous research and countless cups of espresso, we discovered the source of our illusions — namely the alienating effects of capitalist turnstyles. It was a Marxist perspective of the history of turnstyles that enlightened us. We learned that turnstyles represent and perpetuate the basic capitalist tendency towards alienating people from one another. Think of it; we all want to move with each other in harmony, but the arms of the turnstyles physically divide us, breaking up empathetic interaction. (It was at this time we learned of a catastrophe pertaining to our research — our coffee had run out).

Having brought some more espresso (Beans of Caligula) we realized how the Marxist theory applies to our previous interpretation of turnstyles. We learned that we unconciously ignored the sentiments of feminists, precisely because we were victims of the turnstyles. That is to say, the turnstyles deceived us into an impersonal, mechanistic and exploitive attitude toward females. The Freudian (or instinctual) perspective shrouded our vision of the historical and social dynamics of turnstyles in a material world, and thus blinded us to the articles implications for feminists. (At this point in our research we decided that the coffee was positively exquisite — we impulsively dropped two million lire into Italian coffee stock). By now you must see that it just wasn't our fault. We were, as Marx would say, determined by the material and capitalist conditions of life.

All humor aside; our articles reflect our reactions to the tragic nature of the human condition and of world politics. 30,000 people tortured and murdered in Chile in the name of democracy; Aparthied in South Africa; the high rate of mental illness; riots in Punjab; My Lai; The Third Reich; child abuse; and the possibility of human extinction; all these things and more drive us to seek humor and laughter over some of the less serious items such as turnstyles, or analogously, "Beans of Caligula." We are not ridiculing the feminist movement, but merely making light of the tendency for some groups to treat trivial or symbolic items as if they were absolutely critical. In addition, we aim to parody global theories like psyco-analysis and Marxism; we aim to suggest that such broadly explanatory theories do not offer us a way out of lifes dilemas; hence the absurdity of our application of these theories.

This is not to say that we recommend or partake in indiscriminate cynicism — many issues deserve serious attention, such as rape and wife-beating. In our previous editorial, however, we intended no seriousness, explicitly or implicitly. We merely intended absurdist humor.

We are in favor of feminism; we support ERA; we respect women; and we intend no harm to feminist or non-feminist. We are sorry if our editorials offended anyone. (By the way, if the material conditions of life have got you down, take a tour of southern Italy — we did — beautiful...just beautiful).

Dan Goldstein and Rob Laporte are UMass students

A day for Armenians

On April 24th, students and faculty at the University of Massachusetts will be commemorating Armenian Martyrs Memorial Day. This international observance is committed to the memory of more than 1.5 million Armenians who were the victims of genocide during World War I. On April 24, 1915, more than 250 Armenian community leaders and intellectuals lost their lives.

In tribute to the Armenian people who have cherished and often at great cost of life defended their right to religious freedom, members of our community will pause to remember. Any such occasion in the life of this campus should provoke solemn memory of the many tragic results of what the author, William Styron, has called "the catastrophic propensity on the part of human beings to attempt to dominate one another."

There will be little hope of overcoming the legacy of inhumanity which continues to plague human history until we can all exercise the moral imagination to feel the painful memories of those men and women of many nations and races who have suffered oppression — and until we individually and collectively exercise the moral will to oppose all such violence.

by Joseph Duffey
Chancellor

Letters

Policy dispute

To the Editor,

The lame ROTC person's lament about all "the abuse" taken in three years of parading around in his uniform at UMass was printed April 5. My offending response was in the Collegian editor's mailbox by 5 p.m. that day. How then did it take more than a week for my letter to see print, being April 13th, a Friday?

Simple, so the ROTC's could have more than a week to respond. That happened not the Monday after the Collegian saw fit to print my letter, but one day later.

The Collegian is quite obviously showing definite bias by it's letter policy of deferring the printing of certain letters, and then blatantly printing "retorts" in the space of 24 hours. Someone is screening the letters and selectively "censoring" the ones they print.

In the 13-odd years that the Collegian has been a part of my reading material, I have never seen so many people complaining about the ethics, or lack of ethics displayed in this paper in the last year or so. I certainly don't wonder why.

P. Hyjek
Granby

Liberal thinking?

To the Editor,

This is in response to "Too much liberal thinking" by James Taylor.

Aside from calling liberals "maggots" and inaccurately generalizing that they do nothing but talk about useless alternatives, I don't see any logical arguments refuting "liberal thinking." But it may be that "I don't understand," so go ahead and dismiss this letter as liberal generalizing.

The opening quote seems to be implying that the real world is harsh and unjust. We know. But, specifically, what is this ominous, destructive change that "totally counters the values of society?" And which values, for that matter? All of them? I love this nation too and, like many fellow citizens, I'm pretty concerned about "outside and inside forces" that are ruining our country and causing "major decay." But what are these destructive forces? Poverty and Reaganomics? Liberals? Women, gays, entropy, what? No clues in the editorial.

I'll agree that "aggression is not necessarily destructive" and connected with "anger, rage, or hate," but how is this related to liberal thinking? And what emotional state inspires a line like—"Now you maggots...?"

The author states that the liberals complain, "but they don't do anything. They sit and talk about useless alternatives. But, to get back to the real world, who do you think organized the powerful lobbying and public education group, MassPIRG? Or the Coalition for Environmental Quality? The Hunger Task Force? The Western Massachusetts Latin American Solidarity Committee? The University Peacemakers? SCERA? These are a few of the dynamic liberal organizations active on this campus alone, not to mention their national counterparts like (you may have heard of it) the EPA, ACLU, Better Business Bureau, Red Cross, etc. which aren't exactly "useless."

But then again, I may have misinterpreted the term "liberal" to mean "progressive, open-minded, and working non-violently within the system to accomplish peaceful and humanitarian goals." If so, I apologize for "not knowing the meaning of words I use."

Ted Richardson

TOP of the CAMPUS

INTRODUCING:
A NEW LUNCH ALTERNATIVE
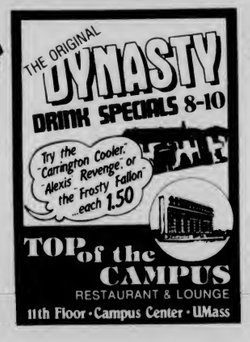
TOC LOUNGE
LUNCHEON BUFFET
M-F 11:30 AM-1:30 PM
- TOC HOT CHICKEN WINGS
- CHICKEN BITES
  Golden Fried Chicken Nuggets with your choice of sauces: mustard, sweet and sour, barbeque
- POTATO DELIGHTS
  Potato skins with delicious toppings
- CARROT & CELERY STIX
  with Vegetable Dip

All For Only
$2.75

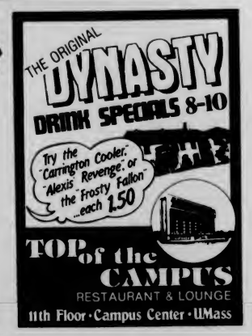
TOP of the CAMPUS

Attention:
Meal Plan Students

Use Your Meal Tickets in the TOC Restaurant



Campus Center Food Services, in conjunction with University Food Services, is proud to announce a new Dining Experience! Students enrolled in a University Food Services' full board plan may use their meal ticket for a $3.00 credit on Wednesday Evenings in the Top of the Campus Restaurant. Also, students will receive the usual 15% discount. Reservations must be received by noon on Mondays. Call 549-6000 ext. 639 or inquire at the T.O.C. Restaurant.



TOP of the CAMPUS
Restaurant & Lounge
11TH FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER UMASS

Earth Awareness Week
April 25 - May 1

Wednesday, April 25, Earth Day
- Greet the Dawn Ritual at Campus Pond, 4:45 AM
- Meditation, 7:00 - 10:00
- R.S.O. Fair and Environmental Displays, 10:00 - 4:00
- Submarine Invasion, 1:00

Music! Mural Painting! Magician! More!!!

Thursday, April 26, Acid Rain
- PIRG Acid Rain Workshop, 3:00 Machmer E-37
- Prof. O. Thomas Zajicek, 4:40 Herter 231
  Environmental Science Seminar on Acid Rain

Friday, April 27, Environmentalism
- Local Wildlife Presentation/Live Animal Display
  Harriet Rossen, Blue Hills Trailside Museum and Mass. Audubon
  12:00 Noon - 1:30 Commonwealth Room, Student Union
- Animal Masquerade and Costume Contest, Commonwealth Rm., 1:30
- Robie Hubley, "Environmental Lobbying: What You Can Do?"
  Workshop, 2:30 Machmer E-37
- Multimedia Nature Show, 7:00 Campus Center, Rm. 101
  Naturalist John Green, Slide Presentation
  Movies - "If You Love This Planet and Canadian Acid Rain Films

also: 49th Annual Livestock Classic today and tomorrow Grinnell Arena

Saturday, April 28, Energy
- Prof. Carl Carlozzi, Amherst Conservation Comm.
  Tilson Coal Pile, Mahar Auditorium 7:30 - 8:30 PM

Sunday, April 29, Nuclear Winter
- Dr. George M. Woodwell, Nuclear Winter Group
  Woodshole Oceanographic Institute
  Nuclear Winter Lecture, Mahar Auditorium 7:30-9:30 PM to be followed by a panel discussion with Francis Crowe, A.F.S.C. and representatives from the Union of Concerned Scientists, Physicians for Social Responsibility and University Peacemakers

Monday, April 30, Hazardous Wastes
- Workshops
  Dr. Michael Switzenbaum, Wastewater Treatment 2:30 Mach.E-37
  Rachel Laderman, Household Hazardous Wastes 3:30 Machmer E-37
  Nuclear Free Amherst 4:30 Machmer E-37
- Allen Johnson, Undersecretary of Environmental Affairs
  Lecture on N E Hazardous Waste Dumpsite, 7:30 Thomp. 106

Tuesday, May 1, Spirituality
- Inter-Faith Forum on the Morality of Nuclear War and Other Forms of Environmental Destruction, 12 Noon CC 168-C
- Feminist Ecology and the Womens Peace Movement
  Dr. Jean Grossholtz and Linda Lockwood, 2:00 CC 168-C
- The Role of the Earth in Native American Spirituality
  Slow Turtle, Mashpee Tribe, Commissioner of Indian Affiars, 3;30 CC 168-C
- Sundown Ceremony, Dancing, and Ritual Closure
  Campus Pond Lawn, 5:00 - 7:00 PM
- Coda: A Celebration of the Earth with the Paul Winter Consort at the FAC 8:00 PM
  (sponsored by the Chamber Choir Ensemble)

All events are open and free to the public with the exception of the Paul Winter Concert

Earth Awareness Week is endorsed and sponsored by the Chancellor's Office; the Student Senate, the Stockbridge Student Senate; the Graduate Student Senate; the Student Activities Office; The U.Mass. Arts Council; the Environmental Science Department; Mass. PIRG; the Music Department; the University Peacemakers; the Recycling Project; and the Coalition for Environmental Quality.

Earth Awareness Week was organized by the Earth Day Committee under the umbrella of the Coalition for Environmental Quality.

For further information, call: 545-0618

Room Choosing Notice

Special Interest Housing

The following

Special Interest Corridors

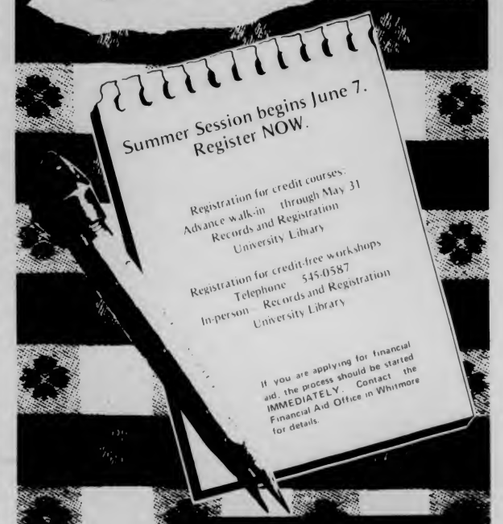
will have vacancies during the upcoming room choosing process:

Social Awareness Corridor -
Brett House in Central

Music Corridor -
Gorman House in Central Area

Butterfield Kitchen Coop -
Butterfield House in Central Area

Older Students Corridor -
Wheeler House in Central Area



Honors Corridor -
Field House in Orchard Hill

German Corridor -
Field House in Orchard Hill

Hearing Impaired Corridor -
Thoreau House in Southwest

To request housing in any of these special living areas, please come to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore during room choosing (April 23 - May 4) and fill out a specially stamped housing preference form. Students will also be required to sign an assignment waiver form and a special interest housing agreement unique to each special interest corridor. Thank you.

Get more than a tan this summer.

DCE CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

ATTENTION PSYCH MAJORS: OUR LOANS WILL BLOW YOUR MIND.

We believe the last thing that should keep someone from going to college is money. So call 1-800-SHAWMUT or come in and see us about our comprehensive education loan program.

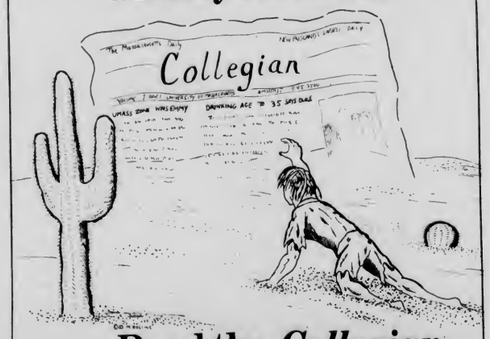
Because when it comes to helping students, our heads are in the right place.

Shawmut Banks
Look to us for direction.

Members FDIC Equal Housing Lender

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone Mark Rollins



Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

Thirsty for news?

Read the Collegian

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Plentiful
5 Lake formed by Hoover Dam
9 Go on a journey
13 Inland lake
14 Ornamental tag
16 The days of old
17 Game for the dexterous
19 Distress
20 Animal on a diet?
21 Tolerates
23 Stake
24 Breakfast food
25 Young blade
29 Arises
34 Inventor of electrical devices
35 Bit of sausage
36 Nabokov novel
37 Know one's ——
38 Minute pore
40 A Wilson
41 Anger
42 Biting
43 Mme. de Poitiers
44 Most ingenious
47 Law partner?
48 Author of "Trinity"
49 Peccary, e.g.
51 Word of greeting, in Israel
54 Hebraic or Arabic studies
59 Nursery item
60 Joanne Woodward's mate
62 Certain code
63 Moist clay
64 "Ruie, Britannia" composer
65 Tres ——
66 Letters, from Athens
67 Do a gardener's job

DOWN
1 Indian VIP
2 Shiraz's locale
3 Opposite of fiction
4 Actress Sommer
5 Dull finish
6 Long-legged herons
7 Of wings
8 Water droplets
9 Pool activity
10 Kind of runner
11 Put-in-Bay's lake
12 Recognizes
15 Catherine the Great, e.g.
18 Native-born Israeli
22 Depend (with "on")
24 Homburg feature
25 Impassive
26 Bailey or Buck
27 Name in cosmetics
28 Pacino and others
30 Works diligently
31 Leafy lunch
32 Commune in Italy
33 Kind of doll
38 Acts frugally
39 Ascot items
40 Evergreen
42 Flying prefix
43 Motherless one, on the range
45 Roman god of fire
46 Actress Ritter
50 All (stage direction)
51 Attempt
52 Mata ——
53 Nautical term
54 Vested garment
55 "—— the night before..."
56 Hungarian name
57 Rattan
58 Prune, in Scotland
61 Bar order

DC MENU

LUNCH
Shrimp Cantonese
Tacos

BASICS LUNCH
Vegetable Taco
Shrimp Cantonese

DINNER
STEAK AND SALAD NIGHT
Grilled Sirloin Steak
Chicken Cordon Bleu with Supreme Sauce

BASICS DINNER
Deep Dish Vegetable Pie with Puff Pastry
Chicken Breasts with Rice Stuffing

Collegian Elections

All Day Wednesday

All Staff

Encouraged To Vote

Weather

Today, cloudy in the high 40s with chance of showers in the late afternoon. Tonight, heavy showers. Tomorrow, partly cloudy with highs in the 50s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

A	I	R	I	S		T	A	M	E	R	A	S
D	I	T	T	E		A	V	I	A	N	A		I	D	I	A
T	I	G	E	R		P	O	L	Y	N	E	S	I	A	N
S	I	E	G	E		O	M	I	T		D	O	U	B	T
U	R	A	N	I	A			D	I	D	A
		O	P	A	L		P	A	S	S	A	T	I	M	E
C	L	O	U	T		A	T	A	R		T	R	U	E	D
A	M	I	G	O		C	L	A	V	E	D		M	I	C	E
R	E	S	E	T				E	F	F	O	R	T		A	T	E
P	A	L	I	N	T	E	D		D	O	D	I	A
		D	U	O		E	M	I	N	I	D	A
S	O	D	I	U	M		W	A	V	E		E	O	N
P	L	A	C	I	D		I	T	E	M		E	R	E
C	A	T	S		T	R	A	I	N	S		T	I	A	N
R	I	V	E	R	A		O	R	I	O	N		A	S	T	R

Distinguished Visitors Program
presents

GLENN O'BRIEN

regular columnist for Interview Magazine and AFTForum

speaking on

THE BOP MUSIC/POP ART CONNECTION

Tuesday, March 24, 1984
Campus Center Room 168
8:00 PM
Free

Holocaust Memorial Day

On Thursday, April 26, all faculty, staff and students will be invited to wear yellow stars. . .

- In memory of the 6 million Jews who were tortured and murdered in the Nazi death camps.
- In honor of those who risked their lives and gave their lives in the resistance movements throughout occupied Europe.
- In recognition of our committment to work in solidarity with others resisting oppression and persecution everywhere.

Buttons displaying the yellow star will be available at central campus locations including: (Campus Center Concourse, Residential Cluster Office, Dean of Students Office, Whitmore) beginning April 23.

Wednesday, April 25 8:00 p.m.
Poetry and Discussion by Kol, Marcia Black, Debra Seidman, and others. Readings of poetry and testimonies of writers, Jewish survivors, and Jewish people in the resistance movement.
Room 811, Campus Center

Thursday, April 26 Continuous Showing 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Film "Ihr Zent Frei" (You Are Free) Focuses on the liberation of Buchenwald and its effects on the liberators and the Internees. A 1984 Academy Award Nominee for short documentary.
Cape Cod Lounge

9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Photo Exhibit
Cape Cod Lounge

9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Book Exhibit with relevant bibliographies and course descriptions available.
Cape Cod Lounge

12:30 p.m. - 1:00 p.m.
Commemorative Gathering with Chancellor Joseph Duffey and others.
Cape Cod Lounge

7:30 p.m.
Film and Discussion "As If It Were Yesterday" About the rescue operation of Jewish children in Belgium during WWII. The film maker, Myriam Abramowitz, will discuss her work with the audience.
Worcester Dining Commons

Friday, April 27 To be announced
Breakfast discussion with film maker Myriam Abramowitz.
Butterfield

Sunday, April 29 12:00 noon
Hillel Bruch with guest speaker Rena Finder Borm in Krakow, Poland, Ms. Finder is a survivor of the Krakow ghetto, the Plaszow concentration camp, Auschwitz, and Brinnlitz.
Commonwealth Room

2:00 p.m.
Memorial to Victims of the Holocaust
Commonwealth Room

7:30 p.m.
Film "David" This 1979 film, the gripping story of a Jewish boy coming of age in Nazi Germany (1933-1940), is the first feature film about the Holocaust to be made by a German director (Peter Lilienthal) Free
Thompson Hall

Tuesday, May 1 7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.
Jewish Awareness/Anti-Semitism Workshop led by Cherie Brown, an internationally known trainer from the Boston area. Open to all students.
Campus Center
For more information call:
Hillel Office 545-2526
Marcia Black, Jewish Awareness Trainer, SCERA, 545-0341
Elsie Young, Residential Education East, 545-0422

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day they take place. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

SCERANTI-RACISM TEAM MEETING — Learn more about institutional and individual racism. Be a part of our supportive, understanding, and non-threatening community. Bring all your friends. 4:00 p.m., CC805.

BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA — Under the direction of Seiji Ozawa, with guest soloist, Ivo Pogorelich. Program to include Shostakovich Symphony No. 10 and Tchaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1. 8:00 FAC Concert Hall.

"UNDERGROUND SOLIDARITY—AN INSIDE VIEW" — "Underground Solidarity—An Inside View" will be the topic of a talk by Pawel Bakowski, a former participant in the underground Solidarity movement in Poland. 8:00 p.m., SOM 116.

SIXTH ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF CONTEMPORARY UNOFFICIAL RUSSIAN ARTS & LETTERS — "Crime and Punishment" videotape presentation of Yu Liubimov's world-famous production of Dostoevsky's novel, filmed clandestinely at the Taganka Theater in Moscow. 7:00 p.m., HERT Langauge Lab.

WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP PROJECT MEETING — Come talk about why women are reluctant to assume leadership roles. New members welcome. 5:30 p.m., SU415.

LIGHT WEAPONS PRACTICE — Medieval weapons simulation using padded plastic weapons. All are welcome to watch and join! 8-10:00 p.m., NOPE 23.

AL-ANON — Are you affected by another person's drinking? Meeting every Tues. at 8:00 p.m., First Baptist Church, 434 N. Pleasant St., downstairs, across from the Newman Center.

AZ MEETING — Be there! 6:30 p.m., Stockbridge 311.

UPC GENERAL MEETING — Spring Events are coming up. Everyone's help is needed. New members are always welcome. 6:30 p.m., CC163.

DES ACTION/W. MASS — will be holding a public meeting Tuesday, April 24 at the Jones Library in Amherst at 7:30 p.m. The film "DES: the Timebomb Drug" will be shown, followed by a discussion of problems related to the use of the drug DES given to pregnant women between 1940 and early 1970. For more information, call Felicity Callahan at 256-0818.

PASSOVER SERVICES — 10:30 a.m., SU Suffolk Room.

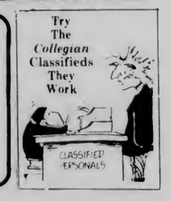
ALPHA ZETA — will hold a meeting to organize for the upcoming movie & end of year party. 6:30 p.m., Stockbridge 311.

LESBIAN UNION — There is a meeting of the L.U. this Tuesday night. All are welcome to attend. L.U. members are encouraged to attend. 7:00 p.m., SU406G.

ANTI-RACISM TEAM MEETING — Join us to FIGHT RACISM! New members welcome. 4:00 p.m., CC802.

FREE WRITING TUTORING — The Southwest Writing Center offers free confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignment or writing project. Drop in, no appointment needed. 7-9:00 p.m., Pierpont dorm.

GREET THE DAWN OF EARTH AWARENESS WEEK — Rise up and join together for a particatory ritual. 4:45 a.m., Campus Pond.



ROCK & ROLL
DYNAMITE RECORDS
We buy albums
We pay cash or you may trade for 25% more off new albums
Maxell UDXLII S90
this week only $2.50/ea.
Thornes, a marketplace plus!
150 Main Street, Northampton 584-1580
SOUL JAZZ CLASSICAL

SUMMER STUDENT EMPLOYMENT
BUDGET OFFICE, UMASS/AMHERST
Responsibilities include data collection, file maintenance, and general office assistance. Accuracy a must. Twenty hours per week May 15 through August 31. Possible employment during academic year. Send letters and resumes attention of: Fred Goodhue or Gail Matthews, Budget Office, Room 343 Whitmore. Salary $3.90 - $4.10 per hour.

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Carwin-Vega Speakers Vector receiver Akai deck Sony tumtable - almost new reasonable offers call Matt 253-3907

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Chevy Caprice auto, PS/PB good cond. 665-4117 $1450

75 Datsun rebuilt engine 950 or BO Kathy 549-4035 snow tires

1968 Volkswagen Bug Engine good front end, brakes poor AM/FM radio $150. 256-8088

1970 Saab 96 good mechanical condition; some rust; dependable $600 Larry 549-4497

1977 Toyota Corolla great condition new brakes tires high mileage $1400 call 256-0311

CAR AND MOTORCYCLE

1976 Toyota Corolla - blue, really cute. Many new parts, runs well, body good, AM FM cassette. Good mileage. 1976 Honda 350, also very cute. Gold with matching helmet. Great shape, needs battery. Must see both. Call Tami, 256-0186.

DONNA MISIPH

Happy twentieth Stymie! Here's to all the great times we've had and all the best still to come! I love you! nywbasgpf"tr" -love, Steph

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FOR RENT

4 bed houses - Country setting with acres near city. Other near Smith College. $525 without utilities. For Sept. Call Northampton 584-3428, 5-6 pm, Skibiski, Realtors

Female wanted nonsmoker for summer sublet and fall option, own room, pool, bus route, $150/month plus utilities, call 253-7806 evenings

Available now 1 bdrm apt on bus rte 31 Mill Hollow Apts Amherst 549-1602

4 bdrm twnhse in Squire Vill available June 1 w/fall option on bus route cheap rent 665-7595

2 bedroom apt available June 1 with fall option Brittany manor $450.00 call after 10. 253-5907

Furnished efficiency with carpet, AC. Summer sublet, fall option $205. 323-6704

Amherst Center - room for one or two women in beautiful house $160 plus mo. 253-9487 or 665-3091

FOR SALE

2 couches excel condition best offer 253-5288

Naw Batavus Motor Bike modified must sell call 549-0663

Mens 10 speed, brand new, 33% off reg. price, $100, 584-0569, Wayne, afternoon -night

HELP WANTED

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

SUMMER JOBS - Mayhew, a full-year program for low-income boys, neds male staff for its summer phase. Positions are residential, 9 weeks, $800-$1,000 salary, room, board, laundry. Job Descriptions, applications, RFD #1, Box 179, Bristol NH 03222, or (603) 744-8494

Counselors, private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, gymnastics, softball, photography, radio station (AM), computers, director/piano accompanist, dance/movement/show choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders and bunk counselors. Good salaries, friendly atmosphere. Contact Jodi 546-9668

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

Open Rush
All University Women Invited
Tues 4/24 5:00 Pizza Party
Wed. 4/25 7:30 Taco Fiests
For Info: call 256-6874

LOST

Wednesday, girls pin-striped jean jacket, call Robyn after 5 PM 1-536-3690

Red plaid MacGregor scarf in Cape Cod Lounge Mon 4/9 546-4400

Jean Jacket and keys at the Pub return! to Pub or call 549-7566 Reward!

MUST RENT IMMEDIATELY

Space in Brittany $117.50 call Tracy 256-0011 leave name & number

NEWPORT

Wanted room in house or apt from June - Sept. Call Amy in the evening at 549-5619 please keep trying

PERSONALS

Please take over our lease as of June 1st. 2 bedroom apartment, Sunderland, on bus route, wall to wall carpeting, A/C, dishwasher, $325/month + electricity, hot water FREE. Call anytime - 665-4278

Collegian Staff Elections for Board of Editors will be Wednesday, April 25, from 9:00 to 8:00 all staff members (business, graphics, and newsroom!) eligible to vote

Elections for North East Area Government will be held on May 8th. The positions open are President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and Secretary. Nominations will open on Monday April 23rd and will close Sunday April 29th at 8 PM. Nomination papers are available from Dianne Rossi 304 Dwight (546-5542)

Karen P "The Bicycle Rider" How about a ride with an admirerer some sunny day? 546-9545

All University Women invited to Open Rush at Alpha Chi Omega
Wed., April 25 - Dynasty Happy Hpour at 9
Thurs., April 26 - Bar-B-Q dinner at 4:45
Please RSVP to Linda Baker ir Stacy at 545-2152 or 549-4159

Holly - Happy Birthday! Love Elizabeth

To the cast of Grease: Tonight's the big night! Get psyched! Good Luck, Love Renee

To Dan and Tyrone Happy Birthday to my two favorites I love you! Always, Julie

PS in Central You've brought happiness into my life too. Thank God for weekends Sweeties in SW

Grease - whatatotalwicked - Have a great opening - FEH!

A Wop Bop A Lu Bop - Come see GREASE Tonight at 8:00 pm, ABSOLUTELY FREE at Hampden Picnic Area. Come early for good seats.

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1st with fall option 549-6715

Wanted two roommates to share Southwood Apt. call 546-5271 or 546-5265 between 5-10 PM

Share two bedroom apt male or female immediate thru June. South Amherst. Jeffrey Manor condominiums. Furnished. Busline. 127+/month 256-6838 John or Dave

Responsible women to share sunny Southwood apt summer/fall 253-5109

Looking for 2 mature UMass students to share quaint 3 bedroom Northampton apt. Summer with fall option call evenings after 6 586-4555

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom apartment mid May with fall option call 253-2140

Furnished room available in three bedroom townhouse in North Amherst. Clean, quiet, non-smoker please. Call 549-4861

Two males to share house in W Yarmouth for the summer $600.00 each call Maureen 549-7621 or 545-0239

Fall semester 84 (summer sublet) Southwood apts 3rd floor pool tennis court on busline Norm 256-1031

2 female roommates wanted to share Colonial Village apt inexpensive call Janet 546-7091

Female nonsmoker to share 4 room N'ton apt 205/mth May-Aug pos through May 85 586-9938

Looking for 1 female to share two bedroom apt in Squire Village with 2 other girls Jan 546-6496 or Beth S 546-6491

Male roommate wanted to share 1 bedrm apt in Presidential $177.00 includes heat 546-9538

ROOMMATE WANTED IN BOSTON

Graduating female needed to share apt. in Boston/128 area Sue 256-0463

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

TYPING--Fast, relisble, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Summer sublet only. Fully furnished. Must be seen to appreciate. Negotiable call 256-8788

Share house for summar 150$/month s beautiful 4-bedroom house. It has kitchen walk-in pantry dining living rooms more than one space. Within walking distance to UMass 546-5196

Townehouse Apts 2 bedroom from June 1 to August 31 rent negotiable call Joe 549-0302

One bedroom apt at Crestview, summer sublet w/fall option, avsila June 1 360/mo 549-2641

Apt. available for summer in Puffton. Price negotiable. Please call 546-7986 or 546-7968

Brittany $353.50 June, July, August call Tracy 256-0011 leave name and number

Fall option 2 bedrooms in 4 bedroom house on bus route 256-1337

Furnished 1 bedroom Brandywine Apt rent negotiable mary 549-6660

2 bedroom Brandywine apt. Jane 549-6660

Swiss Village 4 bedroom 2 bath spacious convenient modern apt 256-8247

Prime Amherst Center location, three bedrooms, spacious, renovated, 6-4984, fall option

Two bedroom Townhouses summr sublet fall option Squire Village rent negotiable 665-4793

Summer sublet with fall option 2 bedroom townhouse in Southwood apartments 256-6708

3 bedroom apt on bus route for summer women preferred call 6-6953 or 6-6966

Fall option 4 bedrooms 2 bathrooms $150 includes utilities call 256-0025 on bus route

TO ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN

CHI OMEGA invites you to our Open Rush Party! Come see what s sorority is all bout. Tuesday April 24, 7-8:30 PM call 545-0162 for rides or information. Ask for Kristin or Patty

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

Fully furnished 2 bdrm Southwood Apt call after 10 PM cheap 256-1318

3 bedroom Puffton summer only 110/room Kathy or Lusnn 549-4035

Female wanted for own room in Rolling Green apts available June 1 graduate or older student preferred call evenings 256-0304

Arlington Mass (next to Cambridge) Juen 1 - Sept 1 $234/month gorgeous house 617-643-3726 keep trying

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

For summer: 5 bedroom house on Main St. next to bus stop 256-6352 Sue

3 bedroom Puffton apt summer cable 2 bathrms call after 11 PM cheap 546-7267

Summar w/fall option - Brittany Manor -pool, tennis, airconditioning, busroute 256-0097

4 bdrm 2 bath, Swiss Village apt fall option $174 per bdrm per month, utilities included. Leaving most living room, kitchen furnitura 256-0089

Two bedroom apartment on scenic Puffer's Pond. Summer sublet with fall option. 549-6500

3 bedroom spt in Northwood 330 on bus route, fall option call 665-8514

2 bedroom summer sub/fall option pool laundry bus low rent June 1 call 665-8125

2 bedroom spartment in Puffton Village June 1 to Sept 1 call Cinde 545-0162

Brendywine 1 br furnished Jun-Sept pool 549-5825

Colonial VIII 1 bedroom furnished summer possible fall option 256-0909 evenings

One bedroom in Sunderland all utilities paid summer fall option 665-2866

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WANTED

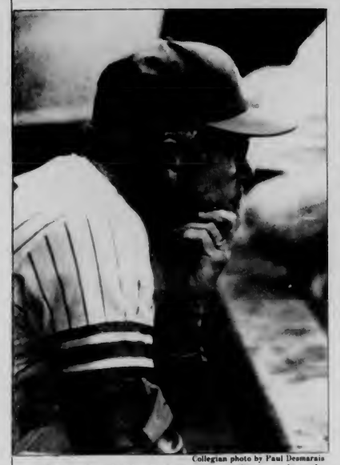
Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Looking for roommates?? 2 females looking to share townhouse Brsndywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

WANTED TO RENT

Easy to live with fun loving looking to share apartment. Prefer near campus call eves, Lisa 546-5617

2-3 bedroom apt wanted North Amherst willing to take over June Mike 546-9387



3 people need living space in Northampton June 1 - next year 546-8973 keep trying

Sublet wanted for summer, professional couple, no children/pets, excellant references. 203-763-0323

Brandywine Southwood will takeover lease anytime $ reward call Tom 546-5930 or Bob 549-1685

Sports

Minutemen rally falls short, 10-9

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

UMass baseball Coach Dick Bergquist is wondering what he has to do to beat a tough Fairfield squad. UMass lost yesterdays thriller, 10-9.

By BOB BROCK
Collegian Staff

Fairfield University pitcher Dave Caseria fired a 3-2 fastball past UMass shortstop Angelo Salustri with two outs and the bases loaded in the ninth, to enable Fiarfield to escape with a hard-fought 10-9 victory over the Minutemen yesterday at Lorden Field.

The see-saw, three and a half-hour ballgame had everything in it. It featured 22 hits, 16 walks, four errors and four wild pitches. It even had a 20-minute rain delay, but what it all comes down to is another frustrating loss for the Minutemen, now 12-20 on the season.

Fairfield opened the scoring early on in the first as they jumped on UMass starter Jim Knopf for two runs. Rightfielder Tom Reardon blasted a solo homer and that was followed by a walk and two more hits. They added three more in the second by combining singles by Chuck Knight and Ken McGovern, a walk and two UMass errors. It was 5-0 Fairfield and you had to worry because Fairfield starter Bob McGlandish was cruising, striking out six of the first eight UMass hitters he faced.

But in the UMass third, McGlandish lost his stuff. He began by walking three hitters in a row before he walked UM's Todd Comeau to force in a run. Steve Messina then picked up his second hit to knock in two more. McGlandish then walked leftfielder Bruce Kingman thereby assuring himself of a walk to the dugout. Reliever Caseria entered the game and promptly threw a wild pitch scoring Comeau. The Minutemen picked up four runs on only one hit.

Steve Allard replaced Knopf on the mound for UMass and retired the visitors with no trouble in the fourth. Meanwhile, the Minutemen picked up three more runs in their half of the inning to take a 7-5 lead. With one out, Andy Connors walked, Salustri doubled to right and went to third on a Fairfield throwing error, which scored Connors. Firstbaseman Comeau then followed with a shot over everything in right for his third home run of the season.

Fairfield scratched back for single runs in both the fifth and sixth. In the fifth they combined a walk, a UMass error and a wild pitch by Allard. In the sixth they tied the score at 7-7. Both Reardon and catcher Joe Charno singled followed by a walk to Mark Portanova. Shortstop Joe Mancini then followed with a basehit to score Reardon. That was it for Allard who was replaced by Matt Subocz who quickly ended the threat.

The Minutemen had the lead for the last time in the bottom of the sixth. With one out Salustri singled, stole second and then scored on Comeau's third hit of the day, a double to left-center, to put UMass ahead 8-7.

With rain now beginning to fall, both UM's Subocz and Fairfield's Caseria retired the side with no trouble in the seventh. But in the eighth, D.H. T. J. Paoletta changed everything. He knocked a clutch three-run homer over the fence in left to put Fairfield up 10-8.

After a 20-minute rain delay which put the outcome of the game in doubt, the Minutemen came to bat in the ninth. Pinch-hitter Tony Szklany opened it with a single. Bruce Kingman walked and then Tom Fabian sacrificed them to second and third. Szklany then scored on a wild pitch to make it 10-9. After Caseria struck out Jeff Cimini he walked Connors to load the bases setting up his dramatic confrontation with Salustri.

Retired Gorillas find new life in lacrosse club

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse coach Dick Garber told an interesting story about atheletes and the end of their playing careers. "At Mickey Mantle's retirement," Garber began, "the man was showered with all sorts of gifts. Mantle came up to the microphone and thanked eveyone for all the gifts. But he added that there was one gift he really wanted and could not have. Another game."

For UMass lacrosse players, there is something to do after turning in their sticks and joining the Gorilla alumni club. Eighteen players that either graduated or attend UMass now are on the roster of the two-year-old Western Massachusetts Lacrosse Club.

Notable alumni such as the second all-time leading UMass scoring leader Jim Weller, now the coach at Amherst College, Peter and Chris Schmitz, Jeff Spooner and Eric Conz grace the Western Mass roster.

Randy Krutzler, 29, a UMass alumnus coaches the squad which has a 1-1 record this year.

Club founder George Long, a 26 year old grad student here at UMass says that the UMass alumni are one of the two big contributors to the club with the Longmeadow High School being the other.

"It's a focal point," Long said. "The players were here in the area and the idea (for a club) was long overdue."

Peter Schmitz, a 1981 UMass graduate and a present graduate assistant coach for UMass now and spends his spare time playing for Western Mass.

"It's not quite as serious as college," Schmitz said. But it's a way for us to continue playing against some high caliber competition.

"We have a bunch of players who are pretty good," Schmitz, who is studying to enter medical school said. "Most of us have played together. A lot of us came from a similar program and were taught similar things and that makes it easier."

It also helps to have former All-Americans on the squad. Ithaca's (NY) Jeff Spooner joins up with Weller and Cornell's Rob Carey to form an impressive attack.

Northampton's Eric Conz is a big contributor. "We have one of the best club attacks in New England," Long said.

Spooner was the team's second leading scorer last year with 47 points in the team's first season.

Long said he organized the club because there was an abundance of lacrosse players in the area and no local team for them. By word of mouth, the players have flocked to the team.

There are players from Long Island, Ithaca, New York, and Cromwell, Connecticut on the team.

Western Mass plays their home games at Westfield State on the turf. Western Mass faces rival Connecticut Valley on Saturday and Brine Club (Boston) on May 13 at Westfield.

"I was interested in coaching. It was an outlet for me," Schmitz said. "But I would rather play. That's more of an outlet."

And it's another game.

UMass signs a bigman, Canadian Swick to Amherst

By DAN LEBERFELD
Collegian Staff

UMass basketball Coach Ron Gerlufsen and his assistant Mark Shea have been on many long roads and in many lonely hotel rooms during the past few months. Why? To sell quality recruits like 6-8, 225 pound Tom Swick on UMass, which they are successfully doing.

Swick, a native of Welland, Ontario, is the fourth blue-chip recruit to sign on with the Minutemen. The first three were 6-2 jumping jack Lorenzo Sutton, 6-3 pure shooter Matt Ryan and 6-8½ Fitzhugh Tarry.

"He is an unselfish player who will give us inside depth. He is physically strong," said Gerlufsen on Swick.

The solidly build Canadian averaged 20 points and 14 rebounds a game and was All-Province selection. He was the MVP of the Ontario Catholic Tournament. Swick is a power player who can play either forward or center.

Gerlufsen has made it clear that he is recruiting team players with good work habits and attitudes.

"We let our guys do their talking on the court. We don't recruit superstars with great stats, but bad attitudes. Carl Smith didn't have great high school stats and look what he did," said Gerlufsen.

UMass still needs more help up front and Gerlufson and Shea are very close to signing a few more forwards.

Wilbert Hicks a 6-7 forward out of New Haven, Connecticut is visiting UMass today. He was first team All-State which is no easy feat in this competitive basketball state. To put things in perspective, 6-8 John Milum, a Connecticut native who signed with UConn of the Big East, was a third team All-State selection.

Hicks will make his decision in the next few weeks. Farleigh Dickinson, Western Carolina, St. Bonaventure and UMass covet him. Hicks planned on visiting St. Bonaventure after he finished his UMass visit, but he cancelled this trip and crossed the Bonnies off his list because of the location of the school. This occurence and the fact that his brother Tyrone attends near by Clark University are both good signs for UMass's chances.

Warren Bradley 6-6 from Bridgeport, Conn. wants to attend UMass, but he will have to wait until the summer to sign with the Minutemen, because he did not take the SAT's yet. According to Gerlufsen, Bradley has "a great attitude."

So as you can see things are looking up in Minuteman country. The Ron Gerlufsen positive era is well underway.

Softball starts marathon

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Like the runners who depart from Hopkinton at the start of the Boston Marathon, the University of Massachusetts softball team departs on a marathon of their own this week with five doubleheaders (10 games) in six days starting today.

Massachusetts, bearing a 21-9 record, opens their long week against Central Connecticut with a doubleheader this afternoon at 2:30 p.m.

The Blue Devils are a Division II squad but they are a scrappy team that aspires to pull off the upsets. And last year they did just that. UMass came into the doubleheader with a 21-5 record in 1983 and Central upset UMass 4-3.

"They would love to upset Massachusetts," co-captain Allyson Rioux said. "We can't afford to make mistakes. They are a team always looking to capitalize at the other team's expense."

After the Central game, UMass faces New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Temple on consecutive days starting on Thursday.

"We have to take tomorrow as tomorrow and not look to Thursday," Rioux said.

BLEACHER BLURBS — As an interesting sidenote, the UMass softball team has nine players from Connecticut, four from Stamford (Rioux, catcher Beth Talbott, Carol Frattaroli (2B), and catcher Anne King).

Debbie Cole (Orange), Sally Maher (North Haven), Ann Ringrose (Southington), DH/3B Robin Road (New Caanan) and Emily Bietsch (Trumbull) also hail from the Nutmeg state.

Marathon schedule....

TUESDAY....CENTRAL CONN. (2) 2:30

WEDNESDAY...day off

THURSDAY....NEW HAMPSHIRE (2) 2:30

FRIDAY.....RHODE ISLAND (2) 2:30

SATURDAY....at UConn. (2)

SUNDAY.....TEMPLE (2) 1:00

Netwomen host Mount Holyoke

The University of Massachusetts women's tennis team will bring its 2-4 record to the Upper NOPE courts today as they host Mount Holyoke College, beginning at 4:00 p.m.

This will be the last home match for the netwomen until a makeup of the University of Rhode Island contest on May 5th.

The Minutewomen will have their hands full this weekend as they travel to West Virginia for the Atlantic Ten Championships.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIX, Issue 60 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, April 25, 1984

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

WALKING IN THE RAIN—Tika Ospina, a University of Massachusetts student strolls around under her umbrella yesterday.

Professor cites 'conservative bias' in tenure denial

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts professor, who was denied tenure earlier this month because of what he claims are biases against views he advocates in courses dealing with human sexuality, said yesterday he is considering legal action against the University.

Dr. Roger Libby, who is internationally known for his research and study in non-traditional areas of sexuality, said he has been discriminated against by members of the home economics department since he began teaching at its Center for the Family division six years ago.

"I'm alleging it's the sex-negative nature of society that has denied me my tenure," he said. "It's my liberal approach and sense of humor regarding sex" that the department disapproves of.

Merle Howes, a home economics faculty member, who sat on the department's Personnel Committee that reviewed Libby's case, was reluctant to elaborate on why tenure was denied when contacted yesterday.

"The Personnel Committee of the division of Home Economics, composed of five of Libby's peers and the director of the division, after due process of evaluation following University guidelines, recommended to deny Libby tenure," Howes said.

"What they wanted was general family courses," Libby said, claiming the department never made any specific programatic guidelines "spelling out" what that meant.

Attorney Jay Green, who is handling Libby's case and has worked on past tenure cases against the University, said there are "a lot of viable options" and concern for academic freedom.

"We're looking at a number of legal remedies that are viable. It is still early in this matter and it's fair to say that anyone who is denied an expectation is looking into viable remedies," he said.

Earlier this semester the Home Economics Personnel Committee voted unanimously against granting Libby, and another professor who has done extensive research in the area of bisexuality and homosexuality, promotion or tenure. A second vote was then held by the College Personnel Committee that rendered a split vote favoring Libby's promotion and tenure.

Warren Schumacher, another Home Economics professor and committee member, said that in accordance with the Massachusetts Society of Professors union contract regarding split votes, the two committees met to discuss the case, and in a third vote, unanimously decided against granting tenure.

Libby said he is questioning "the procedures of the University. The due process wasn't followed in the way I was denied tenure."

According to the "Red Book," which sets University standards for continuing promotion and tenure, a professor may be promoted if he or she has excelled in two of three areas: teaching, research and service.

Howles said it would "appear to be the case in judgment of the peer review "that Libby did not excel in these areas.

But Libby said it is the "conservative biases" of his department that denied his tenure and "infringed" on his first amendment and academic freedom rights.

He said many Home Economics faculty members thought his popular textbook, Sexual Choices, which was awarded a 1982 book of the year award by the American Journal of Nursing, was "lacking in taste" because it contained illustrations of vibrators and other material they said was "not appropriate for the Center for the Family."

Libby said the book is supposed to represent the often conflicting ideas, and it is supposed to represent the pluralistic society we live in," Libby said. "But the University is biased toward a conservative faculty."

Chancellor Joseph Duffey and Provost Samuel Conte were unavailable for comment.

Hampshire sets minimum standards

By PAUL BASKEN
Collegian Staff

Faculty at Hampshire College, which has for a year been struggling to satisfy federal requirements for rates of academic progress while maintaining its unique non-traditional nature, yesterday adopted a compromise plan.

Debate on the standards, required by the Department of Education before federal student financial aid could be continued, ranged from students who favored the least possible regulation to some faculty who felt more guidelines were needed for the college, which stresses independent work and allows students to develop individual majors. Such student concentrations at the school have recently included frisbee, magic, and political cartooning.

"They (the faculty) made it more difficult to proceed through the system for a non-traditional student," said Michael Current, a student member of the College Senate, who last month joined 300 students in a sit-in protesting tighter guidelines then being discussed at a faculty meeting.

However, biology professor Ann Woodhull, who offered an amendment eventually adopted which established specific project completion timetables as a recommended scale for ensuring academic progression, said "the large majority of the students who graduate successfully are meeting those standards, so I don't feel it's a large change."

"The faculty were all over the place from wanting much stricter standards to doing as little as possible, and I consider this a compromise," Woodhull said.

"We just want the standards to be in place so there is some control over student (financial aid) funds, and to ensure that they are in fact progressing to a degree," said Leo Paszkiewicz, senior program analyst of post-secondary education for the Department of Education.

"Quite often," Paszkiewicz said, "the (Government Accounting Office) found students were going in, signing up for 12 credits, then dropping out of two courses. They would get full (financial aid) funding, never getting past two or three years in their degree."

Current said the guidelines for the 14-year-old school were made immediately necessary when a Department of Education staff member who had until then argued an exemption for Hampshire, left her job last year.

Current said he then supported a plan, which with Woodhull's amendment was adopted by the faculty, that listed no specific time-based requirements, but depended on the student's faculty advisor to certify acceptable progress.

Dean of Institutional Planning Richard Alpert said he spoke before the meeting yesterday with a Department of Education official who agreed the original plan would be acceptable.

Current, who with other students was barred by faculty who voted for a closed meeting, said he supported a minimum plan because the lack of time had produced debate "not of sufficient quality."

Woman judge lectures at Amherst

Says law needs believers

By DIANE LANE
Collegian Staff

The judgment and wisdom to know when a change in society demands modification of the law are the most important characteristics of a "fine" judge, according to Judith S. Kaye, Associate Judge of the New York State Court of Appeals speaking at Amherst College last night.

Kaye, who is the first woman to serve on the court since its inception, said one of the hardest transitions she had to make as a "brand new judge" was to realize that her private thoughts on important social issues are now public.

"As a judge I must be aware that my own thoughts are irrelevant. The role of the Court of Appeals is to interpret the law," she said.

Kaye was appointed to the court in September of 1983 by Governor Mario Cuomo after a lengthy "merit selection" process. Although Kaye is the first woman judge to serve on the court since its inception, she felt other women would soon follow.

"Women are making tremendous strides in the legal profession. The barriers in people's minds are being overcome, and will continue to be overcome," she said.

Kaye, who was brought to Amherst by the Harlan Fiske Stone Law Society, spoke of her impressions on being a judge and said she feels the stability of the court and law are more important than any one judge. She said people

"As a judge I must be aware that my own thoughts are irrelevant. The role of the Court of Appeals is to interpret the law."

fashion their conduct after the decisions of the court and have a right to stability.

"However, a change in the composition of the court does not mean a change in the composition of the law," she said.

Kaye said the legal profession has been greatly tarnished in recent years by "the harsh public spotlight" and by negativism which suggests the legal system does not work; that criminals remain on the outside while victims are on the inside. She felt this was "a bum rap" and said it is unfair to lodge such generalized criticism.

"The system of justice depends on people believing that it works," said Kaye. "There is too little access and understanding. In some cases there are truths, but I have heard very little constructive criticism."

Kaye said she doesn't feel limited in her role as judge as opposed to when she was a lawyer and confined to representing her client's interests as best she could. As a judge she said her role is to serve the interests of society.

"I have no objective but to find the answers," she said.

Lawyers also should have a role in social change and must not be too introspective according to Kaye.

"Lawyers must look outside themselves - I found life better and more interesting when I was involved in the public interest."

INSIDE:

Earthquake rocks through California.....p. 2

Three professors differ on pornography controversy.....p.3

Special Arts edition.....p.10,11

Gorillas host Harvard today.....p. 16

"Collegian staff members remember to vote in the elections today."

— Board of Editors

Quake shakes West Coast

San Francisco, Ca. (AP) — A powerful earthquake jolted a wide area of Northern California and parts of Nevada yesterday, collapsing houses, swaying skycrapers and forcing the evacuation of some buildings. There were no immediate reports of injury.

The earthquake hit at about 1:15 p.m. and was centered 12 miles east of San Jose. It was given a preliminary Richter reading of 6.0 by the United States Geological Survey, while the state Office of Emergency Services gave it a reading of 5.8.

"We have a preliminary reading of 6.0 on the Richter scale with an epicenter of 20 kilometers about 12 miles east of San Jose on the Calaveras Fault," said Eina King, public information officer for the USGS in Menlo Park.

Five or six houses, apparently unoccupied, collapsed in Monterey County about three miles east of Morgan Hill, according to the state Division of Forestry.

The state Department of Water Resources said there was a crack in the pavement atop Anderson Dam five miles east of San Jose. Ground crews were sent to inspect the dam and the upstream gates were closed.

The worst California earthquake in recent years was the May 2, 1983, quake that devastated the Central California town of Coalinga. That registered 6.7 on the Richter scale and destroyed 90 percent of the downtown business district.

In yesterday's quake, San Francisco police reported shattered glass fell from windows in the Western Merchandise Mart, but no injuries were reported.

In San Jose, City Hall and the county administration building were evacuated buildings stopped automatically and about a dozen people were trapped inside, officials dozen people were trapped inside, officials said.

Tall buildings trembled in San Francisco for 20 to 30 seconds, and there were reports of objects knocked from shelves and walls.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — David Summersby
Copy Editor — Bob Burgess
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Brian Gonye
Production Supervisor — Peter Soderberg
Production — Pamela Smith, John Wielgus, Mike Lennon, Merrianne Hrycin, Beth Anne Moskov, Ansel Zinter, Leslie King, Joy McCarty, Lynn Eisenberg, Shelley Witkiewicz, Marsha Wilcon, Michele Phelan, Ellen Nahigian

Boston trolley cars collide

BOSTON (AP) - A trolley car on fire slammed into another trolley yesterday at a downtown subway station, sending as many as 200 screaming passengers fleeing to safety through a smoke-filled subway tunnel.

At least six people were taken to hospitals, and one of the injured had to be carried off the train, according to Bob Devin, spokesman for the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, which operates the trains.

Several injured people were laid out on a brick wall of the historic Boston Common, outside the subway stop, awaiting medical help.

Four people were taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, and two to Tufts New England Medical Center, but officials wouldn't release their conditions.

"We were hit from the back and when we looked behind we could see fire," said a passenger, Betty Cohen of Brookline. She said passengers were hurled to the floor of the car and into one another, screaming.

She said passengers had to get off the trolley and make their way through a darkened tunnel that was full of smoke.

"Who wouldn't be scared," she said, "walking down that dark tunnel with all that smoke."

Passenger Jane Regan of North Reading said some passengers helped others who were injured as they walked down the tunnel.

"We had to walk the length of the city block in the tunnel. There was little panic. Most people were encouraging others to keep control.

Mark Baker, 20, of Boston said his car was "jammed" with people because it had just taken on passengers from another car that broke down.

"It just happened so quick," he said. "People were screaming, people were crying, especially when they saw the smoke."

Bakers face was streaked with soot.

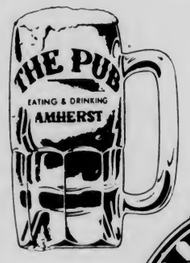
Clark Ziegler, a spokesman for the transit authority, said one car hit the rear of another at 1:25 p.m. at the Boylston station, located below ground near the Common.

The second car was a two-car unit. Each holds at least 85 to 90 passengers, and passengers said the cars were packed.

PRE-REGISTRATION FORMS

Pre-Registration forms are due TODAY at the Registrar's Office, 213 Whitmore

IDB TIPS



a service of the Dean of Students Office

OPEN BAR
Tonight & every Wed.
JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place

JUSTIN RYAN'S invites all women to drink for FREE from 8:00 - 9:00

$1. BAR DRINKS

for everyone til 11:00

PUB MUG NIGHT
- Every Wednesday
35¢ BEERS
Miller - Miller Lite
Music by Rack-A-Disc
- Dancing -
No Cover

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Sale 20%

People's market
"food for people not for profit"
Check out our full line of Health Care products
We're open 9-5 M-F. We're located behind Earthfoods

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
in the Carriage Shops Since 1975
On Campus Delivery Now Available 549-3717
OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
FOOT LONG SUBS
FRESH SALADS AND SOUP
KNISHES, PICKLES AND KOSHER HOT DOGS
BAGELS AND LOX
NEW YORK CHEESE CAKE
233 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS 549-6314

Panel discusses poverty, crime in urban areas

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

Poverty will be the critical urban issue of the next several decades, Robert Wagner, the former deputy mayor of New York City, said yesterday at the University of Massachusetts. Wagner was one of two former mayors speaking about "Dealing with the Urban Challenges of Crime, Poverty, and the Decaying Infrastructure" as a part of a political science class curriculum.

Moderator of the panel and political science Professor David Booth uses these panels in his class "Managing the Modern Minicipality," which he co-teaches with former Springfield Mayor Theodore DiMauro, another panel member.

George Sicaras, retired chief of police in Hartford, Conn., and the third panel member, said, "Some people thought we could not do anything with crime in Hardford because there were so many poor and unemployed people.

"I don't think all people steal," Sicaras said, "and I don't believe that if unemployement is high, crime will be high."

"Organized crime is probably the biggest threat to our domestic being," he said. "It is the biggest influence on local officials and politicians."

"Citizens have a right to know what the police department is doing," Sicaras said. "Historically the police department has refused to open its doors and records to the public."

"With me it was extremely important that we tell the good with the bad and let the public decide," he said.

DiMauro said "the private citizen is threatened by the man in blue." They make requests more freely to elected officials."

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

Members of a panel address urban problems yesterday at the University of Massachusetts. From left to right are former Hartford chief of police George Sicaras, former deputy mayor of New York Robert Wagner and former Springfield mayor Theodore DiMauro.

He also said that "being a policeman is the most difficult job in city government."

Wagner said that much of the development in the cities has benefited those people living in the suburbs instead of those living in the cities. They are the ones getting the jobs, he said.

"Cities are not producing qualified people in the school system," Wagner said. "We must have a trained work force.

"Cities are absolutely critical to the economic survival of the country," Wanger said, "and help is needed to improve them."

Wagner also spoke about the decay in New York and other cities and the neglect at keeping up and repairing city property.

"Cities have a case to make and I don't think we've made it in the last several decades," Wagner said.

Profs dispute ban proposal

By NANCY A. BUKAR
Collegian Correspondent

Three University of Massachusetts Professors expressed differing viewpoints on a recent resolution by the Undergraduate Student Senate requesting the removal of pornographic magazines from the University Store.

Sheldon Goldman, professor of political science, said, "Students have a constitutional right to protest; they can picket, hand out literature, hold rallies, educate the UMass community and ask the district attorney to prosecute."

According to Goldman the main question in the controversy is, "Should students on college campuses be exposed to a wide variety of ideas, including offensive ones?" If the district attorney does become involved, which he doubts, the question will turn to whether or not the material is legally obscene. "Local community standards" would decide a legal question, he said.

Goldman believes that the community is "engaged in education. If the spirit of banning prevails, it would not be the healthiest thing."

Tony Serafini, associate professor of Journalistic Studies, disagreed, saying the issue "doesn't have to reach legal proportions to be a First Amendment issue."

"I am against censorship in any form," he said. "I think it's primitive and an attempt to suppress freedom of the press and free speech. I wouldn't even censor the Boston Herald."

Serafini expressed apprehension of boycotts and protests concerning the press. "When would they stop? It's the sort of thing that opens up doors and it is essentially very dangerous."

Judith Branzburg, an assistant professor of Women's Studies at Trinity College and a staff assistant in the Women's Studies department at UMass, said that the real issue is "problems in relationships between men and women; they are often revealed in violence against women and children."

An "economic boycott of the magazines is an alternative that would focus the debate more clearly," she said, adding that the decision not to buy pornographic magazines must be a voluntary one.

"Portrayals of women are allowed that are not usually allowed for other groups. We have learned to set community standards on statements, publications, etc. but we have failed to establish a common community standard on the portrayal of women," she said.

Students oppose military aid

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Close to 400 University of Massachusetts students have voiced their opposition of current United States military aid policies in Central America by sending letters provided by the Radical Student Union (RSU) to their senators and representatives.

"This issue has been building for a long time, and I think the recent revelation that the Central Intelligence Agency has been mining Nicaraguan ports makes people a little more aware," said Paul Shattuck, an RSU member at a table in the Campus Center Monday.

"The House is coming back from Easter recess soon and the letters we are sending, we hope, will help to influence how they vote on several key aid packages coming before them," Shattuck said.

One student that signed a letter, Mary McGarry, a 21-year-old Wildlife Management major, said that she felt the letters will make a difference.

"They (senators and representatives) represent us and I think that there's no question people want their opinions known on an issue like Central America," McGarry said.

Shattuck was quick to draw a parallel between Vietnam and Central America when asked of the implications of the military aid packages.

"Vietnam is a ghost in the minds of many Americans and I think that more people see El Salvador, Nicaragua and the other regions where we are acting as turning into potential Vietnams. The "communist aggression" stuff is bullshit. People overthrew an oppressive dictator in Nicaragua, the communists didn't. Students are worried and the volume of letters shows this," he said.

Shattuck said he started the day with 50 copies of the letter but returned to copy more as response grew. The RSU only had a table in the Campus Center Monday, but he said that interested people can go to the RSU office on the fourth floor of the Student Union Building to send a letter.

"We don't oppose aid at all, just when it's used to be aggressive against the people," Shattuck said. "Human rights are ignored in many packages, this is what we are against."

Publication keeps Solidarity alive

By CAMDEN PIERCE
Collegian Staff

The Polish Union Solidarity, allied with an independent publishing movement, remains an effective force against the oppression of Poland's Communist government, said a Polish dissident last night at the University of Massachusetts.

"The most effective means of controlling people is censorship," said Pawel Bakowski, a former member of Solidarity who helped publish the movements' weekly newsletter. Through censorship the Polish government is trying to destroy "all ties between people" not expressly sanctioned by the government.

The key to counteracting the abuses of the Polish government is a clandestine publishing movement allied with Solidarity, he said. The first major underground publications were begun in 1976 after the government cracked down on workers in Gdansk, who were striking against price increases, he said. The publications were a non-violent means of providing aid to persecuted workers, and proved "unexpectedly successful."

The newsletters were not only able to print the names of workers who had been arrested and tortured by Polish security, but also the names of the security police who had committed the atrocities, Bakowski said.

At the time of the Gdansk strikes in 1976 there were about 5000 people involved in the workers' movement, he said. By 1980, when Solidarity was officially created, the workers movememt had grown to include 10 million industrial workers, and 2 million peasants, he said, in part because of the unifying influence of the independent press.

But when the government declared martial law in 1981, Solidarity suffered a setback in great numbers. Bakowski said the Polish government now estimates Solidarity has about 1 million members, each paying 5 percent of their wages to the union.

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

A local bee pollenates a blooming flower.

Grad senate posts open until Tuesday

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate will hold elections for the offices of President and Vice-President on the Campus Center Concourse May 7 and 8.

Nominations for these offices and for the senate's Executive Officer and Treasurer are also open and will remain open until the senate's meeting next Tuesday evening.

Any currently enrolled graduate student may vote for the president and vice president, while the executive officer and treasurer positions will be elected by the senate at its May 8th meeting.

The senate meeting next Tuesday will serve as candidates' night when students may give a short presentation highlighting their qualifications and plans for implementation. Any graduate student may also present any referendum question they would like to see placed on the ballot. If the student's question is supported by at least ten of the senators present, it will be placed on the ballot.

All four positions have salaries of $4,400 plus a tuition waiver for an estimated 20 hours of work per week. Officers' terms run from September 1, 1984, through May 31, 1985.

Also last night, Executive Officer Greg Graham announced that a questionnaire focusing on graduate students' views on academic issues, graduate assistantships, and graduate students' services will be mailed to each graduate student before the semester ends.

Graduate Student Senate Elections

Nominations are now open for next year's officers of the Graduate Student Senate. There will be a candidates night for President and Vice Presidential candidates on Tuesday, May 1st. 1984.

The President and Vice President will be elected by a general ballot of all graduate students. On Monday and Tuesday, May 7th and 8th, there will be a ballot box on the Campus Center Concourse. Any enrolled graduate student may vote.

The Treasurer and Secretary will be elected by graduate student senators at the regular Graduate Senate meeting on May 8th. This meeting will also serve as the Candidate's Night for Secretary and Treasurer and the results of the elections of all four offices will be announced that night.

The Elections Committee of the GSS urges any graduate student who might be interested in running for office to come by the GSS office at 919 Campus Center for more information on duties, responsibilities and election procedures. Nominations may be made in person or through the mail. Nominations for all officers will close on May 1, 1984.

PRESIDENT - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period June 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

VICE PRESIDENT - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period September 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

EXECUTIVE OFFICER - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period September 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

TREASURER - salary $4,400 and tuition for 20 hours/week for period June 1, 1984 through May 31, 1985.

Holocaust Memorial Day

We invite you to participate in a Commemorative Gathering with Chancellor Joseph Duffey including poetry readings and memorial candle lighting with students and faculty

Thursday, April 26, 1984
12:30 p.m. - 1:00 p.m.
Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union

Signed for the Hearing Impaired and Wheelchair Accessible

Endorsed by: Everywoman's Center, Jewish Caucus, Jewish Faculty and Professional Group, Native American Student Association, Chancellor Duffey, Commuter Area Government Staff, Hillel, Housing Services/Residential Education/-Maintenance Operations, Jewish Awareness/Anti-Semitism Task Force, Newman Center, Office of Human Relations, Office of Third World Affairs, SCERA, Student Activities Office, Student Government Association, United Christian Foundation, PGA, Graduate Student Senate, Anacanona Cultural Center, MLK Jr. Center, NE/Sylvan/Orchard Hill/Central Women's Center, East Men's Center, Center for Racial Studies, Hamden Board of Governors, SWAG, Central Cultural Society.

ATTENTION STUDENTS FROM WESTCHESTER AND ROCKLAND COUNTIES, THE BRONX AND NEW YORK METROPOLITAN AREA!

STUDY THIS SUMMER AT MERCY COLLEGE

Make this summer count! Get ahead or catch up on your coursework. Take advantage of Mercy College's flexible scheduling, low cost ($102.00 per credit) and six convenient locations: Dobbs Ferry, Peekskill, Yorktown, White Plains, Yonkers and The Bronx.

More than 500 course offerings in the following areas:

- Accounting
- Biology
- Business Administration
- Chemistry
- Computer Information Systems
- Criminal Justice
- Education
- English
- History & Political Science
- Mathematics
- Paralegal Studies
- Psychology & Sociology

Six and twelve week sessions. Day and evening classes begin June 4th and July 16th. Registration for all summer sessions begins May 21, 1984.

For information about Summer Sessions at Mercy College, please call Andrew G. Nelson, Dean of Admissions at (914) 693-7600; or return the attached coupon.

MERCY COLLEGE
555 Broadway, Dobbs Ferry, New York 10522
☐ Please send me more information about Mercy College's Summer Session Courses.
Name_____ Telephone _____
Address_____
City_____ State _____ Zip _____

Black Affairs

Women's role in music explored

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

A panel discussion on black women in music explored women's contribution in traditional and modern day black music last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Speaking on the panel were D. Antionette Handy, Bernice Johnson Reagon, Elma Lewis and Thulani Davis. The panel was moderated by Frederick Tillis, associate provost professor in the music department.

Lewis, founder and firector of the Elma Lewis School of Fine Arts in Boston and the Afro-American Cultural Center said she refused to move from the black community because she wanted to keep a fresh view of the culture.

An American-born Barbardian, Lewis said she felt an internal destruction when she saw blacks artists as world exotic pieces at other people's permissions. Her motive for starting the Cultural Center was to find a place to create a piece of culture which was lost and needs to be taught, redefine, define and preserve.

"There's a central crying need to reveal the expression in the community," she said. This need is found in Africa, the Caribbean, South America and among the middle class, "blacks who have a little more money and move to the suburbs."

Johnson Reagon, a cultural historian who specializes in Afro-American oral history and culture and African Diaspora studies, said the role of black women in music is part of a people's legacy in a land. They are also nurturers and primary carriers of the cultural tradition, she said.

Johnson Reagon said Black American music is inseparable from the traditional culture. She said it is like a garden that one plants, waters, hoes and then gathers surplus.

She said most black people learn about music from their mothers and grandmothers humming in the kitchen. Humming, she said, changes the air of a room and it doesn't let the devil know what one is thinking.

"Humming is a different expression," she said. "It is a manner of communicating "beyond words" or "too powerful" for words," she said.

"Humming follows you not only down the street, but all through your life," she said.

Thulani Davis, senior editor of the Village Voice in New York said women in art are seldom accused of being shadows of James Baldwin or B.B. King. "They are outshadowed because they are not man," she said.

Announcement

A lecture by Dr. Antonio Pesci-Bourel on "Clean Blood for Latin America" and the showing of Until the Last Drop will be held in room 101 of the Campus Center Thursday April 26 at 8 p.m.

The lecture is sponsored by the Office of Third World Affairs and AHORA in conjunction with Latin American Affairs.

The Creative Needle
With This Ad (exp. 5/5/84)
20% OFF
COTTON - COTTON BLEND YARNS
(limit, one per customer)
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS 233 N Pleasant St Amherst MA (413) 549-6106
9:30 - 5:30 Mon - Sat

Earn Academic Credit while gaining experience in marketing, public relations, counseling, and student affairs administration. Become an intern in the University's Undergraduate Admissions Office. Interviews begin April 30 Contact the Office of Internships

LEARN TO FLY

Earn your pilots license inexpensively. Club owned Cessna. Memberships also for licensed pilots. Introductory rides available.
Call Carol 546-4827

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies or nuts directly into a scoop of our award winning homemade ice cream!
Thurs Wednesday 11 p.m. Sat. 11:30
Herrells

AIM HIGH

Want more than a desk job?
Looking for an exciting and challenging career? Where each day is different? Many Air Force people have such a career as pilots and navigators. Maybe you can join them. Find out if you qualify. See an Air Force recruiter today.
Contact TECHNICAL SERGEANT ARTHUR COURTEMANCHE
Federal Building, RM 108, 1550 Main St, Springfield, MA 01103
or call (413) 785-0352
AIR FORCE
A great way of life

WHERE'S THE BEER?

Top-quality two-color silk screen. Available in S-M-L-XL, grey or white, muscle or T shirt. $8.95 postpaid. Please specify. Send check or M.O. to: SLAB O'BEEF, P.O. Box 112064, Carrollton, TX 75011-2064.

HOUSING
Christian Housing, Chi Rho welcomes applications from single grads and undergrads, including freshmen and sophomores.
Contact the First Baptist Church for more information about this Christian Ministry House.
Call 549-3596 or 586-4352.

13th Annual Spring Sale
20% Savings
Spring Shoes by Bandolino, 9 West Mia, Capezio, Sporto, Jazz, Bellini and more
THURSDAY through SUNDAY
April 26th through 29th

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst
OPEN SUNDAY

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

LIFE AFTER LIBERAL ARTS

Don't Face Underemployment Because You Lack the Attitude and Aggressive Job-Hunt Skills Needed to Find the Jobs and Be the Best Candidate.

NATIONAL CAREER EXPERTS:
- RICHARD NELSON BOLLES - author of What Color is Your Parachute?
- KIRBY STANAT - author of Job Hunting Secrets and Tactics
- plus others

- APPLY LIBERAL ARTS SKILLS TO THE JOB-HUNT
- HOW TO FIND THE 85% OF ALL JOBS THAT GO UNADVERTISED
- WRITE A RESUME TO GET NOTICED
- WHAT TO EXPECT AND HOW TO PREPARE FOR INTERVIEWS

Careers Without Reschooling. 4 one hour cassettes, is your personal job hunt seminar. The first three cassettes teach you all the skills and the fourth cassette is two informational interviews with liberal arts grads successfully working in exciting professional careers.
Liberal arts grads discuss how they got their jobs, what their careers are like, and how you may find a similar job

#1 Editor & Copywriter
#2 Ad Agency Exec & P R Specialist
#3 Small Business Owner & Retail Management
#4 Stockbroker & Life Insurance Sales
#5 Fundraiser & Non-Profit Agency Management
#6 Real Estate & T V - Radio Production
#7 Counselor & Law Enforcement
YOU SELECT WHICH CASSETTE WILL BE IN YOUR SET

All this for only $27.95!
Far less than what you may sacrifice in job-satisfaction and salary if you're underemployed.

CALL NOW! SAVE THIS AD!
1-800-356-5324 ext 1308
Master Card and VISA accepted
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR FULL REFUND!
ArGee Productions 905 University Ave. Madison, WI 53715 (608) 255-8480

Good Things are Worth Waiting For!

Alumni Skills Bank Night
School of Management
Rescheduled
Wednesday, April 25, 1984
8:00 P.M.
Campus Center Room 163

Delores Bowens: Vice President, Goldman-Sachs
Jeff Cohen: Controller, Instron
Paul McDonald: Vice President - Friendly Ice Cream Corp
Dennis Mullin: Assistant Product Manager - Union Carbide

will discuss critical topics such as
* Making the transition from college to corporation
* Planning career moves
* Prospects in the field

Followed by a Wine and Cheese Reception
All Students, Faculty and Staff Invited
Sponsored by: Alumni Office, University Placement Service, School of Management

ON-CAMPUS JOBS
VALUABLE EXPERIENCE and TRAINING

I WANT YOU

If you are an upperclassman or a graduate student, we will train you to discuss the financial needs of your University with its alumni.

Telefund will pay $4-6 an hour for your time a few evenings a week. You will talk to alumni from all walks of life, from every type of profession about the University Alumni Fund.

HIRING FOR SUMMER

Telefund is located at Memorial Hall.
Stop in and pick up an application
or call us at 545-3509
if you have any questions.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

MR. FARRAKHAN'S FRIEND CLAIMS HE COULD TAKE OVER OUR RAINBOW COALITION AND REALLY WHIP IT INTO SOMETHING!"

The question of taking "pornographic magazines" out of the University Store has been a hotly debated one recently. One side argues that pornography, (that contained in magazines such as Playboy, Penthouse, and Playgirl,) is a form of sexual harassment, degrading to women, and a link to violent sexual crimes and rape.

Censorship cannot exist

The other side argues that to censor any publication is a violation of our First Amendment freedoms. Both sides are right. However, the Collegian has taken the position that no magazines should be banned from the Campus Center, or any other place on campus.

The First Amendment guarantees our right to freedom not only to speak and to assemble, but to hear opposing viewpoints as well, no matter how objectionable they may be. For the same reason pro-first amendment lawyers defended the Nazi Party's right to march through Skokie, Illinois years ago, we defend students' rights to read what they wish.

There is a difference between erotica and pornography. While the former is inarguably linked to progressive causes like promoting sexual freedom and education, the latter has been indirectly linked to violence. By court definitions, obscene pornography or that which may be banned is a standard set by the community at large. By demanding the removal of what they have determined to be pornographic, the Ad-hoc Committee on Campus Pornography has tried to speak in behalf of the whole community and set a standard. If anything is to be banned, it must be done by referendum.

Both the Campus Center Board of Governors and the Student Senate have voted on whether or not the magazines should be removed. One voted yes, and the other voted no. Neither side can claim to be representative of the community which would be affected by the decision. The point missed by both sides is that to ban Playboy, or anything else, is to set a dangerous precedent. It would open up every other piece of literature sold at the University to scrutiny. If we do not agree with the philosophy behind a magazine (like one that discusses political viewpoints different than our own), do we ban it as well?

There will never be a way to draw lines between what reading material is acceptable and what is not. But while we defend the right of students to read what they wish, we also defend the right of students to protest that which they feel is wrong, such as pornography. But removing the material from the shelves would cause more problems than it would solve.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian board of editors.

Ban Pornography?

YES

"I feel better when I treat women as human beings." This statement is at once both admirable and horrendous. Women being separated in any way from their status as human beings is tragic and inexcusable and yet a man viewing women as having the dignity and personhood of human beings is a monumental achievement. I say this because I think we have all grown up in a pornographic culture.

Hugh Grogan

The process we've gone through goes like this: A woman is depicted in a photograph as open, waiting, desirous, pliable. A woman throws her head back and spreads her legs and holds the pose. A woman puts on high heel shoes and a garter belt and purses her lips. A woman has make-up put on all over her body and her pubic hair is brushed and trimmed. A woman spends several minutes holding herself and getting just the right amount of wanton lust on her face.

I buy the magazine with pictures of this woman. I turn the pages and look at her in different positions. Each photo shows her as open, receptive, waiting, alluring. She is inviting me into the magazine. I go. I am with her. We cavort in a world of symbolic sexuality. I turn her, mold her, shape her. I am in control. I take my pleasure from her. I put the magazine away and go to my class.

Pornography defines women. Pornography tells me who and what women are. The picture becomes the woman; the woman becomes all women. All women are open, waiting. I measure all women against this sexual standard and their worth is gauged by how closely they approximate the ideal put forth by the pornography industry.

The pornography industry teaches the objectification of human beings. It doesn't do me a favor by turning persons into products. I do not become a better person when I purchase this slick packaging. I do not become more alive when I interact intimately with a picture on a page. I do not feel good when I see that a real human being is posed in a position which is designed to make me feel powerful or in control or turned on due to their vulnerability.

Pornography does not present me with human beings but with symbolic victims. Pornography is about money and power, exploitation and degradation. Pornography takes my sexuality away from me and sells it back in a twisted form. Incredible amounts of money are being made from the use of real human beings to act as stimuli for other people's sexual gratification. I may as well masturbate with a dollar bill.

Hugh Grogan is a UMass student

NO

Recently, there has been a great deal of discussion concerning the sale of Playboy, Playgirl, and Penthouse magazines in the University store. The magazines are offensive to some men and women, but should not be removed from the store. The magazines are protected under the constitution, which also gives the students of the University of Massachusetts the right to purchase them.

By removing the magazines, a small group of people are imposing their values and ideals upon the student body. They are making a moral and political decision for the entire university community.

Robert Cohen

An individual student has the right to choose whether or not they wish to purchase an item, noone should do this for them. This is an academic community and banning these magazines would be insulting to the intelligence of the students who patronize the store.

Rather than banning the magazines from sale to the general public, the group involved, the Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography should direct their energies toward supporting the removal of the offensive material in the magazines. If students feel that certain material in the magazines is improper, as I do, then they should let the publishers of those magazines know it by sending them a message. This might be done through a community-wide referendum.

The group involved in the censorship effort has stated that their goal is to stop the sale of "degrading and demeaning magazines and material." If successful, this will allow the Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography and any other group to ban any material which they find "degrading and demeaning," and may be the commencement of a widespread censorship wave, which will not contain itself to just magazines. The cover of a book, Sidney Sheldon's "Bloodline" was shown in a presentation to the Board of Governors on April 5, and was included in the material which SCERA's Women's issue team found offensive.

The group trying to remove the magazines are not representative of the student community, since they don't have the approval of the majority of students and have made little attempt to do so. Groups of any size should express their opinion and be recognized, but they should not speak for the community until they have the support and approval of the community.

Robert Cohen is a UMass student

Letters

A question of responsibility

To the Editor,

The debate between members of President Reagan's Hunger Task Force and the Committee on Hunger in New England was both interesting and informative. Unfortunately the panel seemed to ignore the fact that in a country where production and technological advancement have brought our capabilities to a point where we can produce enough food to feed all the hungry, the question should not have been 'how do we feed our hungry?' but rather 'how do we feed the hungry throughout the world?'

Until there is a radical change in our system, a system (led by the Reagan Administration) that oppresses the poor by not allowing them access to an adequate education and one that puts corporate profits before human lives, hunger will shamefully continue in this country as well as others. How the majority of people in this nation can sit idly by while watching thousands of people starve to death is an atrocity which must be addressed. How can we explain to our grandchildren that we had the food but just didn't care enough?

Robert Leu
Amherst

Not just another day

To most people, yesterday, April 24 was just another day. But Armenians over the world commemorated it as Martyrs day. On April 24, 1915 Turkish soldiers infested Constantinople and gathered and killed all the Armenian community leaders and intellectuals, leaving hundreds of women and children to be dealt with later. They continued this hideous sequence through all the cities and towns with Armenian populations.

The fact that Turkey committed genocide is disgusting. But more disgusting is that Turkey to this day denies the fact, and tries to erase the remains of their filthy past. Unlike World War II war criminals, Turkish war criminals have not seen justice.

According to Amnesty International, the Turkish military regime is practicing 'widespread and systematic torture.' Yet the United States is supplying Turkey with munitions at the rate of $800 million annually.

Today, Armenian lands have been renamed "Turkey." Because of the massacres, they still lie barren in spite of Turkish efforts to repopulate it. Succesive Turkish regimes have destroyed all Armenian monuments and records that attest to their legitimate ownership. Recently, a priest was imprisioned for just saying the word "Armenia."

In Turkey, the recent military regime (to which the Reagan administration has been supplying munitions) has passed laws to cripple our churches and schools. It is now illegal for the word Armenian to appear in print. These are examples of cultural genocide at its worst.

There are two ways for people to fight such injustice. They can fight with reason or they can fight back with fire. For 69 long years, we have tried to reason, and have gotten nowhere. Turkey still occupies our land and subjugates our people. These freedom fighters are men so infuriated by the injustice that has befallen their people that they now see no other choice than to fight back with fire.

Yesterday, April 24 marked the 69th year Turkey has occupied Armenian land, the 69th year justice has not come to the perpetrators of genocide. It is this continuing injustice that has prompted groups to strike against Turkish Government representitives.

Our patience has worn thin. We demand Turkey pay for the crime it committed against Armenians and all of humanity. And we demand that our rightful homeland be returned.

Beverly J. Zeroogian
South Amherst

Paid Advertisement

ON CAMPUS

Paid Advertisement

Paid Advertisement

EAST SIDE

Calendar: April 25 - May 8

WEST SIDE

East Side gov't news

Orchard Hill Area Gov't

Don't forget to mark your calendar for Bowl Day on May 12. Things are shaping up so the day should be an extravaganza. Tornado Alley, Flyer, and the Hanson Brothers are the bands. Don't forget about the Tug-of-War competition. Organize your team now. We still need people to work security for the day. Interested?? Leave your name in the OHAG office in 112 Field or call us at 5-1385.

Congratulations to the new Orchard Hill officers for 84-85. Bill Paille and Dave Pasquantonio will be assuming the office of co-Presidents. Heidi Parks and Donna Dooley are the new co-Vice-Presidents. The Secretary's and Treasurer's offices will be in the capable hands of Laura Tyler and Bob Kievra respectively.

Concerning Bowl Day a quick reminder. No one will be allowed on the balconies during the day's activities and please no bottles or kegs in the Bowl.

Webster and Field House Council are both sporting new T-shirts. If you'd like to buy one, contact anyone on the House Councils.

A new course is being offered this fall concerning the Twentieth Anniversary of Orchard Hill. The course, titled Experiments in Higher Education: Orchard Hill at 20, will be taught by Faculty in Residence Alfred Karlson. If you'd like more info on the course contact the Orchard Hill Residential College Office in 439 Hills North. The number is 545-2882.

All people are urged to turn out for the UMass Theater Guild's presentation of Grease on May 1 and 2 on the OH/C basketball courts. Rain date is May 3.

Anyone interested in helping plan the activities for the 20th anniversary of Orchard Hill are urged to attend the next committee meeting. It will be taking place May 3 at 6:30 p.m. in the main lounge of Field.

Central Area Government

Baker Academic Center has expanded it's hours! Typewriters, computer terminals and copy machine are now available from 4 p.m. to midnight Sunday thru Thursday.

Frustrated with accounting? Let the Baker Academic Center tutor help you Thursday from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Applications for the position of Greenough Artist-in-Residence (Craft Shop Coordinator) will be available at the end of April with interviews scheduled for the beginning of May. If interested, contact Shara at 6-6375.

Interested in an art extravaganza, film project or silkscreening? Get involved by attending Butterfiled Arts Group Meetings, held every Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. in Butterfield Lounge.

Weekly C.A.C. Meetings will begin a dorm rotation schedule. Look for the Council in your dorm soon Mondays at 7 p.m. All residents are welcome to observe and learn more about the Central Area Council.

Sylvan Area Government

...Sylvan Day is May 5th. Sylvan residents be preapred for a free barbeque followed by a party in the Blue Wall both with entertainment by Rack-A-Disc.

...Sylvan Area Government office is located in Cashin suite no. 01 Our office hours are Monday through Friday, 1-4 and 7-10 p.m. Our phone number is 545-1392. Feel free to stop by or call, we'd love to hear from you!

...Computer Room is now open to all Sylvan residents. Its located in Cashin suite no. 01 and open during S.A.G. office hours.

...Get involved! We are now planning events for the Fall. Join the Social and Cultural Committee and help in the planning of these events.

...Surveys are now out. The topic is Common Space in the Sylvan area. We need input, so stop by the S.A.G. office and pick one up.

...Sylvan Area Government meets on Sundays at 8:30 in Cashin suite no. 01. Sylvan residents are encouraged to attend, all meetings are open and we'd love the input!

East Side Concert

On Saturday, April 28, the first annual East concert will be held on the field south of Worcester Dining Commons. The show will last from 12 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Headlining the bill is NRBQ who plays a wide range of styles from rock to bop to Jazz. Mitch Chakour, a local favorite, will bring blues and rock to the stage. Girls Night Out will revive the fifties once again with their Motown sound. Also on the agenda will be Cool Runnings and their Reggae sound.

When you come please remember that no kegs, coolers, or beer balls are permitted. During the day the Subway from Sylvan will be selling food. Don't plan on parking in the immediate vicinity of the show, because parking is not available. There will also be additional talent throughout the day.

The East Side Concert is a result of the combined co-operation and the work of the Central, Northeast, Sylvan, and Orchard Hill Areas.

In case of rain the concert will be held in the Blue Wall.

Women's/Men's Center

The UMass East — Side Mens Center is looking for a co-ordinator for fall '84. S/he is primarily responsible for the creative growth of the center through programming and outreach. Ten hours a week at $3.35/hr. Work study or non-work study. Commitment to social issues awareness is a must and familiarity with mens issues is helpful. Applications and job descriptions are available in Brett Rm. 130 and Johnson. Application deadline is May 11 at 5:00 p.m. Housing services is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer.

The East Side Mens Center will be sponsoring the following events:

Will Roberts speaking at a showing of his film "Between Men" at 7:30 p.m. Herter 231 Mon April 30. A film about male socialization and the military. (free).

Ourselves and Our Groups: Coalition Building through an Appreciation of Difference." A diversity panel of men discussing the Mens movement and how men can reach out to each other to affect positive political change. Thurs. May 3 7:30 p.m. Bangs Community Center Amherst. All women and men are invited to this free event.

April 25

25 April: Southwest Week: Las Vegas Night 8:00 p.m., CCA, free admission.

Grease: 8:00 p.m., Hampden Theatre.
Various bands: 2-6 p.m. on the pyramids.

JassJus Show: Hampden Gallery 3-7 p.m.

Earth Day, R.S.O. Fair, Environmental Displays 10:00-3:00 SU Lawn.
Submarine Invasion Campus Pond, 1:00 sponsored by UMass Arts Council
Loose Caboose 4:00 SUB (tentative)
Mural Painting sponsored by UMass Arts Council
Music

East Side Arts Council meeting 4:00 p.m. in B-35 Brett.

Karate Class offered in Rm 126 Van Meter this and every Wed. night from 7-9 p.m.

Art Opening Wheeler Gallery, works by Cynthia Con Sentino, April 25-May 1.

Poetry and Discussion by Kol, Marcia Black, Debra Seidman and others. Readings of poems and testimonies of writers, Jewish survivors, and Jewish people in the resistance movement. 8:00 p.m. in Room 811 CC.

April 26

26 April: Holocaust Memorial Day
9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Film — Ihr Zent Frei (You Are Free) Cape Cod Lounge

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.: Photo Exhibit Cape Cod Lounge

9 a.m. to 5 p.m.: Book Exhibit with relevant biographies and course descriptions available. Cape Cod Lounge

12:30 - 1 p.m.: Commemorative Gathering with Chancellor Joseph Duffy, and others. Cape Cod Lounge

7:30 p.m. Film and Discussion "As if it were Yesterday" About the rescue operation of Jewish children in Belgium during WWII. The Film maker, Myriam Abramowitz, will discuss her work witht the audience.

A Tribute to Sight and Sound 8 p.m. Webster Lounge.
Jass Jus Show Hampden Gallery, 3-7 p.m.

Acid Rain, Profesor O.T. Zajicek sponsored by Environmental Science Seminar 4:40 Herter 227
Workshops, 2:30, Machmer E-27.

SWAG Meeting, 7:00 p.m. Hampden
International Dance: Hampden, 9-1 a.m.

April 27

27 April: Air Band Party, 9 p.m. - 1 a.m., Grayson Lounge
Breakfast discussion with Myriam Abramowitz, 10 a.m. Butterfield.
Jass Jus Show Hampden Gallery, 3-7 p.m.

Environmentalism, Live Animal Display, 1:00 Animal Masquerade, SUB sponsored by UMass Arts Council
Workshops Machmer E-27, 2:30

Southwest Fest Breakdancers, UMass Gymnastic Team, 2-4 p.m.

Guilt by Reason of Race: Film, on U.S. concentration camps during WWII Brett Lounge.

April 28

28 April: East Side Concert: 12-6 p.m., on Age Field south of Worcester Dining Commons.
Run For Ritter 10 a.m.

Breaking the Connection Between Sex and Violence: A Case against pornography: 9 a.m - 11 p.m. CCA. includes speakers, workshops, films, martial arts demonstration, and a performance by the Valley Women's Chorus. (The location of the Workshop will be posted at the CCA).
Tilson Coal Pile (Energy): Professor Carlozzi, Amherst Conservation Committee, Mahar 7:30.

April 29

29 April: Holocasut Memorial Week:
12 p.m., Hillel Brunch with guest speaker Rena Finder Commonwealth Room
2 p.m., Memorial to victims of the Holocaust, Commonwealth Room.
7:30 p.m., Film David Thompson Hall

Southwest Fest:
Southwest Concert Various Bands, 11:30 a.m. to 6:45
Kevin Kinger, AN MFA THESIS Hampden Gallery, 3-7 p.m. thru May 4
Colloquium: Martin Luther King Jr.: Life, Works, Ideas, 9-6 p.m. B-34 Brett for more info. call 5-0422.

OHAG meting, Field Main Lounge, 9 p.m.
Nuclear Winter, Dr. George Woodwell sponsored by University Peacemakers, Nuclear Winter Group, Lecture and Panel Discussion, Mahar, 7:30

April 30

30 April: Elections for Field House Council
Kevin Kinter, Hampden Gallery
Between Men with Will Roberts, Herter 231 7:30 p.m.
Guilty by Reason of Race 7 p.m., Field House Lounge

Hazardous Wastes, Allen Johnson, Undersecretary of Evn'l Affairs (T.B.A.)
Workshops Machmer E-27 and Thompson 106, 2:30

May 1

May 1: Jewish Awareness/Anti-Semitism Workshop led by Cherie Brown, an internationally known trainer from the Boston Area. Open to all students. Campus Center 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Grease on Orchard Hill/Central Basketball courts. 8 p.m.

Film: If You Love This Planet. 3 p.m. B-34 Brett House.
Spirituality, The Role of the Earth in Native American Religion, Slow Turtle, Chief, Mashpee Tribe Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Mass., 168 CC, 3:30 p.m.
Workshops
Ritual Sundown Ceremony 5:00-7:00
Paul Winter Concert, FAC 8:00 sponsored by the Chamber Choir.

May 2

May 2: Grease OH/Central Basketball courts, 8 p.m.
Wheeler Gallery: Jeff Fitzgerald will have a show from 7 - 9 p.m.

May 3

May 3: Orchard Hill Birthday Committee Meeting, all invited 6:30 p.m. Field Lounge.

Olivia Ilano Dance Company 8 p.m. at Hampden Theatre.
Kevin Kinter Hampden Gallery, 3-7 p.m.

May 5

May 5: Olivia Ilano Dance Company 8 p.m. Hampden Theatre

May 6

May 6: OHAG Meeting 9 p.m. Field Lounge
Darryl Storrs MFA Thesis: 3 - 7 p.m. Hampden Gallery. (thru May 11)

May 7

May 7: John Grillo 8 p.m. Hampden Theatre

May 8

May 8: Bill Feeney A World United 8:00 p.m. Hampden Theatre.

SWAG News

Most of the action at lastweeks SWAG meeting centered on Southwest Week. At the meeting $11,000 dollars was allocated to the Southwest Week budget and the transfer of $600.00 from House budgets account 325162 (money set aside for dorms to use) to student activities account 325163 to help clear up the deficit of Southwest Week. Also debated heatedly was the move to endorse the NASPA resolution on alcohol advertising. After charges of pettiness and analogies to prohibition were hurled across the room SWAG voted to endorse the intent of the resolution with the stipulation that there be integral student involvement in creating any policy that may arise from this resolution.

SWAG also turned down a request from the Center for Racial studies for $300.00 to defray the cost of movies produced by the center. The meeting closed with $92.00 being allocated from House programing account 325162 to help MacKimmie dormitory set up a dark room. The resignations of Joe Haley and Neil McCabe were also accepted.

Southwest Fest

The students of the Southwest Residential Area at the University of Massachusetts/Amherst have annually held a spring festival for one week in late April. This year, at the initiative of the students, the week has been dedicated to raising both money and awareness concerning the issue of world hunger.

Because of our nation relative wealth, it takes initiatives such as World Hunger/Southwest Week to remind people that 500 million of the worlds children are presently starving, and one-third of mankind is suffering from chronic hunger. Please support the Southwest Fest and the theme of World Hunger by taking part in as many of the events that you can.

Here is a quick run down of the events taking place this week:
Las Vegas Night: A night of roulette, Chuck-a-luck, Black-jack, Beat the Dealer, Aceyducey, and Horse race will raise money fo Catholic Relief Services of Central America. Also on the 25th various bands will perform on the pyramids from 2:00-6:00, the Southwest Bar-be-cues will be held outside the Berkshire D.C. and at 8:00 Grease will be performed near the Hampden Snack Bar by the UMass Theatre Guild.

On the 26th various bands will perform from 2:00-6:00 on the pyramids, the Southwest Bar-be-cues will be open and an International Dance will be held at Hampden (southside) from 9-1. The dance will be D.J.'d by WMUA's Mark Elliot. There will be a $1 admission charge. On April 27 the UMass Gymnastic Team and Breakdancers will perform from 2:00 to 4:00.

On the 29th the week goes out with a bang as various artists (The Stompers, Fantini Brothers, Cheap Trick) perform on the Southwest fields from 11:30 to 6:45.

Southwest Arts

As the Hampden Center spring calendar winds down to a close the Jass Jus Show for the black Musician's Conference runs until the 27th, Kevin Kinter and Darryl Storrs each prsent their MFA Thesis on the 29th — May 4 and May 6-May 11, respectively.

Olivia Llano presents her company, Spectrum in Motion, dedicated and committed to people of color and their American experience.

Five dancers from the five college area perform to Afro-American Music, it is dedicated to the Black Musician's Conference. There will be a $1.00 donation from admittance on May 4 and 5 at 8 p.m. in Hampden Theatre.

John Grillo will present their annual spring art performance in the Hampden Theatre on Monday, May 7. These performances combine poetry, music, art and performers in a varied format offering pieces which are whimsical, irreverant, dark, zany, serious, etc.

On Tuesday, May 8 at 8:00 A World United will be presented by Bill Feeney, a junior artmajor at UMass. The theme will be the destruction of the world, and the performance will be supported by slides and narrative. There is no admission charge.

Holocaust Memorial Week

On Thursday, April 26, we ask all students, staff, and faculty to wear a yellow star — both as testimony to the conscience and courage of people in the resistance movement during WWII, and in memory of the millions who were murdered.

Acts of resistance against oppression happen daily, on large and small scales. Single acts of individual and strong stands of institutions can and do change the course of history. The public demonstration of moral courage and outrage determine when, and how, a society swings from passivity and repression to actively chosen freedom. Marcia Black

Holocaust Memorial Day is designed to encourage those who are oppressed and those who are sensitive to repression to publically demonstrate their moral courage by wearing a yellow star on April 26. It is an act which takes no great courage and no great outrage. Wearing a yellow star on Holocaust memorial day will show that you are not so self-centered that you can not recognize acts of misguided moral rational, as the people of Denmark did in 1943, as illustrated in Harold Flender's book, Rescue from Denmark.

There is a story told about the Danish people: The day that the Nazi regime demanded that Jews wear yellow stars so that they could be easily identified, King Christian X proclaimed that he, his family, his government, and his people would all wear the yellow star so that the Nazi invaders would not be able to tell who was Jewish and who was not.

Throughout occupied Europe, people risked their lives, and gave their lives, to the resistance movement. While millions were shipped to their deaths, the people in the resistance movement helped undermine the Nazi regime and save thousands of lives. The resistance movement in Denmark serves as an example of what an entire country can do when its people act to resist what they know is wrong.

During the dark night of October 1, 1943, the Jewish New Year, German soldiers conducted a raid of every Jewish home and business, expecting to round up 8,000 Jews, force them into naval ships that were waiting in the harbor, and deport them to concentration camps. In house after house, the Germans found no one. Within the course of one day, after the warning of the raid had spread throughout Denmark, Christian neighbors, friends, and strangers, from all walks of life, had spontaneously hidden 8,000 Jews from the Nazi invaders. And in the days and weeks that followed, while the search for Jews intensified, the population of Denmark mobilized to secretly ferry their Jewish countrymen and women to safety in neutral Sweden.

The people of Denmark, without plan or organization, saved 98.5 percnet of the Danish Jews and Jews who had found refuge in their country. While millions in other countries turned their backs and asked, "What can I do?", the Danish people asked, "What else can I do?" In Denmark, the entire country acted swiftly and decisively to save the Jewish people. As the head nurse at the major Copenhagen hospital, which helped 2,000 Jews to safety, commented, "I did not think of these people as Jews, but as fellow Danes who needed succor," (From Rescue in Denmark by Harold Flender, 19)

Help commemorate the millions who died during WWII, and the millions who risked their lives in the resistance movement. Wear a yellow star on April 26.

Holocaust Memorial Day not just for Jews

Many historical events share various aspects of the Holocaust. The genocide of the Armenian people after World War I, the genocide of the Native American peoples in the United States, and the experiences of Japanese Americans here, the daily suppression of gay men and lesbians, the sufferings of Black Americans, remind us that we cannot ignore the horrifying implications of stripping anyone of economic, social, religious and political rights.

Groups caught in the Nazi plan for extermination included:
— Six million Jews
— Between a fourth and a third of all Gypsies living in Europe.
— Over 30 different nationalities at Auschwitz alone.
— 10,00 Spaniards who opposed Franco and were living in France at the time of the Nazi invasion.
— Thousands of gay men and lesbians.
— 2,600 Catholic priests in Poland alone.

The period of the Nazi regime, 1933-1944 in Europe, is a clear lesson to us that a claim of total power by any one group threatens the safety of everyone.

Martin Niemoeeler, a pastor in the German Confessing Church, spent seven years in concentration camps. He wrote:
First they came for the Jews and I did not speak out
because I was not a Jew.

Then they came for the socialists
and I did not speak out because I was not a socialist.

Then they came for the trade unionists
and I did not speak out because I was not a trade unionist.

Then they came for me and there was no one left to speak out for me.

Bill Feeney presents A World United on May 8 at Hampden Galleries.

On Campus sponsored in part by: Central Area Gov't, Orchard Hill Gov't, Northeast Gov't, Sylvan Area Gov't, Southwest Area Gov't, East Side Arts Council, East Side Residential Educational Programming.

East Side Editor
John Forti
Brett Offices
546-6534

West Side Editor
Jack Murgia
J.A. Lobby Rm. 4
546-8705

Arts

Faculty program impressive

By ROBIN ROSIELLO
Collegian Corespondent

From the beginning of the Five College Faculty Dance Concert at Smith College last Thursday evening, I sensed an immediate connection between the dancers and spectators simply because of the proximity of the stage to the audience. Throughout the concert, this atmosphere remained, as the differing attitudes and feelings of the dancers were mentally transmitted from the stage.

Moon Rise, choreographed by Susan Waltner, began the evening with an attempt to set a serious, dramatic mood. The haunting vocals and the movements of the dancers failed to coincide, however. Perhaps I was expecting to be more drawn into the feeling of the piece because of the intimacy of the small theater, but in the beginning the dancers were sloppy. This created a disjointedness which never completely disappeared. Throughout the piece, I kept looking at the long flowing skirts and expecting therefore a continous, rhythmic arrangement of movements. I had trouble imagining what they were striving for because their focal point was scattered all over the stage.

The following piece, Sifaka Shuffle and Other Dances, choreographed by Rebecca Nordstrom, made me laugh. The choice of music and safari-like costumes transported me to a distant, exotic and tropical world. The music and the movements were perfectly suited to one another as the dancers jumped around executing isolated, choppy movements. Shih-Ming Li was especially memorable with her cat-like movements. The dancers seemed to simultaneously present an individual and a group performance. The interaction between the dancers and the audience was particularly funny and effectively drew the audience into the crazy, haphazard mood of the piece.

Another highlight of the concert was a piece choreographed by Terese Freedman entitled Hospital High. It was a comic, narrative piece featuring as its focal point an injured man in a wheelchair whose boredom causes his imagination to go wild. Dancers dressed as nurses and an orderly paraded across the stage in a horizontal line behind him. They mimed hospital duties and created individual, humorous characterizations. Especially entertaining was Phoebe Farber, posing as a nurse with a severe posture problem. As the piece continued and the music switched to a rockin' Joe Cocker tune, the nurses and orderly came alive, taking advantage of the entire space of the stage. The women were especially entertaining with their provocative movements and gestures.

The following piece dramatically changed the mood and was certainly one of the most emotionally-charged, serious compositions. Climbing Mount Rainier (Part One) was heightened by the beautiful piano music composed and performed by Michael Cava. Both Ivor Miller and Becky Ver Nooy approached the music as having the theme of achieving a challenge. Through their indulating, struggling movements, which covered the whole stage, both performers seemed as if they were climbing a mountain of musical notes and tones. I was left feeling as if I had actually experienced the same struggle.

UMass dancers Dorothy Earle and Nicky McFlynn perform Spider Kedelsky's "Bus".

The Five College Faculty has thus presented an overall display of fine talent in choreography, music and performance. On May 4 and 5 at 8:00 P.M. in Kirby Theater at Amherst College, Part Two of this concert will be shown. It will be an entirely different program and if Part One was any indication, Part Two will be well worth seeing.

the Hungry U Restaurant
EVERY Sunday and Monday Special
4 'til Closing
99¢ PITCHERS
with the purchase of a Large Pizza
Be sure to check our Dinner Specials
55 University Dr. Amherst
549-5713

THE WOK
Chinese Home Style Cooking
COMPLETE TAKE-OUT MENU
AMPLE PARKING
LUNCHEON & DINNER SPECIALS
COCKTAIL LOUNGE
MON - THURS 11:30 AM - 10 PM • FRI & SAT 11:30 AM TO 12:00 PM
SUN & HOLIDAYS NOON TO 10 PM • LUNCHEONS 11:30 AM - 3 PM
EXCEPT HOLIDAYS
48 RUSSELL ST HADLEY
Call 586-1202

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Showcase of Jazz
Johnny Griffin and his quartet
Chico Freeman and his quintet
with a special guest appearance by
Max Roach
FRIDAY, APRIL 27, 8PM
TICKETS: $9, $7, $5
Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

WHEN WORDS FAIL YOU... SAY IT WITH...
SNIGLETS!
It's the only place you'll find just the right words to describe life's indescribable events. Created by Rich Hall of HBO's smash comedy, "Not Necessarily the News," sniglets are outrageously funny and uncannily apt:
SNIGLET (snig' lit) n. Any word that doesn't appear in the dictionary, but should NAPJERK (nap' jurk) n. The sudden convulsion of the body just as one is about to doze off
ERDU (uhr' dew) n. The leftover accumulation of rubber particles after erasing a mistake on a test paper
EXPRESSHOLES (eks pres' holz) n People who try to sneak more than the "eight items or less" into the express check out line
SNIGLETS
Collier Books
A Division of Macmillan

Arts

Excellence comes to western Mass.

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

There is only one place in Western Massachusetts where the Boston Symphony Orchestra (BSO) and Elvis Costello can appear in the same month. The University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center.

The BSO demonstrated its divine excellence last night before a sold out crowd at the FAC, and it was the BSO which once again gave students, faculty and anyone else who attended the feeling that the "real world" is here at the University of Massachusetts.

Now there were more silver haired listeners in the audience, many of whom I recognized as professors and administrators, than there were students. But for those students who were scattered among the 1,900 people in the audience it was an opportunity to dress-up and act established. There were of course, a few students who chose not to change out of thier jeans and rotted sneakers, but they were welcome too.

During each of the four standing ovations it was students or at least people young enough to be students who lept from their seats to show their appreciation for the Maestro Seiji Ozawa and the featured pianist Ivo Pogorelich and the 100 members of the BSO. Naturally, the responsive students were complemented by many older truly established looking people who also stood to praise the BSO.

Probably the greatest breakthrough of the evening for someone like me, who has to depend on a high school music education, was that Ozawa chose as his first selection Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-Flat minor, Opus 23 by Tchaikovsky which translated, for me, into the forties pop song Tonight We Dance. I was glad to find that one of the two selections was one I was familiar with. The piano accompaniment was superb. I have never seen anyone move his hands so quickly on a set of keyboards, nor have I heard such a dleicate touch make such a sweet sound. Pogorelich made each sound coming from his Steinway resonate more beautiful than one before.

The full sound, strings, brass, woodwinds and percussion of the BSO came alive during the Symphony No. 10, Opus 93 by Shostakovich, which enabled me to thank the Lord that I had not lost my sharp hearing to electric rock and roll.

Hopefully Ozawa and the BSO will return to our real world soon.

Cellist Joseph Rodgers, (left) will perform a new work by composer Kurt Phinney (right) at the Five College Chamber Soloists concert on Thursday, April 26, 8 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall. Call 545-1945 for more information.

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Wednesday - Saturday
The Big Sleep 7:00
To Have and Have Not 9:00
A Bogie and Bacall Double Bill!
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

FUNNYBONES
NOW OPEN!
Located on Rt. 9 directly across from Mt. Farms Mall
BEST DRINK SPECIALS AROUND!
Beer: Bud $1.35, Miller $1.35, Molson $1.60, Becks $1.90
12 oz. Drafts: Miller .90, Stroh's .90, Heineken $1.25
Specialty Shots: Mudslides, Jelly beans, Miles of Smiles, HOT SHOTS and many more $1.50
Specialty Cocktails: Alabama Slammer, Toasted Almond, Green Meanie, Fudgesicle and many more $1.75
Flavored Schnapps Shots: All Flavors $1.50, Doc McGillicuddy's $1.25
Mixed Drinks $1.50, Top Shelf Brands $1.65
Flavored Brandies $1.00
★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★
Go Gorillas! Stomp Army!
Victory Celebration following game
GARBER'S GORILLAS DAY
SAT. APRIL 28th
* Special: 60 oz. Pitchers
Miller $3.25
Strohs $3.25
Heineken $4.75
☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆
NO BONES ABOUT IT. . . WE HAVE THE LOWEST PRICES AROUND
Luncheon starting Monday April 30th
Special: Sandwich and Beverage $1.00, 11 am - 2 pm
Funnybones
Open Mon-sat 11:00 am - 1:00 am
Sun 1:00 pm - 1:00 am
JUST PLAIN FUN!!

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Commencement 1984

10:00 a.m., Sunday, May 27

All Candidates
There will be no Commencement rehearsal for degree candidates. Candidates should assemble by school/college at Alumni Stadium no later than 9 a.m. graduation morning, May 27, 1984. Signs will be posted indicating schools and Commencement Marshals will issue specific instructions and distribute programs. Upon signal, candidates will follow the Commencement Marshals to the assigned areas and be seated.

Candidates will receive diploma covers from the deans of their school or college.

Who is Eligible to Participate?

Undergraduate degree candidates who anticipate completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1984. Questions concerning academic status should be directed to the Records Office, 213 Whitmore, 545-0535.

Master's degree candidates who have previously submitted the Degree Application Form by April 27, 1984 to the Office of Degree Requirements stating the intention to complete all requirements. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Doctoral degree candidates who have completed all degree requirements by April 27, 1984. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Faculty
Faculty and staff should assemble at the SOUTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel between the Facilities/Information Center and the stadium wall. Faculty will be part of the processional and will be seated immediately in front of the candidates from each school and college.

Note: Commencement '84 is on SUNDAY, May 27.

Parents and Invited Guests Plan to Arrive Early — Space is Limited
Since the Commencement Exercises are open to the public and guest seating is without reservation, parents and friends should plan to arrive early to ensure good seating.

Handicapped Seating
Viewing area for the handicapped will be located on both sides of the stadium on the eastern and western walkways. Since seating is limited, only one person may accompany the handicapped guest.

Invitations
There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend the ceremony and tickets are not required. Each undergraduate/student will receive a packet of six formal invitations. Students are urged to encourage their guests to arrive early for good seating.

Caps, Gowns, and Hoods

Undergraduate Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge upon presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Master's Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge upon presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels, may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Doctoral Degree Candidates
Doctoral caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 4 p.m., upon clearance by the Office of Degree Requirements. On Commencement Day, caps, gowns, tassels, and hoods may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the NORTHWEST end of the stadium (on the gravel area).

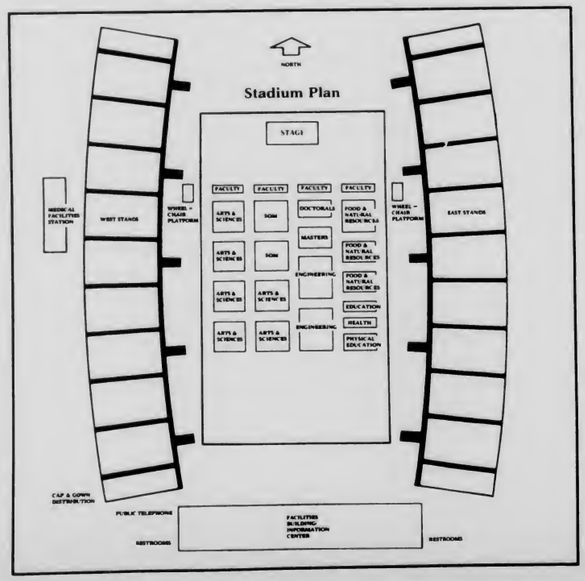
Doctoral candidates who plan to participate in the Commencement ceremony must have a hood. Each Ph.D. candidate's name will be announced over the stadium sound system and two officers of the University will drape the hood on the candidate's shoulders. Doctoral hoods can be purchased only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, A249 Graduate Research Center, at a cost of $26. (Five College Doctoral Hoods will be available at $42.95.) Doctoral hoods may be rented through the University Store:

Rentals
Academic apparel for this year's University Commencement may be rented through the University Store. All faculty members are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. THE LAST DAY TO ORDER IS FRIDAY, MAY 18. Payment must be made at the time of order and there will be no refunds if apparel is not used. Academic apparel may also be purchased. For further information about rentals or purchases, please contact Connie Szelewicki at the University Store, 545-2619.

Accommodations
Many area motels are already booked for Friday and Saturday before Commencement. A limited number of rooms in University housing will be available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 25, 26, and 27. Please contact the Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center, 545-3400, by May 10. There is a $5 cash key deposit — to be returned when the key is returned.



Food Services
Coffee, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at hot - rotundas on the North side of the stadium.

Schedule of Events

	Date	Time	Place
Stockbridge Commencement	Sat., May 26	1:30 p.m.	FAC Concert Hall
ROTC Commissioning Ceremony	Sun., May 27	8:00 a.m.	FAC Concert Hall
Nursing Commencement	Sun., May 27	1:00 p.m.	Rhododendron Garden Rain site: 329 Morrill Science Center
1984 Commencement Ceremony	Sun., May 27	10 a.m.-12 noon

Commencement Ceremony Schedule

9 a.m.	Robing for Commencement. Appropriate signs will be displayed. Graduates should line up according to their school or college.
9:30 a.m.	Seating of Graduates
10 a.m.	Procession starts
12 noon	Ceremony ends

Parking
Parking at the stadium is extremely limited. Commencement traffic will be directed to several parking lots located nearby and shuttle buses will transport you the short distance to the stadium. You will be dropped off directly in front of the stadium and buses will return you to the lots immediately following the ceremonies.

Radio Traffic Control
In an effort to aid the traffic flow at Commencement, WTTT radio in Amherst 1430 on the AM dial will broadcast traffic reports throughout the morning. Please tune to 1430AM once you arrive in Amherst for the best route to the ceremonies.

General Information
Diplomas will be mailed to graduates in the fall.

Medical facilities will be located in the van under Section 8 of the stands.

Public telephones will be located on the west side of the Facilities/Information Center.

Restrooms are located at either end of the Facilities/Information Center at the south end of the stadium.

Viewing areas for those confined to wheelchairs will be located on both sides of the stadium, on eastern and western walkways.

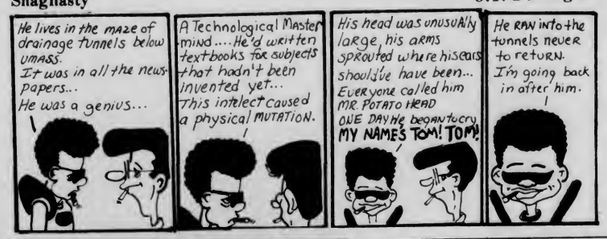
For additional information, contact the Office of Community Relations, 390 Whitmore, 545-2560.

ALCOHOL IS NOT PERMITTED IN THE STADIUM.

RAIN DATE
There is no alternative rain site. The ceremony will be held outside regardless of the weather. The ceremony will be delayed a maximum of two hours in the event of heavy rain. In the event of torrential rains the ceremony will be cancelled. Listen to local radio stations early Sunday morning to hear if the decision to delay or cancel has been made.

Bloom County — by Berke Breathed

The Strip — Jim Walsh



The UMass Zone — Mark Rollins

Off Campus — By Sullivan & Gilbert

Shagnasty — O.T. Derringer

Hypercurricula

OVER 25 STUDENTS' CLUB — Come to discuss common experiences as an over 25-year-old student. 4-6:00 p.m., Faculty Club.

THE NUCLEAR BROACH — The 2nd Multi Media Group presents a parody on war, bombs and death. 8:00 p.m., HERT 231.

ROCK AGAINST THE CONTRA'S — Benefit dance for Nicaragua: Rock with the Mitch Chakour Band, Orquesta Juventud, and The Bounce. $2 advance tickets, $3 door; sponsored by NOCOCA AND WMLASC. 8-12:00 p.m., Davis Hall, Smith College.

HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL DAY—POETRY/DISCUSSION — Readings of poetry & testimonies of contemporary writers, Jewish survivors and Jewish people in the resistance movement with Kol, Marcia Black and Debra Seidman. 8:00 p.m., CC804-08.

KIBBUTZ PROGRAM — Dr. Joseph Blasi, Director of the Project for Kibbutz Studies at Harvard on "Communal Living in Theory and Practice". 7:00 p.m., HERT 111.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING — 7:00 p.m., SU Commonwealth Room.

DC MENU

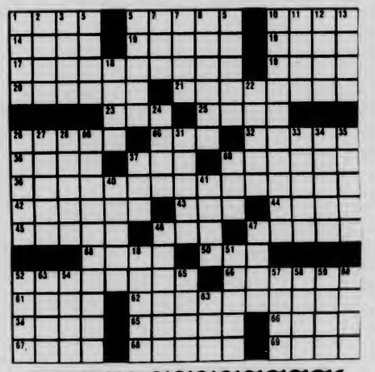
LUNCH
Grilled Cheese with Bacon Sandwich
Moussaka

BASICS LUNCH
The Salad Sandwich
Moussaka with Chick Peas

DINNER
Beef Stew
Mushroom-Pepperoni Pizza

BASICS DINNER
Sauteed Tofu and Snow Peas
Mushroom Pizza

Collegian Elections 9:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M. Today All Staff Encouraged To Vote



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Track meet distance
5 In front
10 The Cowardly Lion
14 Leave out
15 "La —— Vita"
16 Dies ——
17 Off time on Wall Street
19 Expression of relief, for short
20 Oscar winner, 1982
21 Loud voiced persons
23 "—— a grand night..."
25 Russian inland sea
26 Thighbone
30 Lubricate
32 Hollywood name
36 The perfect number?
37 Crag
38 Hooded snakes
39 Matthau film, 1975
42 Atelier gear
43 "The Confessions of —— Turner"
44 Century plant
45 Golfing name of fame
46 Cub Scout unit
47 Unfeeling
48 Unique
50 Building extension
52 Hanger-on
56 Mame, for example
61 Star in Draco
62 Picnickers of music
64 Small room
65 Stage direction
66 Full duration
67 Word with bend
68 Guide
69 Sensible

DOWN
1 Throngs
2 "—— a man who wasn't there"
3 Pseudologist
4 Raison d' ——
5 Conform
6 Level, flat: Abbr.
7 Part of BPOE
8 Chemical compound
9 Discourage
10 Ursa Minor
11 Jason's ship
12 Mod musical
13 Umps' cousins
18 Israel's Golda
22 Very rich person
24 In a short while
26 Clotho, et al.
27 One of the Aliens
28 Capital personage
29 Intolerable
31 One of the Forsytes
33 Short refrain
34 Tropical food plants
35 Curves
37 6-pointers
38 Chicago time: Abbr.
40 "Hawkeye" and family
41 Grow dim
46 Dislike intensely
47 Joiner's group
49 Moreno and namesakes
51 Stratum
52 Prepare to travel
53 Mideast gulf
54 Annoy
55 Adams of song
57 Monster's loch
58 Bark cloth
59 Mideast land
60 Laborer of old
63 After HST

To members of the UMass community:

On Thursday, April 26, 1984 the Collegian will be holding a public forum to discuss the Editorial Page. The forum will be in Campus Center room 805-809 from 3:00 to 4:30. In addition to discussing the Editorial Page, there will be time left open to discuss any aspect of the Collegian that people are interested in.

All interested members of the community are invited.

Weather

Wednesday, cloudy with a chance of showers and highs in the 50's. Thursday sunny highs in the 70's.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	N	T	I	F	I	E	M	E	T	A	D
A	N	A	I	L	A	G	I	E	U	M	V	O
T	I	A	C	K	S	D	I	A	N	A	I	S
A	N	T	H	E	M	I	A	N	A	S	T	H
			S	T	E	M		L	I	B	R	A
S	P	E	A	R		S	P	A	L	L	I	N
V	E	S	T	A		L	U	N	I	K	A	D
O	A	T	E	S		S	T	O	M	A		E
T	I	N	E		A	G	E	D		O	B	P
C	H	I	V	E	N	I	N	G	S		O	D
			U	N	I	T	E	S		M	O	G
S	I	C	H	A	L		S	I	C	H	U	L
T	A	I	L	C	O	A	T		N	E	W	M
A	N	N	E	A		S	I	L	L	Y		M
B	I	L	I	E	N		E	I	V	A	I	S

WILD AMERICA IS OUR CAMPUS

Stimulating career-oriented BS, MS secondary and jr high school or summer expedition degree programs. Newfoundland to California. Practical, cross-cultural 1 to 4 years small group camping. Field studies and encounters with deep ecological problems, society and self. Financial aid and postgraduate grants available.

NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY EXPEDITION INSTITUTE
Sharon CT 06069 (203)364-0522

COUNSELORS
MEN & WOMEN
Age 19+ preferred
also
COOKS, RNs
CERT AQUATIC STAFF
NUTRITIONISTS
Rustic New Jersey residential Summer camp. Disadvantaged children, interracial.
2 week staff training
TRAIL BLAZER CAMPS
212-505-9007
Rm 730, 225 Park Ave So, NY, NY 10003

SHIMMYS
ICE CREAM
POPCORN
Gourmet varieties of Popcorn
Blend-in Ice Cream Flavors
Opening Specials
BUY 1 - GET 1 FREE
35 Montague Road
Riverside Park - Shopping Plaza
549-0736

TONIGHT! (AND EVERY WEDNESDAY)
LIVE NEW YORK COMEDY SHOW
FEATURING...
BILL RUTKOWSKI and BILL Mc CARTY
(MC from CATCH A RISING STAR)
SHOWTIME 11:00 P.M.
75¢ MIXED DRINKS 8—11
NO COVER
You've seen them on HBO, David Letterman, Thicke of the Night, and Evening at the Improv.....
NOW SEE THEM LIVE!
THURSDAY:
2 FOR 1 ALL NIGHT LONG
THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!
Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB
DISCO • TOP 40 • ROCK

Are you wondering what to pre-register for?
...Consider the Health Aide Program
As a Peer Health Promoter, you
★ LEARN ABOUT YOURSELF
★ TEACH YOUR PEERS ABOUT HEALTH
★ GAIN CAREER EXPERIENCE
For more information about this 3 credit course sponsored by the University Health Services, call the Health Education Office at 549-2671 ext. 181

Hungry U
99¢ pitchers are available only with the purchase of a large pizza

Try The Collegian Classifieds They Work

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

AMHERST BAGEL DELI
Now Open in FACES
The valley's freshest bagel is now in Amherst
SPRING SPECIAL
15¢ a bagel $1.65 a dozen
Mon - Sun 8 am - 6 pm
253-9282

ROCK & ROLL
DYNAMITE RECORDS
We buy albums
We pay cash or you may trade for 25% more off new albums
Maxell UDXLII S90 this week only $2.50/ea.
Thornes, a marketplace plus!
150 Main Street, Northampton 584-1580
SOUL JAZZ CLASSICAL

STUDENT AIRFARES
round trip from LONDON $348
PARIS $378
MADRID $399
LUXEMBURG $469
AMSTERDAM $448
ZURICH $398
STOCKHOLM $350
CARACAS $293
BOGOTA $429
National Student Travel Bureau of the USA 266-1926
Council Travel/CIEE 729 Boylston St suite 201 Boston, MA 02116

THE BEST PLACE IN TOWN TO START A CONVERSATION
is
Time Out
Free Popcorn
Two TV's
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. PLEASANT ST AMHERST. MA

SUMMER STUDENT EMPLOYMENT
BUDGET OFFICE, UMASS/AMHERST
Responsibilities include data collection, file maintenance, and general office assistance. Accuracy a must. Twenty hours per week May 15 through August 31. Possible employment during academic year. Send letters and resumes attention of: Fred Goodhue or Gail Matthews, Budget Office, Room 343 Whitmore. Salary $3.90 - $4.10 per hour.

Two resp males for 2 bedroom aptin Pres 100+ each starting June 1 call late PM 549-0740

Summer sublet for couple or single 2 rooms, private entrance & bath, kitchen and laundry priviledges. 165/month Chris or John 256-8249

Aveilable with fall option two bedroom apartment in Sunderland rent negotiable 665-8504

Own room in 2 bedroom apt on Main St Amherst females only 253-5562

3 bedrooms in center of Amherst house June 1st to Sept 1st poss fall option 256-1060

Summer sublet with possible fall option. Large bedroom in two bedroom Southwood apartment for one or two females 256-8379

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village availa June 1 - Sept 1 256-1301

One bedroom open in Southwoos apt call Jen or Sue between 4-6 256-6600

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WAN... D

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Looking for roommetes?? 2 females looking to share townhouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

Townhouse or Brandywine apt. wanted for fall will take in June call Jim 256-1072 eves $100 reward

Wented: Colorado couple desires cozy cabin or part of a house, rental beg, Fall 84. Quiet, nonsmokers w/dog. Willing to do repairs if needed. Write: Bill and Robin, 313 Locust, Fort Collins, CO 80524

WANTED TO RENT

Easy to live with fun loving looking to share apartment. Prefer near campus call eves, Lisa 546-5517

2-3 bedroom apt wented North Amherst willing to take over June Mike 546-9387

Sublet wanted for summer, professional couple, no children/pets, excellent references. 203-763-0323

Brandywine Southwood will takeover lease anytime $ reward call Tom 546-5930 or Bob 549-1685

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

ALL QUALITY SUNGLASSES

Time is running out! Raybans and Vuarnets on sale today in the CCC. Prepare for the summer - don't delay. Or call Bruce 549-2879 evenings

AUTO FOR SALE

75 Datsun rebuilt engine 950 or BO Kathy 549-4035 snow tires

1968 Volkswagen Bug Engine good front end, brakes poor AM/FM radio $150. 256-8088

1970 Saab 96 good mechanical condition; some rust; dependable $600 Larry 549-4497

1977 Toyota Corolla great condition new brakes tires high mileage $1400 call 256-0311

1976 Ford Mustang hatchback runs good wants $2500.00 call 546-9946

CAPE COD

Cape Cod - roommates needed for house in S. Dennis. Memorial Day - Labor Day respond immediately. Evenings 253-5237

CAR AND MOTORCYCLE

1976 Toyota Corolla - blue, really cute. Many new parts, runs well, body good, AM FM cassette. Good mileage. 1976 Honda 350, also very cute. Gold with matching helmet. Great shape, needs battery. Must see both. Call Tami, 256-0186.

DONNA MISIPH

Happy twentieth Stymie! Here's to all the great times we've had and all the best still to come! I love you! nywbeagpf"tr" -love, Steph

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

RICHARD PRYOR'S
HERE AND NOW $1.50
Engineering East Auditorium
Friday April 27 at 5, 7, 9, 11

Balloon Delivery by Clowns; Birthdays, all occasions, juggling, songs, more, reasonable rates, call 586-4256

FOR RENT

Female wanted nonsmoker for summer sublet and fall option, own room, pool, bus route, $150/month plus utilities, call 253-7806 evenings

2 bedroom apt available June 1 with fall option Brittany manor $460.00 call after 10. 253-5907

Furnished efficiency with carpet, AC. Summer sublet, fall option $205. 323-6704

Amherst Center - room for one or two women in beautiful house $160 plus mo. 253-9487 or 665-3091

3-1/2 rooms Presidentiel Apts. incls. refrigerator, air conditioner, dishwesher. Walk to GRC. One block to bus stop. Available 6/1 to 8/31 w/option to renew. $305 + utilities. Call 549-5881.

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Four bedroom house, large yard with garden, cool in summer available June 1st with fall option Call 253-3868

Two rooms. Summer fall option possible walk to campus and town. Furnished, washer/dryer. Dan Jackie 549-6041

One bedroom apt. $295 includes utilities on busline pets welcome available immediately call 665-2020

2 rooms 100 yds from campus. Beachfront location. Summer sublet fall option. Nonsmokers call 549-0533

FOR SALE

Mattress, box spring and frame, full size, like new. Plus couch and 4 pairs of drapes. Asking $175 for all. Call 549-5881

Mistral Sailboards. All styles. Good price. Angie 549-4440

Fuji S-12S black 18 speed 23" frame with rear rack and panniers $300 call 546-1402

73 SuperBeetle Looks great, runs great. Lt. Blue $1095 549-4816

EP Water Ski comp2 $95 call Jody 549-0124 must sell quickly.

Infoton 100 Terminal perfect condition best offer call Jim 256-0796

Bike 10 spd great shape $50 call Paul eve 665-3156 day 545-2088

71 Volkswagen SuperBeetle excellent condition, sunroof $950 or BO Kurt 546-5039

13" Zenith B & W TV, works fine, fairly new, must sell - $35 call Mike tonite -546-6660

Decwriter II Hardcopy Output Terminal $650/BO DCAT Modem - notation model $125/BO excellent condition must sell -graduating 549-1739 Klyde

FOUND

A set of keys outside Hatch 4/23 call 546-3289 with description

HELP WANTED

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk+ benefits call 586-8713

Counselors, private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, gymnastics, softball, photography, radio station (AM), computers, director/piano accompanist, dance/movement/show choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders and bunk counselors. Good salaries, friendly atmosphere. Contact Jodi 546-9668

Counselors: Camp Weyne, co-ed Northeast Penna. Interviews arranged. Unusual opportunity. 12 Allevard St, Lido Beach, NY 11561 (include your telephone number)

Cruiseships Hiring $15,000-30,000! Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-(916) 944-4444 X Massachusetts

Government Jobs $16,559-$50,553/year. Now hiring. Your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext. R-9616

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Southwestern Co. interviewing Today for summer work. Ave. pay $318/wk CC Rm 176 12, 2, 4, 6, 8

Mobile Vending Vehicle Drivers wanted Cape Cod this summer Pete 584-9580

Lifeguerd/Swim Inst. at private camp in Pocono Mts. 2-3 pos avl 4 Red Cross cert inds 18+. July thru Aug. Call Russ at 542-3059 for info

HEY LINDA FROM AXO

Let's go on a Birthday Picnic!
You bring the food and the blanket;
I'll bring the wine and the pillow!
Happy Birthday - Love, Dane

IOTA GAMMA UPSILON

Open Rush
All University Women Invited
Tues 4/24 5:00 Pizza Party
Wed. 4/25 7:30 Taco Fiesta
For Info: call 256-6874

LOST

Red plaid MacGregor scarf in Cape Cod Lounge Mon 4/9 546-4400

Jean Jacket and keys at the Pub return! to Pub or call 549-7566 Reward!

Womens watch - Quertz-Pulsar gold leather band lost near Sylven 4/20/84 if found please call 6-4030 Geil

Please I lost a ladies gold watch on 4/19 reward 546-5519

MUST RENT IMMEDIATELY

Space in Brittany $117.50 call Tracy 256-0011 leave name & number

NEWPORT

Wanted room in house or apt from June - Sept. Call Amy in the evening at 549-5619 please keep trying

PERSONALS

Elections for North East Area Government will be held on May 8th. The positions open are President, Vice-President, Treasurer, and Secretary. Nominations will open on Monday April 23rd and will close Sunday April 29th at 8 PM. Nomination papers are available from Dianne Rossi 304 Dwight (546-5542)

Keren P "The Bicycle Rider" How about a ride with en admirerer some sunny day? 546-9545

A Wop Bop A Lu Bop - Come see GREASE Tonight at 8:00 pm, ABSOLUTELY FREE at Hampden Picnic Area. Come early for good seats.

All University Women Invited to Open Rush at Alpha Chi Omega Wed., April 25 - Dynasty Happy Hpour at 9 Thurs., April 26 - Bar-B-Q dinner at 4:45 Please RSVP to Linda Baker Ir Stacy at 545-2152 or 549-4159

Collegian Staff Elections Today 9:00 - 8:00 All staff eligible to vote

Donna: One year behind us, a lifetime ahead. Happy Anniversary Babe. I love you. Bruce

Problems with your employer? Call LSO 545-1995

GREASE - We have to dance on that?? Watch out for a cruising laundry truck! Have a great second night.

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

Thurs 5-3 after noon or Fri 5-4 early AM to NJ (Westfield) or NYC Jill 546-7301 evenings

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Needed do you have room for 1 more person in your house in Hyannis-Yarmouth area asap call Sue 256-8676

Room wanted for summer in W Yarmouth call Brian 549-2694

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hedley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1st with fall option 549-6715

Wanted two roommates to share Southwood Apt. call 546-5271 or 546-5265 between 5-10 PM

Responsible women to share sunny Southwood apt summer/fall 253-5109

Looking for 2 mature UMass students to share quaint 3 bedroom Northampton apt. Summer with fall option call evenings after 6 586-4555

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom apartment mid May with fall option call 253-2140 1 or 2 persons, male or female to have own room

Fall semester 84 (summer sublet) Southwood apts 3rd floor pool tennis court on busline Norm 256-1031

Female nonsmoker to share 4 room N'ton apt 205/mth May-Aug pos through Mey 85 586-9938

Looking for 1 female to share two bedroom apt in Squire Village with 2 other girls Jan 546-6496 or Beth S 546-6491

Male roommate wanted to shere 1 bedrm apt in Presidential $177.00 includes heat 546-9538

Two housemates wented for summer in WYarmouth $600 each by May 26. Call Sue or Laura 546-9980

Female roommates wented in Townehouse for fall semester and on call 549-4585

Female roommate wanted for Townehouse Apt. For more info call 549-5531

Cool female roommate wanted to share large room in Falmouth for summer cheap call Heather 546-6677

Colonial Village one bedroom avail summer sublet, fall option call Sue or Katie 256-8676

ROOMMATE WANTED IN BOSTON

Graduating female needed to share apt. in Boston/128 area Sue 256-0463

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

Free Film: "I Don't Have to Hide", Anorexia and Bulemia affects 25% of college aged women. CC 163-175, April 26, 7 PM spon Student Nurse Assoc

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2498 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Summer sublet only. Fully furnished. Must be seen to appreciate. Negotiable call 256-8788

Share house for summer 150$/month a beautiful 4-bedroom house. It has kitchen walk-in pantry dining living rooms more than one space. Within walking distance to UMass 546-5188

Townehouse Apts 2 bedroom from June 1 to August 31 rent negotiable call Joe 549-0902

Apt. available for summer in Puffton. Price negotiable. Please call 546-7986 or 546-7988

Brittany $353.50 June, July, August call Tracy 256-0011 leave name and number

Fall option 2 bedrooms in 4 bedroom house on bus route 256-1337

Swiss Village 4 bedroom 2 bath spacious convenient modern apt 256-8247

Prime Amherst Center location, three bedrooms, spacious, renovated, 6-4984, fall option

Two bedroom Townhouse summr sublet fall option Squire Village rent negotiable 665-4793

Fall option large two bedroom apt in Sunderland bus rt WW carpeting AV dishwasher 325 month call eves 665-4504

Beautiful Apt. Amherst Center 2 bedrms reasonable $, Aug free! 549-7800

3 bedroom apartment in Amherst from 6-1 to 10-31. $500 all utilities included 256-0809

2 bedroom apt available in Presidential call 546-5558 or 546-5593

Puffton Village 3 bdrms 2 single 1 shared with female $100/ea furnished

Mill Hollow Apt for summer with fall option. Apt 2 miles from campus on Puffers Pond 549-5061

Brandywine Apartment very cheap 2 bedroom, fully furnished swimming pool directly on bus route beginning June 1st call Seth 546-1456 Steve 546-9673

Room for rent Amherst Center with fall option 125 per month evenings call Abby

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

Fully furnished 2 bdrm Southwood Apt call after 10 PM cheap 256-1318

3 bedroom Puffton summer only 110/room Kathy or Luann 549-4035

Female wanted for own room in Rolling Green apts available June 1 graduate or older student preferred call evenings 256-0304

Arlington Mass (next to Cambridge) Juen 1 - Sept 1 $234/month gorgeous house 617-643-3726 keep trying

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

For summer: 5 bedroom house on Main St. next to bus stop 256-6362 Sue

3 bedroom Puffton apt summer cable 2 bathrms call after 11 PM cheap 546-7267

Summer w/fall option - Brittany Manor -pool, tennis, airconditioning, busroute 256-0097

4 bdrm 2 bath, Swiss Village apt fall option $174 per bdrm per month, utilities included. Leaving most living room, kitchen furniture 256-0069

Two bedroom apartment on scenic Puffer's Pond. Summer sublet with fall option. 549-6500

3 bedroom apt in Northwood 330 on bus route, fall option call 665-8514

2 bedroom summer sub/fall option pool laundry bus low rent June 1 call 665-8125

2 bedroom apartment in Puffton Village June 1 to Sept 1 call Cinde 545-0162

Colonial Vill 1 bedroom furnished summer possible fall option 256-0909 evenings

One bedroom in Sunderland all utilities paid summer fall option 665-2866

GOOD DEAL 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet. Available June 1st thru Sept. 1st. Call Marsha 549-1511 or Michele 546-4917

Sports

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

Ted Spencer (35) defends against Hofstra and will be on the defensive as the top ranked (New England) Gorilla's face Harvard today at Boyden.

Top ranked lax hosts Harvard

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

Ivy will again be the main course today at the Hill when the Crimson of Harvard is served up for Garber's Gorilla lacrosse troops at 3 p.m.

Fresh off a 15-9 devouring of Yale Saturday, and riding a three game winning streak, the newly turned number one ranked team in New England hopes to put another knotch in their sticks and dispose of Harvard.

"We've played very good lacrosse," said head coach Dick Garber yesterday following the tune-up practice. "we took care of B.C., (20-4) and Hofstra was one of our better games (a 12-5 win). Against Yale we made some bad defensive lapses and got off to a slow start. Our offense bailed us out by scoring 15 goals."

Good lacrosse indeed, has been played by these Gorillas and the old adage of looking past an opponent will be tested in this contest because the next team Massachusetts faces is Army, the fourth ranked team in the nation.

And Harvard certainly won't come here to spectate. Despite getting crunched themselves by Yale, 13-5, the Crimson have closed out enough opponents to earn their number three New England ranking, only two spots behind the Gorillas.

Garber doesn't see any problem with an overconfidence factor. "I don't think so," he says. "We can diffuse some of those things. The fact that we're number one in New England can give Harvard some incentive to knock us off, and when you're number 11 in the country, (as Massachusetts is), and really just a whisker away from being number eight, that can put the pressure back on you to win. That takes the complacency out. Hell, we've got a chance to play the number four team and the number one team in the country (Syracuse, May 5th) in the next two weeks."

So, Ivy's on the menu and the feasting hopefully begins at three.

Jury still out on the women's lacrosse team

By ED CUNNINGHAM
Collegian Staff

The forecast for the 1984 University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team was like many weather forecasts - undecided. To date, things have not changed very much.

The Gazelles are presently just over the .500 mark at 4-3. Last year at this time, the team possessed an 8-1 record and were headed to the national tournament. Things have changed.

The nemesis of many collegiate teams has surfaced to haunt the Gazelles this year. Graduation is a horrible thing...

Last year UMass lost several of their key players to graduation. These players led the Gazelles to a national Championship two years ago and a fourth place finish in last year's campaign.

This year's ride through the schedule has been somewhat of a roller coaster ride. This past week, the team hit several high and low points on their journey.

Last Thursday, the team hit the win column with a hard fought victory over a scrappy Dartmouth team. UMass came out a little sluggish in the first half but built up momentum in the second 25 minutes to defeat the Big Green 8-3. Pam Moryl had five goals.

Saturday, while many of us rested the Gazelles were toiling on the upper NOPE field against the number one ranked team in the country, Penn State. UMass gave their typical extra effort performance but inexperience hurt as the powerful lax-women from the Quaker state left with the big win, 14-4.

Collegian photo by Brian Geere

Pam Moryl, the Gazelle's leading scorer, had six goals in the 16-0 win over Northeastern along with goals in a win over Dartmouth and a loss to Penn State.

"They (Penn State) played a beautiful game. We have a lot of young players but they learned a lot. We really started playing with them at the end," said interim UMass coach Polly Keener. Pam Hixon is coaching with the Olympic field hockey team.

The locals must have learned quite a bit Saturday because they used it all Tuesday. The unlucky foe turned out to be Northeastern. The Lady Huskies were lambasted by the Gazelles by a score of 16-0.

Aside from this game being a shut-out (a tough feat said a chorus of UMass players) it was particularly sweet coming on the heels of a dissappointing loss. The character of both the older and younger team members shone brightly under the lights at N.U.

The scoring chores were finally lifted from the shoulders of Pam Moryl and Linda Haytayan. Almost. This dangerous duo did account for 10 of the 16 tallies against Northeastern but several others contributed. Bunny Forbes hit the twine three times. Mary Scott hit twice and freshman Becky Bekampis tossed in her first career goal at UMass.

Today, the Gazelles head east to face a tough opponent in Yale. Last year's contest was a victory for UMass, 7-2. This year's battle should be a close match, as the Gazelles continue their journey.

UMass men's crew swept by Coast Guard

By ED ROBINSON
Collegian Staff

NEW LONDON, Conn. — "Say that we got rained out," said one member of the University of Massachusetts men's crew team, after the team had lost all their races on the Thames river rersus Coast Guard Academy on Monday.

It was another rainy and cold day, but it must have seemed even colder and wetter to this Minuteman team after they had absorbed losses in every event. Going into the day, the freshmen eight and the JV four had won their last two races and the varsity had raced strong and well the previous week. This made the results on Monday particularly disappointing.

"We were just not as sharp today," said coach Dave Kumlin, explaining the varsity eight's nine second loss. "Also, Coast Guard has a strong team."

One of the major obstacles in the way of winning is the varsity's consistently poor starts. "We've got to be quicker the first 1000 meters," said Kumlin. "We fall behind and then spend the rest of the race scrambling to catch up."

The team will be concentrating on quicker starts during practice sessions this week.

UMass will race Williams College this Saturday starting at 10:00 a.m. on their home course in Hadley. This will be the last home event of the season. The week after they will race in the New England Championships in Worcester, and they will finish their season the next weekend at the national championships in Philadelphia.

Celtics take series

LANDOVER, MD. (AP) - Larry Bird and Dennis Johnson combined for 19 points in the fourth quarter as the Boston Celtics defeated the Washington Bullets 99-96 Tuesday night to win their first-round National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Celtics, who won the best-of-five series 3-1, play the winner of the New York-Detroit playoff which resumes Wednesday night with New York ahead 2-1.

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 61 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, April 26, 1984

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

GOING DOWN — Sculpture depicting a Trident submarine was destroyed yesterday morning. It was to accompany Earth Day celebration. (See related story.)

House votes to roll back tuition hikes

By STEPHEN HOWE
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts House of Representatives last night passed two amendments of great importance to the University of Massachusetts community.

The House passed an amendment, put forward by representative James Collins (D-Amherst), which will limit tuition increases to six percent for the 1984-85 school year.

The amendment ties annual tuition increases to the annual increase in disposable income, and puts a six percent ceiling on increases for next year.

The second amendment, also put forward by Collins, allocates an additional $2.7 million for the Amherst campus. This increases the University's operating budget to more than $119 million, according to Collins.

"In addition I suspect there will be another twelve million allocated for collective bargaining costs," Collins said.

The collective bargaining allocations would bring the University's budget to somewhere between $132 and $134 million, Collins estimated.

The allocations were passed on a voice vote, which Collins called significant because it shows a strong concern, in the legislature for higher education.

The tuition roll back amendment comes at a time when most students have resigned themselves to paying a 15-percent increase next year.

"This is not the time to be increasing costs for in-state students," Collins said, "A 15-percent increase will mean that only the wealthy will be able to afford to go to college, if that were the case I never could have gone to the University."

Collins who is a graduate of the University said that other UMass graduates in the legislature "vigorously supported" the amendment.

Both amendments must be passed by the Senate and approved by Governor Michael S. Dukakis.

The Student Government Association (SGA) Public Policy Committee at UMass has been campaigning diligently for a reduction in the proposed tuition hikes. Public Policy chair Fran Pheeny said she is very pleased with the amendments.

"I'm excited! I'm ecstatic!" Pheeny said, "This shows students that they do have imput and an effect on the legislature. "But", she addded, "Students should not give up, it has to go through the senate and be approved by the governor...it's not over yet."

Pheeny also said that she is pleased with the way Rep. Collins has opposed the tuition hikes.

"I'm very pleased that Jim Collins filed this for us, and I'm excited that it passed the House so easily because that means it will pass the senate, which is smaller and traditionally more liberal, more easily," Pheeny said.

Collins stressed that he is "hopeful that the senate will vote it (the tuition rollback) through the governor will sign it."

Summing up his thoughts on the passage of both amendments, Collins said, "This is a good day for the University, it is another step toward building the nation's finest university."

Art project sub sinks in pond

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

The mock Trident 2 submarine conning tower in the campus pond, which was supposed to be the highlight of Earth Awareness Week, was discovered destroyed early yesterday morning.

The tower, which was the thesis project of graduate sculpture major at the University of Massachusetts, was reported "tipped and partially submerged" at 3:11 a.m. yesterday, according to UMass police.

The cause of the destruction to the 20 foot high, 20 foot long sculpture installed in the pond Sunday, is not known although vandalism is a possibility.

"I'm not surprised at all," said Tom Kellner, the graduate student who designed the sculpture. "It was something I expected to happen but I didn't expect it so soon."

The conning tower was made of chestnut beams and pinewood ribs covered with tarpaper and was anchored to the bottom of the pond.

Kellner discounted the possibility that wind or rain could have destroyed the mock submarine because he said the structure was sturdy when he checked it Tuesday.

"I doubt it was the elements. It would have needed more wind to take it down," Kellner said.

Although he said he did not know who could have been responsible, Kellner said it was "probably someone in support of the military build-up."

a "Russian threat.

"It was supposed to be a non-representative submarine. It was modeled after a Trident but had no connection to any country," Kellner said.

Frances Crowe, an activist who was arrested and jailed in Rhode Island recently for painting graffiti on a real Trident 2 submarine, had planned to hold a demonstration at the campus pond and paint "Peace Now" on the conning tower, Kellner said, "to bring home to UMass the things she has done."

Kellner said the sculpture was part of his thesis project and photographs of it will be displayed this week in the Herter Art Gallery. Kellner will receive his master of fine arts in May.

"Even though the piece is destroyed, the memory is there and the imagery is real," he said.

Joyce Greenberg, co-coordinator of an Earth Day ritual at the campus pond to watch the sun rise, said she and a group of about 25 people discovered the tipped conning tower at 4:45 a.m. Wednesday but added that there were people at the pond before she was.

"Ultimately, that's what we should see happen to the submarines," she said.

Charles Francis Carroll, one of the coordinators of Earth Awareness Week said, "I've heard it said that violence and destruction is the lowest form of intelligence. For whatever reason, this senseless act of vandalism demonstrates the lack of respect for art, culture and humanity which a military is capable of."

Senate reappoints Attorney General

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association (SGA) Senate last night confirmed the reappointment of Student Attorney General Susan Gladwin by SGA president Rick Patrick, following debate on whether this appointment was in accordance with SGA bylaws.

The dispute over the legality of Gladwin's reappointment arose from conflicting interpretations of Chapter Five of the SGA Constitution. A clause in this chapter requires the president to consult a selection committee before appointing an attorney general, but senators disagreed over whether this requirement applied to extending the tenure of a previously appointed attorney general.

Greek Area Senator Jay Flynn, arguing that the requirement did apply to reappointments, said he was "sick and tired of us disregarding the bylaws."

Senate Speaker Chris Sullivan and Senator Eric Nitzsche disagreed, saying Chapter Five requires a selection process only if the attorney general's office is vacated.

Sullivan also pointed out that the Constitution permits an attorney general to "succeed him- or herself."

Patrick noted that Gladwin went through a selection process when she was appointed last year and said he wanted "to establish continuity. She (Gladwin) has done a great job."

"I don't think that anyone here is doubting Susan's qualification," countered Senator Laura Goldstrich. "We're just saying we should go by our bylaws. She's appointed to uphold them."

Senator Reuven Carlyle lamented the ambiguous wording of Chapter Five. "It's so hazy," he said, "I think that's the first time I've abstained all year."

Four other senators also abstained from voting on the reappointment, which was approved 31-12.

Gladwin said that one of the projects she will work on in her second term is the rewriting of several parts of the SGA Constitution, including Chapter Five, "to make them clearer."

INSIDE:

Amherst may be nuclear-free ..... p. 3
Remembering the Holocaust ..... p. 5
The photography of Ansel Adams ..... p. 7
Men's lacrosse loses, 10-7 ..... p. 12

"You don't need a weatherman to know which way the wind blows."
— Bob Dylan

AP Laserphoto

TRAGEDY STRIKES AGAIN — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and his sister Eunice Kennedy Shriver leave the home of Ethel Kennedy, whose son David was found dead yesterday morning.

Riots rock Santo Domingo

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — (AP) — Security forces took a firm grip on this island capital yesterday after two days of rioting over food price increases. But two more people were killed in sporatic violence, bringing the three-day death toll to 39.

Hundreds of people were injured in the riots and police said an estimated 1,000 arrests were made.

Heavily armed police and troops patrolled the streets Wednesday and military helicopters chuffed over the city. Many Dominicans returned to work and city workers removed the debris of rioting — barricades, burned out vehicles, broken glass and smoldering tires.

"It's definitely much quieter today," said a U.S. Embassy staff member, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The police reported five deaths Monday, including a rookie officer, as demonstrations against food price increases turned into riots.

Police sources said 29 people were killed or fatally injured in four cities Tuesday, the bloodiest day since the 1965 civil war in this Caribbean nation, which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

The sources said a man and a woman were killed in the capital when soldiers opened fire on violent crowds Wednesday morning, and three people died of wounds suffered earlier.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Bill Wall
Copy Editor — Stephen Howe
Layout Technician — Bill Will
Photo Technician — David P. Deuber
Production Supervisor — Lesley Clark
Production — Lynn Eisenberg, Joy McCarty, Martha Connors, Marsha Wilcon, Beth Bazinet, John Wielgus, Catherine Hall, Lissa Kiernan, Norm Achin, Marianne Walsh, Amy Keefe

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

"Why does our technological capability exceed even what our social evolution is relevant in the 20th century?" Will Roberts

Beyond the Nuclear: Masculinity and Military Socialization is the issue

BETWEEN MEN is the film

Presented IN PERSON
By Will Roberts
(MEN'S LIVES)
57 minutes Color
16 mm

This ground breaking documentary is the only film to win BOTH the Diploma of Moscow (USSR) AND the George Washington Honor Medal (USA)

Also awarded a Blue Ribbon at the American Film Festival, a Gold Cindy from IFPA and a Gold Medal from the Festival of the Americas

MONDAY
APRIL 30
HERTER 231
7:30PM

FREE "Military intelligence is a contradiction in terms." Groucho Marx FREE

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Spring Special
Thursday Nites
Free Champagne
for Ladies
9:30-11:00 PM
Two for One for everyone 9:30-closing

HOW TO PICK UP A BUFFALO.

INTRODUCING CALGARY CANADIAN BEER.

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Earn Academic Credit while gaining experience in marketing, public relations, counseling, and student affairs administration. Become an intern in the University's Undergraduate Admissions Office. Interviews begin April 30 Contact the Office of Internships

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning.
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Photo by Judy Fiola

MOTHER GOOSE? — A mother duck returns to nest after taking a short swim in the Campus Pond.

Livestock classic commences tonight

By TIM RYAN
Collegian Correspondent

Various animals will compete in different categories tonight, when the 49th Annual Bay State Livestock Classic gets underway at the University of Massachusetts.

"Everyone had a lot of fun last year" said Heidi Abbott, a junior animal science student whose stock competed last year. "I really enjoyed the experience."

Ellen Gallerani, a senior animal agriculture student said, "It helps the students become more involved with their classes."

"The students put over a month's work into caring for these animals," said Kristen Whittle, technical assistant for the veterinary and animal science department. "This livestock Classic gives the students an opportunity for 'hands-on' experience."

Faculty student advisor, Dr. Sidney Lyford, Jr. said "Many of these students are from suburban regions and with the agricultural fair they are able to work with animals that animals that they might not have experience working with before."

The animal categories include sheep, goats, swine, horses, dairy heifers, and beef cows.

Other activities at the fair will include a spinning demonstration by the Pioneer Valley Wool Spinning Association, an oxen team driving demonstration, a baby animal parade, and a surprise event. The Livestock Classic is run entirely by students. All students and interested public are invited to attend the event which begins Friday night from 7 to 10 and continues on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. All events are held in the Grinnell Arena.

Collegian elects new editorial board

University of Massachusetts Daily Collegian elections for Fall Board of Editors last night resulted in a run off for the position of Editor in Chief between candidates Anne McCrory and James P. Shanahan.

John O'Connell, former associate news and currently associate managing editor was elected unopposed as managing editor. Greg Brown will fill the position of news editor and Rebecca Thatcher as Women's news editor.

The winner for arts editor, Christine Marini, a junior English major from Chatham said she plans to get new writers "excited" about the arts page.

With a victory for SPORTS EDITOR Peter Abraham, 20, a journalism/Political Science major from New Bedford, promises "to make the sports page more appealing to all readers."

Journalism major Rita Murphy, 20, from Weymouth was elected to editorial editor. Her objectives for the fall will be to "increase the diversity opinions and to make the page more accessible to a larger amount of students, faculty and the five college area."

Yadira Betances will resume her position as Black Affiars editor.

With two and a half years of experience in a commercial printing company, readers will see "increased quality in photos and type," according to Fine Arts major Mark Ruden, 22, who was elected Collegian Production. "I can definitely improve the quality of the paper in making it more consistent looking."

Andy Heller, a junior journalism major, was elected as photo editor says he will "create a friendly atmosphere for new recruits."

Sociology prof to be honored for his work

The sociology department at the University of Massachusetts will hold a public forum at 8 p.m. today in room 104 of Thompson Hall to honor Lewis M. Killian, professor of sociology and adjunct professor of Afro-American Studies.

Killian is noted for his work on collective behavior, social movements, race relations and social psychology. He is the author of several books including White Southerners, Leadership in American Society and Racial Crisis in America.

The featured speakers for the forum will be Will D. Campbell, a Baptist preacher and director of the Committee of Southern Churchmen and Marshall Frady, author and chief writer for "ABC News Closeup."

— DAVE LINTON

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

UPSIDE DOWN — Five year old Laura Shephard of Northampton plays with world at yesterday's Earth Day celebration in the Student Union.

Selectmen hearing arguments about nuclear free zone

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

The Amherst Board of Selectmen will hold a public hearing 7:30 tonight at the Bangs Community Center to hear arguments on whether or not to make Amherst a nuclear free zone.

The hearing concerns a proposal by a group called the Citizens for a Nuclear Free Amherst that would call for the town to prohibit "the production of nuclear weapons or components" by any "person, corporation, public or private educational facility, laboratory, institution or other entity."

The group asked the Board to hold a public hearing on the Nuclear Free Amherst Act "to show how strongly people in this town feel about this issue," David Shakespeare, a member of the group said yesterday.

The proposal also calls for Amherst to divest itself from contracts and "refrain from making new investments" with any industries or institutions which are "knowingly" engaged in nuclear weapons production. The act would also create a Nuclear Free Amherst Committee to monitor town contracts or subcontracts with the U.S. Defense Department, The Department of Energy and The National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The group is seeking the Select Board's endorsement of the proposal to ensure its passage at the Town Meeting April 30. Shakespeare, a senior environmental science major at the University of Massachusetts, said he expects the board to vote on whether to endorse the act Friday. Both students and professionals will attend Thursday night's meeting, he said.

Francis Fortino, also a member of the group, said the purpose of the act was to redirect town investments "away from nuclear weapons production and to channel it into something more socially responsible."

Last year, Amherst rejected the Federal crisis relocation plan, which called for Amherst and surrounding rural areas to host the population of cities such as Springfield and Holyoke in the event of nuclear emergency.

Students support voter access bill

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD — A University of Massachusetts interest group dumped over 10,000 postcards, recommending approval of a mail-in voter registration bill, before Sen. Martin T. Reilly (D-Springfield) and his legislative commission on registration reform at City Hall here Tuesday.

Public interest groups statewide, including members of the Massachusetts Public Interest and Research Group (MassPIRG) at UMass, attended the public hearing to give testimony in support of the bill.

MassPIRG spokesman Jay Holland told the commission that, "The bill would increase accessibility. It would make it more convenient for students, people who work during voting hours, the handicapped and minorities (to vote)."

Last month MassPIRG, in conjunction with the National Student Campaign for Voter Registration, conducted a survey where they got 10,000 cards signed by Massachusetts students including 1,500 signatures from UMass students in support of the bill.

"The state has spent thousands of dollars of taxpayers money in research on this issue and something has to be done," Ann Zuckoski, chair of Mount Holyoke College's Registration Coalition.

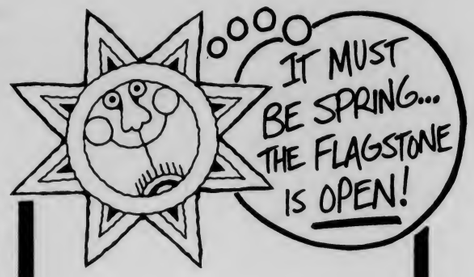
MassPIRG clerk Bill McCaskie said, "We don't see it as opposed. There are only 63 percent of the voters registered in Massachusetts. We want to make it as easy as possible. All the big states have it."

"Under the wing of the program is U.S. Senator hopeful Ed Markey and we also have the support of Governor Michael Dukakis," he said.

Reilly said before the final report is issued May 4, and released to the State's Legislature for approval, the commission will "examine the feasibility of the bill, the processing technology for a possible voter registration prototype" and look into ways to eliminate fraud.

In collaboration with Earth Week and as a part of their voter registration campaign, MassPIRG will be tabling in the Campus Center concourse and all dining commons during dinner hours today to encourage students to volunteer this summer at a voter registration organization in their home town.

Nominations for degrees

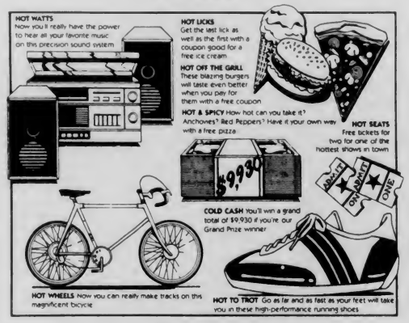


The Advisory Committee on Honorary Degrees is accepting nominations for the 1985 Commencement at the University of Massachusetts and is seeking suggestions from the campus community.

Among the factors which will be considered for the degrees are intellectual or other creative attainment of high order in a special field.

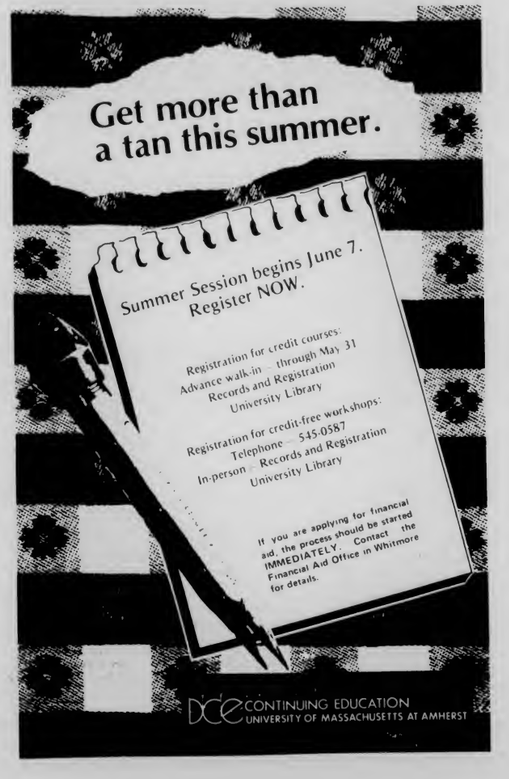
Other factors will include extraordinary contributions to the University or the Commonwealth.

Nominations should be addressed to Jean Weber, Provost's Office, Whitmore Administration Building, by May 4.



Flagstone
CAMPUS CENTER Cafe
Located Outdoors on the 3rd Floor Terrace
Lunch: 11 am-2 pm/ Monday-Friday
Weather Permitting

WIN WITH THE HOT SPOT!
$99,300 IN CASH & PRIZES.



HOW

1. Sign up at a participating merchant and be eligible to win our Grand Prize, $9,930.
2. Show your Hot Spot button to any participating merchant and win an immediate discount.
3. Put a Hot Spot bumper-sticker on your car. If we spot your sticker, we'll announce your license plate number on the air. Then you call the station and you're a prize winner.

WHAT

Listen for details on
99.3 THE HOT SPOT FM

EDITORIAL/OPINION

A day of remembering

In honor of those who resisted. In memory of those who died.

Today is Holocaust Memorial Day. That is why people of all races and religions have been wearing those buttons with yellow stars. The buttons symbolize solidarity among those remembering the Holocaust, and increasing awareness of how and why such an atrocious event happened.

While students, staff and faculty have been wearing the buttons (15,000 were issued as of yesterday), today is the day to wear them to show support. Wear a button in memory of those six million Jews and millions of other "non-Aryans" who were tortured and murdered in Nazi concentration camps. Wear one in honor of those who risked or gave their lives in resistance movements throughout occupied Europe. Wear one to recognize all the work done by those on campus who have tried to raise awareness and dialogue on the Holocaust, a chapter of our history that many would like to forget.

Today marks the anniversary of the Warsaw uprising in which a few hundred Jews, Poles and others held back as many as 10,000 Nazi troops before they were completely wiped out.

The Holocaust has taken a back seat to other social issues because most do not want to think that such an atrocity could have happened, particularly as recent as 40 years ago. And no one wants to think that more could have been done to help save the Jews of Europe.

Some have felt anger or pain because the Jewish star has been used as the symbol of the Holocaust memorial. But the symbol should be one of courage. It is a positive symbol, one that shows that single acts by individuals and the strong stands of institutions do make a difference. By raising awareness of issues such as the Holocaust, we can make sure they never happen again.

Unsigned editorials represent the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Reviving the environment

A reason why any of the Democratic candidates for president would be an improvement is the issue of the environment. Reagan's environmental record is dismal. He has been as effective as a dead tree on such problems as acid rain, toxic waste, and safety in the workplace (e.g. asbestos, EDB, OSHA, etc.). It has taken more than one lawsuit simply to get this Administration's partial attention.

All three Democrats have either shown or stated their position on most major environmental issues. All three are likely to make some effort toward restoring direction and effectiveness to the fight to save the earth. (Source: League of Conservation Voters; Sierra, April/May 1984).

Hart, Jackson, and Mondale have all promised to take action against the worsening acid rain problem. With Robert Stafford (Rep. - Ver.), Hart co-sponsored a bill calling for the largest reductions yet in sulfur dioxide emissions (12 million tons in 15 years) Hart has been a member of the Environment and Public Works Committee, and was chairman of the National Commission on Air Quality from 1977 to 1980. Jackson supports the Waxman proposals for sulfur dioxide controls on the nation's 50 largest polluters, and would add a requirement for a 12 million ton reduction in emissions. Mondale has proposed a 50 percent reduction in emissions, with a trust fund established among the 48 contiguous states to shoulder the financial burden.

In regard to toxic wastes, Jackson favors "aggressive enforcement" of Superfund. In direct contrast to Reagan, he would strengthen the Clean Water Act and back the Safe Drinking Water Act. Walter Mondale has said he favors a Superfund that would compensate victims of toxic waste. His record as a Congressman is respectable in regard to chemicals. In 1972 he supported testing of new chemicals before they hit the market, a job the Reagan team seems to have disregarded. He backed the Toxic Substances Control Act, the Clean Lakes Act, and would give federal support to sewage-treatment projects. With the exception of support for some harmful water projects, Gary Hart has a good record. He supported the Toxic Substances Control Act, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, and Superfund.

Perhaps you'll agree that all three Democratic candidates would present a more positive, constructive attitude toward the many serious problems which plague our environment. There is reason to think that any of them would be more responsive to the urgent need for action and coordination among all parties concerned. Solving such problems as acid rain and the many thousands of hazardous waste sites will not be quick and easy. But with a new president the march will at least have a chance to regain forward motion.

Thomas Pitoniak is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Denied visas deny speech

To the Editor,

The Collegian article "Guerilla theatre interrupts speakers" highlights 'interrupted speakers, repeated disturbances, and crowd jeering'; finally, it raises the notion of a sick idea of free speech; Such issues, understandably of no small consequence, beg one question...why this form of protest, potentially so alienating? Are these demonstrators simply to be dismissed as irrational "radicals" who are naturally rude and have total disregard for constitutional guarantees such as "freedom of speech"? Or, could there possibly have been some principled justification for what apparently seemed like indiscriminate disregard for a sanctified First Amendment right?

"Freedom of Speech", as guaranteed by the Constitution, does not end simply with one's right to express their respective views; "freedom of speech," as understood by the courts, includes the right of American citizens to hear opposing political viewpoints.

When Interior Minister Borge of the Nicaraguan Government was denied a visa to enter the U.S. (March 1983). He was prevented from keeping his engagements with several universities; Simultaneously, we, the American public, were denied our First Amendment rights to hear opposing political viewpoints. On September 18, 1983 the Reagan Administrative denied visas to a group of 5 Nicaraguans scheduled to speak at Harvard; (including the President of Nicaragua's Supreme Court). And again, our First Amendment rights were suspended (see N.Y. Times, September 19, 1983, pg. A3). Likewise, when Salvadorian Socialists such as Ruben Zamora and Guillermo Ungo were denied visas to the U.S., opposing political views were again suppressed (see New York Times, September 17, 1983, pg. 2, and New York Times, April 6, 1984, respectively).

Ironically the same day on which the 5 Nicaraguans were denied visas, Commander Eden Pastora, (Commander Zero) leader of the CIA backed Democratic Revolutionary Alliance, was granted a visa to raise more funds for his rebels. (New York Times, September 19, 1983, pg. A3).

What has all this to do with the conservative student's event which was "interrupted" Monday night? The Reagan Administration is selectively granting visas to people whose views are in political alignment with its own; according to Ted Weiss, Democratic Congressman of New York, such actions are "part of a broader effort by the Reagan Administration to close the door on opposing viewpoints" (New York Times, April 6, 1984). Thus, we have the "freedom" to hear the views of those "personally in support of the Contras", whose purpose is to overthrow Nicaragua — speakers such as those sponsored by the Conservative Students of UMass; (R.S.O.) This in fact, is not "Freedom of Speech", but a travesty of a noble concept.

The disturbances and interruptions of Monday night represent a symbolic action which protests prejudicial application of the Constitution's First Amendment, and our corresponding rights to hear all opposing political viewpoints. As long as Nicaraguan officials, El Salvadorian revolutionaries, and other notable Latin-American Socialists such as Salvador Allende's wife are repeatedly denied visas to the U.S., protests such as those of Monday nights' seem to me, to be a symbolic act of denying all visas to speak...not just some.

Perry Amsellem
UMass

By wearing the stars on Holocaust Memorial Day we will show that the students of UMass are united. As unified students we will commemorate those who have suffered from the Holocaust.

Once we are aware of what happened, we can begin to learn why it happened, and come to the realization that such a catastrophe could happen again.

Laura Goldstrich
Sylvan
Joel Rabinowitz
Southwest

The need to listen

To the Editor,

Frankly, I'm embarassed to admit that I am a student at the University of Massachusetts. What was the student response to a political conference on the Nicaraguan issue? Toy guns, fake blood, interruptions and pure stupidity. Compassion? How do you think Mr. Montalvan felt when he realized that despite his family being burned to death in his home, there is no real problem there, just C.I.A. intervention (or so the demonstrators would have us believe). I'm sure he wasn't bothered by a bunch of self centered, erratic little juveniles making a mokery of the deaths of his family. Oh, but I'm forgetting the C.I.A. is responsible for all the evils in the world, or so many people around here would have you believe.

I am not saying that the C.I.A. has done no wrong in Nicaragua, or elsewhere, I am just attempting to express that this is/was not the proper way to effect change, who of importance is going to give credibility to a kid with blood on his face, who isn't responsible enough to listen to the other side of the issue.

Dean F. Rascoe
SOM

Wear the star

To the Editor,

UMass is comprised of a diverse student body. People from many different backgrounds attend this university. We all have one thing in common, we are all students. We attend this university with the shared goal of acquiring an education. It is vital that we, as tomorrow's society are aware of what happened in Nazi Germany just over 40 years ago.

After World War I Germany suffered a depression. With a crumbling economy the people searched for hope. They found this hope in Hitler who used the Jews as scapegoat for the problems Germany was facing. A division appeared among the people. There were those who were Aryan, being instructed that they were superior and those who were not. The Aryans saw all others as being inferior. They felt the need to eliminate beliefs and values that they perceived inferior to their own; thus, they tortured and killed non-Aryans.

The story of the people of Denmark shows us that if we can come together, we can overcome the divisions which affect us.

Why Reagan?

To the Editor,

I was appalled by Andrew Paven's editorial April 19, concerning the popularity of our president. In a predominantly liberal college campus it is easy to find quarrel against Ronald Reagan.

Perhaps this was Paven's reasoning when he ventured into absurdity by unsuccessfully attempting to relate two obscure stories questioning Reagan's character to his popularity as a president.

To attribute Reagan's popularity to his failures as a person rather than his successes as a statesman is a far greater crime than embellishing the truth.

The issue here is not whether Reagan has misdirected the truth, but more importantly the public's tolerance of how the media covers these allegations. I am in complete alignment with Paven's statement that "we the public pay more attention" when the media reports on our Chief Executive. However, to allow articles like Paven's as truth is to allow a complete degradation of the media's coverage of any political situation.

Paven chose to ignore common facts to support his point of view. The successful operation in Grenada combined with lower unemployment and inflation rates are factors contributing to our president's popularity, all remiss from Paven's article. The omission of these facts supports Paven's pessimistic attitude that the American people would prefer liars to able politicians.

Paven should realize tht it is political effectiveness, not mediocrity, that continues to boost Reagan's popularity.

Guy Brooksbank
Southwest

Holocaust Memorial Day

On Thursday, April 26, all faculty, staff and students will be invited to wear yellow stars. . .

- In memory of the 6 million Jews who were tortured and murdered in the Nazi death camps.
- In honor of those who risked their lives and gave their lives in the resistance movements throughout occupied Europe.
- In recognition of our committment to work in solidarity with others resisting oppression and persecution everywhere.

Buttons displaying the yellow star will be available at central campus locations including: (Campus Center Concourse, Residential Cluster Office, Dean of Students Office, Whitmore) beginning April 23.

Wednesday, April 25 8:00 p.m.
Poetry and Discussion by Kol, Marcia Black, Debra Seidman, and others. Readings of poetry and testimonies of writers, Jewish survivors, and Jawish people in the resistance movement.
Room 811, Campus Center

Thursday, April 26 Continuous Showing 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Film "Ihr Zent Frei" (You Are Free) Focuses on the liberation of Buchenwald and its effects on the liberators and the internees. A 1984 Academy Award Nominee for short documentary.
Cape Cod Lounge

9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Photo Exhibit
Cape Cod Lounge

9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Book Exhibit with relevant bibliographies and course descriptions available.
Cape Cod Lounge

12:30 p.m. - 1:00 p.m.
Commemorative Gathering with Chancellor Joseph Duffey and others.
Cape Cod Lounge

7:30 p.m.
Film and Discussion "As If It Were Yesterday" About the rescue operation of Jewish children in Belgium during WWII. The film maker, Myriam Abramowitz, will discuss her work with the audience.
Worcester Dining Commons

Friday, April 27 To be announced
Breakfast discussion with film maker Myriam Abramowitz.
Butterfield

Sunday, April 29 12:00 noon
Hillel Bruch with guest speaker Rena Finder Borm in Krakow, Poland, Ms. Finder is a survivor of the Krakow ghetto, the Plaszow concentration camp, Auschwitz, and Brinnlitz.
Commonwealth Room

2:00 p.m.
Memorial to Victims of the Holocaust
Commonwealth Room

7:30 p.m.
Film "David" This 1979 film, the gripping story of a Jewish boy coming of age in Nazi Germany (1933-1940), is the first feature film about the Holocaust to be made by a German director (Peter Lilienthal) Free
Thompson Hall

Tuesday, May 1 7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.
Jewish Awareness/Anti-Semitism Workshop led by Charis Brown, an internationally known trainer from the Boston area. Open to all students.
Campus Center

For more information call:
Hillel Office 545-2526
Marcia Black, Jewish Awareness Trainer, SCERA, 545-0341
Elsie Young, Residential Education East, 545-0422

Feel Expensive!! Look Great!!

Expensive in every way, except PRICE!!

Hair styling for today's men & women at reasonable price; $7.50 for a style

Marjon Hair Design
Rt. 9
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, MA 586-4551

Hours: Sat 10-4
Tues thru Fri 10-6

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Showcase of Jazz

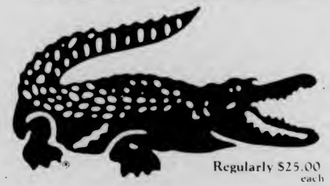
Johnny Griffin and his quartet
Chico Freeman and his quintet
with a special guest appearance by
Max Roach

FRIDAY, APRIL 27, 8PM
TICKETS: $9, $7, $5

Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

Budweiser.
KING OF BEERS.
INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

GENUINE GENUINE



Track Meet scheduled for Tues 4/24 has been changed to today
Report to field at 3 PM

Softball & Soccer drawings will be Monday, April 30 at 5 PM in Boyden Room 215

Tennis Playoffs and Badminton Playoffs begin today

this Buds for you!

THE MOST WIDELY KNOWN ALLIGATOR IN THE WORLD IS REALLY A CROCODILE.

Regularly $25.00 each

SELECTED COLORS NOW REDUCED

$20 EACH 2 FOR $35

IZOD LACOSTE

House of Walsh, Inc.
32 Main Street
Amherst, Massachusetts
Daily 9:00 to 5:30 253-3361

Arts

The passing of a true poet

By ANDREW M. PAVEN
Collegian Staff

I was doing some reading the other night, preparing for an English paper while watching the news on T.V., when the newscaster told me Ansel Adams had died at age 82.

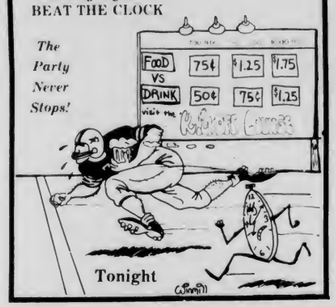
There, on the page in front of me, was the following line: "The Poetic Sentiment,...may develop itself in various modes--in Painting, in Sculpture, in Architecture, in the Dance-....and very peculiarly, and with a wide field, in the composition of the Landscape Garden." These words, written by Edgar Allen Poe, are from a piece of work called The Poetic Principle, in which Poe defines poetry. Ansel Adams, composer of Landscape Gardens, was a poet in the truest sense.

Different writers have had differing definitions of the poet; Ansel Adams qualifies in all. Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote that the poet was the person who could see, and took the time to see the beauty of Nature-- and could then show that beauty to the rest of us blind souls. Of the poet Emerson writes: He is "the sayer, the namer, and represents beauty. For the world is not painted or adorned, but is from the beginning beautiful; and God has not made some beautiful things, but (rather) Beauty is the creator of the universe...The Poet is the person...without impediment, who sees and handles that which others dream of, traverses the whole scale of experience, and is representative of man."

Ansel Adams was a poet. He saw the wonders and the beauty of Nature, and captured that beauty for all to see. None of us has to travel to Hernandez, New Mexico to see the desolate beauty of the rising full moon; Adams had been there for us. It is a testament to his skill that this photograph, which once sold for $71,500., was taken by Adams after he stopped his car for fifteen seconds, by the side of the road, because he had perceived the beauty before him. Wrote Emerson: "America is a poem in our eyes; its ample geography dazzles the imagination, and it will not wait long for metres." America was a poem in Ansel Adam's eyes. And now, thanks to his art, it is a poem in our eyes as well.

Adams left his collection of negatives to the University of Arizona. He wanted no more profit to be made from his art. Rather, students of the university will be able to experiment with printing techniques. They will be able to work with, to mix metaphors, the finest clay a sculptor could ask for. Said Ansel Adams: "The negative is the score, the print the performance." He acknowledged that there may be, among those negatives, a picture more beautiful than "Moonrise, Hernandez, New Mexico" or "Moon and Half Dome, Yosemite National Park."

It is precisely for this reason that Emerson's words ring true; he wrote: "A life in harmony with Nature, the love of truth and virtue, will purge the eyes to understand her text...so that the world shall be to us an open book." For Ansel Adams, dead or alive, that book shall always remain open.



artslines.....

The famous improvisational comedy team of Abrams and Anderson will perform at 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 26, at Smith College's Theatre 14. The duo received its formal training at the famed Second City Theatre in Chicago. The event will be hosted by the class of 1984. Tickets will be on sale at the door for $3.50. For further information, call 584-2700.

The Five College Chamber Soloists will perform works by Henry Purcell, Gustav Holst and UMass student composer Kurt Phinney at 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 26 in Bezanson Recital Hall. The event is free of charge. For further information, call 545-1945.

CAR STEREOS • ALARMS
SUNROOFS
Sales and Installation
Call us BEFORE you buy.
SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main St., Amherst 253-9341

Thursday Night
JUSTIN RYANS challenges you to BEAT THE CLOCK

WANTED:
Student and area musicians to play jazz, blues, reggae, funk, rock, etc. in the Hatch Bar. If you're interested call Paul at 323-6844 and leave a message. Your call will be returned. Piano, staging, P.A. available. Compensation for performances.

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

FACULTY
There's an alternative to the Textbook Annex
Jeffery Amherst Bookshop
We offer fast, responsive service on your course book orders. . .as well as being a full-service general bookstore.
Free Special Ordering
student & faculty discounts
on trade books & supplies
Call us with your summer & fall orders:
253-3381

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

TONIGHT
Hear the new music of
Rack-A-Disc
Requests Welcome
Two For One 9 til 11
- All Liquor Drinks -
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St. AMHERST

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's ICE CREAM

HOUSING
Christian Housing, Chi Rho
welcomes applications from single grads and undergrads, including freshmen and sophomores.
Contact the First Baptist Church for more information about this Christian Ministry House.
Call 549-3596 or 586-4352.

STUDENT ART SHOW
Bring art work, ready to be hung
CC 178
TODAY between 11 - 4

COPIES
2¢
OPEN 8AM TIL MIDNIGHT MONDAY THRU FRIDAY
SATURDAY 9-5 SUNDAY 11-5
Collective Copies 256-6425
25 N. Pleasant St., Amherst

Distinguished Visitors Program
and
Governors Program Council
presents

Dr. Ruth Westheimer

"SEXUALLY SPEAKING"

Monday, May 7, 1984 at 8:00 PM

Student Union Ballroom

Tickets $2. 5-College Students
$4. General Public available now at Fine Arts Center Box Office
and all Datatix locations

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

TONIGHT!

FOR

21

ALL NIGHT LONG

FRIDAY and SATURDAY

8 to 10:00 2 for 1

THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!

Poor Richards IS ALSO AVAILABLE FOR CATERED PRIVATE PARTIES AT THE lowest PRICES AROUND

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

National Multiple Sclerosis Society and Pike Kappa Alpha. . .

would like to thank the following for their contributions toward the 24 Hour M.S. Dance Marathon:

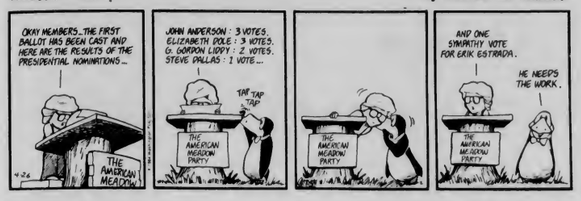
FOOD:
A. Simons & Co. Inc.
Lewis Beef
John Martinelli
Pine Crest Produce
Retailer Food Center
Amherst Deli
Witkin Provision Co.
Old Thyme Foods
Molitaris Orchard
Bess Eaton Donuts
Dannon Yogurt
D'Angelo Sandwich Shop
Cookie Hut
Louis Foods
Colchester Egg Farm
Barts Ice Cream
Baskin Robbins
Pinochio's Pizza
Domino's Pizza
Whole Wheat Pizza
College Pizza
Superior Pizza
Bell's Pizza
Hungry U Pizza
Andy's Pizza
Price Chopper

PRIZES:
Animal City Inc.
Al-Bums
Fentons Athletic Supply
Command Performance
Dream Machine
Great Expectations
James H. McManus Eating Place
Fred Houck Jeweler
Four Seasons
Record Town
Furnari Jewelers
Salt Box
Russells Liquor
Matthew Shoes
John Dellaria
Plumbley's
K-Mart
Regency Stylist
C & C Liquors
Stadium Liquors
Taylor Rental



FOR THEIR SERVICES:
Tara Murphy - EMT Nurse
University Hypnosis Center
The Dance Workshop-IBM
(Incredible Break Masters)

SPECIAL THANKS TO:
Campus Travel Center
Columbia Bicycles
Underground Sound
Miller Beer
99.3 FM The Hot Spot
Bob Ross and Justin Ryan's

and especially to all the Dancers who made it possible

Dancers: Don't forget the awards party tonight at 5:00 at Justin Ryan's

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The Strip Jim Walsh

The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

DC MENU

LUNCH
Cheeseburger
Fish in Batter
Tartar Sauce

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Bread Dressing
Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Tomato Torte
Southern Ham Shortcake

BASICS LUNCH
Oatburgers
Fish in Batter
Tartar Sauce

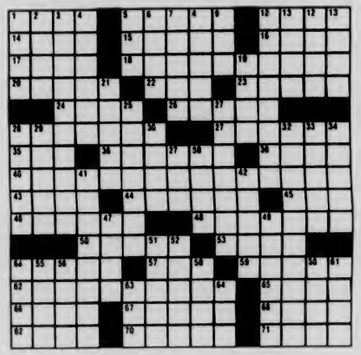
BASICS DINNER
Roast Turkey
Bread Dressing
Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Tomato Torte

Weather

Mass., R.I., Conn. — Today, some early morning cloudiness east coastal areas, otherwise sunny and mild. Highs generally in the 60s to lower 70s in the interior. Tonight, clear. Lows in the 40s. Tomorrow, sunny and quite mild. Highs from the mid to upper 60s along the coast to the mid 70s in the interior.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

M	I	T	T	E		A	N	T	E	A	D		L	A	T	H	E
D	M	I	T	E		B	O	D	I	C	E		E	R	A	S	E
S	T	A	M	E		A	N	T	E	N			C	U	P
S	T	R	E	E	P		S	T	R	E	I	N	V	O	L	V	E
						E	L	S		A	R	I	A	S
S	E	C	O	N	D		O	I	L		P	E	E	L	E	D
A	V	E	N			L	I	O	N		C	H	O	R	T	A	L
T	I	M	E	S		A	D	M	I	N	E	W	S	I	T	E	M
E	S	T	A	B	L	I	S	H			W	A	I	T		A	I	D
S	C	R	A	P			D	I	N	K		P	E	A	S	E	S
						N	A	B	E		E	L	I	S
P	E	N	I	N	S	U	L	A		A	T	T	I	C		A	D	D	I	C	T	E	D
A	D	M	I	R	E		M	E	D	I	U	M		E	A	R	S
C	E	L	L			A	I	S	L	E		S	P	A	N
K	N	E	E			S	Y	M	P	H	O	N	Y		S	A	M	E



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Menu items
5 "My Friend Flicka" novelist
10 Distort
14 Gator's kin
15 Mystery
16 Medley
17 Pay attention
18 Hitchhike
20 Canadian physician, Sir William ——
22 "What a good boy ——"
23 Trapshooting
24 Sign of sadness
26 Cuban coins
28 Summer refreshment
31 Space explorations
35 Fabray, to friends
36 "Strike ——"
39 Impulse
40 Remain firm
43 Roll call replies, Cockney style
44 Nassau, e.g.
45 Chinese dynasty
46 Jazzman "Jelly Roll"
48 Ancestors, in a sense
50 Actor Merlin
53 Lines on a map: Abbr.
54 "—— phrase"
57 Word with hold
59 Stage
62 Enjoying popularity
65 Spanish-American dollar
66 Addled
67 Haunted house feeling
68 Delicious cheese
69 Pole or stalk
70 Lock
71 Vocabulary expanders: Abbr.

DOWN
1 Repeat
2 Stoneware, in Soissons
3 Hockey player
4 Prolonged tirade
5 Calendar abbr.
6 Sunken fence
7 Like —— on a log
8 Chinese shrub
9 Liturgical garb
10 Finds an answer to 11 "I cannot tell ——"
12 Bicycle
13 Spender, for one
19 Biblical instrument
21 Math word
25 Election counts
27 Rounded
28 Against, legally
29 African capital
30 Comedian Johnson
32 Reverie
33 White-plumed bird
34 Highway haulers
37 "—— never too late"
38 Menu item
41 Native of Tallinn
42 Subway feature
47 Pearl Buck character
49 Chopin compositions
51 Upper atmosphere
52 Bete ——
54 Kind of apple
55 River into the Seine
56 Inspiration
58 Auspices
60 Algerian city
61 Jacques and Pierre
63 Obtain
64 "—— a jolly good fellow"

To members of the UMass community:

On Thursday, April 26, 1984 the Collegian will be holding a public forum to discuss the Editorial Page. The forum will be in Campus Center room 805-809 from 3:00 to 4:30. In addition to discussing the Editorial Page, there will be time left open to discuss any aspect of the Collegian that people are interested in.

All interested members of the community are invited.

¡Gallannite-board-$1
4:30-7pm at store. & hamp.
THE WEEKENDER

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl. $34.95 6 Cyl. $39.95 8 Cyl. $44.95
We'll install new resistor spark plugs points & condenser adjust idle speed set timing test battery and charging system inspect rotor distributor cap PVC valve ignition cables air filter and vapor canister filter. Includes Emission Test and Printout
Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99
includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

Dastardly Dans
TUESDAY and THURSDAY NITES
$3.00 all the draft beer you can drink
9 pm - 12 midnight

WHERE'S THE BEER?
Imprinted two color t-shirt screen. Available in S-M-L-XL grey or white, muscle or t-shirt
$8.95 postpaid or M.O. to Please specify Send check
SLAB O BEEF,
P.O. Box 112064, Carrollton, TX 75011-2064

Hypercurricula

FREE FILM - Film: "I don't have to hide," depicting Anorexia and Bulimia; something that affects at least 25 percent of college-aged women. Question and answer period after film. 7 p.m., Campus Center 163-175.

EAST SIDE CONCERT - Final east side concert security meeting. Attendance required. For info call Bob at 6-5561, Rob 6-5588. 6:30 p.m., CC 168c

HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL DAY - FILM "As If It Were Yesterday", a film about the rescue operations of Jewish children in Belgium during WWII. The film-maker, Myriam Abramowitz will be present for discussion. Thursday, April 26, 7:30 p.m., Worcester Dining Commons.

HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL DAY EVENTS - All day in the Cape Cod Lounge of the Student Union there will be films, a photo and book exhibit on Thursday, April 26

HILLEL COUNCIL MEETING - 6 p.m. Thursday, April 26 in the Dukes Room of the Student Union.

LESBIAN UNION - The L.U. has weekly rap groups on Thursday nights. All are welcome. Come share thoughts and meet people. 7 p.m., 406G Student Union.

SWAG ELECTION NOMINATION PAPERS - Are due Thursday, April 26th at 7 p.m. at the SWAG office.

R.A. COUNCIL - All student Residential Staff encouraged to attend one of these meetings. We will be discussing RSO status, Newsletter, and other ways to unify us. Either 4 or 7 p.m., CC 901.

HISTORY CLUB MEETING - For all students interested in life at UMass in the turbulent Vietnam War Period; a panel discussion featuring people who were here then will be held. 8:30 p.m., Rm. 904-08 CC.

We've Got The Competition On The Run

Saucony 280 Clean-Up
Men's cleat
Reg. $34.99
NOW $26.

Saucony Jazz
Men's and women's joggers
Reg. $49.99
NOW $38.

Saucony Dixon
Men's and women's joggers
Reg. $54.99
NOW $42.

Go for the action. Go with Saucony®.
Keep the competition on the defensive. Stay ahead with savings and quality at Olympian.
We're always ready for the challenge.

OLYMPIAN
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

Hungry U Correction

The 99 cent pitchers are only available with the purchase of a large pizza.
The Collegian apologizes for any inconvenience.

LEARN TO FLY

Earn your pilots license inexpensively. Club owned Cessna. Memberships also for licensed pilots. Introductory rides available.
Call Carol 546-4827

Happy Hour
THURSDAY 3-7 PM
Draft Beer... only 65¢
*Proof of Age Required
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Pretty soon, the "Steve Diamond Show" will be leaving the valley forever. . .Listen in, before it's too late! Every Thursday afternoon, 3 to 6, on WMUA 91.1 FM

15 watt portable, quad speaker, AMS, LEDS, stereo wide, etc. $55 546-9383

AUTO FOR SALE

75 Datsun rebuilt engine 950 or BO Kathy 549-4035 snow tires

1977 Toyota Corolla great condition new brakes tires high mileage $1400 call 256-0311

1978 Ford Musteng hatchback runs good wants $2500.00 call 546-9946

71 Volkswagen SuperBeetle excellent condition, sunroof $950 or BO Kurt 546-5039

1974 Ford Maverick A.T., P.S., many extras, reliable, $500 or BO, Phyllis 5-2364, 665-3441

77 Pinto Wagon, sky blue, runs good, body good, 750, BO, Greg 253-5847

75 Datsun B210 low miles excellent condition inside and out no reasonable offer refused keep trying Pete 549-7612 or 7790

CAR AND MOTORCYCLE

1976 Toyota Corolla - blue, really cute. Many new parts, runs well, body good, AM FM cassette. Good mileage. 1976 Honda 350, also very cute. Gold with matching helmet. Great shape, needs battery. Must see both. Call Tami, 256-0186.

DEC WRITER

Digital Decwriter with APL char. set, modem included like new. Call evenings 549-0393 $395.00

DRIVE A BUS

Western Mass Bus Lines is accepting applications to our bus driver training program to prepare students for part time work in September. Qualifications include a clean driving record of 3 years, availability to train through this summer, committment to work through May, 1985, and student status at one of the 5-Colleges. Apply in person at 59 Service Center St. N'ton Mon-Fri

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

RICHARD PRYOR'S
HERE AND NOW $1.50
Engineering East Auditorium
Friday April 27 at 5, 7, 9, 11

FOR RENT

Furnished efficiency with carpet, AC. Summer sublet, fall option $205. 323-6704

3-1/2 rooms Presidential Apts. incls. refrigerator, air conditioner, dishwasher. Walk to GRC. One block to bus stop. Available 6/1 to 8/31 w/option to renew. $305 + utilities. Call 549-5881.

Large studio epartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Four bedroom house, large yard with garden, cool in summer available June 1st with fall option Call 253-3868

Two rooms. Summer fell option possible walk to campus and town. Furnished, washer/dryer. Den Jackie 549-6041

One bedroom apt. $295 includes utilities on busline pets welcome available immediately call 665-2020

2 rooms 100 yds from campus. Beachfront location. Summer sublet fall option. Nonsmokers call 549-0533

One bedroom apt. in Crestview, summer w/fall option $380 + utilities 549-5949

Brandywine looking for one or two for one bedroom in a 2 bedroom Brandywine apt. Call Mike evenings 549-5416

FOR SALE

Mettress, box spring and frame, full size, like new. Plus couch and 4 pairs of drapes. Asking $175 for all. Call 549-5881

Mistral Sailboards. All styles. Good price. Angie 549-4440

Fujl S-12S black 18 speed 23" frame with rear rack and panniers $300 call 546-1402

73 SuperBeetle Looks great, runs great. Lt. Blue $1095 549-4816

EP Weter Ski comp2 $95 call Jody 549-0124 must sell quickly.

Infoton 100 Terminel perfect condition best offer call Jim 256-0796

Bike 10 spd great shape $50 call Paul eve 665-3156 day 545-2088

Decwriter II Hardcopy Output Terminel $650/BO DCAT Modem - notation model $125/BO excellent condition must sell -graduating 549-1739 Klyde

TRS-80 Model I 48k disk software interface screen $500/BO 546-9383

Bed, desk, bureau, and ten speed Schwinn bike call Craio 256-0078

FOUND

A set of keys outside Hatch 4/23 call 546-3289 with description

A wetch in CC on 24 April Identify 256-8135

HELP WANTED

Counselors, private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, gymnastics, softball, photography, radio station (AM), computers, director/piano accompanist, dance/movement/show choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders and bunk counselors. Good salaries, friendly atmosphers. Contact Jodi 546-9668

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Lifeguerd/Swim Inst. at private camp in Pocono Mts. 2-3 pos avl 4 Red Cross cert inds 18+. July thru Aug. Call Russ at 542-3059 for info

Tutor needed for Beginning Apl. will pay $8/hr. please call 253-7821

COUNSELORS, private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, softball, photography, computers, director/piano accompaniest, dance/movement/shoe choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders. Good salaries. Friendly atmosphere. Contact Jodi 546-9668

LOST

Red pleid MacGregor scerf in Cape Cod Lounge Mon 4/9 546-4400

Jean Jecket and keys at the Pub return! to Pub or call 549-7566 Reward!

Please I lost a ladies gold watch on 4/19 reward 546-5519

MOTORCYCLES

Blk. 750F 1980 Honda 21000 mi new rear tire and brakes bat case guards blk. saddle bags ex. cond. always starts very powerful asking 1300 dls. call Nick at 546-6535

Yameha SR250G 1980 recent tune-up etc. perfect condition $700 or BO 546-642 (keep trying)

MUST RENT IMMEDIATELY

Spece in Brittany $117.50 call Tracy 256-0011 leave name & number

NEWPORT

Wented room in house or apt from June - Sept. Call Amy in the evening at 549-5619 please keep trying

PERSONALS

All University Women invited to Open Rush at Alpha Chi Omega
Thurs. April 26 Bar-B-Q Dinner
at 4:45
Please RSVP - Linda Baker or Stacy at
545-2152 or 549-4159

Heppy Big 19 Sue Pink. We couldn't decide what to get you---e Porshe or this ad. Guess what you got. . .We love you, Pat, Jeff, Vic, Kurt, PJ

Attention:
Ski Club Exclusive

For all those who worked 10 hours or more at The Ski Snatch, come by the office to pick up your invitations to the Party scheduled for Friday night.
UMass Ski Club

Contact Lenses replaced. Bausch Lomb $25. other brands available. Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8561

Congrats Balsky! You finally made it to 20 Happy Birthday love Jo

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

Thurs 5-3 after noon or Fri 5-4 early AM to NJ (Westfield) or NYC Jill 546-7301 evenings

Ride needed to New York City or vicinity of Friday, April 27. Preferably would like to leave in the morning will share expenses call at night, if not home please leave message Janet 546-5124

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Needed do you have room for 1 more person in your house in Hyannis-Yarmouth area asap call Sue 256-8676

Room wented for summer in W Yarmouth call Brian 549-2694

Room wented in W Yarmouth for summer call Brian 665-3225

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Puffton - room available in 2 bedroom apt. June 1st with fell option 549-6715

Wanted two roommetes to share Southwood Apt. call 546-5271 or 546-5265 between 5-10 PM

Responsible women to share sunny Southwood apt summer/fall 253-5109

Looking for 2 mature UMass students to share quaint 3 bedroom Northampton apt. Summer with fall option call evenings after 6 586-4555

Brittany Manor 2 bedroom apartment mid May with fall option call 253-2140 1 or 2 persons, male or female to have own room

Fall semester 84 (summer sublet) Southwood apts 3rd floor pool tennis court on busline Norm 256-1031

Female nonsmokar to share 4 room N'ton apt 205/mth May-Aug pos through May 85 586-9938

Male roommate wantad to share 1 bedrm apt in Presidential $177.00 includes heat 546-9538

Two housemates wanted for summer in WYarmouth $800 each by May 26. Call Sue or Laura 546-9880

Female roommates wantad in Townehouse for fall semester and on call 548-4585

Female roommate wanted for Townehouse Apt. For more info call 549-5531

Cool female roommate wanted to share large room in Falmouth for summer cheap call Heather 546-6677

Colonial Villege one bedroom avail summer sublet, fall option call Sue or Katie 256-8676

Looking for male nonsmoker tov share a room in Brandywine call 549-7692

Looking for 2 roommates for apt in Brandywine call 546-5435

Male to share room in two bed room Puffton apt $108/mth call Marybeth 549-7724 keep trying

ROOMMATE WANTED IN BOSTON

Graduating female needed to share apt. in Boston/128 area Sue 256-0463

SERVICES

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

Free Film: "I Don't Have to Hide", Anorexia and Bulemia affects 25% of college aged women. CC 163-175, April 26, 7 PM spon Student Nurse Assoc

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurent - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Brittany $353.50 June, July, August call Tracy 256-0011 leave name and number

Fall option 2 bedrooms in 4 bedroom house on bus route 256-1337

Prime Amherst Center location, three bedrooms, spacious, renovated, 6-4984, fall option

Two bedroom Townhouse summr sublet fall option Squire Village rent negotiable 665-4793

Fall option large two bedroom apt in Sunderland bus rt WW carpeting AV dishwesher 325 month call eves 665-4504

Beautiful Apt. Amherst Center 2 bedrms reasonable $, Aug free! 549-7800

3 bedroom epartment in Amherst from 6-1 to 10-31. $500 all utilities included 256-0809

2 bedroom apt available in Presidential call 546-5558 or 546-5693

Puffton Village 3 bdrms 2 single 1 shared with female $100 as furnished

Mill Hollow Apt for summer with fall option. Apt 2 miles from campus on Puffers Pond 549-5051

Brendywine Apartment very cheap 2 bedroom, fully furnished swimming pool directly on bus route beginning June 1st call Seth 546-1466 Steve 546-9673

Room for rent Amherst Center with fell option 125 per month evenings call Abby 256-6969.

Brendywine, fully furnished, 2 bedroom airconditioned, pol, rent negotiable, 549-0124, anytime

Furnished 1 bedroom Puffton Village June 1 to August 31 call now 549-7864

Lge room in Amherst house 3 min to campus, bus, and town 135 neg call Laura 549-0081

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

For summer: 5 bedroom house on Main St. next to bus stop 256-6362 Sue

3 bedroom Puffton apt summer cable 2 bathrms call after 11 PM cheap 546-7267

Two bedroom apartment on scenic Puffer's Pond. Summer sublet with fall option. 549-6500

Colonial Vill 1 bedroom furnished summer possible fall option 256-0909 evenings

GOOD DEAL 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet. Available June 1st thru Sept. 1st. Call Marsha 549-1511 or Michele 546-4917

Two resp males for 2 bedroom aptin Pres 100+ each starting June 1 call late PM 549-0740

Summer sublet for couple or single 2 rooms, private entrence & bath, kitchen and laundry priviledges. 165/month Chris or John 256-8249

Own room in 2 bedroom apt on Main St Amherst females only 253-5552

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village availa June 1 - Sept 1 256-1301

One bedroom open in Southwoos apt call Jen or Sue between 4-6 256-6600

1 bedroom Colonial VIII near pool with fell option 253-5764

1 bedroom Southwood townhouse summer sublet with fall option available June 1 253-7031

Brighton Ms BU, BC area May 11 thru August call 617-782-6081

2 bdrm ¼ mile from campus AC cable bicy call Beth 545-0046

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 limited space, call today! 549-1671

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry end Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Looking for roommetes?? 2 females looking to share townhouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

Townhouse or Brandywine apt. wanted for fall will take in June call Jim 256-1072 eves $100 reward

WANTED TO RENT

Easy to live with fun loving looking to share apartment. Prefer near campus call eves, Lisa 546-5517

2-3 bedroom apt wanted North Amherst willing to take over June Mike 546-9387

Sublet wanted for summer, professional coupla, no children/pets, excellent references. 203-763-0323

Brandywine Southwood will takeover lease anytime $ reward call Tom 546-5930 or Bob 549-1685

2 bedroom epartment in Colonial Village call Karen 549-4684

Looking for a double room or apt in Puffton or Brandywine with summer sublet/fall option. Call Eric 546-5846 or Kurt 546-5858

Wented Puffton or Presidentiel Apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

3-4 bedroom apt in Amherst or vicinity will take in summer or fall 546-6172 or 546-6162

Sports

Gorillas fall; Crimson upset winners

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

This one hurts.

There are always those situations in sports when one team, a very, very good team at that, has risen from a slow seasonal start and played tremendously to send their season seemingly rocketing towards possible stardom. Then, in these situations, there is always that opponent, a good opponent, but one that should be beaten, who walks in and either scares you to death or causes you a lasting nightmare. For Massachusetts it was the nightmare.

The Crimson of Harvard were the initiators of that nightmare as they took the tempo away from beginning to end and made the Gorillas play their slowdown game while posting a 10-7 upset here at The Hill yesterday.

"You can't play mediocre and beat a good team — and Harvard is a good team."
— UMass head lacrosse Coach Dick Garber

Massachusetts was as sloppy as the wet weather and never seemed to get into their rhythm, save for brief moments. Constantly trying to come from behind, the Gorillas missed too many opportunities, while Harvard made good of their own deliberate style. The most glaring statistic read in the final shots chart. Massachusetts ripped off 48 chances while Harvard only took 28, but the Crimson still came away with the win.

"I don't know why we have a good quarter or a good stretch and then fall apart," sighed a dejected coach Dick Garber later. "The effort was there, the guys were trying their hardest, but we've got to make things count and we didn't."

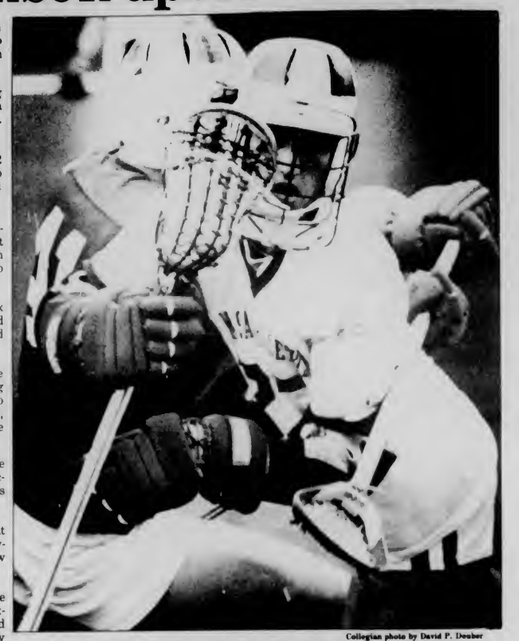
Harvard let the Gorillas know early that the game would be a battle, when they jumped out on top 2-0 in the first period. Massachusetts came back quickly though and a pair of nets from Greg Fisk and Tom Lukacovic tied up the score, only two minutes later, with 3½ minutes to play in the stanza.

Then before you could analyze the tying goal, Harvard unknotted the core with a Paul Garavente shot, only 31 seconds later. It gave the Crimson a 3-2 lead after one.

They stretched that advantage to 4-2 moments into the second frame when Rob Hawley beat goalie Gery Moreau 21 seconds after face-off.

From there, the Gorillas again had trouble before another spurt of good play got Massachusetts back into a tie. Stephen Moreland converted twice within two minutes for a 4-4 halftime deadlock.

The second half picked up with a Xerox of the first half, and when Harvard scored twice, Massachusetts again found themselves down a pair, 6-4.



Suddenly, the passing clicked for the Gorillas as Rich Messina hit a streaking Lukacovic, on the fastbreak for a set-up and score that was fit for framing. Then, Fisk slid down the left side and fired home a low liner to tie the affair again, at six.

This time it was the last hurrah for the Gorillas and the Crimson's sit and wait tactics built a 9-6 lead, one that the Gorillas couldn't overcome.

Later Garber reflected on the blow that had been dealt to the Gorilla's NCAA playoff chances and the team's top ranked New England ranking.

"This game was a very big game in those two steps," he said. "It takes away the luxury of only having to split with Army and Syracuse, and means we have to definitely beat New Hampshire and Dartmouth."

So now the Army marches in on The Hill Saturday. Yesterday didn't do anything to improve attitude for that game. The Gorillas are back to the disappointing loss of Brown two weeks ago. It is time to rise again. It is a must.

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

ALL WRAPPED UP — University of Massachusetts junior attackman Tom Lukacovic is engulfed by Harvard's Rob Graff during yesterday's action. The Minutemen fell to the Crimson, 10-7, amid cloudy skies and a muddy Boyden field.

Ray Leonard to visit S'pfld

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Sugar Ray Leonard will train and sign autographs Saturday at the Civi Center, where he scored victory in 1980 in his clir up the boxing ladder to l welterweight and jun middleweight titles.

Leonard plans to present plaques of appreciation to Mayor Richard Neal, sign autographs and train for an hour for his comeback fight May 11 against Kevin Howard at the Centrum in Worcester.

Leonard will give one of th plaques to the family of V Tallarita, who promo several of his fights ea his career.

"Ray was tr especially well Springfield, and he want show is appreciation promoter Dan Doyle sai Monday. "It was h idea...and to also pay trib to Vito, who was so he to Ray."

Leonard defeated veter contender Armando Muni at the Civic Center in 1980 Leonard will train there anc meet the public at noon Saturday.

Leonard returns to the ring after retiring two years ar after an operation fo detached retina.

Women's softball today

NEW HAMPSHIRE at MASSACHUSETTS
TIME — 2:30 p.m.
PLACE — NOPE field
RECORDS — UMass 21-7, UNH 3-9
PITCHERS — UMass, Lynn Stockley (11-5), Cathy Reed (11-2)
UNH, Terri Lavinge, Chris Gilligan

OUTLOOK — UMass is riding an 11 game winning streak coming into today's game which is the first of four doubleheaders for the Minutewomen in four days.

UMass has already faced New Hampshire at the Catamount Invitational two weeks ago and came away with a 17-1 win. Sally Maher had a grand-slam home run in that game and Tina Coffin went 4-for-5.

The Wildcats have been having their problems. They lost their last game to Maine 7-6. The squad, 4-11 a year ago, have collected their three wins with a sweep of Keene State and a split with Holy Cross.

UMass took two from Holy Cross, 7-0 and 12-1.

STAT WATCH — Four starters are batting over .300. Allyson Rioux (ss) leads the team at .395, Beth Talbott (c) .355, Sally Maher (1b) .333, Janet Miller (of) .309.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Tina Coffin...UMass co-captain.

There is speed on the basepaths, Coffin leads the team with 10 stolen bases (SB) while Rioux is 4-for-4. Emily Bietsch and Maher are a perfect 5-for-5.

— GERRY deSIMAS

Sports Log

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

Just a few thoughts...

The National Hockey League playoffs are into the conference finals, with the surprising Canadiens holding a one game lead over the mighty Islanders. The Habs have featured a tight-checking defense and incredible goaltending from rookie Steve Penney... Penney came into the playoffs with an 0-4 record in the regular season, but his playoff work has been far from regular. He has proceeded to shut out the Bruins, Nordiques, and Islanders so far. Just don't give him any krypton, and he'll be alright...Did you see the final game of the Montreal-Quebec series? Over 200 minutes in penalties, 10 players ejected, and one player with a broken nose--sounds like an SGA meeting.

Edmonton, meanwhile, has already taken care of Minnesota in game one, 7-1, and should do the same throughout the series. The real Stanley Cup is being played right now between the Canadiens-Islanders...I'm sorry, but the Campbell Conference just is second class to the Wales Conference. I'd like to see the NHL put Gretzky and Co. against the Patrick or Adams divisions 6 or 8 times a year. The results would be quite different...By the way, in case anyone is wondering, the "H" in the Canadien crest stands for "Hockey Club of Canada", not "Habitants" as L. and others, originally thought. Just brushing up for my next game of Trivial Pursuit.

The NBA has also featured some quite interesting series. The Celtics-Bullets brawl will never be found in Webster dictionary under the word "finesse." There was plenty of bad blood between the two, especially M.L. Carr and Ricky Sobers, who called Carr "a hack artist". Of course, Sobers isn't as pure as Ivory Soap, either. In fact, both made the centerfold for Macketti Illustrated...What was the icing on the cake was the Gerald Henderson-Frank Johnson fight at the end of the fourth game. I remember my psych textbook saying that aggression is a learned behavior. After this week, I have definitely learned how to be aggressive...The question is, will Captain Lou Albano manage the Celts next year.

This column was riding high when New Jersey jumped out to a 2 game to none lead over the 76ers, but Philly has fought back to tie. They, along with the Islanders, are proving that the best teams are the ones that pick themselves up when they are down...Bernard King, my choice for league MVP, has scored 128 points in 3 games against the Pistons, and the Knick forward is doing it with more than one dislocated finger. I wonder what he'd do on a broken leg?...The series in the West is just too boring to mention, so I won't.

With baseball underway in Fenway, the only real attraction is Mike Easler. The "Hit Man" has been swinging a hot bat, and showing a good glove at first base. He has the funniest swing, though. It's just too difficult to describe on paper...Dave Kingman is reborn, leading the American League in home runs. It seems that when everyone leaves the Mets, they do well. Well, the Mets will have the last laugh.

A couple of final notes: on Monday night, in a USFL game, a Michigan player, after scoring a touchdown, started the ritual of the High-fives. He gave one too many as one dislocated his shoulder. This one is sure to make every blooper show known to man...Finally, Bobby Knight isn't the only one holding Olympic trials. In fact, it's right here at UMass. Yes, the Olympic Hackysack trials are being held during Earth Awareness Week. So get out there and root for your favorite hacker, or sacker, or whatever they're called.

No more need be said.

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 61 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, April 27, 1984

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

WHERE "R" THE BIRDS? - A small sparrow who makes his residence in the "R" of Herter Hall's sign pokes out his head to sample a Spring morning's air.

Janitor given probation for dormitory arson notes

Overprescribed drug cited

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

A former University of Massachusetts janitor charged with writing graffiti on the walls of a UMass dormitory during the series of small fires on campus last semester, was put on probation for one year Wednesday.

At her sentencing in Northampton, Hampshire District Court Judge Richard Cannon ordered Karen Ann Damon, 21, of Hatfield placed on probation with her case suspended for one year with dismissal coming at that time if she gets into no further trouble with the law.

Assistant District Attorney Rosemary Tarantino said a state police report showed that about 30 graffiti notes appeared on the walls of toilet stalls and on toilet seats in various UMass dorms between Nov. 23 and Dec. 21, 1983.

At that same time a rash of small fires in trash barrels and on papers on bulletin boards created a crisis atmosphere at UMass.

The situation at Crampton Dormitory, an all-women's house in the Southwest Residential Area, was more intense with 16 such small fires occuring.

Tarantino said some of the notes in Crampton read, "Crampton die Sunday," "burning down the house," and "3 a.m. arson 12/19/83."

Damon's attorney, John Foley of Northampton, said the note-writing "was all brought about because someone prescribed too much Dilantin for this young lady (Damon)."

Foley also said the drug was prescribed for Damon's epilepsy, but in a dosage that caused "a toxic psychotic condition," according to a report by Dr. David Lippman, a psychiatrist who examined the defendant for the court.

Foley also charged in court that some students at UMass must have "observed and encouraged" Damon. "Some of these messages Karen is not capable of," Foley said.

The graffiti notes were among the evidence an FBI computer used to construct a psychological profile of the person setting the fires at UMass.

That same profile later became the prime factor in the arrest of a senior on December 2, 1983, who was charged with setting the fire in the room of a Crampton resident.

That charge was later dropped and the suspended student reinstated by Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey. The fires to this day remain unsolved.

BOG reaffirms opposition to pornographic magazine ban

By RALPH ROBERTS
Collegian Staff

After three and a half hours of heated debate, the Campus Center Board of Governors last night rejected a proposal to ban Playboy, Playgirl, and Penthouse magazines from the University Store.

Board members voted 18-8 against the motion after hearing presentations by Julie Melrose and Debra Murphy of the Ad hoc Committee on Campus Pornography, Professor Roger Libby of the Home Economics department, an authority on human sexuality, attorney William Newman, representing the American Civil Liberties Union, as well as comments from several students attending.

Melrose and Murphy began the meeting with a series of photos and cartoons from Playboy and Penthouse "depicting women as simply sexual objects without any personalities" or other characteristics, and other pictures portraying children as nymphomaniacs.

Questioned throughout the evening as to whether their proposal violated First Amendment rights of the constitution, Melrose said, "It is no crime to have a sense of right and wrong and to act in accord with it, especially in a world where the two are often dangerously confused."

Newman, objecting with the Ad hoc Committee's stand--but, he said, not some of their sentiments--said the group was "asking for a political quick fix," and not dealing with the heart of the problem.

"By taking something off the shelves, you don't change anybody's mind about anything," Newman said. "You just prevent them from seeing something you don't want them to see. It's worth the time and effort to try and change people's minds. You don't defeat an injustice with another injustice. You defeat it with a better idea. And good will prevail over junk."

Professor Libby, who also represented the side not to ban the magazines, said while these magazines may get tasteless and offensive at times, the constructive task would be to try to improve the quality of the magazines.

"Many of these people have sincere concerns that I agree with," Libby said. "But it can't be solved by a tunnel vision purity crusade.

"Censorship sets a dangerous precedent. Pornography is in the eyes of the beholder. Decisions can't be set on the idea that if you don't like something, it's obscenity, if you do like it, it's erotica."

Several feminists at the meeting argued the connection of these magazines to sexual violence to women, to which Libby said there was no solid evidence to prove the premise.

Melrose and Murphy said they would continue to educate the public in the connection of pornography and violence.

Duffey cites acedemic freedom to oppose "nuclear free zone"

By JOHN YONCE
Collegian Staff

Issues such as aca esearch freedom and public activism used during two hour of debate at lic hearing last night on whether ake Amherst a "nuclear-free zone."

The hearing, attended by approximately 100 people, was held at the Bangs Community Center by the Amherst Select Board at the request of a group called Citizens for a Nuclear-Free Amherst, which has put a proposal before Amherst Town Meeting to make the town a nuclear-free zone. The group is hoping the Select Board will endorse this proposal to ensure its passage at the Town Meeting this Monday.

University of Massachusetts Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, who was unable to attend the meeting, sent a spokesman who said Duffey questioned the action from an academic freedom standpoint.

This proposal "puts any academic institution in a dilemma," the spokesman read from a prepared statement attributed to Duffey, which did not specify what research would be affected at UMass. Although saying Duffey called the proposal "laudable," he said it "puts an unnecessary and unwarranted restraint on freedom to do research," and that it would "duplicate safeguards" already in effect at UMass.

"We want to do something in light of what's going on and do everything we can to prevent build-up and protect our health," said Francis Fortino, a member of the group. The measure calls for the town to ban "the production of nuclear weapons or components" by any "person, corporation, public or private educational facility, laboratory, institution, or other entity."

Proponents of the proposal expressed fear of "global genocide" and argued on the basis of morals, physical and mental health implications of nuclear war, and on the theory that money used for nuclear weapons could be put to better use elsewhere.

"The question is not a liberal or conservative issue," said Alan Ruth, who spoke from the audience. "If we have a catastrophe, there will be no issues to be conservative about."

UMass English professor Arnold Silver said "as much as I admire the ideals...(the proposal) flaunts the democratic policies of our country." He cited the Constitution of the United States, which calls for providing for the defense of our country.

The Select Board is expected to vote today on whether or not to endorse the proposal, first made March 12. It will be voted on at Amherst Town M , which starts Monday.

Inside:

Holocaust remembered p.3
Noontime politics today, music tomorrow p.3
Should pornography be on campus? p.5
Softball, lacrosse action tomorrow p.16

"It is not hard to understand Soviet support for the nuclear freeze."
—Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger

World and National News

Reagan seeks liberal China

PEKING (AP) - President Reagan lectured the Chinese nation today on the benefits of capitalism and encouraged its communist leaders to move forward with their tentative economic liberalization.

At the same time, he used his first speech here to sharply criticize the Soviet Union, saying "America and China both condemn military expansionism - the brutal occupation of Afghanistan and the crushing of Kampuchea Cambodia."

In remarks prepared for an afternoon speech and later scheduled for broadcast on Chinese national television - before a video audience that White House officials estimated could reach 200 million - Reagan said that it was the profit motive that spurred America's development.

Speaking in the Great Hall of the People to an audience of 500 to 600 Chinese business leaders and experts in U.S.-Sino relations, the president said:

"The societies that have made the most spectacular progress in the shortest period of time are not the most rigidly organized nor even the richest in natural resources. No, it is where people have been allowed to create, compete, and build, where they have been permitted to think for themselves, to make economic decisions, and benefit from their own wits, that society has become the most prosperous, progressive, dynamic, and free."

Dukakis offers Red Line ride

BOSTON (AP) - Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, amused by the suggestion that Massachusetts is a "communist" state, invited a top White House aide yesterday to join him for a ride on the Boston subway route known as "the Red Line."

The political tempest was touched off halfway around the globe while Air Force One carried President Reagan and his entourage to China. Reporters asked Chief of Staff James A. Baker 3d if he'd ever been to a communist country before.

"Well, I've been to Massachusetts," Baker joke, triggering a prompt tongue-in-cheek response from Dukakis.

In a "Dear Jim" letter sent to the White House, the governor wrote:

"Your recent comments rewriting the geo-political history of the fine Commonwealth of Massachusetts have amused many of us.

"Before a covert operation is undertaken to mine Boston Harbor, I would like to invite you to come to Boston and accompany me on a ride on the Red Line. Following that, we can visit the Digital Equipment Co. plant in Roxbury, where President Reagan visited a year ago and proclaimed he had seen the future and we are it.

AP Laserphoto

Former Weather Underground fugitive Kathy Boudin, shown in custody in 1981, pleaded guilty yesterday to murder and robbery in the 1981 Brinks armored car holdup in New York in which two police officers were killed.

Reagan for terrorist laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked Congress yesterday for sweeping authority to prosecute Americans who support or act in concert with groups that the secretary of state says engage in terrorism.

The bill is one of four proposals sent to Congress aimed, Reagan said, at countering international terrorism. The other bills would establish federal jurisdiction over hostage-taking, tighten laws against aircraft sabotage, and provide rewards of up to $500,000 for information on terrorism.

The legislative package follows Reagan's April 3 signing of the secret National Security Decision Directive 138, which permits pre-emptive strikes and reprisals against terrorists, administration officials said.

The most controversial portion of Reagan's legislative package is likely to be the proposal to imprison Americans for up to 10 years if they are convicted of supplying, training or acting "in concert with, the armed forces or any intelligence agency of any foreign government, faction, or international terrorist group" which is publicly designated a terrorist organization by the secretary of state.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul Basken
Copy Editor — Mary-Sheila Loughlin
Layout Technician — Steve Anderson
Photo Technician — Drew Ogier
Production Supervisor — Will Hopkins
Production — John Wielgus, Marsha Wilcon, Michele Phelan, Shelley Witkiewicz, Lynn Eisenberg, Jane Hirshberg, Mike Lennon, Leslie King, Conor Plunkett, Ellen Waxman, Jim Rice, Kim Foster

WHERE'S THE BEER?

Top-quality, two-color silk screen. Available in S-M-L XL, grey or white, muscle or T-shirt $8.95 postpaid. Please specify. Send check or M.O. to: SLAB O'BEEF, P.O. Box 112064, Carrollton, TX 75011-2064

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13 (whitewall blem)
$32.00
Includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobas Store
549-4704

East Side Concert

Saturday, April 28
12:00 am - 6 pm
Field South of Worcester D.C.

Bands:
Cool Runnings
Mitch Chakour
Girls Night Out
NRBQ

First Concert Sponsored by all 4 East Side Area Governments

Rain Location Bluewall

Sponsors: Undergrad SGA, Arts Council, East Side House Councils

No Bottles or Kegs Allowed.
No Beer Balls too!
No Parking Near Concert Area whether car is stickered or not!
No parking in lot 63 (sticker or no sticker)

BLUE WALL
18 + Welcome
A NEW SENSORY EXPERIENCE
Friday "1984"
DANCE!
SOUND!
LIGHTS!
NIGHTCLUBBING
Live D.J. from WMUA
Happy Hour Prices 91¢ Cover

Memorial service held in remembrance of Holocaust

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

The Holocaust left a "black hole in the story of the 20th century," Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey said at a memorial service yesterday afternoon at the University of Massachusetts.

"Selective amnesia is sometimes a merciful occurrence, sparing us the puzzled anguish of trying to explain what we would rather forget. But remember we must," Duffey told an emotional audience filling the Cape Cod lounge in the Student Union Building.

Many in the audience wept throughout the service as they listened to the chancellor's speech. Many also wore buttons bearing the yellow star of David on their denim jackets, knapsacks and shirt lapels.

Duffey said it does not dishonor the memory of the Holocaust to remember other events which have contributed a "cloud of witnesses to the human propensities for evil which hovers over this generation and this century."

The events he was speaking of were "the children of Mai Lai and Cambodia, the Armenian martyrs of 1915," and many of the other tragedies of past centuries.

"All of these are a part of the fellowship of haunted memory of human degradation and suffering, a wide fellowship, wide enough to encompass many races and religions," Duffey said.

"The Holocaust itself is not an exclusively Jewish event," he said.

He said a small percent of non-Jews were also murdered in concentration camps like Auschwitz and Dachau.

"No longer must Americans apologize for being different or for cherishing their own distinctive heritages and traditions," Duffey said.

He said ethnic self-awareness can be good in many respects but it can also in some ways be bad.

"I sense in some parts of our society today a resurgence of intolerance and insensitivity, rationalized by a resurgence of ethnic pride.

"We should remember that the Holocaust was the result of ethnic dogma, of cultural self-righteousness, of overweaning national pride. So that even as we rejoice in the rediscovery and recovery of roots, we should be wary of the dark side of this experience," Duffey said.

Six poems written during the Holocaust were read after Duffey's speech and a memorial candle was lit following each poem in memory of the six million Jews that were murdered in the Holocaust.

President of the Undergraduate Student Senate, Rick Patrick read the fourth poem by Pavel Friedman in memory of Hannah Sermesh, a Jewish resistor in Hungary who was shot to death while awaiting trial in a Nazi concentration camp.

Duffey said the prime lesson to be learned from the Holocaust is that the "course of history will never be made smooth. To believe it can be is an illusion. The propensities to betrayal are there in all of us and the struggle with and for humanity never gets less complex or easier."

Collegian photo by Larry Cahess

Both those old enough to have lived through it, and those young enough only to have been told of the tragedy, listen intently during Holocaust Memorial Day observances held yesterday in the Student Union Building.

Richardson to speak at noon at Student Union

Republican U.S. Senate hopeful Elliot Richardson is scheduled to address students at the University of Massachusetts today at noon on the steps of the Student Union Building. He is one of three Republican candidates in the race for the Massachusetts seat which will be vacated by Sen. Paul Tsongas in November. Richardson, who served as Attorney General under President Richard Nixon, is currently a lawyer in Washington. The event will be brought to you by the Republican Club, a student political organization new to the campus this semester.

NRBQ, Mitch Chakour play in outdoor concert

The first annual joint effort of the campus's east side area governments will take place tomorrow when four bands of various music genres will play in an outdoor concert.

Cool Runnings, a reggae band, Girls Night Out, a pop group, rock artist Mitch Chakour, and the local NRBQ, are scheduled to appear on the field south of Worcester Dining Commons beginning at noon. In case of rain, the event will be held in the Blue Wall, and student IDs will be checked at the door.

No kegs, coolers, or beer balls will be allowed at the concert, and no parking will be available in the concert zone.

Magician Michael Wald, the Amherst Popateers break dancers, and mime Marck Morrison will also entertain concert goers throughout the afternoon.

Childcare workers sue for full status

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

The Univeristy of Massachusetts' Childcare Employees Association, charging that despite a five-year-old court order the University has made no attempt to grant employment status to its workers, this week filed suit in Superior Court to force their compliance. "Right now, virtually all childcare employees who hold jobs that are not temporary, but permanent positions, work under 03 status, meaning that they are not official University employees and eligible for no employment benefits," said William Newman, lawyer for the Association, who filed suit Tuesday in Hampshire Superior Court.

"That court order said that the University must grant employment status to childcare workers in permanent positions and give them related employment benefits," Newman said.

However, Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson said, "We're working right now to determine the funding required and the number of employees who deserve employment status 02 from the University."

"Original estimates indicate that ten to thirteen employees are affected, and $60,000 to $75,000 will be needed to fund 02 status for them," Madson said.

Newman said he has received no official communication from the University.

Specifically, Newman said, the suit charges the University is in contempt of the court order because the University is filling permanent positions with particular duties with 03 staff status workers.

"We want the University to grant 02 status to these workers, and reimburse them for the loss of back benefits and additional pay," Newman said.

"We are committed to maintaining a high quality childcare program and treating those employees properly," Madson said. "And the Chancellor has provided the opportunity, via funding, to treat these people as they be."

"But we're still ironing out the specifics," Madson said.

"The University has had five years and done nothing," Newman said. "Now we hope the court will see our case and require the University to amend the situation."

Experiment causes small fire in lab

A fire was started on a table in Room 210 Goessman Laboratory by materials used in an experiement, University of Massachusetts police reported yesterday. The Amherst Fire Department and Environmental Health and Safety responded at 10:18 p.m., according to police. There was no damage caused and the material was removed, police said.

In other reports, police said a 1973 Pontiac Montego valued at $2,000 was stolen from Lot 22 near the Southwest Residential Area, sometime last Friday.

Police also said a car parked on President's Drive, in front of the Whitmore Administration Building, between 2 p.m. and 3:15 p.m. yesterday, was struck by an unknown car causing $500 in damage.

A ten-speed bicycle valued at $300 was stolen from a room on the 1st floor of Johnson Dormitory during the weekend, according to police. Upon returning from the weekend, the occupants discovered the bicycle was missing. There was no sign of forced entry into the room, police said.

A window on the east side of Hasbrouck Laboratory, valued at $500, was apparently "kicked in" Tuesday night, police said. An officer on routine patrol discovered the shattered seven-by-three foot window at 6:24 a.m. Wednesday, police said.

—TOM MIDDLETON

CLEAN SWEEP — Physical plant workers team up on dirt left on the stairs of the Fine Arts Center by the rains of the past few days.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

THE WOK

Rte. 9 Hadley, Ma.

Friday and Saturday
April 27 and 28
One of the area's fastest rising new bands!

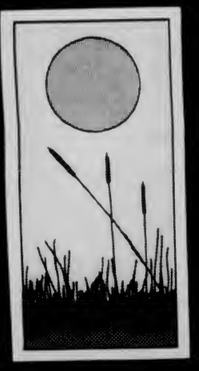
THE TRANSFORMERS!

featuring
Rico Spence
Kate O'Halleran
Joe Boyce
Bill Kloc

support life music!

Fri & Sat Open till 2 a.m. 586-1202 proper attire required
available for private parties

THE CHEQUERS' SPRINGTIME SPLURGE



PRIME RIB SPECIAL
— ONLY $8.95

This coupon entitles the lucky bearer and guests to a hearty 10 ounce portion of the Chequers' famous, tender, freshly roasted prime rib, hand carved to order- complete with fresh garden salad, choice of potato, fresh vegetable-of-the-day and French bread-all for a special $8.95. Offer available only with this coupon at The Chequers, University Drive, Amherst, now through April 30, 1984.* If you love juicy prime rib and savings, better rush to The Chequers.

Offer good Thursday through Sundays

Mastercard-Visa-American Express — UNIVERSITY DRIVE, AMHERST — Reservations 549-5861

SUMMER AT IONA

UNDERGRADUATE AND GRADUATE COURSES
COURSES IN ARTS, SCIENCE AND BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION INCLUDING: COMPUTER SCIENCE • LABORATORY SCIENCE • HEALTH CARE ADMINISTRATION • CONSTRUCTION FACILITIES MANAGEMENT • GERONTOLOGY • FAMILY COUNSELING • SOCIAL SCIENCES • HUMANITIES • FOREIGN LANGUAGES • MANY OTHER DISCIPLINES

SPECIAL PROGRAMS
SUMMER MINI SESSION • SPECIAL INTEREST WORKSHOPS/SEMINARS • SPECIAL INSTITUTES • SUMMER THEATRE FESTIVAL • COMPUTER DAY CAMPS • INDEPENDENT STUDY OPTIONS • CONTINUING EDUCATION

DAY, EVENING AND WEEKEND CLASSES
8 EVENING SESSIONS • 3 DAY SESSIONS

WESTCHESTER AND ROCKLAND CAMPUSES
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CALL THE DIRECTOR OF SPECIAL SESSIONS AT (914) 636-2100 EXT. 592 OR RETURN THE COUPON BELOW.

MAIL-IN REGISTRATION NOW BEING ACCEPTED

Return to:
IONA COLLEGE

☐ 715 North Ave.
New Rochelle
New York 10801
(914) 636-2100 ext. 592

☐ One Dutch Hill Rd.
Orangeburg
New York 10962
(914) 359-2252

Yes, I would like further information on the following programs:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

5.416

Should pornography be on campus?

University Store is targeted

Degradation, violence vs. censorship the issue

By MARY CRESSE
Collegian Staff

There are some who whisper that Undergraduate Student Senate meetings are more like horse trades than anything else: senators bargain and bicker, flinging "objections" and "yields" through the air like dung off a shovel.

But April 18th was different. The oral tiddlywinking subsided (though temporarily), giving way to a seriousness capable of the senate and demanding of the issue. In fact, it was more like a movie—a foreign, intense movie.

But the issue at hand wasn't foreign, and it did not disappear with the house lights. Depending on how one looked at it, approval from the Senate, which is the largest governing body on campus, to remove Playboy, Playgirl, and Penthouse from the University Store, was either a beginning or an end to a fight its creators had spent too long in pursuing.

Hustler was taken out of the store a few years ago, supposedly after pressure from activists. It has, in fact, been absent so long the current manager doesn't remember it. But the others remain, their presence inciting a recent controversy which could potentially rival 1981's co-ed bathroom problem, or the fires which plagued the campus last semester.

The Ad Hoc committee that initiated the actions to remove the pornography claimed there is a correlation between pornography and violence against women, and that the campus community should set their own standards regarding their sales, and that those magazines constitute pornography. Some say if the proper pressure is put in the proper places, the magazines could be out of the University Store by autumn. But the bookstore is wary of removal; manager Win Cummings has said he'll consider removal only if a referendum shows that more than 90 percent of the students favor the removal.

To some feminist and student activists, their removal would be a victory. It would be a celebration, they say, of the right, not the privilege, of women to live and love in a society free from the seemingly ubiquitous display of material degrading to women.

To others, including women, restriction of these magazines' sale would be in direct conflict with the rights accorded every citizen by the Consititution in the First Amendment: "Congress shall make no law...prohibiting (or) abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press...or the right of the people...to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Some women don't want the magazines out. Some men do. Called into play are the definitions of censorship, and the exact boundaries of student and administrative powers. Who, finally, has the say? And why?

The subject first came up at the Board of Governors (BOG) meeting the Thursday before the Senate meeting. The board, whose basic purpose is to work with the administration—"kind of keep a check on them," says treasurer Jerry Quill—has an input (at least verbally) concerning the operation of the Campus Center facilities (where the University Store is located.) A resolution from the board calling for removal might mean a greater chance of having it happen; BOG decisions had an impact on other Campus Center changes. But the motion was defeated on a 9-9-1 tie.

The activists then went to the Senate. For help? Maybe. More likely, they realized that the Senate, though having very little administrative power in the actual removal of the magazines, is, as Speaker Chris Sullivan likes to point out, one of the best ways to gauge student interests and opinions.

What everyone was wondering was whether a positive vote from the Senate could affect the decision of the decision-makers: the administration.

The initial idea to remove the magazines sparked last fall when members of the local feminist community were addressing the issue of "A Woman's Image" and the subject of pornography came up. Relating pornography to a woman's self-image and violence against women was nothing new; similar ideas are discussed in such books as Andrea Dworkin's Men Possessing Women, or Take Back the Night: Selections on Pornography.

SCERA, after all, stands for "Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy," and that's what the coalition of groups (consisting of members outside and inside the University community) were trying to do. They were educating the community to possible correlations between violence and pornography. They showed "Not a Love Story," a film depicting the relationship between the two. All worked equally diligently and tried to educate themselves better so they could educate others.

Community networking eventually shaped the plans for tomorrow's conference: "Breaking the Connection Between Sex and Violence: The Case Against Pornography," (see related story) and the introduction of the proposal favoring the removal of the magazines at the Senate's April 18th meeting.

The Senate passed a motion requesting an end to the sale of materials "pictorially representing sexual behavior and attitudes" that "demean" and "degrade" women. The Board of Governors, the Senate resolved, should review the matter again.

One of the Ad Hoc committee's most vocal opponents is professor Roger Libby, an outspoken and internationally known sexologist and member of the Board of Editors of Forum magazine, a publication of the Penthouse corporation.

"Women," says Roger Libby. "I love 'em. I love talkin' to 'em, I love 'em as people...Look," the Home Economics assistant professor says, "I don't deny there may be a correlation between violence and women and pornography. There very well may be. But there's no proof of it, don't you see."

Libby also brings up the issue of "redeeming social value," the vague classification the Supreme Court has said is one of three measures that determine what is and is not obscene, the other two being prevailing community standards and if the material appears to a "prurient" interest.

But, he says, there is no reason to remove the magazines "just because a bunch of people are prudes about sex. I don't know whether it's because we're in New England or what, but what people don't see is that Playboy is a redeemable magazine. Sure, the pictures are boring, and the text is mostly bland--but hey, you've had people like Updike publish in it, so it does have some text value. So does Forum. Forum informs people about the sexual health risks or whatever accompanying certain types of sexual activity. It helps people."

Libby is currently considering legal action against the university because of what he claims are biases against views he advocates in his courses addressing "alternative" sexuality. Pro-removal supporters say Libby is making either a grand exit or a final attempt to redeem himself with university officials who have denied him tenure; he is also viewed as using the issue for his own gains, or to publicize his books, among them Sexual Choices, a past winner of a national book award.

Libby responds: "What I do now doesn't matter. I have one year left. That should prove that my intentions are sincere; I've received a certified letter, that's proof enough."

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, who would not comment on Libby's case, has, however, raised some legal and ethical questions about the issue in general.

"Any effort to ban is always a tricky and sensitive thing for an open society," he said. "...the determination of what's pornographic varies, I'm sure, from one part of the community to another...Even if a majority doesn't want them (the magazines), you still protect a minority's right to those ideas. I think we should wait and see what the popular will of the community is.

To say diverse personalities and politics affects the issue would be obvious; to ascertain the amount would be impossible, to suggest any of it would be libelous. To ignore it would be stupid.

"We're not against people putting out the magazines," S.E. Chase says. "We're just fighting for what we believe in, and we know there are obstacles along the way we'll have to work on more than one time to get any feedback. And feedback isn't always positive." She motioned to the SCERA office. "And that's why I'm here."

Former stripper to speak at conference

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

A former stripper who worked in Boston's Combat Zone for four years will be one of the keynote speakers at a conference on pornography tomorrow at the University of Massachusetts.

Titled, "Breaking the Connection Between Sex and Violence: the case against pornography," the conference is being held to "bring a national perspective to what has become one of the most debated issues on campus" according to conference planning committee member Tildy Turchinetz.

Among the participants in the conference is Lauri Lewin, a former stripper who now works for a reproductive rights group in Boston.

The conference is "an opportunity for people who have been debating to ask questions, learn, hear national perspectives, and sort through their feelings in small group discussions. "All members of the community are welcome to attend," Turchinetz said.

Schedule for Saturday's Pornography Conference:

All events will be held in the Campus Center Auditorium with the exception of the workshops.

9 - 10 a.m. - Guest speakers Lauri Lewin, author of Naked is the Best Disguise; Stripping for a Living, and Kathy Alexander and Denise Yanni who will talk about "A New Imaging of Women."

Workshops from 10:30 a.m. until noon.

—Women Breaking the Connection, a discussion group for women in CC 162.

—Men and Pornography - The Political is Personal, a discussion led by Men Against Violence Against Women in CC 175.

—Pornography and Changing Men, a workshop with John Stoltenberg in CC 165.

—Images of Women in the Media, a workshop with Nina Martin and S.E. Chase in CC 169.

—Women Against Pornography, a slide show and discussion in CC 174.

—Noon to 1:30 - Guest Speakers in the CC Auditorium include Julie Melrose, who will discuss "Freedom of Speech; A Selective Concern," and Sharon Sales Belton who will discuss "Minneapolis and the Effort to Regulate Pornography."

2:30 - 4:30 p.m. - Guest Speakers: Kathleen Barry will discuss "Pornography: The Ideology of Cultural Sadism," and John Stoltenberg will discuss "Pornography and Male Supremacy."

The film Not a Love Story will be featured from 7:30 to 11 p.m. in the CC Auditorium.

Groups complain about Big Dan jury selection

When you're in a tight spot, good friends will help you out.

When you pulled in two hours ago, you didn't have this problem. And with a party just starting, the last thing you wanted to do was wait around another two hours.

Neither did the rest of the guys. So when they offered to give you a lift, that's exactly what they did, proving not only that they were in good shape, but that they were good friends.

So show them what appreciation is all about. Tonight, let it be Löwenbräu.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

© 1983 Beer Brewed in U.S.A. by Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, WI

Earn Academic Credit while gaining experience in marketing, public relations, counseling, and student affairs administration. Become an intern in the University's Undergraduate Admissions Office. Interviews begin April 30 Contact the Office of Internships

Now's the time to call

North Amherst Motors

Expert repairs & reconditioning

Rt. 63, No Amherst

549-2880

amc THEATRES

$2.00 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW

MT. FARMS 4 584-0153

ROBIN WILLIAMS
MOSCOW ON THE HUDSON

What an Institution!
POLICE ACADEMY

An adult nightmare
Stephen King's CHILDREN OF THE CORN

GOLDIE HAWN KURT RUSSELL
SWING SHIFT

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550

RICK SPRINGFIELD
HARD TO HOLD

From the first laugh, you'll be hooked!
Splash

GREYSTOKE
THE LEGEND OF TARZAN

For a fabulous treasure, they share an adventure no one could share...
Romancing The STONE

THE CURRENT SHOWS

FRI & SAT MIDNITE SEATS $3.50

ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW — TRASH

PINK FLOYD THE WALL — THE THING

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE

Friday Afternoon

Attitude Readjustment Period

Chew and Screw food served at 5:30 PM

all you can carry $1.00

Spring Clothing

Skirts • Blouses • Shawls
India Print T-Shirts

SPECIAL
Cosmic Zoo T-Shirts NOW $8.00

EARRINGS - EARCUFFS

THE MERCANTILE

Open Daily 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Amherst Carriage Shops
18 Center St., Northampton

Black Affairs

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

Dr. Mildred Jefferson speaking to a UMass audience Monday on the roles of women and minorities in the Republican party. Jefferson, a candidate for the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., spoke on why the Republican party best represents minorities.

B.A. celebrates anniversary

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

The Black Affairs Department of the Collegian, which was conceived out of a need to have fair and accurate representation of coverage of news pertaining to the Third World community is celebrating its tenth anniversary this month.

The department was developed after the Collegian printed a cartoon depicting former University Chancellor Rudolph Bromery as a "negro who chewed gum and could not fight at the same time."

Subsequently, members of the Third World community demanded an apology and failure to do so resulted in a student sit-in. The Collegian board of editors then made a motion, which passed unanimously, to appoint a black affairs editor, with a post created on April 16, 1974.

Rudy Jones, Assistant Director of Admissions, was appointed as Black Affairs' first editor. Jones, who said then that his major at the University was "struggle", added this struggle "will entail the entire horizon of human existence or man's quest to exist, to survive."

"(Black Affairs was developed) to furnish black and Third World students with a fair account of news and information that addresses their interest (and) to correct falsehoods and biased depictions of Third World (members) that the students' newspaper would print," said Sherwood Thompson, Black Affairs' second editor and now Director of the Office of Third World Affairs.

Nummo News, which grew out of the struggle Jones referred to.

The post was also created to give students majoring in communication studies and journalism an opportunity to "contribute to the editorial leadership of the Collegian through presenting educational commentaries for the purpose of inspiring other Third World students and informing the general readership of the newspaper," Thompson said.

Thompson said the magnitude of the department has been absolutely profound. "For the past ten years Black Affairs has added that important unique ingredient most often neglected from the campus newspaper, that being the vital news and information about and for people interested in the life and struggles of the Third World people," he said.

The existence of Black Affairs is historically relevant, he said. "Black Affairs is the only component of the student newspaper that functions as a watchdog for social justice and equality," he said.

Love workshop follow-up to be held Saturday

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

A follow up workshop on the power of black love will be conducted Saturday at the University of Massachusetts to explore the establishment and maintanence of love relationships between black men and women. These issues were uncovered in the first experimental workshop because of lack of time, said co-facilitator Jacquelyn Smith-Crooks, coordinator of the Third World Women's Program at the Every Woman's Center.

Smith Crooks said the first workshop was aimed at identifying ways in which love is learned and how it is demonstrated. Demonstrating love, she said, is the solid basis of maintaining relationships.

She said the large caucuses will be used again as a technique for conducting the workshop because it was useful in bringing black men and women together in large discussions.

David Hooker, departmental assistant at John Quincy Adams in the Southwest Residential area, said the turnout and response to the workshop was "excellent" and added he was "happy" by the results. He said most participants were enthusiastic. "You could see and feel that the workshop generated such power, warmth, and love," Smith Crooks said.

The workshop was a "spiritful event that left me personally high," she said. She added it was an indescribable experience an "oasis."

Hooker said the workshop allowed him to further explore the issues covered and hear different perspectives as well as to find support from other black men and women.

Smith Crooks said she hopes to move in a direction that makes the workshop more helpful, not only on an intellectual level, but also on a level in which dialogue between black men and women can be established.

"(Communication) is the category for uncovering other things, it is the source of strength and power needed to survive," Smith Crooks said.

Smith Crooks said participants suggested similar workshops on black relationships as well as workshops about black women looking at themselves in a relationship, communication between black men and women, stereotyping, premarital relationships, politics and black male and females as related to black love, socialization and parenting. Ultimately, she said these workshops will be held.

Insensitivity related to society?

Repeated demonstrations by the Collegian editors of its lack of sensitivity to Afro-American concerns and realities can only be understood in a societal context. Hopefully this understanding will better equp us all to fulfill our responsibilities in the building of a truly democratic, truly harmonious nation.

David G. Dubois

We have neither today; nor have we had since this nation's beginnings. What we have had and still have is a conglomerate of peoples, mainly of European origin, held together in a loose mix essentially by a common ignorance, a common fear, a common resentment and a common isolation of Black Americans.

Despite continuous, heroic, and sacrificial efforts by Black Americans to compel this nation to realize its earliest, revolutionary dreams of equality, freedom, and prosperity for all its citizens, Black Americans have through it all been portrayed as the threat. While only one part of the human whole of the mix that is Americans, Black Americans have consistently given disproportionately of their muscle, their intellect, their blood, and their lives to realize the American dream, knowing that the dream can only be realized for the whole--for all Americans--not just for them alone. It is the failure to grasp this truth in the Black struggle in America that feeds the ignorance, the resentment, the fear, and solidifies the isolation.

Martin Luther King's message was about a dream he had for all Americans; not just for Black Americans. His impact on Black Americans as well as the violent reaction across the nation to his assasination was a clarion call of agreement.

Far too few Americans see their fate, their dreams intimately and inextricably linked to the fate and the dreams of Black Americans, because powerful forces in America conceal, becloud, and distort this reality for reasons of greed and the determination to maintain and extend their power. Is it any wonder then, the insensitivity? Is it any wonder also that knowing this reality in their bones some Black Americans reach points of absolute desperation?

If the democratic and harmonious society we all aspire to is to be realized and to flourish, participation in the effort (struggle) to achieve it is required. Not participation in the activity of those who are corrupting and destroying it.

David G. Dubois is a Journalism and Afro Am Studies Visiting Lecturer.

Jackson: blacks and Jewish relations

Editor's note: The following is an excerpt from "A Call to Community," a speech delivered by Rev. Jesse Jackson on Sunday March 4, 1984 sponsored by B'Nai B'rith/Framingham. It will help understand Rev. Jackson's stance on the anti-Semitism issue magnified by the media.

The rainbow is the symbol of our campaign. We need to remember that just as the first rainbow came after a great flood, so rainbows always follow stormclouds, thunder and lightning. So the rainbow we seek is the bringing together of many groups...who discover that the things that unite them are more important than what divides. It is in this spirit that I stand here today. The rainbow is a combination of rain and sunshine, pain and pleasure, but they mix for such astounding beauty and lay the predicate for the pot of gold at the end of the journey. The Jewish community is right to ask that we understand their concerns, particularly the survival of the state of Israel, which we whole-heartedly support, and the continued existence of anti-Semitism or racism anywhere in the world which we condemn. Anti-Semitism has been a force in the world for thousands of years, and it is still very much present in the non-Jewish community. We know that many of us have much to understand in this area. Racism and anti-semitism are boll weevils that threaten the crop of justice and leaves our communities in anguish and fear suspended without security.

Both of our peoples have known centuries of great sorrow; whether on the slave ships and plantations which condemned millions of Africans to death and unspeakable horror or the death camps of Hitler in which perished six million and the civilization or eastern European Jewry.

We have the arduous and exhausting task of creating a rainbow coalition where all are welcomed, wanted and needed. American life is not a blanket of one piece of unbroken cloth of one color and texture but a quilt made up of many pieces, colors, textures bound by a common thread...we all fit together ultimately.

We must also, however unfortunately, come to terms with the fact that there are estranged, extremist elements on the loose that are prone to statements of hatred and threats of violence. It is one of the immediate tasks before us to stand together unequivocally against this threat to the democratic process.

Anti-Semitism and racism are two of the greatest scourges of the human race and they need to be condemned no matter from where they come. This time in history requires straight-forward dialogue with utterances from our hearts and lips reflecting mutual respect and admiration.

AMHERST CINEMA

DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50

Friday and Saturday

A Bogie and Bacall Double Bill
The Big Sleep 7:00
To Have and Have Not 9:00

Sunday - Tuesday

Star 80 7:10
Frances 9:00

DOWNTOWN AMHERST

Big businesses monopolize blood

By MARILYN BOU
Collegian Correspondent

A Latin American doctor speaking last night at the University of Massachusetts said seven companies housed in the United States hold a monopoly of blood banks, controlling 85 percent of the blood market of the world.

Antonio Pesci-Bourel lectured on clean, safe blood for Latin America alternating with the showing of the film "Until the Last Drop."

Pesci-Bourel said three million liters of blood are collected yearly from Latin American countries, mainly from Brazil, Mexico, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Columbia, Guatemala, Argentina and Haiti. These peoples on the whole are plagued with diseases and infections, hepatitis being one of the leaders. Alcoholics are also a large donor population, he said. "Many of those who donate do so while intoxicated," he said.

Pesci-Bourel said these people sell their blood to big businesses for two to three dollars a point, who in turn sell it for approximately ten dollars a pint. "Donors sell their blood to literally feed themselves and their families," he said.

Pesci-Bourel and the movie showed that a pint of blood is first taken from the donor then passed through a centrifuge, where the plasma is separated from the red blood cells. The red blood cells are then reinjected into the donor. After this is done, he/she is then capable of donating yet another pint more.

13th Annual Spring Sale

20% Savings
Spring Shoes by Bandolino, 9 West
Mia, Capezio,
Sporto, Jazz, Bellini
and more

THURSDAY through SUNDAY
April 26th through 29th

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst
OPEN
SUNDAY

CAR STEREOS • ALARMS
SUNROOFS
Sales and Installation
Call us BEFORE you buy.
SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main St., Amherst 253-9341

Amherst Flics presents:
Cartoons and Shorts Festival
$1.50 Shows 8 PM & 10 PM
Fri. Sat. Sun.
Amherst College, Merrill 1

PERSONALIZED
STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with
Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by
Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

The Most Sophisticated
Training Ground
For Nuclear Engineering
Isn't On The Ground.

It's on a Navy ship.

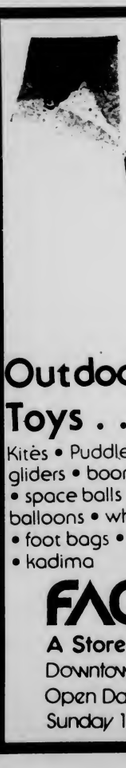
The Navy has more than 1,900 reactor-years of nuclear power experience—more than anyone else in America. The Navy has the most sophisticated nuclear equipment in the world. And the Navy operates over half of the nuclear reactors in America.

With a nuclear program like that, you know the Navy also offers the most comprehensive and sophisticated nuclear training.

Every officer in the Nuclear Navy completes a full year of graduate level technical training. Outside the Navy, this kind of program would cost you thousands. In the Navy, you're paid while you learn.

Then, as a nuclear-trained officer, you supervise highly trained personnel in the operation of the most advanced nuclear propulsion plants ever developed. You get a level of technical and management experience unequalled anywhere else.

You get important responsibilities and you get them fast. Because in the Navy, as your knowledge grows, so do your responsibilities.



Today's Nuclear Navy is one of the most challenging and rewarding career choices a man can make. And that choice can pay off while you're still in school. Qualified juniors and seniors earn approximately $1,000 per month while they finish school.

As a nuclear-trained officer, after 4 years with regular promotions and pay increases, you can be earning as much as $40,500. That's on top of a full benefits package that includes medical and dental care, and 30 days' vacation earned each year.

As a nuclear-trained officer, you also earn a place among this nation's most qualified and respected professionals. So, if you're majoring in math, engineering or the physical sciences, send in the coupon. Find out more about the most sophisticated training ground for nuclear engineering. Today's Nuclear Navy.

NAVY OPPORTUNITY INFORMATION CENTER W 345
P.O. Box 5000, Clifton, NJ 07015
☐ Please send me more information about becoming an officer in the Nuclear Navy. (ØN)
Name _____ (First) (Please Print) (Last)
Address _____ Apt. #
City _____
State _____ Zip _____
†College/University _____
Age _____ ‡Year in College _____ •GPA _____
▲Major/Minor _____
Phone Number _____ (Area Code) Best Time to Call
This is for general recruitment information. You do not have to furnish any of the information requested. Of course, the more we know, the more we can help to determine the kinds of Navy positions for which you qualify.

Navy Officers
Get Responsibility Fast.

Outdoor Toys . . .
Kites • Puddle Jumpers
gliders • boomerangs
• space balls • whistle
balloons • whiffle balls
• foot bags • jump ropes
• kadima
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst ·
Open Daily 10-6,
Sunday 12-5

EDITORIAL/OPINION

TWO WESTERNERS (CORRECT SCALE)

An anger turned to hope

To the Editor,

On Tuesday evening, the Trident submarine replica placed so strategically in the University pond was destroyed anonymously. Although at first we were confused and even angered by this we are now beginning to wonder if it is not congratulations, instead of accusations, that are in order.

The submarine floating in the pond was part of the University observance of Earth Day, deployed there to illustrate the responsibility and vulnerability that all of us on earth—and even in Massachusetts—must admit in the face of the nuclear arms race. Frances Crowe, one of the eight women of faith who was convicted and jailed in Rhode Island for painting the injunction "Thou Shalt Not Kill" on Trident II D-5 missile tubes there, was to repeat her action here at UMass this afternoon, and bring that same message to our replica submarine.

Clearly, some people here at the University were so threatened by the presence of the submarine that they felt compelled to destroy it even before Frances could paint the urgent commandment. We wonder if they have found enough courage in the act to carry their disarmament further, to travel to Groton, Connecticut, in fact, and destroy the Tridents down there.

Speaking as both the artist who created and deployed the University submarine, and as a woman of faith who acted with Frances Crowe at Electric Boat in Rhode Island, we know the depth of empowerment and the clarity of vision that is born of direct action. We know that nuclear weapons are an affront to the sacredness of life. We know the strength and hope that comes from acting to save life on earth.

So we are eager to meet these activists who so successfully disarmed the University submarine this week. We are eager to know if she or he will be led by conscience to withhold income tax from a government which spends far more on weapons than on human beings. We are eager to know what more they will do to help create a just and safe and peaceful world. We are eager to know who they are, and how we can w[illegible]her with them to make every day [illegible] Day and a celebration of life.

Tom Kellner
Victoria Safford
Amherst

Censorship is not the issue

To the Editor,

As members of the Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography, we understand that there is some concern about our stance on free speech. We are writing to clarify our views. We agree completely that there should be no curtailment on the First Amendment, which is why we are not advocating censorship. After all, it is our fight of free expression that enabled us to form this Committee in the first place and to express our views on pornography.

In all our recent activities on campus, we have made it clear that what we are advocating is not censorship but rather an examination of the woman-hating content inherent in pornography and its effect on our lives. We acknowledge that violence against women would exist with or without pornography, but our argument is that pornography legitimizes the violence and contributes toward it. The January 1984 issue of Psychology Today reported the results of a study that indicated that men who are exposed, even briefly, to scenes of rape and violent pornography displayed an increased acceptance of rape myths, a willingness to commit rape, and aggressive behavior toward women. Other studies have shown that as sexualized violent images of women become more mainstream, we become desensitized to the dangerous message this material conveys, just as we have become desensitized to real scenes of war on the TV news.

The Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography is working toward sensitizing people to the destructive, dehumanizing images of women in pornography. Through this effort, we have found that many members of the UMass community do not wish to see pornography on campus and would prefer that those who need it purchase it elsewhere.

As a community, UMass has demonstrated a committment to social awareness by establishing programs and policies to address issues surrounding various forms of discrimination. Through our right of free speech guaranteed by the First Amendment, our Committee celebrated this commitment and offers yet another issue that needs to be addressed.

Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography

Are we really learning?

To the Editor,

I am concerned about the recent denial of tenure to UMass professor Dr. Roger Libby. Given that the University cannot provide concrete reason for their action I am led to assume the worst.

Universities have been used as a tool of the dominant culture of our society for quite some time. When America "needs" more scientists and engi[illegible]o fuel an arms race, universities everywhere obligingly pour money into those departments at the expense of the Liberal Arts. In like fashion, the University turns out large numbers of cardboard cutout clones to fuel the managerial segments of our society with trained conformists. In short, the process of education is central to the duration of a homogenized society of "right-thinking" people.

The denial of tenure to Libby is one more example of the guardians of the dominant culture's manipulation of the public psyche.

In denying Dr. Libby's tenure, the University denies the validity of his internationally known research and study in non-traditional areas of sexuality. We are only to be taught the virtues of the nuclear family, that time honored building block of the capitalist system.

Students at UMass should examine closely and question the education they are receiving. Ask yourself, "Am I learning what I need to learn, or am I learning what they want me to think?"

Timothy L. Harris

Four week warning

Today is four week warning. It is now four weeks before the class of 1984 will be set loose on an unsuspecting public. This article is, of course, aimed at those graduating, but perhaps it will also serve as a grim reminder to the other classes that time is passing swiftly.

Andy Gordon

Ask any alumnus what they remember about college and they will say the last month. I asked a handful of grads and this was the surprisingly unanimous response. This is not to discount our other memories of college. Freshman year in Van Meter was the best of my life and I'm very afraid of letting it fade. I lost my mind and a few other important things. But the testimony remains that the month of May is what we will take with us the longest. What does this mean? It means we must not waste this short period of our college careers. The time must be utilized to maximum potential. My suggestion: heavy drink and debauchery.

In the rest of our lives we will probably never be in the situation we are today. Surrounded by cool people in a massive community of people our own age. Not yet in the positions of reponsibility we will be in, say, a year or two. Older people look back at their college years as the best in their lives. I'm sure we will too, and I'm already concerned about the feelings I will have when I do look back. Loose ends must be cleared up, emotions vocalized, desires consummated; because regret lingers in your gut longer than those old chicken pucks from sophomore year.

Beyond working just hard enought to cop that degree, the time is now to go wild. I doubt I'm twisting any arms when I say this, and to the inevitable gueeb who will write in to lambast this advocation of intoxication, I say "your loss." We've worked hard for three and three quarter years, it's time to celebrate.

Keep in mind that the final act of a play often defines our feelings for the play as a whole. So this short period of joyous abandon is for us more a need than a want; and will help preserve our pre-graduation horror sanity. We're all excited about getting out of here; but it's an excitement mixed with anxiety. Amherst has made itself a true home for many of us, and leaving it will be no easy chore. We've had the ice cream, now let's go for the jimmies (my ability to make stupid analogies never ceases to amaze me). Underclassmen can also do their part. They can say, "Hi senior, may I offer you a beer" or "Hello senior, may I offer you some sexual favors?"

In any case, we're in the home stretch, let's make it a good one.

Andy Gordon is a Collegian staff member.

To be rich and famous

When we're asked what we want after graduation, some students at the University of Massachusetts say that we'd like to be rich and famous. Then we chuckle.

Michele Dolan

Today we may not chuckle. Today is not a happy day. Some of us may be saddened by the death of someone we didn't know, but whose situation we can sympathize with, that of David Kennedy.

I am saddened by David's death not because he was a Kennedy, or because he was young and good-looking. It is because he was so greatly affected by the things he was expected to be because of his name.

One wonders if the Kennedys perpetuate their own grief.

David was said to be the one, unkempt, who hung in the background of group pictures. Perhaps that is a media creation of an innocent boy. But the realization that he was only 12 years old when he saw his father being shot to death on television allows one to understand the devastation to a child's sensitivity. Youth is innocent.

Although the cause of death is not known, David's history of drug problems leads one to believe it may have been drug-related. Senator Teddy Kennedy's statement seems to confirm that allegation. Kennedy said, "This is a very difficult time for all the members of our family, including David's mother, Ethel, and his brothers and sisters, who tried so hard to help him in recent years."

David was very affected by his family reputation. He told a "Sacramento Bee" reporter in an interview in 1982, "I don't want to sound like an ass. I don't want to embarrass my family anymore."

It is easy to become angry about David's death. It seemed that the drug problems and the death weren't fair. I can't help but think of something Massachusetts governor Mike Dukakis said, "Much has been given to me, much is expected of me." Perhaps all that was given to David was a lot of pain.

Michele Dolan is a Collegian columnist.

Cartoon is questioned

To the Editor,

I would like to know where the Editor-in-Chief of the Collegian along with the managing editor and also the editor of the editorial/opinion page have acquired their ethics. They have repeatedly felt justified in printing cartoons that are RACIST! As a Collegian correspondent and also a student of this University I am, needless to say, outraged. They have insulted my intelligence and my people by thinking they have not offended us. I would like to see nothing less than a front page apology directed to the third world and minority community. If they continue to feel justified in insulting a particular community on this campus, then I would like to see them not print at all. It is an insult to the entire campus community to be exposed to trash. At the beginning of this semester, racist cartoon number one was printed. The result of this was that the Editor of the Black Affairs page felt the need to write an editorial to somehow raise the conscience of the community. She was subsequently suspended for her actions because she did not go through the correct "procedures," meaning she did not show it to her supervisors so that they could discuss her editorial. At that time I called for the suspension of Josh Meyer, who is editor of the editorial/opinion page. This did not occur because the Editor-in-Chief, Joel Myerson, did not feel that the cartoon was injurious to the Collegian as stated in the constitution of the Collegian. This was also the base of reasoning used to suspend Yadira Betances, the Black Affairs Editor. The result of the confrontation after the first cartoon was that Betances would be consulted when controversial cartoons and storied concerning the third world community were presented to the Collegian. The question I now ask however is what good is a consultation when it she does not something offensive such as the cartoon printed on Wednesday and her advice is disregarded.

The Black Affairs page is currently celebrating its 10 year anniversary. The page itself was started because of a cartoon that the minority and third world community considered offensive and racist. How many times are we as a community to be subjected to this behavior?

Marilyn Bou
Amherst

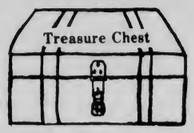
KICK OFF LOUNGE

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

Coming this weekend. . .

Saturday Happy Hour featuring "Just George", 4:00 - ?

(from the Boston & Cape Cod circuit)



— All you can eat Chicken Wings! —

AT JUSTIN RYAN'S

UMass/Coca-Cola

TREASURE HUNT

Look for Treasure Hunt Keys on selected soft drink cans in Coca-Cola vending machines located on UMass Campus.

Bring your key to Collegian office during regular business hours and open the Treasure Hunt treasure chest. You can win great prizes like

Coke Director's Chairs
Radios - SONY Walkmans
Painters Hats - TV's and much more

Play UMass/Coca-Cola's Treasure Hunt Today!

Coke

From the author of CARRIE, THE SHINING, THE DEAD ZONE, and CHRISTINE...

An adult nightmare.

Stephen King's
CHILDREN OF THE CORN
And a child shall lead them...

STEPHEN KING'S "CHILDREN OF THE CORN"
Starring PETER HORTON LINDA HAMILTON
Screenplay by GEORGE GOLDSMITH
Based upon the story by STEPHEN KING Music by JONATHAN ELIAS
Executive Producers EARL GLICK CHARLES J. WEBER
Produced by DONALD P. BORCHERS and TERRENCE KIRBY
Directed by FRITZ KIERSCH NEW WORLD PICTURES
Read the Signet Paperback Prints from CFI
In association with Angeles Entertainment Group Inc
Soundtrack album available on Varese Sarabande Records
R RESTRICTED
© 1984 NEW WORLD PICTURES

STARTS FRIDAY April 27th at a theatre near you

FOURSEASONS

Location: On Route 9 in Front of Mountain Farms Mall
Just a quick jaunt from free bus stop at Hampshire Mall

BUSCH	bar bottles or suitcases	$8.99
STROHS	suitcase	$9.99
LABATTS	beer or ale	$10.99
ST PAULI GIRL	bottles	$13.99
RINGNESS (Norwegian)	light or dark 6 pack	$3.99
VODKA and GIN	1.75 L	$7.99
STOLICHNAYA 80°	1.75 L	$9.99
SMIRNOFF VODKA	1.75 L	$11.99
RYANS IRISH CREAM	750	$5.99
ALMADEN TABLE WINES	3 L	$7.99
FETZER BURGUNDY	1.5 L	$4.49

Our champagne tasting was a big success
some group favorites at special prices

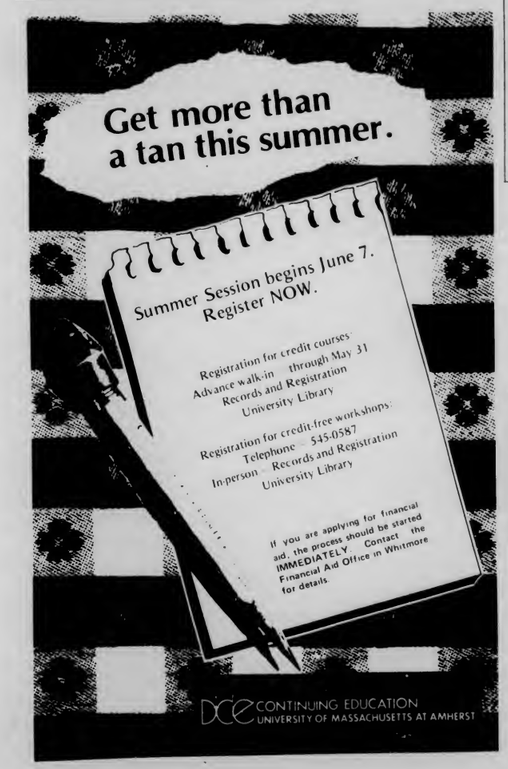
LAURENT-PERRIER	$14.99
DEUTZ	$14.99
HEIDSIECK DRY MONOPOLE	$16.99

And don't forget - your empties are welcome here.

Beer Balls - Kegs - Cups - Free Delivery

Arts

Cheap Trick headlines Southwest concert



Yessiree, it's spring out at UMass, and you know what that means—residential area concerts. This year's promise to be the most interesting in a few years.

The festivities start on Saturday, when the East Side Area Government presents fusion rockers the Mitch Chakour Band, Cool Runnings (a reggae band,) Girls' Night Out and local favorities NRBQ. The show, which will be held on the field just south of the Worcester Dining Commons, will start at noon.

On Sunday, the Southwest Area show will feature Cheap Trick, the band that, no matter how much you insist otherwise, you loved when you were in ninth grade. Bruce Springsteen's incredible sax player, Clarence Clements and his Red Bank Rockers will also perform. Rounding out the show are Lizzie Bordon and the Axes and the Stompers. This show will also start at noon, and will be held at the Southwest picnic field.

Remember when you were in high school? "Surrender...Surrender..."

Trailers by Andy Gordon

A trio of the grinning twits from Hardbodies.

Just when you thought the movie industry had run out of lame film ideas and sleazebags to produce them, several film schools graduated some perfect candidates to do just that. Mark Griffiths from Stanford and Jeff Begun from U of Illinois play director and producer, respectively, on a new feature called Hardbodies, which Columbia Pictures will release next month. The flick looks like a bad bad film (as opposed to a good bad film) and was based on a short story in Penthouse magazine.The story, a true one they claim (like that matters), is about a group of middle aged businessmen who use their money and business skills to get them young women—or hardbodies, as they're referred to as here (Yeah, let's picket Splash). The geezers hire the assistance of a "good looking surfer dude" to teach them the skills of "Dialogueing." Just about every bad thing about our society—manipulation and lack of communication between men and women—is exploited here in the name of "good old summertime fun." Sociologically Hardbodies will suck, and I'm presuming cinematically as well. Begun wrote the flick Saturday the 14th, not a classic, and Griffiths' only other picture was a quickie called Running Hot. The cast's previous credits include work on such admirable projects as Hard Rock Zombies, Street Girls and Sextette.

Last summer Anthony Perkins made big waves by returning to a part he originated twenty-two years earlier in the film Psycho. Now Paul Newman is doing Norman Bates one better, as he returns in his original role from the 1961 film, The Hustler. The sequel rights were purchased by Newman for a quarter of a million bucks, and production will begin this summer. It was not announced whether Jackie Gleason will also return for the sequel, but my thought is that the big, dumb, fat has-been would be a moron not to. He's been making Smokey flicks for like ten years.

Local Best Bets: Opening tonight the Calvin has Never Cry Wolf, which is supposed to be fantastic. Rick Springfield stomps onto the screen in the ultra-formulaic Hard to Hold, dubbed Hard to Stomach by many national critics. That, as well as a rerelease of Flashdance, opens today at the Hampshire 4. Will Flashdance never die, or what? The flick's mindless and implausible. Romancing the Stone I would say is the movie to see. It's fun and vibrant and joyfully campy. The Academy of Music has The Dresser. If you're a friend of Jules, Jim, Dave or myself forget about movies; Put down this paper and come over to our house, for a 4 week warning party. Starts at 2.

TRAILERS Trivia: Scott Korman knew that Peter Barton starred in The Powers of Matthew Starr and won eight sheets of blank typing paper. Sherman Boyson belatedly answered part of last week's question sort of correctly, and won a forged autograph of part of Robert Duvall's head. This week's question: Who stole Manton's owl?

Inventors of the Smoosh-in

We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!

Herrell's Ice Cream

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS

18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

O'Keefe Canadian	$3.50 6 pack + dep.
Becks light or dark	$4.25 6 pack + dep.
Busch 12 oz. cans	$9.95 case + dep.
Stroh's & Stroh's Light 12 oz. cans	$9.95 case + dep.
Utica Club 12 oz. long necks	$6.49 case + dep.
Narragansett 16 oz. cans	$2.50 6 pack + dep.
All Beer Specials are COLD!	$9.80 case + dep
Paul Masson Wines	$3.99 1.5 L
Champagnes	$2.99 + up 750 ml.
Vodka or Gin 80°	$4.99 Liter
Piccala Coffee Liquer	$6.49 750 ml.

Kegs, Mini Kegs and Beer Balls always in stock

Hypercurricula...

GRENADIER AND GAMING SOCIETY — We play many board and miniatures games: Starfleet Battles, Squad and Panzer Leader, Diplomact, Napoleonic, Naval and Tank Miniatures. No experience needed to play. Sunday, 1-11:00 p.m., CC.

FREE FILM—"DAVID" — Released in 1979-the first feature film about the Holocaust made by a German director (Peter Lilienthal). The story of a Jewish boy coming of age in Nazi Germany. Sunday, 1:30 p.m., Thompson 104.

HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL DAY-BRUNCH PROGRAM — Holocaust survivor Rena Finder will speak at a program beginning at 12 noon. A memorial to the victims will follow at 2 p.m. Sunday, 12 noon, SU Commonwealth Room.

SHABBAT SERVICES — Tonight, 7:00 p.m., SU Dukes Room.

KABBALAT SHABBAT — Tonight, 6:30 p.m., 72 Triangle Street, Amherst.

AMHERST AREA NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH — All are welcome to join us for our weekly Sunday service of worship, praise, and teaching from the Bible. Sunday, 10:15 a.m., see CC schedule for room.

CONCERT: VIOLA AND SOPRANO — UMass Department of Music and Dance will present internationally acclaimed artist, violist Jerzy Kosmala and soprano Rosalind Rees, in a free concert. Tonight, 8:00 p.m., Pratt Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke College.

CONCERT BAND PERFORMANCE — Directed by George Parks, the University Concert Band will perform a program of interest to young and old, with music of Reed, Jager, Sousa, Grainger. Most of the band members also perform with the "Minuteman" Marching Band. Sunday, 3:00 p.m., FAC Concert Hall.

SHOWCASE OF JAZZ — Featuring three jazz giants: Johnny Griffin and his Quartet, Chico Freeman and his Quintet, and Max Roach premiering a new work by Peter Phillips.Tonight, 8:00 p.m., FAC Concert Hall.

HISTORY CONVERSATION HOUR — Are you bored Sunday afternoons? Well, wander down to the Campus Center. Come meet other people interested in history and chat for an hour! 3:00 p.m., CC 804-08.

VALLEY WOMEN'S RUGBY GAME — Last chance to catch the Amazons in action! Final home game against Hartford Wild Roses. Elegant violence at its best. Kickoff at 1:00 p.m., Saturday, Rugby Pitch, Boyden Playing Fields.

ASHBY ANNUAL SPRINGFEST '84 — Loose Caboose and Gary Share and the Detour are featured bands. Plenty of beer with ticket purchase and proper ID. Hot air balloon flight can be won. Sunday, 11 a.m-dusk, Wellington Rd. off Rt. 119, Ashby.

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

ADELPHI UNIVERSITY
offers graduate studies for
The Master of Social Work degree in VERMONT
Part Time and Full Time
Advanced Standing for qualified applicants
Work Study Options for Experienced Workers
Rural Social Work Concentration Available
Call or Write Today:
Adelphi/Vermont Program c/o Trinity College
Burlington, Vermont 05401 Phone: 802 863-5731

SHIMMYS
ICE CREAM
POPCORN
Gourmet varieties of Popcorn
Blend-in Ice Cream Flavors
Opening Specials
BUY 1 - GET 1 FREE
35 Montague Road
Riverside Park - Shopping Plaza
549-0736

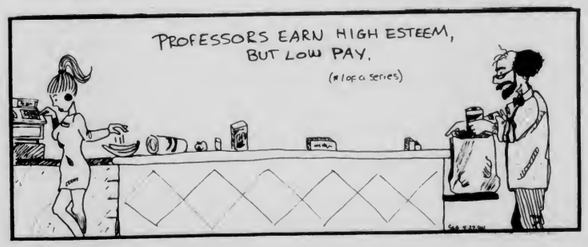
DELANO'S

our APRIL Special
Kronenbourg
Proper ID a Must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

For a 20" x 28" full-color poster of this ad send $6.00 check or money order payable to Anheuser-Busch Inc Dept 12-D, One Busch Place St Louis MO 63118 Allow 4-6 weeks
Offer expires December 31 1984 Void where prohibited BUDWEISER ® • KING OF BEERS ® • THIS BUD'S FOR YOU ™ • ANHEUSER-BUSCH INC • ST LOUIS

Wickles FinePrint
THESIS SPECIAL!
COPIES
5¢ (ACID FREE)
☆ SAME DAY SERVICE ☆ QUALITY COPIES
For Your Convenience
Call for an Appointment Today!
Wickles FinePrint AMHERST
1 Boltwood Walk
256-0148

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

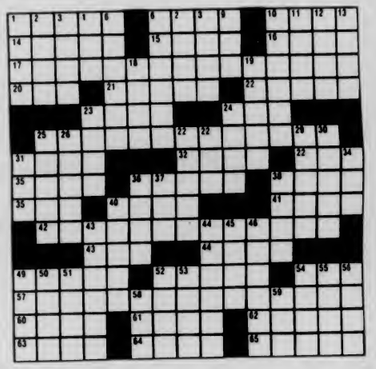


The Strip by Jim Walsh

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Off Campus by Sullivan & Gilbert

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Scrawny animal
6 Diva Gluck
10 Martin Cruz Smith's "Gorky ——"
14 Oahu adieu
15 Woeful sound
16 Solo for 6 Across
17 Italian opera: 1904
20 Ranch animal
21 Yard goods in bulk form
22 Runs slow, as a clock
23 —— qua non
24 Spotlight filter
25 One lacking manual dexterity
31 Mont Blanc, e.g
32 All right, in a way
33 Thespian Hagen
35 Twosomes
36 Beanery
38 Where Anna taught
39 Place in Florida Abbr
40 Pip
41 Run ——
42 Common wildflower
47 Brunch meat
48 Resort in Argyllshire
49 Asian prince
52 Namesakes of famed dog
54 Yank's foe
57 Mark Spitz specialty
60 Concerning
61 "Dies ——"
62 Relaxed
63 Obscure
64 Lucretia ——, suffragette
65 "The Cloister and the Hearth" author

DOWN
1 "All the ——"
2 Part of a hammer
3 Razzed
4 "I see!"
5 Stratagem
6 Mystery writer Eric
7 Klutz
8 Clumps of hair
9 Echidna's prey
10 Time off for good behavior
11 Sounds from 52 Across
12 Unsettle
13 Kyser and Starr
18 First-rate
19 Poem of a type
23 French holy women: Abbr
24 Growl
25 Press agent's copy
26 Main island of W. Samoa
27 Family name of film fame
28 Newsy sobriquet of the 1950s
29 Repenting
30 Office copies
31 Bustle
34 Latin lesson word
36 Consider
37 Ending with yeast or meat
38 "For Sale." for one
40 Gawk
43 Cole Porter's "You're ——"
44 In no way, so far
45 Some moguls' degs
46 Spring holiday
49 "Leave —— taste."
50 Polyhymnia, e.g
51 Ending with Ann or Nan
52 Modern hairdo
53 Clapboard
54 Soprano Ponselle
55 Supplemented (with "out")
56 Eliot hero
58 Brink
59 19th cen Scottish explorer

Run-off Election

All Collegian staff members are reminded that a run-off election for the position of Editor in Chief will be held 9a.m. — 8p.m., Monday in the newsroom. If you have any questions regarding your staff status, please contact Bill Wall before then.

Weather

Sunny today, highs in the 60s at the coast, 70s inland. Clear tonight, lows in the 40s. Sunny Saturday, highs in the 60s at the coast, 70s inland.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

D	I	T	A	N	T	A		G	I	O	S		U	N	I	S	A
A	R	G	O	T		R	A	R	E		N	O	I	A
Y	O	U	G	H	N	U	T		D	O	C	T	A	C	K
A	M	P		L	I	E	S		A	I	N	K	S
			L	E	A	L		C	H	A	P
E	M	E	R	I	T		W	A	U	K	E		S	A	N
L	A	I	N	E		M	A	I	N	E		O	I	C
G	I	N	A		P	O	K	E	R		S	L	O	W
A	N	T		C	H	E	E	K		S	C	A	N	T
R	E	M	A	I	N		G	O		A	T	T	I	R	E	S
			A	M	U	S	E	D		S	H	A	W
A	S	S	A	M		A	N	I	L		H	O	D
S	T	U	T	T	G	A	R	T		S	A	M	U	E
S	T	O	R	E		S	T	O	R	E		O	O	R	I
Y	A	M	E		M	E	E	K		S	P	O	N	E

the Hungry U
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713
BE THERE!

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
2-6 pm

50¢ Lite, Bud, (drafts)
75¢ Lowenbrau (drafts)
75¢ 1 liquor bar drinks

super special
SOMBREROS 75¢

Condom Sense
A Film about sexuality and contraception.

Place: UMass Campus Center, Room 811
Date: Monday, April 30
Time: 7 p.m.

This event is free of charge, and sponsored by the Student Health Advisory Board. shab

安娥中國餐館
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Manderin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7835

RAPE AND RACISM
IN NEW BEDFORD:
AN INSIDER'S VIEW

LIZ BENNETT
Rape Crisis Project, New Bedford Women's Center

TUESDAY, MAY 1
8:00 pm
reception to follow

Campus Center 165-169
UMass/Amherst

Sponsored by the
WOMEN'S STUDIES PROGRAM, UMASS/AMHERST

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
in the Carriage Shops Since 1975

On Campus Delivery Now Available 549-3717

OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
FOOT LONG SUBS
FRESH SALADS AND SOUP
KNISHES, PICKLES AND KOSHER HOT DOGS
BAGELS AND LOX
NEW YORK CHEESE CAKE
233 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS 549-6314

STADIUM

LIQUORS

Blatz 12 pk. C.	$3.40 + .60	Sebastiani 3 L.	$5.99
Wiedemann loose C.	$6.25 + 1.20	Cribari 3 L.	$4.99
Schmidt's loose C.	$7.75 + 1.20	Almaden 4 L.	$6.99
O'Keefe	$10.75 + 1.20	Piat D'or 1.5 L.	$4.95
Red White & Blue	$6.00 + 1.20
Beck	$13.95 + 1.20	Mohawk 1.75.	$8.25
Stroh	$5.00 + .60	Nikolai Vodka 1.75.	$8.99
Busch	$8.95 + 1.20	Ron Llave Rum 1.75.	$9.95
St. Pauli	$13.75 + 1.20	Gilbey Gin 1.75.	$10.99
Michelob cans.	$10.95 + 1.20

not responsible for typographical errors

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium. from SW dorms

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

15 watt portable, quad speaker, AMS, LEDS, stereo wide, etc. $55 546-9383

AUTO FOR SALE

75 Datsun rebuilt engine $60 or BO Kathy 549-4035 snow tires

1978 Ford Mustang hatchback runs good wants $2500.00 call 546-8946

1974 Ford Maverick A.T., P.S., many extras, reliable, $600 or BO, Phyllis 5-2364, 665-3441

77 Pinto Wagon, sky blue, runs good, body good, 76O, BO, Greg 253-5847

73 V.W. SuperBeetle looks great, runs great. Lt. Blue $1095 549-4816

76 Datsun B210 low miles excellent condition no reasonable offer refused keep trying Pete 549-7612 or 7790

DEC WRITER

Digital Decwriter with APL char. set, modem included like new. Call evenings 549-0393 $395.00

DRIVE A BUS

Western Mass Bus Lines is accepting applications to our bus driver training program to prepare students for part time work in September. Qualifications include a clean driving record of 3 years, availability to train through this summer, committment to work through May, 1985, and student status at one of the 5-Colleges. Apply in person at 59 Servica Canter St. N'ton Mon-Fri

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

RICHARD PRYOR'S
HERE AND NOW $1.50
Engineering East Auditorium
Friday April 27 at 5, 7, 9, 11

FOR RENT

Furnished efficiency with carpet, AC. Summer sublet, fall option $205. 323-6704

3-1/2 rooms Presidantial Apts. incls. refrigerator, air conditioner, dishwasher. Walk to GRC. One block to bus stop. Availeble 6/1 to 8/31 w/option to renew. $305 + utilities. Call 549-5681.

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

One bedroom apt. $295 includes utilities on busline pets welcome available immediately call 665-2020

2 rooms 100 yds from campus. Beachfront location. Summer sublet fall option. Nonsmokers call 549-0533

One bedroom apt. in Crestview, summer w/fall option $360 + utilities 549-5949

Brandywine looking for one or two for one bedroom in a 2 bedroom Brandywine apt. Call Mike evenings 549-5416

2 bedroom apartment skylights upstairs deck 400 month 3 miles from campus 256-1470

Looking for 1 nonsmoking femele in Brandywine apt 549-4769

FOR SALE

Mattress, box spring and frame, full size, like new. Plus couch and 4 pairs of drapes. Asking $175 for all. Call 549-5881

Mistral Sailboards. All styles. Good price. Angie 549-4440

Fuji S-12S black 18 speed 23" frame with rear rack and panniers $300 call 546-1402

Infoton 100 Terminal perfect condition best offer call Jim 256-0796

Bed, desk, bureau, and ten speed Schwinn bike call Craig 256-0078

FOUND

A watch in CC on 24 April identify 256-8135

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Lifeguard/Swim Inst. at private camp in Pocono Mts. 2-3 pos avl 4 Red Cross certinds 18+. July thru Aug. Call Russ at 542-3059 for info

Tutor needed for Beginning Apl. will pay $8/hr. please call 253-7821

COUNSELORS, private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, softball, photography, computers, director/piano accompaniest, dance/movement/shoe choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders. Good salaries. Friendly atmosphere. Contact Jodi 546-9988

LOST

Red plaid MacGregor scarf in Cape Cod Lounge Mon 4/9 546-4400

Please I lost a ladies gold watch on 4/19 reward 546-5519

Lost - Red leather jacket at Elvis set of keys (toyota car and gas key and house key) in pocket Marco Moroni label. Please contact 256-0924

Lost: Gold tone watch. If found please call Mary 546-5424

MOTORCYCLES

Blk. 750F 1980 Honda 21000 mi new rear tire and brakes bat case guerds blk. saddle bags ex. cond. always starts very powerful asking 1300 dls. call Nick at 546-5535

MUST RENT IMMEDIATELY

Space in Brittany $117.50 call Tracy 256-0011 leave name & number

NEED A PLACE

Wanted: 3 females to share a beautiful 5 br. house - 15 min. walk to campus - bus stops right in front. All 3 to have own room nice! Under $200 call immed. 546-6667 anytime

NEWPORT

Wanted room in house or apt from June - Sept. Call Amy in the evening at 549-5619 please keep trying

PERSONALS

Attention:
Ski Club Exclusive

For all those who worked 10 hours or more at The Ski Snetch, come by the office to pick up your invitations to the Party scheduled for Friday night.
UMass Ski Club

Carl Good Luck on the exams love Lisa

K.K., The big day is tomorrow! Happy 21! Celebrate till your heart's content!! Love ya, Lu and Rho!

Lynette, On the 10th day God created "Toot"sie pops - who loves ya baby?! Happy 20th You're the best. Luv, Seta & Lee

Did Guardian really die? Alpha Flight 13 this weekend at Moondance Comics

Kath Sorry I forgot Happy Belated Birthday ILY always Kov

Problems with your landlord? Call LSO 545-1995

Sue we finally made it! OM carnation sisters forever!! Lots of love, Kathie

Gary P. Frankfort
Happy 20th Birthday!!
Love Lisa

Attention all Greeks: Greekfest - Don't forget - May 2-8 fun and games parties

PITCHER

Pitcher Softball - Semifast who can teach me to throw rise, knuckle, curve, etc. Will pay good for good results. Call John 549-4067

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

Thurs 5-3 after noon or Fri 5-4 early AM to NJ (Westfield) or NYC Jill 546-7301 evenings

Ride needed to New York City or vicinity of Friday, April 27. Preferably would like to leave in the morning will share expenses call at night, if not home please leave message Janet 546-5124

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Needed do you have room for 1 more person in your house in Hyannis-Yarmouth area asap call Sue 256-8676

Room wanted for summer in W Yarmouth call Brian 549-2694

Room wanted in W Yarmouth for summer call Brian 665-3225

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Wanted two roommates to share Southwood Apt. call 546-5271 or 546-5265 between 5-10 PM

Responsible women to share sunny Southwood apt summer/fall 253-5109

Looking for 2 mature UMass students to share quaint 3 bedroom Northampton apt. Summer with fall option call evenings after 6 586-4555

Female nonsmoker to share 4 room N'ton apt 205/mth May-Aug pos through May 86 586-9938

Two housemates wanted for summer in W Yarmouth $800 each by May 26. Call Sue or Laura 546-9880

Female roommates wanted in Townehouse for fall semester end on call 549-4585

Female roommate wanted for Townehouse Apt. For more info call 549-5531

Cool female roommate wanted to share large room in Falmouth for summer cheap call Heather 546-8677

Colonial Village one bedroom avail summer sublet, fall option call Sue or Katie 256-8676

Looking for male nonsmoker tov share a room in Brandywine call 549-7692

Male to share room in two bed room Puffton apt $108/mth call Marybeth 549-7724 keep trying

Share two bedroom apt male or female Brittany Manor mid May with fall option 3rd floor furnished call 253-2140

Two males needed to share house in Dennisport for summer. Call 546-4308 or 546-5087 keep trying

Female roommate wanted for fall '84 Brandywine apts for more info call 549-7868

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

TYPING - Fast, reliable, professionel. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Brittany $353.50 June, July, August call Tracy 256-0011 leave name and number

Prime Amherst Centar locetion, three bedrooms, spacious, renovated, 6-4984, fall option

Two bedroom Townhouse summr sublet fall option Squire Village rent negotiable 665-4793

Fall option large two bedroom apt in Sunderland bus rt WW carpeting AV dishwesher 325 month call eves 665-4504

Beautiful Apt. Amherst Center 2 bedrms reasonable $, Aug free! 549-7800

3 bedroom apartment in Amherst from 6-1 to 10-31. $500 all utilities included 256-0809

2 bedroom apt availeble in Presidentiel call 546-5568 or 546-5593

Puffton Village 3 bdrms 2 single 1 shared with female $100/ea furnished

Mill Hollow Apt for summer with fall option. Apt 2 miles from campus on Puffers Pond 549-5051

Brandywine, fully furnished, 2 bedroom airconditioned, pol, rent negotiable, 549-0124, anytime

Furnished 1 bedroom Puffton Village June 1 to August 31 call now 549-7864

Lge room in Amherst house 3 min to campus, bus, and town 135 neg call Laura 549-0081

Brandywine! 1½ bedrooms in 2 bdrm apt close to SN/SA and NA/BR bus routes call us - we'll talk! 549-4824

2 bedroom Townehouse apt to sublet for June - Sept rent negotiable call 546-9596

One bedroom wanted in apt close to campus and center. Pets allowed. rent for sumemr get August free. $225/month 253-2729

* Pick us! * Awesome townhouse in Southwood * summer  cheap  call today!!! 256-1098 or 256-0984

1 bedroom available in Brandywine call 549-0116, 6-6943, 6-4239

Two bedroom Brandywine apt available for sumemr sublet. Rent negotiable call 549-6398

Main St rooms for rent fall option rent negotiable 256-0967

Summer sublet Brandywine apt very reasonable rent call 549-7868

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

2 rooms availeble in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

For summer: 5 bedroom house on Main St. next to bus stop 256-6352 Sue

Two bedroom apartment on scenic Puffer's Pond. Summer sublet with fall option. 549-6500

Colonial Vill 1 bedroom furnished summer possible fall option 256-0909 evenings

GOOD DEAL 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet. Availeble June 1st thru Sept. 1st. Call Marsha 549-1511 or Michele 546-4917

Two resp males for 2 bedroom aptin Pres 100+ each starting June 1 call late PM 549-0740

Summer sublet for couple or single 2 rooms, private entrance & bath, kitchen and laundry priviedges. 165/month Chris or John 256-8249

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village availe June 1 - Sept 1 256-1301

One bedroom open in Southwoos apt call Jen or Sue between 4-6 256-6800

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

1 bedroom Southwood townhouse summer sublet with fall option available June 1 253-7031

Brighton Ma BU, BC area May 11 thru August call 617-782-8081

2 bdrm ¼ mile from campus AC cable bicy call Beth 546-0046

From June 1 with fall option two bedroom on Sunderland bus route 330/month 665-8314

One bedroom availeble in 3 bedroom Rolling Gree townhouse starting June 1 fall option 163 mo 253-5356

Furnished Puffton Apert rent cheap close to bus stop call 546-4966

Availeble with fall option two bedroom apartment in Sunderland rent negotiable 665-8504

For summer: roommate needed in Presidentiel apts call evenings 549-5808

Summer sublet with possible fall option. Large bedroom in two bedroom Southwood apartment for one or two females 256-8379

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 10 spaces left! Call today! 549-1671

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Looking for roommates?? 2 females looking to share townhouse Brandywine Puffton or Brittany Manor. Please call Sharon or Meg 546-9614

Townhouse or Brandywine apt. wented for fall will take in June call Jim 256-1072 eves $100 reward

WANTED TO RENT

Sublet wanted for summer, professionel couple, no children/pets, excellent references 203-763-0323

2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village call Karen 549-4684

3-4 bedroom apt in Amherst or vicinity will take in summer or fall 546-6172 or 546-6162

A & E Block '84 *

Sports

UMass tunes up for URI in routs

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

There are two important things you ought to know about the University of Massachusetts softball team today. The secondary item of interest is that UMass won their 12th and 13th games in a row with 8-1 and 12-1 wins over hapless New Hampshire yesterday at NOPE.

The big news is today's double header matchup with the University of Rhode Island at 2:30 p.m. for an Atlantic 10 'ournamen' berth.

"It's just another doubleheader," coach Elaine Sortino said yesterday. "But it is an important one."

Important indeed. In thei tight Eastern Division of the Atlantic 10, UMass needs a sweep to be guaranteed a spot in Rutgers next weekend. A split will provide a three-way tie between Rutgers, URI and UMass and then someone will be left out when the league chooses who stays home. Being swept means having next weekend off.

UMass wants to take care of everything—on the field.

"I want to come running out of the gate like a steam roller (against URI)," Sortino said. "We want to set the tone and play our game."

Co-captain senior Allyson Rioux agreed. "If we play our game, intimidate them and get them riled up then it will be a big plus for us."

"We're very excited," Rioux said. "We want them both."

Yesterday, New Hampshire was out of both games by the fourth inning as the Minutewomen cruised, raising their record to 23-7.

Big hitting, some superb defensive plays and some not-so-good baserunning was the rule of the day for UMass. Rioux's third inning double knocked in two runs in the opener and UMass was on its way.

Among the other big hitters, Robin Read going for 3-for-4 while Tina Coffin, Sally Maher, Emily Bietsch and Talbott all added two hits to UMass' 14-hit attack in the nightcap. .

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Beth Talbott slides into third after hitting a shot to center clearing the loaded bases and giving UMass an 8-1 lead in the opener of yesterday's double-header against UNH.

ATLANTIC 10 Standings at a Glance

Massachusetts need a sweep to be part of next weekend's Atlantic 10 championships at Rutgers. The top two teams in each division go to the championships, where the winner will get an automatic bid to the NCAA's. Temple, St. Joseph's and Penn State make up the Western Division.

Atlantic 10 East Division	W	L	Pct.
Rutgers	2	2	.500
Massachusetts	1	1	.500
Rhode Island	1	1	.500

Gorillas face huge task stopping Army Saturday

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

Army looks to be just as physical as Hofstra was in Saturday's clash at Boyden Hill. Karl Hatton (7) struggles for UMass.

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

This one should be a battle. The fourth ranked West Point Cadets of Army will invade Boyden Hill tomorrow afternoon and will surely bring all the equipment they can carry as they face a revenge-seeking Gorilla squad ranked eleventh in the country at 2 p.m.

Army is a very physical, defensive minded squad led by first year Coach Jack Emmer. They will be out there to hit and they will try to strip UMass of the ball every chance they get.

"They will try to be an aggressive team and use lots of pressure on defense. They pride themselves on being physical and try to intimidate teams," said assistant coach Eric Kemp, who worked under Emmer at Washington and Lee College.

The Army corps is led by returning All-American goalie George Slabowski. Pete Short leads the attack, while midfielders Mike Ricardi, a second team All-American, and P.J. O'Sullivan, an honorable mention All-American, clog up the middle of the field.

"They will try to run you off the field. The offense hasn't been scoring that much early, but they can score. If you're not ready for them, they'll bury you. We will have to play good. They may present us with a few problems," added Kemp.

UMass will try to counter the aggressive defense of Army by moving the ball around as much as possible. Ball movement is a key acording to Kemp.

"Everyone's concerned with giving up the easy goal. We will look to spread out on offense, and move the ball faster than they can run. Teams are starting to prepare for us. When we play well, we can be a very good team. It'll be an exciting game. Our kids always play good against them," said Kemp.

Last year's contest played at West Point, was won by Army by a 9-4 margin. Peter Martino led the Gorillas with two goals, and the defense was outstanding. But like on other occassions, including their last game against Harvard, UMass just could not find the net.

Harvard played the type of game they wanted to, by slowing the ball down and holding it. They waited patiently for a good shot, and consequently hit net on more than 30 percent of their shots. Meanwhile, Massachusetts put flurries on the Harvard goalie, but many of the shots were weak and forced by a tough Harvard defense.

UMass' offense is still led by Mike Fiorini and Bubba Sandford. Fiorini, despite no points against the Crimson, has 11 goals and 11 assist for 22 points. Sandford has eight goals and 14 assists. Tom Lukacovic is close behind as his two goals on Wednesday give him a team leading 16 along with 3 assists.

This has become almost a must win for the Gorillas if they wish to move up in the national rankings and finish in the top eight to qualify for a playoff spot. Beautiful, warm weather has been predicted, and a big, boisterous Boyden crowd can only enhance UMass' chances of eliminating the Cadets.

Rugby picks up win, hosts Mystic

By SCOT COOPER
Collegian Staff

After two winless weekends, the University of Massachusetts rugby club's A side finally registered their first win last Saturday, ripping Worcester Polytechnical Institute 18-0. The win should give the team a much needed lift going into this weekend's match against the Mystic River rugby club this Saturday at Lower Boyden fields.

The A side never let W.P.I. get into the contest last week. Fullback Steven Middtun kept the visitors pinned deep in their own territory, using a strong wind to carry his clearing kicks close to the WPI goal line. When WPI did manage a bit of offense, the UMass forwards shut them down allowing scrum-half Lou Luciano plenty of time to set up his backfield for three scores.

The UMass B side, on a try by Patrick Sabbs, jumped out to a 6-0 lead over Rochester Polytechnical Institute, but the lead soon went by the boards, and RPI hung on for a 9-6 triumph.

The UMass C and D sides were also victors. The D side won with four minutes remaining on a try by Dave Rutyna.

The Mystic River rugby club has many ex-UMass ruggers in its lineup and UMass coach Bob Lawrence has been working the team hard at practice all week.

The UMass squad should be back at full strength this weekend, with Chris Todd and Bob Appleyard expected back after injuries and illness. Game time is 12 noon Saturday.

Gerlufsen signs another

University of Massachusetts basketball coach Ron Gerlufsen completed a successful recruiting season by signing 6'7" 190 lb. forward Wilbert Hicks from New Haven, Connecticut.

Hicks, who averaged 23 points a game and 10 rebounds for Hillhouse High School, was a first team All-State selection.

Gerlufsen said he is finished recruiting but said that he may sign one more recruit. Warren Bradley, a 6'6" forward from Bridgeport, Conn. was to take his SAT's.

The coach expressed happiness over his recruits.

"We added four high school players who we feel will make a strong contribution to UMass," Gerlufsen said.

The previously announced recruits are 6'8" Tom Swick. 6'3" Matt Ryan. and 6'2" Lorenzo Charles. Fitzhugh Terry, 6'8½", will sit out next year to concentrate on his studies.

— DAN LEBERFELD

Philadelphia falls

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Michael Ray Richardson and Otis Birdsong each scored 24 pints as the underdog New Jersey Nets upset defending champs Philadelphia 76ers 101-98 last night to win the first round best-of-five National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXXI, Issue 63 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Monday, April 30, 1984

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

ROCK OUT — Rick Nielsen of Cheap Trick wails on his five-necked guitar yesterday during the Southwest Fest Concerts at the barbeque pits across from the Southwest Residential Area. Thousands gathered in the summer-like heat to see four bands, including Boston's The Stompers and Clarence Clemons and the Red Bank Rocker's play.

UMass police officer denies perjury charge

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts police officer, who faces charges of brutality and false imprisonment in several lawsuits, last week denied he committed perjury at the trial of a UMass student last year.

William F. Murphy, 33, a Hadley resident, was arraigned on a single indictment charging him with lying about his actions stemming from an incident during the arrest of a UMass student for disorderly conduct.

Murphy allegedly lied when he testified at the trial of James Shanahan, 24, a mechanical engineering major from Lexington, according to the indictment. At the trial, Murphy said he did not recall yanking a necklace from Shanahan's neck after his arrest.

Shanahan was found innocent of disorderly conduct at a trial in Hampshire District Court on Feb. 8, 1983. Following the trial, Shanahan filed a federal lawsuit for $850,000 in damages from Murphy and other UMass police officials for false arrest and abuse, Charles DiMare, an attorney representing Shanahan in the suit, said Friday.

DiMare said he could not comment on whether the indictment would have any effect on the suit. He said the matter was in litigation and would be resolved "probably in the summer of 1985."

Murphy also faces two other pending lawsutis brought by other UMass students.

One suit, filed in September 1981 in U.S. District Court, alleges Murphy and other UMass officers beat and jailed two students for no reason in March 1980. Another suit alleges Murphy falsely arrested a UMass student, violated the student's civil rights and assaulted the student in an incident near the Blue Wall on March 9, 1980.

Last year, in an out-of-court settlement, the University Department of Public safety agreed to pay two students $20,000 after the students charged in a suit that Murphy and others denied them their civil rights and falsely imprisoned them.

Pornography foes convene, discuss male supremacy

By NANCY A. BUKAR and
REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

Seven anti-pornography activists from around the country convened last Saturday at the University of Massachusetts to discuss the harmful and violent effects pornography generates.

At a conference titled "Breaking the Connection between Sex and Violence: A Case Against Pornography," Kathleen Barry, author of Female Sexual Slavery explained that pornography is a system of ideas, values and beliefs that sustain and promote male supremacy.

Barry said pornography tells men that deep down inside women crave rape and that rape is sexy.

She said separating objectification from violence creates a false distinction because "objectification is the ground base of violation."

John Stoltenberg, the chairman of the Anti-Pornography Task force of the National Organization for Men, said "domination and subordination have been culturally eroticized" by pornography."

In his speech titled, "Pornography and Male Supremacy," Stoltenberg said male supremacist sexuality is the kind of sexuality that makes men feel powerful, virile and in control, "the kind of sex that puts another person in their place."

"Pornography institutionalizes male supremacy the way segregation institutionalizes white supremacy," Stoltenberg said.

Laurie Lewin, who began stripping at age 16 in Boston's Combat Zone, and is the author of Naked is the Best Disguise: My Life as a Stripper, spoke about her experiences as an "erotic dancer."

"It startles me that I could have fallen into stripping so easily. My body was the main attraction, a prize," Lewin said.

After five years, she quit because she "was over the hill. I'm a survivor but I could have been a casualty," she said.

Most women become strippers because they see it as a step towards Hollywood, Lewin said. "The need for attention, money, the illusion of glamour and the erosion of self-esteem keep women in the profession," she said. Lewin said stripping "operates on a false premise — it gives men the choice to express their contempt for women's sexuality. Admiration actually veils contempt and hostility."

Even though Lewin said she believes "strip joints have a lot to do with power," she said she does not want to close them down because the real problem would still exist and it would "put women who need money out of work."

Sharon Sales-Belton, one of the leaders of a movement in Minneapolis to regulate violent pornography said that during the hearings in Minneapolis, "numerous women came forward and testified of how they had been abused by men who learned from pornography that women liked it."

Julie Melrose, a UMass graduate and feminist author spoke about freedom of speech, calling it a "selective concern."

continued on p. 4

Physicians, author discuss effects of a "nuclear winter"

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

The "nuclear winter" which will follow an exchange of nuclear weapons could possibly exterminate the human race, according to Dr. George Woodwell co-author of "The Long-term Biological Consequences of Nuclear War."

Woodwell described the consequences of a nuclear war known as "nuclear winter" in a lecture preceding a panel discussion on "The nuclear winter study and its political implications" sponsored by the Peacemakers and the Radical Student Union as part of Earth Awareness week at the University of Massachusetts.

Woodwell said we have enough nuclear weapons so that there is one for every city, most villages, most universities and most schools in the world.

"It is someone's analysis," Woodwell said, "that has put us in this jeopardy, and it is going to take a good deal of analysis to get us out."

Woodwell said the dust and particulate matter that would cloud the earth's atmosphere after a nuclear war would cool the earth's surface by ten degrees and a year later the temperatures would still be below normal. Also, the darkness which would prevent all photosynthesis would only give way to twilight after eight months, he said.

The fireballs released into the stratosphere by nuclear weapons will destroy the ozone layer which protects us from most of the ultra violet rays of the sun, Woodwell said. The solar radiation in the ultra violet range has "profound biotic effects" like skin cancer, he said. The lack of food, water and transportation would add to the difficulty of survival, Woodwell said.

"Few have the skills to survive being thrown into a stone age culture...People would survive only as small bands in the Southern hemisphere and few in the northern hemisphere.

"It is unlikely that homosapiens would survive at all, one cannot rule out the possibility of exterminating homo sapiens," he said.

The panelists, Dr. Murray Watnick, from the Physicians for Social Responsibility, Peter Clausen from the Union of Concerned Scientists and Francis Crowe, a peace activist and director of Western Massachusetts American Friends Service Committee answered questions from moderator Ken Mosakowski.

Clausen said that making Amherst a nuclear free zone would have symbolic importance, and he suggested that advocates look carefully to determine whether or not it will win supporters to the freeze movement or alienate employees of nuclear weapons industries. Crowe said she believes "nuclear free zones are a great way to unify a community... If every community declared itself a nuclear free zone it would be a great step."

Inside:

Amherst committee gives the o.k. to a coal pile clean-up solution p.3

Peter Wissoker dissects the Grateful Dead shows in Providence p.7

Gorillas beat Army Saturday 6-5 ..... p. 12

"We're just a bunch of cheese packs, stuffed in the refrigerator. That's all we are."
— Overheard at a weekend party

World and National News

Shannon says he'll refuse PAC money in campaign

BOSTON (AP) — Rep. James M. Shannon, D-Mass., announced Sunday that he will no longer accept campaign contributions from political action committees in his bid for the Senate and will return more than $50,000 he has already received.

"Nothing is more important to me than my reputation for integrity," Shannon said in a statement. "Even the appearance of influence has the potential for casting a shadow on my integrity and I refuse to let that happen."

Political action committees, often called PACs, are groups formed by labor unions, businesses and other special interests for the purpose of contributing to political campaigns. Critics claim PACs buy influence on Capitol Hill.

Shannon's decision follows similar announcements by five other candidates vying for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Democrat Paul Tsongas.

Democrats Lt. Gov. John F. Kerry, former House Speaker David M. Bartley, Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly and U.S. Rep. Edward J. Markey and Republican contender Ray Shamie have all said they will not accept contributions from PACs.

In a statement, Kerry applauded Shannon's decision and called on another Republican candidate, former ambassador Elliot Richardson, to follow suit.

"It is still not too late for Massachusetts to lead the country by being the first state in the nation to be PAC-free," he said.

AP Laserphoto

BOOBY TRAPPED BUSES — Bus drivers point to the location where explosive charges had been attached. Six Arab buses were found to be boobytrapped in the Occupied West Bank area.

Train kills four in border crossing

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A freight train plowed through a group of illegal aliens walking across a railroad trestle in the dark, forcing some to jump into a shallow creek 31 feet below and killing four of them. At least seven were injured.

As many as 40 aliens may have been on the bridge when the train approached late Saturday night at about 40 mph, said Rod Saucier, agent in charge of the U.S. Border patrol office in Kingsville.

The dead were two women, a boy about 12 years old and a younger child, said Harry Beall, a border patrol office supervisor.

Tim Hogan, a Missouri Pacific spokesman in Chicago, said the engineer of the 43-car freight saw the people on the bridge but was unable to stop the train until it had crossed the 464-foot trestle over Olmos Creek, 17 miles south of Kingsville.

Authorities arrested 14 aliens who escaped injury and searched Sunday for more victims in the 3-to 4-foot-deep creek and for other aliens who may have sought cover in the mesquite that dots the rugged coastal plains south of Corpus Christi.

Border Patrol agents believed an undetermined number of illegal aliens were hiding in the brush and some may have been injured by the train, Saucier said.

Tufts professor pleads guilty to murdering missing woman

DEDHAM (AP) — From the first there were doubts about prosecuting for murder when no body had been found. Several prospective jurors were excused when they said they doubted they were willing to convict.

But on Friday, an anatomy professor admitted bludgeoning his young lover and disposing of her body rather than face what his attorney called "insurmountable evidence" in a murder trial.

Thomas C. Troy, attorney for William H. Douglas, 42, a former anatomy professor at Tufts University, said going to trial "would have been a waste of the court's time."

"This is a human tragedy," said Troy, a former Golden Gloves boxer who represented Boston Strangler Albert DeSalvo and several other well-known criminals. "He has unburdened himself of the shame and tragedy he feels."

Douglas stunned a packed courtroom when he pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of manslaughter in the death of 21-year-old Robin Benedict, a graphic artist whom police said was also a prostitute.

The case was not the first in which Massachusetts prosecutors sought a murder conviction without producing a body. Only one had been successful.

Court records show prosecutors attempted to introduce testimony that Douglas had access to a crematorium used to dispose of laboratory animals at the university.

Troy sought to have prosecutor John Kivlan dismissed for misconduct before the grand jury, citing among other reasons "inflammatory" testimony about the crematorium. Asked if the body was intact, Troy said, "Yes," and said he knew where it was, but declined further comment.

Douglas, who agreed to reveal everything about the killing and the location of the body as part of the plea bargaining arrangement, was interviewed by investigators Saturday for several hours.

Authorities declined comment on where Douglas disposed of the body, and said members of the press when the search takes place.

"I'm sure that the parents and the family do not want the attempts to find the remains to become a matter of public display," said William Delahunt, Norfolk County district Attorney.

Kivlan said the agreement would allow him to demand the maximum sentence of 18 to 20 years when Douglas is sentenced May 7. That would make him eligible for parole in 12 years.

Study says insanity plea not abused in Mass.

BOSTON AP — Ninety-two percent of criminal defendants in Massachusetts acquitted by reason of insanity were diagnosed as having serious mental disorders, according to a study that concludes the defense is not abused in the Bay State.

The study by Barbara F. Phillips and John A. Hornik of the state Department of Mental Health was prompted by the national debate over John Hinckley's acquittal on grounds of mental illness in the 1981 attempted assassination of President Reagan.

According to the report, about one in every 4,000 people in Massachusetts charged with a crime is acquitted by reason of insanity.

Correction

Allen Johnson, Undersecretary of Environmental Affairs, will be unable to appear tonight as advertised last week as part of the Earth Awareness Week program. In his place, Cliff McCarthy of the Mass. Nuclear Referendum Campaign will talk about a regional hazardous waste dumpsite in Thompson 106 at 7:30 p.m.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220 is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Joel Myerson
Editor in Chief

J.P. Shanahan — Production Manager
Bill Wall — Managing Editor
Josh Meyer — Editorial Editor
Andrew May — Business Manager
Anne McCrory — News Editor
Drew Ogier & Dave Deubel — Photo Editors
Miriam Zoll — Women's Issues Editor
Gerry deSimas — Sports Editor
Yadira Betances — Black Affairs Editor
Lisa Mosley — Arts Editor

Mt. Holyoke College presents:

Gloria Steinem

WOMEN OF THE 80's:

THE SECOND WAVE

Wed. May 2 at 8 pm

Gettell Amphitheatre

(in case of rain: Chapin Auditorium
Mary E. Wooley Student Center

TICKETS $4. GENERAL ADMISION

on sale at the Mary E. Wooley Box Office daily from 2 p.m. - midnight, Saturday noon - 1 am
Box Office 538-2178
additional tickets will be sold the evening of the event
weather permitting

MONDAY NITE SPECIAL

Time Out

Giant Bar Drinks $1.65

16 oz. Draft 85¢

Two T.V.'s

Free Popcorn

Happy Hour Prices
4 PM to closing
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA

Elliot Richardson campaigns at UMass

Talks on nuclear balance

By LISA MARIE CANTWELL
Collegian Staff

Republican candidate for U.S. Senate Elliot Richardson told a small University of Massachusetts audience that his first concern, if elected, will be the prevention of nuclear war.

"We need to reinforce our ability to prevent conflict between the two super-powers," Richardson said outside the Student Union Friday afternoon. He said he will work to stop the "escalation of the arms build-up from engulfing the two."

A freeze on the production and deployment of nuclear weapons "needs to be seen as an entering step towards reduction and balance on both sides, in keeping with peace," Richardson said.

Unlike his leading Democratic opponents for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Democrat Paul Tsongas, Richardson said he supports the Reagan Administration policy of military aid for some Central American countries, and he said the Reagan Administration is "justified in keeping it up."

"For the time being," Richardson said, "we should maintain support of the Contras (fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua), and the government of El Salvador, as part of a strict fight against expanded Soviet and Cuban presence."

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

Republican U.S. Senate candidate Elliot Richardson speaks to students in front of the Student Union Friday.

In remarks specifically relating to Massachusetts, Richardson said an urgent and "effective attack" on the problem of acid rain will be his primary goal if he is elected to the Senate. He also said he will establish an office in western Massachusetts.

Committee decides who's distinguished

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

Six academics will soon be chosen as the winners of the annual Distinguished Teachers Award at the University of Massachusetts.

The award was first instituted in 1962, with the purpose of identifying and honoring excellent classroom teaching, particularly on the undergraduate level. Since 1972, teaching assistants and associates have also been nominated. Basic requirements are at least three years of service to the University, primarily undergraduate teaching, and full-time status.

Fifty professors and 15 teaching assistants have been nominated for the 1984 award.

Three professors and three teaching assistants will win $2,000 each and a plaque which will be presented at a ceremony hosted by the chancellor, said Sanjuv Dugal, president of the Graduate Student Senate and chairman of the Distinguished Teachers Award committee. "They will also receive special honors during commencement," he said.

"It is a difficult task for the committee to reduce the nominees down to six names," Dugal said. "All of the teachers nominated are worthy of the award. How do you choose the best out of the best?"

Dugal said students nominate teachers in the fall and nominations are accepted by anyone affiliated with UMass, including alumni. Evaluation forms of 10 questions are then distributed in the classes of those nominated to be filled out and returned by the students both in the fall and spring semesters.

In this way, "teachers are evaluated over two semesters by two different lots of students," Dugal said.

"The award is based on purely teaching skills and has nothing to do with research," he said.

Dugal said in the past the nomination process has been kept "semi-secret" but this year a letter was sent to all the nominees describing the process to make them fully aware of it. A fairly large advertisement was also placed in the Collegian to encourage comments from anyone interested.

Teachers may be nominated repeatedly but cannot win the award within two years of their last award, he said.

The award is sponsored by the Graduate Student Senate.

UMass summer: more than sun, fun

By RISA FREEMAN
Collegian Staff

Registration for summer session at the Unversity of Massachusetts has already begun and will continue up to the day before classes are scheduled to begin.

The two six-week sessions beginning June 5 and July 17, will provide opportunities to gain credits in courses in many areas, including languages, education, computer and information science, art, engineering, and theater.

The Division of Continuing Education will also offer credit-free workshops on evenings and weekends, courses ranging from dance to tennis, photography, quilting and microcomputers.

"Those courses offered in mathematics and natural sciences seem to be very well recepted during the summer session," said Angel Ramirez, coordinator of credit programs in the Division of Continuing Education. "There seems to be a demand for everything we offer for the most part," she added.

Credit-free workshops in bartending, photography, microcomputers, and accounting are always in demand, said Honore David, manager of the Fine Arts and Humanities Program for the Division of Continuing Education.

"Preparation courses for the GRE's and the LSAT's are always popular in the summertime," David said. "Word processing is a very hot item now and those classes will fill quickly."

"We don't know from session to session what will be popular. We try to offer things that the community will respond to."

About 3,500 students are expected to register for both sessions, said Gary Strong, registrar for Continuing Ed.

Registration for courses may be made by mail until May 21 for credit courses or on a walk-in basis at the Continuing Ed office located in the first floor of the Library Tower. In-person registration will be held in the Campus Center Auditorium on June 4, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for first session classes, and July 16 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 to 7 p.m. for the second session.

Sheep, pigs to highlight tour

By TIM RYAN
Collegian Staff

Today begins a week-long program for approximately 20 University of Massachusetts animal science students to teach what they have learned in class at the South Deerfield Dairy Facility.

At this time of year, for the past 10 years, UMass students have been giving tours of the facility and teaching young school children about animals.

During the past few weeks, these students have visited the facility and have finally decided on an interesting tour. Visitors will see sheep, pigs and goats that have been transported from the Youngstock Barn at UMass. Poultry, a chick hatchery and parts of the dairy facility will also be shown. UMass students will also demonstrate cow milking and sheep shearing techniques.

Approximately 300 to 400 school children a day are expected to visit the dairy facility. The animal science students will commute from campus and have completed a schedule for when they will be required to give the tours. Visitors will be pre-school and grammar school classes and also special needs classes from throughout both Hampden and Hampshire counties.

Sharyn Donahue, a sophomore animal science student, said she is "looking forward to teaching the young children about the animals we deal with all the time."

Marilyn Rodwell, a secretary of the veterinary animal science department, has spent several days corresponding and coordinating a workable schedule with the various schools.

"The children really appreciate the tour," Rodwell said. "We receive many drawings and thank you letters from them and also their teachers."

Conservation chair says coal-pile plan may stop pollution

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

The chairman of the Amherst Conservation Commission this weekend praised an interim plan that allows the University of Massachusetts to spray detergent on its coal storage pile to reduce pollution in a nearby brook.

Carl Carlozzi also said the University will begin constructing a sedimentation pond and a neutralization system, to be completed by July, that will catch rain water runoff. The water will then be pumped into the sewage main at the Tillson Farm Heating Plant and sent to the Amherst Waste Treatment Plant.

The plan which was approved by the commission last month, culminates a dispute between the town and UMass that has lasted several years. The pile, located off East Pleasant Street, was identified as the major source of pollution to Taylor Brook, a North Amherst stream about a half-mile from the pile.

Coal from the pile is used to fuel the Physical Plant that supplies heat and some power to the University.

"The thing to realize is that the Tillson coal pile is still polluting up there," Carlozzi said. "But within months, some real pollution reduction will take place."

Carlozzi, who is also a UMass forestry and wildlife management professor, recounted the history of the disputed coal pile, which he said included poor communication and antagonism on the part of University officials in trying to reach a solution with the town.

He said University officials initially stonewalled the commission until it issued a cease-and-desist order against UMass in July 1983.

"It broke loose a little jawboning. Finally somebody was talking to somebody," he said. Following the order the University received money to clean the site. Carlozzi praised new Physical Plant director Roger Cherewatti for his efforts at finding a solution.

Carlozzi spoke as part of a series of lectures on energy and the environment during Earth Awareness Week.

Town Meeting to begin tonight

The annual town meeting begins at 7:30 tonight at the Amherst Regional Junior High School. Town Meeting members will also convene Wednesday night and next Monday and Wednesday nights until all 65 articles on the Twon Meeting warrant have been voted on.

Article 22, drafted by the Amherst Citizens Against pollution, a student-based group, calls for the twon to place an impermeable clay cap on the old landfill by Sept. 1 because the landfill "poses a clear and present danger to our water supply due to leachate contamination."

Richard Vincent, owner of Louis' Foods supermarket, has petitioned the town to amend the official zoning map so Louis' Foods could be moved from the center of Amherst to a new location at the corner of University Drive and Amity Street.

Article 64 asks the twon to endorse the Ground Zero Pairing Project's goal of pairing the town of Amherst with the city of Tartu in Russia as a step toward bilateral nuclear disarmament. The Amherst Selectboard has unanimously endorsed this article.

The final article in the warrant, drafted by Citizens for a Nuclear Free Amherst, urges Town Meeting members to make Amherst a nuclear Free Zone.

The article prohibits private and public educational institutions from engaging in research aimed at producing nuclear weapons. The article also calls for the town to divest in itself of all investment in corporations which produce nuclear weapons within one year.

JULIA MAYCOCK

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's News Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

Monday — The Women's Issues Team will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 165.

Tuesday — Liz Bennett of the Rape Crisis Project at the New Bedford Women's Center will discuss "Rape and Racism in New Bedford: An Insiders View," at 8 p.m. in Campus Center room 165.

Dr. Jean Grossholtz, a Mt. Holyoke Professor, and University of Massachusetts Environmental Science Professor Linda Lockwood will discuss "Feminist Ecology and The Womens Peace Movement" as part of Earth Awareness Week at 2 p.m. in Campus Center room 168C.

Wednesday — The Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedom will meet at 4 p.m. in Campus Center room 901.

Reproductive Rights Awareness Day will be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. outside the Student Union Gallery.

The Society for Women Engineers will meet at 6 p.m. in Marston Hall room 221.

Gloria Steinem, author, feminist activist and founder of Ms. magazine will speak on "Women of the 80's: The Second Wave" at 8 p.m. in the Richard Glenn Gettel amphitheater at Mt. Holyoke College. Tickets are $4. For more information call 538-2178.

Thursday — Susan Schechter, author of Women and Male Violence, will speak about "The Battered Women's Shelter Movement: A Historical Overview" at 7 p.m. in Campus Center room 168.

Saturday — The Working Women's Program at the Everwoman's Center is offering a one day workshop titled "Doubting your own competence: Women's image of work and self," from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Everywoman's Center in Wilder Hall. For more information and to register call 545-0883.

★Porn——

Describing her difficulties with publishers, Melrose said women should not be too anxious to preserve for pornographers rights of expression that women have never had.

Women always have been, and are continue to be denied their First Amendment rights, Melrose said.

Kathy Alexander, a counselor at the UMass Everywomen's Center, and Denise Yanni, who is active in the women's movement in Amherst, discussed "A New Imaging of Women."

Alexander said pornography is "any portrait (print, video, films, etc.) of a woman in pain, raped, sodomized, shown as filthy or inferior."

Pornography comes from "a male-centered society that nurtures pornography. To fight against oppression of women, we must fight against this culture. We must remember that pornography is a depiction of male power, not male sexuality," Alexander said.

Denise Yanni, who spoke about remedies to our present pornographic culture, said she believes the active support of women's media — women's bookstores and women's magazines, will help to bring about "a new definition of woman." There is a necessity to return to "the original self, not the male image of women," she said.

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

The Association for Economic and Social Analysis sponsored its second annual Conference on Marxist Social Theory this weekend in the Campus Center, inviting academics from across the nation. UMass graduate economics student John Sinisi is speaking on the Microfoundations of Marxism Crisis Theory Friday to a group of about 50 people.

Newslines...

Evelyn Murphy speaks in Memorial Hall today

Massachusetts Secretary of Economic Affairs Evelyn Murphy will speak on the impact of President Ronald Reagan's ecomomic policies on Massachusetts today at the University of Massachusetts.

Murphy's address, sponsored by Americans for Democratic Action, will begin at 3 p.m. in Memorial Hall. It is free and open to the public.

Consultant to discuss Eastern Air, unions

"Labor Relations Innovations in the 1980s: The Case of Eastern Airlines and the International Association of Machinists" will be the topic of a lecture tonight at the University of Massachusetts.

Randy Barber, a consultant for Eastern Airlines and co-author of The North Will Rise Again, Pensions, Politics and Power in the 1980s, will speak at 6:30 p.m. in room 917 of the Campus Center. The program is sponsored by the UMass Labor Relations and Research Center and the Graduate Student Senate.

Music Room to host two-dimensional art

A display of two-dimensional artwork will open this afternoon in the Music Room on the Campus Center concourse.

"Artists for '84" will run through Wednesday, and is sponsored by the Board of Governors, the Campus Center and the UMass Arts Council. All students are invited for a wine and cheese opening at 7:30 p.m.

Budget Committee holds final hearing tonight

The Undergraduate Student Senate Budget Committee of the Student Government Association will hold a public hearing tonight to answer all questions about its final report to the Senate.

The public inforation session will begin at 6 p.m. in room 162-175 of the Campus Center.

New clerk of courts studies harrassment

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association judicial system now has a new clerk of courts, following the resignation of Larry Mestel, who held the position since last May.

Senior accounting major Mestel, resigned two weeks ago, citing the use of the student court for political threats in addition to an upcoming Certified Public Accountant's exam. Mitch Roye, a junior history major, was elected bythe court to replace him.

Roye, a court judge for a year and a member of the Judicial Affairs sub-committee, said he intends to "strengthen the judicial system" by having a full body of trained judges. He said he will with Student Attorney General, Susan Gladwin.

"Sue and I will be working on policy changes," Roye said. "Right now we're working on the harassment policy."

The clerk's job entails overseeing the training of judges, processing cases and setting judicial procedure with the attorney general for the Student Supreme Court. The court hears cases involving charges of shoplifting at the University Store, Mestel said. It also handles cases involving violations of the student code of conduct.

Mestel said he resigned, in part, because "people have been using the office as a threat to further action." He said the courts should be used as a measure to satisfy grievances" and not for threats, he said.

The judiciary has also been embarrassed because some cases have been withdrawn before going through the judicial process, Mestel said. The court should be a "a place where students go to get results, and should not be used to make a mockery of the system."

He said Roye "will be very good for the system" and "will further continue the tradition" of keeping the office non-political.

"I expect Mitch to be trained for the job in a week and a half," Mestel said, "and I will remain in the office counseling him in the clerk's duties" until then.

"I'm proud to be leaving the office without personal conflict with anyone and leaving a system that is intact," Mestel added. The court will also lose two Greek area judges, plus one from Orchard Hill and one from the commuter area after graduation.

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF

Ancient Evenings — Norman Mailer

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

IF YOU'VE JUST GRADUATED INTO DEBT, HERE'S HOW TO GET OUT.

If you ve gone to college on a National Direct Student Loan or a Guaranteed Student Loan or a Federally Insured Student Loan made after October 1, 1975, here s a great way to pay them off.

Get the Army to help you do it.

Instead of taking a long, long time paying back that student loan, you spend a short time in the Army, learning a skill, and possibly even accumulating additional money for college (like a graduate degree) via Army College Fund.

If you qualify, each year you serve reduces your indebtedness by one-third, or $1,500, whichever amount is greater. A 3-year enlistment eliminates your debt.

It's worth looking into. See your Army Recruiter.

Call your Northampton
Army Office at 584-2157
241 King Street

ARMY. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

'We're having a party'

If you had your head screwed on loosely enough to miss the Southwest block party last Friday night, I would like to fill you in on what you could have experienced.

Many of us, at some point during high school, partied in a parking lot — a couple of cars with radios blaring and cases of beer in the trunk. Imagine this scene multiplied by several thousand. The participants are a few years older, the car radios are replaced by huge speakers on the balcony of Hampden Commons, but the idea is the same.

Ian Polumbaum

What you have, then, is a party animal's dream, a voyeur's delight, a janitor's nightmare — I was going to say "a cop's nightmare," but the police left Friday's gathering alone, at least until after midnight.

By 11 p.m. the noise level in the "horseshoe" behind Hampden had reached the level of a Boston Garden concert minus the band. The sea of people was matched in density only by the sea of beer cans underfoot — or overfoot, rather; much of the crowd was ankle deep in aluminum.

At kneecap level, fireworks of the spinning, green-sparkling variety screamed their way through the crowd. At groin level, every tree within walking distance was soaked through the bark; bathroom lines extended out the door of the Munchy store.

At higher levels, what any big bash needs to liven up the atmosphere is a few vicious fistfights for no apparent reason. In one, a blond-haired Godzilla was quickly humbled by an adversary half his size, who gave him the kind of eyebrow gash one usually only sees on t.v. from Caesar's Palace.

But by far the highlight of this adult (?) version of Baba O'Riley's "teenage wasteland" came when someone finally succeeded in climbing to the top of a basketball backboard. Instead of beating his chest, this aspiring Tarzan immediately curled up into a ball as beer cans rained on him from all directions.

For a full minute the sky was full of metal projectiles (and a few glass ones) spraying their contents on his windbreaker. Even after he jumped down, the deluge continued.

Sound unpleasant? On the contrary, several other revelers enthusiastically climbed backboards in hope of receiving similar attention. The ratio of glass to metal flying through the air increased somewhat, but they were undaunted as they briefly basked in the limelight.

So wherever you were on Friday night, you should have been down at the block party.

Ian Palumbaum is a Collegian staff member.

The spirit of humanity

When I first heard that members of the University community would be asked to wear the yellow star as part of the Holocaust memorial, I felt pain, revulsion and dismay. My reaction was not "intellectual"; it had little to do with reason; it was deeply personal. All Jews in Nazi occupied Europe were forced to wear the yellow star during World War II. As a young child in Hungary, I had to wear it. It is associated in my mind with profound humiliation, with being stigmatized, with living in danger, with the occasional feeling of terror.

I have gotten to a point in my mysterious road of personal development, a version of the road that we all take, that I search, when possible, to create the positive out of the difficult, or painful, or negative. It is important that we all join in remembering. I wondered how this Nazi symbol could become a positive one for me — and for others as well.

Ervin Staub

I realized that an important reason for those who chose this symbol of remembering was that when Danish Jews were ordered to wear the yellow star, the brave Danish people, including their king, defied the Nazis by themselves wearing the yellow star of David to make the Jews indistinguishable from themselves. They defied the Nazis in an even more important way: they saved the Jews living in Denmark by smuggling them onto boats and taking them to neutral Sweden. They and other heroic rescuers in Europe stand in contrast to the overwhelming majority of people in the world who passively stood by as millions of Jews and millions of other people — Gypsies; mentally retarded, mentally ill, homosexual Germans; Poles, Russians, and others — were killed by Nazi Germany.

We can make the yellow star a positive symbol, I thought, by the spirit in which we wear it. We must remember the suffering, the brutalization and the murder of Jews and others. But we must do more than remember. We must make a commitment to awareness and action in our own lives. We must notice, as a first step, the disregard of the dignity and rights of other people. We must notice injustice and cruelty. Even in small degrees which we often take for granted, words and actions that dehumanize represent a spirit that grows. Greater acts of dehumanization, injustice and cruelty follow. We must notice and make it our business when Jews, blacks, women, children, anyone, is derogated or mistreated. And our awareness must be followed by action. It is often very difficult to speak out and confront, no matter how gently, someone who expresses prejudice, or takes harmful action against someone else. But we can have lasting influence on people who do it by showing that we notice and disapprove. Even Nazi functionaries were influenced, in their own views, by the resistance of other brave people, the Bulgarians, who refused to hand over to the Nazis their Jewish population, most of whom therefore survived. Perpetrators of small and large acts can be powerfully affected by public disapproval.

There are many realms in desperate need for commitment and action. In a country with political freedom, we can do a great deal by raising our voice and speaking out against our government supporting other governments that kill their own people, and in favor of concern and care for people in our own country who suffer from hunger, discrimination or simply the lack of a spirit of caring and community.

The Nazis' symbol, the yellow star, will become a symbol of the defeat of the Nazi spirit if in our heart we make a commitment to a shared humanity with all other people. The Nazis believed in superior and inferior races, and in the right of the "racially pure" — themselves — to enslave, and kill "subhumans." Can we see all humans, with their many different customs, habits, ways of life, as sharing with us in a common humanity? Can we see the potential of all of us for love and community and inner peace and peace with each other? When we see that, and commit ourselves to such ideals, and act in their name — peacefully, nonviolently, but with determination — we will have defeated the Nazi spirit.

Something in me still resists wearing the yellow star. But will others, without the same experiences, wear it? I have been looking for the star on my way around Campus, hoping to see it, perhaps as a sign that many members of this community share with me a belief, which is also a faith in the future: that we are all Jews, all Blacks, all Anglo-Saxon Protestants, all people who share and are responsible to create a common, essential humanity.

Ervin Staub is a psychology professor.

Letters

Evelyn Murphy to speak today

To the Editor,

In 1980, 80,000 Mass. students received Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (Pell Grants) to help them attain a college education. By 1982, the number of Mass. students receiving Pell Grants dropped to 64,000.

Between 1980 and 1982, the state's Aid to Families With Dependent Children caseload was cut by 22 percent from 121,725 to 109,553. The estimate for 1984's caseload is 95,798 families.

As these sample statistics demonstrate, the Reagan economic program has had a dramatic impact on all of our lives, from those of us who are students to those who are single parents raising children.

Mass. Secretary of Economic Affairs Evelyn Murphy will be speaking at 3:00 p.m. in Alumni Hall on the impact of the Reagan Economic Program on Massachusetts. Secretary Murphy is responsible for aiding the creation of new jobs in the private sector, improving business development and growth and protecting the economic welfare of employees.

Laura Gallant
Amherst

Fueling both fear and violence

To the Editor,

The recent vandalism of the mock Trident submarine in the campus pond was a testimony to its value. In fact, the people who did it unwittingly acted out a microcosm of the nuclear arms' race. Before any progress can be made toward ending nuclear madness people have to realize that World War III already rages in our minds. Jonathan Schell, author of The Fate of the Earth, recently pointed out that deterrence, the current deadlock in nuclear arms between the United States and the Soviet Union, does not need weapons to work. As long as we have the knowledge of how to produce these things, a knowledge which we're stuck with, we could just as easily threaten each other with the possibility of making them. In fact, the whole arms' race is based on potential. "If you do that, I'll do this," or "We know that you know that we know that you know how to make sure we don't."

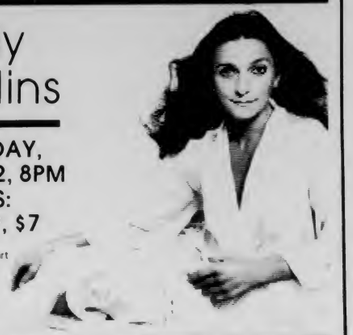
It is, again, a thought war. So, here on the UMass campus, some students reacted violently to an innocent, idealistic dissertation project of an art student; it was created to increase our awareness. Let's let its destruction do just that. After all, the vandals actually attacked a symbol of something they don't want to think about. But that's how thought wars work. Misunderstanding fuels fear and violence.

Andrew Frisardi
Amherst

Will Goofy and Sylvester be banished?

To the Editor,

A recent visit to the Campus Center Book Store revealed a shocking fact. A book titled "The Magic World of Walt Disney" (profusely illustrated in garish color) is on public sale there.



Can the bookstore management be unaware that the Committee Against Violence on Television has reported that Walt Disney cartoons portray (by actual count) more than 74 instances of violence per hour? And violence against small, furry animals at that! True, Merry Melodies may be an even greater offender, but can that excuse the bookstore's purveying Walt Disney items on this campus, which should be a showplace of nonviolence, nonsexism, and nonspeciesism for the Commonwealth?

Now that the SGA has courageously voted to oust the Playboy Bunny from our University, isn't it time it faces the broader issues, and has the moral strength to demand that Minnie Mouse and Donald Duck be banished from these noble grounds?

Bernard Miller
Chemistry Dept.

'We need columnists!'
Drop by with a piece, CC 113

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Judy Collins
SATURDAY, MAY 12, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7
Sponsored in part by a grant from Kollmorgen Corporation Electro-Optical Division

Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

This is the Year to Plan Your Career!
Limited number of graduate study awards.
Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

FUNNYBONES
NOW OPEN!
Located on Rt. 9 directly across from Mt. Farms Mall
$1.99 LUNCH SPECIAL*
Any combination of Deli Sandwich and Beverage
Choose from Roast Beef, Ham and Cheese, Hot Pastrami, Turkey, Corn Beef Reuben, or Tuna Salad on your choice of Deli Roll, Rye Bread or a Fresh Croissant;
* comes with chips and pickle
* PLUS any drink including beer, wine, mixed drink, juice, coffee, soda or milk
Served from 11 am - 2 pm 7 DAYS A WEEK
JUST PLAIN FUN!!

Winter in May
An Earth Celebration with
The Paul Winter Consort
Tuesday, May 1, 1984 at 8 p.m.
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Tickets available from Datatix and Satelite Box Offices
On Sale April 10, 1984
For info. call F.A.C. Box Office at 545-2511

THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS
TWO AROUND-THE-WORLD SAILINGS EACH YEAR
Departs in January from Ft. Lauderdale and in September from Seattlewith stops in the Orient, South Asia, the Middle East and the Mediterranean.
Adult Education Programs also Available
Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, Semester at Sea offers students a superior full semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester full credit experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities.
More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts.
Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available.
Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The S.S. Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America.
For a free color brochure, write: Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in Pennsylvania (412) 624-6021).
Student Representative will be in Campus Center Concourse from 10 to 2 Tues thru Thurs
SLIDE SHOWS
Tues 7:00 pm Leach House Northeast
Wed. 7:00 pm John Adams 12 floor lounge
Thurs. 7:00 pm, CC Rm 803
Financial Aid is available to qualified students

Feel Expensive!! Look Great!!

Expensive in every way, except PRICE!!
Hair styling for today's men & women at reasonable price;
$7.50 for a style
Marjon Hair Design
Rt. 9
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, MA 586-4551
Hours: Sat 10-4
Tues thru Fri 10-6

Arts

The Grateful Dead

GRATEFUL DEAD
Providence Civic Center
Friday, April 27

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Staff

Year after year the Grateful Dead tour New England. Unlike most bands, twice a year, they play four or five shows within a radius of about two hundred miles of Amherst. This has generated a wealth of tradition which has had it's highs and lows over the years.

Within this lore each new show finds its place. The last couple of tours have often been a struggle to enjoy, the Hartford show last tour being a notable exception. If this collection of shows represented a running river then last Friday's show managed to tread water in that river of fame and entertainment.

Rather than breaking new ground, the sold out audience was treated by the band to a solid evening's worth of entertainment.

Playing a menage of old and new material, both sets were filled with enough diversity that most of the audience never got bored, although a good thirty percent of the audience doesn't seem to be able to understand the subtlty of playing quietly.

Opening up with average versions of "Alabama Getaway", and the old Chuck Berry song, "Promised Land", the band slowly built it's way into the climax and finale of the first set, "The Music Never Stopped". Part of what made the first set so good was not only what they played ("Dire Wolf", "Row Jimmy Row", "Me and My Uncle-Big River", "Althea", "Brother Esau", and "Big Railroad Blues") but what they could have played but didn't. Including a new song that was played on the last two tours by Keyboardist Brent Mydland that sounds like .38 Special and a really boring rendition of "C.C. Rider" sung by Bob Weir.

The second set turned out to be a mediy of eight songs plus a drum solo. Opening with one of their bigger "hits", "Playing in the Band", they soon segued into a very pretty version of "China Doll", a slow melodic song about the recovery from the problems of gaps in the thread of friendship or love. It is a pretty melodic combination of harpsicord, bass, and guitars. And it was beautiful to hear. And then in a major break of second set tradition, Jerry Garcia proceeded to play a second song, "High Time". Everything fell apart as they broke into this little rehearsed song from "Workingman's Dead." But in a good way. The crowd went wild. Garcia's drawing out of the words met with the crowd's approval at the end of each line and even though there was no solo, nobody cared.

In general Garcia's soloing style has evolved into an eclectic mismatch of styles. Sometimes he seems to be a beat or two out of phase, intentionally. Sometimes he sounds like the guitarists for .38 Special, or The Outlaws, or any other of those southern rock phenomena. and sometimes it sounded like he was weaving his way around a solo that he would have played two or three years ago, playing every note except the one he would have played.

The musicianship of the rest of the group remains pretty near infallible. But, and there always are some, Mickey Hart and Bill Kreutzman's drumming sounded a little out of place in the first set, almost as if they were playing counterpoints without playing the points themselves. And on about half the songs you couldn't hear Bob Weir playing at all.

At any rate. After "High Time" they broke into Warren Zevon's tounge in cheek "Women are Smarter". Concentrating on the rhythms of the song rather than trying to have Garcia solo over it provided the audience an opportunity to dance with the slowing developing beat. The crowd continued to dance as the beat faded into the drum solo and then into a section of music that sounded like it came from the Vietnam TV series on PBS, which Hart and Kreutzman did the music for.

After the band had returned to the stage and fed back for a while they fell into a version of "The Wheel". After the dark wailing sounds of the feedback "The Wheel" was resiliant. But that was really the end of the out of the ordinary as they broke into "Wharf Rat", and a medly of Chuck Berry songs, "Around and Around" and "Johnny B. Goode" to end the set. Both the first and the second sets got cut short. The first ended when Bob got tired of jamming, which was a shame because Garcia was really playing well, and the second set they just stopped. When they played "I Will Get By" for the encore, it was clear that they should have played it as one last song in the second set and not the encore, but they're getting old and tired...

There are Grateful Dead shows and there are Grateful Dead shows. A friend of mine says that the way to see them is not to take them seriously but to treat them as a dance band. This concert was alot of fun and that is really all you can ask from a musical event, unless you've been promised more.

"How much art can you take?"
Come down to the Arts Desk at the Collegian and find out.

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13 (whitewall trim)
$32.00 includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"Full Service Tire Store"
78 Sunderland Rd.
No Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobas Store
549-4704

Mother's Day is May 12th
Remember your mother on her day.
Send a card from
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Think you're pregnant?
Use Predictor In-Home Pregnancy Test. It's the same as a hospital test.
You're on your own for the first time and life is a lot different now. If you think you might be pregnant, you want to know for sure. This is the time to use Predictor In-Home Pregnancy Test. It's the exact same test method used in over 2,000 hospitals and 13 million laboratory tests nationwide. So you know Predictor is accurate.
Predictor can be used as soon as nine days after you miss your period. It's convenient and gives you results in just one hour. Think you're pregnant? Remember, you can use Predictor with confidence, it's the test method used in over 2,000 American hospitals
Nothing Predicts Pregnancy more accurately.
PREDICTOR
Pregnancy Test

"Why does our technological capability exceed overall while our social evolution is relatively in the stone age?" Will Roberts
Beyond the Nuclear: Masculinity and Military Socialization Is the issue
BETWEEN MEN is the film
Presented IN PERSON
By Will Roberts
(MEN'S LIVES)
57 minutes Color
16 mm
MONDAY
APRIL 30
HERTER 231
7:30PM

This ground breaking documentary is the only film to win BOTH the Diploma of Moscow (USSR) AND the George Washington Honor Medal (USA)
Also awarded a Blue Ribbon at the American Film Festival, a Gold Cindy from IFPA and a Gold Medal from the Festival of the Americas
FREE
"Military intelligence is a contradiction in terms." Groucho Marx
FREE

"My body is expecting."
An unwanted pregnancy can make you feel that you have no say over what your body is doing. But you do have a say. And a Preterm counselor will help you figure out what you want to do about it. Call today. Because some things are too important to be left to your body. Preterm. 738-6210.
preterm
The most experienced reproductive health care center in the Northeast.
1842 Beacon Street
Brookline, MA 02146

TRENDS IN AMERICA:
APPLICATIONS FOR MARKETING
given by FRED POSNER, V.P.
NWAYER, INC, N.Y.
(one of the largest ad agencies)
Weds May 2nd 7:00 PM
Campus Center 904-908

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Earn Academic Credit while gaining experience in marketing, public relations, counseling, and student affairs administration. Become an intern in the University's Undergraduate Admissions Office. Interviews begin April 30 Contact the Office of Internships

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Monday and Tuesday
Star 80 7:10
Frances 9:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

BLUEWALL CAFETERIA
This Week's Menu
Mon — Veal Parmigiana
Beef Smothered in Onions
Tues — Shepherd's Pie
Chicken Cacciatore
Wed — Corned Beef and Cabbage
Bacon and Onion Quiche
Thurs — Chicken Cutlet w/Supreme Sauce
Cream Beef on Toast
Fri — Baked Fish
Tuna Noodle Casserole
Entrees are served with two vegetables, rolls and butter.
Daily homemade soups and chowders.
Assorted desserts - Full bar service.
Don't forget our fine deli sandwiches.
MON.-FRI. 11:15-1:30

HEALTH and BEAUTY AID
SALE
Crest 6.4 oz. $1.37 save 60¢
Colgate Toothbrush 51¢
Silkience 7 oz. shampoo or conditioner $1.49 Save 79¢
Scope 24 oz. $2.23
DOUBLE MANUFACTURERS COUPONS on HBA Items
Contac 10's $2.12
Buf-Puf sponge reg or gentle $1.70 Save $1.52
Secret Solid 2 oz. $1.73 Save $1.10
14 oz. J & J Baby Powder $1.83 save 77¢
Open M-F 9-4 Sat 11-4 Located in Campus Center
Sale items are also available in the Mini Store
UNIVERSITY STORE

Condom Sense
A Film about sexuality and contraception.
Place: UMass Campus Center, Room 811
Date: Monday, April 30
Time: 7 p.m.
This event is free of charge, and sponsored by the Student Health Advisory Board. shab

PREPARE FOR
MCAT • LSAT • GMAT
SAT • ACT • DAT • GRE • CPA
Our 46th year
Enrolling Now For
June 18
LSAT
Transfer to a Kaplan Center near home after finals
Stanley H. KAPLAN Educational Center
Call Days Eves & Weekends
368 N. Pleasant St Amherst 549-5780
For information about other centers Outside NY State CALL TOLL FREE 800 223-1782
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The Strip Jim Walsh

The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert

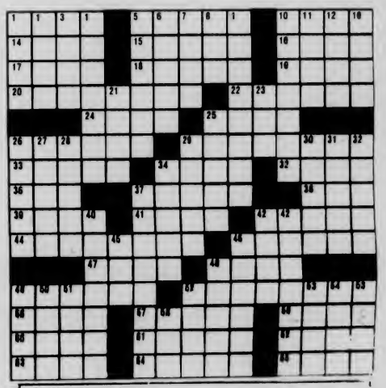
Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Royal Zucchini Beef Parmesan
Grilled Ham and Cheese Sandwich

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Chili
Grilled Cheese on Wheatberry

DINNER
Turkey Divan
Fish Fry/ Tartar Sauce
Deviled Egg Cold Plate



BASICS DINNER
Cheese Spinach Squares
Fish Fry/Tartar Sauce

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Rudiments
5 Stage figure
10 Kind of weapon
14 Wear or work word
15 Sheer linen
16 Dr.'s picture
17 Cantata feature
18 Charge
19 Affectation
20 Big Top name
22 Puts down
24 Chacun a son ——
25 Presence
26 Steady current
29 Records quitting time
33 Type of terrier
34 Corral need
35 Catania sight
36 Connectives
37 Wove rattan
38 Sandy's cap
39 Recipient, in law
41 Remorseful one
42 Figure of speech
44 Desirable vantage point
46 Tart features
47 Tough
48 Raise ——
49 Arena actions
?? Pheasant feature
56 Cosmetic ingredient
57 Noticeable
59 Raison d'——
60 Historic caravel
61 Member of the family
62 Relic of the past
63 Horticultural stock
64 Passover service
65 Brothers and sisters, for short

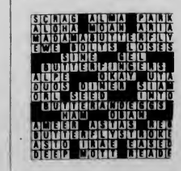
DOWN
1 At a distance
2 Lucrezia of opera
3 Pocket piece
4 Zigzag
5 Hall in a Roman home
6 Nobleman
7 Bell sound
8 Ending with pay
9 Held back
10 Area
11 Mets, Jets and Nets
12 Comfort
13 Facial features
21 Bank transaction
23 Request fervently
25 Ritual headdress
26 Clean vigorously
27 Ankle bones
28 Up
29 Figure in Delhi society
30 Roman emperors
31 Inappropriate
32 Domesticates
34 Garish
37 College colors
40 One of the literati?
42 Akin to geom.
43 Pung features
45 Tended a child
46 Horse show gait
48 Legendary enchantress
49 Members of a claque
50 Nastase
51 Finished
52 Papyrus, e.g.
53 Needleworker's kit
54 Rural storage unit
55 Recognizes, old style
58 Compete against

The Massachusetts Daily
Collegian

Run-off Election

★★★ TODAY!

All Collegian staff members are reminded that a run-off election for the position of Editor in Chief will be held from 9am-8pm today in the newsroom.



VOTE

Weather

Today increasing clouds, with showers possible in the afternoon. Temperatures about 70 degrees. Showers will end tonight, with temperatures about 50 degrees. Tuesday sunny and windy, temperatures around 60 degrees.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

The New York Times
Best Sellers

New York Times	BEST SELLERS
Fiction	Non-Fiction
1. The Aquitaine Progression	1. Motherhood: The Second Oldest Profession
2. The Haj	2. Mayor
3. Heretics of Dune	3. The March of Folly
4. The Butter Battle Book	4. Tough Times Never Last, But Tough People Do!
5. The Danger	5. Mafia Princess
6. One More Sunday	6. Lines and Shadows
7. Lord of the Dance	7. The Discoverers
8. Smart Women	8. Further Up the Organization
9. Pet Sematary	9. A light in the Attic
10. Almost Paradise	10. On Wings of Eagles

$2.00 OFF List Price

All New York Times Best Sellers

*Hardcover editions only

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Kittle leads Chisox win

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Kittle drove in five runs with two home runs and the Chicago White Sox snapped a five-game losing streak Sunday with a 6-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Kittle capped a three-run first with a two-run homer and slammed his second in the third after Greg Walker and Greg Luzinski had singled.

Both blows came off rookie pitcher All Nipper, 0-1, a last-minute starter after Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd was sidelined with the flu.

White Sox right-hander Richard Dotson, 3-2, worked into the ninth, scattering hits.

In the first, Jerry Remy and Dwight Evans both reached on successive errors by Jerry Cruz. Remy scored on a single by Mike Easler and Evans scored as Jim Rice bounced into a double play.

Marc Hill doubled in the Chicago first and scored on a single by Lusinski before Kittle hit his homer.

Boston added a run in the second on singles by Reid Nichols and Ed Jurak and Glenn Hoffman's infield out. The Red Sox scored their fourth run in the eighth when Easler singled, went to second on an infield out and scored on Rich Gedman's single.

For information and the latest news I read the Collegian.

Celtics crush N.Y.

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird shook off a sprained ankle to score 23 points, and Robert Parish sparked two key first half surges as the Boston Celtics whipped the New York Knicks 110-92 in the opener of their National Basketball Association playoff series Sunday.

Bird started and played up until 3:33 was left in the game. He fell to the floor after scoring and limped to the locker room.

Bernard King, who had scored more than 40 points in each of New York's last four games, was held to 26.

Leading 39-30, the Celtice went on a 10-2 spurt to take a 49-32 lead with 5:59 in the first half. Parish got three of the five field goals and passed off to set up the other two.

Boston made 63 percent of its field goal attempts in the first half, compared to the Knicks' 39 percent, and led 64-44 at intermission.

Thew Knicks never threatened in the second half, when Boston's lead ranged from 18 to 26 points.

Kevin Hale gave the Celtics 25 points. Parish aided 12

★ Softball

continued from p. 12

UMass, after eking out a hit in the first innings, rocked Temple for two runs and three hits in the fifth and five runs and five hits in the sixth.

"We really did what we had to do," Sortino said. "I'm very proud of them the way they came back after losing by big scores."

"When things go so wrong as they did for us," Sortino said, "you find out what you're made of. This weekend was tougher than the Atlantic 10. It was a crucial weekend and a hard one."

Rioux called the Temple win "a step in the right direction. We rose to the occasion in the second game."

PLAYOFF NOTES — With the URI sweep, UMass clinched the A-10 East title with a 3-1 record. Rutgers and UMass will represent the East while Penn State and Temple will, most likely, represent the west.

Tournament play starts Friday at Rutgers.

Get more than a tan this summer.

Summer Session begins June 7.
Register NOW.

Registration for credit courses
Advance walk-in through May 31
Records and Registration
University Library

Registration for credit-free workshops
Telephone 545-0587
In-person Records and Registration
University Library

If you are applying for financial aid, the process should be started IMMEDIATELY. Contact the Financial Aid Office in Whitmore for details.

DCE DIVISION OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

WOW! BOOKSTORE SPECIAL WOW!

ONLY $5.00 per CARTON, WE PROVIDE THE CARTONS!

Special Truckload Shipment from a Midwest Warehouse!

TEXTBOOK ANNEX
MONDAY - FRIDAY
9:00 - 4:00

THIS WEEK ONLY
SALE ENDS MAY 4
GET YOURS NOW!

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Audi Fox automatic good condition new brakes, struts $800 firm 665-3509 after 6 PM

'71 LTD 2 dr runs great $1000 invested recently must sell $595/BO 546-8917

CAPE COD SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Jason's of Dennisport is now hiring all bar personel for summer employment. Must have experience. Interviews are on 5/5 and 5/12 from 12 noon to 3. 228 Lower County Rd. Dennisport

DRIVE A BUS

Western Mass Bus Lines is accepting applications to our bus driver training program to prepare students for part time work in September. Qualifications include a clean driving record of 3 years, availability to train through this summer, committment to work through May, 1985, and student status at one of the 5-Colleges. Apply in person at 59 Service Center St. N'ton Mon-Fri

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FOR RENT

Furnished efficiency with carpet, AC. Summer sublet, fall option $205. 323-6704

3-1/2 rooms Presidential Apts. incls. refrigerator, air conditioner, dishwasher. Walk to GRC. One block to bus stop. Available 6/1 to 8/31 w/option to renew. $305 + utilities. Call 549-5881.

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

2 rooms 100 yds from campus. Beachfront location. Summer sublet fall option. Nonsmokers call 549-0533

One bedroom apt. in Crestview, summer w/fall option $360 + utilities 549-5949

Looking for 1 nonsmoking female in Brandywine apt 549-4769

Brittany two bedroom, fall option July August rent free 256-1062

2 bdrm N Amherst bus route 375 + avail 6/1 549-6894 evenings

1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summr and fall semester '84 Amherst 256-1205

One or two bedroom apt available June 1st, w/fall option. 350/month, include heat and hot water. Close to Amherst Center. Call Melissa or Lisa 549-7757

FOR SALE

Mattress, box spring and frame, full size, like new. Plus couch and 4 pairs of drapes. Asking $175 for all. Call 549-5881

Mistral Sailboards. All styles. Good price. Angie 549-4440

Mens 26" Raleigh Bicycle new dorm refrigerator Bearcat programmable scanner BO 6-9141

Computer Terminal with 300 baud modem $300 323-5574

FOUND

Silver Bracelet found next to the Rand sometime around April 19th. Call me and describe it. 6-6924 Jennifer

Women's Spring Jacket in Hampshire DC call 549-6287 or 549-2147 ask for Maria

Pencil case in Herter identify Karen 256-8135

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Lifeguard/Swim Inst. at private camp in Pocono Mts. 2-3 pos avl 4 Red Cross cert inds 18+. July thru Aug. Call Russ at 542-3059 for info

Tutor needed for Beginning Apl. will pay $8/hr. please call 253-7821

COUNSELORS, private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, softball, photography, computers, director/piano accompaniest, dance/movement/shoe choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders. Good salaries. Friendly atmosphere. Contact Jodi 546-9668

Cruiseships Hiring $16-30,000! Carribean, Hawaii, World. Call for Guide, Directory, Newsletter. 1-(916)-944-4444 X Massachusetts

HONEY BUNNY

Thanks so much for the wonderful times we've had together. I love you so much. You're the best. Happy 1 year. Love always, Gina

JEFF FECKO

Legal at last! Hope it was a great day! Happy 20th! Love - Robin

LOST

Lost - Red leather jacket at Elvis set of keys (toyota car and gas key and house key) in pocket Marco Moroni label. Please contact 256-0924

Lost: Gold tone watch. If found please call Mary 546-5424

Wallet 8th floor Library Tower April 25 keep the money if you must. Reward 253-9431

MOTORCYCLES

71 Honda CL 350 runs needs work best offer ask for Clay evenings 256-0363

NEED A PLACE

Wanted: 3 females to share a beautiful 5 br. house - 15 min. walk to campus - bus stops right in front. All 3 to have own room nice! Under $200 call immed. 546-6667 anytime

NEWPORT

Wanted room in house or apt from June - Sept. Call Amy in the evening at 549-5619 please keep trying

PERSONALS

Attention all Greeks: Greekfest Don't forget - May 2-8 fun and games parties

Great DEAL! Summer sublet - fall option 3 bedroom Swiss Village Apt furnished 253-3971

Wanted: or haunted Keith Liederman by Cheri Machlin (cousin) 546-1281

Lisa Mildred Have a blatantly Happy Birthday you ancient woman you! Amy

Jeannie - Love ya - your 'Shew

Dr. Ruth Westheimer
"Sexually Speaking"
You have seen Dr Ruth on the Tonight Show and Late Night with David Letterman and heard her on WYNY in NY come see her in person Mon. May 7 Student Union Ballroom 8 PM Tickets now available $2. 5-College at Fine Arts Center $4. General Pub

Dr Ruth Westheimer
"Sexually Speaking"
see her on Late Night with David Letterman on May 3 ask her questions in person on Monday May 7 Student Union Ballroom
$2. 5-College $4. General Public tickets available in advance at Fine Arts Center and all Datatix locs

Is it true you can buy jeeps for $44 through the US Government? Get the facts today! Call (312) 742-1142 ext 5931-A

We have the lowest airfares to Europe and across America for free color brochure, write to: Campus Travel Box 11387 St. Louis, MO 63105

PITCHER

Pitcher Softball - Semifast who can teach me to throw rise, knuckle, curve, etc. Will pay good for good results. Call John 549-4067

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

Ride urgently needed to Toronto or Buffalo area 24 May or 25 May call 546-9459 after 11:00 pm will share expenses and driving

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Room wented in W Yarmouth for summer call Brian 665-3225

Room wented in Nhampton for summer & fall. Deirdre 584-8122 after 11

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Responsible women to share sunny Southwood apt summer/fall 253-5109

Female nonsmoker to share 4 room N'ton apt 205/mth May-Aug pos through May 85 586-9938

Two housemates wanted for summer in W Yarmouth $800 each by May 26. Call Sue or Laura 546-9880

Female roommate wanted for Townehouse Apt. For more info call 549-5531

Looking for male nonsmoker tov share a room in Brandywine call 549-7692

Shere two bedroom apt male or female Brittany Manor mid May with fall option 3rd floor furnished call 253-2140

Two males needed to share house in Dennisport for summer. Call 546-4308 or 546-5067 keep trying

Famale roommete wanted for fall '84 Brandywine apts for more info call 549-7868

Roommate for 2 bedroom apt call after 6 pm ask for Keren 665-4896

Looking for 2 roommates for apt in Brandywine male or female 549-7797

Puffton, sumemr w/fall option 549-4430 before 11:00 pm, 545-3541 (8-4)

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

TYPING--Fast, reliable, professional. Stats, manuscripts, correspondence, resumes, etc. 665-3414

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

Beautiful Apt. Amherst Center 2 bedrms reasonable $, Aug free! 549-7800

Puffton Villege 3 bdrms 2 single 1 shared with female $100/ea furnished

Brandywine! 1½ bedrooms in 2 bdrm apt close to SN/SA and NA/BR bus routes call us - we'll talk! 549-4824

2 bedroom Townehouse apt to sublet for June - Sept rent negotiable call 546-9596

One bedroom apt close to campus and center. Pets allowed. rent for sumemr get August free. $225/month 253-2729

* Pick us! * Awesome townhouse in Southwood * summer  cheap  call today!!! 256-1098 or 256-0984

1 bedroom avellable in Brandywine call 549-0116, 6-6943, 6-4239

Two bedroom Brandywine apt avellable for sumemr sublet. Rent negotiable call 549-6398

Summer sublet Brandywine apt very reasonable rent call 549-7868

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

1 bedroom, furnished, Puffton for summer sublet 549-5153

Brandywine swimming pool, air cond with rent, call 546-4791, 549-1405

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

GOOD DEAL 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet. Available June 1st thru Sept. 1st. Call Marsha 549-1511 or Michele 546-4917

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village availa June 1 - Sept 1 256-1301

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

1 bedroom Southwood townhouse summer sublet with fall option available June 1 253-7031

2 bdrm ¼ mile from campus AC cable blcy call Beth 545-0046

From June 1 with fall option two bedroom on Sunderland bus route 330/month 665-8314

One bedroom available in 3 bedroom Rolling Gree townhouse starting June 1 fall option 163 mo 253-5356

Furnished Puffton Apart rent cheap close to bus stop call 546-4966

For summer: roommate needed in Presidential apts call evenings 549-5808

Puffton summer sublet with fall option 1 bedrm in 2 bedrm apt mature, responsible, female 549-4869

Presidential room availeble inexpensive 546-4191 546-7189 close to campus call evenings

3 bedroom Northwood apt $340 avail May 1st w/fall option on bus route call 665-8514

2 large bedrooms in clean So Amherst house on two bus lines quiet neighborhood reasonable 253-5196

1 bdrm 295 month includes utilities, swimming pool, tennis + dishwasher evenings 665-8766

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt fantastic location $125 call Carolyn 253-3630

Summer sublet with possible fall option. Large bedroom in two bedroom Southwood apartment for one or two females 256-8379

Summer sublet Rolling Gren two bedroom furnished all util incl AC Rich 6-6389

One bedroom in Presidential summer sub/fall option 355/mo 549-6644

Cheap 2 bdrm Brendywine apt for summer, pool. Please call anytime 6-5344, 6-5362

w/fall option one room in 4 bedroom house 10 mon walk to campus $160/mo summer rent neg Gail 253-3630 eve

TRAVEL

Montreal Party Weekend! May 4-6 $79 10 spaces left! Call today! 549-1671

Discount travel to Europe: from $99. Travel to Rome, Athens, Lisbon, London, Paris, Frankfurt, etc. from only $99. each way. Call now or send for your FREE brochure. Operators always on duty. Enclose one dollar for postage and handling. Europe Express, Inc. 3460 Main Street, Hartford, CT 06120 (203) 522-6580

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Townhouse or Brandywine apt. wanted for fall will take in June call Jim 256-1072 eves $100 reward

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term, please call the RIDE SERVICE 545-2145

WANTED TO RENT

2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village call Karen 549-4684

3-4 bedroom apt in Amherst or vicinity will take in summer or fall 546-6172 or 546-6162

Wanted Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-6141

Sports

Gorillas hold off late Army siege

Moreau and defense excel

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

It was everything you would want in a lacrosse game. Beautiful weather, a big crowd, a good game between two highly-ranked teams, featuring tough defense and goaltending and the right outcome--unless you're an Army fan.

The University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team gave their post-season hopes a big boost by holding off a late Army surge and taking a thrilling 7-6 win over the fourth-ranked Cadets Saturday on sun-drenched Boyden Hill.

The Gorillas, ranked 11th in the country, led 7-5 with 8:51 to go in the game and held off an intense Army comeback with the defense and goalie Gerry Moreau being big, big factors.

Army's leading scorer Pete Short pulled Army to within one with 3:30 to go as he beat Moreau with a shot low in the net. That shot was followed by some furious pressure by Army as they sought the equalizer. But Moreau and the UMass defense stood tall.

"They were great, but very tired," UMass head coach Dick Garber said. "I saved my timeouts 'til the end of the game so the defense could rest."

"Our game plan," Garber said, "was to go for the fast break but if it wasn't clean to pull and set it up."

The Gorillas came to play Saturday. Although UMass was a little intimidated early by Army's extremely aggressive defense, once they got the ball into the offensive end, they were all right.

"They're probably the best pressure defense in the country," said Garber. "We handled the ball well. They forced errors, but we didn't lose our cool. This and Cornell were the best played games of the year."

Massachusetts, now 5-3 on the year, took the 1-0 lead when Tom Lukacovic took a Karl Hutton rebound from in front of the net and fired it past Army's all-American goalie George Slabowski with 2:48 gone in the first quarter.

Army's Rob Hoynes tied it up at 1-1 after he bounced a shot off Moreau's stick two minutes later.

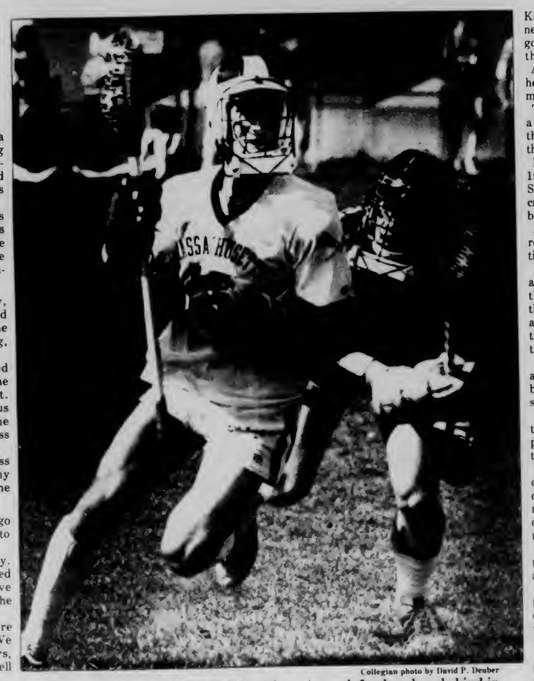
The game stayed tied until Greg Fisk took a Bubba Sandford pass and bounced it in at the 10:50 mark of the first quarter to put the Gorillas up 2-1.

Fisk scored his second of the game just 1:18 into the second quarter as his shot hit Slabowski, went up in the air and under the crossbar. Fisk played a good game despite a bad ankle.

Army was down, but not out. They responded with two goals in two minutes to tie it up 3-3 at halftime.

The second half started out well for UMass as Hatton scored the first of his two goals of the day, another bounce shot, 1:20 into the third quarter for a 4-3 UMass lead. But after that, there was a lot of midfield play throughout much of the quarter as both teams had trouble setting up on offense.

Ed Boardman finally got the game rolling again as he warded off a defender and put it by Slabowski for his fourth goal of the season to give UMass a 5-3 lead.



But Pete Short, Army's leading attackman, brought his team right back. He put in a backhander to cut the UMass lead to 5-4 at the end of the third quarter.

Then on to a big play early in the fouth quarter. After the Gorillas hit the crossbar down at one end of the field, Army came right back with its strong fastbreak, a two-on-one, but was stopped by Moreau, who made a key save.

That save was crucial, because about two minutes later, Short tied the game up again at 5-5, with his second straight goal.

The Gorillas responded right back. Thirty-five seconds later, Hatton scored his second of the half to give UMass the 6-5 lead. They would never again be behind. Garber had nothing but praise for his big midfielder.

"Karl can be one of the great lacrosse players in the country. Some days he comes to play and some he doesn't. Today he played great," added Garber.

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

Perry Seale moves downfield with an Army defender close behind in UMass big upset win over Army before a big crowd at Boyden Saturday.

Victory celebration

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

THE THRILL OF IT ALL! — Tom Lukacovic, a Gorilla co-captain, (22) jumps with elation as the horn sounds at the end of Saturday's 7-6 win over 4th ranked Army.

Softball sweeps to playoff berth trounced by UConn, Temple

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

It is a common occurance in sports. When the chips are down, then you'll find out what kind of team you have. The University of Massachusetts softball team found out just how tough they were this weekend.

First, they accomplished a pre-season goal qualifying for the Atlantic 10 tournament with a 9-1, 1-0 (eight innings) sweep of Rhode Island on Friday.

However, coming off the emotional high of the URI wins, UMass came up flat and dropped a doubleheader to undefeated UConn (16-0) on Saturday 1-0, 4-1. Yesterday, Temple pounded UMass 6-0 in their doubleheader opener before UMass took the nightcap, 7-0.

The Temple doubleheader was UMass' eighth game in four days. With a 3-3 record this weekend, UMass now stands at 26-10 on the year.

"I never said it was going to be easy," head coach Elaine Sortino said after the Temple doubleheader.

It certainly wasn't.

In the losses to UConn and Temple, everything that could go wrong did. Fielders couldn't get a handle on the ball, balls bounced out of gloves, the batters struck out and lined shots at their opponents.

The harder UMass tried, the more mistakes they made.

"We didn't get a break," co-captain Allyson Rioux said. "We had to dig a lot deeper and work harder to bounce back."

UMass was flying high after sweeping Rhode Island for the first time in five years on Friday. UMass totally demolished URI in the opener 9-1 with a big seven-run, three-hit fifth inning helped by five URI errors. Along with a Rioux 2 RBI double and Beth Talbott's RBI single, UMass led 8-0 after three and URI was in shock.

"You can't make that many errors and expect to go unscathed," WRam coach Nancy Langham, who led her team to a NCAA berth last year, said.

Nothing went wrong for UMass in the URI opener. Rioux went 3-for-3 with a home run, triple and double with 3 RBI. Lynn Stockley went the distance striking out seven.

The second game was what both teams expected — a close, tight ballgame. Cathy Reed pitched superbly scattering four hits. URI's Cathy Bade was just as good allowing only two hits. But one came in the bottom of the eighth.

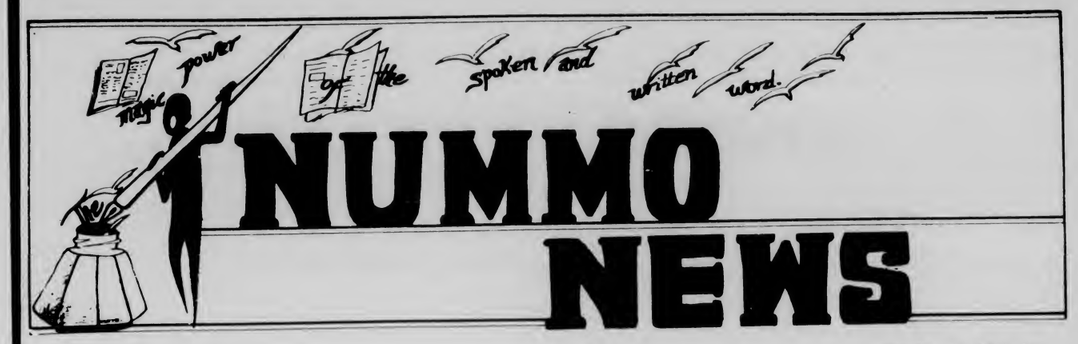
Emily Bietsch singled on a bunt, moved to second on Debbie Cole's fielder's choice and to third on Tina Coffin's bunt sacrifice.

With two out, Sally Maher sent a shot at the second baseman Janet Simmons, who bobbled and made a late throw leaving Maher safe, Bietsch at home and UMass 1-0 winners.

"We were really pumped up for both games " Coffin said.

Sortino said, "We rattled them. We went out and set the tone."

In the next three games, UMass would see UConn and Temple set the tone. Saturday in Storrs, UMass played flat and listless and dropped two. Stockley threw a one-hitter but three UMass errors gave UConn the 1-0 win. The Minutemen, while getting six hits, stranded eight on base.



In the second UConn game, the Huskies jumped out to a quick 2-0 lead and doubled it in the fourth on a home run.

"We were not ready for UConn," Sortino said. "It was their biggest game of the year. It wasn't for us. We needed to be our best and we weren't."

Yesterday against Temple, the woes continued. Stockley got shelled, giving up nine hits as the Minutewomen could not get untracked.

In the second game though, UMass broke out of its slump. Reed again pitched superbly, giving up two hits in the first and one in the third and that was it.

continued on p. 10

NUMMO NEWS

Monday, April 30, 1984 Volume 12 Issue 20

connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution

Looking Back and Forward: NUMMO S Ninth Year

by Onelda Fox
Nummo Correspondent

In 1974, the Collegian printed a cartoon that depicted Chancellor Randolph Bromery as a minstrel man. A group of Black and Spanish students staged daily sit-ins for several days at the Collegian office in protest of the cartoon and to demand better representation.

This was the first step that led to the formation of Nummo News, which is celebrating its ninth year of publication.

"We negotiated to establish a Black Affairs Page with two paid positions - editor and assistant editor," said Sherwood Thompson, assistant editor of the first Black Affairs Page, and current director of the Office of Third World Affairs.

The page was established to help people think more positively about issues that concern minorities. They felt the Collegian was not giving them adequate space, and problems with the use of equipment arose often. This made them consider alternatives to inform the Third World community, said Assistant Director of Admissions Rudolph Jones, who was the first Black Affairs editor.

It then became important that Third World students not only have their own editorial control within the Collegian, but a newspaper of their own, Jones said.

"Why should (minority) students submit work to white people, to be censored. They (the students) wanted independence, to write whatever they wanted," said John Bracey, associate professor of the Afro-American Studies Department.

The staff of Black Affairs established Nummo News under the "inspiration" of Shirley Graham-Du Bois, then a writing instructor at UMass. The first edition was published on April 25, 1975.

"Nummo" was derived from Paul Harrison's book, "The Drama of Nommo." "Nommo" is an African word meaning the power of the written and spoken word. In African culture, "the use of the word can call all things," Bracey said.

"Nummo was used as a training ground for Black students that wanted to learn how to use media more effectively - especially newspapers," Jones said.

The focus was to bring out an alternative and independently-run Third World paper; with contributing writers from the Five-College area, to inform the community of events, Thompson said.

The concept was, "Transnational East - Blacks and (other) minorities looking at the East instead of (looking) at the West. Every issue consisted of events and issues that imparted on minority students," Jones said.

The Collegian felt Nummo News was radical and disclaimed it legally. Nummo states on every issue that their only association with the Collegian is for distribution, because they feel that the papers have different perspectives.

The initial staff consisted of Tim Johnson, Kandi Bourne, Sandra Jackson, Cheryl Johnson, Sherwood Thompson and Rudolph Jones. In 1978, the past staff of Nummo reunited to protest because the name of the paper was changed to "Grass Roots." After the meeting the original name was reinstated, Thompson said.

According to Thompson, the major difference between Nummo then and now, is that the paper then had no connection with UMass: it was independently run and circulated.

"Nummo News is a good paper today, but it can be better than what it is, " Jones said. He feels there should be more focus on critical issues - "better news coverage by Nummo News."

Thompson feels Nummo has progressed because it has lasted for nine years and has increased its circulation. "The community out-reach part is impressive and progressive," he said.

"Nummo News is a lot better now, more news and less pictures," said Bracey. "For the past two years it has responded to what is going on now. In the past there was too much wire service. If I want to read wire service news I can read it in the Globe."

Bracey said, "Wire service should not be used as a crutch. It should be used only to print Third World news that will not be printed otherwise. " Fill up the paper with local news: focus on what is happening here and at this point; that is what Nummo is doing," he said.

Thompson said that in order for Nummo to survive it has to reach out into the out-lining community; to act as a spokesman for Third World students and groups on this campus and other communities.

"I think Nummo's future is very bright," he said.

The Inimitable Basie: some things last forever.

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

Legendary pianist William "Count" Basie died on Thursday, April 26, 1984, of a cancer he didn't know he had, at Doctors' Hospital in Florida.

Basie's death will be mourned the world over, because his music is loved "from Trenton to Tokyo." Said Prof. Ernest Allen, "Basie led a full and incredible life. He left a legacy of Big Band music that will endure."

The Count was born in Red Bank, New Jersey on August 21, 1904. He was an only child. He first started out playing drums, but was convinced to try the piano. As he grew older his skills increased. He became an accompanist on 14th Street in New York City.

The band's first act was at the Grand Terrace in Chicago. The band went from a nine-piece band to a thirteen-piece band, but Basie wanted his thirteen-piece band to work together like nine-piece bands did.

Because he didn't have much music when he first began, Basie borrowed a few pieces, but in time the band had more than enough lyrics to produce (all of) their own arrangements.

From Chicago, the band moved to New York. The band had its own "loose and swinging style." Many other great musicians passed through Basie's band and consider the experience invaluable and Basie, a national treasure.

Continued on page 2

The Campaign Continues

by Boyce Slayman,
State Coordinator of the Jesse Jackson
For President Committee
'84.

The Jackson campaign has now entered a new phase, just as crucial as the one before the March 13 primary.

It is now becoming clear that the campaign is a national movement of historic dimensions: a movement of the poor and disenfranchised into the political arena, a movement to transform the Democratic Party by making it accountable to neglected issues and real human needs.

When journalists and historians write the story of then 1984 elections, it will be the story of Jesse's candidacy.

On a national level, Jesse's campaign has surged forward with increasing momentum. As the strategy assumed, the South proved to be Jesse's stronghold. He captured 143,000 votes (21 percent) in Georgia; 142,000 (17 percent) in Florida; 81,000 (19 percent) in Alabama; he won South Carolina and Mississippi, placed second in the popular vote in Arkansas and captured first place in the Virginia caucuses with 32 percent of the vote.

Jesse has also inspired strong showings in the urban North, taking second place in Chicago, 12 percent in Connecticut (winning Hartford), 26 percent in New York (34 percent in NYC), 17 percent in Pennsylvania (winning Philadelphia).

As the election season wears on, the national media more and more are forced to acknowledge that his campaign is changing the face of the political map in the United States.

Jesse has emerged as a major contender, besting his opponents in national debates and coming off well under the relentless scrutiny of the media, and has shown he is leader of a powerful and independent force in electoral politics that the Democratic Party must treat with respect.

The party can no longer afford to ignore the Rainbow agenda. The Republican Party also is recognizing that the Jackson forces must be contended with in the coming period.

Therefore, Jesse's message is finally getting through to the Democratic National Committee and getting results.

His focus is on several major demands or themes: vigorous enforcement of the Voting Rights Act, including an end to run-off primaries in the South, which prevent Black candidates from being nominated by the Democratic Party, and an end to dual registration; and a $60 billion cut in the military budget in order to rebuild the civilian economy and fund human needs.

Jesse is the only candidate advocating a cut, as opposed to a reduced rate of increase, in the military budget. He is the only candidate pointing up the relation between the misery of the poor and the growing militarization of the economy.

Jesse's upcoming trip to Nicaragua and his strong statements condemning the mining of Nicaraguan harbors also demonstrates that he is the only candidate truly commited to real peace.

The national media consistently portrayed Jesse's campaign as a "black candidacy," ignoring the full significance and scope of his message for women, poor whites, union workers, peace activists and all those struggling for real change.

While the candidate himself has acknowledge his disappointment that he has not obtained more than 10 percent of the white vote in any state, we recognize that movements for social change go through stages of development. Jesse's vote represents the strong base for this stage of the movement.

The Students for Jesse Jackson Committe believes the Massachusetts and New England students have particularly strong opportunities and responsibilities to build the Rainbow movement.

Tuition Hike, now or later

by Michael Nauls
Nummo Correspondent

This year the Regents of University of Massachusetts at Amherst okayed a tuition increase, and we as students stood by (except a few dedicated ones) and watched our next semester bill increase by 15 per cent.

It will rise another 15 per cent next semester making the total a 30 per cent increase in next year's bill. Indeed our tuition will cost $167 more per year.

We as students must unite and turn back this horrible decision made by the Regents. This increase will affect every student at UMass and will bring the individual's burden for state education up to 34 per cent.

In a recent question and answer period Art Jackson, director of Financial Aid, estimated that with this new proposed tuition increase, and the continual lack of financial aid, the Black and Third World population would be dramatically reduced at an alarming rate beginning next semester.

We at Nummo News urge all students to send letters to, and phone your perspective congresspersons. We feel students need to get involved.

It's either write now or pay later!

Editor's Note: (Since the writing of this article, the state House of Representatives has voted to roll back the tuition increase to six percent. The motion still has to be passed by the State Senate.)

Continued from page 1

In mid-career the band began to have problems, and became an eight-piece band, but by 1952 the band was on its feet inspiring the souls of many once again.

Basie suffered a heart attack in 1976, and after recovering he returned to the band.

He leaves an adopted son Aaron Woodward and a daughter Diane Basie.

Basie broke the color barrier in the 1930's and as Prof. Nelson Stevens puts it, "Basie's death is a great loss to the Black culture and to the culture of the entire world. It is fortunate that we have many of his records; through that he will live on forever."

In an interview Count Basie said that he hoped his music would last. And it will.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Tracey Bryant — Editor In Chief

Andrea Baker — Business Manager
Yvonne Mendez — Layout Editor
Charles Rinehart — Graphics
Judith Russ — Typesetter
Donette Wilson — Researcher

• • • Contributors • • •

Ed Cohen — Photographer
Segun Eubanks — Correspondent
Oneida Fox — Correspondent
Marc-Elliot Giles — Photographer
Russell Jordan — Correspondent

Address all letters to the Editor to:
NUMMO NEWS, New Africa House 103

Jazz Women

by Andrea Swain

UJC Big Apple Jazz women performed as part of the Black Musicians Conference.
photo by Segun Eubanks

Tuesday night, while most students were busy studying for midterms or enjoying the spring weather, I went down to the Cape Cod Lounge to listen to a panel discussion on "Black Women in Music," which featured Elma Louis, Bernice Johnson Reagon, Thulani Davies and D. Antoinette Handy.

It proved to be as rewarding as I had hoped it would be. Little did I know that the best part of the program was still in front of me.

I have never been a lover of jazz, my first choice being funk and more contemporary dance music. My listening leans more toward Grand Master Flash and the Furious Five, Marvin Gaye, Lionel Richie, and on occasion Gil-Scott Heron.

As I prepared to leave the lounge to go home, Willie Barton and the NJC Big Apple Jazz Women's Band began to tune up. As they were warming up they were joined by vocalist Mary Hope; who later in the evening without benefit of a microphone literally left me standing in place with her voice range as she sang "Stormy Weather."

As the group continued to warm up I became aware of the fact that the band had reached back into time and was playing a piece made famous by Duke Ellington - "Take the A Train." As they began to perform, I tried to get the best and closest seat possible. And unlike any other event this year, I was totally absorbed.

The quartet played a variety of their own original pieces and had the crowd of approximately 200 people crying for more. When Hope rejoined the quartet, she went into her performance of "Our Love is Here to Stay," which made me literally sway in my seat.

After a standing ovation Hope did an interpretation of "Stormy Weather," of which even Lena Horne would've been proud and applauding. On the insistence of the crowd, Hope did an encore performance of the chorus of "Stormy Weather" in which the entire crowd stood up and joined in.

After this stunning performance and searching for a pen to get every band member's autograph, I left to do some much needed homework.

My mind was still in the Cape Cod Lounge; I found myself clapping and humming "Stormy Weather."

But surprisingly enough, it helped me get through my homework instead of away from it.

Mary Lou Williams: a music master

by Oneida Fox
Nummo Correspondent

The 13th annual Black Musicians Conference at UMass is a tribute to pianist Mary Lou Williams, who died of cancer on May 29, 1981.

Williams was born in Georgia, and at the age of three she was taught music by her mother, a church pianist. At the age of six Williams was earning money performing.

Before the age of 20, she married saxophonist, John Williams and became a member of the Syncopators. She also toured with Buzz n' Harris, a vaudeville show, and later with Seymour and Jeanette, members of the Toba and Keith circuits.

In 1930 Williams, made her solo piano recording of "Night Life," an on-the-spot improvisation, that she was unaware was being taped. After a year of the recording she became a full-time member of Andy Kirk's Twelve Little Clouds of Joy, a group that emerged from Kansas city.

After becoming involved with religious studies, she left full-time music for three years. When she returned to her music career, she composed the jazz mass: "Black Christ of the Andes," dedicated to the first Black saint. Mary Lou's mass was the first jazz work performed in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

In the 1930's Kansas City became a magnet for Black musicians and Williams was leading the way. By 1941 she left the Kirk band, and retired to Pittsburgh and worked with Duke Ellington for six months. At this time she arranged "Trumpet No End" and her own version of "Blue Skies."

Williams also composed and recorded the Ash Recordings (1944-47), while playing solo piano and in combination with a number of musicians: Bill Chleman, Al Hall, Dick Vance, Frankie Newton, Don Byas and vocalist Nora Lee King. Wilnation with a number of musicians: Bill Coleman, Al Hall, Dick Vance, Frankie Newton, Don Byas and vocalist Nora Lee King. Williams made a part of the score of a piece for the New York Philharmonic and performed it with the orchestra in Carnegie Hall.

Williams was a diverse performer, she went from spirituals to the roots of jazz and did not lose touch with her work in the blues. She believed that the blues had a healing power and felt compelled to play it for her night club customers, "listen - this will heal you," she would say.

Williams, worked to uphold and to pass on the roots of music to the Black world. In the last decade of her life, she was a teacher at Duke University, Durham, South Carolina. It is the belief of those that knew her that throughout her life she only wanted create the truth, through music. Williams knew that this truth lay in the blues and in order to preserve it she had to pass on her knowledge to the young.

Webster lounge came alive with jazz Thursday night,with a performance dedicated to Mary Lou Williams by the Fred Clayton Jazz Ensemble.
photo by Segun Eubanks

Chico Freeman performs at the Fine Arts Center Friday night to highlight the 13th Annual Black Musicians Conference.
photo by Ed Cohen

Mezmerizing Jazz

by Oneida Fox
Nummo Correspondent

If you closed your eyes the music would take you wherever you wanted to go when Chico Freeman performed Friday night at UMass' Fine Arts Center.

If you opened your eyes the reality mesmerized you. But regardless of what you did it was the music that controlled you.

A special composition written for Max Roach, was premiered by him and the Franz Quartet. This number did not reach the high quality associated with Roach, but his drumming was superb the entire evening.

The Johnny Griffin Quartet were the most polished performers. They topped the night with "Sweetie's Waltz" and "Sophisticated Lady," which was the highlight of the evening.

Griffin left no doubt of his ability as a saxophonist, and his ability to sway the audience. His rendition of "Call It What You Want To" was deserving of a more suitable title: "Call It Let's Swing" because it made you remember true jazz and Rhythm and Blues.

As his encore performance he played a solo, "Little Man You Had A Busy Day," which was the perfect way to end an exhilirating performance.

This concert was the perfect way to close the 13th annual Black Musicians Conference. A little of the old (blues) with a little of the new jazz.

Advertising to Meet the Needs

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

Barbara Proctor is founder, president and creative director of Proctor and Gardner Advertising, Inc. in Chicago, one of the largest Black advertising companies in the U.S., with an annual billing of over $4 million.

Proctor says, "Without money, there is no survival, and without survival, there is no change."

She was born in Black Mountain, North Carolina. Proctor attended Talledega College where she received her B.A. degree. In total she has three degrees: one in Education, one in English and one in Sociology.

Proctor taught, counseled and dealt in real estate. She was a jazz enthusiast, a contributing editor, and wrote a few t.v. specials. She says she "sort of tumbled into the advertising business."

After realizing that the impression of America is projected through the media which is run by whites, and that media researchers are afraid to go into ghettos with questionaires, she began to think in terms of a Black advertising company. Since the media questionaires would have no relation to what concerns Blacks, she wanted to create a company that would reach the Black community's special needs.

Proctor knew that the chance of a Black advertising company surviving was very remote, but she tried anyway. She managed to get a loan of $80,000. She started out with four accounts, a food store chain, a Sears in Chicago, and the Gillette Co..

The company started out with just four employees, an account manager, media director, art director, and Barbara. They were on the third floor of a walk-up building. The company began in May of 1971. She tried to guide Black people to "buy Black."

Many who see and know Barbara say that she is always working, and she never takes a vacation. When she is asked why this is, she responds, "I suppose I am doing this for my people, to build a foundation for my race." She also says she "wants to succeed because she was borne to succeed."

Proctor has won many awards. She has received 20 indusry awards, an F.D. Humanitarian Award, an American T.V. Award, commercial awards, a Woman of the Year Award and a Small Business of the Year Award.

This advertising company is still growing, with hopes of becoming even greater.

SCULPTURED CLAY MASKS

The Augusta Savage Gallery is hosting the mask works done by Prof. Femi Richards' Afro-American Studies 112 -"Sculpture/Clay" class.

New at Yvonne's,
Tuesdays and Thursdays
The LUNCH BUCKET:
a bucket full of chicken
with a roll, cole slaw and potato salad.
Friday is Soul Food day.
Coffee and Donuts are served daily.
WEST INDIAN COOKING AT ITS BEST!!

RAINBOW COALITION T-SHIRTS
for the Jesse Jackson Campaign, $8.50. Money goes to the campaign. Call the Office of Third World Affairs at 5-2517.

Announcements Announcements

A Career Development Skills Group will be offered through the Working Women's Program at the Everywoman's Center from April 24th - May 15th. Topics include self-assesment, resume writing, interviewing, and job hunting skills.

The group will meeet on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. at the Everywoman's Center. Call 545-0883. The group is free and confidential.

Join EVELYN MURPHY Secretary of Economics Affairs in a discussion of THE IMPACT OF REAGANOMICS on MASSACHUSETTS
DATE: Monday, April 30 1984
TIME: 3:00 p.m.
PLACE: Alumni Memorial Hall,
U.Mass.-Amherst. Refreshments Served.

On Monday, April 30th at 4:00 p.m., Dr. Janis Epps of Atlanta Jr. College will give a lecture/slide presentation on the "Culture of Southern Black Women." The presentation will be held in the Main Lectlure Room of Franklin Patterson Hall on the campus of Hampshire College.

Dr. Epps' talk is based on a curriculum guide which she and teachers from nine southern-black colleges have developed to provide approaches and material for the study of black women. The talk should be of particular interest to scholars in anthropology, sociology, literature, art and history and to anyone with an interest in women's issues Admission is free. A reception will follow.

Asian American Students interested in becoming a Peer Advisor for Fall '84, stop by or call Carol or Jeff. Asian American Peer Advising Program, CCEBMS New Africa House UMass. An Organizational/Informationmeeting will be April 30th in the New Africa House Library.

SUSAN SCHECHTER will speak on "Historical Pespecive of the Battered Women's Movement and its Relationship to Violence Against Women in Our Society."
DATE: Thursday, May 3
TIME: 7:00 PM
LOCATION: Room 168 in the Campus Center, UMass.
Susan Schechter is a feminist activist who has worked for many years in the anti-rape and battered women's movements. She is the author of "Women and Male Violence: Visions and Struggles of the Battered Women's Movement."
There will be a question and answer period following her presentation. This event is free and open to all. For childcare please contact the Educator/Advocate program at the Everywoman's Center.

The Working Women's Program at Everywoman's Center will be offering a one day workshop, titled: "Doubting Our own Competence: Woman's Image of Work and Self." It will be led by Valerie Young. There will be a presentation, discussion and small groups.
Pre-registration is required.
DATE: May 5
TIME: 10-5 PM
LOCATION: Everywoman's Center, Wilder Hall, UMass.
It will be limited to 15 women. For more information call 545-0883.

CONCERT: Tribal Voice with John Trudell, a performance of American Indian poetry and music with traditonal songs by Quiltman, Madeline and Bark.
DATE: Friday, May 11th
TIME: 7 p.m in the Cape Cod Lounge of the Student Union Building of the University of Massachusetts.
Presented by the American Indian Students' Association and the UMass Arts Council. For more information call Jane Coelen 253-7788.

Funk-othon '84

FUNK-O-THON '84
DATE: Sat. May 5th,
TIME: 10 p.m. - 5 a.m.
ADMISSION: $4.00 (advanced $3.00)
PLACE: Student Union Ballroom
Breakdancing, Door Prizes, and BMCP's finest DJ's.

GOODWIN MEMORIAL
AME ZION CHURCH

TIME: Sunday School from 10-11 AM.
Sunday Services, 11 AM -12:30 PM.
LOCATION: 41 Woodside Ave., a half block off of route 9.
PASTOR: Rev. Samuel Henderson.
For more information: call the church at 256-0720 or the pastor in Springfield at 739-5450.

CCEBMS FAMILY DAY

On Saturday, May 5, CCEBMS will host its Annual Family Awards Banquet. It will begin at 11:00 AM - 4:00 PM in the Student Union Ballroom.

For more information contact the CCEBMS staff at 545-0031.

April 22 - May 2
Gallery Exhibits: "Jazz Selects: Photos by Anthony Barboza." August Savage Gallery, New Africa House, UMASS M-F 4pm.

COUNSELING SURVEYS

Please return you counseling survey as soon as possible. Your response can help improve counseling services. THANK YOU!

A special thanks to all students who completed the counselng services survey. Those who have completed and returned the survey need to do so immediately!!

The Western Massachusetts Latin American Solidarity Committee (WMLASC) regrets to inform the community that their spring "Liberation Home and Abroad" program has been canceled.

The Lesbian Union (L.U.) is open 9-5 daily. It is a relaxed, comfortable space where women can meet, talk, study and share.
Rap groups are held at the L.U. Thursday nights at 7 PM. Peer counseling Hotline, at 545-3409, is open Monday-Wednesday nights from 5-9 PM.
Along with the phone line, the office is open to all lesbians.

NUMMO NEWS OPEN HOUSE

NUMMO NEWS will be holding an all-day Open House consisting of music, food, entertainment and information.
Applications will be available for next semester's PAID POSITIONS. Jobs related to all aspects of newspaper editing and production are available with full training.
DATE: Sunday, May 6, 1984.
TIME: 1:30 PM - the evening.
LOCATION: The Malcolm X Center.
Stop by for a few minutes and learn how NUMMO NEWS can work for you!
For more information call 545-0061.

CCEBMS/BCP SUMMER ADVISOR POSITIONS AVAILABLE

24 hour live-in positions.
DUTIES: Responsble for residential life of students in the program, enforcement of University and Summer Program policies.
QUALIFICATIONS: Experience working with non-traditional and minority students.
Pick up applications from Greg Roberts, CCEBMS, New Africa House and Manuela Pacheco, BCP, Wilder Hall.
DEADLINE: April 30.

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
Collegian
Volume CXXI, Issue 64 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Tuesday, May 1, 1984

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

ICE CREAM CONE-VERSATION — Charlie Bass and Jill Newstadt enjoy their sunny day snack yesterday afternoon outside of the Hatch.

Ex-professor gets 7-10 years for stabbing

By JOSH MEYER
Collegian Staff

A former University of Massachusetts professor has been sentenced to seven to 10 years in Walpole State Prison for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon in connection with the stabbing of a woman outside a local bar last summer.

Raymond Miles, 51, an assistant professor of Afro-American Studies at the University for 13 years, was found guilty Friday after a four-day trial before Hampshire Superior Court Judge John F. Moriarty.

Miles entered a plea of innocent by reason of insanity, but the verdict held that he was criminally responsible and fit to stand trial, according to Assistant District Attorney Williams H. Collins, Jr., who prosecuted the case.

"He presented himself and two psychiatrists (as witnesses). He said that the trauma he suffered as a combat veteran of the Korean War caused him to go temporarily insane," Collins said.

One psychiatrist, Dr. William Bahnsen, said yesterday that his interviews with Miles seemed to support the temporary insanity contention, but that there was nothing visually or otherwise abnormal about him.

"From my examination, there was some mental defect or disability. He was suffering from a delayed type of post-traumatic stress disorder. While he was competent to stand trial, at the time of the stabbing he wasn't (responsible for his actions)," Bahnsen said.

The victim, 23-year-old Mary Cole, formerly of Amherst, testified last week that Miles had threatened to kill a German Shepherd puppy that he had taken from an ex-girlfriend of his. After taking the dog from her, he raised it over his head, and threw it on the pavement, according to witnesses.

Cole said that when she intervened to protect the dog, Miles said, "I'll teach you to interfere" and started a scuffle. After turning his back to Cole, Miles took out a pocket jackknife, lunged at her, and stabbed her repeatedly, she said.

Witness Darlene Korbuszewski said, "After stabbing her twice and knocking her to the ground, (Miles) stabbed her several more times in the chest and stomach. I didn't count. If someone hadn't grabbed his hand, I think he would have killed her."

Cole was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton following the stabbing. Exploratory surgery found serious injuries resulting from deep puncture wounds but no vital organ damage, Collins said.

"The defendant could be facing a murder charge right now," Collins said.

Dr. Sara Eddy, a clinical psychologist at Bridgewater State Hospital, where Miles was taken for observations, said the diagnosis of innocence by reason of insanity was not correct in her opinion.

"If that were so, his blackouts would have occurred prior to this date. This type of syndrome rears up not long after the initial trauma," Eddy said. "The incident bears no relation to his service in Korea."

The defendent had claimed that as a combat veteran of the Korean War, he has been suffering from post-traumatic stress syndrome.

Miles, who remained in a Hampshire County jail since his arrest on June 6, was convicted of two other assaults in unrelated court cases for which he was currently serving two years. He was acquitted on a charge of attempted murder in the Cole case last Friday.

"This sentence will take precedence over the others," Collins said.

Index says SGA allocation insufficient

By LISA MARIE CANTWELL
Collegian Staff

Index Editor in Chief Kevin Fachetti Monday night accused Student Government Association members of spending too much on their own salaries while underfunding other student groups.

Fachetti said at last night's SGA budged hearing, "I'm not saying they are overpaid, none of us are," Fachetti said, "but I think their token fee for working is bigger" than other student organization salaries.

The Index's requested $39,000, and the Budget Committee initially rejected all funding, citing management problems and lack of effort by the Index to seek additional revenue. Late last week the Committee reconsidered its controversial decision and gave the yearbook $16,000.

Last year's Index budger was $31,500.

According to Committee chairman Joseph Sparks, the Index, unlike most student organizations seeking SATF money, does not try to raise any additional money. The main revenue seeking dispute between the two groups, Sparks said seniors should be charged the $5 fee underclassmen pay.

Fachetti said that charging seniors would be wrong and that this would "indirectly raise the SATF fee," since part of the fund is allotted to the yearbook already.

"If a student is not willing to pay five dollars for a yearbook, the student is saying what the yearbook is worth," Sparks said.

Fachetti said the organization has sought other revenue recently, but has been unsuccessful. The administrative budget has been allotted for the next two years, and advertisers are not interested in utilizing the UMass Yearbook, he said.

A history of managment and distribution problems also lead to the drastic cut in the Index's budget, Sparks said.

There are currently 2,400 undistributed 1982 Indexes, and the 1983 yearbook has not gone to press yet.

Robert Teixiera, a Budget Committee member, said the committee felt "it was time to take a stand," until responsible management of student money is shown by the Index.

Fachetti said he is aware of the past problems with the organization, but said the 1984 yearbook is meeting all its deadlines and the history of mismanagement will not continue. This year's staff is working to distribute the back-up supply of books, he said.

May Day celebration recognizes workers

If someone were to come up to you today and say "Greetings worker, join with me in a beautiful worker-student alliance," he is probably celebrating May Day, otherwise known as International Workers Day.

In many countries the role of the working class in an economy is recognized today by holding parades and granting holidays. Ironically, the idea to have such a day originated in the United States, where it is not celebrated.

"In 1886, the Chicago Central Labor Council called for a big march and a one-day strike for the eight-hour day on May 1st. The American Federation of Labor picked it up a few years later. In response to the communist countries celebrating it, President Richard M. Nixon put together an idea of National Law and Order Day for political reasons which is now called Loyalty Day," said Michael Hillard, a graduate student in economics.

"It is internationally recognized as the day workers push for lower hours (per day) and as it became a tradition it got picked up by leftist parties and labor unions," Hillard said.

Political science Professor Karl Ryavec said May Day is similar to the American Labor Day which is held on the first Monday in September, although May Day was created first.

Ryavec said the Soviet Union has a large parade which is non-military and consists of workers marching past Politburo members on top of the Lenin Mausoleum in Red Square.

"It is a big labor holiday for the Left," he said.

—BILL WALL

Inside:

'Big Wheel' makers sued for $7.5 million p. 2
Amherst and UMass cops kept busy p. 3
A weekend to remember p. 4
Vote for "Sting" for the UMass mascot p. 7
Women's Lacrosse travels to Springfield p. 12

"I have it all...the worst of both worlds."
Cathy Guisewite in the comic strip "Cathy"

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

MEDIA MANEUVERS — Television crews surround busy U.S. Marines who set up a mortar emplacement as part of war games on Vieques, Puerto Rico.

PACs get blank check for '84 as high court delays decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court cleared the way for political action committees to spend as much money as they want in this year's presidential campaign.

The justices, who earlier this month agreed to study whether such so-called PACs legally may spend unlimited amounts of money to back a presidential candidate, refused to decide the issue in time for this year's campaign.

The Democratic Party had asked the court to resolve the spending controversy by July, hoping to head off plans by conservative political action committees to spend as much as $20 million to help re-elect President Reagan.

The Democrats and the Federal Election Commission are challenging a lower court's ruling that struck down a federal law limiting the spending of any political committee to $1,000.

Both appeals, granted review on April 16, asked for a quick ruling but neither the party nor the commission submitted a separate request for speedy review by the justices. Such a separate filing is required.

In recent years, the justices have recessed the court's terms in early July and have not reconvened until the following first Monday in October. Without a speeded-up review, no decision in the spending dispute is likely until some time in 1985.

In other action, the court: Refused to reinstate a judgment won by Bose Corp against Consumer Reports magazine.

Sudan's ruler cracks down

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Sudan's president, acting under a newly declared state of emergency in the east African nation, yesterday invoked sweeping powers he said were needed to control a growing threat from his enemies "inside the country and abroad."

President Gaafar Nimeiri issued decrees giving the government the power to search private homes, control transport and impose curfews and censorship, the state-run Sudan News Agency said.

The decrees, issued under a state of emergency Nimeiri declared Sunday night, also ban strikes, processions, unauthorized public gatherings and demonstrations.

Offenses under the emergency law would include "causing discontent or rebellion among the armed forces and civilians and causing damage to public utilities or means of communication and transport," the news agency said. Violators could be punished by up to 10 years imprisonment and a maximum fine of 10,000 Sudanese pounds, about $5,000.

The state of emergency comes at a time of labor unrest and increasing attacks from rebel guerrillas who Nimeiri says are backed by Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy.

Five College Hillel Foundation presents
ISRAEL 36 ישראל
INDEPENDENCE DAY
CELEBRATION
FEATURING

Sunday, May 6
Student Union Ballroom at Umass
3pm-Hamakor Israeli Folk Dance Troupe. preceded by a SHUK - music, slides, Israel information, food
beginning at 2pm
ADMISSION $1.50 STUDENTS $2.50 OTHERS
We cordially invite everyone to join in the festivities with us
MADE POSSIBLE BY A GRANT FROM UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
Tix Available at Hillel 302 Student Union

MOLLY'S
ANTIQUE AND VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST MA 01002
413-549-6446 MON-SAT. 10-5:00

Digest

by The Associated Press

Toy maker faces $7.5 million suit over boy's 'Big Wheel' accident

CAMBRIDGE — A Somerville woman has sued the maker and distributor of a plastic Big Wheel cycle for $7.5 million, claiming her son was "permanently scarred and disfigured" in an accident on one, her attorney said yesterday.

According to the suit, filed last Wednesday in Middlesex County Superior Court, 12-year-old George Girouard was trying to avoid a moving vehicle when he rammed into a parked car, flew over the handlebars and slammed head first into the car.

The accident occurred in 1982 in Somerville on the boy's 11th birthday.

The boy suffered multiple fractures, brain injury and was comatose for several months, said Jeffrey Woolf, attorney for the mother, Elaine Nickerson. He said the child is now conscious, but still has medical problems.

The suit was filed against the cycle's manufacturer, Empire of Carolina, Inc., of Tarboro, N.C.

Jimmy Brown, quality control and products safety manager, said the company had received the complaint, but declined to discuss it.

"I have not had time to forward it to our insurance carrier, so I really wouldn't have a comment to make at this time," he said.

A woman who declined to identify herself but said she handled customer liability cases at Child World, Avon, another defendant listed as distributor of the cycle, said that company had received no complaint. She refused further comment.

Convicted family-killer escapes

BOSTON — Police are hunting a Hampden man, jailed since he fatally shot his parents and brother 26 years ago, after he walked away three days ago from a pre-release center, the state Correction Department said yesterday.

Robert G. Clifford Jr., 43, sailed to return Friday evening to Coolidge House, a Boston pre-release center, from a job seeking trip trip to North Adams, said Joe Landolfi of the state Correction Department.

The former Hampden man is serving three concurrent life sentences for killing his parents and brother in 1958 in their home.

Clifford was moved to Coolidge House earlier this month after being denied parole in October. He was scheduled for another parole review in October and was seeking work to prepare for his possible release, said Landolfi.

Hampden Police Chief George Stone said he had received a teletype on Clifford's disappearance with no instruction from the state.

Today's Staff

Night Editor: Cris Schuster
Layout Tech: Will Hopkins
Copy Editor: Ian Polumbaum
Photo Tech: Andy Heller
Production Supervisor: Will Hopkins
Production: John Wielgus, Mike Lennon, Tim Riviere
Lisa A. Reynolds, Jon O'Hearn, Marianne Walsh

States cope with US budget cuts

Mass. official: we bear burden

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Because President Ronald Reagan's budget cuts have been so devastating, Massachusetts must now determine the best way to handle the shift in responsibilities, from federal to state governments, said Massachusetts Secretary of Economic Affairs Evelyn Murphy yesterday at the University of Massachusetts.

Speaking to a crowd of about 50 people gathered in the Alumni Office, Murphy assessed the effects of Reagan's social service budget cuts and the remedies that individual states must provide to remain economically strong.

"Economically, we have a state that shouldn't survive—we import 80 percent of our food and almost all of our energy. The only way we do survive is that we keep inventing products other will buy," Murphy said.

"There was our textile industry, our shoe industry, and now it's our high-tech industry. The problem with that nowadays is that now we have to stay smarter than the rest of the world—our marketplace.

"This brings us back to the fundamental relationship between higher education and economics," Murphy said.

Massachusetts must now actively solicit different areas of technology like bio-technology, Polymer research, photovoltaics, and marine science, she said.

If Massachusetts can establish new technological centers in these areas, then it can stay smarter than the rest of the world, and continue to export enough to have a good economy, Murphy said.

A result of this, Murphy said, "would be to then see how all of these technologies may be interconnected to make another new industry."

"And even with all of this new technology, there will still be a large service sector. Over half of all jobs in Massachusetts will still be service-related.

"We're now trying to decide what forces should be put in place and what should be done in Massachusetts—tied centrally around our higher education institutions," she said.

Murphy said the state that solves these problems will have an advantage over other states for the rest of the century.

"The point is, Reagan's budget cuts have been devastating. Now we must look at what a state must do since the federal government has backed off on full employment, the war on poverty, and our basic industrial policy."

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Evelyn Murphy discussed how Massachusetts should deal with Reagan's budget yesterday at the University of Massachusetts.

Auto incidents, Southwest Fest keep cops busy over weekend

Amherst police answered 162 calls

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

A 25-year-old Chicopee man was arrested Sunday and charged with malicious destruction of personal property and being a disorderly person after an incident at the intersection of University Drive and Route 9, Amherst police said yesterday.

According to police, the man was "pounding on a car" across from the Amherst Medical Center about 6 p.m. after an argument with a motorist. When Amherst police arrived, the man ran into the medical center, where he was caught and arrested.

Amherst police detective John Burns said this weekend was a "busy" one for police, as they answered 162 calls, 60 of which were disturbances, and made 10 arrests.

A Colonial Village resident was arrested Saturday about 11 p.m. and charged with operating under the influence of alcohol (DWI) and "failure to use care in backing" when he drove his car into another on Amity Street, police said.

A Ludlow man was arrested Saturday about 1:15 a.m. on College Street for being a disorderly person, driving while under the influence of alcohol, speeding, and failing to stop at a red light.

Police also arrested a 22-year-old Florence woman Saturday about 12:30 a.m. on Route 9 for DWI, speeding, and failing to stop at a red light.

An 18-year-old Amherst resident was arrested at about 9:40 p.m. Friday for operating without a license, speeding, and driving an uninsured, unregistered car.

The Speed and Alcohol Patrol (SAP) stopped 32 cars, made one DWI arrest and one arrest on a default warrant on Thursday and Saturday. Burns said that although Amherst police answered 162 calls, the number of arrests was less than expected.

Man assaulted with beer keg after concert

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts police responded to several incidents during and after the Southwest Fest concert Sunday, making several arrests.

In parking lots 21 and 22, across from the Southwest residential area, a man was hit in the head and face with a beer keg at 10:37 p.m. Sunday and knocked unconscious, police said. According to police, the man was involved in an argument with two men, one of whom took off his glasses and punched him in the face. The man ran but was caught by the two assailants who then punched him and hit him with the keg, police said. An Amherst Fire Department ambulance took the victim to Cooley-Dickinson Hospital.

At 5:46 Sunday, a man was taken to University of Massachusetts Health Services in restraints after an apparent drug overdose.

Police made a confiscation but would not disclose what the object or objects were. The man was not a student so he was taken to Cooley-Dickinson Hospital from University Health Services, police said.

A 21-year-old man was arrested for disorderly conduct at 7:24 p.m. Sunday after he jumped on stage while the band Cheap Trick was performing.

At 7:32 p.m. Sunday, a man was arrested for disorderly conduct after he tried to gain access to the concert stage to make an announcement, police said. The man was observed yelling at student security demanding to be let on stage, according to police. The man tried to get by security but was restrained by police. He then became combative and punched one officer in the face, police said.

Also on Sunday, a man was placed under protective custody at 5:10 p.m. after he was observed stumbling and falling behind the stage, police said. An officer tried to speak with the subject but the man fell down, according to police.

Collegian photo by Larry Cabana

SAXXY DAY — Steve Mathuwson, a sophomore art major plays in front of the Student Union.

Today is last day to contact sister town in Soviet Union

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Five months after watching the television movie about nuclear war, The Day After, Amherst residents are preparing to contact a town in the Soviet Union in an effort to promote better relations between two nations.

Today is the final day for residents to submit visuals, letters, or other items to send to the Soviet town of Tartu, like Amherst a university town with origins in agriculture.

"Anyone, townspeople or students, can go to the Jones Library today and submit anything they want to send to the Soviet Union. I don't even know how big a package we will mail. It depends on the response," said Ellen Putnam-Myers, a spokesperson for the committee organizing the project.

Putnam-Myers said several Amherst residents decided to act after viewing the movie and that the attempt to communicate with Tartu grew out of that desire.

She also noted that Northampton participated in a similar project and last week received a response from their sister city in the Soviet Union.

"We're optimistic that we'll get something back," Putnam-Myers said. "I've heard some towns went as far as an exchange of citizens for a while—or we might just get a polite response. I really can't say what will happen."

Amherst became involved in this project through the Ground Zero Pairing Project, an anti-nuclear group that tries to pair similiar cities in the United States and the Soviet Union.

"They (Tartu) are a lot like us and with the pictures we send them, and the ones they'll hopefully send us, we can start a dialogue and make a statement," Putnam-Myers said.

Some University of Massachusetts students will participate in the project, having written some letters as part of last week's Earth Day celebrations. Members of the UMass Peacemakers will have these letters sent to the Soviet Union and according to Putnam-Myers, the theme of many of the letters was that the two cultures aren't all that different.

"We've contacted several groups in the town and at the various universities and so far the response has been pretty good," Putnam-Myers said. "I can't say what will go in or how much will go into the town portfolio, but I hope it strikes a chord with the people of Tartu."

Lottery nets UM employee $50,000

A University of Massachusetts data processing employee is now $50,000 richer after selecting the right number in the Massachusetts Big Money game last Wednesday.

Norman Menegat said he had played the number 288450 since 1977 but he never really expected to win. He said he was not aware he had won until the morning after the drawing when he saw the winning digits in the newspaper. On that Friday he received a letter from the Lottery Commission telling him officially he had won.

The drawing is televised at 7:00 p.m. every Wednesday and this Wednesday, Menegat will appear on the show where he will receive his check. Menegat said his wife will get the honor of actually accepting the money on the show.

—GLORIA ROSADO

A Weekend To Remember!!

Concert photos by Mitch Drantch

Lacrosse photo by Paul Desmarais

This past weekend's fine weather, great concerts, and lacrosse game made for a great time for everyone.

20 years later, memories of life before Southwest

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

Twenty years ago this coming summer, a quiet, rural neighborhood on the edge of Amherst was transformed by the start of a major University of Massachusetts construction project—the Southwest Residential Area.

What is now one of the world's ten most densely populated areas and a prominent area landmark was, in spring 1964, still occupied mainly by cows, sheep, local children, hunters and Army tanks.

By an eminent domain decree, the state seized land to make room for 5,400 more students and their cars as the 1950's "baby boom" generation prepared to enter college. Fourteen families had to move, and at least some of them retain a combination of nostalgia and bitterness.

Gary Doherty, who now works in a Building Operations office in Southwest, lived in a farmhouse at 222 Sunset Avenue until May 1964, when he finished his senior year at Amherst High School and joined the Navy. When he returned in 1968, he said recently, he "couldn't recognize the place."

His family's home had been replaced by MacKimmie dormitory. Seven houses had disappeared from his side of the street, now the eastern boundary of the dormitory complex.

"There was a lot of neighborhood resentment," Doherty said. "My mother still has a lot of bitter, bitter feelings."

"I minded losing the neighborhood as much as losing the house," said Blanche Orrell, whose family lived next door to the Dohertys. "We loved it there. It was a very close neighborhood...everyone was always there to help each other."

She and other former Sunset Avenue residents recollected that farm animals grazed and neighborhood children played in the meadows and marshes where students now throw baseballs and frisbees on concrete plazas.

The area was also a favorite for pheasant hunters, for "old rummies (to) go polish off a bottle" (according to one ex-resident), and for 65-ton M-60 tanks, which rumbled across the fields on Army exercises every year following World War II.

"They lost a tank in the mud down there one year," Orrell recalled laughingly. "It took them a week to get it out."

Realtor Robert Brown owned some 27 acres of the area bordered by Sunset Avenue, Fearing Street, Massachusetts Avenue, and the Amherst-Hadley line. His former holdings are now occupied by Pierpont, Cance and Moore dormitories and part of parking lots 21-22.

Brown, now retired and living in nearby Shutesbury, said he had planned to use the land to pursue his interest in small planes.

"I was trying to build it up," he said, "to have a runway and build houses for people interested in flying." But even before the state seized his land, these plans were complicated by the appearance of the UMass Physical Plant smokestack in the proposed flight path.

"I agree the state should have a right (to seize land), "Brown said. "But I didn't get what I thought it was worth. They gave me something like $12,000 for all of it.

"I could have complained and gotten more, but the lawyers would have gotten it all."

Some of the displaced families also felt that they received inadequate compensation—not enough to pay for new houses. Under Massachusetts eminent domain law, owners not satisfied with the amount paid for their property (the average of three independent appraisals) can take the state to court.

Several families did just that, and succeeded in getting more money. One former Sunset Avenue resident (who asked not to be named here) said, "property values in Amherst were beginning to go up...we couldn't find another place for the amount they gave us."

"The worst part," she continued, "was that we didn't know when we would have to move, when we'd have to get another house."

"I minded losing the neighborhood as much as losing the house."
— former Sunset Ave. resident

Blance Orrell said rumors began circulating in late 1962 that the University was going to take over some land. She said the first official notice of this arrived in January 1963: "they told us we'd have to be out a year from that April." Some houses were not demolished until late 1964.

Collegian file photo

CHANGING NEIGHBORHOOD — This was the view looking southwest from the corner of Massachusetts and Sunset Avenues in late 1964, with Coolidge and Kennedy dormitories under construction.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

AS IT LOOKS NOW — The Southwest Residential Area in 1984. Prince dormitory stands in the foreground, on land once occupied by the frame house in top photo.

This is the Year to Plan Your Career!
Limited number of graduate study awards.
Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

WANTED
People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term.
Please call the
Ride Service
545-2148
Sponsored by: The Commuter Area Gov't

Arts

Slipping into Oblivion

UTOPIA
Oblivion
(Passport--Utopia Records)

By NEAL O'SHEA
Collegian Staff

Ever since their formation in 1977 by Todd Rundgren, Utopia has been a band elusive of labels. Too bizarre for mainstream and too accessible for art rockers, Utopia has quietly and successfully carved their own niche in an area vaguely in the middle. Their new album, Oblivion, finally makes some noise as Utopia progresses and expands on its own brand of power pop.

Oblivion is a well produced album looking at some dollar signs, but it's their best since Adventures in Utopia which pushed them to the edge of the limelight and some well deserved radio play. The key to this album is something that has never solidified too much on their earlier works: a sense of unity. Utopia has finished sounding like Todd Rundgren's backup band and now is a group in their own right with Todd Rundgren as a member. (Nazz was a long time ago.)

Another positive aspect of Oblivion is the political stance (as political as "Us v. Them" ideology gets) that is a bit refreshing after the quasi-silliness of their last album, Utopia.

"Welcome To My Revolution" is Rundgren's way of telling all the factions to get lost and let people get on with their lives, thank you. Less direct is "Itch In My Brain," a Nazz-ish number shining the light on how the individual can use slumbering potential to break from conventions and utilize free will. Kind of campy, but Todd has always been like that, ever so slightly.

The most memorable song for me was a socio-political vision ala George Orwell called "Winston Smith Takes It On The Jaw." Bassist Kasim Sultan croons themes of 1984 to a punchy beat, and although the lyrics are dismally terrifying, his smooth voice gives it a glint of hope that eventually gets crushed when Winston Smith gets sent to a memory hole. Keyboardist Roger Powell has a flying solo on this song that says it all for his participation on this album. Using his voice for backup vocals only, Powell now puts the extra energy back where it belongs: his innovative style. His talents plus the ability to trade off with Rundgren's guitar make "Bring Me My Longbow" the most musically interesting song on the album. Rundgren's rhythmic chants of "If you do not hunt, then you do not eat/If you do not hunt, then you do not eat," are layered onto Powell's electronic calypso beats and Willie Wilcox's solid drumming giving it a tribal music quality.

The last two cuts of the album are reflective pieces that must be semi-autobiographical by Rundgren. "If I Didn't Try" and "Too Much Water" look back on the long road to the present and the reasons to stay with a crazy lifestyle (rock star?). "Too much water under the bridge"; sure it's cliche, but when you've paid your dues, you're entitled.

And for all you MTV fans, the single "Crybaby" (pick hit: great guitar) has an accompanying video. According to Video Review, Rundgren's videos are worth a whole day of MTV programming which translates into never seeing Martha Quinn effervescently announce their latest tour dates. Bum record deals and the lack of a long promised "big push" could be a step toward oblivion for Utopia, which could explain their current album title. But with all the longtime fans and the smart ones who get hip along the way, I doubt it.

J.B.'s final boogie

J. B. HUTTO & THE NEW HAWKS
Slippin' and Slidin'
(Varrick Records)

By JACK BRESNAHAN
Collegian Correspondent

J. B. Hutto, born in August Georgia, 1926, died last June. This album, recorded in February and March of that year, comes from a man in the throes of diabetic disease.

Yet these aren't sad blues. Rather, J. B. sings about love and women, women and love, the pitfalls of life in a matter-of-fact, that's-the-way-it-is manner. Here's J. B. playing his heart out for the final time.

For those who were lucky enough to have seen him play, this record should bring back some nostalgiac memories. He played in this area quite often when he was around. Whether it was at Rahars, the Blue Wall, the Hangar One, or even the earlier Southwest concerts, J. B. would never fail to satisfy. Wearing his wide array of hats, there was never a place that I saw him when he didn't dance on a table if there was one, or walk out into the audience. He drew a big crowd wherever he went. He once said, "I ain't had girls faint yet when I play, but sometimes they holler pretty load..."

J. B. was one of the all-time slide guitar monsters. I think his distinct style came to one-up his mentor, Elmore James. His greatest playing asset was his ability to fill in between the lines with such constant variation, building to a hard-driving boogie. His lyrics are long and clever, off the wall and often storylike. This record captures the living spirit of J. B. Hutto.

These songs produce a contagious foot tap, and make you want to get up and move around. The New Hawks, J. B.'s back-up trio of Kenny "the K" Krumbholz, bass, and Leroy Pina, drums, have a new lead guitarist in Brian Bisesi, who replaces "Silvertone" Steve Coveney. He's got a very clean sound in the leads on "Little Girl Dressed in Blue." The band is augmented by the Roomful of Blues Reed Section, who provide some fine saxophone. Guesting on piano is Ron Levy, who used to play at the Speakeasy in Cambridge before it burned down. He cranks on the piano in "Pretty Baby," and "Jealous Hearted Woman."

But that's not to say that these guys steal the show from J. B. He does a super version of the obscure B. B. King song, "Why Do Things Happen to Me." His vocals are powerful, though the song rings of regret. It must have been a reflective song for him in light of his poor health. He also does "Somebody Loan Me a Dime," an updated oldie by Fenton Robinson, which J. B. turns into a definitive blues classic. Also great is one penned by J. B. himself, "Black's Ball," a rollicking, bollicking, drinking beer, whiskey, and wine song. My favorite though is Howlin Wolf's "I'm Leaving You," which J. B., in his omniscience, saved for last. It is hard-driving and has patented slide that will make your ears bristle.

Nevermore will we hear J. B. do "Summertime" on the campus pond, no more of "Too Much Alcohol," no more boogie from J. B. Hutto. It sounds like he had a lot more boogie in him, feeling, but he ran out of time. It's records like this that makes the Keeper of the Flame stay alive.

J. B. had the last word. "Blues was the original thing! It come from church songs and they sung it from there. Then people wrote the soul part out, put in a rhythm, and that's where the blues comes from. They was trying kick blues down and bring up this here rock and roll—I call it humping music—but they can do what they want: the blues will never die cause it's the original thing. It's coming back from where they tried to stomp it down; it's coming back up again, and it's gonna get better. Blues will be blues until the world ends!"

Pop of the opposite sex

THE GOGOS
TALK SHOW
(I.R.S. Records)

By ADAM BRIGHTMAN
Collegian Correspondent

The GoGo's new album, "Talk Show", is like a box of chocolates you got for Easter: each morsel has something sweet and satisfying to offer; some even have nuts to add variety to the mix.

The GoGo's have learned a few good lessons from their vocal coach, Nathan Lam, as well as from other bands, including the Pretenders. Gone are the shrill yelps and whiny harmonizing. Not that these are bad qualities but they do tend to get on your nerves after a thousand plays. The new arrangements are tight and the twelve-string guitar adds a flavor of the Byrds via Chrissy Hynde.

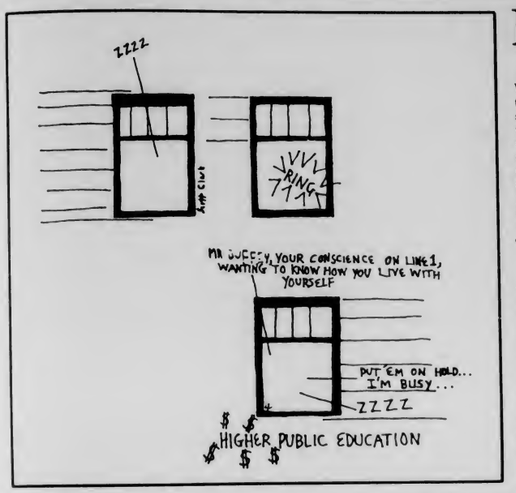
The band's songwriting has not changed appreciably since its debut. The bittersweet lyrics, encorporating a likable verse with an incredibly hooky chorus, are still drenched in pop/love cliche's. But, since when have pop and rock been without their cliche's? These words still aren't condescending or melodramatic and that's an achievement for any band these days.

Let's face it. Most of today's synth/pop bands are so drippy they could bring the Clash to its knees, sobbing collectively. The GoGo's just make you feel happy, pure and simple.

This album provides thorough enjoyment from beginning to end. "Head Over Heels" starts things off with some "neat-o" bass, guitar and piano arrangements. Next, "Turn to You" cranks out at you like a mid-60's Who-rocker without Pete Townsend windmills.

Other songs add little surprises here and there, either yummy vocals or instrumental bits. "Mercenary" is a great Byrds rip-off, replete with folky guitar and sweet vocals. It is encouraging to hear a little thoughtful borrowing is still going on these days.

Like I said before, all of the tunes have a fairly decent verse as a backbone and a great hook in the chorus for you to hum on the way to work. Oddly enough, I find only "Head Over Heels" and "Turn to You" kicking me in the brain enough to want to listen over and over again.



This album is indeed like a box of Easter candy, but only a couple of pieces make you hungry enough to warrant eating another whole box. It is too easy, though, to dismiss the GoGo's as a bunch of "daddy-o", pajama-party girls. Their pop is tight and hard and their rock and roll is genuinely fun. Treasure it for what it's worth.

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 4/30/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deboran
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

TUESDAY
TWO FOR ONE
all liquor drinks
9 till 11
with music by
RACK-A-DISC
9 til 1 NO COVER
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

COPIES
2¢
OPEN 8AM TIL MIDNIGHT MONDAY thru FRIDAY
SATURDAY 9-5 SUNDAY 11-5
Collective Copies 256-6425 25 N. Pleasant St. Amherst

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Bus union needs support

On December 7, 1983 the emplyees of Western Mass. Bus Lines (which operates the Amherst to Northampton, Williamsburg and Easthampton PVTA routes) voted to join Local 1459 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union. This election was a culmination of workers' organizing efforts in response to substandard working conditions, fluctuating personnel policies, minimal benefits and lack of job security. Over the past few months, we have come together to determine the issues we would like to see included in our first union contract agreement. These issues include: specific job descriptions, grievance procedures, a retirement/pension plan, overtime and sick time compensation, and job-bidding clarification. We feel that these are not unreasonable demands. Rather, they reflect both our efforts to assure some measure of human dignity as workers and our commitment to providing the best service possible.

UFCW Local 1459

On March 21, 1984, the owner of Western Mass. Buss Lines, Mr. John Herlihy, formally announced that he would not negotiate with our union. This action is in direct violation of federal law (29 U.S.C.A. 158, A5), which requires an employer to "negotiate in good faith" with a duly elected bargaining representative. Appropriately, we have filed unfair labor practice charges with the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB).

These events are of special significance to the University community for several reasons. First, the majority of our transit riders are University students, faculty and staff. Second, a substantial portion of the funding for the PVTA service comes directly out of University funds (i.e. student fees). Third, Western Mass. employs some 30 University students as well as 15 former University students and graduates (approximately half of its total workforce in all) as drivers. Finally, Mr. Herlihy's stated rationale for refusing to negotiate is his personal belief that student workers (who perform the same job, at the same pay rate, under identical working conditions as non-student workers) should not be entitled to participate in a union. On this last point, the NLRB has already ruled in favor of student participation.

The filing of charges with the NLRB is the first step we have taken in response to Mr. Herlihy's unlawful refusal to negotiate. While we hope that more severe actions are not necessary to bring the company to the bargaining table, we feel obliged to inform our ridership that the responsibility for such actions, should they occur, falls squarely on Mr. Herlihy's shoulders. If those of you who utilize our public service feel strongly about this matter, we encourage you to contact Mr. Herlihy himself and urge him to observe the law and meet his employees at the bargaining table. We appeal to the University populace and the community at large to support our ongoing efforts to assure some measure of dignity and participation in our place of work.

Members,
Employee Organizaing Committee
UFCW Local 1459 at Western Mass. Bus Lines

Vote for 'Sting' the slug

In the past year, there has been no small amount of controversy about the UMass mascot. The Minuteman is said to be militaristic and sexist. This is unfortunately accurate. Equally disturbing is the shocking phallic symbolism of the rifle that "our" mascot clutches so fervently and lovingly.

I believe that the minuteman is not representative of the student body, image, goals, or purposes of the University of Massachusetts of society in general. We should replace this racist, sexist, and militaristic symbol with a mascot more in keeping with the community of this institution of higher education.

Matthew G. Saroff

I propose that we make Sting the Slug, that plucky paragon of the UMass ZONE, our new mascot. I believe that Sting is the single symbol that best embodies the hopes, needs, and aspirations of our community.

Let us look at the noble slug and see why we should use it as a mascot. It combines such a unique set of characteristics that I think are necessary for a mascot for ALL the UMass community, as opposed to the small and vocal group who support the current mascot, and indirectly nuclear war.

Let's take a look at our noble neighbor of the garden:

1) slugs are not militaristic. Slugs are the most inoffensive of creatures. All that they desire is a garden to devour, some peace and quiet, and the chance to be fruitful and multiply. Not only this, but there are no U.S. weapon systems with that name.

2) Slugs, being creatures without arms and legs, show our solidarity with the disabled community. Whenever we see Sting, we will be reminded of our responsibility to the disabled community.

3) Slugs are not racist. (When have you ever seen a slug shout out a racial epithet?) Sting is grey, so his colour will show no favoritism toward any part of the UMass community.

4) Slugs are some of the most non-sexist animals in the world. There is total equality between the slug sexes. At regular intervals, mature slugs change sex. The males become female, and the females become male. This insures that slugs will always view the opposite sex with respect and admiration because they know how the "other half" lives.

5) Because slugs routinely change sexual preference, there is no stigma of homo- or hetro- phobia in this mascot. Also, this regular change in sexual preference seems to represent a large portion of the UMass community too.

Matthew G. Saroff is a UMass student

Letters

Cartoons taken out of context

To the Editor,

Last Friday, a letter to the editor by Marilyn Bou questioned my ethics and the ethics of several other editors of the Collegian. However, rather than explaining her objections to two editorial cartoons published last week, she chose instead to attack me as racist, self-righteously assuming that her opinion about the cartoons is proof that they are racist. I think she has misinterpreted the cartoons and also does not understand the nature and purpose of an editorial page.

The first cartoon, drawn by Thomas Oliphant, a nationally syndicated cartoonist, deals with the recent trial in Greensboro, North Carolina, of members of the Ku Klux Klan accused of murdering several anti-Klan demonstrators. Even though there was overwhelming evidence against the KKK members (including a tape showing the killings), they were found not guilty. The cartoon pictures two men in robes winking at each other, with the caption "Free at last, free at last" (a quote from Martin Luther King, Jr.). The tragic irony of the quote seems obvious: the American legal system has once again prevented America's minorities from being free from racism.

The second cartoon, also drawn by Oliphant, questions Jesse Jackson's relationship with Louis Farakhan, who was quoted as saying that Hitler was a "wickedly great man." As a Presidential candidate, Jackson's relationship with Farakhan has to be questioned. By refusing to disassociate himself from Farakhan, Jackson has left himself open to being assumed to agree with Farakhan's views. This type of guilt by association is one of the drawbacks of being a public figure. Ms. Bou's objections to the cartoon may in part be due to the face that she is an active member of the Students for Jesse group on campus.

The editorial page exists to allow the free expression of people's views. The opinions expressed represent the author's or cartoonist's opinion, not the opinion of me, the editor of the editorial page, or the Collegian. Although possible controversial cartoons are shown to several editors, the editorial page editor still has final say over what is printed. We try to print everthing that we receive, which is the responsibility of an editorial page. Hopefully, the editorial page urges people to think about issues that are important to others in the community.

Many people on this campus are quick to condemn the Collegian as racist, sexist, anti-Semitic, homophobic, etc., because they don't agree with something they read on the editorial page. Some of the opinions are prejudiced, but that doesn't mean that they shouldn't be expressed.

These opinions exist, and not printing them will do nothing about erasing them. The editorial page should be a clear reflection of the community, not a collection of ideal statements or of opinions that agree with the editors'.

Joel Myerson
Collegian Editor-in-chief

A beautiful day is more important than fighting

To the Editor,

Lately, on our campus, there has been a lot of bickering and fighting. People are quarreling over An- this and Pro-that, and calling each other nasty name . Now, you wonder why he arguing; I don't know, though sometimes I'd like to. Look around you. It is the Springtime. It is a time for growth and rebirth.

I woke up this morning. The sun shone brightly, and the birds were singing so prettily. A couple walked by, hand in hand. I watched, smiled, and sighed. And as I looked out on God's beautiful Earth, I thought, "Why can't people just be people?" Have a wonderful day.

Jonathon W. Homes
CENTRAL

On correcting a misconception about group

To the Editor,

As a member of the Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography, I would like to correct a serious misconception about our current anti-pornography action on campus.

We have never suggested that the courts or state power be used to "ban" magazines from campus. We are suggesting that the campus community, as an act of prevention of violence against women and children, voluntarily eliminate from its stores material which there is a reason to believe may contribute to violence. The difference is an important one for us as well as for our critics, as we too would not support any unconstitutional action.

Julie Melrose
Faculty
Southwest Residential College

of mice and men

by john steinbeck

may 3-5, 9-12 · 8pm

rand theater, university of massachusetts

tickets: fac box office- 545-2511

Hypercurricula...

LUNCH WITH THE RABBI — All are welcome. 12 noon, SU Suffolk Room.

ARMENIAN STUDENTS CLUB MEETING — Last meeting of the semester. Attendance is important. 7:00 p.m., CC801.

FREE WRITING TUTORING — The Southwest Writing Center offers free confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignment or writing project. Drop in; no appointment needed. 7-9:00 p.m., Pierpont Dorm.

FIRE & FIRST AID UNIT — Last meeting of the semester. 3CEU program will precede meeting at 7:30, entitled Patient Assessment & Drug Awareness. 7:30-10:00 p.m., MORR 4 North.

WORKSHOP: "YOU HAVE RIGHTS" — A workshop led by the Legal Services Office at UMass on Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals and the Law. Everyone is welcome. Refreshment provided. 8:00 p.m., CC904.

FIRST WEEK POSTER CONTEST — Design a poster for First Week activities for Fall 1984. Limit to three colors. Piece should be 17"x22". Contact Trey Williams in Student Affairs office at 545-2300. Prizes will be awarded. Deadline May 11, 1984.

RADICAL STUDENT UNION MEETING — Come discuss Kent State memorial. PSN networking. 6:30 p.m., SU413.

LECTURE — University of Massachusetts sociology professor Alice Rossi will speak on "A sociologist's tour of China" today at a meeting for sociology majors and all those interested in the major. Information and discussion on the sociology major and opportunities in the field included. Refreshments will be served. 4-6:00 p.m., Memorial Hall.

UPC GENERAL MEETING — Last meeting before Spring Concert! Everyone is urged to attend. 6:30 p.m., CC174-6.

UMMTG PRODUCTION OF "GREASE" — A free outdoor production of the Broadway hit musical, 8:00 p.m., Orchard Hill Basketball Court LECTURE — Lecture by Professor H. L. Boudreau of the Dept. of Spanish and Portuguese. "Four Things You've Presumably Wanted to Know About Intertextuality" 4:00 p.m., HERT 217.

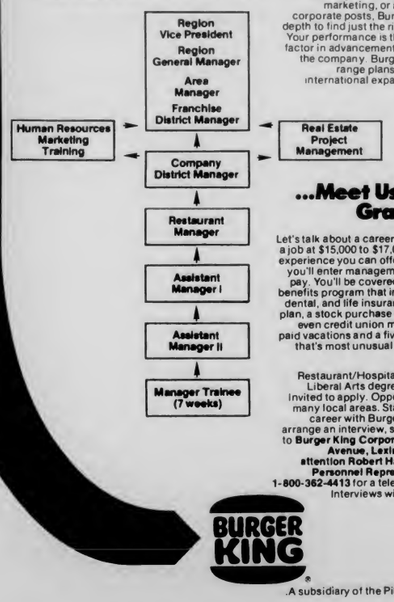
CONCERT OF COLE PORTER SONGS — A concert of vocal jazz arrangements of songs by Cole Porter will be given by vocalists in the Program in Afro-American Music and Jazz. The soloists will be accompanied by a jazz trio of piano, bass and drum. 6:00 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

PEACE & ECOLOGY: A FEMINIST PERSPECTIVE — A part of earth awareness week. Two speakers: Dr. Jean Grossholtz & Dr. Linda Lockwood, 2-3:30 p.m., CC168.

GRADUATE TO A BUSINESS MANAGEMENT CAREER



As a recognized leader in one of America's fastest growing industries, fast food service, Burger King can offer you the responsibility of running a million dollar profit center, filled with challenges in inventory control, personnel management, sales forecasting, marketing, and more!

...You Begin In Restaurant Management

As a Manager Trainee, you will receive 7 weeks of industry recognized training with full pay. Based on your performance, opportunity is available for rapid advancement to Assistant Manager I and then to Restaurant Manager, a high-visibility position that allows for significant decision making to maximize sales and profits.

...We Can Match Your CAREER PATH

Beyond unit management, there are a variety of career paths, each with challenges to match the most ambitious professional's goals. If your interests lie in training, multi-unit management, marketing, or a variety of other corporate posts, Burger King has the depth to find just the right spot for you. Your performance is the only deciding factor in advancement — not time with the company. Burger King has long range plans for national and international expansion that could include you.

...Meet Us Before Graduation

Let's talk about a career that begins with a job at $15,000 to $17,000 based on the experience you can offer. If you qualify, you'll enter management training with pay. You'll be covered by an excellent benefits program that includes medical, dental, and life insurance, a retirement plan, a stock purchase investment plan, even credit union membership. Plus paid vacations and a five-day workweek that's most unusual in the restaurant business.

Restaurant/Hospitality, Business, or Liberal Arts degree candidates are invited to apply. Opportunities exist in many local areas. Start planning your career with Burger King today. To arrange an interview, send your resume to Burger King Corporation, 33 Hayden Avenue, Lexington, MA 02173, attention Robert Halterman, Region Personnel Representative. Or call 1-800-362-4413 for a telephone interview. Interviews will be held locally.

BURGER KING

A subsidiary of the Pillsbury Company

PREPARE FOR MCAT • LSAT • GMAT SAT • ACT • DAT • GRE • CPA

Our 45th year

Enrolling Now For

June 18

LSAT

Transfer to a Kaplan Center near home after finals

Stanley H. KAPLAN Educational Center

Call Days Eves & Weekends

368 N. Pleasant St Amherst 549-5780

For information about other centers Outside NY State CALL TOLL FREE 800 223-1782

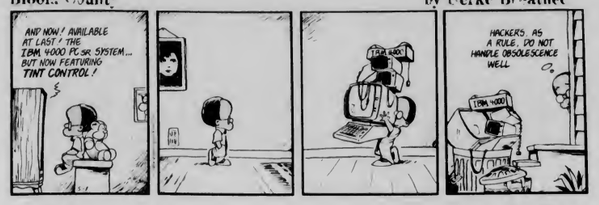
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938

BLUE WALL

18+ Welcome

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

only 99¢

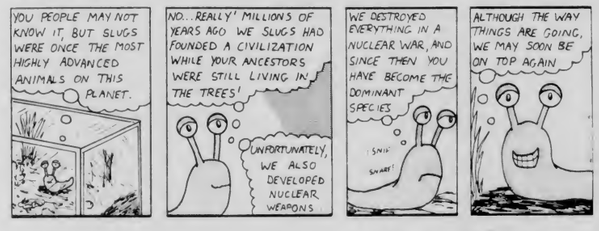


TUES. Sponsored by GPC

COMEDY NIGHT

Lauren Dembrowski & Don Gavin of Boston

Chris Collins of L.A.



Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The Strip Jim Walsh

The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert

Shagnas O.T. Derringer

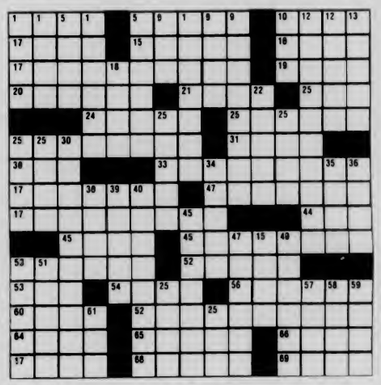
D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Deli Beef Sandwich
Quiche Lorraine

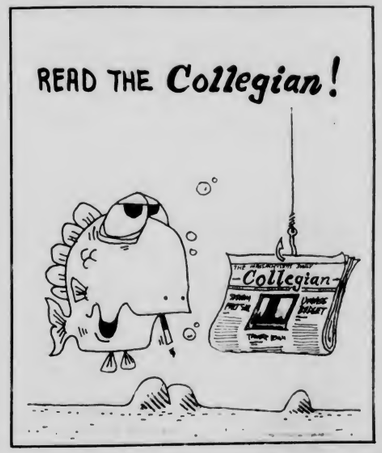
BASICS LUNCH
Flat Bread Sandwich
Quiche Lorraine

DINNER
Rotini
Tomato Meat Sauce
Roast Pork
Gravy, spiced apples
Silver Palate
Salad Plate

BASICS DINNER
Golden Carrot Bake
White Sauce
Hi-Protein Spaghetti
Tomato Sauce
with Tofu and Mushrooms



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE



Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 King of comedy
5 Swift snake
10 "——, old chap."
14 Certain bean
15 Thrill
16 Astronaut Sally
17 Important comedians
19 "Madam, I'm ——"
20 Shoe part
21 Famous boxer and others
23 From K.C. to Boston
24 Counterfeit
26 Strongman
28 Like youth, for some
31 Chaff
32 Rte. from ME to FL
33 River adventure
37 Healthful kind of practice
41 Difficult, Soho style
42 Set a ——
44 Know, in Glasgow
45 Final: Comb. form
46 Opponents in the Shriners' football game
50 Pantry
52 Stare fiercely
53 "—— codfish!"
54 "—— thousand"
56 Petcocks
60 Points
62 Businessman's concern
64 Clumsy crafts
65 Suspicious
66 Farmers' fed. friend
67 "—— la vie!"
68 Nelson and family
69 Hard worker

DOWN
1 High: Comb. form
2 Cub's sire
3 Wattage abbrs.
4 Men of wealth
5 Break a promise
6 So. state
7 Card game
8 And the rest, shortened
9 Electrical device
10 Certain bank acct
11 One way to get around the pool
12 Bell town of fiction
13 Mideast country
18 Out of line
22 Did a carpenter's job
25 Member of the family
27 Pitcher's need
28 Beg or sponge, of yore
29 Czech river into the Elbe
30 Misleads
34 Of one's birth
35 The —— of March
36 Bridge on the Seine
38 Cooled off
39 VIP
40 More than cute
43 Made ineffective
47 Cake and cabbage
48 Trolley
49 Gush forth
50 Spring bloom
51 Sweetheart, in Italia
55 Aligned
57 Gripper
58 Interior: Comb. form
59 Connery of films
61 Follower: Suffix
63 Make a pass at

Weather

Today, partly cloudy, windy and cool with a chance of showers. Tonight and Wednesday, partly cloudy and cool, lows in the 40s and highs in the 50s to low 60s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	L	A	N		R	A	C	E	R		I	S	A	Y
L	I	M	A		E	L	A	T	E		A	D	D	E
T	O	P	A	N	A		S	A	D	A	M
I	N	S	O	L	E		A	L	I	S		E	N	E
		E	G	G	S		S	A	M	S	O	N
M	I	S	S	E	N	T		I	N	I	T
U	S	T			C	A	N	D	E	L	A	B	R	A
M	E	D	I	C	A	L		A	I	D		O	D	O
P	R	I	C	E	D		O	N	E		G	E	N
		F	I	E	L	D		G	A	S	T	A	W	A	Y
L	A	R	D	E	R		G	L	A	R	E
L	I	M	A		B	E	A	N	S		O	A	V	E	S
L	O	G	I		B	O	W	L	I	N	E
A	R	K	S		L	E	E	R	Y		U	S	D	A
C	E	S	T		E	D	D	Y	S		P	E	O	N

Flynn signs with indoor league

By LISA MARIE CANTWELL
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Soccer standout Kevin Flynn, who said he "used to be a homebody," is now looking forward to life on the road, afer signing with a recently formed indoor soccer league.

"I'm really excited about it," said senior Flynn, of his successful tryout, and the chance to be part of the United States Indoor Soccer Association (USISA).

Minutemen coach Jeff Gettler said Flynn, a two-year captain, "has had an outstanding" playing career at UMass. His "quickness, strength, and ability to 'see the game'," earned him the most valuable player award at last years New England College All-Star Game, and a place on Olympic East, one of four U.S. Olympic soccer pool teams.

Flynn said he is not optimistic about getting a chance to play in the 1984 Olympics, and "although I am a little disappointed, I'm glad I was able to get this close. I really didn't expect to get this far," he said.

Flynn's exceptional playing also brought him to Europe with an American team last August. A tour that left him with an injured ankle and subsequently a disappointing season with the Minutemen.

"Kevin never really played up to his potential the whole season," said Gettler. Flynn missed the first six games, and "struggled with his confidence because of the injury," said Gettler.

Recovered from his injury, Flynn spent ten days in March traveling around the mid-west with Team USA, the USISA demonstrational crew. Flynn said he expects to play defensive back on the league's Chicago team for the upcoming November to April season.

USISA, will also be used as a feeder system for the Major Indoor Soccer League (MISL) and the North American Soccer League (NASL), an outdoor league.

According to Gettler, the two existing major leagues ran into trouble within the past five years, due to poor marketing, business investors who were unfamiliar with the sport, and problematic salary management. "The leagues brought in big name foreign players, who expected high salaries, instead of developing American players," he said.

USISA is "a great concept. It involves American coaches and American players," Gettler said. "It's a great opportunity for Kevin."

Mike Gibbons, former Minuteman soccer foward and Flynn's roommate, has also played on Team USA and will join the "nucleus of stronger players," USISA has recruited, said Gettler.

Currently Flynn, a Madison, Connecticut resident, spends his weekends playing for a semi-pro Hartford team. "I've gotten a taste of travelling around," Flynn said, and "I'll play wherever I can."

Kevin Flynn in action.

Men's tennis finish sixth at Atlantic 10s

By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

After having lost a 6-3 decision at Rhode Island back on April 9, you knew that the Netmen wanted to give a better performance last Friday when they returned to Kingston for the Atlantic 10 Championships.

Unfortunately, Lady Luck wasn't on their side, as UMass wound up drawing either the first or second seed in every opening round match, leading to a sixth place finish. West Virginia and Penn State finished one-two for the second year in a row, while Temple, Rutgers and George Washington finished third, fourth and fifth, respectively.

The Minutemen lost all of their first round matches as a result of the bad draw, but Coach Manny Roberts was pleased with the overall outcome, as Steve Jordan (first singles), Marc Weinstein (third singles), and the first doubles duo of Jordan and Wayne Peterson all came back to win the consolation round.

Peterson also did well in the number two singles competition, as he advanced to the finals of the consolation round before losing to URI's Gary Davidson. Fifth singles player Barry Katz also made it to the consolation round finals.

The netmen had an even worse time out in Medford last Wednesday, as they lost an 8-1 decision to Tufts University. The third doubles duo of Paul Zaretsky and John DeKlerk were the lone winners for UMass, as they improved their record to 3-1.

The Minutemen wrap up their season with a makeup match Thursday against Central Connecticut and a home match Saturday against AIC. Perhaps Lady Luck will return for UMass for those matches.

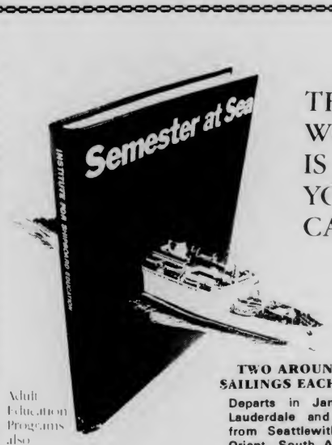
Sports Notice

Undergraduate students must turn-in the gym clothes, towels and locks signed out this semester to the equipment rooms (Boyden or NOPE) from where they were issued, no later than 5:00 p.m., Friday, May 25, 1984. Student will be billed for items not returned through the Bursar's Office.

LEGAL PROBLEMS?
Call LSO serving the students of UMass

Housing • Family • Student Rights • Civil Rights • Workers Rights • Criminal and Consumer Law •

call 545-1995



RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Earn Academic Credit while gaining experience in marketing, public relations, counseling, and student affairs administration. Become an intern in the University's Undergraduate Admissions Office. Interviews begin April 30 Contact the Office of Internships

FREE!!!
FREE HEALTH COVERAGE FOR UMASS EMPLOYEES!
Valley Health Plan costs eligible employees nothing--and it covers more! Isn't it time you tried Valley Health?
Sign up at Personnel Office by June 6 or call a VHP rep for information - 256-0151

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95 6 Cyl $39.95 8 Cyl $44.95
We'll install new resistor spark plugs, points & condenser, adjust idle speed, set timing, test battery and charging system, inspect rotor, distributor cap, PVC valve, ignition cables, air filter, and vapor canister filter. Includes Emission Test and Printout
Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99
includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS

TWO AROUND-THE-WORLD SAILINGS EACH YEAR
Departs in January from Ft. Lauderdale and in September from Seattlewith stops in the Orient, South Asia, the Middle East and the Mediterranean.

Adult Education Programs also Available

Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, Semester at Sea offers students a unique semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester full credit experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities

More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts

Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available

Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The SS Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America

For a free color brochure, write: Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in Pennsylvania (412) 624-6021).

Student Representative will be in Campus Center Concourse from 10 to 2 Tues thru Thurs

SLIDE SHOWS
Tues 7:00 pm Leach House Northeast
Wed. 7:00 pm John Adams 12 floor lounge
Thurs. 7:00 pm, CC Rm 803

Financial Aid is available to qualified students

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

APARTMENT FOR RENT

142 Colonial Village must take summr and fall $310/month. Security deposit and 1st months rent required. Two bedroom 1st come lst served. 256-8788

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Audi Fox automatic good condition new brakes, struts $800 firm 665-3509 after 6

1978 Malibu Classic excellent cond. new battery, new snow radials $1500/BO selling before June 256-1014 8-11 pm/7-9 am

73 VW Superbeetle looks great, runs great Lt Blue $995. 549-4816

1977 Dodge Aspen exc. engine sell by June call 546-4244 1500.00 BO

CAPE COD SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Jason's of Dennisport is now hiring all bar personel for summer employment. Must have experience. Interviews are on 5/5 and 5/12 from 12 noon to 3. 228 Lower County Rd. Dennisport

DRIVE A BUS

Western Mass Bus Lines is accepting applications to our bus driver training program to prepare students for part time work in September. Qualifications include a clean driving record of 3 years, availability to train through this summer, committment to work through May, 1985, and student status at one of the 5-Colleges. Apply in person at 59 Service Center St. N'ton Mon-Fri

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FOR RENT

3-1/2 rooms Presidential Apts. incls. refrigerator, air conditioner, dishwasher. Walk to GRC. One block to bus stop. Available 6/1 to 8/31 w/option to renew. $305 + utilities. Call 549-5881.

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

2 rooms 100 yds from campus. Beachfront location. Summer sublet fall option. Nonsmokers call 549-0533

Brittany two bedroom, fall option July August rent free 256-1062

2 bdrm N Amharst bus route 375+ avail 6/1 549-6894 evenings

1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summr and fall semester '84 Amherst 256-1205

One or two bedroom apt available June 1st, w/fall option. 350/month, include heat and hot water. Close to Amherst Center. Call Melissa or Lisa 549-7757

Brittany Manor apr available June 1st for summer and fall call 253-5560

4-bed summer sublet, Northampton. $525 call summertime for Sept rentals. Skibiski, Realtors Northampton 584-3428

FOR SALE

Mettress, box spring and frame, full size, like new. Plus couch and 4 pairs of drapes. Asking $175 for all. Call 549-5881

Mistral Sailboards. All styles. Good price. Angie 549-4440

Mens 26" Raleigh Bicycle new dorm refrigerator Bearcat programmable scanner BO 6-9141

Computer Terminel with 300 baud modem $300 323-5574

Electric Bass Guitar, two pickups, good for beginners $40. Marlboro Bass/Guitar Amp, two Speakers $60. call 256-0530 ask for Jeff

FOUND

Silvar Bracelet found next to the Rand sometime around April 19th. Call me and describe it. 6-6924 Jennifer

Women's Spring Jacket in Hampshire DC call 549-6287 or 549-2147 ask for Maria

Pencil case in Herter identify Karen 256-8135

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Lifeguard/Swim Inst. at private camp in Pocono Mts. 2-3 pos avl 4 Red Cross cert inds 18+. July thru Aug. Call Russ at 542-3059 for info

Tutor needed for Beginning Apl. will pay $8/hr. please call 253-7821

COUNSELORS, private coed overnight camp in Berkshires has openings in basketball, tennis, archery, softball, photography, computers, director/piano accompaniest, dance/movement/shoe choreography, waterskiing. Openings also for unit leaders. Good salaries. Friendly atmosphere. Contact Jodi 546-9668

Exp. Cook wanted for fraternity, fall 84 good pay good benefits refs req call 549-3831 ask for Kevin

WSYL-FM Sylvan Area Radio seeks qualified person to apply for the paid position of Station Engineer. All interested persons should attend a station meeting on May 2 at 8 PM in Cashin Recreation Room Interviews will be arranged. For more information call 546-4478 EOE

IDEAL LOCATION

Spacious 2 bedroom apt in Amherst Center short walk to campus. Summer only. Call anytime 253-3591

LOST

Lost - Red leather jacket at Elvis set of keys (toyota car and gas key and house key) in pocket Marco Moroni label. Please contact 256-0924

Wallet 8th floor Library Tower April 25 keep the money if you must. Reward 253-9431

'82 Somerset High men's class ring, in Worcester DC on April 20. Sentimental value only. Call Chris, 546-6607

Stolen Wednesday at Pub. Levis Jacket keep the jacket please return keys to Pub or Information Desk

MICHAEL PISTRICH

Happy Twenty-First year of your relative existence. Shall we perform the ritual. Burp

MOTORCYCLES

71 Honda CL 350 runs needs work best offer ask for Clay evenings 256-0363

PERSONALS

Attention all Greaks: Greekfest - Don't forget - May 2-8 fun and games parties

Great DEAL! Summer sublet - fall option 3 bedroom Swiss Village Apt furnished 253-3971

Wanted: or haunted Keith Liederman by Cheri Machlin (cousin) 546-1281

Dr. Ruth Westheimer "Sexually Speaking"
You have seen Dr Ruth on the Tonight Show and Late Night with David Letterman and heard her on WYNY in NY come see her in person Mon. May 7 Student Union Ballroom 8 PM Tickets now available $2. 5-College at Fine Arts Center $4. General Pub

Dr Ruth Westheimer "Sexually Speaking" see her on Late Night with David Letterman on May 3 ask her questions in person on Monday May 7 Student Union Ballroom $2. 5-College $4. General Public tickets available in advance at Fine Arts Center and all Datatix locs

Tom Smith your a life saver - literally. Thanx Penny

To tha women I love, Its been 6 months in heaven. Poconos, here we come! MNG

Contact Lenses Replaced. Bausch Lomb $25. other brands available. Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8561

A Wop Bop A Lu Bop - Come see GREASE tonight at 8:00 pm, ABSOLUTELY FREE on the Orchard Hill Basketball Court. Come early for good seats

GREASE - Solidlaterpattyl Black-eye? Only two more shows - better get it right this time

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

Ride urgently needed to Toronto or Buffalo area 24 May or 25 May call 546-9459 after 11:00 pm will share expenses and driving

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Room wanted in W Yarmouth for summer call Brian 665-3225

Room wantad in Nhampton for summer & fall. Deirdre 584-8122 after 11

Mellow, nonsmoker male grad student with canine pal looking for house for summer and fall. Dave 549-6621

ROOMMATE WANTED

Famale roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Famala nonsmoker to share 4 room N'ton apt 205/mth May-Aug pos through May 85 586-9938

Two housemates wanted for summer in W Yarmouth $800 each by May 26. Call Sue or Laure 546-9880

Share two bedroom apt male or female Brittany Manor mid May with fall option 3rd floor furnished call 253-2140

Female roommate wanted for fall '84 Brandywine apts for more info call 549-7868

Roommate for 2 bedroom apt call after 6 pm ask for Karen 665-4896

Looking for 2 roommates for apt in Brandywine male or female 549-7797

Puffton, sumemr w/fall option 549-4430 before 11:00 pm, 545-3681 (8-4)

Female roommates wanted for Townehouse for fall and on call 549-5515

Wanted 2 female roommetes to share apartment in Brittany Manor next fall Marie 546-1251 Susan 546-6352

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call the Commuter Area Government Ride Service, from May 1 to May 16, between 1 and 4 pm. Tell us where you're going and we'll try to find riders or rides. 545-2145

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs. MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

1 bedroom available in Brandywine call 549-0116, 6-6943, 6-4239

Two bedroom Brandywine apt available for sumemr sublet. Rent negotiable call 549-6398

Summer sublet Brandywine apt very reasonable rent call 549-7868

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

1 bedroom, furnished, Puffton for summer sublet 549-5153

Brandywine swimming pool, air cond with rent, call 546-4791, 549-1405

Double and single available in house on McCellan St 155+ 253-3470

One or two rooms available very reasonable Puffton 549-0462 Chris Sue

Puffton Villega 1 bedroom in a 3 bedroom to sublet for summer only Rose at 549-1616

Two bedroom in three bedroom house convenient location, rent negotiable call now 549-3856

Crown Point furnished 2 bedrooms pool Route 9 bus route next to JR's Price Chopper 253-3782

Puffton 2 bedrooms available 6/1 - 9/1. Furnished room, share bath: rent negotiable (under $130). Large furnished room w/own bath: $210. AC, pol, cable, laundry and bus call 549-6999 Pam or Brenda

Dirt chaapl 3 bedroom Southwood townhouse apartment call now 256-0660

Summer sublet w/fall option 1 bedroom apt Southwood good location near bus stop very quiet call 256-6340

Holyoke 2 rm apt w/kitchenette furnished to sublet for summer rent negotiable call 536-3571

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

GOOD DEAL 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet. Available June 1st thru Sept. 1st. Call Marsha 549-1511 or Michele 546-4917

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village availa June 1 - Sept 1 256-1301

1 bedroom Colonial VIII near pool with fall option 253-5764

1 bedroom Southwood townhouse summer sublet with fall option available June 1 253-7031

2 bdrm ¼ mile from campus AC cable blcy call Beth 545-0046

From June 1 with fall option two bedroom on Sunderland bus route 330/month 665-8314

Furnished Puffton Apart rent cheap close to bus stop call 546-4966

Presidantial room available inexpensive 546-4191 546-7189 close to campus call evenings

3 bedroom Northwood apt $340 avail May 1st w/fall option on bus route call 665-8514

2 large bedrooms in clean So Amherst house on two bus lines quiet neighborhood reasonable 253-5196

1 bdrm 295 month includes utilities, swimming pool, tennis + dishwasher evenings 665-8766

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt fantastic location $125 call Carolyn 253-3630

Summer sublet Rolling Gran two bedroom furnished all util incl AC Rich 6-6389

One bedroom in Presidantial summer sub/fall option 355/mo 549-6644

Cheep 2 bdrm Brandywine apt for summer, pool. Please call anytime 6-5344, 6-5362

w/fall option one room in 4 bedroom house 10 mon walk to campus $160/mo summer rent neg Gail 253-3630 eve

4 bdrm 2 bath ✶ 14 Swiss Vlg, fall option $174 per bdrm per month, utilities included Leaving some furnitura excellent cond. 256-0351/256-1014

Apartment with fall option $147.50 month Colonial Village Apartment near bus routes call Bill or Greg 256-0419 keep trying

Cliffside 2 bedroom townhouse June 1 400 utilitiers included fall option 665-3076

3 bedroom apt Puffton price negotiable call 549-6739 or 546-1477

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Townhouse or Brandywina apt. wanted for fall will take in June call Jim 256-1072 eves $100 reward

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term, please call the RIDE SERVICE 545-2145

WANTED TO RENT

2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village call Karen 549-4684

3-4 bedroom apt in Amherst or vicinity will take in summer or fall 546-6172 or 546-6162

Wanted Puffton or Presidantial apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

Sports

Baseball splits over weekend, eliminates Rutgers from playoffs

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

You like roller-coasters? Well, there's one right here in Amherst. Yes sir. However, you've got to look closely because it's disguised as the University of Massachusetts baseball team. Consider this past weekend when UMass nipped Springfield and lost two of three to Rutgers in New Brunswick, New Jersey.

The first climb: Tony Presnal strikes out ten as the Minutemen beat Springfield last Thursday at Holyoke 3-1.

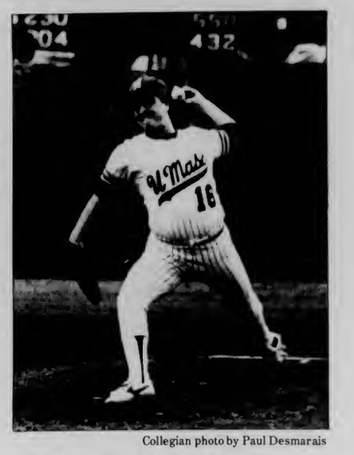
The long drop: In the first game of a doubleheader Saturday, Rutgers pounds UM pitching for 17 hits in a 13-4 win. The Minutemen commit six errors in the debacle.

The second climb: In the second game pitcher Andy Clark comes a bunt single away from the first UMass no-hitter in almost 30 years. Clark only walks one in the 3-0 whitewashing.

The final descent: In the series finale Sunday the locals build a 5-0 lead after three innings, but blow it as the Scarlet Knights storm back for a 6-5, 10 inning win.

Dizzy yet? You should be.

The Minutemen were relegated to a spoiler role against Rutgers, a role they performed well. Despite dropping two of three, UM eliminated Rutgers from contention for a playoff berth in the Eastern Division of The Atlantic 10. Temple has clinched first, with St. Joseph's and URI battling it out for second.



In the opener Saturday the Knights blew Bob Kostro (3-4, 9.63 ERA, 43 IP, 75 hits, 63 runs, 46 ER, 34 BB) out of the box amidst a three run rally in the fifth. Previously, Rutgers had scored twice in the second and four in the fourth. The defense provided little support, committing six errors.

To put Clark's near-feat in perspective, consider that former Minutemen greats Mike Flanagan (Orioles) and Jeff Reardon (Expos) didn't throw no-hitters. No one has since 1957. Utilizing great control (only 72 pitches) and throwing low strikes, Clark methodically mowed down the Rutgers' hitters, retiring 10 in a row in one stretch. Only one ball was hit hard, but rightfielder Dan Clifford made a spectacular sliding catch, temporarily preserving the no-hitter.

In the finale, UM jumped out to a 5-0 lead, then saw Rutgers tie it by the seventh, before UMass botched a suicide squeeze in the ninth and run themselves out of the win.

In that ninth, with runners at first and second, Bruce Kingman dropped a bunt single to load the bases. With Andy Connors coming hard from third, Todd Ezold missed the squeeze and Connors was a dead duck. To throw insult onto injury, Connors dislocated a finger while sliding for home. Oh well.

UMass Notes: The Minutemen finished 3-9 in Atlantic 10 play. Overall, the slate reads 14-22...Hot hitters at the moment include Todd Comeau who has 12 hits in his last 18 at-bats, and Bruce Kingman, who was 6-for-11 in New Jersey...Comeau leads the club in average (.385), hits (45), and doubles (10). He also is 13-for-13 in stolen bases. Comeau has won the first base job from Jeff Climini, who "hit" himself out of the lineup. Cimini has 32 K's in 101 AB's...UM faces UConn tonite in Bristol, Conn.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

UMass pitcher Steve Allard shown in relief action during last week's loss to Fairfield at Lorden Field. Allard and the rest of the Minutemen split their games this weekend as they defeated Springfield and took one out of three from Rutgers.

Collegian photo by Jim Powers

Deidre Doyle (left) as well as teammate Chris Pratt have qualified in the 5000 meter run for this weekend's New Englands.

Womens track qualifies

By M. E. MURRAY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's track team had a disjointed weekend as part headed South for the prestigious Penn Relays and part North for the Fitchburg Invitational.

The highlight of the weekend came Saturday as the UMass four by four-hundred relay team finished in 3:49.3, eleventh best out of sixty teams, smashing the school record by six seconds and establishing themselves as the team to beat at next weekend's New Englands.

Freshmen Sue Goldstein, Kayla Morrison and Barbara Cullinan joined sophomore anchor Deb Smith in the record-run which ranks as one of the fastest ever by a New England team at the college level.

"At a big meet like that, one of two things usually happens," said UMass Coach Kalekeni Banda, "the team is awed by the high-level competition and runs scared or they get pumped-up and run fantastic. This team ran fantastic."

Leah Loftis was scratched from the four by four due to an aggravated hamstring; hopefully she'll be fit enough to defend her 400 meter championship at the upcoming New Englands.

Sunday's meet at Fitchburg involved most of the rest of the team as they tuned up for their qualified spots at the New Englands. The women will send at least 15 competitors to the three-day event which will be hosted by Eastern Connecticut State University, but will be held at Monteville High School, in Monteville, Connecticut.

Deidre Doyle and Chris Pratt have qualified for the 5,000 meters; Loftis in the 400; Morrison in the 100, 200, four by one-hundred and four by four; Smith, 400; Cullinan, 200; Eileen Kelly, Sally Howes, Julie Ott and Maureen O'Reilly will be running time-trials this week to determine the four by eight-hundred relay team; Liz Patterson and Cindy Krupa have qualified for the shot and javeling, respectively.

A pleasant surprise has been the work of discus-thrower Deborah Duffy who has been with teh team only one month. Duffy qualified for the New Englands with a heave of 119' 1½" and is showing "great improvement, day after day," according to Coach Banda.

Womens lacrosse splits two, travel to Springfield today

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The learning process for the young University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team continued this past weekend with the Gazelles topping Rutgers 10-8 on Sunday, but on Saturday, UMass was crushed by Temple 13-5.

Still, Coach Polly Keener has reason to be optimistic because the team is learning and getting better.

"They have learned a lot," Keener said. "I think we still have much more to see with this group."

UMass, which holds a 5-4 record, travels to Springfield for their last regular season game tomorrow. The Gazelles have also qualified for the ECAC championships, with the winner getting an automatic bid to the NCAA's.

This past weekend, the Gazelles gained the experience that Keener hopes to see pay off in Massachusetts' next two games.

Saturday in Philadelphia, Temple scampered out to an 8-1 halftime lead and never looked back. UMass' leading scorer Pam Moryl had the Gazelle's lone tally at the 9:44 mark to narrow Temple's lead to 2-1, but UMass would get no closer.

"In the second half, they played well," Keener said. "If we had come out stronger in the first half we would have fared better.

"It was difficult handling Temple's intensity," Keener said. She added that goalie Debbie DeJesus was superb and the defensive corps played well.

UMass made the score more respectable in the second half, adding four goals by co-captain Linda Haytayan, and single scores by Moryl and Bunny Forbes.

Against Rutgers on Sunday in New Brunswick, New Jersey, the Gazelles kept the game in control to earn their fifth win.

"There were moments that it could have turned either way," Keener said. "But, we held the upper hand the whole way. We started slow but we started to pass well and that made the difference."

UMass led 6-4 at the half and stayed one step ahead of the Scarlet Knights the duration of the game.

Moryl led the team with five goals while Susan Kosloski scored three. Keener said Kosloski played an excellent game.

Linda Haytayan added one as did Mary Scott to finish up the scoring.

UMass faces Springfield at 3 p.m. Wednesday and will face second seeded James Madison at the ECAC championships May 12 in Baltimore. Loyola (#1) will meet fourth seeded UNH.

Women's softball today...

CENTRAL CONNECTICUT at MASSACHUSETTS

TIME — 2:30 p.m.

PLACE — NOPE field

RECORDS — UMass 26-10, 4-2 Atlantic 10, Central Conn. 10-10

PITCHERS — UMass, Lynn Stockley (13-7, 0.99 ERA), Cathy Reed (13-3, 1.28) Central Conn — Debbie Logan (6-4, 0.87), Joyce Saucer (4-6, 1.78)

OUTLOOK — UMass faces a scrappy Central Connecticut team as they tune up for this weekend's Atlantic 10 championships at Rutgers. Last year in New Britain, CT., Central upset UMass 7-6 to split their doubleheader.

The Blue Devils, who have a 7-7 record against Division I schools, are led by the hot bat of shortstop Sharon Mullins, who is batting .435 with 14 RBI.

Central, a Division II school, swept St. John's on Sunday while losing two to Sacred Heart on Saturday.

UMass broke a three game losing streak Sunday with a 7-0 win over Temple. Shortstop Allyson Rioux, who had a .406 average after the URI game, leads the team with a .383 average. Sally Maher is batting .348 while catcher Beth Talbott is hitting .345.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Sally Maher...leads team with five triples

BLEACHER BLURBS — Saturday's game with UConn was the Battle of Connecticut. UMass has ten Connecticut players on their team as does UConn.

—GERRY deSIMAS

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIX, Issue 65 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, May 2, 1984

Mailing staff puts halt to chain letters

By SANDRA KONOPKA
Collegian Staff

Sending chain letters through the campus mail at the University of Massachusetts violates a school policy, but mail employees have 400 to 500 such letters in the past two weeks and have begun to throw them away, according to one mail supervisor.

"The campus mail is limited to the Five College Area and outside businesses and private groups are prohibited from using it," Richard Clarity said to define the violation.

Clarity said a mail collecter began noticing stapled papers with no return addresses on them in the mail about two weeks ago, and all campus mail is required to have a return address. Since the letters are lossely stapled, mail employees were able to identify them and throw them away, eliminating part of the problem because people cannot duplicate the letters, Clarity said.

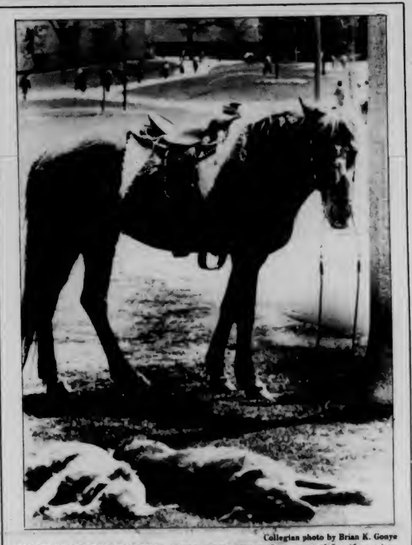
"The letters are pretty easy to determine because they are not sealed and have no return address," Clarity said. "We're not looking at anything we're not supposed to, but we'd like to eliminate them, so we can to a better job."

"The chain letters are a misuse of state and University funds, because employees have to take time to sort it."

Richard Clarity
Mail Supervisor

The chain letter claims to have been around the world nine times, and brings luck to the individual that answers it. A missionary in South America is credited with starting it and those receiving it must make 20 copies and send them out.

Campus mail doesn't know where the initial letter came from, but they do know that it has increased the volume of Campus mail up to 2 percent, according to Clarity.



Clarity said Campus Mail is concerned not because anyone is being harmed, but because the amounts of letters take away from the efficiency of the mail service.

"The chain letters are a misuse of state and University funds, because employees have to take time to sort it, and it takes away from more important letters," Clarity said.

"Campus mail handles approximately one million pieces of mail a year and the mail is usually delivered the ext day," he said.

Robert Brooks, associate Dean of Students, said chain letters violate the Student Code of Conduct because sales or solicitations must be approved by alumni parents, and the administration prior to their mailing..

"This is a misuse of money, and at the same time other important campus mail is delayed," he added.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Goeye

JUST HANGING OUT—Two canines relax outside the student union yesterday as Joy waits for her owner, Rodney Beauman, who was making a saddle strap in the craft shop.

Professors cite males as cause of modern crises

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

A rejection of the "reality" of our male dominated culture is necessary to avert both a nuclear crisis and an ecological crisis, according to two professors who spoke yesterday at the University of Massachusetts.

Environmental Science professor, Linda Lockwood, who is also director of the UMass honors program and Mount Holyoke College Political Science professor and peace activist, Jean Grossholtz, lectured on "A Feminist Perspective on Peace and Ecology" to an audience of 40 students as part of Earth Awareness week.

Grossholtz called for a new reality that rejects terms like "deterrence" and "acceptable losses" and instead uses terms like peace and saving the planet and human lives.

Grossholtz, who earned her doctorate from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and studied subjects such as deterrence and megabombs for four years, said none of it ever made any sense to her.

The Cruise and Pershing missiles violate the policy of deterrence anyway because they are first strike systems, Grossholtz said.

"If you are really trying to build a deterrence system you build something that does not frighten the other country," she said.

She explained that the United States government does not believe in a "strategic deterrence because they have integrated an operational plan" to fight a nuclear war.

"There is a global women's peace movement and if anything is going to save the world, that's it," she said.

UMass professor Linda Lockwood said there is no point in working on women's issues, peace and ecology unless one is aware that they are all interconnected.

"We live in a hierarchical world, a world based on male domination, a world where the bosses reign," she said.

Lockwood, who said a world based on domination is a perverted world, said "It perverts our sexuality, our language, and our family. It perverts everything," she said.

The event was sponsored by the Women's Leadership Project.

Court decides professor had rights violated

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

U.S. District Court Judge Frank H. Freedman has decided that because a former University of Massachusetts assistant professor was denied tenure as a result of racial bias, he is entitled to almost $270,000 in back pay as well as two promotions, tenure, and faculty reinstatement.

The decision was handed down Friday after Peter Kumar filed suit in 1976, claiming that his tenure denial was a result of racial discrimination.

Kumar is a native of East India.

Kumar's attorney, Richard M. Howland of Amherst, presented the case as a violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, which guarantees that tenure cannot be denied for reasons of bias.

Last July, Judge Freedman handed down his decision that Kumar had been denied tenure because of his race and national origin. Freedman decided Friday that Kumar is also entitled to back pay and fringe benefits of $270,000, minus whatever Kumar has earned in the meantime, as well as retroactive promotions from assistant to associate professor and from associate to professor, tenure, and full reinstatement to the faculty effective this September 1.

University Director of Human Resources Robert A. Garstka refused to comment on the decision.

"Of course I'm pleased by the outcome of the case, I feel that Kumar was properly represented and the judge saw fit to rule in our favor," Howland said.

The University now has about one month to review the decision and decide if they wish to appeal, Howland said.

"I have been totally devastated by this and the notoriety of the case," Kumar said, "and now the judge has said that the University must make me whole again.

"The University has every right to defend their actions—I am only trying to get an injustice corrected," Kumar said.

Kumar also said that he holds no ill will against the University.

Howland said he understood that if Kumar had the opportunity to return to the UMass faculty, he would do so.

In addition, Howland has said similar cases usually win only a new trial, and that Kumar's success may be one of the most comprehensive settlements of a civil rights tenure case in U.S. history.

Steinem to address women of the 80's

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

Gloria Steinem, nationally known author, feminist, and writer, will speak about "Women in the Eighties: The Second Wave," tonight at Mt. Holyoke College.

Steinem will speak at 8 p.m. in the Richard Glenn Gettell Amphitheather. Ticket prices are $4 general admission and $2 for students and in case of rain, the lecture will be held in Chapin Auditorium, in the Mary Woolley Student Center.

Steinem is a co-founder, editor and writer of Ms. magazine, the only national magazine written for and controlled by women.

Since graduating from Smith College in the late 50s, Steinem has published numerous articles in the United States, Europe, and England. She has also worked for several political campaigns, including Robert Kennedy's, Cesar Chavez' United Farmworkers, and Shirley Chisholm's 1972 Congressional Campaign, and she has recently researched the impact of feminism on political theory with the Smithsonian Institute.

Steinem is the co-founder of several national women's political groups, including the National Women's Political Caucus and the Women's Action Alliance, a non-profit organization which is noted for its pioneering in non-sexist, multi-racial early childhood education.

Steinem, who has been chosen six times as one of the 25 most influential women in America by the World Almanac, was chosen as one of the ten most influential women by Harper's Bazaar this year.

She will be at the Mount Holyoke Bookstore today from 5-6 p.m. to autograph copies of her bestselling anthology, Outrageous Acts and Everyday Rebellions.

INSIDE:

Jesse Jackson wins District of Columbia.....p.2
New Bedford Feminist discusses Big Dan's....p.3
The need for Third World inupt p.7
How should the Senate allocate money? p.9
The Clash are back p.11
Women's Softball heads for the tourney.....p.20

There's no point in asking, you'll get no reply."
—Often heard about administrators

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

SOLIDARITY LIVES—Lech Walesa leads Solidarity supporters as they prepare to join an official May Day parade in Gdansk yesterday.

Democrat Markey drops out of race for Tsongas seat

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Edward J. Markey, the first Democrat to enter the race for the vacant U.S. Senate seat in Massachusetts this fall, on Tuesday became the first candidate to drop out of the crowded Senate field.

Markey issued a terse statement, saying "intense personal reflection" prompted him to drop his Senate bid and decide to run for a fifth term in the House from the 7th congressional district.

The 37-year-old Malden resident, a leader of the national nuclear freeze movement, said he would elaborate on his decision at a news conference Wednesday.

"I think it's clear he loves his work in Congress and believes in the movement he leads," said George Bachrach, co-chairman of Markey's Senate campaign.

"Instead of the greater glory of always running for higher office, he decided to stay with an issue he wanted to see through," said Bachrach, a state senator from Watertown.

Gillian Gansler, Markey's campaign press secretary, said she felt Markey did not act due to his heavy opposition for the Democratic nomination to succeed U.S. Sen. Paul Tsongas, who decided not to run a second term this fall.

Soviet mathematician chooses to stay in US for now

WASHINGTON (AP) - A five-hour airport confrontation between U.S. officials and Soviet diplomats at Dulles International Airport ended with a visiting Soviet mathematician deciding to remain in the United States, at least for the time being, officials said today.

State Department and immigration officials questioned Sergei Kozlov as the Soviets looked on Monday night and concluded that he was not under duress and was free to leave the country.

Kozlov, who was to have spent the next six weeks as a guest lecturer at the California Institute of Technology, came to the attention of police in Pasadena, Calif., who said that he complained of being followed and said that someone had tried to gas him.

Louis Nirenberg, a professor at New York University, where Kozlov had been lecturing during the first three months of his visit to this country, said he got a call from the mathematican Saturday. He said Kozlov "sounded very disturbed."

After authorities decided he was not leaving under duress, Kozlov was permitted to board a British Airways flight to London. But he changed his mind and decided to remain in the United States, according to Bradley Stevens, deputy district director of the Washington office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

District of Columbia gives Jackson first primary victory

The Rev. Jesse Jackson won the District of Columbia primary Tuesday night, the first election victory of his Democratic presidential candidacy. Walter F. Mondale led in Tennessee in his bid to stop Gary Hart's self-proclaimed comeback before it could begin.

Jackson took 63 percent of the "morning" vote in the heavily black capital city. Mondale was running second and Hart third.

In Tennessee, returns showed Mondale running well ahead of his rivals, and CBS News said it was projecting a Mondale victory.

The two primaries, with 80 national convention delegates combined, marked the end of a three-week campaign lull. They formed the leading edge of a wave of contests to select 717 delegates over the next week and to test Hart's vow of a comeback.

Mondale and Hart effectively conceded Washington, D.C., and the majority of its 15 delegates to Jackson, and chose to make Tennessee and its 65 delegates their battleground.

President Reagan was the only candidate on the Republican ballot in both primaries.

The District of Columbia reported morning votes just after polls closed at 8 p.m. EDT. They showed:

Jackson, 24,199, 63 percent.
Mondale, 11,407, 29.7 percent.
Hart, 2,921, 7.6 percent.

British police announce proof of fatal shots origin

LONDON (AP) — Police said yesterday they had found weapons inside the former Libyan Embassy and obtained what they said was positive proof that someone inside had machine-gunned a Libyan dissidents' rally two weeks ago, killing a policewoman.

Cmdr. William Hucklesby, head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist branch, said a spent cartridge casing had been found on the floor of a second floor room close to the spot where witnesses reported seeing gunfire.

The weapons found include two Colt Cobra .38 caliber handguns, each loaded with five rounds of hollow-point bullets, which explode on impact and cause massive injuries. They are outlawed by the Geneve Convention.

Police also found two magazines for Sterling 9mm submachine guns, standard British Army issue; two Sterling pistol grips and ammunition and eight bulletproof vests, Hucklesby said.

Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy had denied responsibility for the shooting, although witnesses said the shots that killed a policewoman and wounded 11 protesters on April 17 had come from the embassy.

1984 Collegian Board of Editors

Joel Myerson
Editor in Chief

Bill Wall
Managing Editor

J.P. Shanahan
Production Manager

Josh Meyer
Editorial Editor

Andrew May
Business Manager

Anne McCrory
News Editor

Drew Ogier & Dave Deuber
Photo Editors

Miriam Zoll
Women's Issues Editor

Gerry deSimas
Sports Editor

Yadira Betances
Black Affairs Editor

Lisa Mosley
Arts Editor

Today's Staff

Night Editor	Bill Wall
Copy Editor	Ralph Roberts
Layout Technician	Will Hopkins
Photo Technician	Brian K. Gonye
Production Supervisor	Pete Soderberg
Production	John Wielgus, Pamela Smith, Leslie King, Mike Lennon, Norm Achin, Marrianne Hrycin, Ansel Zinter, Beth Poudrier

FUNNYBONES
NOW OPEN!
Located on Rt. 9 directly across from Mt. Farms Mall
$1.99 LUNCH SPECIAL*
Any combination of
Deli Sandwich and Beverage
Choose from Roast Beef, Ham and Cheese, Hot Pastrami, Turkey, Corn Beef Reuben, or Tuna Salad on your choice of Deli Roll, Rye Bread or a Fresh Croissant;
* comes with chips and pickle
* PLUS any drink including beer, wine, mixed drink, juice, coffee, soda or milk
Served from 11 am - 2 pm 7 DAYS A WEEK
JUST PLAIN FUN!!

The Commuter Area Government
presents
SPRING
SKATE PARTY
MAY 2 FREE TIX
8-11 p.m. IN 404 S.U.B.
INTERSKATE 91, Hampshire Mall
* Childcare Available upon request

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

IT'S A NICE DAY FOR BOATING—Two members of the UMass Outing Club go for a stroke on the Campus Center Pond yesterday.

Speaker says Big Dan's spurred Portuguese nationalism

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

When the verdict from the Big Dan's rape trial reached the Portuguese community in New Bedford, the issue of violence against women was replaced by the need for Portuguese nationalism, according to Elizabeth Bennett, of the New Bedford Women's Center.

Bennett, who is a graduate of the UMass Women's Studies program with a concentration in racism studies, discussed "Rape and Racism in New Bedford: An Insider's View," last night in the Campus Center.

"In New Bedford, the Portuguese are a primary brunt of ethnic slurs and jokes. There are very few Portuguese elected officials, radio stations or newspapers," said Bennett, who was born and raised in New Bedford.

She said there has never been any kind of leadership or Portuguese solidarity comparable to the feeling of Black Power in the late sixties.

"With the press coverage of the rape, the Portuguese community felt discriminated against, not just because of the rape, but also because of all the oppressions they felt since they've been here," Bennett said.

Bennett explained to the audience of 30 men and women that the two women who led the Committee for Justice, the group that organized two marches in which thousands of Portuguese protested the verdict of the rape trial, "evaded the issue of rape," and focused on Portuguese nationalism.

The committee "talked about Portuguese pride and offered some kind of leadership," Bennett said, but the "two women involved in the New Bedford left had also been involved with groups that preached feminism equals racism."

She explained that since "Portuguese are white and European, the term racism does not make sense. It makes sense to say there is a strong anti-immigrant and anti-Portuguese bias."

Bennett said the rape trial was not a "frame-up, and that the defendants received a fair trial," but that there was "classism and anti-Portuguese sentiment" expressed by the press.

"The press, which is primarily owned and controlled by white-middle class men, has a stake in the fact that the rape took place in an immigrant community," she said.

Bennett said the sensationalized media attention of the Big Dan trial was something that usually doesn't happen unless the defendants are black.

"There is a myth of the black rapist," Bennett said, "but men of color are not anymore inclined to rape than white men."

The fear of black men being rapists more than white men is "unfounded" Bennett said, because statistics indicate that 93 per cent of all rapes occur within the same race.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Feminist Elizabeth Bennett discusses the Big Dan's trial.

Amherst to try for another post office

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

Because of overcrowded working conditions and the large volume of mail handled daily, the Amherst Postmaster said yesterday that he and U.S. Postal Service officials are seeking an additional post office for Amherst.

"We're very cramped here. We don't have the space to work the volume of mail we receive," said Walter Bush, Amherst Postmaster.

Bush said 62 employees sort and deliver about 60,000 pieces of mail daily at the North Pleasant Street facility. About 30 to 35 percent of the mail received by the post office goes to the University of Massachusetts, he said.

Bush said lack of adequate customer parking and traffic congestions on North Pleasant Street are also reasons Amherst needs an additional post office.

The downtown post office is expected to remain in full operation, Bush said, so customers who have post office boxes or buy stamps there will be able to continue to do so.

"The additional facility will give the townspeople a choice of where they want to do their business," he said.

No specific site for the planned facility is currently being considered, though Bush said he expects the additional post office will be operational in "a couple of years." The new facility will have a larger workroom and a larger processing area "to do our job in a more efficient manner," he said.

The Amherst facility currently has 14 city delivery routes and six rural routes which serve parts of Shutesbury, Leverett, and Pelham.

Bush, who became postmaster this year, said plans to move the post office from its downtown location surfaced "back in the middle '70s" but were dropped because of protests by residents and town officials.

Battle for Grad Senate vice-presidency

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate elections next Monday and Tuesday will feature a battle for the vice-presidency, while incumbent President Sanjiv Dugal will run unopposed.

The winners of the two-day election will be announced at next Tuesday night's senate meeting, where senators will then elect their Executive Officer and Treasurer.

The candidates for vice-president are Christos Karastamatis, a senator from the Department of Agriculture and Resource Economics, and Joseph T. Clifford, a graduate student from the labor center.

Karastamatis, who has been involved with the senate for about a year, cited his participation on several local committees and said he hopes to improve communication between graduate students by expanding and improving the graduate newsletter.

Clifford said he does not know what many of the big issues for graduate students are yet since he is new to the school, but he cited his involvement with student government in high school and college and said he would work hard in the senate.

In the races to be decided by the senators themselves, incumbent Executive Officer Greg Graham will be opposed by Chris Lantman, a senator from the Polymer Science Department, while Linguistics senator Alison Huettner will run unopposed for the position of Treasurer.

Although there are not currently any referenda questions submitted to be placed on the ballot, the Graduate Senate Office will accept questions indefinitely until the ballots must be printed. Referendum questions require the signature of ten senators in order to be placed on the ballot.

Also last night, the senate denied a $1,000 funding request by the Earth Day Committee, and granted $300 to the SGA Public Policy Committee for a letter writing drive urging parents of UMass students to contact their legislators to oppose the proposed tuition hike. The allotment came out of extra money, as ad-hoc funding money has already been alloted.

Collegian staff elects next editor in chief

The staff of the Massachusetts Daily Collegian has selected an Editor in Chief for the 1984-5 academic year.

James P. Shanahan, 24, mechanical engineering major, won a run-off election Monday and said he hopes to develop much of the underutilized potential of the Collegian and also expand the paper's role in the community.

"What I hope to do during my term as Editor in Chief is to tap our potential through increased recruitment and training, alumni outreach and communications with the comunity," he said.

The Lexington native is currently the production manager of the Collegian, a position he has held for the past three semesters.

"I feel the Collegian is basically sound but that much of our potential remains to be discovered," Shanahan said.

—BILL WALL

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

STANDING TALL—Officer of the University of Massachusetts Air Force ROTC stands at attention during Monday's parade by the corps next to Whitmore.

TOP of the CAMPUS

INTRODUCING:
A NEW LUNCH ALTERNATIVE
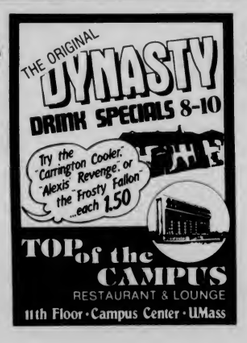
TOC LOUNGE
LUNCHEON BUFFET
M-F 11:30 AM-1:30 PM
- TOC HOT CHICKEN WINGS
- CHICKEN BITES
  Golden Fried Chicken Nuggets with your choice of sauces: mustard, sweet and sour, barbeque
- POTATO DELIGHTS
  Potato skins with delicious toppings
- CARROT & CELERY STIX
  with Vegetable Dip

All For Only
$2.75

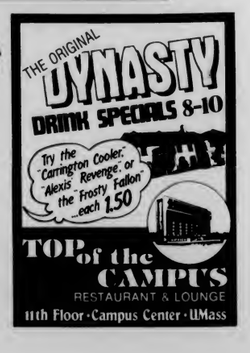
TOP of the CAMPUS

Attention:
Meal Plan Students

Use Your Meal Tickets in the TOC Restaurant



Campus Center Food Services, in conjunction with University Food Services, is proud to announce a new Dining Experience! Students enrolled in a University Food Services' full board plan may use their meal ticket for a $3.00 credit on Wednesday Evenings in the Top of the Campus Restaurant. Also, students will receive the usual 15% discount. Reservations must be received by noon on Mondays. Call 549-6000 ext. 639 or inquire at the T.O.C. Restaurant.



TOP of the CAMPUS
Restaurant & Lounge
11th FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER UMASS

Amherst opens Town Meeting

By JULIA MAYCOCK
Collegian Staff

Amherst opened its 225th annual Town Meeting Monday night by approving a 5.5 percent pay raise to all non-union town employees.

The increase drew little discussion among the 158 members out of a total of 245 present. Proposed changes in the town's policy on sick leave and maternity leave were actively debated.

One provision in the policy change allowing town employees to take up to seven sick days for an illness in the family, was viewed by some members as discriminatory against parents with children, who might need more than seven days off.

Town Meeting members passed the first 11 articles of the 65 article town warrant.

In other business, the body appropriated $723.67 for unpaid bills which the town accumulated over the last fiscal year.

Two articles endorsed by the Finance Committee were also passed. The first appropriated $9,000 to the town's legal services account and the other appropriated $4,250 to the library services account. The money is slated to cover expenses incurred this fiscal year.

Other budgetary measures passed include a $17,000 appropriation to the sanitary landfill budget, and a $2,500 allocation for out-of-town travel for the fire department.

Meeting members also passed an article which transfers transportation costs for the elementary schools to the regional school budget. Amherst belongs to the Amherst-Pelham Regional School District.

Town Meeting will resume tonight at 7:30 in the Amherst Regional Junior High School auditorium, where members will consider the fiscal budget for 1985.

Blast injures UMass worker

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts employee was injured by an explosion while he was repairing laboratory equipment in the basement of the Graduate Research Center at 11:14 a.m. Friday. The man was knocked off of a stool and received lacerations from the blast, which broke glass and caused other damage University of Massachusetts police said. The victim was treated at University Health Services police said.

Police also reported a Ford Grenada valued at $2,000 was stolen from the Southwest horseshoe Friday. The car was later discovered by police at the Amherst Towing parking lot Sunday. Police speculated that the vehicle might have been stolen and parked illegally and then towed from that spot.

At 2:27 a.m. Saturday, police found a burnt piece of paper in the hallway of the third floor of Cashin Dormitory after responding to a report of a possible fire. When police reached the scene, a fire alarm was sounded and the Amherst Fire Department and UMass Department of Environmental Health and Safety assisted in the search, police said.

A woman was injured after she was involved in a fight with a man outside of John Quincy Adams dormitory Saturday night police siad. At 11:48 p.m. police responded to a call that a fight was in progress and upon arrival at the scene a woman came forward and showed police a bump that she received in the fight, according to police. The woman identified the male who then fled and was chased by police. Police did not catch the man who was apparently unknown to the woman, police said.

Future studies day at UMass

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

Our future can be seen, tasted and felt today at the University of Massachusetts as part of the Future Studies Program's "Beyond 1984-An Array of Opinions for the Near Future."

"The purpose of the event is to give the students, faculty and community in the five college area an opportunity to focus on how short term (10-20 years) future trends and options in diverse social, and technological areas may filter down to the daily lives of individuals," Tom Murray, program coordinator said.

The mini-conference's full day events consist of lectures, exhibits, entertainment and panel discussions with professors and community members from various fields.

Keynote speaker and Program Director Peter Wagschal will discuss how close society is to George Orwell's "1984" by bringing "out surprising ways that society does in fact have characteristics of the Orwellian predictions," Murray said.

In the panel discussion titled "Learning and Education in the Future," panelists' views range from Frances Crowe, a local activist and spokeswoman on non-violent futures; professor of anthropology Sylvia Forman, on Cooperative Learning in the Third World; to Professor Howard Peelle on Instructional Applications of Computers.

All will speak on what the future will be like, based on their background disciplines.

"The panels will also discuss peace studies, and nuclear disarmament with a good balance of technological and non-technological views," Murray said.

"The second panel will cover the future of communication in the broader sense," he said. "Interpersonal communication, telecommunications and communications beyond planet Earth."

Murray said the exhibits, located in the Campus Center and Graduate Research Center, will "enhance the day's events." Robotics, demonstrations of personal computers, frontiers of polymer science, communications for the paralyzed and information on space colonization will also be part of the exhibits.

"People can also watch interview themselves by asking themselves and answering questions on video tape," he said. "We'll also have a participatory mural where we'll invite people to express their visions of the future."

Murray said there will be a mural of drawings and graffiti by children "expressing hopes and visions" since "children are the real artists and futurists among us."

Break Dancing by the UMass Dance Club will also be part of the future, Murray said, noting that "New elements of movement may be with us for the next 10 to 20 years because it seems revolutionary."

For the palate, an exhibit of future foods are available. "A taste of future foods such as soybean based foods and sea vegetation by Bread and Circus will be part of the exhibit," he said.

"We want to expose people to different visions, what will life be like in the next 20 years? I don't see it as a way to change the world but to provide a medium for people to express, expose and learn," Murray said.

A day for reproductive rights

Mary Wentworth, District one candidate for United States Congress, will be among the speakers at the Reproductive Rights Awareness Day, being held today on the pond side of the Student Union from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The goal of the Awareness Day, which is being sponsored by the Committee for Equal Rights and Reproductive Freedoms (CERRF), is to educate students about the current issues and threats relating to reproductive rights.

Events throughout the day include speakers, singers, music, a skit titled "Ladies Against Women," and various informational tables hosted by 10-15 RSO groups.

STAFFERS:
Don't catch Collegianaire's disease !!!
We still need you to finish up the semester.
Love,
☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆☆ Your Editors ☆☆☆☆☆

HOUSING
Christian Housing, Chi Rho
welcomes applications from single grads and undergrads, including freshmen and sophomores.
Contact the First Baptist Church for more information about this Christian Ministry House.
Call 549-3596 or 586-4352

Mother's Day is May 12th
Remember your mother on her day.
Send a card from
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

4.75 To Start
Part-time positions available for dependable people to take physical retail inventories in Boston and nort. areas. Nationwide service needs people over 18 with phc. e and transportation. No experience necessary, only good math skills.
Must have weekend availabilty. Daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule allows you to average at least 40 - 80 hours a month.
Paid training on our audit calculators $5.00 per hour in 30 days provided you complete our training requirements. Opportunity for advancement. For more information call Mr. Kreplick.
617-938-9119 or 692-3040
Summer employment. Full-time next January.
See Student Employment Office

You No Longer Have To Lug Your Empties Back ToThe Stores....
 New Times **
For Your Refunds!
Nickel-Back
Student Redemption Service
GET YOUR MONEY BACK... HERE ON CAMPUS

Where	When
Southwest Hampden DC	4-7 p.m Monday
Northeast Mary Lyons Rec Room	4-7 p.m Tuesday
Orchard Hill... Webster Main Lounge	4-7 p.m Wednesday
Central Franklin DC	4-7 p.m Thursday
Sylvan Brown Rec Room	4-7 p.m Friday
*Student Union Bldg	Friday 1-3

Last day operating is Friday May 11
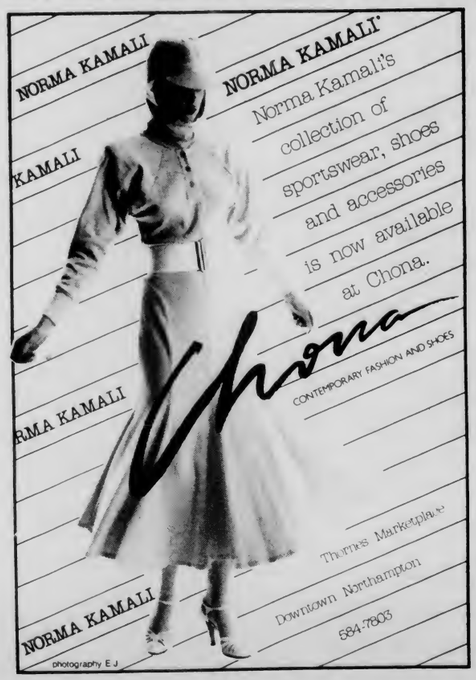
in Sylvan

DANCE
WEDNESDAY
CIRCLE
Plus special guests
8:00 pm
Dayna B. Curtis & Leon Dunkley
Another BOG event
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Wickles FinePrint
THESIS SPECIAL!
COPIES
5¢
(ACID FREE)
☆ SAME DAY SERVICE ☆ QUALITY COPIES
For Your Convenience
Call for an Appointment Today!
Wickles FinePrint
AMHERST
1 Boltwood Walk
256-0148

Northampton

Guild Art Centre
The Area's Largest Selection Of Art Supplies
GRAND OPENING TUESDAY MAY 1
15% OFF STOREWIDE
CHARTPAK LETTERING 3.99 SINGLE SHEET
UP TO 30% OFF SELECTED ITEMS
102 MAIN ST NORTHAMPTON
Guild Art Centre



Featuring: Reminiscence
Contemporary Fashions for Women serendipity
Thornes Marketplace, 150 Main St., Northampton

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
21 Pleasant St.
Northampton
586-3810
Trek - Fuji - Univega - Campagnolo
Suntour and others
Racing, Touring, and Commuting accessories

The Bird of Paradise
THE FINEST SELECTION OF VINTAGE CLOTHES, LINENS, ANTIQUE JEWELRY AND OBJECTS OF ART
WE ALSO BUY AND SELL
150 MAIN STREET (THORNE'S 2nd FLOOR) NORTHAMPTON, MA 01060
(413) 586-0216
(413) 587-8306

WORLD on a STRING, inc.
NEW 1984 KITES ARE NOW IN!
Just in time for Spring!
We have windsocks better than scarecrows
Open Mon, Tues, Fri 10 am - 5:30 pm
Thurs til 8 pm, Sat 9:30 am - 5 pm
Closed Wed & Sun
Northampton 12 Bridge St. 586-6141

Lady Fingers NAIL SALON
SOLAR NAILS SCULPTURED
THE NATURAL NAIL
Foot Beautification
Nail Artistry
Gift Certificates Available
VISA and Mastercharge Accepted
Open Tues. thru Sat., 10:00-5:30 — Tues. & Wed. till 9:00 p.m.
40 Green Street — Northampton
— 586-9224 —

Introducing Merona Sport.
CHONA MEN
Thornes Marketplace 2nd Floor Downtown Northampton 584-7901
A collection of clothing for a man's active life.
100% cotton that moves and breathes with you.
Merona
photography E.J
New at Chona Men.

Black Affairs

Students needed to strengthen caucus

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

A greater student input in the Third World legislative caucus of the Student Government Association (SGA) will help strengthen the lobbying efforts of Third World senators, said Sherwood Thompson, Director of the Office of Third World Affairs at the University of Massachusetts.

"If Third World's students were vigorously involved with the SGA through the caucus they would be serving as guardians of justice," Thompson said.

"Through greater participation in the SGA and through serving the various committees sponsored by the SGA, students will be able to lobby on behalf of Third World students' interest as well as to share with fellow senators a greater awareness and understanding of our particular causes," Thompson said.

"It is important that peoples of color exercise their political rights (at the University) to influence the direction of the SGA," said Robert Teixteira, chairman of the caucus and a senior Afro-American Studies student.

Texteira said it is a matter of whether there is enough Third World representation in the decision making process of the SGA. He said the SGA respects people who are coherently vocal.

Thompson said Third World organizations were created to provide protection and to promote the interest of Third World students not met by the existing ones.

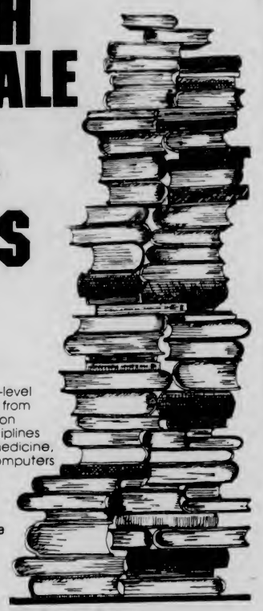
The struggle waged them, which goes as far back as 10 to 12 years, was necessary for the socio-cultural and political existence of Third World people today, Thompson said. But this struggle must be continued to ensure the availability for incoming and future students, he said.

Today these organizations have lost their focus, "steering away from their initial objectives and goals," he said. "There is a lack of broad scope programming as a result of the duplicating activities they offer."

Thompson said this lack of programming has caused the Third World Caucus and the Office of Third World Affairs to initiate a comprehensive program of leadership training, organizational and managerial building skills and the development of a committee where the caucus and the Office of Third World Affairs meet with members of organizations to talk about issues important to these groups.

Thompson said his office will hold workshops and seminars on student's leadership, in addition to promoting the annual organization fair, a showcase of students groups that disseminates information. "The message is to get involved," he said.

"We must saturate people with our ideas for a greater understanding of our causes. . ."
Sherwood Thompson



This is the Year to Plan Your Career!
Limited number of graduate study awards.
Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

AmHerst CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Wednesday to Saturday
King of Hearts 7:10
Harold and Maude 9:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

ATTENTION STUDENTS FROM WESTCHESTER AND ROCKLAND COUNTIES, THE BRONX AND NEW YORK METROPOLITAN AREA!
STUDY THIS SUMMER AT MERCY COLLEGE
Make this summer count! Get ahead or catch up on your coursework. Take advantage of Mercy College's flexible scheduling, low cost ($102.00 per credit) and six convenient locations: Dobbs Ferry, Peekskill, Yorktown, White Plains, Yonkers and The Bronx.
More than 500 course offerings in the following areas:
Accounting
Biology
Business Administration
Chemistry
Computer Information Systems
Criminal Justice
Education
English
History & Political Science
Mathematics
Paralegal Studies
Psychology & Sociology
Six and twelve week sessions. Day and evening classes begin June 4th and July 16th. Registration for all summer sessions begins May 21, 1984.
For information about Summer Sessions at Mercy College, please call Andrew G. Nelson, Dean of Admissions at (914) 693-7600; or return the attached coupon.
MERCY COLLEGE
555 Broadway, Dobbs Ferry, New York 10522
☐ Please send me more information about Mercy College's Summer Session Courses.
Name_____ Telephone _____
Address_____
City_____ State _____ Zip _____

SCI-TECH BOOK SALE
65-90% SAVINGS OFF ORIGINAL PUBLISHED PRICES
Come pick up a stack of high-level scientific and technical books from leading publishers. Our selection ranges through numerous disciplines including physics, chemistry, medicine, mathematics, engineering, computers and more. Your savings range from a tremendous 65% to an unbelievable 90%.
All books located on Sale Table

Open M-F 9-5, S 11-4 Located in Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

This is freedom of speech?

Last on Monday night, a group called the Conservative Coalition sponsored two speakers from Central America. These speakers attempted to present viewpoints seldom heard on this campus, those of people opposed to the Sandinista government of Nicaragua. One would have thought that their presence would have stimulated intellectual discussion. However, a group of radicals (I shall use this term for lack of another that is fit to print) deemed otherwise.

Stephen Erickson

These radicals, swelling the small lecture room beyond capacity, chanted, jeered, laughed, and threw things, as the speakers, struggling with English, tried to present their viewpoints. The demonstration was a clearly organized attempt to stifle opposing opinions. It was a sad commentary on the political left of this campus, and an embarrassment to the University as a whole.

A man who has been active in the pro-Sandinista movement on campus stood up in the front and turned to address his following. He said that their group may have appeared a little rude but that their solidarity with the people of Nicaragua and their opposition to the "New Right" on campus required them to do no less. In other words, because they felt their views were "correct ones," they had the right to disrupt a presentation of opposing opinions.

When the futility of trying to run a civilized event became clear, the speakers elected to leave. The crowd surged into the hallway, yelling and jeering, as the guests from Central America attempted to make their way to the elevators. Members of the Republican Club, which was meeting across the hall, had to hold the mob back as the speakers made their exit. One member of the club tried to call security, but was rebuffed by a radical hanging up the phone.

Such is the nature of the left on campus. As another example, a few weeks ago, the Thomas Jefferson Society sponsored a distinguished scholar from Stanford University, who presented a critique of socialism. A small group of radicals, leaders at the demonstration described above, came in late and proceeded to ask questions. When the answers did not meet with their satisfaction, they laughed out loud. They were obnoxious and disrespectful. So much for open minded liberal thinking.

The conservative movement on the UMass campus is not small, and is continuing to grow. Actions taken by the radicals have only hurt themselves. These include such demonstrations as Monday night's fiasco, other demonstrations including the one against U.T.C. (which will probably not return to UMass), the attempt to change the Minuteman Mascot (overwhelmingly voted down in referendum), and our latest eyesore, a submarine which was parked in the campus pond without the student body's consent, destroying the pond's beauty. Actions such as the removal of posters advertising conservative events and speakers can be employed by both sides, although as yet they have not been, furthuring the vacuum of political discussion.

Emotional rhetoric, disruptions, and generally obnoxious behavior will continue to drive the silent moderate majority into the conservatives camp. The conservative movement on campus will not roll over and die in the face of opposition of any kind, but will continue to grow with increased strength, vigor, and vitality.

Stephen C. Erickson is a UMass student.

Letters

Should we ban all magazines?

To the Editor,

As a student, as a human, and as a person with strong moral convictions, I would like to applaud the attempts being made by the Ad Hoc committee. Media influenced crime is one of the major social injustices being subjected on our culture. In light of the situation, my only complaint besides the Campus Center Board of Governor's obvious and predictable conservative narrow minded reaction of not supporting the bill is the bill's tunnel vision. Eliminating Playboy, Playgirl, and Penthouse is a fair start at stopping sex related violence. But who are we kidding? The problem lies much deeper than this and should be addressed. How about the subversive influence of Popular Mechanic and its direct correlation with auto theft and vandalism, which make up a large portion of the crimes committed at UMass? Has anyone ever been hit by a ball or frisbee while walking around SouthWest? Why are sporting magazines allowed to popularize such rowdy exhibitions of base human emotions?

I also feel that many of the auto magazines are a contributing factor to the high noise pollution on campus, so let's ban them. Some of you might feel that all this is ridiculous, but methods like this have worked in other countries quite effectively. One example which comes quickly to mind is the decisive leadership of the Ayatollah Khomeni and the greatness which he brought to Iran. How much was known about Iran before Khomeni came into power? So quickly students, before we assume adult lives, let us do all we can to bring up petty problems and occupy everyone else's time with them.

Karl Schieneman
Chairperson of American Students Helping Out Liberals

Can't stand the heat in Bartlett?

To the Editor,

Ain't life funny? The campus is full of chatter about tuition hikes. Last Sunday we topped the 80 degree mark and the heat is still running on the campus. Now doesn't that make anybody wonder besides me? One area of cost the University could save on would be heat, at this time of the year. Monday morning the heating registers in Bartlett Hall were running full blast.

On the other hand, the physical plant can be defended to a minor degree. It is not easy to shut down the heat. Because of the high pressures of steam, it would be expensive to turn the heat off and then have to turn it back on again. But, nonetheless, it is the beginning of May and we can assume the heat will not be needed anymore this semester.

If, this late in the year, we were to have unseasonably cold weather, it wouldn't kill anyone to wear something a little warmer. By the third and fourth weeks of April, no cold front will last too long.

Naturally, there may be an actual reason for late use of the heating system; no matter how ridiculous. But, if it can be shut down earlier, it should be for no one wants to pay any extra money that's not needed.

Peter J. DePuy
Sylvan

ATTENTION PSYCH MAJORS: OUR LOANS WILL BLOW YOUR MIND.

We believe the last thing that should keep someone from going to college is money. So call 1-800-SHAWMUT or come in and see us about our comprehensive education loan program.

Because when it comes to helping students, our heads are in the right place.

Shawmut Banks
Look to us for direction.

Members FDIC. Equal Housing Lenders.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

How does the SGA fund student groups

Your money is at stake

Tonight, the Undergraduate Student Senate will allocate three-quarters of a million dollars. You have a stake in this vote-$96 of it is YOURS. (and, I'm sure, you could probably put it to better use than the Senate will.)

Many groups have been denied funding this year because the money was simply not available. However, it would be a blatant lie to say this year's budget act was an exercise in frugality. While funding for many groups was cut, certain proposed allocations are questionable. Specifically, I draw your attention to the following:

Donna Dooley

Senate Operations - $63,484 - an increase of $5,367 over last year (for a poorly operating body). SGA President's Office - $20,039 - up $258. Academic Affairs - $20,867. Committee for Public Policy - $7,792. Governmental Affairs Committee - $4,230 - up $591. Rents and Fees Committee - $2,435. Conference account - $7,000.

Please note, over $125,000 is earmarked for Student Government committees and offices. Now, before crusaders on the "Fourth Floor" get radical on me, I'm not saying that these committees don't serve a purpose. But, let's be honest. When we are turning groups away, empty-handed, it is no time to give ourselves increases. And, it is certainly no time to allot $7,000 for people to take weekend excursions. (Conference Account - $7,000) I urge all senators to set the example by voting against committee increases.

Included in the above allotments are: $70 per week paychecks each for the SGA Treasurer, both President and the Speaker of the Senate ($140 per week during the summer). Payroll for four assistants to the Presidents, two to the Speaker, two to the Treasurer. A total of $2,880 for auto rentals (not to mention gasoline, tolls and parking tickets.)

I'm sure you get the picture.

But, it's not only Student Government allocations that bother me. The Student Center for Educational Research Advocacy gets over $88,000. Why do we need a Legal Service Governing Board whose only allocation is enough payroll for one person to work for the school year?

Reviewing the budget - some groups are receiving more than is appropriate while others are going without.

The Index, the second oldest yearbook in the nation, has been cut to ribbons. A budget request of $39,000 has been slashed to $16,000, an amount which could cancel any production of the yearbook. The yearbook is probably the only concrete evidence that the "average student" gets something back after paying $96 for four years.

And, when it is clear that fewer students can afford to attend the University, why is the lobbying group SAFA (Students Advocating Financial Aid) being funded so little? This group requested funding for 14 lobbying trips and were granted only four. This is the most effective lobbying group on this campus. If the Senate chooses to ignore this group, then I accuse the "Student Senate" of ignoring the students on this campus.

The work the Budget Committee did is commendable, but a bit misguided. What the students need is a "Better Budget."

Donna Dooley is the Orchard Hill Area Government Treasurer.

. . .so is the RSO's future

Tonight's the night the Student Senate cuts up the Student Activities Trust Fund pie ($740,496.99) and distributes the pieces to R.S.O. groups. At least some R.S.O. groups, for several are in jeopardy of either receiving insufficient funding or no funding at all. In order for such groups to obtain funding, they must appear at what promises to be a free-for-all at this evening's Senate meeting and go after the funds already allocated to other R.S.O. groups, a process which inherently pits one group against another. All the more smarting is the fact that the SGA has appropriated $100,000.00 over the last two weeks for concerts. For endangered R.S.O.'s, it's as if Nero played while Rome burned.

Charles Francis Carroll

One such group which will not be funded is the University Peacemakers, even though they were originally granted a recommendation for a budget increase. What happened is that the Peacemakers were in the process of changing their name to the Student Coalition On Peace Education, or S.C.O.P.E., which would go into effect next year. However, this year they are still the Peacemakers. They put in a budget under the name of S.C.O.P.E. Even though they explained this at the budget hearings two months ago, last week they were informed by the Chair of the Budget Committee that they were not being funded afterall, since S.C.O.P.E. is not an R.S.O. organization yet.

Perhaps the $1,200.00 they would have received is the $1,200.00 that is being recommended for the Young Republicans. But should the Republicans receive SATF funding? It is a difficult question because it is difficult to ascertain just what their status and purpose is. While denying any partisan relationship to the Republican Party, they have endorsed Ronald Reagan for President and are endorsed by him. Will any of the $1,200.00 be used on his campaign next year? The Young College Republicans have campaigned for him this year.

On the other hand, the Peacemakers have not endorsed a candidate, although they do support the Nuclear Freeze campaign.

The Young Republicans are a chapter of the College Republican National Committee, located in Washington, D.C. The Peacemakers started as an offshoot of the United Christian Foundation, but are autonomous from it. They are solely a UMass student organization neither supported nor connected to any national organization. While the Young Republicans have received outside funding and assistance from their parent group as well as such off-campus political groups as The Heritage Foundation.

But perhaps the greatest difficulty with the Young Republicans is their tendency to embellish themselves, sometimes exaggerating statistics to make a large impression on others. This is exactly what they did with their budget proposal when they claimed they have 150 members. In fact, they do not have 150 members, they have a phone list with about 100-150 names. However, their actual organization is in truth only a few students. If they did have a membership of 150, they would have to have 75 members present at their meetings to officially conduct business, according to R.S.O. guidelines.

If this kind of political and polemical wheeling-and-dealing interests you, come to tonight's Senate meeting. It ought to be quite the show. Remember to bring your fiddle as the house is burning down.

Charles Francis Carroll is a Collegian Columnist.

Editorial Notes

The regents must be stopped

So, you planned to finish your Engineering or Sociology degree? And you thought that to complete your degree you would only need one more year of school? One long summer of work to pay your bill. Now the Board of Regents decided to interrupt your future and your education by raising the cost of tuition. Are the regents concerned for your ability to attend school? Doesn't seem like it. Are the regents concerned for lower-incomed families? Apparently not. Are they concerned for minorities? I really would have to say "NO, THEY ARE NOT!!"

It is an irrefutable fact that students, across the board, will be affected by a tuition increase of any amount. We must protest their latest act. We must stop them before they stop us and our education. Your education is not limited to you, yourself. Rather, it is clearly related to your sisters; your brothers; your cousins; your nephews; your nieces; your uncles; your aunts; your parents; your future children. Just think about it: If it is hard on you now, what will it be like in four years, with a 15 percent increase every year, for the next four years!

Two years ago students effectively defeated Governor Kings line-item cutback in the UMass budget by lobbying their legislators; by having their parents lobbying their legislators. It has been done. We can do it again - now. In the upcoming days the SGA Rents and Fees Committees will have a table set up on the Campus Center concourse for students to send letters to their respective State representatives and senators to ask them to oppose the tuition increase. (A phone line will be accessible on Wednesday - Friday to call your legislators office.)

I'm graduating this fall; I guess I shouldn't care, but I do. I care for all those minds that might be wasted. I care for all that talent that may never have the opportunity to sprout and grow. I care for my neighbor's daughter that will be adversely affected by the increase. She won't be able to attend college next year. I'm sure she cares, don't you?

Your responsibility to the Commonwealth, whether you are an in-state or out-of-state student, is to let your voice be heard. Let the legislators of Massachusetts know how it will affect you. The state's responsibility is to insure equal access for a higher education. The proposed tuition increase will not afford that opportunity to all sects of our society. You need to act. We need to mobilize. We need your support; your help. It is time to use the hand to knock on doors. It's time to let the parents know what this may mean to your future. The time is now.

Scott Stern is Chair of the SGA Rents and Fees Committee

The yearbook must stay!

In defense of the University of Massachusetts yearbook, the Index, we the editors feel it is our responsibility to inform the students of the facts surrounding this very important issue.

As many of you know, the SGA Budgets Committee has chosen to drastically cut the funding for the 1985 Index. This could, in effect, terminate any future publication of the yearbook after the book for the graduating class of 1984. We wish to rebut statements made by Joseph Sparks, Budgets Chair, and the Budgets Committee.

Budgets Committee has decided to reduce funding for the yearbook charging that the book has been mismanaged in the past. Although the committee refuses to accept this fact, management of the Index is markedly different than in the past few years. We are organized, dedicated and involved, which is shown by how we have met all of our deadlines for the first time since 1977. The 1984 Index will be ready for distribution during fall registration.

The Index Editors

Sparks' proposals to increase income and decrease expenses are not feasible defenses for the reduction in the yearbook's funding. Lowering the press run from 6500 to 5000 copies will not substantially decrease our costs. The majority of the money involved goes toward the planning of the initial prototype of the yearbook. Cutting the number of copies printed would save some money, but hardly enough to justify the proposed decrease on our budget. Sparks also suggested that seniors pay a fee for their yearbook, or increase the price of the book.

According to Sparks, the Index should have found alternative sources of income in the one week period since the budget proposal, instead of getting out petitions to show the yearbook did have popular support. Without these petitions, there would be no proof that the students want a yearbook. Because the 1984 staff is an efficient working body, we did not need this time to better our management, as alleged by Mr. Sparks.

As for alternative funding, it is our belief that with funding from student organizations, we have no restrictions as to what we can and cannot include in the Index. If we were to get funding from the administration, we would possibly be subjected to pressure from them, in terms of the substance of the book. Also, the committee informed us of the cut two weeks ago. This gives the Index approximately one month to raise $23,000 in order to print next year's book. This is simply impossible.

First and foremost, we are students. Soliciting money from othe sources would take away from needed attention to academics and from the time used on the current yearbook. This would delay our timetable and cause the yearbook to come out later than planned. At Monday night's public hearing of the budgets, Sparks informally presented us with an ultimatum. We can either take the $16,000 allocated for the Index, or the SGA's Communications office will take over the book, with drastic changes to be made. This is foolish as an alternative solution. To produce a yearbook, experience is necessary. It would be extremely difficult to produce a quality book without the knowledge and experience that this year's staff has.

The Index is taking the largest cut of all funded Registered Student Organizations. It is unfair for the SGA to try to make up over one-third of its budget decrease of $45,000 from last year at our expense. We believe that the Budgets Committee did not give us a fair hearing. The problems with the 1982 and 1983 yearbooks are not the fault of the 1984 staff, yet we feel we are being penalized for this. Please help support the Index. Voice your opposition to the SGA's plan by attending tonight's Senate Meeting in Campus Center room 163 at 7:00. The future of the Index is dependent on your participation.

The Index staff

★★★★★★★★★★★★

Some things you MAY want to do!

Sponsored by: The Commuter Area Government

Commuter Area Government

Area Government for students living off-campus 404 SUB

545-2145

Ride Referral
May 1st - 16th

Leaving town? Going home? Offering a ride? Need a ride? Call us between 1:00 and 4:00 pm, tell us where you are going and we'll try to find you a ride or rider. 545-2148

Moral Support
May 2nd - 24th

Free coffee and donuts will be served in the Commuter Lounge 216 SUB on Mondays and Wednesdays May 2nd - 16th at 10:00 am. and during finals period May 21st - 24th 6:00 pm -closing. Sponsored by Food Services and CAG.

Skate Party
May 2nd 8 - 11

Skate your worries away at the 1st Annual Commuter Skate Party at Interskate 91 in the Hampshire Mall. Free admission on a space available basis to UMass students with a valid ID Advance tickets are available in the CAG office 404 SU

Flea Market
May 3rd 10 - 3:30
SUB

Come and browse or buy at the Students' Flea Market. Plenty of arts, crafts and junk for all you collectors.

Pleasant St. Theatre Night
May 8th
10 pm show only
Northampton

We've opened the doors of the Pleasant St. Theatre for one free showing of the new film "El Norte" Admission is free with a valid UMass ID

Handicapped Awareness
May 7th & 8th

Handicapped awareness days are happening on the concourse. Try the wheelchair obstacle course and come to our workshops. Call 545-2148 for more information. Sponsored by the Handicapped Student Collective, the Commuter Area Government, and the Student Activities Office.

Amherst Cinema Night
May 9th

A Marx Brothers marathon with 3 of their best known films 7:00 Big Store/8:30 Night at the Opera/10:00 Day at the Races. Admission is free with a valid UMass ID

Army/Navy Sale
May 8 - 10 SUB

The latest craze in clothing at really low prices. Pants, shirts, coats, sunglasses, camping gear and more. Tue & Thur 9 am to 8 pm - Wed 9 am to 4 pm

★★★★★★★★★★★★

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Commencement 1984

10:00 a.m., Sunday, May 27

All Candidates
There will be no Commencement rehearsal for degree candidates. Candidates should assemble by school/college at Alumni Stadium no later than 9 a.m. graduation morning, May 27, 1984. Signs will be posted indicating schools, and Commencement Marshals will issue specific instructions and distribute programs. Upon signal, candidates will follow the Commencement Marshals to the assigned areas and be seated.

Candidates will receive diploma covers from the deans of their school or college.

Who is Eligible to Participate?

Undergraduate degree candidates who anticipate completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1984. Questions concerning academic status should be directed to the Records Office, 213 Whitmore, 545-0555.

Master's degree candidates who have previously submitted the Degree Application Form by April 27, 1984 to the Office of Degree Requirements stating the intention to complete all requirements. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Doctoral degree candidates who have completed all degree requirements by April 27, 1984. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Faculty
Faculty and staff should assemble at the SOUTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel between the Facilities/Information Center and the stadium wall. Faculty will be part of the processional and will be seated immediately in front of the candidates from each school and college.

Note: Commencement '84 is on SUNDAY, May 27.

Parents and Invited Guests Plan to Arrive Early — Space is Limited
Since the Commencement Exercises are open to the public, and guest seating is without reservation, parents and friends should plan to arrive early to ensure good seating.

Handicapped Seating
Viewing area for the handicapped will be located on both sides of the stadium on the eastern and western walkways. Since seating is limited, only one person may accompany the handicapped guest.

Invitations
There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend the ceremony and tickets are not required. Each undergraduate/student will receive a packet of six formal invitations. Students are urged to encourage their guests to arrive early for good seating.

Caps, Gowns, and Hoods

Undergraduate Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Master's Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels, may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Doctoral Degree Candidates
Doctoral caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 4 p.m., upon clearance by the Office of Degree Requirements. On Commencement Day, caps, gowns, tassels, and hoods may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the NORTHWEST end of the stadium (on the gravel area).

Doctoral candidates who plan to participate in the Commencement ceremony must have a hood. Each Ph.D. candidate's name will be announced over the stadium sound system and two officers of the University will drape the hood on the candidate's shoulders. Doctoral hoods can be purchased only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, A249 Graduate Research Center, at a cost of $26. (Five College Doctoral Hoods will be available at $42.95.) Doctoral hoods may be rented through the University Store.

Rentals
Academic apparel for this year's University Commencement may be rented through the University Store. All faculty members are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. THE LAST DAY TO ORDER IS FRIDAY, MAY 18. Payment must be made at the time of order and there will be no refunds if apparel is not used. Academic apparel may also be purchased. For further information about rentals or purchases, please contact Connie Szelewicki at the University Store, 545-2619.

Accommodations
Many area motels are already booked for Friday and Saturday before Commencement. A limited number of rooms in University housing will be available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 25, 26, and 27. Please contact the Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center, 545-3400, by May 10. There is a $5 cash key deposit — to be returned when the key is returned.

Food Services
Coffee, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at both rotundas on the North side of the stadium.

Commencement Ceremony Schedule

9 a.m.	Robing for Commencement. Appropriate signs will be displayed. Graduates should line up according to their school or college.
9:30 a.m.	Seating of Graduates
10 a.m.	Procession starts
12 noon	Ceremony ends

Parking
Parking at the stadium is extremely limited. Commencement traffic will be directed to several parking lots located nearby and shuttle buses will transport you the short distance to the stadium. You will be dropped off directly in front of the stadium and buses will return you to the lots immediately following the ceremonies.

Radio Traffic Control
In an effort to aid the traffic flow at Commencement, WTTT radio in Amherst 1430 on the AM dial will broadcast traffic reports throughout the morning. Please tune to 1430AM once you arrive in Amherst for the best route to the ceremonies.

General Information

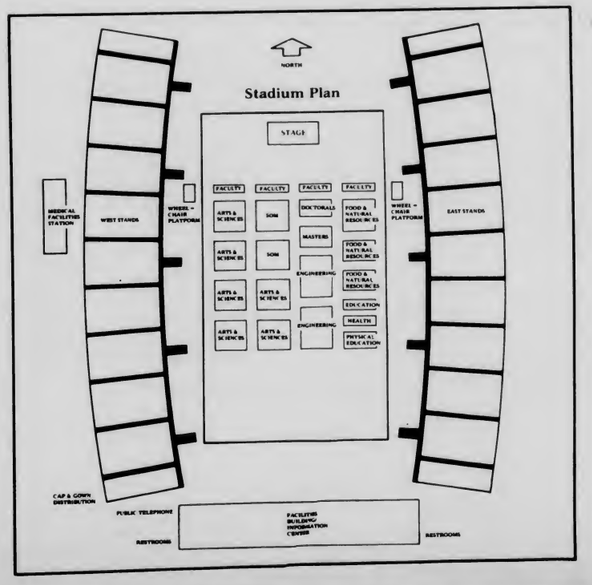
Diplomas will be mailed to graduates in the fall.

Medical facilities will be located in the van under Section 8 of the stands.

Public telephones will be located on the west side of the Facilities/Information Center.

Restrooms are located at either end of the Facilities/Information Center at the south end of the stadium.

Viewing areas for those confined to wheelchairs will be located on both sides of the stadium, on eastern and western walkways.



For additional information, contact the Office of Community Relations, 390 Whitmore, 545-2560.

ALCOHOL IS NOT PERMITTED IN THE STADIUM.

RAIN DATE
There is no alternative rain site. The ceremony will be held outside regardless of the weather. The ceremony will be delayed a maximum of two hours in the event of heavy rain. In the event of torrential rains the ceremony will be cancelled. Listen to local radio stations early Sunday morning to hear if the decision to delay or cancel has been made.

Schedule of Events	Date	Time	Place
Stockbridge Commencement	Sat., May 26	1:30 p.m.	FAC Concert Hall
ROTC Commissioning Ceremony	Sun., May 27	8:00 a.m.	FAC Concert Hall
Nursing Commencement	Sun., May 27	1:00 p.m.	Rhododendron Garden Rain site: 329 Morrill Science Center

1984 Commencement Ceremony Sun., May 27 10 a.m.-12 noon

WANTED

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term.

Please call the

Ride Service

545-2148

Sponsored by: The Commuter Area Gov't

THE BEST PLACE IN TOWN TO START A CONVERSATION

is

Time Out

Free Popcorn

Two TV's

AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR

37 N. PLEASANT ST AMHERST. MA

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

OPEN RUSH

All University Men Invited

TONIGHT May 2nd and

THURSDAY May 3rd

FREE REFRESHMENTS

374 N. Pleasant St. 253-9032

(the Blue House)

Wednesday, May 16

4-7 PM

Southwest Playing Fields

Free bus service from Franklin and Worcester parking lots.

LIVE MUSIC

FUN!

In event of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s.

board members: bring i.d.

COUNTRY BAR-B-Q

Non-Board Members - $4.75 in advance. Tickets on sale now at Munchies, Snack Bars, Franklin Meal Ticket Office.

Move Yourself, All Your Stuff, And Save, Too!

It's as easy as renting a Ryder truck, one way.

Compare costs before you make plans for moving at the end of the semester.

If you're 18 or older and have a valid driver's license, you can use a Ryder truck, rent-it-here, leave-it-there. Load up your stereo, 10-speed, clothes: everything. You'll still have room, no doubt, for one or two friends with their things to share the cost.

Compare that to the price of a plane ticket. Or even a bus. Plus shipping.

Rent a newer truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world – Ryder. The best truck money can rent.

STUDENT DISCOUNT COUPON

RYDER TRUCK RENTAL, INC.

The holder of this coupon is entitled to a

15% DISCOUNT

on any ONE WAY rental of a Ryder truck. Present this coupon to any Ryder location in New England and save even more.

One coupon redeemable per transaction. Not valid with other promotions.

Call (413) 736-8361 or your local dealer for information.

Renters Signature Expires 8/30/84

Vision Showcase

Your locally owned Optical Shop

High-Fashion Nylor® Rimless Frames.

- Lightweight for all-day comfort
- Extremely strong and flexible
- World's lead ing rimless frames

Logo

LOGO PARIS FRAMES. SHEER ELEGANCE.

Ask for FREE Con!act Lens Demonstration

$15.00 OFF a complete set of Eyeglasses or Contact Lenses or 40%

Vision Showcase

OFF the second set of prescription eyeglasses or sunglasses when purchased with a complete set of Eyeglasses at the regular price. Offers preclude previous discounts.(Discount applies to lesser priced pair.)

Hampshire Mall

(Across from KMART) 584-8324

Arts

Clash: out of the arena

THE CLASH
Wed., April 25
Agora Ballroom, West Hartford
BY JIM FEIN
Collegian Staff

Two songs into their concert last Wednesday evening, the Clash were forced into an untimely delay. The large capacity crowd had been surging towards the stage and people were literally being crushed against the stage front barricades. Clash lead vocalist and frontman Joe Strummer pleaded with the crowd, for ten minutes or more, to move back so the show could continue. It was a state of turmoil, and quite fitting for a band which has led such a stormy existence.

Last fall the Clash stunned the music world by announcing the dismissal of co-singer, co-songwriter, and lead guitarist Mick Jones for the band. Jones, despite his aversion to touring and generally poor attitude, was the musical force behind the Clash. As lead guitarist and songwriter, it was primarily he, and not Strummer, who was responsible for the biting melodies, lyrics and clever hooks which are the trademarks of the band's music. So, without Jones, one might be led into thinking that the Clash would be a lame unit in concert. Well, quite the contrary as a matter of fact.

The Clash were very good last Wednesday evening. The crowd responded in kind to the twenty-three song performance, which included material from each of their five albums. New members Nick Sheppard (lead guitar), Vince White (rhythm guitar), and Pete Howard (drums) are all very good musicans (as they very well should be, the Clash reportedly auditioned 350 guitarists and 200 drummers before deciding on the new line-up.)

The Clash began with the now obligatory opener, "London Calling," and then proceeded at the pace of a musical roller-coaster. From their debut album of 1977, The Clash (the bible of punk rock if there ever was one), came a total of seven songs. The anger, rebelliousness, and energy of "Clash City Rockers," "Janie Jones," and "I Fought the Law" were most convincing.

Interspersed between these rapid-fire, punk-rock anthems were more controlled rockers. From London Calling, in addition to the title track, came "The Guns of Brixton," "Brand New Cadillac," and "Clampdown," while "The Magnificent Seven" and "Police On My Back" were selections featured from 1981's triple album set, Sandinista!.

The band returned for two encores, during which they roared through material primarily from their debut L.P. ("Career Opportunities Opportunities," "I'm So Bored With The U.S.A.," "Garageland," and "White Riot"). It was a fitting end to a very good concert.

There was only one problem with this concert, one which will eventually lead to the demise of this band, the lack of any quality, new material. The Clash played only three new songs, none of which was very convincing or memorable. The songwriting team of Strummer-Jones was a very capable and productive one which put the Clash on the road map for good. Now it appears the Clash are veering off the interstate and on to a lesser quality road. Let's wait and see.

Opening for the Clash were Boston veterans and perennial favorites the Neighborhoods. This band, despite a few personnel changes, has been at the forefront of the Boston underground music scene since 1979. Their soon to be released record, entitled Fire Is Coming, should be available in local record stores any week now. Perhaps the added publicity they will receive from this impending release will give them the impetus necessary to become successful beyond the regional level.

Utopia (above) will headline Spring Concert this year. Also playing at Sunday's event, which will be held by the Campus Pond, will be Spyro Gyra, Michael Gregory and the Persuasions. The show will begin at noon. For further info, call UPC at 545-2892.

SOS rescues audience

S.O.S.
Sat., April 28
Mt. Holyoke College
BY MARILYN G. BOU
Collegian Correspondent

Last weekend is one that took many people a few days to overcome. But Saturday night at Mount Holyoke is one that many who were there will not soon forget. A satisfied audience is an understatement indeed. For the audience first had to sit and hear an awful "band" who carries the name of Jailbait. They held the audience as captives while they performed songs from various artists. Many people were walking about admiring the architecture of Chapin Hall (which by the way is very beautiful) where the concert was held, eagerly awaiting the end to this bands performance.

Excitement soon filled the air as people anxiously awaited the S.O.S. Band. They were in their seats a good five minutes before the band was scheduled to begin. "After what I've just been through with this last band I expect to get my moneys worth with the S.O.S.," said a member of the audience.

She and everyone else were not let down in the least for the band entered the stage with nothing less then a canon boom that sent you leaping into the air with an irresistable urge to dance. The audience was on its feet for five consecutive numbers. This my readers is an accomplishment few bands can claim. There were times when one felt the balcony just would not hold for one more song if the people continued to jump as they were doing. The audience did sit down for two beautifully performed romantic ballads. However, once the last note was struck to "Tell Me If You Still Care" a popular hit for the band again the place was jumping and remained this way for the continuation of the concert.

For anyone unfortunate enough to have missed the S.O.S. Band this time around I suggest to you to be the first in line for their next performance.

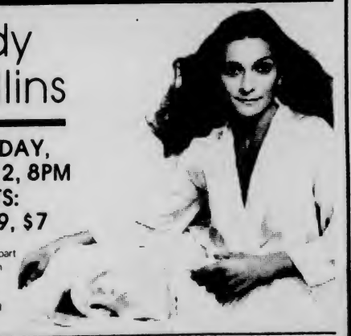
of mice and men

by john steinbeck

may 3-5, 9-12 · 8p.m.

rand theater, university of massachusetts

tickets: fac box office- 545-2511



UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Judy Collins

SATURDAY, MAY 12, 8PM

TICKETS: $11, $9, $7

Sponsored in part by a grant from Kollmorgen Corporation Electro-Optical Division

Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

The New York Times
Best Sellers

New York Times	BEST SELLERS
Fiction	NonFiction
1. The Aquitaine Progression	1. Motherhood
2. The Hajj	2. Mayor
3. Heretics of Dune	3. The March of Folly
4. The Butter Battle Book	4. One Writer's Beginning
5. The Danger	5. Tough Times Never Last, But Tough People Do!
6. One More Sunday	6. Mafia Princess
7. Lord of the Dance	7. Lines & Shadows
8. Smart Women	8. The Discoverers
9. Pet Sematary	9. Further Up the Organization
10. Almost Paradise	10. A Light in the Attic

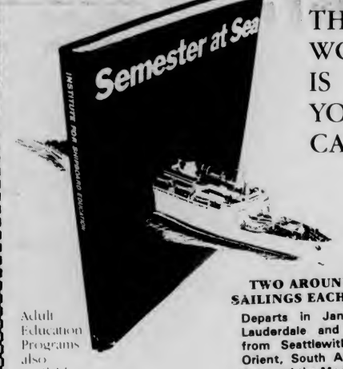
$2.00 OFF List Price

All New York Times Best Sellers

*Hardcover editions only

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4



Need an Ice Cream?
REAL ICE CREAM?
Hurry!

the hatch
ice cream shop

TONIGHT! (AND EVERY WEDNESDAY)
LIVE NEW YORK COMEDY SHOW
ALREADY AN AREA TRADITION!
FEATURING...
CHANCE LANGTON
(Seen with RODNEY DANGERFIELD and other greats!)
SHOWTIME 11:00 P.M.
75¢ MIXED DRINKS 8–11
NO COVER
THURSDAY:
2 FOR 1 ALL NIGHT LONG
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY from 8–10
THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!
Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB
Disco • Top 40 • Rock

THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS

Adult Education Programs also available

TWO AROUND-THE-WORLD SAILINGS EACH YEAR

Departs in January from Ft. Lauderdale and in September from Seattlewith stops in the Orient, South Asia, the Middle East and the Mediterranean.

Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, Semester at Sea offers students a superior full semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester full credit experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities.

More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts.

Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available.

Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The S.S. Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America.

For a free color brochure, write: Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in Pennsylvania (412) 624-6021).

Student Representative will be in Campus Center Concourse from 10 to 2 Tues thru Thurs

SLIDE SHOWS
Tues 7:00 pm Leach House Northeast
Wed. 7:00 pm John Adams 12 floor lounge
Thurs. 7:00 pm, CC Rm 803

Financial Aid is available to qualified students

Hypercurricula

GENERAL MEETING — to discuss film/lecture series. 8:00 p.m., CC174.

CUSP CSREER NIGHT — Council of Undergraduate Studies in Psychology will sponsor a career night featuring social work, industrial psychology, counseling psychology, and the alternative learning program. 7:00 p.m., 304 Tobin.

ENGLISH CLUB MEETING — All are invited to the meeting of the English Club. Discussion will include plans for next semester. 5:00 p.m., BART 252.

COMING OUT RAP GROUP — A support and discussion group for men and women interested in talking about issues which affect the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual communities. 7:30 p.m., SU413.

GRENADIER AND GAMING SOCIETY — We play many historical military miniatures and board games including naval, Napoleonic and armor. No experience necessary to play. Tonight's game: modern tank miniatures. 6-12:00 midnight, See CC schedule.

LAST GENERAL MEETING OF SWE — Introduction of new officers and activities for fall. Also, info on Recognition Luncheon for senior women. 6:00 p.m., 221 Marston.

UMASS SIENA PROGRAM — The UMass Italian Club is sponsoring an informational meeting for students interested in studying in Siena, Italy. Wine & cheese served. 8:00 p.m, HERT 6th floor lounge.

UMASS BIKE CLUB — Lecture by Dr. Benjamin Ricci, physiologist. Plan four for May 11-13, all weekend. 7-9:00 p.m., See CC schedule.

CONCERT: UMass Jazz Ensemble 1 — Directed by Jeff Holmes, the UMass Jazz Ensemble 1 performs music of Herbie Hancock, Horace Silver, Sammy Nestico, Thad Jones, Jeff Holmes, and others. FREE, 8:00 p.m., Bowker Auditorium.

ISRAELI FOLK DANCING — Tonight is the last session of Israeli Folk Dancing this semester. See you in the Fall! 7:30 p.m., SU Commonwealth Room.

ISRAEL INDEPENDENCE DAY ACTIVITIES — Music! Buttons! Information! Balloons! Join us! on the Student Union Steps, 11-1:00 p.m., SUe.

HUMAN RELATIONS FORUM — Forum Topic: "Pornography on Campus?" Members of the campus community are invited to voice their opinions regarding demands for the removal of certain magazines from the Campus Center Store. 12-1:30 p.m., CC101.

HUMAN RELATIONS FORUM — This forum will be devoted to soliciting comments from members of the campus community regarding the University's Sexual Harassment Policy and Procedure. 12-1:30 p.m., CC804-08.

COMMITTEE FOR EQUAL RIGHTS & REPRODUCTIVE FREEDOM MTG. — Join us to evaluate the Awareness Day. All welcome. 4:00 p.m., CC901.

WSYL GENERAL MEETING — General meeting for staff and those interested in the paid position of engineer. 8:00 p.m., Cashin basement.

Magnum Force

CLINT EASTWOOD
WED. MAY 2
at 5, 7:15, 9:30, 11:45
5 o'clock - $1.00
all others $1.25
in S.U.B.
sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega

ZACA TRADING COMPANY in the Hampshire Mall
Fine Spring & Summerwear
Men's 100% cotton lisle shirts durable!!
natural stretch!!
variety of colors!!
10%off
only $5.95!! with presentation of ad
Don't forget Zaca Trading Co.
for Mother's Day gifts!!
Hampshire Mall, Hadley 586-9410

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a serving of our award-winning homemade premium ice cream!
Thurs Mothersmoosh On South St. Hadley & Amherst Open daily 11 a.m. to 9, Sat & Sun 11:30 to 9 584-5837
Berrell's
ICE CREAM

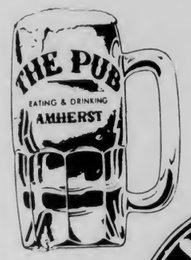
WILD AMERICA IS OUR CAMPUS
Stimulating career-oriented BS, MS secondary and jr high school or summer expedition degree programs. Newfoundland to California.
Practical, small-group 1 to 4 week field courses emphasizing natural history and environmental issues through problems, anatomy and self. Financial aid and postgraduate grants available.
NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY EXPEDITION INSTITUTE
Sharon CT 06069 (203)364-0522

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST
For students planning to take
English 112
(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984
THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)
MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)
No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument.

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

COPIES

OPEN 8AM TIL MIDNIGHT MONDAY THRU FRIDAY
SATURDAY 9-5 SUNDAY 11-5
Collective Copies 256-6425
25 N. Pleasant St., Amherst



PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

FREE!!!
FREE HEALTH COVERAGE FOR UMASS EMPLOYEES!
Valley Health Plan costs eligible employees nothing—and it covers more! Isn't it time you tried Valley Health?
Sign up at Personnel Office by June 6 or call a VHP rep for information - 256-0151

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
LADIES 1st 5 DRINKS FREE
Anytime 7:00 p.m. -1:00 a.m.
GENTLEMEN 12 oz. Drafts
90 cents ALL NIGHT
NEVER A COVER CHARGE
A great time never cost less!
FUNNYBONES
Open Mon.-Sat. 11 a.m.-1 a.m.; Sun. 1 p.m.-1 a.m. Located across from Mt. Farms Mall, Rte. 9
586-2770

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
THURS. MAY 3
a tribute to THE ROLLING STONES "SHA-DO-BEE"

MAURICE RAYMOND & The Lonely Boys

PUB MUG NIGHT
- Every Wednesday -
35¢ BEERS
Miller - Miller Lite
Music by
Rack-A-Disc
- Dancing -
No Cover

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Applications are now available for the position of:
Greenough Artist-in-Residence Craft Shop Coordinator for 1984 - 85 year
Please submit resume and portfolio to Baker B-22, B-30
Deadline: Wednesday May 9
For further information contact:
Shara at 546-6375 or 545-2080

Coming Soon..
Pearl Street
DANCE
DOWNTOWN NORTHAMPTON

Students
Summer Jobs
with Mass Fair Share
Get paid for what you believe in - hazardous waste clean up, economic reforms - with our grassroots political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid Training. Hours 1:30-10 PM M-F, $156-225/wk
Call 586-8713

SPRING
SUN MAY 6
12 - 630 PM
84
UPC PRODUCTIONS
Presents
CONCERT ON THE POND
FREE!
Student ID required
The Persuasions
MICHAEL GREGORY
SPYRO GYRA
UTOPIA
with Todd Rundgren, Roger Powell, Kasim Sultan, and Willie Wilcox
Sponsored by SGA, UMass Arts Council, and you
No kegs, bottles, or beer balls For rain location updates tune WMUA 91.1 FM
Rain location FINE ARTS CENTER (No cans, bottles, cameras or recording) CONCESSIONS AVAILABLE

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The Strip Jim Walsh

The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

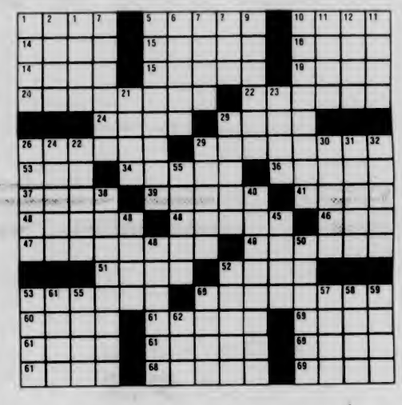
D.C. Menu

Lunch
Italian Hoagie
Tuna a la King/Puff Pastry Triangle

Basics Lunch
Vegetable Grinder
Tuna a la King/Puff Pastry Triangle

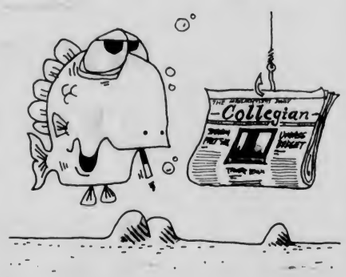
Dinner
FAR EAST NIGHT
Beef Strips with Mange-Tout (Snow Peas)
Sweet & Sour Chicken Fingers

Basics Dinner
FAR EAST NIGHT
Mandarin Tempeh Stir Fry
Sweet & Sour Chicken Fingers



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe



©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Gripe
5 Furry choice
10 Hind's mate
14 To — 15 Prepare
16 Listener's delight
17 Loch's relative
18 Gooted
19 River into the Seine
20 Soup vessel
22 Remus, Sam Vanya
24 Shelley's "sufficient"
25 Journey of a sort
26 Tempt
29 Man or beast
33 Classified matters
34 Contribute to the church
36 Misplaces
37 Small obsessions
39 Rank above freeman
41 Night, in Nice
42 Make joyous
44 Hayworth and namesakes
46 One, to a Scot
47 Journalist
49 "Old Rough and Ready"
51 Sleuth's lucky strike
52 Fresh-water mussel
53 Archie or Ed th
56 Automobile of a sort
60 Yak's cousin
61 "—— i can help it"
63 Smooth sailing
64 Shore site
65 Heath genus
66 Lines on a map: Abbr.
67 "Death and Fire" artist
68 Casablanca's neighbor
69 State of irritation

DOWN
1 Participates in a game
2 Jacques' state
3 Saarinen of architecture
4 Engaged in a sport
5 Hurry
6 Archer's ammunition
7 Starr of football
8 Golf position
9 Undergo
10 Port city in cen. California
11 Light or pipe beginning
12 Part of a church
13 The Bee —— of Rock
21 Something to be tied
23 Actress Patricia
25 Church council of yore
26 Sometime unsatisfactory answer
27 Roman official
28 Victor Herbert's org.
29 Preside over a meeting
30 Routine
31 Kingdom, in Madrid
32 Fragrant compound
35 —— R's
38 Army post area
40 "...Sprat could ——"
43 Perry's creator
45 Levant vessel
48 Gymnast, German style
50 Hayseeds
52 City on the Mohawk
53 Luxuriate
54 Singular
55 Zilch
56 Sandpiper
57 Actor in "Funny Lady"
58 Piedmont province
59 Nursery school period
62 Domesday Book money

READ THE Collegian!

Weather

Mass., R.I., Conn.—Wednesday mostly sunny with highs 65 to 70. Increasing cloudiness Wednesday night. Lows in the 40s. Thursday, becoming cloudy with a chance of rain. Highs in the upper 50s to low 60s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

5/2/84

★ Rioux

continued from page 20

wear Raybestos shirts."

Rioux has been playing for the reigning ASA champions since she graduated from high school, where she was a two-time softball All-State selection.

"Playing with experienced people made me mature a little quicker and it brings out good play," Rioux added.

Her Massachusetts teammates echo the same thoughts.

"She's a big help," freshman third baseman Debbie Cole said.

"Unfortunately, people expect her to be perfect. With all that greatness comes a lot of pressure. She handles it well."
UMass softball coach
Elaine Sortino

Carol Frattaroli, the freshman second baseman who never played there until this season, said, "I think she's one of the best team players I ever played with. She's very helpful and always pulling for you."

Her college coach Sortino sees her importance, too. "Her importance is in the air she brings to us, especially on a team with so many young players. The young players readily look to her—to the older, skilled player.

"Allyson brings a nice sense of stability and strength to the team."

The stability and strength have shown for Rioux, since her playing career began four years ago at UMass after spending a season at Rhode Island, both at the plate and in the field.

Rioux got UMass started against URI with a homer in the opener last week and proceeded to go 3-for-3 with a homer, triple and double.

She has also made many seemingly impossible plays like in one game against Vermont last season when Rioux dove for a line drive, caught it and tossed the ball to second for the double play. The crowd, Sortino said, seemed to clap for hours.

But the Communications major is a team player. All-around.

"People feel that they can confide in me. I'm happy to share the knowledge I've gained.

"Player for player this is the most skilled team since I've been here," Rioux said. "The talent is here."

Rioux hopes to get involved with a pro team in the field of communications in the future. She is also looking to play in the '87 Pan-Am games and '88 Olympics, where softball may be a sport.

"She's been a true blessing to our program," Sortino said.

Rioux added, "My family has helped me on the road to achievements. They have always stood behind me."

"Somebody had to be a ballplayer," she said with a smile.

Men and women golfers fair well

By JOE PETRIN
Collegian Correspondent

This past weekend both the men's and the women's golf teams competed in their respective Division I NCAA New Englands tournament.

The Minutemen finished a very respectable sixth out of 11 teams, with a total of 638.

Yale walked away with the team title as their 609 two-day total beat second place Brown by 12 shots. Providence shot 630 and came in third as they just edged out Dartmouth and Connecticut who were knotted at 631.

The Minutemen started slow shooting 325 the first day over the demanding par 71 Manchester C.C. in Manchester N.H. They came back the second day, however, with the third lowest score (313).

"I thought that we played well and I was especially pleased with the good comeback on the second day.

All of our players played near their potential and we had four scores under 80," said Vlach.

The UMass attack was led by sophomore Brian Fitzgerald, who shot 77 and 79, which was low for UM and 12th in the 55-man field. Standout Tyler Shear injured his thumb just prior to the season and Fitzgerald has taken up much of the slack. Scott Simmons and Bill Meade also had good outings. Simmons shot 81, 79 for his 160 total and Meade shot 84, 76, also finishing at 160. Meade's second day comeback was instrumental in the team's charge.

"I thought that the team played well considering the condition of the course. Only two teams played better than us the second day and the team played much better as a whole," said Meade.

Other Minutemen standouts were junior Charlie Ross who turned in a 162 (83, 79), and freshman Jim Ryan with his 166 total (84, 82).

The UMass women's golf team played a little closer to home this past weekend. The first day was played at The Orchards (par 74) in South Hadley and the second day was held at Hickory Ridge (par 74) here in Amherst.

The UMass Minutewomen finished fifth with a 762 total. Amherst College won the championship shooting 670 and Darmouth was right behind them at 676. Rutgers and Mt. Holyoke finished third and fourth as they shot 755 and 759 respectively.

Judy Guzy played very well for the Minutewomen (10th in tourney) with a 94 at the Orchards and an 85 at Hickory. Challenging Guzy for scoring honors was senior Jane Egan who shot 94-86.

"I felt that the team didn't play up to its potential and with some breaks we could've finished higher. I played well the first day but ran into difficulties the second day," said Egan.

Medalist honors for the tournament went to Darmouth's Sue Johnson who had an 82 the first day and then cruised around Hickory Ridge in 75 strokes.

Other UMass standout performances were turned in by Sandy Kupica who competed in the first division and turned in a pair of 94's. Freshmen Linda Foley shot 108, 99, and senior Tricia Collins came in with a 112 and a 99.

For the first time in the history of the tournament a hole in one was recorded. Page Obrien from Mt. Holyoke aced the 5th hole at the Orchards.

"Our team played very well and the competition was very tough. We are getting more athletes and they are hitting the ball longer and straighter," said Leamon.

"Both of the golf courses were in great shape and I think that the play was so good because of the condition of the courses," he added.

The women are looking ahead to their next big match, which is next weekend when they travel to New Jersey for the Rutgers Invitational, in which they will be looking to beat Mt. Holyoke and Rutgers.

The Minutemen will finish their season with three straight home matches. They should come out of those with at least two wins.

★ Softball

continued from page 20

The seniors left NOPE field on a positive note, as Coffin went 3-for-6 in the doubleheader with one run and one RBI, while Rioux went 2-for-5 with a walk. Other fine performances were turned in by Talbott (2-for-3, 2 walks, 2 RBI) and King (2-for-4, a double, a walk, and two RBI). Meanwhile, UMass pitching allowed only two unearned runs and six hits in fourteen innings.

With the Atlantic 10 Playoffs taking place this weekend, it would have been easy for the Minutewoman to relax, but according to Rioux, "We let up a little against UConn (to whom they lost twice last week), so we've learned our lesson." Coach Elaine Sortino added, "We're only worrying about the game at hand, now. I'm not afraid of any letup." Sortino also added, "We wanted the seniors to leave on a positive note, so that gave us some added incentive to win."

SENIOR STATS: Coffin, a third year starter in center field, batted .329 and stole 13 bases in 1982, and was named second team All-American. She's batting .284 so far this season, with 11 stolen bases, 16 walks, and 11 RBI. Her career BA is .288.....Rioux batted .314 in 1983, as she was named second team All-American. She's batting .383 this season, with 3 homers and 29 RBI.

Tonight is Ladies Nite at JUSTIN RYAN'S The Meeting Place

FREE DRINKS from 8:00 - 9:00

$1.00 drinks for everyone til 11:00

Wed Nite • Wed Nite • Wed Nite • Wed Nite • Wed Nite • Wed Nite •

Also JUSTIN RYAN'S presents "Guido Murphy Night"
Tonight 7-1 am "MEET GUIDO"

1. ★ Happy Hour Music with Smitty on guitar.
2. ★ Free draft beer to the first 125 people
3. ★ Get your free "Official Guido's Drinking Cup" (First 150 people)
4. ★ Free complimentary cocktail coupons valid at Guido Murphy's Backroom, Main Street, Hyannis
5. ★ Summer job interviews for waitresses, bartenders, barbacks, door people and kitchen help at Guido Murphy's — 10:00 to 4:00 at Justin's
6. ★ Be there, at Justin Ryan's to start your Cape Cod Summer

CHECK IT OUT!

3 bedroom apt Puffton price negotiable call 549-6739 or 546-1477

Puffton summer sublet with fall option 1 bedrm in 2 bedrm apt mature, responsible, female 549-4869

Townehouse summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt call George or Joe 549-0902

June 1st - Aug 31 room in large apt near Amherst Center 165+ per month on bus route call eves Colette 253-9747

1 bedroom apt Colonial Vill avail June 1 with fall option 256-1334 eves

Two rooms, walk to campus and town furnished washer/dryer 549-6041

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

2 bedroom Townehouse Apt available June 1st - Sept 1st call 549-4585 ★★★★★

2 bedroom townhouse in Sunderland to sublet with fall option available call 665-4813 or 665-8604

1 room available June - Aug 174 month call evenings 256-1021

Sublet w/fall option. 2 bedroom townhouse in Southwood. 2 bathrooms. Right across from bus stop. Beautiful hilltop location. Free parking. Pool and tennis courts call immediately 253-2284

Brandywine one bedroom apt sumemr with fall option pool 549-5825

1 bdrm apt Crestview summer sublet w/fall option walking distance to UMass on bus route AC avail June 1 360/mo 549-7826

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Townhouse or Brandywine apt. wanted for fall will take in June call Jim 256-1072 eves $100 reward

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term, please call the RIDE SERVICE 545-2145

WANTED TO RENT

2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village call Karen 549-4684

3-4 bedroom apt in Amherst or vicinity will take in summer or fall 546-6172 or 546-6162

Wanted Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7618 546-5141

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

ALL QUALITY SUNGLASSES

Today is the day - sunny or rainy - for buying Vuarnets and Raybans. Don't let these fantastic bargains slip away. Look for table in the CCC today or call Bruce 549-2879

APARTMENT FOR RENT

142 Colonial Village must take summr and fall $310/month. Security deposit and 1st months rent required. Two bedroom 1st come 1st served. 256-8788

AUDIO

Alpine 7123 car stereo, AM/FM cassette with auto-eject, Dolby. $170 549-6499

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Audi Fox automatic good condition new brakes, struts $800 firm 665-3509 after 6 PM

1976 Malibu Classic excellent cond. new battery, new snow radials $1500/BO selling before June 256-1014 8-11 pm/7-9 am

73 VW Superbeatle looks great, runs great Lt Blue $995. 549-4816

1977 Dodge Aspen exc. engine sell by June call 546-4244 1500.00 BO

Auto for sale. Going back to Europe. Ford Galaxy 500, PS, PB, AC, excellent condition, $900 or BO 256-1016 10 pm +

CONCORD

I need a room for the summer please call 665-2338 PM

DRIVE A BUS

Western Mass Bus Lines is accepting applications to our bus driver training program to prepare students for part time work in September. Qualifications include a clean driving record of 3 years, availability to train through this summer, committment to work through May, 1985, and student status at one of the 5-Colleges. Apply in person at 59 Service Center St. N'ton Mon-Fri

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

2 rooms 100 yds from campus. Beachfront location. Summer sublet fall option. Nonsmokers call 549-0533

1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summr and fall semester '84 Amherst 256-1205

One or two bedroom apt available June 1st, w/fall option. 350/month, include heat and hot water. Close to Amherst Center. Call Melissa or Lisa 549-7757

Brittany Manor apr available June 1st for summer and fall call 253-5560

4-bed summer sublet, Northampton. $525 call summertime for Sept rentals. Skibiski, Realtors Northampton 584-3428

Take 1 of 3 rms available in 4 bdrm Amherst apt, summer/fall option, low negotiable rent, 253-2083

Live across from Emily Dickenson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

One bedroom apt Brandywine available June 1st for fall Tracy 549-3873

1 bedroom apt available June 1 with fall option $295 call 665-2338 PM

FOR SALE

Computer Terminal with 300 baud modem $300 323-5574

Electric Bass Guitar, two pickups, good for beginners $40. Marlboro Bass/Guitar Amp, two Speakers $60. call 256-0530 ask for Jeff

2 portable typewriters: Manual $15 Electric $25 545-0474 between 9-5

1977 Camero must sell $1900 549-0875

Is your car ready for summarii? Make it shine with chrome megs! Must sell! Call Mike at 549-4562

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

FOUND

Found 4/27 in front of GRC. Keys with brown leather fob. Call Don at 546-9700 to claim

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

• WSYL-FM Sylvan Area Radio seeks qualified person to apply for the paid position of Station Engineer. All interested persons should attend a station meeting on May 2 at 8 PM in Cashin Recreation Room Interviews will be arranged. For more information call 546-4478 EOE •

Government Jobs. $16,559-$50,553/year. Now hiring. Your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext. R-9616

Housekeepers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No exprience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30-10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

Waitresses and General Laborers apply at the Rusty Nail 3 to 5 weekdays

Mobile Vending Vehicle Drivers wanted Cape Cod Pete 584-9580

Union Video is hiring a part-time summer mgr. July-August 15 hrs/wk 3.35 hr. video skills required an AA/EO employer apply 216 SUB bv 5/9

IDEAL LOCATION

Spacious 2 bedroom apt in Amherst Center short walk to campus. Summer only. Call anytime 253-3591

LOST

'82 Somerset High men's class ring, in Worcester DC on April 20. Sentimental value only. Call Chris, 546-6607

One pair Birkenstock type sandals by Campus Pond Saturday after NRBQ please call Alex at 6-9029 no questions

My glasses at Grease last Thursday night. Brown frames in ugly case. Please call 549-7874

Small Seiko watch with brown strap Southwest area. If found call 549-6646 reward

MOTORCYCLES

71 Honda CL 350 runs needs work best offer ask for Clay evenings 256-0363

PERSONALS

Attention all Greeks: Greekfest - Don't forget - May 2-8 fun and games parties

Great DEAL! Summer sublet - fall option 3 bedroom Swiss Village Apt furnished 253-3971

Dr. Ruth Westheimer
"Sexually Speaking"
You have seen Dr Ruth on the Tonight Show and Late Night with David Letterman and heard her on WYNY in NY come see her in person Mon. May 7 Student Union Ballroom 8 PM Tickets now available $2. 5-College at Fine Arts Center $4. General Pub

• Dr Ruth Westheimer "Sexually Speaking" see her on Late Night with David Letterman on May 3 ask her questions in person on Monday May 7 Student Union Ballroom $2. 5-College $4. General Public tickets available in advance at Fine Arts Center and all Datatix locs •

A Wop Bop A Lu Bop - Come see GREASE tonight at 8:00 pm, ABSOLUTELY FREE on the Orchard Hill Basketball Court. Come early for good seats

GREASE - Solidlaterpatty! Black-eye? Only two more shows - better get it right this time

Happy 22 Birthday Vanity love the Nasty Girls

Hey, Hey Paula, you're 20 at last! Happy Birthday love Sean & Steve

LISA PHILPOTT Have you been keeping an eye on your apartment key?

Hey Paula Mar, Happy B-Day! Luv ya, Katie

Problems with the University bureaucracy? Call LSO 545-1995

Laura, Karen, Betsy, Bratta, Alicia, Jenette, Chris, Carey, Warren, Jodie, Steph, Cyndy, Loni, Kerry, Karen, Pat, etc. Thanx for everything last wek; the visit, the phone calls, the SSIPS, and trying to cheer me up. I love you all. Nancy

GREASE - A new pool in our living room! Here twirl on this. Cast Show - Get Ben & LaTierri

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

To Essex Mass or thereabouts on Friday anytime. Share expenses. Call Eileen 546-4803

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Room wanted in W Yarmouth for summer call Brian 665-3225

Room wanted in Nhampton for summer & fall. Deirdre 584-8122 after 11

Mellow, nonsmoker male grad student with canine pal looking for house for summer and fall. Dave 549-6621

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Two housemates wanted for summer in W Yarmouth $800 each by May 26. Call Sue or Laura 546-9880

Share two bedroom apt male or female Brittany Manor mid May with fall option 3rd floor furnished call 253-2140

Female roommate wanted for fall '84 Brandywine apts for more info call 549-7868

Roommate for 2 bedroom apt call after 6 pm ask for Karen 665-4896

Looking for 2 roommates for apt in Brandywine male or female 549-7797

Puffton, summer w/fall option 549-4430 before 11:00 pm, 545-3641 (8-4)

Female roommates wanted for Townehouse for fall and on call 549-5515

One bedroom in three bedroom Townehouse Apts; clean quiet nonsmoker 549-4861

2 female roommates wanted for Brittany Manor apt call 256-0945

2 people to share room in Puffton for fall 549-3720 549-7845

Roommate wanted for Brittany Manor to live with three engineers if interested call 6-9583 or 6-5388

Great place AC pool 125 mo female roommate wanted call 549-1602 begin June 1

Summer sublet 2 females needed to share Brandywine apt for fall 549-7697

SANS BANDWAGON 11

Thanks for a great weekend. . .bad guess keeping me up. . .fire extinguisher. . .Dannys changing colors. . . .Marcus. Goshen. . .midnight express. . .don't drink the water Thanks Steve

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

SUMMER 1984 - EMPLOYMENT

Restaurant - Martha's Vineyard rm available. Please send inquiries to PO Box 2496 Oak Bluffs, MA 02557

SUMMER SUBLET

1 bedroom available in Brandywine call 549-0116, 6-6943, 6-4239

Two bedroom Brandywine apt available for sumemr sublet. Rent negotiable call 549-6398

Summer sublet Brandywine apt very reasonable rent call 549-7868

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

1 bedroom, furnished, Puffton for summer sublet 549-5153

Brandywine swimming pool, air cond with rent, call 546-4791, 549-1405

Double and single available in house on McClellan St 155+ 253-3470

One or two rooms available very reasonable Puffton 549-0462 Chris Sue

Puffton Village 1 bedroom in a 3 bedroom to sublet for summer only Rose at 549-1616

Two bedroom in three bedroom house convenient location, rent negotiable call now 549-3856

Crown Point furnished 2 bedrooms pool Route 9 bus route next to JR's Price Chopper 253-3782

Puffton 2 badrooms available 6/1 - 9/1. Furnished room, share bath: rent negotiable (under $130). Large furnished room w/own bath: $210. AC, pol, cable, laundry and bus call 549-6999 Pam or Brenda

Dirt cheap! 3 bedroom Southwood townhouse apartment call now 256-0660

Summer sublet w/fall option 1 bedroom apt Southwood good location near bus stop very quiet call 256-6340

Holyoke 2 rm apt w/kitchenette furnished to sublet for summer rent negotiable call 536-3571

Central Northampton 3 bedroom apt June, July, August $425+/month 584-2078

Brandywine Apt for summer sublet furnished $95/month negotiable call 549-5956 or 549-6024 after 5

One large bedroom available in Puffton Village from 6/3 to 7/14. Rent negotiable call 549-8938

Best Deal subletting Southwood townhouse cheap 256-8427

Two bedroom apt in Amharst Center cheap! call now 549-7605

Need a place for summer? Fully furnished Townehouse apt. available very reasonable call 549-5970

House in N Amh on bus rte 4 big bdrms comp. furnished, color TV 2 desks, etc. $325/mo or $85/bdrm/mo 6/1 - 9/1 549-5893

Beautiful Townahouse apartment to sublet with free beer call 546-9615 answering machine

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

2 rooms available in beautiful North Amherst house. On bus route. 200+ utilities each Scott 549-4926 after 6

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village availa June 1 - Sept 1 256-1301

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

1 bedroom Southwood townhouse summer sublet with fall option available June 1 253-7031

2 bdrm ¼ mile from campus AC cable bicy call Beth 545-0046

From June 1 with fall option two bedroom on Sunderland bus route 330/month 665-8314

Furnished Puffton Apart rent cheap close to bus stop call 546-4966

Presidential room available inexpensive 546-4191 546-7189 close to campus call evenings

3 bedroom Northwood apt $340 avail May 1st w/fall option on bus route call 665-8514

2 large bedrooms in clean So Amherst house on two bus lines quiet neighborhood reasonable 253-5196

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt fantastic location $125 call Carolyn 253-3630

Summer sublet Rolling Gren two bedroom furnished all util incl AC Rich 6-6389

One bedroom apt in Presidential summer sub/fall option 355/mo 549-6644

Cheap 2 bdrm Brandywine apt for summer, pool. Please call anytime 6-5344, 6-5362

w/fall option one room in 4 bedroom house 10 min walk to campus $175/mo summer rent neg Gail 253-3630 eve

4 bdrm 2 bath ★14 Swiss Vlg, fall option $174 per bdrm per month, utilities included Leaving some furniture excellent cond. 256-0351/256-1014

Apartment with fall option $147.50 month Colonial Village Apartment near bus routes call Bill or Greg 256-0419 keep trying

Cliffside 2 bedroom townhouse June 1 400 utilities included fall option 665-3076

Sports

UMass wins final two games at home

By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

The last home game of any college sports season is always a sad time for the team. That's the time where everybody says goodbye to the graduating seniors and lets them know how much they'll be missed. Many times, the pre-game ceremonies can bring more tears to your eyes than Terms of Endearment.

If University of Massachusetts softball players Allyson Rioux and Tina Coffin were crying during the pre-game ceremonies honoring them yesterday, they sure didn't let it affect their play. With some help from some players who won't hear any goodbyes for another two or three years, the Minutewomen took a doubleheader from Central Connecticut by scores of 6-2 in the opener and 2-0 in the nightcap raising their record to 28-10, which ties them for the best record in UMass softball history, with the Atlantic 10 Playoffs coming up this weekend.

In Game 1, the Blue Devils took a 1-0 lead in the third inning, but the Minutewomen exploded for five runs in the fifth. After Anne King singled to left and Ann Ringrose came in to pinch-run for her, Carol Fratteroli outran a bunt to third baseman Lori Ann Andrews. After Andrews threw in vain to first base, Ringrose caught the Blue Devils napping and hustled her way to third base.

Emily Bietsch then followed with an infield single to load the bases. Beth Talbott then came through with a base hit to drive in Ringrose, but Fratteroli was thrown out at the plate. After Debbie Cole popped up to first base for the second out, Coffin singled home Bietsch, and Sally Maher drove in Talbott and Coffin with a double to left centerfield. Maher scored the final run of the inning after Rioux singled and Central Connecticut shortstop Sharon Mullins booted a Janet Miller ground ball.

The Blue Devils cut the deficit to 5-2 in the top of the sixth on an error, two walks, and a fielders choice, but UMass closed out the scoring in the bottom of the sixth, as Talbott cracked a double to left-center, driving home Bietsch. Lynn Stockley went all the way for UMass, scattering two hits and five walks, while striking to raise her record to 14-7.

The second game featured a pitchers' duel between Central Connecticut's Joyce Saucer and UMass' Cathy Reed. The Minutewomen came close to scoring in the bottom of the third when Talbott walked, Cole bunted her over to second, Coffin singled to put runners on first and third, and Coffin stole second. However, Saucer got the next two batters to ground out to kill the rally. Reed, on the other hand, was the recipient of fine plays from Miller in left field and Rioux at shortsop to preserve her shutout.

The Minutewomen got their own runs in the bottom of the sixth, when Rioux walked, Miller singled up the middle, and King brought them home with a double to deep center field.

Central Connecticut staged a rally in the seventh, as Norma LaCasse reached on an error and Sharon Mullins singled to center, but Reed (now 14-3) got the next three batters to ground out to first, pop up to short, and pop up to first to end the ball game.

continued on page 18

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Tina Coffin takes a swing in yesterday's doubleheader victory against Central Connecticut. It was the seniors' final game on home turf.

Laxmen prepare for Dartmouth

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

The chant had begun with twenty seconds left in the game. From the standing hill crowd and behind you could hear it all around. "Na na, na na. Na na, na na. Hey, hey, hey, GOOD-BYE." Twenty seconds later, it really was a good-bye for Army.

Yes, the high that these 5-3 Massachusetts laxmen are coming off of after upsetting the forth ranked Cadets is quite a feeling. But don't start planning for a similiar party in Syracuse against the number one, defending National Champions Orangeman, just yet.

First there is this matter of another bothersome Ivy league opponent that has to be taken care of today against the Big Green of Dartmouth. The first-ranked in New England (11th in the country) Gorillas will be looking to avoid another case of the deadly "Harvard Blues" thats roots can be traced back to a week ago, when the Crimson T walked into The Hill and upset Massachusetts just before the Army game.

"It's not something you don't guard against," said head coach Dick Garber yesterday. "We've talked about it and will talk about it again today (yesterday). It's certainly fresh in the players minds. But we had a snappy work out yesterday and hopefully we'll get another one of those today, implying that we're going to have to work our way through it."

The key to this game seems to be stopping the Dartmouth attack, which is the major reason for their number four New England ranking. The three man front of Jenkins Marshalls, Dave Burt, and Steve Literman, all are All-Ivy selects from Baltimore, and accounted for 70 goals and 49 assists between them last year. After that, the Green attack bottoms out.

That means a key man for Garber's troops will be, as usual, goalie Gerry Moreau. Stop those three and the rest should turn out right.

Moreau says that certainly won't change his style at all. "I didn't even know that their three attackmen were like that," he says "There's nothing I can do except stop them."

Garber will play his defense in front of Moreau as a "good tough, man to man. They've got to prove they can open up they're offense before we switch out of our man to man."

So there it is. Stop Dartmouth and then start getting pumped up for Syracuse. Not before, only after.

"After having lost to Harvard," says Garber, "it's another mid-week game, and the players know that they're still in the running to finish number one in New England and make an NCAA playoff spot. Hell, if that doesn't motivate you nothing will."

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

Senior Allison Rioux has been an important member of the UMass softball team at short-stop, at the plate, and as a leader.

Rioux handles it all for perfect ending

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

She had a bat in her hand at age four. By nine she was taking cuts and with her father's Babe Ruth baseball team.

"I was fascinated with it," she said. "It was part of our family's life. I grew up watching baseball. It's part of the game-watching and learning and trying to execute the basics with a fine tooth comb."

Well, this one student of the game has learned her lessons very well. Allyson Rioux, who has earned numerous honors and awards, including All-American, constantly amazes the opposition and the University of Massachusetts.

"Unfortunately, people expect her to be perfect," UMass head coach Elaine Sortino said. "With all that greatness comes a lot of pressure. She handles it well."

The pressure comes to the 22-year-old senior because of her various and impressive accomplishments. She was the NCAA second team All-American shortstop last season and has been an American Softball Association All-American at second base three years in a row for the Raybestos Brakettes, who have won the ASA title 18 times in the last 26 years.

Rioux was also a member of the United States Pan-American softball team in 1983, which won a silver medal, and will be representing the United States as a member of Raybestos in the International Cup two weeks before the Los Angeles Olympics start.

Yet Rioux said that she has benefitted from all the pressure she has gathered in the six years since she graduated from Westhill High School in Stamford, Conn. in 1979.

For example, Rioux said, "Everyone is out to knock off Raybestos (who have won ASA titles in three of the five years Rioux has been there). We don't win just because we

continued on page 18

Varsity, JV crew teams row into first place

By ED ROBINSON
Collegian Staff

Max Olmstead was in a good mood last Saturday morning despite suffering from a case of the flu. Stroke of the University of Massachusetts men's Junior Varsity eight, he and his boat had just won their second race of the season.

"It's scientifically proven that I'm the best rower on this team," Olmstead said in a gravelly voiced imitation of a professional wrestler's boasting interview.

In a more serious tone, he described the race: "We got off to a quick start. We were winning after thirty strokes and stayed in front the rest of the way. Hopefully we can carry some of this momentum into the New England's next Saturday."

The UMass JV eight finished nine seconds in front of second place URI. Amherst finished a distant third.

Besides Olmstead the JV team includes Chris Schaffer, Ted Millette, Dennis Holland, Mark Keeley, Tom Almy, John McInerney, Pedro Vieira and coxswain Gabe Capalupo.

The Varsity eight rowed next and performed in a frustratingly familiar manner.

"We fell behind at the start. We were a boat length behind Amherst and URI," said varsity oarsman Jim Santo. "Then we cranked and blew by them." But they were unable to catch Williams, who beat them by six seconds with a time of 5:37.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 66 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, May 3, 1984

Senate refuses to increase budget allocation for yearbook

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night approved the 1984-5 Student Government Association (SGA) budget without amendment, as submitted by the Budget Committee, in one of its most hectic meetings of the year.

The future of Index, the University of Massachusetts yearbook, was left dangling for at least another week. The budget allocated $16,000 for the yearbook, an amount Index editor Kevin Fachetti has called insufficient.

Next Wednesday, the Senate will consider authorizing a combination grant/loan package of $20,000 for Index from the SGA's emergency deficit liquidation account. This would bring the yearbook's funs to $36,000, the amount of Index's original request.

SGA Treasurer John Mooradian said Index should receive the additional $20,000 because of its "unique nature as a history of our four years here."

But others expressed concern that the loan and grant from the emergency account would set a dangerous precedent, and other student groups with funding problems would demand similar special consideration.

Budget Committee chairman Joseph Sparks said he knew of at least one group dissatisfied with its 1984-85 funding which will seek extra money from the deficit liquidation account of Index is bailed out in this fashion.

Sparks also said he was "very happy the issue didn't go back to (the) budget committee.

"People say I've been vindictive toward the yearbook," he said. "I personally fought for Index to get $16,000. If I had kept my mouth shut, they would have gotten zero."

The meeting room was packed with students from various Registered Student Organizaitons (RSO's). Many of them questioned about various budget allocations.

Members of the Black Mass Communications Project, funding for which was cut by more than $4,500, asked Sparks to explain the decrease.

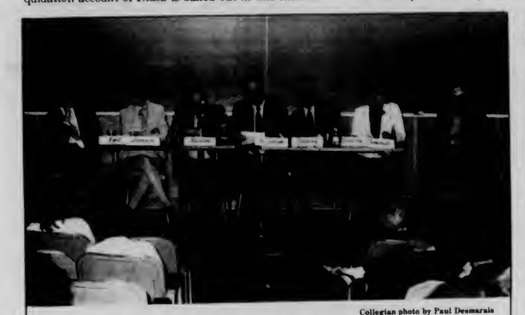
Sparks said the BMCP "requested $2,900 for equipment, and we can't fund equipment. They also requested an excessive amount of money for magazines--for example. Billboard."

Defending a $1,362 cut in funding for DRUM magazine, a Third World community publication, Sparks said the magazine was concerned "more with student service, not community service."

At the beginning of the meeting, Senate Speaker Chris Sullivan appealed to senators to "be on your best behavior. This is the one meeting that lots of students attend."

But not only was last night's meeting the most crowded one of the semester, it also turned out to be the most chaotic.

At one point, Southwest Area Senator Bill Collins took the microphone, and questioned Sullivan's judgement in ruling a proposed amendment out of order. Collins himself was ruled out of order several times by Sullivan and then shouted down by senators standing up in the back and at the sides of the room.



"If you're out of order one more time, I'm going to ask you to leave," the speaker told Collins, banging the gavel.

Of the postponement of discussion on the yearbook issue, Fachetti said, "I was hoping it would be solved tonight. It's one more week of hell."

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Kevin Fachetti addresses the senate last night.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Participants in last night's debate at the School of Management are, from left to right, Edward E. Feit, Fern L. Johnson, Stephen K. Michael, moderator Robert E. McGarrah, Leonard A. Rapping, Linda Lockwood, and Jay Demerath.

Business community's role in arms control discussed

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts faculty and staff members last night debated the issue of whether business management should take a stand on arms control and disarmament.

A panel of five professors and associate provost for undergraduate education Fern L. Johnson gave their views, both pro and con, on whether business management abdicates responsibilities for the arms race.

Moderator Robert E. McGarrah, professor of Management, said, "We cannot call ourselves a university community if we do not try to connect or engage our specialized academic and professional interest on vital issues of peace and security."

Jay Demerath, professor of sociology, asked whether business management abdicates its responsibilities of arms control and if businesses have any responsibilities at all.

"Like most subjects of passionate debate, this one is clotted with ambiguity," he said. "My answer is negative to both questions. Much of the ineffectiveness of our disarmament effort stems precisely from the intrusive interests of that all too substantial portion of American business which depends upon defense spending. Since what is good for American business in this respect may be the death of us all, I would prefer to see business abdicate all together."

Political Science professor Edward E. Feit said it would be a "hypocrisy" if business management takes a stand on the issue since "management is not homogenous. No one could possibly take a position and be representative of all."

"If you want to take a stand," Feit said,

Continued on page 5

Steinem urges crowd to act against injustice

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

SOUTH HADLEY - Feminist writer, activist and organizer Gloria Steinem urged more than 1,000 men and women to work for reproductive rights and economic equality for women last night at Mount Holyoke College.

She referred to the gathering as an "organizing meeting."

"If we come together today and there is no trouble tomorrow, we haven't done our job," Steinem said.

Steinem said it took 150 years for blacks and women to become legal entities and the next step is legal equality.

"We need to make sure that no one is ever again born into a particular role because of race or sex," she said.

Steinem said institutional changes are just beginning, and that the resulting opposition means the movement is being taken seriously.

"The opposition is a tribute--10 years ago we were being ridiculed," she said.

Steinem said langauge is very important. "Now we have words like "battered women" and "sexual harrassment." Ten years ago, it was just called "life," she said.

Steinem cited the importance our culture puts on conforming as one reason people are afraid of feminism. She also said economic interests are vested in keeping women separated and unorganized.

"You can say you are for equal pay for equal work, but to say you are for equal pay for women--now that is an economic revolution," she said.

Steinem said the United Nations has used computers to measure "our suffering worldwide."

"We are roughly one half of the population, we do one-third of the paid work, we do two-thirds of all the work, we receive 10 percent of the salaries paid, and we own one percent of the property," she said.

Women have to gain full reproductive rights because reproduction determines their economic status and because the lack of that control is a major cause of death and injury, she said.

"It was, and is, a sweetly reasonable request," she said, "but what we are doing is seizing control of the means of reproduction. It even sounds radical."

Steinem said reproductive freedom must be established as a right, as basic as freedom of speech or a freedom of assembly, which no government "of the right or the left, capital or communist, has a right to interfere with.

She said democratizing the family is important because housewives work the longest hours, have the highest level of drug addiction and alcoholism, the highest chance of being beaten or killed, and the most likelihood of being replaced by a younger worker,(through divorce), than any other job.

INSIDE:

Flora Lewis chosen commencement speaker.....p.3

Safety promised to be the word at Pond Series.....p.5

Susan Zizza stars in Grease.....p.9

"Capitalism and ecology are on a collision course."
—former state Attorney General Robert Quinn

World and National News

Court bar's interracial child custody

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger yesterday refused to block courts in Texas from taking part in a case that focused on the role of interracial marriages in child custody fights.

Burger denied — by ignoring — an emergency request by Linda Sidoti Palmore of Seffner, Fla., to bar Texas courts from standing in the way of her Florida court battle to regain custody of her daughter.

The chief justice, however, returned Mrs. Palmore's case to the Florida courts immediately rather than on May 20, the date when an April 25 Supreme Court ruling in Mrs. Palmore's favor normally would take effect.

A court source said no further action from Burger was expected in the case.

On April 25, the nation's highest court overturned a ruling that had stripped Mrs. Palmore, who is white, of custody of her daughter, Melanie, because she married Clarence Palmore, a black.

Mrs. Palmore's ex-husband, Anthony J. Sidoti of Bryan, Texas, was awarded custody of Melanie, now 6, in 1982. Sidoti, who is white, is married to a white woman.

The justices unanimously threw out a Florida judge's ruling that Melanie would be stigmatized by living in an interracial household. But the decision did not necessarily resolve the custody battle between Mrs. Palmore and Sidoti.

AP Laserphoto

CATHOLICISM AND CAPITALISM — Pope John Paul II gestures and President Ronald Reagan looks as the two meet in Fairbanks, Alaska while on stop-overs from plane yesterday at Fairbanks Airport. The two met later privately.

New test can diagnose VD early

BOSTON (AP) - A simple, half-hour test can accurately diagnose chlamydia, a common but hard-to-detect form of venereal disease that is a leading cause of infertility in women, a study shows.

Although chlamydia ranks with genital herpes as the most widespread sexually transmitted diseases, it has received much less attention because it is so difficult to pinpoint. If left untreated it can cause infertility, and it has been implicated in stillbirths, prematurity and certain childhood cases of pneumonia and ear infection.

The new test, described in New England Journal of Medicine, could replace tissue culturing, a tedious, six-day test that until recently was the only way to diagnose chlamydia.

Drinking age will rise if border states agree

BOSTON — The drinking age in Massachusetts would increase from 20 to 21 if all of the commonwealth's neighboring states also acted to establish a uniform age, under a bill approved by a legislative committee.

The Government Regulations Committee, on a voice vote, decided to release a revised drinking age bill yesterday to the House floor for consideration.

"I'm not sure a case has been proven that this bill will help highway safety, but we wanted to let the entire House decide the issue," said Rep. William Galvin, D-Boston, House chairman of the committee.

"It was clear to us that given our central location in New England, we must have the other states consistent in age to avoid encouraging young people to drive across the state border for drinking purposes," he said.

But the state senator who helped defeat the age change in the Senate last year said he didn't think the revised version would win easy passage in 1984.

Digest

by The Associated Press

Third harbor tunnel gets house approval

WASHINGTON— A House subcommittee has approved an interstate highway bill that would end the controversy over two large Boston highway projects and clearly authorize Massachusetts to build them.

Authorization for a third Boston Harbor tunnel connecting the Massachusetts Turnpike with Logan Airport and a plan for depressing the Central Artery highway through Boston's downtown were included yesterday in the surface transportation subcommittee's bill.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul Basken
Copy Editor — Stephen Howe
Photo Technician — Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor — Lesley Clark
Production — Lynn Eisenberg, Martha Connors, Jim Rice, Ellen Nahigian, Beth Bazinet, Marianne Walsh, Tim Riviere, John Wielgus, Catherine Hall, Lissa Kiernan, Amy Keefe, Karen Darr, Susan Gianetti

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
Homes skyscraper's Old Town & private residence Open daily 11 am to 11:30 pm & for lunch 584-4477
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrells
Ice Cream

4.75 To Start
Part-time positions available for dependable people to take physical retail inventories in Boston and nort: areas. Nationwide service needs people over 18 with phc e and transportation. No experience necessary, only good math skills.
Must have weekend availabilty. Daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule allows you to average at least 40 - 80 hours a month.
Paid training on our audit calculators $5.00 per hour in 30 days provided you complete our training requirements. Opportunity for advancement. For more information call Mr. Kreplick.
617-938-9119 or 692-3040
Summer employment. Full-time next January.
See Student Employment Office

ROCK & ROLL
DYNAMITE RECORDS
NEED CASH?
We will buy your records and tapes
Cash or Trade
and get 25% more
Thornes, a marketplace plus!
150 Main Street, Northampton 584-1580
SOUL JAZZ CLASSICAL

Soft Contact Lens Ctr
Extended wear soft lenses from $48. ea.
Daily wear Soft lenses from $25. ea.
Heat disinfecting units $12.95 reg. $30.
Check out these
Contact Lens Solution Prices
Opti-clean Reg 2.98 SALE 1.98
Sensitive Eyes System Reg 3.75 SALE 2.49
Adapettes Reg 1.00 SALE .50
Soft Contact Lens Deluxe Cases Reg. 3.75 SALE 1.98
Many more Solutions on Sale COME & SEE
B & L Sunglasses 20% off
Vuarnet Sunglasses 20% off with this ad
Amherst Optical Shoppe
195 N Pleasant St 256-6403
170 University Dr. 253-5412
in the Amherst Med Ctr.

the Hungry U
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713
BE THERE!
FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
2-6 pm
75¢ 1 LIQUOR BAR DRINKS
75¢ Lowenbrau (drafts)
50¢ Lite, Bud (drafts)
super special
SOMBREROS 75¢

University reverses policy on SCBs

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts departments can now make purchases from Student Controlled Businesses (SCBs) under a new policy recently approved by Vice Chancellor for Administration and Finance, John L. DeNyse.

The new policy removes the prohibition on Universtiy purchases from student-run co-ops imposed by George Beatty Jr., DeNyse's predecessor.

In October 1979, Beatty approved the ban "in the interest of maintaining good 'down-town' relations." It was thought that if the Universitv were allowed to continue doing business with the co-ops, local taxpaying businesses might complain of unfair competition.

In a memorandum dated December 20, 1979, Beatty wrote, "It would be seriously detrimental to the purpose and future of student owned and operated co-ops were (the) tax-exempt status (of the co-ops) to be threatened by claims of unfair business competition."

In a letter to DeNyse in October 1983, representatives of 10 SCBs protested the policy for several reasons, saying "SCBs offer vital services fast and efficiently which should be available to the entire community."

"The dollar volume of business between University departments and SCBs is small by University standards," the representatives wrote. "The downtown business community is far more concerned with competition from the University Store than from any SCB."

Two months later, Michael Pill, senior staff attorney for the UMass Legal Services Office, said he and an assistant had done research which confirmed "the fact that SCBs do not constitute any threat to the tax-exempt status of the University."

"Concerning the supposed issue of unfair competition," Pill wrote in a letter to the Collegian, "the courts...have all supported the Universities." He then cited several court cases.

Last month, DeNyse authorized University departments to do business with 14 SCBs. He was unavailable for comment this week, but student co-op managers said they were pleased with the new policy.

Roberta Arena, who runs both Button-Up and the Sporting Goods Co-op, said Button-Up has received orders from several departments, including University Without Walls and Eastside residential staff.

She said the recently opened sport co-op, a "more student-oriented" store, had not yet gotten departmental requests. "But the new policy can only help us," she added.

"The departments aren't flocking to us," said Bob Menzel, treasurer of People's Market, "but we should sell some things to them once we start an advertising campaign along those lines."

Greeks give out achievement awards

By JOHN VINCENT
Collegian Staff

The Greek Area gave out awards for personal and house achievement last night as part of their Greek Festival week celebrating life in the Greek area.

The appeal of the Greek area, said Jay Flynn, Greek Area resident and past chair of the senate's Governmental Affairs Committee, is that the houses encourage a positive attitude by having people with common interests live together and contribute to the personality of the house, which might be oriented toward sports or academics.

Flynn said the Greek area does a lot for charities and gets people involved in community life. He said a family atmosphere is generated in the houses to make members think of their house as home.

Greg Andonian, president of the Greek Inter-Fraternity Council, said organized Greek activities and traditional Greek reputations were just for show, and the important aspect of the Greek area is that a person is able to do as they want and not as they are supposed to do.

The awards were presented in the Campus Center and were preceded by a catered dinner. Greek man and woman of the year were Mark Bice and Martha McGrul respectively. Alpha Delta Phi was the outstanding fraternity and Phi Mu was the outstanding sorority. A special award in memory of Brad Ringquist, a past Greek area resident noted for selfless devotion to his house, was given to William Teich.

Gamma Gamma awards for outstanding service to

Continued on page 4

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

Stiltwalker Michael Cooper takes a stroll incognito yesterday afternoon at the Campus Pond.

Collegian photo by Larry Cahana

BREAK DOWN — Members of the break dance group IBM do their thing yesterday afternoon on the Campus Center concourse in celebration of 1984 Day.

Times columnist Flora Lewis to address commencement

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

New York Times foreign affairs columnist Flora Lewis will give the main address at the 114th commencement of the University of Massachusetts on Sunday, May 27, in Alumni Stadium.

Lewis will also receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree, one of six to be awarded. Other award recipients named are: Black History scholar John W. Blassingame, chairman of Afro-American Studies at Yale; animal behavior researcher Vincent G. Dethier, Woodside Professor of zoology at UMass; UMass alumnus Robert D. Gordon, a Boston attorney and former Board of Trustees member; the reverend Donald J. Monan, Boston College president; and UMass alumnus Janet Gorman Murphy, president of Missouri Western State College.

UMass President, David C. Knapp, will confer degrees on approximately 4,500 undergraduates and 400 graduate students.

The student speaker will be Joshua Meyer, a Journalism/STEPEC major.

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey is also scheduled to announce four 1984 faculty fellowship awards and six distinguished Teacher Awards, three faculty members and graduate assistants or associates.

The University of Massachusetts Stockbridge School of Agriculture Commencement will be on Saturday, May 26, at 1:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. The ROTC Commissioning ceremony is planned for Sunday, May 27, at 8 a.m. in the Fine Arts Center, and the Nursing Commencement is Sunday, May 27, at 1 p.m. at the Rhododendron Garden.

Pornography forum examines campus magazine sales

By TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

Exposing the community to the problems relating to pornography is a more realistic goal than finding immediate solutions to them, according to speakers at the Human Relations Forum on Campus Pornography yesterday at the University of Massachusetts.

The forum was held in order "to introduce the nature and seriousness of the problem, since we're not here to find solutions," said Jay Savereid, chairperson of the communications studies department and moderator of the forum.

Kathy Alexander, counselor-advocate at the Everywoman's Center at UMass, read a speech she presented at the Pornography conference entitled "Breaking the Connection between Sex and Violence: A Case Against Pornography," last weekend.

She explained that, "Pornography is the sexually explicit subordination of women graphically depicted, usually in a violent way."

"[It] is the expression of male power, not male sexuality," she said. This depiction of women comes from a "male-centered society that has developed and nurtured a pornographic culture," she said.

"To carry pornography on college campuses is to show the collusion and participation of campus men in this pornographic culture," Alexander said.

Following the speakers, Kathleen Engel, a member of the Ad-Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography and a member of the Northampton-based Women Against Media Violence, featured a slideshow from Playboy and Penthouse magazines in order "to understand where our concern about these magazines is coming from."

The photos and cartoons all depicted images of "violence, rape, and molestation," against women and children.

In a discussion following the presentations, members of the group discussed their opinions on pornography. One woman asked about the guidelines used to choose magazines for distribution on campus.

University may establish management control center

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

The School of Management at the University of Massachusetts has proposed the establishment of a management control center on campus, and is now awaiting final approval from Acting Provost Samuel Conti.

Management Professor Stephen R. Michael said the center would be a focal point for building state, regional, and national constituencies of business organizations in the private and public sectors, as well as being financially beneficial for the school.

The Faculty Senate approved the establishment of the center last week, and Michael said he hopes the center will be established within six months.

Michael said the center will support itself with grants and gifts from corporations.

"We don't expect any funding from the University," he said.

"First we have to secure the foundation through a grant. As soon as we are approved, we'll start seeking a grant for $80,000," Michael said. He said the $80,000 is the initial amount needed to establish the center.

"The center would serve as an outreach mechanism within the Commonwealth, which is the headquarters for many regional and national corporations.

Research will be done by faculty within the department, as well as from other schools of management. We'll also have graduate students working as research assistants," Michael said.

Michael said the center will focus attention on analysis and research of governmental and corporate effects on management control. The center will accumulate, evaluate and disseminate its findings through workshops, lectures and publications, he said.

"We kicked off this idea by doing research with Fortune and Inc. companies. We got $15,000 in a grant from the Business Fund of Canadian Studies in the U.S., and we're now conducting a second study," Michael said.

"Manifestations of a turbulent environment are everywhere," he said. Because productivity is down in the United States and up in Japan, and because the international division of labor is being suppressed by a system of global economics, Michael said the work the center would conduct will benefit everyone.

★ Greek awards

Continued from page 3

house, area, and community were given to seven people: Elizabeth McDonald, Beth Powers, Jennifer Winslow, Jodie Glennon, Dave Donovan, Dave Doran, and Jay Flynn.

Karen Lawn, Panhellenic president, said she was proud of the academic achievements of the Greek area this year. She explained each house had a hand in deciding who got the awards, with each house president getting a vote.

Lawn also mentioned that Greeks have a good record of alumni support. She said she was hoping to establish a level of coordination with the administration on things such as communal buying of food, allowing the Greek area tax-exempt status, and the issuing of floating bonds for people who want to buy a house but don't have the cash at hand.

Nick Katsoulis, Treasurer of the Inter-Katsoulis said you do find obnoxious people but there were a lot of good feelings in the houses and that it just depends on what you look for.

which has looser restrictions in the dormitories.

Katsoulis also said the Building Authority Bond issue is discriminatory because the Greek area is classified as off-campus for their commuter fee, but still are subject to many University housing regulations. He also commented on the close family atmosphere of the fraternities, which he said made the University feel smaller and not so overwhelming to deal with on a personal level.

The Greek area is also sponsoring a softball tournament this Saturday, a barbeque and a "Greek sing" as part of Greek Festival week.

Flynn, while admitting the fraternities might be dirtier than the dorms, added "but it's home."

Men's groups sponsoring discussion of male attitudes

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

Two local men's groups are tonight co-sponsoring a panel discussion dealing with some issues and attitudes which the male community "needs to be responsive to" if it is to fill social gaps created by racism, sexism, and other prejudices, according to one of the organizers.

The discussion is titled "Ourselves and Our Groups: Coalition Building Through An Appreciation of Difference," and according to organizer Steve Botkin of the Pioneer Valley Men's Network, "there are two questions we want to answer. One is what is the experience of being a man and a member of the represented groups? The other is what kinds of thinks do we, as a men's community, need to be responsive to, to help build bridges between people of different backgrounds?"

The panel members will be Steven Belliveau of the Speakers Bureau for the Pioneer Valley Gay Alliance, Domingo DeJesus, director of Casa Latino, Paul Wiley, a doctoral candidate at the University of Massachusetts, and Rabbi Saul Perlmutter of the UMass Hillel.

The Valley Men's Network and the UMass Men's Center are co-sponsoring the event, which will begin at 7:30 at the Bangs Community Center, behind Plumbleys in Amherst.

OPEN THURS. FRI. 'Til 9 PM

FREE CAR STEREO INSTALLATION*

OPEN THURS. FRI. 'til 9 PM

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

INSTALLED FREE

JENSEN AM/FM STEREO CAR CASSETTE STEREO SYSTEM
A GREAT VALUE JENSEN 8 WATT AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE RECEIVER WITH PUSH BUTTON TUNING, FADER CONTROL, LOCKING FAST FORWARD & REVERSE AND MATCHED WITH A PAIR OF JENSEN 1283 4 INCH FULL RANGE SPEAKERS
$169.99

INSTALLED FREE

ALPINE. JENSEN AM/FM STEREO CAR CASSETTE STEREO SYSTEM
AUTO REVERSE ALPINE 7150 AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE WITH PATENTED CASSETTE GLIDE, LOCKING FAST FORWARD AND REWIND, AFC AND MATCHED WITH A JENSEN 1077 5¼ INCH COAX SPEAKERS WITH 20 OUNCE MAGNET AND PIEZO TWEETER
$239.99

INSTALLED FREE

ALPINE. PIONEER DIGITAL AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE CAR MUSIC SYSTEM
DIGITAL AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE, THE ALPINE 7162 WITH POWER AMP FADER, AUTO REVERSE, 12 STATION PRESET, AUTO SEEK STATION LOCATOR, SEPARATE BASS & TREBLE AND A PAIR OF PIONEER 6904 6 x 9 - 80 WATT COAX SPEAKERS.
$339.99

INSTALLED FREE

JENSEN DIGITAL AM/FM STEREO DOLBY CASSETTE WITH ELECTRONIC TUNING
JENSEN 520 - 10 WATT AUTO REVERSE DOLBY AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE WITH BASS & TREBLE, FADER, ELECTRONIC SCAN TUNING, 10 STATION PRESETS, DIGITAL CLOCK, FEATHER TOUCH CONTROLS AND A PAIR OF JENSEN'S BEST 6x9 TRIAXIAL (#3033) 100 WATT GREAT SOUNDING SPEAKERS
$499.99

AlpineHigh Fidelity
DELUXE CAR MUSIC SYSTEM
INSTALLED FREE
$1099.99
THIS HIGH FIDELITY SYSTEM FEATURES THE ALPINE 7146 AM/FM STEREO DIGITAL RECEIVER WITH DOLBY; THE ALPINE 3011 - 5 BAND GRAPHIC EQUALIZER; THE ALPINE 3516 - 18 WATT PER CHANNEL AMP FOR THE ALPINE 6142 SPEAKERS; THE ALPINE 3518 - 40 WATT PER CHANNEL AMP FOR THE ALPINE 6391 - 3 WAY FERRO FLUID POLYMER SPEAKERS AND - YES, ALL INSTALLED FREE.

* OUR FREE INSTALLATION SALE ENDS ABSOLUTELY ON MAY 12, 1984. APPOINTMENTS WILL BE MADE IN ORDER OF PURCHASE TO QUALIFY FOR FREE INSTALLATION. ALL SYSTEMS MUST BE PAID IN FULL BY MAY 12th, 1984. EVEN THOUGH INSTALLATION MAY BE SCHEDULED AT A LATER DATE. ANY ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT NEEDED WILL BE A CUSTOMER'S EXPENSE. ANTENNA INSTALLATION IS NOT INCLUDED IN FREE INSTALLATION. CERTAIN PREMIUM DOMESTIC & IMPORTED CARS WILL INCUR SOME EXPENSE FOR INSTALLATION.

The Sound Compan SINCE 1961

SPRINGFIELD 447 SUMNER AVE. at the X 736-3626 Open Thurs. & fri. Til 9 P.M. Open Sundays 12-5
CHICOPEE FAIRFIELD Mall near Caldors 593-8330 Open Every Evening til 9:30 PM Open Sunday 12-5
AMHERST 201 N Pleasant Street 256-0744 Open Thurs. & Friday Evenings Til 9 PM

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST
For students planning to take
English 112
(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984
THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)
MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)
No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument.

Social Change Job Opportunities in Boston
9 to 5, Boston's Working Women's Organization concerned with wage, promotional and discrimination issues, is now hiring individuals to do community outreach, fundraising and to move people to action on issues that affect women in the workplace. Hrs: 1:30-9:30. Training and benefits included.
Call: 617-423-3254
9 am to 1 pm
Permanent & Summer Positions Available

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning.
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

★ nuclear arms

Continued from page 1

"join a peace movement and add to them your managerial skills."

From a humanistic point of view, Environmental Science professor Linda Lockwood said, "There is a moral responsibility of management in a number of professions to assume leadership and be visibly concerned about increasing militarization of our society. More weapons means less security."

"We have to humanize our university," and take a stand Lockwood said. "Town Meeting Article 65, the Nuclear Free Amherst Act, means to act locally and think nationally."

Johnson said business management is responsible to shareholders and corporations and not responsible to human equality or human interest."

"Scare the pants off people and we'll have control of a nuclear holocaust," Leonard A. Rapping, an economics professor, said.

"It is the obligation of this group to take an active and responsible role in the public efforts to enforce the proper policy toward nuclear weapons on elected and appointed public officials," he said.

Auto damaged on Infirmary Way; thieves hit Graduate Research Center

A hit-and-run accident caused an estimated $200 worth of damage to a car traveling on Infirmary Way at 7:10 p.m. Tuesday. According to University of Massachusetts police, the suspect is being sought.

A computer telephone link-up valued at $695 was stolen from room A 127 in the Graduate Research Center between Friday and Tuesday police said. The room was unlocked and there are no suspects in the case.

A Columbia bicycle valued at $100 was taken from a rack near Moore Dormitory, between 4:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. Tuesday according to police. The bike was secured with a cable and lock.

A 19-year-old man arrested for operating without a license, possessing no registration and speeding, was apprehended at 8:14 p.m. Tuesday by police.

—TOM MIDDLETON

Rules to be strictly enforced at Sunday's Spring Concert

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

Official of the University of Massachusetts Union Program Council (UPC) yesterday said they were "primarily concerned with safety and environment" at the 1984 Spring concert, scheduled for this Sunday at the Campus Pond.

Talent Coordinator Lance D. Foley said UPC wants "to show the (UMass) administration that we can have a very positive musical event on this campus."

Foley said this will be the reason for strict enforcement of the rules at the concert. No kegs or bottles will be allowed, and all coolers will be searched. Cans are acceptable, however, Foley said.

The event, scheduled to begin at noon, will be open exclusively to students from the Five-College area, and student IDs will be checked, Foley said.

The headliner at Sunday's concert is Todd Rundgren's band, Utopia. Spyro Gyra, Michael Gregory and the Persuasions will also perform at the show.

Rumors about other bands appearing Sunday are "unfounded", Foley said, and based mostly on "wishful thinking," as well as the proximity of some recent Boston appearances by the Pretenders and the Thompson Twins.

"Bands rarely stay in the same area for more than a week," however, Foley said.

Foley said the rain location will be the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, and cameras, which will be allowed on the pond, are not permitted in the building.

The concert is free, and is sponsored by the Student Government Association, the UMass Arts Council, and UPC. "Let's pray for good weather," Foley said.

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Spring Special
Thursday Nites
Free Champagne
for Ladies
9:30-11:00 PM
Two for One for everyone 9:30-closing

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock
TONIGHT!
FOR 21
ALL NIGHT LONG
FRIDAY and SATURDAY
8 to 10:00
2 for 1
THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!
WITH MORE ROOM TO BOOGIE!
★ENLARGED 2-STAGE DANCE FLOOR★
Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

Five College Hillel Foundation presents
ISRAEL 36 "ישראל"
INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATION
FEATURING
Hamakor
Sunday, May 6
Student Union Ballroom at Umass
3pm-Hamakor Israeli Folk Dance Troupe, preceded by a SHUK-music, slides, Israel information, food beginning at 2pm
ADMISSION $1.50 STUDENTS $2.50 OTHERS
We cordially invite everyone to join in the festivities with us!!!
Tickets available at Hillel
MADE POSSIBLE BY A GRANT FROM UMASS ARTS COUNCIL

THE MOST WIDELY KNOWN ALLIGATOR IN THE WORLD IS REALLY A CROCODILE.
Regularly $25.00 each
SELECTED COLORS NOW REDUCED
$20 EACH 2 FOR $35
IZOD LACOSTE
House of Walsh, Inc.
32 Main Street
Amherst, Massachusetts
Daily 9:00 to 5:30 253-3361

Letters

Town warrant is a necessity

An open letter to Chancellor Joseph Duffey:

Last evening I attended a Public Hearing in Amherst regarding Town Meeting Warrant Article 65: the Nuclear Free Amherst Act. At this hearing, your statement as Chancellor of the University was read. After listening to it, I feel compelled to write to you to express my disappointment and outrage, as both a member of the University community and an Amherst Town Meeting Member.

My frustration is focused particularly on your statement, in which you discuss research and academic freedom. Specifically you state "official policy of our trustees makes the passed article redundant." Yet you complain that it could obstruct pure research if passed. A careful reading of the proposed article (Section 3) reveals quite clearly its intent: to limit only what the University already has rightly prohibited, and to exclude pure research. I ask, if the University is not engaged in, or is not planning to engage in research to develop nuclear weapons, what does the University have to fear from this proposal?

The issue of academic freedom is also raised. Nuclear weapons threaten the very existence of the human race. If these weapons are ever utilized, academic freedom would cease to exist in a very real manner. Many times it seems whenever an issue is raised that is unpopular with the University administration, it is labeled a violation of academic freedom.

Education is the most valuable asset we can give to our children. The University, as an institution of higher education, and, we might hope, higher ideals — also has a stake in ensuring a future for this Commonwealth and its students. Many members of the University community support this article, which is clearly not inconsistent with the University's own stated policies.

Leslie W. Horner
Amherst

Campus canoes are for everyone

To the Editor,

As the person responsible for putting the canoes on the Campus Pond yesterday, I wanted to let you know that very few of the people who used the canoes yesterday were members of the Outing Club. On nice days in the spring when we have the time, we bring the canoes to the pond so that all members of the University community may enjoy their use. As the canoes are owned by the students, this seems only fair. I'm afraid that, owing to your caption on page three today, students will be misled into thinking, when they see the boats on the pond, that only UMOC members may use them there. This is not the case.

L.J. Quinn
Outing Club

An apology to the Republican Club

To the Editor,

In an editorial I wrote yesterday in the Collegian, I stated that the Young College Republicans received financial assitance from the Heritage Foundation and the College Republican National Committee. I was later informed that neither is true. The Heritage Foundation financial contribution was for an event sponsored by the Conservative Coalition, not the Young College Republicans. The College Republican National Committee only provides literature distributed on the Young Republicans' tables in the Campus Center and make no financial contribution. I wish to apologize to the Young Republicans for any embarrassment my errors may have caused them.

Charles Francis Carroll
Amherst

Misconceptions about pornography

To the Editor,

As concerned students who support the sale of Playgirl, Playboy and Penthouse magazines in the University Store, we feel there have been some injustices performed by the Collegian, as well as some misconceptions which prevail on campus concerning this issue.

Until several weeks ago when the sales of erotica on campus gained popularity, many students and faculty had previously received only a small amount of, or no information on the topic. Their source of information has become the media, in part the Collegian, and their attitudes and beliefs are being shaped by this newspaper. This is where we detect an injustice.

On April 27, there were two stories printed discussing the sale of these magazines. One appeared on the front page, and referred to the Board of Governors as opposing a ban of pornographic magazines. The second article (full page) was a feature titled, "Should Pornography Be On Campus?" This does not constitute objective reporting in our eyes. There does not exist an agreed upon definition of pornography, thus the term ought not to be used as loosely as it has been. It seems to us that many uninformed people are being misinformed by the Collegian's "objective" reporting. We feel that either a different term ought to be used when discussing this issue, or the issue should not be discussed at all.

In addition, this same feature article disappointed us in another way. In discussing Dr. Roger Libby's tenure case against the University (which was irrelevant to the article anyway), he was accused of "using the issue for his own gains." The Collegian neglected to name the source who said this, and we feel it was wrong in doing so. Roger Libby has been depicted in a negative light, while those who oppose his viewpoints remain anonymous. Why was it never mentioned that the Board of Governors asked Dr. Libby to speak at their meeting last week, but rather that Roger Libby is "outspoken"? Is this objective Journalism?

Lynn Eisenberg
Sunderland
Jane Cremisi
Amherst

Editor's Note: The reporter replies that she tried to remain as objective as possible, providing not a 'news' or an 'editorial' article, but rather an analysis of the subject.

Guaranteed lowest price!

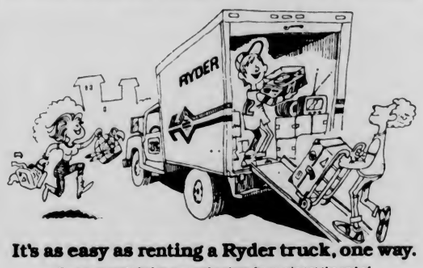
Permalens®
Extended Wear Contact Lenses

$99 now just

Buying contacts and eyeglasses is easy as AVC.

And now, American Vision Centers has made buying Permalens® Extended Wear contact lenses even easier. We've lowered the price to just $99. That's the lowest price we've ever offered and it's the lowest price in the city. We guarantee it!

New purchases only • Limit one pair per customer • Cannot be used in conjunction with other discounts or specials



Permalens® Extended Wear Contact Lenses $99 Regular $149
The lenses you can sleep with. 30 day trial wearing plan • Full credit within 30 days on lenses only if not satisfied • Eye exam, professional and fitting fees not included • SPH lenses only
Coupon must be presented at time of purchase
Expires 5/31/84 DC

Soft Contact Lenses $55
A full refund on the cost of the lenses if not satisfied • Professional and fitting fees not included
Coupon must be presented at time of purchase
Expires 5/31/84 DC

SAVE 33⅓% on frames
With purchase of complete pair of eyeglasses
50% OFF FRAMES
on second pair of eyeglasses (not to exceed value of 1st pair) with purchase of complete pair
Coupon must be presented at time of purchase
Expires 5/31/84 DC

AMERICAN VISION CENTERS great eye care · great eyewear
Hampshire Mall, Hadley • 584-7958 • Open M-Sat 10-9
Major credit cards accepted

Move Yourself, All Your Stuff, And Save, Too!

It's as easy as renting a Ryder truck, one way.

Compare costs before you make plans for moving at the end of the semester.
If you're 18 or older and have a valid driver's license, you can use a Ryder truck, rent-it-here, leave-it-there. Load up your stereo, 10-speed, clothes; everything. You'll still have room, no doubt, for one or two friends with their things to share the cost.
Compare that to the price of a plane ticket. Or even a bus. Plus shipping.
Rent a newer truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world - Ryder. The best truck money can rent.

STUDENT DISCOUNT COUPON
RYDER TRUCK RENTAL, INC.
The holder of this coupon is entitled to a
15% DISCOUNT
on any ONE WAY rental of a Ryder truck. Present this coupon to any Ryder location in New England and save even more.
One coupon redeemable per transaction. Not valid with other promotions.
Call (413) 736-8361 or your local dealer for information.
Renters Signature _____ Expires 8/30/84

EDITORIAL/OPINION

The ultimate question: What to put on a door?

There's been something on my mind, lately. I'm moving across Orchard Hill's Bowl to Dickinson, next semester, and I wish I were allowed to paint my new door.

Elizabeth Luciano

Don't smirk. It's not a minor issue. A door is more than a slab of wood or metal to seek refuge behind. It is, or should be an important mode of self-expression.

For a while, I was considering painting a portrait of my typewriter on the door, in honor of our symbiotic relationship. However, my talent in graphic design is surpassed only by my athletic ability, which is nonexistant. So much for that idea.

So I took a quick tour of the dorms yesterday to try to find an idea out there in UMass Land that I could, well, borrow. If I were allowed to paint my door.

The odyssey began in my own building. One woman has replicated the poster from the musical, "Cats," on her door. That I could live with. Somewhere else, the late Bill the Cat is immortalized. Let it not be said that the residents of Orchard Hill tolerate anti-feline-ism.

My jaunts to Sylvan and Northeast were uneventful. Most of the doors there were either wooden, or painted a beigy-gold color that nobody had improved on. Ditto Central's Brooks, Brett, and Wheeler. Oh, well. At least I finally had an excuse to climb the spiral staircase in Brooks. That's been an ambition of mine for a long time.

Baker, also in Central, was an interesting case. The doors are all color-coordinated to match the hallways. Granted, the doors lacked individuality, but the overall appearance was visually appealing. Two floors were red and yellow, one was lime green and yellow, and another was blue and yellow. It looked suspiciously like someone got a good deal on heavy-duty, yellow enamel.

The best paint job in Baker was in the basement, which is green, white, and raspberry — it really looks terrific, if overly preppie.

Southwest offered a virtual cornecopia of exciting doors. (With so many of them, how could they lose?) There was a blue bright silhouette of a jazz dancer on one door. It was simple, but very sharp and dramatic. There was also one paint-splashed door that tried to pass as modern art, and failed. I was going to write about how ugly it was, but then I found out that a friend of mine used to live there. Sorry, Anne.

J.A. was a disappointment. According to some guys I met on the sixth floor, the tower was re-painted last summer, and nobody's allowed to so much as water-color those doors, on threat of death. I did find a painting of an interesting imaginary animal there, though. It was yellow, with orange spots, buck teeth, red hair, and prominant nostrils. Bizarre, but certainly friendly enough.

Cance was definitely the leader in intriguing doors, however. The entire building is chock full of Polo ponies, rainbow-chasing Ziggies, beer-drinking Smurfs, and Bud Men. It's sort of like a branch of the University Gallery.

It was a wonderful, vibrant tour; it was a testament to undergraduate creativity and ability. Dorm doors are UMass' answer to Greenwich Village. Or could be. I'd like to make a meager contribution to the collection.

But I'm not allowed to paint my door.

Elizabeth Luciano is a Collegian columnist.

Decisions, recommendations and a dorm named Crampton

Several weeks ago the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson rejected a decision by the Residential Appeals Committee to give the residents of Crampton House a partial rebate of $71. Though many students are aware of this fact, they may not be aware of the unique sequence of events that has led to this first time ever decision by the vice chancellor to overrule the Residential Appeals Committee's decision.

John Crowley

Our story begins in late January when the Residential Appeals Committee, a group of students and housing administrators empowered by the residence hall contract, received an appeal from the students of Crampton for a full refund based on what they believed was "negligence in providing adequate security within a reasonable amount of time." After hours of interviews with both students from Crampton and with Joseph Zannini of housing services and after a thorough debate of the many facts involved the Committee came to the decision that the students of Crampton under the rules of the Residential Hall contract deserved a rent rebate of $71.

"We are fully aware that the money that would have been given to Crampton would have come out of our own pockets, and it is because of this that we and not Madson had a more unbiased view."

This, however, is not the end of our little story. Three weeks later, after the vice chancellor had returned from knee surgery and had had time to go over the letter that was supposed to be forwarded to the residents of Crampton in order to explain why they had been given this amount, decided to become very involved with a committee that he had for four years, literally ignored.

From now on all decisions made by the Residential Appeals Committee would have to be approved by the vice chancellor. Of course, through some strange coincidence, the decision the vice chancellor would have under these newly created rules would be (yes, you've guessed it) the Crampton decision. The vice chancellor, who now referred to the Committee's decisions as "recommendations", said that he felt our logic in giving the $71 was "contradictory". The vice chancellor made his decision from a half-page letter written by the Residential Appeals Committee for the students of Crampton explaining, in as short as possible terms, why Crampton did not get all that it wanted and why it was receiving the money was decided (excuse me, "recommended") by the Committee as fair under the rules of the residence hall contract. The vice chancellor, in making his decision, did not interview one Crampton student and when questioned by the Committee on what the vice chancellor considered "contradictory" the response was received from a representative of the vice chancellor's office was to say the least vague.

The vice chancellor, after making this once ever decision to overrule the Residential Appeals Committee's decision (sorry again, "recommendation") has since lost interest in the committee and has approved every "recommendation" made by the committee since the Crampton "recommendation" was overruled. This includes the group appeal made by the Grayson dorm, who asked for and received a $10 housing rebate for each resident of Grayson due to noise of the roof repairs made on that building during the fall of 1983. The vice chancellor, in approving this "recommendation," did not ask for any explanation for the Committee's approval of the rebate, and there is a very good chance that the Residential Appeals Committee will go on as it has always gone on, once again without the interest of the vice chancellor.

The students that make up the majority of the Residential Appeals Committee are not radical when it comes to giving out money to students who believe they have somehow been wronged by the University. We are fully aware that the money that would have been given to Crampton would have come out of our own pockets, and it is because of this that we and not Madson had a more unbiased view of the circumstances involving Crampton. I do not believe that the rules the Residential Appeals Committee have abided by for the last four years should be tossed aside for the convenience of one case. Maybe if the residents of Crampton were not in the process of suing the University they would now be getting rebates back, I don't know. What I do know is that though the vice chancellor had a legal right under the fine print of the residence hall contract to do what he did, he has, in my opinion, added insult to injury.

John Crowley, Orchard Hill/Central Area Representative to the Residential Appeals Committee

When cowards destroy, nothing is gained

"Character is what you are in the dark."
— Dwight L. Moody, Sermons

Because we all live in a world where violence and destruction are commonly used instruments of recourse, we often have to decide for ourselves when destruction is acceptable or at least forgivable.

Stephen Howe

The details of different incidents cause us to view different acts of unlawful destruction as being either offensive to the point of being damnable, or necessary to the point of being laudable. Unlawful destruction is seldom pretty, but sometimes, like the shooting of a rabid dog, it is necessary and sensible.

At other times it is only stupid.

Last year, peace activist Francis Crowe was arrested for painting grafitti on a Trident 2 submarine in Rhode Island. She was put in jail and will face charges for her actions.

Last week, here at the University of Massachusetts, a mock version of a trident sub, a student art project, was destroyed by vandals.

The two incidents are related in that, they both involved protests of military build-ups. Ms. Crowe's actions were a protest against such build-ups as was the creation of the mock sub here at the University by Thomas Kellner.

The two actions, however, were significantly different. The action that landed Crowe in jail was one of great courage and conviction. The action that resulted in the destruction of Thomas Kellner's work of art was one of shameful cowardice and ignorance.

Both Crowe and the campus vandals committed illegal acts of destruction — make no mistake about that. They both broke the law and at someone else's expense.

But with Crowe's action goes the respectability of accountability. She undertook her protest openly, with full knowledge of the consequences. She had the conviction to stand and take the credit or blame that the actions merited.

The pathetic individuals who destroyed Kellner's project, which was intended to be the center of the Earth Awareness week celebration, skulked about their work like rodents under cover of darkness. They did not, of course, put their name to their deed or stand to take responsibility for it. Like cowards they committed their crimes and fled.

Crowe's act of civil disobedience was one of expression. Her action, painting messages on a Trident submarine, was her statement that she could not and would not stand idly by and watch the United States lay the ground-work for destruction. She put her name to what she had done, just as Tom Kellner put his name to his art project.

The acts of vandals here on campus expressed nothing save perhaps ignorance. These criminals attacked and destroyed Tom Kellner's piece, not to make a statement but to repress one.

Why did these morons go to the trouble of destroying Kellner's sub? Did they hate the sub? Did they hate its message? Its color? Size? Shape?

Or are they just ignorant?

Political beliefs and degrees of compassion contribute to what we are willing to call civil disobedience and what is clearly malicious.

Clearly responsibility is the defining term separating Crowe's actions from that of vandals that mar our campus and our world. Crowe's willingness to accept the responsibility of her actions merits the title political activist for her and civil disobedience for her actions.

Through their lack of responsibility, the dullards who destroyed Kellner's sub earned the title cowards for themselves and vandalism for their deeds.

Stephen Howe is a Collegian staff member

Distinguished Visitors Program
and
Governors Program Council
presents

Dr. Ruth Westheimer

See her TONIGHT:
on "Late Night with David Letterman"

"SEXUALLY SPEAKING"

Monday, May 7, 1984 at 8:00 PM
Student Union Ballroom

Tickets available $2. 5-College Students $4. General Public now at Fine Arts Center Box Office and all Datatix locations

BLUE WALL
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS. MAY 3

a tribute to THE ROLLING STONES
"SHA-DO-BEE"

MAURICE RAYMOND
& The Lonely Boys

GENUINE

Budweiser
KING OF BEERS

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

Softball & Soccer
Championship Play began Tues may 1 with over 150 teams competing

Softball finals are scheduled for Thurs May 10 and
Soccer finals for Wed May 9

Womens Badminton double Champions are Cindy Kiupa and Gina Turturci

Men's Badminton Champions are N.W. Tau and Nader Aranpanaki

this Buds for you!

GENUINE

THE WORLD IS YOUR CAMPUS

Adult Education Programs also available

TWO AROUND-THE-WORLD SAILINGS EACH YEAR

Departs in Jenuery from Ft. Lauderdale and in September from Seattlewith stops in the Orient, South Asia, the Middle East and the Mediterranean.

Sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh, Semester at Sea offers students a unique full semester academic program and supporting field experiences. This one semester full credit experience is available to qualified students from all accredited colleges and universities

More than 60 voyage related university courses. Faculty drawn from the University of Pittsburgh and other leading universities, augmented by visiting area experts

Optional tours, including special tours into the People's Republic of China, available

Semester at Sea admits students without regard to color, race or creed. The S.S. Universe is fully air-conditioned, 18,000 tons, registered in Liberia and built in America

For a free color brochure, write: Semester at Sea, UCIS, University of Pittsburgh, Forbes Quadrangle, Pittsburgh, PA 15260, or call toll free (800) 854-0195 (in Pennsylvania (412) 624-6021).

Student Representative will be in Campus Center Concourse from 10 to 2 Tues thru Thurs

SLIDE SHOWS
Tues 7:00 pm Leach House Northeast
Wed. 7:00 pm John Adams 12 floor lounge
Thurs. 7:00 pm, CC Rm 803

Financial Aid is available to qualified students

Arts

TRAILERS goes to Grease

GREASE
UMass Music Theatre Guild
Van Meter Basketball Courts

By ANDY GORDON
Collegian Staff

I must say I approached this show and the thought of writing the review of it with a great deal of trepidation. While I've covered the Guild for several years now and almost always had favorable things to say about their productions, my mixed review of their Rocky Midnight Experience earlier in the semester met with an unjustified and unanticipated outcry by defensive Guild members. I was reluctant to repeat the annoyance. In any case, the reluctance was in this case not applicable, as Grease is the best piece of work to come out of the Guild since the phenomenal Pippin five semesters ago.

The UMMTG has proved it before and is proving it again that this University contains a great deal of extremely talented performers. Like all shows, Grease has it's standouts, but, and this is rare, the current production literally does not feature one poor performance. The show has it's mix of two and three dimensional characters, but each member of the large cast gets inside his or her role and visibly has fun with it. The infectious good nature of the east, in fact, made Grease a tough show to resist; and believe me, the wiseass critic part of me tried hard to.

Before I single out performers I'd like to comment on the good job done by the major backstage people. While the Guild has always been stocked with decent singers, actors and dancers, it is the producers and administrators that really channel that talent and energy into the kind of powerhouse entertainment expected of the Guild. Producer Karen Beacienski (a former Collegian drama critic by the way) must be highly commended for the all-around superior aspects of the show. Ditto for director Barbara Buddin. While I question several subtle blocking decisions, her work with the actors (when I say actors I imply actresses as well) and overall pace of the show are without flaw. Set designer Chris Anderson, lighting designer Scott Nirenberg, costume designer Marilee Packard and artistic advisor Gregg Spisack worked well together in creating the right atmosphere. Choreographer Steve Miranda's dance sequences consisted largely of choreographed milling about and repetitive hand movements, but these worked, and the looseness afforded the actors the physical freedom to take their characters where they want. The more major dance sequences were smartly more detailed, and if the blockbuster finale wasn't all that blockbuster, the "Hand Jive" sequence more than made up for it.

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

Christine Fasching as Sandy and Stuart Michael Getzov as Danny team up for a duet in Grease.

Collegian photo by Pam Madnick

Susan Zizza (top) and the Grease gang team up for a production number. The show will play tonight.

By now everyone must know what Grease is about. The show differs in many ways from the hugely successful 1978 film, but both follow the interrelationships between a gang of 50's greasers and their Pink Lady girlfriends. The show does not center as much around it's two leads and thankfully is without the poppy new tunes added to the film. The original songs work very nicely, thank you.

A while back I posed the question, "what is going to happen to the Guild when all their good people graduate?" The Larry Cox's, Bill Collura's and Scott Cunningham's of yesterday. Well the simple answer is that they've been replaced by equally talented personalities. Sure Grease has such familiar and welcome faces as Tami Dahbura, Pam Heffler and J.B. Wyker, but there's also some outrageous new people.

Stuart Michael Getzov and Christine Fasching are tremendous finds their lead performances as Sandy Dumbrowski and Danny Zuko are as good as one could hope for. Fasching has a voice that just has to be heard. A voice major from what I understand, she brings energy and emotion to universal songs about adolescent love, particularly during the wonderfully effective "Summer lovin" and "It's raining on prom night." Getzov, similarly, is a powerful singer and nicely undercuts the toughness of Zuko with the vulnerability the character demands. He sounds exactly like John Travolta too, which is funny as Hell.

Major standout performances were turned in by Susan Zizza, Cheryl Lamoreaux and Nancy Jean Needham. Zizza, as the beauty school hopeful Frenchy, turns in an adorable performance. Her cute, bubbly energy filled the stage, and I found it impossible not to smile every time she was on. Lamoreaux's Rizzo was also great. Her "There are worse things I could do" number was beautifully sung and truly touching. If for no other reason, this number will bring me back to tonight's performance. Needham played the prissy Patty with an enthusiasm that was a great deal of fun to watch.

Doug and Michael Wall, from Framingham South, also impressed me as Kenicke and radio announcer Vince Fontaine, respectively. Doug's "Greased Lightning" number went over very well and Mike's knack for ad-libbing was evident. John C. Taylor (a part-time Collegian letter writer) did a nice job as the straight arrow Eugene. The big dancer standout was Sherri Leigh June. We're talking serious dancing. June proved her outstanding acting potential two years ago in Vanities and more than matches that here as Cha-cha; another reason to catch the show if you haven't yet.

The final performance of Grease is tonight. Great acting, singing, dancing. A hot band (with Collegian music editor Dave Chevan on bass). And for free. What more could you ask for?

artslines.....

Of Mice and Men, John Steinbeck's moving portrayal of friendship and loss will close the UMass Department of Theater's spring season. Performances are in the Rand Theater May 3-5 and 9-12 at 8:00 p.m.. Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center box office and all Datatix outlets.

The University of Massachusetts Brass Choir, conducted by Walter Chesnut, and the Wind Ensemble and Symphony Band, both conducted by Malcolm W. Rowell, Jr., will perform their final concert of the season on Friday, May 4 at 8:00 p.m.. Presented free of admission charge, the event will take place in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

Two internationally acclaimed artists, cellist Leopold Teraspulsky and pianist Estela Olevsky, will perform in a faculty recital in Bezanson Hall on Thursday, May 3 at 8:00 p.m.. The concert is free and open to the public.

On Friday and Saturday, May 5&6 the Mount Holyoke History Department in cooperation with the Third World Theater of the University of Massachusetts will present a special invitational revival of the original UMass production of Do Lord Remember Me by James De Jongs. Tickets may be obtained from the Fine Arts Center box office, at the 5 College satellite box offices, or at the door the evening of the performance.

Thomas Quinn stars as Lennie in the Rand Theater's production of Of Mice and Men. See Artslines for details.

of mice and men
by john steinbeck
may 3-5, 9-12 · 8pm
rand theater, university of massachusetts
tickets: fac box office- 545-2511

HOUSING

Christian Housing, Chi Rho
welcomes applications from single grads and undergrads, including freshmen and sophomores.
Contact the First Baptist Church for more information about this Christian Ministry House.
Call 549-3596 or 586-4352

CAR STEREOS • ALARMS
SUNROOFS
Sales and Installation
Call us BEFORE you buy.
SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main St., Amherst 253-9341

FREE!!!
FREE HEALTH COVERAGE FOR UMASS EMPLOYEES!
Valley Health Plan costs eligible employees nothing--and it covers more! Isn't it time you tried Valley Health?

Sign up at Personnel Office by June 6 or call a VHP rep for information - 256-0151

SUMMER JOB INTERVIEWS
Wednesday, May 9th
Room 178, Campus Center
Applications and advanced sign-up at Student Employment Office, Rm. 239A, Whitmore.
The Association for the Help of Retarded Children, Nassau County Chapter, operates a summer residential camp for the mentally retarded in the Catskill Mts. at Hunter, NY.
Positions available:
Male/Female General Cabin Counselors
Male/Female Counselors to work with our profoundly retarded campers
Program Counselors to instruct Nature & Sewing
R.N.'s, W.S.I.'s, Office & Kitchen Staff
CAMP LOYALTOWN, AHRC
189 Wheatley Road, Brookville, NY 11545
(516) 626-1000, Ext. 31
We are particularly looking for energetic and empathetic men to work with our male campers.

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95 6 Cyl $39.95 8 Cyl $44.95
Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99
We'll install new resistor spark plugs points & condenser adjust idle speed set timing test battery and charging system inspect rotor distributor cap PVC valve ignition cables air filter and vapor canister filter Includes Emission Test and Printout
includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

★ FUNNYBONES ★
Cocktail Lounge
99¢ ALL DRINKS! ALL NIGHT!
(no cover)
ALL DRINKS FROM OUR EXTENSIVE BAR
NOBODY GIVES YOU MORE FOR LESS
Open 11:00 am - 1:00 am
322 Rt. 9, Hadley across from Mt Farms Mall

KNOW THE EIGHT DANGER SIGNALS

ANNOUNCING
CHIROPRACTIC STUDENT CLINIC
50% OFF USUAL FEES

In an effort to make the benefits of CHIROPRACTIC HEALTH CARE more accessible to students, AMHERST CHIROPRACTIC ASSOCIATES has established reduced fees for students between the ages of 18 and 24 years. These fees will be one half of usual fees.

These reduced fees will be in effect only during the hours designated for student clinic. A current valid student identification card must be presented in order to qualify for student clinic. To keep costs to an absolute minimum, this service will be offered on a "cash only/pay-as-you-go" basis; no checks or charges.

AMHERST CHIROPRACTIC ASSOCIATES
Dr. Michael Boyle Dr. Christelle Braun
290 Northampton Rd., Amherst, MA 01002
Phone 256-8342
Student Clinic hours by appointment only

The Party Never Stops!
JUSTIN RYAN'S challenges you to BEAT THE CLOCK

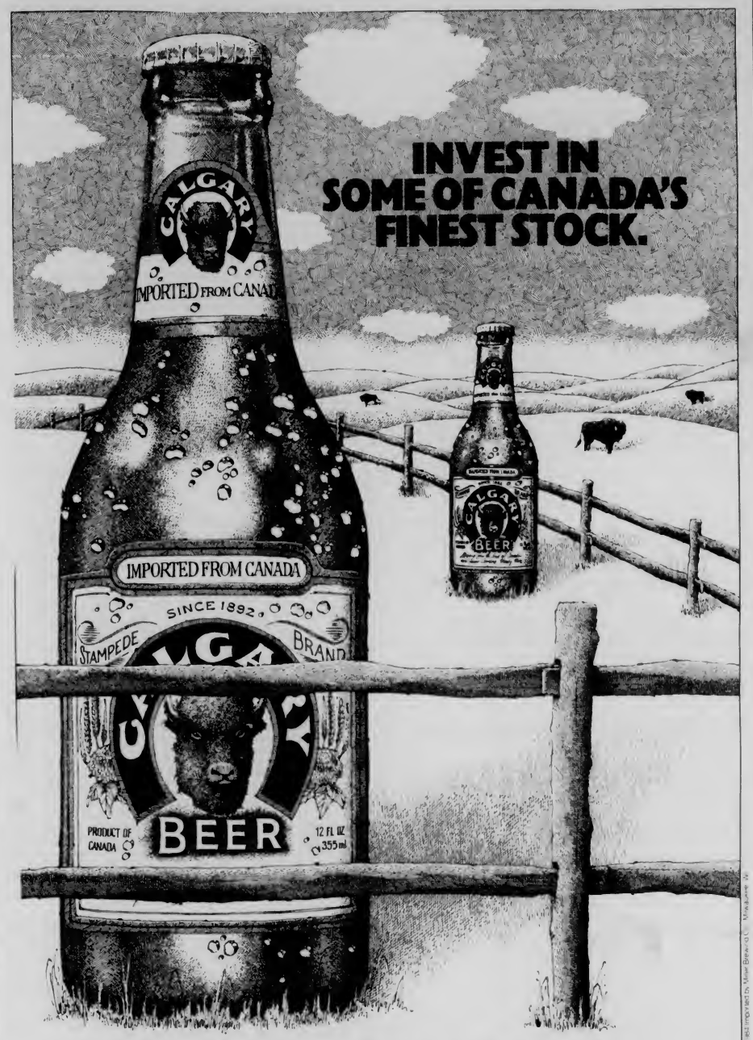
7:00-9:00	9:00-10:00	10:00-11:00	11:00-CLOSE
50¢ Drinks	75¢ Drinks	1.25 Drinks	1.75 Drinks
75¢ Food	1.25 Food	1.75 Food	Reg. Price-Food



Tonight - Thursday Night

KICK-OFF LOUNGE

Come see why UMass is ranked #1 in New England

The video tapes of last Saturday's Army game and Wednesday's Dartmouth game Tonight

The Kickoff Lounge is your Playoff gathering spot

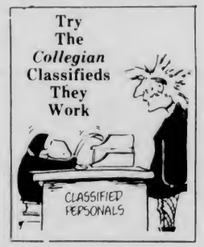
INTRODUCING CALGARY CANADIAN BEER.
A rich, hearty-tasting beer brewed from the heart of Canada's famous Conquest Barley Malt. Since 1892.

Hypercurricula

HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME - Progressive Film Series' last presentation is the Hunchback of Notre Dame. This film is the most popular adaptation of the Victor Hugo novel. 7:30 p.m., 168 CC.

FREE WRITING TUTORING - The Southwest Writing Center offers free confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignment or writing project. Drop-in, no appointment needed. 7p.m.-9p.m., Pierpont Dorm, Southwest.

JEWISH WOMEN: FIVE PERSPECTIVES - Hassidic, reconstructionist, Lesbian Feminist, Israeli, and Yiddish - a panel discussion. 7 p.m., Campus Center 162-175.



REPRODUCTIVE RIGHTS AWARENESS DAY (RAINDATE) - Come on over to the side of the Student Union (by the pond) to join us from 11 - 3 for fun, music, speakers and information.

ORCHARD HILL BIRTHDAY COMMITTEE MEETING - Final meeting of the semester to plan activities for Orchard Hill's 20th Anniversary this fall. Everyone invited to attend and share ideas. 6:30 p.m., Field Main Lounge.

FIRST PARACHUTE JUMP - Learn to parachute safely with state-of-the-art equipment. a brief meeting tonight and you can jump Saturday. 7:30 p.m., 801 CC.

FACULTY CONCERT: CELLIST LEOPOLD TERASPULSKY AND PIANIST ESTELA OLEVSKY - Program of works for cello and piano features sonatas of Chopin, Debussy, Francoeur, and a premiere by Charles Bestor of the music department. Free. 8 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

SPEAKER'S BUREAU TRAINING - A general meeting for all members of the LU/PGA Speaker's Bureau. New members are welcome. 8 p.m., 413 Student Union.

Barsie's
43 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002
hours 11:30 AM 1:00 AM 7 days
SHADES HAPPY HOUR

EVERY THURSDAY 4 - 10
WEAR YOUR SHADES AND GET TOP SHELF HIGHBALLS FOR $1.25!
& OTHER HAPPY HOUR SPECIALS!

From Thurs. May 3rd thru Mon. May 14th be our guest - choose from our Entree Specialties and receive
$1.00 OFF EACH DINNER
in your party
(50¢ OFF CHILDREN'S MENU DINNERS)
WITH THIS COUPON
Limit one coupon per family — $1 off each adult dinner and 50¢ off each children's menu dinner.
Example: 2 adults and 2 children — each adult receives $1 off dinner and each children's dinner 50¢ off.
Dinner menu served 11 a.m.-10 p.m. every day.
TRY THE NEW McMANUS FOR DINNER
Sun.-Thurs. 6 a.m.-3 a.m.
Fri & Sat 24 Hrs
Super Stop & Shop Campus Shopping Center Rte 9, Hadley/Amherst 256-6809
James H. McManus eating place
Senior Citizens Discounts 2-5 PM 20% All Other Times 10% Does not apply to specials

We Couldn't Wait

Any More!!!

adirondack music

"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"

Truckloads of new Denon, Nakamichi, Carver and J.B.L. components are coming in and we still have some of the old Tech merchandise left at awesome prices.

So come in and check out the best of the new - and the rest of the leftovers

ADIRONDACK MUSIC

15 E. Pleasant St.

Amherst

(where Tech Hifi was)

Dastardly Dans

TUESDAY and THURSDAY NITES

$3.00 all the draft beer you can drink

9 pm - 12 midnight

TONIGHT

Hear the new music of

Rack-A-Disc

Requests Welcome

Two For One 9 til 11

- All Liquor Drinks -

No Cover

THE PUB

15 East Pleasant St. AMHERST

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS

$7.00

(with this coupon)

$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry

$11.50 Long Hair

Expires 5/31/84

Valid with Barb & Julie only

FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment

Styles by Deborah

65 University Drive

Amherst, MA 549-5610

Happy Hour

THURSDAY 3-7 PM

Draft Beer... only 65¢

*Proof of Age Required

LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

the hatch

GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The Strip by Jim Walsh

The UMass Zone by Mark Rollins

Shagnasty by O.T. Derringer

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Hamburg on Roll
Spinach Noodle Casserole

BASICS LUNCH
Golden Burgers
Spinach Noodle Casserole

DINNER
Savory Beef Strudel/
Mushroom Sauce
Sausage Grinder

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Strata
Stir Fry Vegetables and Tofu

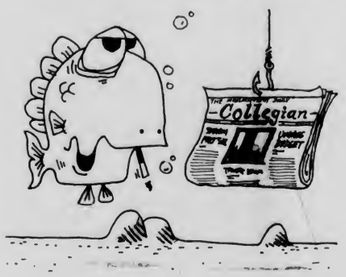
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe



©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Catch of the day?
5 Orchestra components
10 Hied
13 Lucid
15 Exhausted (with out)
16 Little one Suffix
17 Famous sapphire
19 Lock adornment
20 San Antonio mission
21 Biblical ruler
22 Newcastle's river
23 Bumper sticker perhaps
25 Office need
27 Paddock dweller
30 Holy lady Abbr
31 Insect wings
32 Shade of blonde
33 Bull in a china shop
42 Correct
47 Swizzle stick
49 Garnish for a stew
41 Capital of Crete
42 Count: the realm
43 Pre-holiday time
44 Prefix
45 Mouth: Comb form
47 Fritz's relative
48 Invisible
51 Bandy about
54 Type of bag
53 Outdistanced the others
55 Hacienda material
58 Ceremonial pledge
59 Semiprecious blue stone
62 Put up for later
63 Pianist Morini
64 Balkan people
65 Accompaniment for cakes
66 Satisfy a legacy
67 Security Council reply

DOWN
1 Business letter abbr
2 Part of Lady Bird's name
3 Genuine
4 Easter event for Berlin
5 Garb for Yum Yum
6 Committed a gaffe
7 Part of a church calendar
8 Elgar's — Variations
9 RR stop
10 "No, No Nanette" star, 1970
11 Solitary
12 More fashionable
14 City on the Mohawk
18 Area on a ship for short
22 Mine cars
24 One that does Suffix
26 Wide awake
27 Gender Abbr
28 Fictional terrier
29 Glittering adornment
33 Vegetable container
35 Granular snow field
36 — in the wool
38 Name for a mademoiselle
39 Land of the llama
40 One of a famous trio
42 Wall decoration
45 One way to go
47 Like some desserts
48 See 14 Down
49 Knotty
51 Harem rooms
54 English portrait list 1761-1807
56 Secrete
57 Hamburg's river
59 Kine's roving place
60 Play it again name
61 Ending with art

READ THE Collegian!

Weather

Becoming cloudy early today with a chance of rain beginning in the afternoon. Highs in the 50s. Rain, fog and wind tonight and tomorrow. Overnight lows in the 40s. Highs tomorrow in the 50s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	L	I	T		A	H	E	A	D		O	C	A
P	A	N	E		R	I	N	S	E		P	O	L	E
A	N	T	A		I	N	T	H	E	D	U	M	P	S
R	A	H		M	O	D	E		M	O	L	T	E	N
		E	R	A	S	U	R	E		G	E	E	S	E
A	S	S	U	R	E	S		U	A	I	N
D	O	W	N	Y		G	E	N	E	T	I	C	S
A	R	I		A	B	A	N	G		N	U	T
R	A	M	P	A	G	E	S		M	I	T	R	E
		R	E	E	L		A	P	A	C	H	E	S
A	S	T	O	R		T	E	R	R	A	C	E
M	Y	O	P	I	A		I	L	E	S		S	A	L
I	N	T	H	E	M	O	N	E	Y		C	O	M	E
A	G	E	E		I	R	E	N	E		R	U	N	E
E	S	T		D	O	S	E	D		O	P	E	N

Maxwell stops King again; Celtics stop Knicks again

BOSTON (AP)— For the second consecutive game, Boston shut down Bernard King. Therefore, says Celtics' forward Cedric Maxwell, it follows that they shut down the New York Knicks.

They've depended on him so much all year long I don't think they can win without him scoring 30 or 40 points," Maxwell said after guarding New York's shooting machine in a 116-102 victory last night that gave Boston a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

King was held scoreless for a span of 19 minutes, 51 seconds in the middle of the game and finsihed with just 13 points.

"We were successful in making him get the ball on the wing and not letting him get it in shooting situations," said Maxwell.

King had averaged 16 field goals in 27 attempts and 39.8 points per playoff game this year. He made just 4 of 13 shots last night.

Boston forward Larry Bird was brilliant, hitting 16 of 22 shots and scoring a career playoff high of 37 points. He also played strong defense with four steals and two blocked shots.

"The entire Boston team played great defense, but the one man the purists noticed was Bird," said New York Coach Hubie Brown. "He's the real key to their defense."

The Eastern Conference semifinal series shifts to New York for the third game tomorrow night.

Sox tame Tigers

DETROIT (AP)— Dwight Evans and Jim Rice hit two-run homers last night and the Boston Red Sox cooled off the Detroit Tigers 5-4 behind the combined pitching of Mike Brown and Bob Stanley.

It was only the third defeat in 22 games for the Tigers and snapped a three-game winning streak.

In the Boston first, Jerry Remy drew the first of five walks off loser Juan Berenguer, 1-1, and Evans followed by drilling a 2-2 pitch into the lower left-field seats. Wade Boggs walked and scored ahead of Rice's in the third.

AP Laserphoto

THE VOICE — Sherm Feller, in his booth at Fenway Park in Boston, where he announces the Red Sox home games, has written a tribute to the late President John F. Kennedy entitled "John Kennedy." The piece will be performed by the Baltimore Symphony May 19, which will be the world premiere of the piece.

This is the Year to Plan Your Career!
Limited number of graduate study awards.
Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA
OPEN RUSH
All University Men Invited
TONIGHT May 2nd and
THURSDAY May 3rd
FREE REFRESHMENTS
374 N. Pleasant St. 253-9032
(the Blue House)

Feel Great!!
Look Terrific!!
Expensive in every way, except PRICE!!

Hair styling for today's men & women at reasonable price;
$7.50 for a style
Marjon Hair Design
Rt. 9
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, MA 586-4551
Hours: Sat 10-4
Tues thru Fri 10-6

Students
Summer Jobs
with Mass Fair Share
Get paid for what you believe in - hazardous waste clean up, economic reforms - with our grassroots political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid Training. Hours 1:30-10 PM M-F, $156-225/wk Call 586-8713

4 bdrm 2 bath ★14 Swiss Vlg, fall option $174 per bdrm per month, utilities included Leaving some furniture excellent cond. 256-0351/256-1014

Apartment with fall option $147.50 month Colonial Village Apartment near bus routes call Bill or Greg 256-0419 keep trying

Cliffside 2 bedroom townhouse June 1 400 utilitiers included fall option 665-3076

Puffton summer sublet with fall option 1 bedrm in 2 bedrm apt mature, responsible, female 549-4869

Townehouse summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt call George or Joe 549-0902

June 1st - Aug 31 room in large apt near Amherst Center 165+ per month on bus route call eves Colette 253-9747

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

2 bedroom Townehouse Apt available June 1st - Sept 1st call 549-4585

2 bedroom townhouse in Sunderland to sublet with fall option evellable cell 665-4813 or 665-8504

1 room evailable June - Aug 174 month call evenings 256-1021

1 badroom apt Colonial Vill avail June 1 with fall option 256-1334 eves

Two rooms, walk to campus and town furnished washer/dryer 549-6041

Brandywine one bedroom apt summer with fall option pool 549-5825

1 bdrm apt Crestview summer sublet w/fall option walking distance to UMass on bus route AC avail June 1 360/mo 549-7826

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Sunderland pool cable $70 per month call 665-4536 Sue or Dee

1 bedrm in sm coophouse summer w/fall option nonsmoking 140/mo + 253-5638

2 bedroom Crestview apartment across from Puffton rent negotiable 546-9100

3 bedroom Presidential apt available June 1 $465 549-6543

Two large bedrooms in 4 bdrm house Good location on bus route possible fall option summer rent neg 256-1337

Sublet fall option 2 brm $330 per month Sunderland summer rent negotiable call between 9-11 am or other 665-4744

Two bedroom Brandywine apt cheap summer sublet call Susie 549-2719

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term, please call the RIDE SERVICE 545-2145

WANTED TO RENT

2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village call Karen 549-4684

Wanted Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

I ned to rent a moped June-August. Amherst area. Licensed driver. Call kelley at 546-4207 after 7:00 PM

Room wanted in N Amherst apt preferably Puffton will take in June or Sept Carol 549-3720

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Alpina 7123 car stereo, AM/FM cassette with auto-eject, Dolby. $170 549-6499

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Audi Fox automatic good condition new brakes, struts $800 firm 665-3509 after 6 PM

73 VW Superbeetle looks great, runs great Lt Blue $995. 549-4816

Auto for sale. Going back to Europe. Ford Galaxy 500, PS, PB, AC, excellent condition, $900 or BO 256-1016 10 pm +

1977 Toyota Corolla great condition new tires brakes high mileage call 256-0311

BARTENDER WANTED

M/F to work next semester. Experience and references needed must be able to train some days immediately. Call for interview after 2 PM 545-0780

CAPE COD

Seeking people w/house or apt (preferably near Wellfleet) who have room for me this summer. Kim 253-9389

CONCORD

I need a room for the summer please call 665-2338 PM

DRIVE A BUS

Western Mass Bus Lines is accepting applications to our bus driver training program to prepare students for part time work in September. Qualifications include a clean driving record of 3 years, availability to train through this summer, committment to work through May, 1985, and student status at one of the 5-Colleges. Apply in person at 59 Service Center St. N'ton Mon-Fri

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FEMALE ROOMMATE WANTED

To share room in Brandywine Apt for more info call Jodi 256-1235

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summr and fall semester '84 Amherst 256-1205

Brittany Manor apt available June 1st for summer and fall call 253-5560

4-bed summer sublet, Northempton. $525 call summertime for Sept rentals. Skibiski, Realtors Northampton 584-3428

Take 1 of 3 rms available in 4 bdrm Amherst apt, summer/fall option, low negotiable rent, 253-2083

Liva ecross from Emily Dickenson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

One bedroom apt Brandywine available June 1st for fall Tracy 549-3873

1 bedroom apt available June 1 with fall option $295 call 665-2338 PM

Two room apartment available immediately Amherst Center $250 + per mo perfect for one or two people call 253-3161

Cocaine ed this isn't. Large contemp house one mile from campus. Wash/dryer, fireplace, semi furnished, four bdrms. Available, summer sublet/fall option, after three, 549-7871

2 bedrooms in beautiful house 1 mile from UMass 549-7865

Summer sublet with fell option 2 bedroom Southwood apartment partially furnished, pool, tennis, laundry. $427/mo. incl. heat. Call evenings 253-5566

Fall option 1 room available July 1st. Entire apartment available September. Pool, tennis, bus. $137 utilities included. Call Leanne after 10 pm. 665-7581. Keep trying.

3 rooms avellable sublet with fall option Amherst Center 256-1060

Two bedroom apt available June great location ets storage space

FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

2 portable typewriters: Manual $15 Electric $25 545-0474 between 9-5

1977 Camero must sell $1900 549-0875

Is your car ready for summer!!? Make it shine with chrome magsl Must sell! Call Mike at 549-4562

IBM Selectric III Typewriter almost new $850 firm call Craig 665-4315

Browning Compund Bow w/arrows and quiver. Call Duncan 253-9032

12 speed Fuji Royale, excellent cond. low mileage $300 or BO call Duncan 253-9032

One year old twin bed, table and 4 chairs best offer Wendy 584-2905

FOUND

Found 4/27 in front of GRC. Keys with brown leather fob. Call Don at 546-9700 to claim

Faith L Busiek, your UMass ID is at the Information Desk in the Campus Center

HELP WANTED

Man's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Housekeapers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No exprience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30-10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

Waitresses and General Laborers apply at the Rusty Nail 3 to 5 weekdays

Union Video is hiring a part-time summer mgr. July-August 15 hrs/wk 3.35 hr. video skills required an AA/EO employer apply 216 SUB by 5/9

International Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

Counter Help part time apply at Amherst Deli start immediately

IDEAL LOCATION

Spacious 2 bedroom apt in Amherst Center short walk to campus. Summer only. Call anytime 253-3591

LOST

'82 Somerset High men's class ring, in Worcester DC on April 20. Sentimental value only. Call Chris, 546-6607

One pair Birkenstock type sandels by Campus Pond Saturday after NRBQ please call Alex at 6-9029 no questions

Smell Saiko watch with brown strap Southwest area. If found call 549-6646 reward

6 keys on green plestic keychain at Southwest concerts please call Chris 546-7503

Gold sorority pin sheped like a key, with engraved letters KKT. If found call Amy W. 545-0320

Emereld and Diamond Ring must find! Reward! Call Deirdre 549-1703

PERSONALS

Attention all Greeks: Greekfest - Don't forget - May 2-8 fun and games parties

Great DEAL! Summer sublet - fall option 3 bedroom Swiss Village Apt furnished 253-3971

Dr. Ruth Westheimer
"Sexually Speaking"
You have seen Dr Ruth on the Tonight Show and Late Night with David Letterman and heard her on WYNY in NY come see her in person Mon. May 7 Student Union Ballroom 8 PM
Tickets now available $2. 5-College at Fine Arts Center $4. General Pub

GREASE - Solidlaterpatty! Black-eye? Only two more shows - better get it right this time

To the person with my leather jacket!! It's definitely worth the price! (gas key is irreplacable) Please call!! 256-0924

Kevin H Chalapa ta libos Happy 25th Sags

Jan - Just wanted to say hi and I love you - ciao bella - Leech

Jill Halpern Happy Birthday cutie, we love you - love Angie & Kathy

Happy 20th Betty - Cravace! Movie? Orca-Directions-Tripping! w BBS Love Jodee

Sam - Guess what killer? It's your birthday, so we thought we would make you famous. Today is your birthday, but tomorrow we celebrate, so keep your pants on! Who loves ya' babes? Liz & Stace (that's who) P.S. Thanks for the hugs! P.P.S. What would you do without us?

Christine - You're the greatest!
We love you!
The Sisters of Alpha Chi

Carlos, Porque en el rocio de las pegueneces el corazon encuentra su manana, y se refresca. Feliz Cumpleanos! Maria

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

To Essex Mass or thereabouts on Friday anytime. Share expenses. Call Eileen 546-4803

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Room wanted in W Yarmouth for summer call Brian 665-3225

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommete wented to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Two housemetes wanted for summer in W Yarmouth $800 each by May 26. Call Sue or Laura 546-9880

Share two bedroom apt male or female Brittany Manor mid May with fall option 3rd floor furnished call 253-2140

Roommate for 2 bedroom apt call after 6 pm ask for Karen 665-4896

Looking for 2 roommates for apt in Brandywine male or female 549-7797

Puffton, summer w/fall option 549-4430 before 11:00 pm, 545-3641 (8-4)

One bedroom in three bedroom Townehouse Apts; clean quiet nonsmoker 549-4861

2 female roommetes wanted for Brittany Manor apt call 256-0945

2 people to share room in Puffton for fall 549-3720 549 7845

Roommate wanted for Brittany Manor to live with three engineers if interested call 6-9583 or 6-5388

Great place AC pool 125 mo female roommate wanted call 549-1602 begin June 1

Hey PJ, Happy Donna Week. BJ loves you so does the Megquier Fan Club

1 or 2 roommates wanted for 1 bedroom in apartment on bus route. Available now! Fall option 665-4443 keep trying!

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-8089 Kris 256-0566

Roommates wanted for summer in Hyannis call Jay 546-8095 or 549-0729

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

SEXUALLY SPEAKING

Dr Ruth Westheimer
Monday May 7, 1984 SUB 8 PM
Tickets $2 5 college $4 general public
tix available at Fine Arts Center

SUMMER RENTALS

Centrally located on campus kitchen facilities cable TV furnished 250 single 150 double call Jim K 545-0047 or 545-2150

SUMMER SUBLET

1 bedroom evailable in Brandywine call 549-0116, 6-6943, 6-4239

Two bedroom Brandywine apt avellable for summr sublet. Rent negotiable call 549-6396

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

1 bedroom, furnished, Puffton for summer sublet 549-5153

Brandywine swimming pool, air cond with rent, call 546-4791, 549-1405

Double and single available in house on McClellan St 155+ 253-3470

One or two rooms available very reasonable Puffton 549-0462 Chris Sue

Puffton Village 1 bedroom in a 3 bedroom to sublet for summer only Rose at 549-1616

Two bedroom in three bedroom house convenient location, rent negotiable call now 549-3856

Crown Point furnished 2 bedrooms pool Route 9 bus route next to JR's Price Chopper 253-3782

Dirt cheap! 3 bedroom Southwood townhouse apartment call now 256-0660

Holyoke 2 rm apt w/kitchenette furnished to sublet for summer rent negotiable call 549-1616

Central Northampton 3 bedroom apt June, July, August $425 + /month 584-2078

Brandywine Apt for summer sublet furnished $95/month negotiable call 549-5955 or 549-6024 after 5

Bast Deal subletting Southwood townhouse cheap 256-8427

Two bedroom apt in Amherst Center cheap! call now 549-7605

Need a place for summer? Fully furnished Townehouse apt. available very reasonable call 549-5970

House in N Amh on bus rte 4 big bdrms comp. furnished, color TV 2 desks, etc. $325/mo or $85/bdrm/mo 6/1 - 9/1 549-5893

Beautiful Townehouse apartment to sublet with free beer call 546-9615 answering machine

Brandywine two badroom fully furnished airconditioned pool 549-0124 anytime

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

Townhouse apartment for summer sublet. $125 per person three people call 546-5245

Summer sublet w/fall option spacious 4 bedroom and 2 bath on bus route rent negotiable call 256-8247

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

Fall option own bedroom Main St $115 included females only 253-5552

1 bdrm apartment 309 N Pleasant unsurpassable convenience summer only 253-9247 evenings

Cheap summer sublet Rolling Green 1 room of 2 253-5467 evenings

One bedroom in semicoop house in Amherst 150/month 253-3545

Summer sublet w/fall option - preferably two females, each get own room, located on Main Street. On bus route call Sue at 256-8304

1 large bedroom available in a house on Nutting Ave rent $120. 549-7619

Two bedroom Colonial Village partially furnished convenient! rent negotiable call 256-6608

Room - quiet house walking distance negotiable 6-8912

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

1 bedroom Southwood townhouse summer sublet with fall option available June 1 253-7031

Furnished Puffton Apart rent cheap close to bus stop call 548-4966

Presidantial room available inexpensive 548-4191 546-7189 close to campus call evenings

3 bedroom Northwood apt $340 avail May 1st w/fall option on bus route call 665-8514

2 large bedrooms in clean So Amherst house on two bus lines quiet neighborhood reasonable 253-5196

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt fantastic location $125 call Carolyn 253-3630

Summer sublet Rolling Gren two bedroom furnished all util incl AC Rich 6-6389

One bedroom apt in Presidantial summer sub/fall option $[illegible]/mo 549-6644

w/fell option one room in 4 bedroom house 10 min walk to campus $175/mo summer rent neg Gail 253-3630 eve

Sports

Gorilla make Big Green see Red

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

Bring on Syracuse!

There was no Gorilla oversight on this one, no looking past Dartmouth in anticipation for the dreaded Orangemen. None of that, and after their 16-6 destruction of the Big Green yesterday at Dartmouth, the time is right and safe to get the wheels oiled for Saturday's showdown with NCAA defending champion and number one ranked Syracuse in the Carrier Dome.

This game lasted about a half before 11th ranked Massachusetts went to the locker-room with a 9-3 lead at the break. Dartmouth would never come closer than that six goals margin the rest of the way.

The Gorillas would add two more nets for an 11-3 lead after three, before tucking home their final five to Dartmouth's three goals in the fourth quarter. Turn out the lights and pack the bus for Upstate New York.

But before things get too carried away, note that Massachusetts trailed 2-0, early in the game, as first Jenkins Marshall and then Dave Burt, two of the three All-Ivy selects the Gorillas knew they had to stop, scored.

"We seem to be famous for coming out loose on defense until we get stung," said head coach Dick Garber afterwards. "Then we really tighten up and play tough."

Tighten up they did, holding the Big Green to one goal the rest of the quarter, and shutting them out in the second and third periods, before giving up three in the out-of-reach, final period.

"We did a real good job on defense," added Garber. "We just weren't paying too much attention to them on those first two."

The offense didn't look too shabby either, and after falling behind, tieing it up at two, and falling behind again, 3-2, after one quarter, the shooting came out.

Enter freshman Ed Boardman and junior Ken Freedman, two who emerged yesterday as another pair who know how to find the net. Both came up with hat tricks, Boardman getting two of his three in the second period, to go along with steady Bubba Sanford's own hat trick. Sanford also got two of his three in the quarter, as the Gorilla's attackmen forced a frustrated Dartmouth into nine first half penalties. (resulting in five power play goals), to jump to their commanding 9-3 halftime lead.

Freedman got his three in the second half when Massachusetts pressed the Big Green right into eight turnovers and put the game away.

Garber said the strategy of having the bigger three attackmen, in the persons of Boardman, Freedman, and Sanford, take their men to the net worked.

"They're pretty big guys, and strong," he explained. "We wanted them push the ball towards the cage."

And not to be left out was the another stellar netminding job by Massachusetts goalie Gerry Moreau, who came up with, as Garber put it, "a couple of big time saves."

So the Big Green is gone and the Orangemen await. Saturday is going to be one long afternoon, or one helluva day.

Yale upends UMass; Baseball team at 15-23

By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

Ever feel like you've been going up and down like a yo-yo? University of Massachusetts baseball coach Dick Bergquist sure does. After taking a 6-1 decision from the University of Connecticut Tuesday night, Bergquist's Minutemen came back to London Field yesterday and lost 7-3 to Yale. The split gives UMass a record of 15-23 with eight games left in their season.

"We're just not as consistent as I would like. We looked very good against UConn, but we didn't play good defense today (against Yale). Perhaps the UMass-UConn rivalry had them pumped up a little more," Bergquist said.

The Minutemen rode the hot bats of Angelo Salustri (3-for-5, including a 2-run homer), Bruce Kingman (2-for-5, including a homer), and Todd Comeau (2 doubles) to the victory over UConn, giving them a split of their two game series (they lost 4-0 to UConn earlier). Tony Presnal scattered nine hits and four walks, while striking out eight Huskies to pick up his third win of the season.

The Minutemen opened the scoring in the Yale game in the first inning when Andy Connors doubled to left centerfield, Salustri flied out to center, allowing Connors to tag up and go to third, and Comeau drove him home with a single to right.

The Elis, however, exploded for five runs in the fifth. After John Saadi reached on an error, and Jon Litner singled to left, starting and losing pitcher Andy Clark (3-3) misplayed a Terry O'Brien sacrifice bunt to load the bases. Israel Rosales followed with a single to right, scoring Saadi. Litner then came home when Mike Luzzi hit into a fielders choice, leaving runners on first and third.

The next batter, Bill Moore, hit a grounder to second baseman Jack Bloise, but Bloise's throw to get Luzzi at second pulled Salustri off the bag, allowing another run to score. After Brian Cole walked to load the bases again, Tony Paterno singled to left to bring home Luzzi and Moore.

UMass cut the defecit to 5-2 in the seventh when Todd Ezold doubled to left center, went to third on a Dan Clifford fly ball, then scored on a Tom Fabian fly-out. But Yale got two more runs in the ninth when Cole smacked a two-run homer to right field off reliever Bob Kostro.

The Minutemen staged a late comeback in the bottom of the ninth when Ezold singled, Fabian walked, and pinch-hitter Sean Flint singled to load the bases with one out. Ezold then scored on a sacrifice fly by Connors, and Salustri singled to load them up again. But Eli reliever Tim Kotkiewicz got Comeau to fly out to left to end the ball game.

The UMass defense certainly didn't help much, as they committed six errors, including three in the crucial fifth inning. That lack of defense led Coach Bergquist to say, "I don't have any good comments today; maybe Yale does."

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

YER OUT — University of Massachusetts freshman Tom Fabian gets thrown out at the plate in an earlier game against UNH. The Minutemen went on to win that game but lost yesterday to Yale, 7-2.

Women's crew keeping busy

By ELLEN HASKINS
Collegian Staff

The Connecticut River slips through the Pioneer Valley and carries on its waters womens crews from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst College, Smith College and Mount Holyoke College. Sunday afternoon shells from these schools aligned for a 2000 meter challenge for the Valley Girl Championship title. Smith reigned the varsity and novice eight competitions while the UMass women ruled the varsity lightweight four event.

In the varsity eight competition, the UMass shell was two seconds behind Smith.

Mt. Holyoke crossed third with Amherst finishing fourth.

"It was our most powerful race," said coach Maria Pbelkas, "Each race we sharpen our technique and use our strength more effectively."

The Smith crew may rest comfortably with the Valley Girl victory cup, but they will face a tough challenge against Umass again for the New England Championship title this Saturday in Worcester.

As one UMass oarswoman put it "We've got the momentum to win. We moved on Smith this past Sunday and we'll move by them at the New England's."

Pulling for UMass in the varsity eight with coxswain Beth Millette are from stroke seat Ellen Haskins, Pamela Fullerton, Kirsten Simonitsch, Elaina Quinn, Leandra Henderson, Clare Narrod, Lisa Davidson and Julia O'Grady.

The UMass lightweight four stayed strong through the 200 meter course and out pulled their Smith competitors in the final 50 meters. Dana Mikesell steered the winning crew of stroke Tricia Newell, Ellen Homola, Margo Cox and Traci O'Malley.

The novice eight race results found UMass second to Smith with Mt. Holyoke third and Amherst fourth.

Four of the novice rowers joined forces with the lightweight four to finish second to Smith in the junior varsity event.

Saturday both the UMass varsity and novice eight crews launched to victory over Lowell University on Lowell's 2000 meter course.

"We are at the sprint of our season," said Bpelkas, "we've been down on boats and have pulled close, now we are starting to pull by."

Sports Log

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

Just a few thoughts...

There's only a few more weeks of the National Hockey League and the Islanders are still the team to beat. So many times, they've been down but, like one of my checks, just bounce right back... The game with the Canadiens was a prime example. It was a game the Islanders had to win, and they did, with excellent defense, and superlative goaltending form Billy Smith...Game 5 tonight should be a beaut, as the series goes back to the Forum. Remember that Montreal, after going down to Quebec in a tough overtime loss, came back to beat Quebec in Quebec, so they have shown some adversity also.

Meanwhile, Edmonton is sitting on their Gretzkys waiting for the Montreal-New York winner. They breezed through their conference final series over the North Stars, taking the last one in Minnesota, 3-1... Watch for Edmonton to tune up against the Wales Conference winner by playing a much tougher team than anyone in their conference. They have scheduled a best-of-five series with the U.S.A. team in the table top hockey game outside the Hatch. There's only one problem, the game doesn't do the Canadien national anthem.

The NBA is into the second round of their playoffs, with the key series being the Celtics-Knicks matchup. The Celts blew the Knicks out in game one, but remember that the Knicks were coming off a tough 5 game series with the Pistons and appeared to be tired. But, there will be no more excuses for the men from New York...A big surprise is the New Jersey Nets. After knocking off the 76ers, they have split the series with the Bucks so far...They are being led by Michael Ray Richardson, who has fought the battle back from drug addiction...While some of the Celts are happy that the Sixers won't be in, the real ecstatic team must be the Bucks, who have been knocked out of the playoffs the last three years by the Sixers.

Although April isn't really indicative as to who's going to win baseball's division, the Detroit Tigers are off to a fantastic start. They are 19-2 after using the Red Sox as a dish rag 11-2...Other surprises include the Mets, who hold the top spot in the NL east, thanks mostly to the lackluster play of the other teams in the division...Oakland is making waves in the AL west. A's manager Steve Boros must have a spell on Dave Kingman, who had quite a good month, thank you. Remember that this guy hit .197 last year. Freud called that schizophrenia.

A few final items: ESPN televised 10 hours straight the NFL draft, which is about as exciting as dinner on Little House on the Prairie. I'm glad television fills its valuable time with such importance as who the Atlanta Falcons selected in the 8th round...With the Yankees and Mets at home this weekend, the Generals of the USFL drew over 50,000. But owner M. Donald Trump achieved an even higher status—he's on this month's cover of GQ— or is that banned from the bookstores, too?...

The Massachusetts Daily

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIX, Issue 66 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, May 4, 1984

Collegian Photo by Mike Feinmen

Two halves of a barn in Hadley support each other in artistic balance. The barn was a victim of a winter storm.

Olver ponders tuition amendment

By PETER ABRAHAM
and LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

A spokesperson for Amherst state Sen. John Olver said yesterday the senator is taking a "wait and see" attitude toward the possibility of lowering the 15 percent tuition increase the Massachusetts Board of Regents approved last month.

The Massachusetts House of Representatives last week passed an amendment to the state higher education budget that calls for increases in tuition to be tied in with the cost of living. This would reduce next year's possible tuition hike to 6.3 percent, down from the regent's proposed 25 percent.

The Senate will vote on the amendment as soon as the House of Representatives has gone over enough of the budget to send to the senators, said an Olver aid. Kathleen Merrigan said she does not know how long that process will take.

Merrigan said the Amherst senator believes the Regents should have documented their case better, to both students and legislators before approving the tuition hike.

"We are asking to see a document by the National Council on Education that shows Massachusetts pays lower in-state tuition than most states now and still would pay less after an increase," Merrigan said.

"The regents' decision seemed arbitrary to many of the parties involved and with documentation they might have made things easier for themselves," Merrigan noted.

Senator Gerard D'Amico, D-Worcester, co-chairman of the Joint Education Committee, and Gov. Michael S. Dukakis' chief education advisor Gerald Indelicato have said they hope a lower tuition rate can be negotiated.

And at a UMass Faculty Senate meeting yesterday, Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey said while he hopes the measure passes, "we must be very careful about our credibility."

"Because we are trying to maintain a first rate institution of higher education, some people may now question students' willingness to support (the University) financially," Duffey said.

Merrigan said Olver sent a letter to the Regents requesting them to wait one month before voting on the tuition hike, a proposal originally initiated by the Joint Educational Committee.

"Senator Olver felt the Regents would have benefited from more testimony by students and administrators," Merrigan said. "He thought that admissions and financial aid officers should have had an input as to whether the tuition increase would actually make it impossible for some students to attend state universities."

Mark Shea, an assistant in the Student Government Association President's Office, said the House amendment, proposed by Amherst Rep. James Collins, has been endorsed by the SGA and the UMass faculty union, the Massachusetts Society of Professors.

The 15 percent tuition increase approved by the Regents would mean an additional $167 for in-state undergraduates with proportionally higher hikes for out-of-state and graduate students.

Committee calls Grad Center 'Number 1 slum'

By LAURA YEE
Colegian Staff

In declaring the Graduate Research Center as the "number one slum area" on campus with a number of other buildings close behind, a University of Massachusetts Faculty Senate committee yesterday called for the Administration to increase efforts against vandalism.

According to Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson the University requested $234,000 in last year's budget to be used for additional security of campus buildings.

"The Governor and the Board of Regents are supporting us (and) hopefully we'll get 50 percent of what we requested," Madson said. "Let's keep our fingers crossed."

Service Committee chairman and history professor Mario DePillis said, "I have talked to and seen many other state universities in the country and this is one of the worst maintained and deteriorating institutes of its kind."

"But with the help of Vice Chancellor of Administration and Finance John DeNyse and Vice Chancellor Madson, we are turning this situation around," he said. "I hope."

The senate amended and passed the motion of the Service Committee to "urge consultation with the administration and faculty" to "establish standard operating procedures for non-residential buildings" to eliminate misuse and vandalism. A second motion moved that "the director of Public Safety provide extra security during nights, weekends, and holidays to cover minimally secured academic buildings," at a time when most vandalism occurs, DePillis said.

"Some buildings are more slums than others," DePillis said. "The Grad Tower is number one. Closely behind is Herter Hall, with Bartlett third.

"Handicapped facilities (in bathrooms) have been dismantled with toilet seats ripped off. Gallon jugs of wine kept in buildings are a fire hazard. People are having beer parties and barbeques in classrooms."

DePillis said he has a list of vandalism that "goes on and on."

"Four foot signs of obscenities on walls, tearing off of bathroom doors, broken windows, unscrewing of water faucets and smashed thermostats" are among his list that amounts to more than a quarter of a million dollars in damages to the University.

"Little (stolen equipment) gets recovered," DePillis said. "Typewriters, calculators and soon micro-computers are subject to theft."

DePillis attributes the high rate of vandalism to entrances left unlocked when graduate students work late at night and "people wandering around at night high on drugs and beer."

Vandals are half students and half visitors venturing onto campus, DePillis said.

"One great reform was the installation of studemt security," DePillis said.

"Conditions are not only deplorable but intolerable," DePillis said. "As building coordinator for Herter Hall--one of the most heavily abused buildings--I'm working to make conditions good enough to work in."

Next Southwest Fest may be nixed

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Because of numerous complaints and disturbances at last weekend's block party and concert, future Southwest Festival activities will be markedly different, according to the vice-chancellor for Student Affairs at the University of Massachusetts.

"In contrast to the University's east side concert Saturday, the situation on the west side was very different. Between the block party Friday night and the concert Sunday, the University recieved over 40 complaints while 10 arrests were made," Dennis L. Madson told the Faculty Senate yesterday.

"The type of behavior that occurred over the weekend will not be tolerated," he added.

Madson said a combination of good weather, "spring fever," and an estimated 60 percent of the crowd not being from the University contributed to the problems over the weekend.

While he ruled out a Southwest concert prohibition for the future, Madson said "This kind of event will not take place again. We hope to come up with a better set of guidelines for next year."

Madson also said 18 physical plant workers spent eight hours cleaning up the Southwest fields following the day-long concert. The Southwest Area Government will be billed for the cleanup, he said.

"I'll be meeting with the organizers to discuss future events of this kind and the possibility of an event of a different nature," he said.

Student Government Association co-president Rick Patrick said his office will work with Madson over the summer to help plan future events and devise suitable guidelines.

Madson said that a "significant number" of complaints came from University students in addition to neigborhood residents.

Inside:

CIA in trouble again p.2
Dr. Ruth Westheimer to speak on Monday p.5
Rita Murphy remembers the past p.7
Gorillas prepare for No. 1 ranked Syracuse ... p.16

"Remember that grades are an indication of performance, not of individual worth."

—Stephen B. Oates
Professor of History

World and National News

CIA accused in air strikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA ordered an air strike against a suspected Salvadoran guerrilla communications center inside Nicaragua in February and then told a Nicaraguan rebel group to take responsibility for the attack, intelligence sources say.

These sources, who spoke on condition they be granted anonymity, said the CIA assigned specially trained Nicaraguan exiles to carry out the Feb. 2 raid. It is the first known assault directed by the CIA against a base allegedly used by leftist Salvadoran guerrillas inside Nicaragua.

Just back from a trip to Central America, Reps. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., and Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., told a news conference Wednesday that a leader of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, known by its Spanish acronym FDN, complained to them that his group had been ordered by the CIA to claim responsibility for a raid against a Salvadoran guerrilla target inside Nicaragua, although the FDN had no prior knowledge of the attack.

Riots plague Dominicans

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Food-price rioting that killed 54 people has left the Dominican government with an obvious erosion of public support.

Increases in the prices of imported goods and food, in some cases by as much as 200 percent, set off the rioting April 23-25. This country of 5.6 million — about the size of Vermont and New Hampshire combined — shares the Caribbean island of Hispaniola with French-speaking Haiti.

President Salvador Jorge Blanco finds his government hampered by political opposition from the left, right and even his own party. He has repeatedly blamed the protests in this city of 1.7 million and in 14 other towns on his opponents, but other Dominicans said the anger was more than political.

"Women are the ones who started it," maintained Barbarin Mojica Soto, the secretary general of a 1,200-member dock workers union.

"They went crazy when they went to the store to shop Monday, April 23 morning, and found out how much prices had gone up," he said, adding that their outrage spread quickly.

Basic items like rolls had gone up from 5 to 10 cents, sugar from 26 to 31 cents a pound, and beans more than doubled to 65 cents a pound. The minimum wage is the equivalent of about $75 a month.

AP Laserphoto

NINE-ALARM FIRE - Flames engulf an eight-story building in downtown Philadelphia yesterday. The blaze spread to four other buildings and caused thousands to evacuate the area.

Nuclear plant releases gas

SAN ONOFRE, CALIF. (AP) — Radioactive gas escaped briefly from the San Onofre nuclear power plant, but the dose was far less potent than that of a chest X-ray, an administrator said.

An equipment failure allowed 107 curies of radioactive xenon gas to vent during a 22-minute period shortly after 1 a.m. Wednesday, said Harold Ray, plant manager for Southern California Edison at the seaside facility between Los Angeles and San Diego.

Ray said a person standing on the plant's boundary would have received a dose of .08 of a millirem of radiation. An average chest X-ray is about 10 millerems.

The malfunction was in a compressor which puts gas from the reactor's waste processing unit into storage tanks, said Edison spokesman David Barron.

Correction

CORRECTION: Due to a typographical error in yesterday's Collegian, SGA Budget Committee chair Joseph Sparks appeared to be "happy" about the senate decision. He had said he was "unhappy."

Clarification . . .

A quote by Interfraternity Council President Greg Andonian was taken out of context in a story in yesterday's Collegian. Andonian said yesterday he feels Greek activities are put on not only "to present the Greek area as being good," but "because we want to do them."

He also emphasized that "we support the University education 100 percent" and that all activities are "for the University because the University let us be on campus."

Today's Staff

Night Editor	David Summersby
Copy Editor	Jim Finkle
Layout Technician	Steve Anderson
Photo Technician	Katie Watters
Production Supervisor	Will Hopkins
Production	n Eisenberg, Joy McCarty, Witkiewicz, Ellen Nahigian Zigman, Jane Hirshberg, or Plunkett, Leslie King, us, Kim Foster, Jim Rice
	Michelle Phelan, Shell- Dode Levenson, I Mat Atkin: Ellen Waxman John

the Hungry U
55 University Drive, Amherst 549-5713
BE THERE!

FRIDAY HAPPY HOUR
2-6 pm

75¢ 1 LIQUOR BAR DRINKS
75¢ Lowenbrau (drafts)
50¢ Lite, Bud (drafts)

super special
SOMBREROS 75¢

This is the Year to Plan Your Career!
Limited number of graduate study awards.
Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

RT. 47 SUNDERLAND
You must be 18 to enter
Open 'til 2
665-4937
24 Hour Taped Message
The rusty nail Inn PROUDLY PRESENTS

Friday
MAX CREEK
Grateful Dead music
$4.00 cover

Saturday:
K.C.
formerly of the Sunshine Band
"Get down tonight"
"That's the way"
"Shake your bootie"
"Give it up"

COMING:
May 12th The Stompers
May 19th - NRBQ

Administrators defend Student Activities budget

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The director and business manager of the University of Massachusetts Student Activities Office (SAO) yesterday defended a $33,000 increase in their 1985 budget which has upset members of the Student Government Association.

SGA officers said the SAO budget is consuming money that could be used for funding student organizations, many of whose funding were cut by ten percent. The SAO budget is finalized by Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson, while all other Student Activities Trust Fund money is allocated by the Undergraduate Student Senate.

Leslie G. Bridges, business manager of SAO, defended the increased budget as a way of relieving pressure that has been put on SAO and the Student Activities Trust Fund.

"Everything and anything anyone has bought in the last six years has increased. And like everything else, employee benefits and the cost of living have increased." Bridges said employee salaries and insurance costs have increased by $27,900.

Bridges also said the Student Activities fee itself has also contributed to the increase. "The SATF (Student Activities Trust Fund) has been stable for six years, with each student paying $84 per year. For the things which the fund supports, this is not enough. With this six-year pressure of the fee not going up while everything else has, something has to give."

According to SGA Co-President Rick Patrick, one of the things which will "give" is student participation activities.

"Over the next few years, SAO's budget will continue to increase, and money for students won't be there," he said.

SGA Treasurer John Mooradian said earlier this week he is concerned with certain parts of the SAO budget, and the vacant $19,000 per year program director position. Mooradian said he would like to see students working in this position at a smaller salary in an attempt to pick up some money that could be used elsewhere.

"Our proposal to Madson was basically that (Student Activities Office Director) Randy (Donant) refrain from hiring this employee and hire a student for about $4000 per year, or two for $8000," he said.

"The students could then pick up some of the slack caused by the vacancy."

Donant disagrees. "I would like to believe students who are not trained to work in that capacity could do the job. Unfortunately I don't think they can, because this position, and the fact that we need someone who is experienced, is vital to the University."

Donant also defended a question concerning an increase in SAO's travel and auto expense. The $1000 increase would serve as money allowing Student Activities Office employees to travel to conferences to "exchange ideas on how other student activity groups are run," Donant said. Madson is still considering this particular increase, he said.

"I'm trying to hold the line on other budget cuts," Donant said. "Because SAO's budget, above many others, is heavily scrutinized, the pressure on this office is great."

Hatch ice cream meets success

By RALPH ROBERTS.
Collegian Staff

As a result of early success by the make-shift ice cream shop in the Hatch cafeteria at the University of Massachusetts, plans are underway to establish a permanent dwelling for selling hand-dip ice cream, according to Hatch Manager Larry Jeffers.

The shop, in its second week in existence, will remain in the same location for the remainder of the semester. But it must be moved before the beginning of the Fall semester. According to Environmental, Health and Safety regulations, the present location is too close to corridor lanes, and does not have a standard water supply.

If the shop was put in the right place and utilized to its fullest potential, it could create a yearly revenue in excess of $100,000, said Richard Ellis, Campus Center Food Services director at last night's Board of Governors Meeting (BOG).

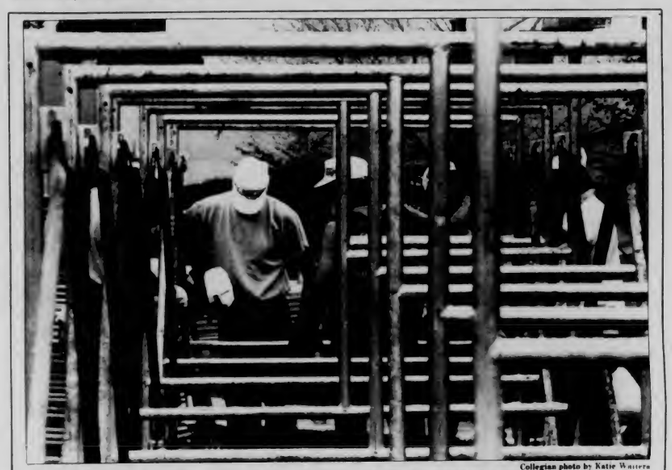
As of now, no places have been mentioned about where the shop might be placed, but Jeffers said that he would like to see it in a "high traffic area."

"Ice cream is frequently an impulse sale, so we must put it in an area where a lot of students see it. If we tuck it away in some corner, the shop could be a failure," Jeffers said.

In addition to selling all sorts of ice cream dishes at the new location, Jeffers said he'd like to see the place selling continental breakfast items in the morning for students on their way to classes.

He'd keep that very limited. Just coffee, donuts, and maybe some pastries for students on the run who don't want to wait in those breakfast lines in the morning," he said.

Jeffers also said that the ice cream shop project will be another concern over the Summer, and that he expects the new shop to be open about 16 hours a day in the Fall.



Also at the BOG meeting, recently appointed Beverage Manager, William Elmore, said he is already working on a few ideas to enhance the Blue Wall's image, such as bringing in "Blue Wall mug nights", getting rid of the plastic beer cups, and improving the atmosphere of the club.

BOG Treasurer Jerry Quill also questioned the potential of the Top of the Campus (TOC) Restaurant, and what could be done to create greater profits within the TOC.

"Although Mr. Ellis and his staff are making a valiant effort at generating profit in the TOC, the restaurant is still losing money.

"It may help if we opened it up to student groups to rent on the usually slow nights," Quill said.

Quill also said that it was important the board watch carefully over the restaurant because it could create substantial profits.

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

READY TO ROCK - Union Program Council members work on the stage for this Sunday's Spring Concert by the campus pond.

Researcher talks on health, age

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Health is the most important factor of old age identity, said Susan A. Eisenhandler yesterday in a lecture at the University of Massachusetts.

In a speech entitled "The Curious Case of Old Age and Identity," Eisenhandler discussed the results of her study on "ordinary elders" in a community. She took a stratified sample of aged people in a community and randomly interviewed 50 of its members who were over the age of 60.

In her survey, Eisenhandler asked four major questions from which she concluded, "most people did not define identity with old age."

"Most elders shrugged their shoulders, (and said) I don't know," in response to the question "What is it like to be old?" Chronologic age is not important to aged people, she said.

Eisenhandler said she received some "age resistance", when asking "Do you feel your age?" She also said that 5 people said their age was "wonderful." Most people felt they couldn't do as much and they couldn't do it as fast, she said.

Most people related health to the question, "Do you think of yourself as old?"

The loss of memory was discovered as an important factor of old age, she added.

"The elderly are adamant about turning in their (driver's) license, it shows a sense of independence. It (the driver's license) is a symbol of being a part of the larger world," she said.

Eisenhandler also mentioned few people participated in any Senior Center Activities.

Eisenhandler is an instructor and Ph.D candidate in the University of Massachusetts sociology department. She has presented several papers on various aspects of age and identity.

Collegian photo by Katie Waters

Susan Schechter, author of Women and Male Violence.

Author: Society perpetuates battering

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

In order to overcome wife battering and other forms of violence affecting 2 to four million women per year, there must be economic and cultural institutional changes in American society, according to a prominent leader of the Battered Women's Shelter Movement in the United States, who spoke last night at the University of Massachusetts.

Susan Schechter, author of women and Male Violence, discussed the rapid growth of battered women's shelters in the united States and the societal conditions which perpetuate and condone battering.

"Before the Battered Women's Sheleter Movement started in 1974, there were only a handful of religious shelters," Schechter said. "Now there are more than 500 shelters, hotlines, and counseling services."

She said historically, the Battered Women's Shelter Movement is the first movement to: "unequivocally reject the abuse of women" to say women deserve support, options and resources, and that the responsibility for violent behavior should be placed on the abuser, not the victim.

"Before the Women's Movement and the Battered Women's Shelter Movement, you would basically say that 'she' was the problem or that battering only happens in poor families, and that it happens infrequently."

"With the consciousness-raising sessions, we finally said 'she' is not the problem, the violence is the problem,and that's what we have to change," she said.

Schechter said institutions such as the legal system, the police and religion, give battered women a "very strong message."

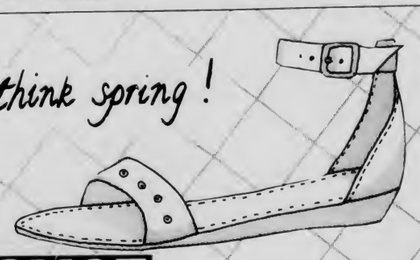
"When the police don't arrive, they're saying it's not important. The message is that it's not serious, it's not important,and that the woman should go back home and try harder," Schechter said.

She said many professionals in the medical field who deal with battered women deny the seriousness of the problem, and in one in four cases that can be labeled abusive, the woman is given tranquilizers.

"The women come in beaten, the doctors medicalize the problem and say there is something wrong with her and give her tranquilizers, which is the last thing in the world you need when you are being beaten up," she said.

Spring Clothing
Skirts • Blouses • Shawls
India Print T-Shirts
Many styles of Chinese Shoes
EARRINGS - EARCUFFS
The MERCANTILE
Open Daily 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Amherst Carriage Shops
18 Center St., Northampton

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
CONCERT WEEKEND SPECIAL
Bud 12 oz. suitcase..... Special Price
Busch 12 oz. suitcase..... $9.95 case + dep.
Old Milwaukee 12 oz suitcase..... $8.95 case + dep.
Becks light & dark..... $4.25 6 pack + dep.
O'Keefe Canadian..... $3.50 6 pack + dep.
Vodka or Gin 80°..... $4.99 Liter
Champagnes..... $2.99 + up 750 ml
Kegs and Beer Balls always in stock
All Beer and Wines Specials are COLD



Jonathan Reid
Entire stock of Botany 500 suits
20% OFF
famous maker Oxford button down cotton blend long sleeve and short sleeve dress shirts.
Reg to $21.50 NOW ONLY
Hampshire Mall, Hadley $11.99 to $14.99

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Friday and Saturday
King of Hearts 7:10
Harold and Maude 9:00
Sunday to Tuesday
One Show Only!
Deer Hunter 7:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

$99,300
IN CASH & PRIZES ON
LISTEN FOR DETAILS ON 99 THE 3 FM HOT SPOT

Outdoor Toys . . .
Kites • Puddle Jumpers
gliders • boomerangs
• space balls • whistle
balloons • whiffle balls
• foo bags • jump ropes
• kadima
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst ·
Open Daily 10-6,
Sunday 12-5

Soft Contact Lens Center
Extended wear soft lenses from $48. ea.
Daily wear Soft lenses from $25. ea.
Heat disinfecting units $12.95 reg. $30.
Check out these
Contact Lens Solution Prices
Opti-clean Reg 2.98 SALE 1.98
Sensitive Eyes System Reg 3.75 SALE 2.49
Adapettes Reg 1.00 SALE .50
Soft Contact Lens Deluxe Cases Reg. 3.75 SALE 1.98
Many more Solutions on Sale COME & SEE
B & L Sunglasses 20% off
Vuarnet Sunglasses 20% off with this ad
Amherst Optical Shoppe 195 N Pleasant St 256-6403
Amherst Optical Shoppe 170 University Dr. 253-5412
in the Amherst Med Ctr.

think spring!

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst
open Sunday

Southwest, Senate spar on elections

By LISA MARIE CANTWELL
Collegian Staff

The Southwest Area Government swore in its new co-presidents last night despite a motion passed by the Undergraduate Student Senate that invalidated the election results.

The Senate voted to invalidate the results of the elections after the hopeful presidential team of Sharon Jackson and Paula Williams said they were unfairly barred from the ballot.

But Joel Rabinowitz, Southwest Area Government elections coordinator and chair of the Undergraduate Student Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee, said he advised the area government to approve the election victory of co-presidents Bill Collins and Arthur Stevenson because the senate acted improperly.

"I looked up the by-laws and discovered the senate voted illegally," Rabinowitz said. "I tried to inform them of that, but I was not given a chance to speak," (at the meeting).

In support of Jackson/Williams, Cassandra Edward, a member of the Southwest Assembly, claimed she had been given permission from former Southwest Area Government President David McCarthy to have the deadline for nomination papers extended from Thursday at 7 p.m. to noon on Friday.

Rabinowitz said the Senate action was improper because the by-laws require that complaints regarding elections be taken to a committee under formal procedure rather than to the full senate.

"The voting times were adhered to and claims of violation are unfounded," Rabinowitz said.

"The SGA action was a reckless and half-witted powerplay," said Dave McCarthy.

The Southwest Assembly also passed a motion condemning "disrespectful and unlawful intrusion into the affairs of Southwest," McCarthy added.

Senate Speaker Chris Sullivan said the Senate will look into the matter further.

"There's a lot of confusion about what happened where the elections are concerned," Sullivan said.

He said he believed most senators felt the Jackson/Williams candidacy "did not get a fair chance."

Dr. Ruth: There's never too much sex

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

"I love to talk," the 53-year-old psycho-therapist says in a heavy German accent. Then she giggles. "Tee. Hee. Hee."

She is Dr. Ruth Westheimer - known as "Doctor Ruth" to her fans — the sex therapist of the radio world.

This Monday night Doctor Ruth will present "Sexually Speaking" at the University of Massachusetts Student Union Ballroom at 8 p.m.

And she will have plenty to giggle about. After hosting her own weekly radio talk show on New York radio station WNYN for more than three years, this month she will begin to broadcast nationally over the NBC radio network.

Last week the 4'7" Grandma Freud travelled to Las Vegas where she signed a contract that will bring her soothing voice all over the United States every Sunday night. She will also continue to appear regularly on The Tonight Show and Late Night With David Letterman.

Doctor Ruth is well known for her responses to explicit sexual questions and her open mind toward sex.

"If it's in good taste, then there can never be too much sex," she said in a Collegian telephone interview.

"Together with students, I will dispel some myths and misconceptions that we have about each other," she said of her presentation.

She will also show two short films, but would not reveal their titles. "It would take away from all the fun if I tell the titles."

The titles will appear at the end of the films, she said.

After her speech, Doctor Ruth will answer questions from the audience. Questions must be written on index cards that will be handed out and collected by ushers to insure anonymity, she said.

Tickets to the event which is being co-sponsored by the Governor's Program Council and the Distinguished Visitors Program (DVP) cost $2 for five-college students and $4 for the general public. DVP co-chair Mark Zuckerman said a few hundred tickets are still available at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall Box Office.

"We hope that some educational benefit will come out of (Doctor Ruth's) presentation," said Mark Zuckerman, co-chair of DVP. "But we aren't trying to educate students so much as to have a little fun."

Amherst budget set at $22 million

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

Town Meeting members overwhelmingly approved Amherst's $22 million budget for fiscal year 1985 Wednesday night.

Town meeting members voted to spend $4,718,194 for elementary schools. They unanimously voted to spend $3,427,603 for Amherst's share of the regional school budget. Amherst is a member of the Amherst-Pelham Regional School District.

Members also unanimously approved a $2.1 million expenditure for public safety that includes police, fire and medical services as well as inspection services budgets. According to a Finance Committee report, $32,500 was allocated for the Speed-Alcohol Enforcement Program (SAP).

The Public Works Department's $1.08 million budget was unanimously approved. The budget includes $22,500 for the creation of an assistant superintendent position.

The town's $1.8 million operating budget for general government was also unanimously approved. The budget includes funding for various town boards, buildings and salaries for town employees.

Finance Committee Chair Bryan Harvey said the effects of Proposition 2½ "have been fairly dramatic" but have not approached the "turmoil" of other towns in the state.

In other town departments, Town Meeting members approved a budget of $166,867 for environmental services, which includes areas such as tree care and pest control, the Conservation and Historical commissions and the Planning Department.

The human services budget was $526,386, which includes $350,575 for public health. A budget of $254,737 was passed for culture and recreation.

Town Meeting members approved a budget of $392,788 for library services, which includes $16,615 in state aid.

Town Meeting will continue 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Amherst-Pelham Regional Junior High School.

Police find fake bomb in Washington tower

By TOM MIDDLETON
and BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

Following an anonymous phone call at 11:15 p.m. Wednesday, University of Massachusetts police said they found a replica of a bomb on the 8th floor of Washington dormitory in Southwest.

The Amherst Fire Department, a UMass Environmental Health and Safety official and a State police bomb expert were called to the scene, police said.

UMass Director of Public Safety Gerald O'Neil said the device was "a couple of road flares tied together." Floors seven through nine of the building were evacuated police said.

"In the opinion of the people who responded, (the evacuation) was sufficient," director of Environmental Health and Safety Don Robinson said. The device was taken to the Massachusetts State Police laboratory in Boston, police said.

University police obtained a warrant yesterday for the arrest of two persons for assault and battery of a man with a beer keg Sunday night, police said. The keg was almost empty. The man was knocked unconscious in the assault that resulted after an argument, with the two assailants, police said.

A 31 year old South Hadley man was arraigned in Hampshire County District Court yesterday after he was arrested Wednesday on a warrant issued by South Hadley police, according to Amherst police.

Police said the man was apprehended on North Pleasant Street about 12:20 p.m. in connection with an alleged assault with a dangerous weapon in South Hadley early Wednesday. The man allegedly pulled a knife on someone in South Hadley.

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only C
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

WILD AMERICA IS OUR CAMPUS
Stimulating career-oriented BS, MS secondary and jr high school or summer expedition degree programs Newfoundland to California. Practical, cross-cultural 1 to 6 years small group camping. Field studies and encounters with close ecological problems, society and self. Financial aid and postgraduate grants available
NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY EXPEDITION INSTITUTE
Sharon CT 06069 (203)364-0522

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Friday Afternoon Readjustment Attitude Period
Chew and Screw
food served at 5:30 PM
all you can carry $1.00

LAND
Terrific Bargain
10 acres ONLY $8000
Northfield -
Only 25 mi. to Amherst.
For info and terms just call owner.
802-257-4347 Days
802-254-9369 Eves.

RADIAL TIRES
P155/80F (whitewall blk)
$32.00
includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobas Store
549-4704

THE MOST WIDELY KNOWN ALLIGATOR IN THE WORLD IS REALLY A CROCODILE.

Regularly $25.00 each
SELECTED COLORS NOW REDUCED
$20 EACH 2 FOR $35
IZOD LACOSTE
House of Walsh, Inc.
32 Main Street
Amherst, Massachusetts
Daily 9:00 to 5:30 253-3361

FOURSEASONS

Location: On Route 9 in Front of Mountain Farms Mall
Just a quick jaunt from free bus stop at Hampshire Mall

BUD.....suitcase cans.....$9.99
BUD.....export bottles.....$9.99
BUSCH.....suitcase cans.....$8.99
SCHAEFER .....export bottles..... ..$7.50
GENESSE BEER.....export bottles.....$6.95
LABATTS.....beer or ale.....$10.99

VODKA and GIN.....1.75 L.....$7.99
RUM.....1.75 L.....$9.99
GILBEY GIN.....1.75 L.....$12.69
MYERS DARK.....750 ml.....$7.99

RIUNITE WINES.....750.....2/$5.00
SEBASTIANI TABLE WINES.....1.5 L.....$3.99
ALMADEN TABLE WINES.....3 L.....$6.99
GALLO TABLE WINES.....1.5.....$3.99

And don't forget - your empties are welcome here.

KEGS ICE COOLERS MIXERS

People's market
"food for people not for profit"
Come and join us for Breakfast!!
We've fresh baked Muffins!
We're open M-F 9-5 behind Earthfoods

Five College Hillel Foundation presents:

ISRAEL 36
"ישראל"
INDEPENDENCE DAY
CELEBRATION
FEATURING

Sunday, May 6
Student Union Ballroom at Umass
3pm-Hamakor Israeli Folk Dance Troupe, preceded by a SHUK-music, slides, Israel information, food
beginning at 2pm
ADMISSION: $1.50 STUDENTS $2.50 OTHERS
We cordially invite everyone to join in the festivities with us!!!
Tickets available at Hillel
MADE POSSIBLE BY A GRANT FROM UMASS ARTS COUNCIL

Anno 1516
Steinhäuser Bier

Tastes like it never left Germany.

German beers are now gaining rapid ground in this country. Their segment in the import beer business is growing faster than any other segment in the import beer business. Steinhauser Bier is a German import with a unique difference — its authentic taste. Steinhauser is brewed and bottled in Germany according to the Purity Law of 1516 which allows only natural ingredients: barley malt, hops, yeast and pure water. Then Bitburg Brauerei, one of the largest breweries in Germany, ships it to the United States in refrigerated containers. This way, the beer gets here in the same perfect condition as it left the brewery. Steinhauser Bier. Tastes like it never left Germany.

Mother's Day
Buffet
at the Top of the Campus Restaurant
featuring
a festive buffet from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
on May 13th
$8.95 for Adults
$4.50 for Children
Mom will receive a free flower

Call now
for reservations
549-6000
ext 639

EDITORIAL/OPINION

In search of the truth

My knees trembled as I quickly made my way down the corridor and fearlessly entered that den of iniquity known as the Campus Center Store, home of the evil magazines.

My purpose was to purchase and peruse this month's issue of one of those magazines reputed to be the agents of so much harm. Two female friends had advised me to buy Playgirl, so that they could read it, but I decided instead on Playboy, the magazine that seems to have become the center of the controversy. Was the magazine really a dangerous and degrading periodical whose sole purpose was the subjugation of women? Or was it instead merely a classy men's monthly, filled with beautiful women and informative articles? These were the questions that I hoped to answer.

Moving onwards, I came to an article on sexual communication co-authored by a man and a woman. But of course it didn't tell me anything that I didn't already know. And then, at 3:58 p.m. on April 26, 1984, on page 111, I fell in love. Her name was Patty and she was 11 inches tall, sitting down. Now those of my more cynical readers will insist that I am confusing the emotions of love and lust. However, being the true romantic that I am, I firmly believe in love at first sight and this was surely the real thing, although she didn't know I was alive.

Still, recognizing the importance of my sacred mission, with a sigh I turned the page in search of the truth. I passed more pictorials, articles, and a cartoon showing the Lone Ranger being sued for "Palimony" by Tonto. I then decided to read an article from start to finish. This particular piece was about how to run a computer program. The first few lines were very interesting. I turned back to page 111. I continued to encounter more articles, advertisements, and non-degrading cartoons. On page 172 I learned how to watch a baseball pitcher throw the ball. I turned back to page 111. On the very last page I looked over next month's coming attractions, including an interview with Jesse Jackson. Jackson, if you remember, is the presidential candidate who has made social and economic equality for women and minorities the cornerstone of his campaign. I tore out page 111.

My conclusions were that the magazine is both boring and non-offensive to anyone who hasn't been talking to Jerry Falwell lately. Any previous issues that depicted cartoons making light of violence against women must surely have been isolated examples of poor taste, and not pervading trends. If the magazine has any redeeming quality it is the extreme physical beauty of the women (and some men) portrayed, a beauty shown complete, that is, without a stitch of clothing. Satisfied that I had achieved true understanding of the issue, I closed the magazine and my investigation.

Walter J. Branson is a Collegian columnist.

Walter J. Branson

As I presented my new acquisition to the saleswoman for payment, I wondered at the glance she seemed to shoot my way. Did she imagine that she saw a mad and twisted rapist standing before her? Unsure, I decided not to ask her out and strolled over to a nearby couch to begin my examination. On the cover I saw a muscle-bound hunk and a beautiful blonde in his arms. I opened to the first page. By the time I got to page 50 I had passed by the music and movies sections, letters to the editor, and numerous shapely females dressed in bikinis, but still no nudity. I knew it had to be in there somewhere. And yes, there it was on the very next page. I breathed a sigh of relief. I had not bought the wrong magazine. On page 85 I came across the first cartoon. Now it is the cartoons, of course, that have been accused of promoting violence against women. This particular item portrayed a Satyr of Greek Mythology telling his naked lover that the earth had moved because "we're on the San Andreas fault." I was not amused. I was not offended. I tore out the page to give to my Greek Religion professor.

Remembering the past

I was only six then, but remember it vividly. Strange, of all the memories of my childhood, this remains. I've never been able to understand why.

It was a wonderful day in May in Weymouth, Mass. Never mind that we were at war in some country that I couldn't spell. The weather was warm and the Bruins were on their way to their first Stanley Cup in 38 years. You have to understand the Weymouth of old, back then neighbors weren't strangers, they were family and the Bruins, well it might have been the baseball season, but anyone in or around Boston knew the Bruins were looked upon like Gods.

Rita Murphy

It was Monday, my mother sent me up to Delorey's to get some bread. Back then Delorey's was THE store. It was on the corner and everyone, I mean everyone, in Weymouth went there.

I remember hurrying to the store because I just had to get home in time to watch Bobby Orr, Phil Esposito, and my favorite, Ken Hodge play. It was a day before the game, but I was determined to get the best seat in the house.

"That picture will never leave the mind. There it was, a woman, blood, a body, an expression of a generation who couldn't understand why if thou shall not kill, thou was sent to another country to destroy."

I got in the chair at 5:30 p.m. just in time to catch Leave it to Beaver. Six o'clock rolled around and I turned on the news in the hope that Bruins would be interviewed.

I could never understand it, war. I never even tried. The war, people say today, was everywhere, and everyone was affected by it. But when you're six years old, there is no such thing as war. There is only the summer, the beach, and the Bruins.

Back then I didn't even know what college was. Amherst didn't even exist in my mind. I guess college, back then, was like the war, far away.

May 4, 1970 college and war came together. Blood, guns, signs, and 'who's really to blame' all clashed, all combined and out of it came a slap in the face to a child who only wanted to watch the St. Louis Blues demolished by the Boston Bruins. That picture will never leave the mind. There it was, a woman, blood, a body, an expression of a generation who couldn't understand why if thou shalt not kill, thou was sent to another country to destroy. The arms in the air, the pain on the face, the eyes of a child shutting.

"Where is Kent State mom, and why would soldiers fire on people who only meant to say 'no more killing, no more war.' "

What does a mother say when a six year old asks why? What does a president say when millions of people ask why? Following Kent State, Richard Nixon was asked to comment, he said "Violence invites tragedy."

Delorey's went out of business soon after. It's a deli now, I haven't been in it in years. My mother gets her bread from a supermarket in the city next to Weymouth. I don't get home much, but when I do and I walk the streets I hardly recognize the old town. There are no neighbors, just people in houses nearby. People curse the Bruins because they haven't won since Orr left. The past is hardly ever mentioned, you see Weymouth is one of those towns building for the future. New houses are everywhere.

They took away the woods next to my house, the swamp is gone, the childhood forts are now only memories. My elementary school is now a Karate school. My Junior High is all boarded up.

I smile when I see the kids playing in Great Esker Park, they are so innocent. They are too young to have any memories more than a week old. They probably have never heard of Kent State. They've probably never heard of Amherst either.

They play their games, they laugh, they shout, nothing disturbs, nothing worries them, not the past, not the future, they have only the present to think about.

Fourteen years later a woman sits in her room and remembers when the Bruins beat the Blues, when Bobby Orr flew through the air like an angel in flight, when a town went crazy because men on skates lifted a cup to the rafters and when there were "four dead in Ohio," and like the song wonders "how many more?"

Rita Murphy is a Collegian columnist.

The stench of a good time

I know the celebration of spring extends to ancient time, though I think the "celebration" I witnessed this weekend is unique to our generation and I find it sad. Spring was once a time to revere the wonder of nature, to till the soil and put constructive human energies to work. This past weekend I witnessed so much destruction and violation of nature it sheds light on who is to blame for what is going so wrong with the world and this country.

Brenda Bentley

Friday afternoon while lying in the sun I was treated to dialogue I thought only existed in low-budget teen-sex movies. That is when I could hear anything at all over the seven stereos blaring. And the scent of spring consisted of beer and cocoanut suntan oil.

I was awakened Saturday at 6:30 a.m. by five guys who obviously hadn't been to bed yet and wanted everyone in Southwest to know it. I put on my running shoes, walked down the stairs tippy-toeing through pools of vomit, out onto the pyramids and through the horseshoe area which had been miraculously turned into a dump overnight. I was sure the people at the block party the night before had so much fun they can't remember how much fun they had and that their bodies were thanking them right at that moment for celebrating the birth of spring.

Yet by noon the celebrators were at it again. An overweight girl and a teenage boy in black with a chain around his waist debated in the elevator whether to just get stoned and save the mushrooms for later, or to go all out and do both.

It's now 5:30 Sunday morning. I was awakened at 4:00 a.m. by one of those inspiring "tower wars" where males with loud voices shout obscenities at the top of their lungs for about 30 minutes. There are still screams and shouts that can be heard like sporadic bursts of gunfire in a seemingly deserted war zone. Is this some type of communication? What is it saying?

I keep reminding myself that I'm in a special environment; immaturity is expressing its newfound freedom and generational revolt. Somehow that isn't very consoling. This is a university where the intelligent and educated leaders of tomorrow are supposed to be found, and what's more, a university in the strongest, richest country in the world. Are we truly a culture of decadence and violence, out of touch with nature and ourselves? How especially bleak the future looks at this moment, despite the glow of sunrise.

Brenda Bentley is a UMass student.

Letters

Enjoy the days before summer

To the Editor,

The wind is still, the sun beats down, and our days are an hour longer. Time to take out those books. God, they still look brand new. Nine chapters to read, three papers to write, not to mention the party this Friday night. Remember way back on Jan. 30th — you were out by 9:00 sharp so you'd beat the rush. Hmm..., and only to find out you were 122 on the waiting list. You would be stuck with that 8:00 for the rest of the year. Well... a few more classes, maybe a final or two, but soon it will all be over. The bags will be packed, your notes thrown away, and the pictures torn off of the wall. The room will look bare and you will probably be able to hear your echo, once again. You'll lock the door, put the things in the car, and of course to your friends you will say, "GOODBYE." But, what if they're not there to get that last hug, to say, "see ya' in the fall," or, "it's really been great"? Why not take these last few weeks, send a smile or two, a message their way, just let them know that you care.

Sandra Shen
Southwest

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day before they take place except Monday which will carry Monday's and Tuesday's events. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

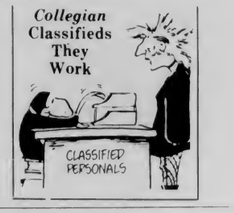
AFRICAN LIBERATION DAY — Panel discussion focusing on liberation movements and U.S. perceptions towards them. Includes South Africa and Namibia. 7:00 p.m. 2nd floor New Africa House.

AMHERST AREA NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH — All are welcome to join us for our weekly Sunday service of worship, praise and teaching from the Bible. May 6, 10:15 see C.C. schedule for room number.

SHABBAT SERVICES — 7 p.m. in the Dukes Room, Student Union.

CONCERT: UMASS BRASS CHOIR, WIND ENSEMBLE AND SYMPHONY BAND — Walter Chesnut and Malcolm W. Rowell, Jr. conduct a program which includes works by Dvorak, Elgar, Elliott, Hindemith, Tull and Tanner. Students and faculty will be featured as guest soloists and guest conductors. Free. 8:00 p.m. at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.

AMHERST CAMERA CLUB — College students may enter their colored two slides in competition in the following two categories: Nature— dominant yellow (the head of man not accepted), and Color— Winter scenes;— two slides. 7:30 p.m. at Herter Hall.



ISRAEL INDEPENDENCE DAY CELEBRATION — Sunday, May 6 · Concert with the Hamokor Israeli Folk Dance Troupe along with food, information on Israel, slides and more! Join us in celebration! Student Union Ballroom 3:00 p.m., May 6.

MICRO-CON — A one day science fiction event. Discussions, videos, costume party, refreshments. Members and interested persons welcome. Noon to midnight CC rooms 168, 170, 172 May 6.

2ND ANNUAL N.E. SAXOPHONE SYMPOSIUM — Symposium features recitals, clinics and demonstrations to saxophonists of all ages and abilities, with internationally-acclaimed guest artists. Registration fee required. Saturday, May 5, at the Dept. of Music and Dance, F.A.C..

FACULTY CONCERT: PIANIST NADINE SHANK — Free concert features music from the Romantic period, including the Tre Sonetti di Petrarca by Franz Liszt. Guest artist will be tenor Thomas Silverberg. Sunday May 6, 8:00 p.m. at Bezanson Recital Hall.

UNITY SHOW — All ages admitted to a dancin' good time to the Outpatients and the Circle appearing at the Pulaski Club, Easthampton. Wake-up a boring Sunday! 2:00 May 6, at the Pulaski Club, 79 Maple Street Easthampton.

Wednesday, May 16
4-7 PM
Southwest Playing Fields

Free bus service from Franklin and Worcester parking lots.

LIVE MUSIC

FUN!

In event of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s.

board members: bring i.d.

COUNTRY BAR-B-Q

Non-Board Members - $4.75 in advance. Tickets on sale now at Munchies, Snack Bars, Franklin Meal Ticket Office.

THE WOK
Rte. 9 Hadley, Ma.

Friday May 4th
The SIGHS

Saturday, May 5th
J.S. BAND
tribute to Michael Jackson

Fri & Sat Open till 2 a.m. 586-1202 proper attire required
available for private parties

Vision Showcase
Your locally owned Optical Shop

High-Fashion Nylor® Rimless Frames
- lightweight
- extremely strong and flexible
- World's most advanced rimless frames

LOGO PARIS FRAMES. SHEER ELEGANCE.

Ask for FREE Contact Lens Demonstration

$15.00 OFF a complete set of Eyeglasses or Contact Lenses or 40% OFF the second set of prescription eyeglasses or sunglasses when purchased with a complete set of eyeglasses at the regular price. Offers preclude previous discounts.(Discount applies to lesser priced pair.)

Vision Showcase

Hampshire Mall
(Across from KMART) 584-8324

BLUE WALL
18 + Welcome
A NEW SENSORY EXPERIENCE
Friday "1984"
DANCE!
SOUND!
LIGHTS!
NIGHTCLUBBING
Live D.J. from WMUA
MIX MASTER MIKE
Happy Hour Prices 91¢ Cover

Black Affairs

Professor remembers Cornell struggle

By DARLENE JACKSON
Collegian Staff

Photo by Brian Gonye

Homer L. Meade describes his participation in the take over of the student union building at Cornell University in 1969.

Professor Homer L. Meade of the Afro-American Studies Department at the University of Massachusetts could never understand why he was treated with negative reactions from people upon entering Cornell University as a freshman in 1965.

"My going to Cornell," Meade said, "created a problem, but the problem was not one of my making."

"It started to dawn on me that the reaction was a reaction to race. I was being victimized because of race and not because of anything substantial which I was in fact responsible for," Meade said.

The dense population of black students at Cornell University then began to ask for an Afro-American studies program in order to identify with themselves as well as to fill a void in their education said Meade. "The information we were asking is information that should be given to everyone."

The result of a few black students wanting a "special program" was met with antagonistic reactions from faculty and students, Meade said. "It was antagonistic to an extreme, such that the major question which is raised by the Cornell black student building occupation was not raised in the Newsweek article," Meade said of the April 23 issue of Newsweek, detailing the event.

In a special report, Newsweek stated that 100 armed black students took over Williard Straight Hall, Cornell University's student union, to protest racism.

"The question is, why did students who secured a building unarmed find themselves forced to arm themselves?" he asked.

After being attacked by fraternity men who gained entrance through a window which was supposedly guarded by police, it became necessary for them to seek protection, Meade said.

The ordeal which began at 5:30 on a Saturday morning ended triumphantly with the participants leaving the building a week later, at 2:30 on a Sunday afternoon.

Author discusses Jamaican film

By MARILYN G. BOU
Collegian Staff

Author of the novel The Harder They Come and professor of the Afro American Studies department at the University of Massachusetts, Michael Thelwell, spoke before a full house last night at Amherst College about the film of the same name.

"The film is reclaiming a body of art about ourselves," Thelwell said. Thelwell said there was never a comprehensive script for the film. "The film portrays thoroughly the Jamaican ghetto which has only come to be with our generation," he said.

There is only one professional Jamaican actor in the film with the rest of the cast being people who live in its day to day existence.

"The film portrays the erosion of human rights as a consequence of political and social injustice in Jamaica," Thelwell said.

The film was made in Jamaica in 1972. "It is not the first film made in Jamaica but it is the first film of Jamaica," he said.

Reggae music is an integral part of the film, Thelwell said, "The music in this film is an expression of resistance."

Amherst Flics presents:
Citizen Kane at 7:00 pm
Suspicion at 9:00 pm
$1.50
Fri. Sat. Sun. Amherst College, Merrill 1

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST
For students planning to take
English 112
(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984
THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)
MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)
No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument.

安城中國餐店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7835

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
TONIGHT 99.3 HOT SPOT !
99.3 THE HOT SPOT FM
ALL DRINKS 99¢ ALL DAY! ALL NIGHT!
Ask for your Free "HOT SHOT!"
SATURDAY 7:00 pm - 1:00 am
1st 100 Guests Receive 1st Drink FREE
Never a cover charge.
322 Rt. 9 Hadley
(across from Bread & Circus & Mt Farms Mall)

DELANO'S
presents
May Special
STEINHAUSER
Proper ID a Must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

SUNDAY BRUNCH AT THE PUB...
Better than Breakfast in Bed.
From Eggs Benedict to Crabmeat Frittato ... The best reason for getting out of bed is our terrific new Sunday Brunch ...
Four food-filled, fun-filled hours every Sunday, 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
Experience our new menu.
THE PUB
15 E. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST MA
413 549 1200

The best has a taste all its own.

A taste that's not easy to find. It's something you have to strive for. In everything you do. And when you've done it, when you've found the best in yourself, taste it in the beer you drink. Ask for Bud Light.

Bring out your best,™ Minutemen.

Arts

Trailers by Andy Gordon

About the creepiest kids you'll ever see in your life turn up in the new horror film Children of the Corn, which is playing, ironically, out at the dead mall. People keep asking me, "Does that movie suck or what?" Well yeah, it kind of does, but it's still a fun, really low budget flick. Based on a Stephen King short story from his book Night Shift, the picture takes place in a godforsaken town called Gatlin, where a child evangelist has organized all the kids into a violent sect. The film's opening is fantastic; a flashback to the children's first murder spree.

The flick at first works as powerful analogy for the wrongs of organized religion, but blows that in a ridiculously convoluted ending that doesn't work on any level. The poorly animated "special effects" don't help matters. What further bungles the movie is the excessive wordiness of the screenplay. The kids all look right for the parts, but lose all credibility during the lengthy monologues. Artistically, however, it's pouch. The murder scenes are tense and bloody, and the camerawork is inventive throughout. It's also got more subjective camera shots than any movie I've ever seen.

Our old buddy John Landis is back in the news again. A Municipal Court judge last week ruled that Landis and executive producer George Foley will have to stand trial for the accidental decapitation of actor Vic Morrow on the set of Twilight Zone: The Movie two years ago. Landis will be arraigned in Superior Court on Tuesday, at which time a trial date will be set. Being the crack investigative journalist that I am, I tried to get a quote from Landis. Couldn't. Foley? Nope. Anyone involved with the film? Out of the office. Anyone who's ever produced, worked on or seen a film. No answer. I did speak with Robbie Chambers, a junior mailroom assistant at Warner Brothers, who expressed only minimal concern about the outcome of the trial. So there you have it; the industry remains brave and courageous in the shadow of tragedy.

I was mellowing out in my apartment last night, consoling myself that even though graduation is only a hip and a holler away, there's no real rush to succeed. It will come in time, and I shouldn't get so anxious about it. Then my television started screaming at me. "At 19 they gave Johnny the street, tonight they're taking it back." Lights flashed and sirens wailed as a young man went running up a street waving a gun. "Vinnie Spano is Johnny. Coming soon in Alphabet City." Thanks, I needed that. I went to high school with the kid and his recent success is filling me with an ulcer-provoking jealousy. Next he moves on to Maria's Lovers, starring Nastassia Kinski. I'm busting my ass trying to pass food science and he's making out with Nastassia. Where is the justice?

Local Best Bets: Good flicks this weekend. The Amherst Cinema has a mandatory double feature. King of Hearts and Harold and Maude. The Mountain Farms 4 is today opening two soon to be forgotten non-classics. Hardbodies and the first of a slew of rap movies, Breakin. The Hampshire 4 is getting 16 Candles and a remake of Mutiny on the Bounty. On T.V., WLMC Springfield is pre-empting The 700 Club and will have Rendezvous with The Spider, which could be great.

TRAILERS Trivia: What do Melanie Griffith and Jennifer Jason Leigh have in common? The first correct answer will receive a pair of passes to the new Columbia Pictures moving picture Hardbodies, or a crumpled up sheet of blank scrap paper, whichever they prefer. Last week I asked who stole Manton's owl. The answer to that is still not known. Several weeks ago the student's prize stuffed owl was removed from his apartment. In its place was a ransom note, signed Scorpio (from the film Dirty Harry). As in that movie, Manton was run around campus with a paper bag with a five dollar bill in it. The owl has still not surfaced. What kind of cruel, sick mind is behind this has yet to be seen.

Rush: amazing grace

RUSH
Grace Under Pressure
(Mercury Records)

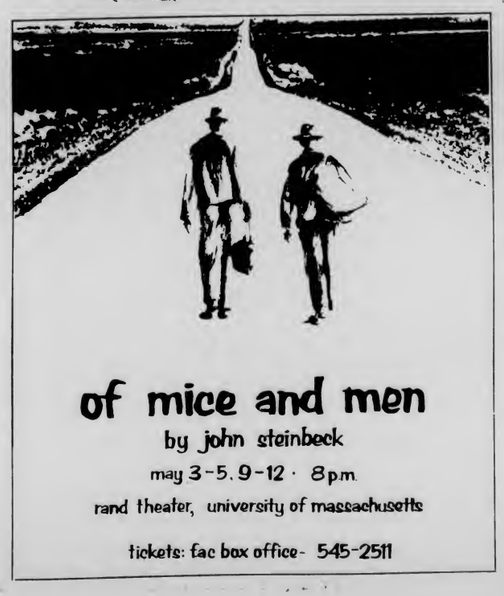
By ED BEEN
Collegian Staff

There is both good news and bad news about the new album from Canada's premier rock trio. The good news is that it is considerably more focused than last year's Signals. The bad news is that Rush's Grace Under Pressure lacks the strength, both lyrically and musically, of earlier efforts that shot the band to fame in the late 70's.

The main problem is the infusion of keyboards that began sneaking their way onto Moving Pictures and over-ran Signals. Many of the eight songs contained on Grace Under Pressure start off with great promise, but get bogged down in the heavily keyboard-laden middle sections.

The album contains numerous nuclear holocaustic overtones, and the color red (a clear reference to "the" bomb) is used in the lyrics, both in content and in the actual printing of the liner notes. "Said red red thinking about the overhead—the underfed/couldn't we talk about something else instead?" from "Red Lenses," is a good example of this.

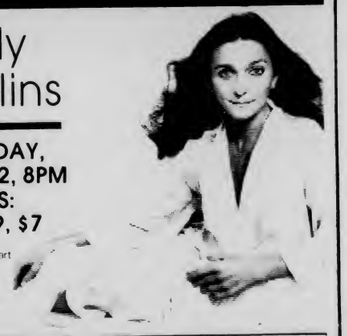
Drummer Neil Peart's lyrics have always been a bit spacey, but that has been their beauty, the constant question whether to take them seriously, or chalk them up to progressive rock philosphy. In "Early Distant Warning," we hear "The world weighs on my shoulder, but what am I to do?/You sometimes drive me crazy—but I worry about you." A multitude a bands could have come up with this verbal gem. True Rush fans have come to expect much better.



Add to this the fact that bassist Geddy Lee's voice (less screaming here, but one that still takes getting used to), is much better suited for the 2112 rock ideology, and the satisfaction decreases.

The best moments on Grace Under Pressure come when the band strips the instrumentation down to three pieces, and guitarist Alex Lifeson gets to break out from the restraints that seem to bind him for most of the album. On "The Body Electric" and "Between The Wheels", he is freed from the predominatly slick production, (the first non-Terry Brown produced Rush disc), and power chords his way through, recalling the energy of earlier Rush masterworks.

Rush appears to be going through a mid-life crisis of sorts. This is the band's 11th album, including two live efforts, and Lee was recently quoted as saying that the band is trying to break away from the concept album format, do less extended works and perform shorter more accessible material. If the band is in a transitional phase, one may wonder whether or not the final result will be a disappointment.



Canada's premier rock trio: breaking away from the concept album format.

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Judy Collins

SATURDAY, MAY 12, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7

Sponsored in part by a grant from Kollmorgen Corporation Electro-Optical Division

Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

First Week Poster Contest 1984

An open competition to design a poster for FIRST WEEK activities for Fall 1984

Please limit colors to 3
and keep original piece of art in proportion to the final printed size
(no larger than 17" by 22")
Deadline is May 11, 1984

Any questions should be directed to either Trey Williams at 545-2300 or speak with Delphine in Student Affairs Office at 545-3603.

Prizes will be awarded

Friday May 4th

Christie Brinkley

and

Chevy Chase

in

VACATION

time 5, 7, 9, 11

Mahar Auditorium

sponsored by the Central Area Council

STADIUM

LIQUORS

Budweiser export bottles.... $9.95 + 1.50
Budweiser Light export bottles
..... $9.95 + 1.50
Busch 12 oz. cans..... $9.50 + 1.20
Michelob 12 oz. cans..... $10.95 + 1.20
St. Pauli 12 oz. bttl..... $13.75 + 1.20
Molson 12 oz. bttl..... $12.95 + 1.20
Milwaukee Best 12 oz. cans
..... $7.00 + 1.20

Vodka 1.75 L..... $8.25
Gin 1.75 L..... $8.25
Ron Rico Rum 1.75 L..... $10.99

Almaden 4 L..... $6.99
Sebastiani 3 L..... $5.99
Gallo 3 L..... $5.99

not responsible for typographical errors

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

The UMass Zone Mark Rollins

The Strip Jim Walsh

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

Off Campus By Sullivan & Gilbert

D.C. Menu

Saturday, May 5

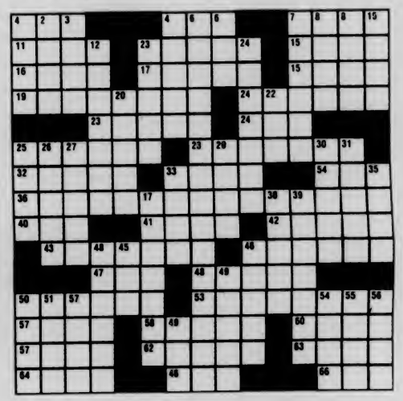
BRUNCH: 10:30-2:00
Scrambled Eggs
Breakfast Sausage
French Dip Sandwich
Jumbo Waffles/Syrup

DINNER: 4:00-7:00
Barbecued Chicken
Ratatouille
Baked Ham/Fruit Sauce

Sunday, May 6

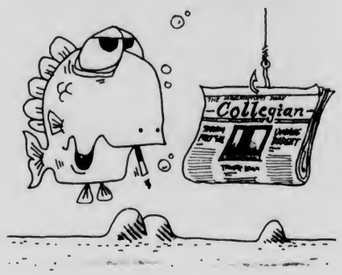
BRUNCH
Omelet
Boiled Eggs
Corned Beef Hash
Hot Pastrami
on Pumpernickle
Shrimp Pillow/Duc Sauce,
Soy Sauce, Fried Rice

DINNER
Meatballs/
Marinara Sauce
Roast Lamb/
Gravy, Mint Jelly
Egg and Cheddar
Florentine



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe



©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Madison Ave. output
4 Youth org.
7 Amulet of a type
11 Praise
13 Where the action is 15 Author of "Exodus"
16 Title in folk tales
17 Manual control
18 Church area
19 Pumice, for one
21 Floundered
23 Besmirch
24 Actress Lupino
25 White House name
28 Eats with relish
32 Hurriedly, old style
33 Recent, in geologic terms
34 Small island
36 Statutes in stone
40 —— Lanka
41 Heroic poems
42 Show biz org.
43 Tangle
46 Stairway parts
47 Mat win
48 "—— the cream in my coffee..."
50 Secretary of yore
53 Balance
57 Retainer of a kind
58 In —— of
60 Canadian tribesman
61 French cleric
62 Color qualities
63 Czechoslovakian stream
64 Fat
65 Concern of bookmen
66 Wood sorrel

DOWN
1 Goya's duchess
2 Charmer
3 Litigant
4 Short, in word combinations
5 Satan's wares
6 Suffix in chemistry
7 Alaskan capital
8 Asian boundary range
9 Jazz form
10 Exploited
12 Harsh
13 "—— should have a good memory"
14 Reached a point
20 Pool worker
22 Tokyo, once
25 Broadway winner
26 Earn —— pittance
27 Paid a short visit
29 Resort on Sicily
30 Founder of Trappist monks
31 Shankar's instrument
33 Naval off.
35 Recipe abbrs.
37 Adjective for Scrooge
38 Mayor, French style
39 Intrinsic property
44 Small piano
45 Pen point
46 Mystic characters
49 Novelist Joyce Carol
50 Fountains of youth?
51 Visayan island
52 Court garb
54 So
55 Pursue
56 Evening, on the Tevere
59 Small dog

READ THE Collegian!

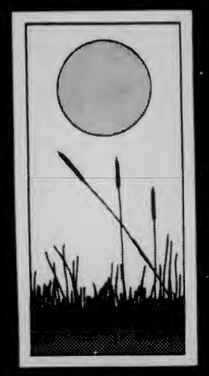
Weather

Rain, possibly heavy at times in the morning, becoming breezy with scattered showers and thunderstorms this afternoon, highs 55 to 65 west to east. Scattered showers tonight, lows in the 40s. Partly sunny and breezy Saturday, highs in the 60s.

"A box of rain will ease the pain and love will see you through..."

—Robert Hunter

CAR STEREOS • ALARMS
SUNROOFS
Sales and Installation
Call us BEFORE you buy.
SOUND in MOTION
THE CAR STEREO SPECIALISTS
321 Main St., Amherst 253-9341



Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Thornes Marketplace Old Main St Entrance Northampton Open daily 11 am to 9:30 584-8837
Herrell's ICE CREAM

4.75 To Start

Part-time positions available for dependable people to take physical retail inventories in Boston and nort areas. Nationwide service needs people over 18 with phone and transportation. No experience necessary, only good math skills.

Must have weekend availability. Daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule allows you to average at least 40 - 80 hours a month.

Paid training on our audit calculators $5.00 per hour in 30 days provided you complete our training requirements. Opportunity for advancement. For more information call Mr. Kreplick.
617-938-9119 or 692-3040
Summer employment. Full-time next January.
See Student Employment Office

SUMMER AT IONA

UNDERGRADUATE AND GRADUATE COURSES
COURSES IN ARTS, SCIENCE AND BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION INCLUDING:
COMPUTER SCIENCE • LABORATORY SCIENCE • HEALTH CARE ADMINISTRATION • CONSTRUCTION FACILITIES MANAGEMENT • GERONTOLOGY • FAMILY COUNSELING • SOCIAL SCIENCES • HUMANITIES • FOREIGN LANGUAGES • MANY OTHER DISCIPLINES

SPECIAL PROGRAMS
SUMMER MINI SESSION • SPECIAL INTEREST WORKSHOPS/SEMINARS • SPECIAL INSTITUTES • SUMMER THEATRE FESTIVAL • COMPUTER DAY CAMPS • INDEPENDENT STUDY OPTIONS • CONTINUING EDUCATION

DAY, EVENING AND WEEKEND CLASSES
8 EVENING SESSIONS • 3 DAY SESSIONS

WESTCHESTER AND ROCKLAND CAMPUSES
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CALL THE DIRECTOR OF SPECIAL SESSIONS AT (914) 636-2100 EXT. 592 OR RETURN THE COUPON BELOW.

MAIL-IN REGISTRATION NOW BEING ACCEPTED

Return to:
IONA COLLEGE

☐ 715 North Ave.
New Rochelle
New York 10801
(914) 636-2100 ext. 592

☐ One Dutch Hill Rd.
Orangeburg
New York 10962
(914) 359-2252

Yes, I would like further information on the following programs:

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

S-416

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

Furnished Puffton Apart rent cheap close to bus stop call 546-4966

Presidential room available inexpensive 546-4191 546-7189 close to campus call evenings

2 large bedrooms in clean So Amherst house on two bus lines quiet neighborhood reasonable 253-5196

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt fantastic location $125 call Carolyn 253-3630

Summer sublet Rolling Gren two bedroom furnished all util incl AC Rich 6-6389

One bedroom apt in Presidential summer sub/fall option 355/mo 549-8644

4 bdrm 2 bath ★14 Swiss Vlg, fall option $174 per bdrm per month, utilities included Leaving some furniture excellent cond. 256-0351/256-1014

Brandywine one bedroom apt summer with fall option pool 549-5825

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

$86 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

2 bedroom Townshouse Apt available June 1st - Sept 1st call 549-4585

2 bedroom townhouse in Sunderland to sublet with fall option availabia call 665-4813 or 665-8504

1 room available June - Aug 174 month call evenings 256-1021

1 bedroom apt Colonial Vill avail June 1 with fall option 256-1334 eves

Apartment with fall option $147.50 month Colonial Village Apartment near bus routes call Bill or Greg 256-0419 keep trying

Puffton summar sublet with fall option 1 bedrm in 2 bedrm apt mature, responsible, female 549-4869

Townehouse summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt call George or Joe 549-0902

June 1st - Aug 31 room in large apt near Amherst Center 185+ per month on bus route call eves Colette 253-9747

1 bedrm in sm coophouse summer w/fall option nonsmoking 140/mo + 253-5638

2 bedroom Crastview apartment across from Puffton rent negotiable 546-9100

Two large bedrooms in 4 bdrm house Good location on bus route possible fall option summer rent neg 256-1337

Sublet fall option 2 brm $330 per month Sunderland summer rent negotiable call between 9-11 am or other 665-4744

Two bedroom Brandywine apt cheap summer sublet call Susie 549-2719

Riverglade - 2 bedroom, pool, AC, 3-story, bus, summer - fall option 256-1393

1 bd room in Sunderland dishwasher/disposal 320 all utilities. Pool & tennis 665-8315

Wanted: First summer-session sublet. Near town-campus. Call 5-9 pm Sue S. 549-6040

One badroom in three bdrm apt. in house available end May - Sept 1 near town & campus (Amherst) rent nego 256-1421 ask for Laura

1 bdrm apt Crestview summer sublet w/fall option walking distance to UMass on bus route AC avail June 1 360/mo 549-7826

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term, please call the RIDE SERVICE 545-2145

WANTED TO RENT

2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village call Karen 549-4684

Wanted Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

I ned to rent a moped June-August. Amherst area. Licensed driver. Call kelley at 546-4207 after 7:00 PM

Room wanted in N Amherst apt preferably Puffton will take in June or Sept Carol 549-3720

2 or 3 bedroom apt in Puffton, Brandywine, Townehouse, or Colonial Village. Will take in summer or fall. 546-6808, 6810, 6813

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

A CHEAP TRICK

Anyone witnessing arrest of male during concert during Cheap Trick please call 546-3252 very important.

AUDIO

Alpine 7123 car stereo, AM/FM cassette with auto-eject, Dolby. $170 549-6499

Stereo Vector Research 45 watt receiver Technics turntable TDC4A speakers best offer 546-6456

AUTO FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

1974 Audi Fox automatic good condition new brakes, struts $800 firm 665-3509 after 6 PM

73 VW Superbeetle looks great, runs great Lt Blue $995. 549-4816

Auto for sale. Going back to Europe. Ford Galaxy 500, PS, PB, AC, excellent condition, $900 or BO 256-1016 10 pm +

1977 Toyota Corolla great condition new tires brakes high mileage call 256-0311

1971 LTD 2 dr AC, stereo, $1000 rec invt rns great must sell $495/BO 546-8917

BINK'S JUMP

Binkley's Jump
at the Campus Pond
Friday
Noon
Be There

CAPE COD

Seeking people w/housa or apt (preferably near Wellfleet) who have room for me this summer. Kim 253-9389

CONCORD

I need a room for the summer please call 665-2338 PM

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FEMALE ROOMMATE WANTED

To share room in Brandywina Apt for more info call Jodi 256-1235

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summr and fall semester '84 Amherst 256-1205

Take 1 of 3 rms available in 4 bdrm Amherst apt, summer/fall option, low negotiable rent, 253-2083

Live across from Emily Dickanson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

1 bedroom apt available June 1 with fall option $295 call 665-2338 PM

Two room apartment available immediately Amherst Center $250 + per mo perfect for one or two people call 253-3161

Summer sublet with fall option 2 bedroom Southwood apartment partially furnished, pool, tennis, laundry. $427/mo. incl. heat. Call evenings 253-5566

3 rooms available sublet with fall option Amherst Center 256-1060

X-lg bedroom in split leval apt rent negotiable quiet 665-2127

Puffton Village one bedroom available, need two people starting June 1 549-7686

Nonsmoking female for summer and fall Please call evening 253-7806

2 roommates Brandywine June, fall spring semester call Sean/Joe 546-9354

Summer Sublet fall option 2 bdrm apt $330/no neg Sunderland call 665-3959

FOR SALE

2 portable typewriters: Manual $15 Electric $25 545-0474 between 9-5

1977 Camero must sell $1900 549-0875

IBM Selectric III Typewriter almost new $850 firm call Craig 665-4315

Browning Compound Bow w/arrows and quiver. Call Duncan 253-9032

12 speed Fuji Royale, excellent cond. low mileage $300 or BO call Duncan 253-9032

One yaar old twin bed, table and 4 chairs best offer Wendy 584-2905

Seers apartment washer dryer excellent condition 250.00 call evenings 665-8116 negotiable

Japanese Go Set. Almost new $40. Rich 549-4786, 665-7034

FOUND

Faith L Busiek, your UMass ID is at the Information Desk in the Campus Center

3 keys on keychain that can be attached to belt. In Puffton Village on 4/28. Has one UMass key on it. Call Jeff 549-4071

Found: Jacket outside on the Metawampe Lawn by the Hatch - May 2, 1984. Call 549-6118 or 549-7789 after 5 Pm to identify

Purse found in Northeast eree on April 30 call 6-5817 to identify

HELP WANTED

Men's Canter now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Housekeapers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

Waitresses and General Laborers apply at the Rusty Nail 3 to 5 weekdays

Union Video is hiring a part-time summer mgr. July-August 15 hrs/wk 3.35 hr. video skills required an AA/EO employer apply 216 SUB by 5/9

International Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

Counter Help part time apply at Amherst Deli start immediately

Alaska Summer Jobs - Good money$$. Parks, Fisheries, Wilderness Resorts, Logging and much more. . .Summer Employment Guide. 1984 listings. $4.95 Northquest, 300 Union Ave, Bldg. 12 Campbell, CA 95008

Part time sales. Audio background or sales exper. necc. Also, p. time car stereo installer. Apply at The Sound Co. 201 N Pleasant

IDEAL LOCATION

Spacious 2 bedroom apt in Amherst Center short walk to campus. Summer only. Call anytime 253-3591

LOST

One pair Birkenstock type sandals by Campus Pond Saturday after NRBQ please call Alex at 6-9029 no questions

6 keys on green plastic keychain at Southwest concerts please call Chris 546-7503

Gold sorority pin shaped like a key, with engraved letters KKT. If found call Amy W. 545-0320

Emerald and Diamond Ring must find! Reward! Call Deirdre 549-1703

Gold watch near SBA on 5/2 @ 11:05 Reward! Call Lisa 545-0527

Large green duffle bag full of imp. personal items; wallet, books, etc. Please please call 665-3503

LUCIE B.

It's been the best year of my life. Love, Michael

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Kawaseki KZ550 was $1200 now $1000 great shape call 546-8965

KZ-440LTD 16K miles well cared for 6-speed trans 549-7719

PERSONALS

Attention all Greeks: Greekfest - Don't forget - May 2-8 fun and games parties

Great DEAL! Summer sublet - fall option 3 bedroom Swiss Village Apt furnished 253-3971

Dr. Ruth Westheimer
"Sexually Speaking"
You have seen Dr Ruth on the Tonight Show and Late Night with David Letterman and heard her on WYNY in NY come see her in person Mon. May 7 Student Union Ballroom 8 PM
Tickets now available $2. 5-College at Fine Arts Center $4. General Pub

GREASE - Solidlaterpattyl Black-eye? Only two more shows - better get it right this time

To the person with my leather jacket!! It's definitely worth the price! (gas key is irreplacable) Please call!! 256-0924

Larr Bear Happy Year Anniversary! Websters was good to us! Great memories! I love you forever! Pammy

Sue - You're a very special person and you're going to make a great sister! Get psyched for 3rd degree! Love, Maureen

- Moosh - 20? We gotta get you out of here caits. How's you tonight? From all the Luthers

Friday May 4 see
Christie Brinkley and Chevy Chase in
"VACATION"
Mahar Auditorium 5, 7, 9, 11
Sponsored by Central Area Council

Congretulations to the new sisters of Alpha Chi Omega. France, Cathy, Freddi, Kathy, Stephanie, Susan, and Debbie! Love, the old sisters of AXO

JT Happy 2 and 10 year anniversary! Thanks for everything. I love you IZ

Murph, Thanks for being a very special friend. Good luck with whatever lies ahead. Love always, Tomas

Think you're a victim of consumar rip-off? Call LSO 545-1995

Happy 1st yr Anniversary P.B. It's been one beautiful year - with many more to come. I'll love you forever. - Lar-Bear

UPC STAFF - Thanks for a wonderful year of fun and friendship. Do it up this weekend. XXXOO L.S.

Contact Lenses Replaced. Bausch Lomb $25. others available. Call with your prescription. Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8561

KAYVAN: To the dearest man I know, Happy Birthday. Love Linda (Bunny & Puppy too)

TO THE CAST OF GREASE: Thanks for making my last Guild show one that I'll look back on and smile. I love you all. Doug

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

To Celif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

RIDERS WANTED

Roundtrip to NYC for $18. on May 5 daytrip 256-6782

ROOM WANTED

Room wanted in W Yarmouth for summer call Brian 665-3225

Male seeks room (single or shared) in apt. anywhere! For next fall-spring Dave 546-7738

Do you need roommates? We're 2 females looking to share townhouse apt for fall-summer sublet possible please call Julie 6-8026 or Pam 6-8011

Room wanted for summer in Hyannis near Dunfeys call Michelle 545-0527

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Roommate for 2 badroom apt call after 6 pm ask for Karen 665-4896

Looking for 2 roommates for apt in Brandywine male or female 549-7797

2 people to share room in Puffton for fall 549-3720 549-7845

Roommate wanted for Brittany Manor to live with three engineers if interested call 6-9583 or 6-5388

Great place AC pool 125 mo female roommate wanted call 549-1602 begin June 1

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-6089 Kris 256-0556

Female roommate wanted to share summer cottage in Yarmouth 1050 by May 20 call ASAP Judy 1 617 648 0944

Responsible female wanted to share room in Puffton--Annie 6-8309, Chris 6-8313

Roommate wanted for Hadley apt summer ¼ mile from UMass $185/mo call Paul 549-1636 after 6:00

Female nonsmoker wanted for 84 Brittany call 546-8343 546-8275

$133/mth Southwood Apts, fall option female Stacy 256-0638

Roommate to share downtown Northampton apartment 200/mth inc heat 584-7608 Meg

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

SEXUALLY SPEAKING

Dr Ruth Westheimer
Monday May 7, 1984 SUB 8 PM
Tickets $2.5 college $4 general public
tix available at Fine Arts Center

SUMMER RENTALS

Centrally located on campus kitchen facilities cable TV furnished 250 single 150 double call Jim K 545-0047 or 545-2150

SUMMER SUBLET

1 bedroom available in Brandywine call 549-0116, 6-6943, 6-4239

Two bedroom Brandywine apt available for sumemr sublet. Rent negotiable call 549-6398

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

1 bedroom, furnished, Puffton for summer sublet 549-5153

Brandywine swimming pool, air cond with rent, call 546-4791, 549-1405

Crown Point furnished 2 bedrooms pool Route 9 bus route next to JR's Price Chopper 253-3782

Dirt cheap! 3 bedroom Southwood townhouse apartment call now 256-0660

Brandywine Apt for summer sublet furnished $95/month negotiable call 549-5955 or 549-6024 after 5

Two bedroom apt in Amharst Center cheap! call now 549-7605

Need a place for summer? Fully furnished Townehouse apt. available very reasonable call 549-5970

Beautiful Townehouse apartment to sublet with free beer call 546-9615 answering machine

Brandywine two bedroom fully furnished airconditioned pool 549-0124 anytime

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

Townhouse apartment for summer sublet. $125 per person three people call 546-5245

Summer sublet w/fall option spacious 4 bedroom and 2 bath on bus route rent negotiable call 256-8247

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

Fall option own bedroom Main St $115 included females only 253-5552

Cheap summer sublet Rolling Green 1 room of 2 253-5467 evenings

One bedroom in samicoop house in Amherst 150/month 253-3545

Summer sublet w/fall option -preferably two females, each get own room, located on Main Street. On bus route call Sue at 256-8304

1 large bedroom available in a house on Nutting Ave rent $120. 549-7619

Two bedroom Colonial Village partially furnished convenient! rent negotiable call 256-6608

Room - quiet house walking distance negotiable 6-8912

1 bedroom apt $250. available June 1 fall option 256-0868 PM

Fall option 1 bedroom Colonial Village 253-3363 250 includes hot water

Large room with private bath in Puffton Village. Ideal for couple. $210 per month phone 549-6999

Two bedroom apt in Presidential summer only, furnished please call 546-5558 or 546-5593

One room available Presidential Apts call evenings 549-5808

Fully furnished Brandywine Apt price very negotiable call anytime 549-0569

W/fall option 3 bedroom house on Main St. bus route and walking distance to town and campus sublet for summer and or fall option call 253-5893 after 6 pm. Asking 450 but willing to negotiate

Sports

Shooting for the upset

Gorillas head for Syracuse

"We're going to beat them. We're going to crush the Orangemen. We're looking for some juice for our Sunday breakfast-Orange Juice."
-Massachusetts goaltender Gerry Moreau

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

To question whether or not this is a big game is like questioning that Pope John Paul II is a reverent man. There is just no need.

The Carrier Dome, (imagine The Cage 16 times bigger), has been opened and the eleventh ranked, number one in New England, Gorillas take to the Dome turf tomorrow for a shot at something every team wants, to knock off the defending NCAA Champion, top ranked Syracuse Orangemen.

Only one team, Army, has beaten the Orangemen in the past two seasons. They are 10-0 in this campaign and again possess one of the deadliest offenses in the nation.

"They have what every coach in the country has to say is the most explosive offense," said UMass head coach Dick Garber before the Gorillas hit the field for a workout. "If they have a weakness, it's their close defense. They've given up a lot of goals like that. But they just outscore their opponents."

The Gorillas themselves are confident that, if they play their own game, they can beat Syracuse.

While none were quite as boisterous as "Mohammed" Moreau, the squad knows an upset is possible.

"We really have the talent," reflected midfielder Perry Seale. "All we have to do is have it running A-1 and we're going to beat them." Adds attackman Ken Freeman, he of the hat trick against Dartmouth, "We have to play real smart. They're a team that capitalizes on mistakes real well."

Says Seale, "I'm really looking forward to it. It's going to be a lot of fun."

Garber says Massachusetts will adjust some for the game and will try some different tactics.

"We tried some new things against Army and Dartmouth and they worked because the players believed they could do it," he says. "So we've got a few wrinkles for Syracuse."

That may indeed be the best way to pull off the shocker. To say that this Syracuse team is immensely talented is an understatement. They own the player named the Most Outstanding Player in the country last year, in mid-fielder Brad Kotz, as well as another considered just as good, attackman Tim Nelson. And that's just the beginning of the Syracuse well.

There are those though among the Gorillas that feel Syracuse is ready to be upset. One is co-captain Stu Orns, who says, "We can beat them. We're just the team to do it. They're primed."

Every giant must fall. There could be one loud crash Saturday.

Collegian photo by David P. Dreuber

MAKIN' HIS MOVE — University of Massachusetts junior midfielder Kenneth Freeman heads toward the goal against Army defenseman Mike Riccardi in last Saturday's UMass victory, 7-6. The Gorillas travel to Syracuse to take on the number one ranked Orangemen.

Softball in Tournament; face Rutgers this weekend

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J.--They are halfway to their goal of making the NCAA tournament. The University of Massachusetts has their only real shot at qualifying for the 16 team tournament by winning this weekend's Atlantic 10 tournament at Rutgers.

The winner of the Atlantic 10 gets an automatic bid into the tourney. Qualifying, winning the Atlantic 10 and making it to NCAA were all goals for the Minutewomen and now is the time to act upon them.

The chances are very slim of UMass getting a NCAA bid if they don't take the conference. UConn, which took two from UMass and Adelphi, 20-0 in the Northeast, look to beat out UMass if a bid is extended to the Northeast region.

UMass faces Rutgers at 4 p.m. this afternoon as they begin their quest in the double-elimination tournament. UMass, seeded first, comes to the Atlantic 10 riding a 28-10 record.

Penn State, the Western Division winner is 24-9, Temple is 23-9 and Rutgers is 18-11. UMass split with Rutgers and Temple.

"We are going to go (to Rutgers) and play our hearts out," head coach Elaine Sortino said. "May the best team win. We feel that we are the best team."

"We are going to seize every opportunity to go out and set the tone offensively, defensively and on the mound," she added.

"Nothing less than intelligent aggressiveness."

Lynn Stockley (14-7, 0.99) heads up the UMass staff with Cathy Reed, who has been pitching very strong lately at 14-3, 1.20.

Allyson Rioux (SS) leads the team with a .384 batting average, while Beth Talbott (C) is at .356. Sally Maher (1b) is the only other starter over .300 at .339.

"In all my years here," Rioux said, "this team is the most skilled team we ever had here. This is the deepest team we had here. Player for player, the talent is here."

Sortino said, "We've waited a long time for this. We have been playing since January under leaky roofs on wooden floors and in the cold."

"We're young, aggressive and ready."

Green to play pro hoop?

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Rumor has it that University of Massachusetts center Edwin Green could be playing some professional ball next season. Edwin is under consideration by the European League and on the American front the Knicks have expressed an interest in drafting the Minutemen's number two all-time scorer. I guess taking a language may help Edwin out after all.

Speaking of the Knicks they pretty much proved what happens when Bernard King fails to score 40 points in a playoff game, they lose and they lose big. The Celtics will take the series in five, maybe six. No Knick can match-up with Keven McHale and the New Yorkers' bench is weak at best. Ernie Grunfeld, Trent Tucker and the-one-and-only Eric Fernsten? Be serious. I will admit Darrell Walker can play.

Akeem Olajuwon proved you can't believe everything he says by going into the NBA draft, but Georgetown's Pat Ewing will not go out for one reason — Red Aurbach. In the final steal of his vaunted career Red will trade, say Carlos Clark and a slice of Boston Garden stale pizza to some team for their first round pick for 1985. If I was a general manager in the NBA I'd hang up if Red called.

UMass lax goalie Gerry Moreau played one hell of a game against the Army last Saturday. The fans at the hill who were sober enough to see saw Moreau make several key stops in the late going that preserved the biggest win of the year thus far. It's a shame they had to lose to Harvard or the Gorillas could be in the coveted (as in playoffs) number eight position nationally.

Lax mentor Dick Garber was named as the eighth best coach in Division I according to the Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association. That rating will be sure to go up after the Gorillas upset number one Syracuse on Saturday. The Orange are heading for a fall and no better than the Gorillas to trip them up. Remember where you heard it.

I have the fortune (or is it the misfortune?) to be going to see the Red Sox Saturday against Chicago. What can be said, their infield can't pick up a wet kleenex, Jim Rice isn't hitting, and the Captain's not around to cheer on. At least I know some Spanish and I can yell at Jackie Gutierrez and he'll understand me. Well, I could be like Cris Schuster and be a Cubs fan.

New UMass football coach Bob Stull seems like a good guy if first impressions mean much. He knows his offense and should open up the Minuteman attack considerably. But having to play Division I Ball State in the opener could be a disaster. Teams playing with a new system against a good team usually don't do well.

One final note, UMass 11, Syracuse 10 (OT).

Women's tennis places fifth

By STEPHANIE SCHMALL
Collegian Correspondent

It's been a wet season for the University of Massachusetts Women's Tennis Team but they have managed to squeeze in a few matches between raindrops.

The women brought their season recort to 4-5 after winning 2 of 3 Atlantic Ten Championship matches down in West Virginia last weekend. They had no problems beating Temple and URI but ran into some trouble with George Washington.

UMass was a little rusty having played no tennis for a week prior to facing George Washington. Despite good matches, Lil Sullivan (number 1 singles) and Chris Frazier (number 2) were defeated by scores of 6-1, 6-3 and 6-3, 6-2, respectively. Kathy Walton of GW swept both sets from third singles player Anne Tauger. The UMass doubles teams of Sullivan-Diana Biagioli, Trish Sullivan-Frazier, and Maureen Hanlon-Jillian Nesgos dropped to GW as well.

The team played much better against Temple, topping them by a score of 5 to 4. Split set situations sent both Lil Sullivan and Chris Frazier into extended matches but both fell to Temple in their third sets. However, all the other singles players won their matches with ease. Sullivan and Biagioli were the one doubles winners for UMass defeating their opponents by a score of 6-3, 6-2.

UMass came in fifth place in the tournament, repeating last year's performance. Penn State came in first while GW, W. Virginia, Rugers, Temple and URI captured the numbers 2, 3, 4, 6, and 7 positions, respectively.

Men's track prepping for Easterns

By M.E. MURRAY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's track team is preparing for this weekend's Easterns with high hopes of finishing among the top five. The Saturday meet will be hosted by Central Connecticut State College and held at the Municipal Track in New Britain, Ct.

UMass won this meet two years ago and last year finished third just behind top-school Southern Connecticut and runner-up Lowell. Those two schools could very well grab top honors again with UMass, Maine and New Hampshire not far behind.

"We anticipate a close finish," said UMass Coach Ken O'Brien. Lowell and Southern are very strong in the sprints and will score well. Our middle-distance runners and jumpers will score for us and should keep us close."

The Minutemen will send at least twenty-seven tracksters to the event including the two mile relay team which finished third at last week's Penn Relays. Ted White, Mark Themea, Tom Carleo and John Keelan combined for the bronze with a quick 7:36.1.

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 66 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Monday, May 7, 1984

Thousands bask in the sunshine and enjoy the jazzy sounds of Spiro Gyra Sunday. Collegian photo by Mitch Dranitch

UPC Spring Concert is orderly, fun party

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

"What's this for?" asked the cashier after he rung up the order that totalled $431.87.

The Union Program Council (UPC) Hospitality Committee spent that money for food to nourish the bands, crews and volunteers who made this year's University of Massachusetts Spring Pond Series a "total success," said UPC Production Manager Andy Porter.

Porter estimated that 8,000 to 10,000 people turned out for UPC's biggest event of the year that featured The Persuasions, Michael Gregory, Spiro Grya and Utopia.

Porter and other student government leaders said they were pleased the event went off smoothly after last week's Southwest Concert was plagued by arrests and complaints of drinking, littering and rowdiness.

"We had something to prove," Porter said. "We put a lot of faith in the students and it paid off."

"We have shown that students can put on a good concert," said former Student Government Association Treasurer and future UPC Business Manager Eric Nitzsche. "We were well behaved and everybody had a good time."

"I'm peaking right now," Porter said during the closing moments of the concert. Porter and his crew spent three days "in the dark and rain" erecting an 88-foot stage to accomodate the bands.

During the opening measures of Spiro Gyra's performance, the crowd watched the relese of more than 500 mulitcolored helium balloons. "Everybody was completely psyched," said Ann Paglee, UPC advertising manager.

"We did something quite unusual," UPC Talent Coordinator Lance Foley said of Utopia's performance. "We got our headliner group on early by more than [illegible] the concert started 15 minutes late."

According to Current Business Manager, John Peterson, the event cost "a little over $40,000 to put on."

While the greatest expense goes toward talent, UPC also pays for police security, food, stage and equipment rental, T-shirts and costs that may be unanticipated, Peterson said.

Undergraduate student Senate Speaker Chris Sullivan said the concert's success supports the Student Government Association's case for student empowerment.

"This is an example of students running something from start to finish," Sullivan said. "They are making the entire University community proud of what they have done."

Student Government Association Treasurer John Mooradian said an afternoon by the Campus Pond and playing Frisbee watching the concert in the 76-degree sun was a nice change of pace from his duties in the Senate.

"By its political nature, the senate is necessarily a conflict situation," Mooradian said. "But today there is peaceful cooperation and harmony with nature."

Hampshire readjusts for older students

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

In response to declining first-year enrollment and special needs of older students, Hampshire College is developing plans to renovate dormitories and make better use of extra space on campus.

The private college in South Amherst is planning more that $40,000 worth of renovations to turn extra student rooms and other vacant space into faculty offices, a conference center, and an expanded day care for children of students and college staff, said public information coordinator Russell Powell.

Powell said Hampshire College is experiencing a "trend facing colleges everywhere of the declining enrollment of 18-year-olds." He also said enrollment has declined because of a decision made in January to raise academic standards "to become more selective in admissions."

The school's enrollment is under 1,000 now, and is expected to drop to 1,000 next year, Powell said. In the past, enrollment has fluctuated between 1,150 and 1,250 students, he said.

The renovations are a response to "needs that have existed for a long time," Powell said. Those needs were outlined in the college's 10-Year Report and the Long Range Planning Committee's recommendation in 1982 to "strengthen the first-year experience for students," he said.

"The changes are intended to help students adjust both socially and academically," Powell said.

The day care center, which serves the Hampshire faculty and staff, and is "hampered by inadequate space," will be expanded into Dakin House where a student craft center currently exists. The craft center will be moved to Prescott House.

Powell said a group of older students, who recently asked to live apart from the general student population, will be assigned space in Greenwich House. A conference center willalso be located in Greenwich House, which will host faculty-sponsored programs and seminars. The center will also be used by outside organizations, Powell said.

Awareness days to educate public on disabled

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

The Handicapped Student Collective at the University of Massachusetts will celebrate its 10th anniversary today and tomorrow with Handicapped Awareness Days targeted at the University community and disabled students.

"It isn't the architectural barriers that are most difficult to overcome. It is the attitude barriers."
— Laura Rauscher, of the Handicapped Student Affairs Office.

"People are aware that disabled people exist but they are not aware of what their lives are about," Laura Rauscher, assistant director of Handicapped Student Affairs said.

The Handicapped Student Affairs office in the Whitmore Administration Building offers transportation, counseling, and interpreting services, among many other programs, to disabled students and faculty.

Workshops for the disabled community, the general population, and for faculty will take place on the Handicapped Awareness Days in the Campus Center.

Rauscher said one event will be a long and short route obstacle course around the Campus Center.

She said this event is not to "rub anyone's nose" in the difficulty of having to get around in a wheelchair, but to "acknowledge that there is some difficulty, but it can be solved by access."

The Awareness Days have a "two-fold purpose," creating awareness of the community, especially faculty, to disabled students, and helping "disabled students to learn to work together toward attacking problems on campus," Rauscher said.

"I think disabled people have the responsibility to speak up for their needs," she said.

Rauscher said being disabled is a form of oppression in our society that needs to be analyzed like racism and sexism.

"A lot of oppression comes from our values about health, beauty, and appearance," Rauscher said. "There is no such thing as normal and those kinds of values used to limit disabled people's potential.

"We have goals and projections we haven't begun to meet," Rauscher said.

For all disabled people, Rauscher said, the question is the same: access. This is defined differently by each group, she said.

But she said it is not important that all buildings on campus be accessible but all programs must be accessible.

"It isn't the architectural barriers that are most difficult to overcome. It is the attitude barriers," Rauscher said.

"Disabled people are alive and well and growing in numbers each year. As they grow, interests are varied. We want to participate in every aspect of the campus," she said.

The Handicapped Awareness Days "will give people the opportunity to meet each other and find out that people are just people. It is time to clear up some of the myths.

"We are not judging people for having ideas, but to the extent they are holding on to them," Rauscher said.

A schedule of the days' events, sponsored by the Handicapped Student Collective and the Commuter Area Government, can be obtained at the table on the Concourse.

Former fire suspect will file lawsuit

Two multimillion dollar lawsuits naming more than 20 defendants will be announced at a press conference scheduled for today by an attorney representing a University of Massachusetts student charged with setting a fire in Crampton dormitory last December.

Charles DiMare, a lawyer with the student Legal Services Office representing Yvette Henry, a former Crampton resident assistant and senior chemistry major from Philadelphia, said the suits will be filed in U.S. District Court in Springfield. They will name as defendants the University, including the UMass Police Department, the Dean of Students and the Office of Public Information, as well as the State Police and the FBI who were involved in the investigation of arson on campus last semester.

Henry was arrested in Dec. 2 in connection with one of 17 small paper fires discovered last semester in all-women's dormitory in the Southwest Residential Area. Charges against Henry were dropped because of lack of evidence.

Inside:
An analysis of tangled U.S.-Israeli ties p.5
Starters squash reserves in spring football opener p.12

"There isn't a lifestyle left that does not bring with it the baggage of some damned obligation, or painful forfeiture of freedom."
—Columnist Diane Lane, p. 5

Pleasant Street Theater/
Amherst Cinema
Film Nights
"EL NORTE"
Pleasant Street Theater, Northampton
Tuesday, May 8, 10 pm show ONLY
"THE BIG STORE",
"NIGHT AT THE OPERA"
& "DAY AT THE RACES"
Amherst Cinema
Wednesday May 9, 7:00 pm
These films are free
and open to UMass students with a valid UMass I.D.
Sponsored by the Commuter Area Government

Today's Staff

Night Editor	John O'Connell
Copy Editor	Mary-Sheila Loughlin
Layout Technician	Ellen Waxman
Photo Technician	Mitch Drantch
Production Supervisor	Pete Soderberg
Production	Laura Zigman, John Wielgus, Suzanne Lewis, Judy Hayden, Mat Atkins, Ann Hacker, Beth Anne Moskov

Subscription Rates

The MUTol Mfcrj DTdu Cgwlxdp (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the C assachusetts Aaily 3olVs legian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

BODY SHOP
SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00
X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18
Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F 7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm
Summer workouts start June 4
LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL

Feel Great!!
Look Terrific!!
Expensive in every way, except PRICE!!

Hair styling for today's men & women at reasonable price;
$7.50 for a style
Marjon Hair Design
Rt. 9
Mountain Farms Mall
Hadley, MA 586-4551
Marjon Hair Design Inc
Hours: Sat 10-4
Tues thru Fri 10-6

Sale!
People's market
"good for people not for profit"
We're having a Sale on Bulk items:
Grains, Beans, pasta & tomato paste
Starts Monday May 7, 1984.
We're Open M-F 9-5. located behind Earthfoods

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF

Firestarter Stephen King
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Handicapped Awareness Days
Handicapped Awareness Days are happening today and tomorrow on the Campus Center Concourse. Workshops, films, speakers and special events. Look for our table on the Concourse.
sponsored by the Handicapped Students Collective, the Commuter Area Government, and the Student Activities Offices.

Employees at nursing home picket management

By ANN HARRISON
Collegian Correspondent

In an effort to draw attention to what they consider unfair management policies, union employees of the Amherst Nursing Home held a four hour informational picket Friday.

The picket was staged in front of the 81-resident facility at 150 University Drive, by members of the New England Health Care Employees Union District 1199 who have been attempting to renegotiate their contract with the nursing home management since late March.

Four negotiating sessions have thus far failed to address employee concerns in the areas of patient and worker safety, training procedures, union security and wages, according to Union members, who claim that management negotiators are stalling on an agreement.

"They are trying to keep the union as weak as they possibly can," said union negotiator Katy Noonan.

According to union organizers, the key outstanding issues include a negotiated wage increase and improved training procedures for nurses aides. The 60 union employees at the home, who include housekeepers, nurses aids, maintenance, laundry and dietary workers, earn $4 to $5 an hour.

"That type of wage does not recognize the skills of these people," Noonan said. "It does not allow them a decent standard of living."

Nurses aide training was also described by union workers as being far from adequate. Since nurses aides are not certified by the state, it is the responsibility of each institution to provide appropriate instruction, which the Amherst home does not do, according to union representatives.

The Amherst Nursing Home Administration says that progress has been made at the bargaining table, with agreements reached on some regular and vacation policies, as well as establishing a safety committee, pregnancy-leave policies, a union bulletin board, and religious holiday substitution.

Betty Kravetz, owner of the Amherst Nursing Home maintains that the picketing was mainly over the refusal of the nursing home to require every employee to join the union.

Tomorrow the union contract is set to expire, and talks between union and management are scheduled to resume. Union representative Carl Meyer has suggested that employees continue to work beyond the contract expiration date.

"If negotiations begin to pick up," he said, "no action like a work stoppage is anticipated."

Collegian photo by Andy Heller
Union employees picket outside Amherst Nursing Home Friday.

Judicial seminar addresses harrassment

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

At a judicial training seminar Saturday, University administrators and staff told student justices and advocates that instances of harassment are often settled through informal channels, but that harassment is still a serious problem on campus.

A University of Massachusetts Legal Services Office attorney also warned justices that they run the risk of incurring lawsuits when handing down punishments under the University's harassment policy.

Student advocates, who defend and prosecute students in University disciplinary cases, and justices, who hear the cases and recommend punitive action to the administration, were required to attend the seminar organized by student Attorney General Susan Gladwin.

UMass Ombudsman Albert Gadlin said that in sexual harassment grievances brought by students against faculty or adminstrators, informal settlements have usually been reached through his office.

Gadlin said that since the current harassment policy was instituted in November 1982, "we haven't had to have a formal hearing yet on this kind of grievance."

But he acknowledged that the University has not had similar success in identifying and dealing with harassment of students by their peers.

Linda Sckalor, a counselor at the Everywoman's Center, said, "there's no great support system in the dorms to ease the pressure on someone who's being harassed."

Other speakers said the problem is not lack of a support network, but the fact that harassment is often subtle and includes "socially accepted" behavior, which discourages victims from bringing forth grievances.

Student Justice Eider agreed. "Imposing sanctions is not the solution," he said. "People should be made more aware of what they've done."

Sckalor, who has been organizing workshops on sexual harassment in residence halls since last November, said, "it's going to take a long time to educate people, to (get them to) admit that harassment is as issue."

Legal Services attorney Charles DiMare told student justices, "be careful in (punishing) students for harassment. You may be liable even though you're just making a recommendation."

Jobs, pay increase for some majors

By TIM RYAN
Collegian Correspondent

Along with the large amount of job recruiting on campus this semester, graduating students can also look forward to an increase of 3 to 6 percent in starting salaries this year.

According to Clarkson Edwards, associate director of the University Placement Service, "this semester has brought many job recruiters who are looking for new graduates because the recent economy brings more job opportunities.

And also the salary increases are because companies are just recovering from the recent inflationary period and the hiring of new graduates than that of more experienced personnel."

Recent statistics from the March issue of Salary Survey, a publication of the College Placement Council, show that salary increases in careers in business, engineering, sciences, and humanities and social sciences are all up. The three categories of biological sciences, economics and social sciences are down a small percentage, reports show.

Also included in the Salary Survey are the average monthly salaries in each of the major divisions. They begin with humanities and social sciences at $1,100 to $1,500 ($13,000 to $17,000 a year); sciences at $1,200 to $2,000 ($15,000 to $24,000 a year); business at $1,500 to $1,800 ($17,000 to $20,000 a year); and engineering at $2,000 to $2,400 ($24,000 to $29,000 a year).

All the statistics from the Salary Survey are based on offers made to college graduates from 162 participating colleges and universities.

The University of Massachusetts participated in the national survey. The University Placement Services Office correlated the offers seniors reported and then sent them into the College Placement Council.

"We would like to know all the offers that students receive, so that it can be used for surveys and future class studies," Edwards said.

New social sciences dean sought

The search for a social sciences new dean at the University of Massachusetts is scheduled to conclude by mid-June, the search committee chair said last week.

Melinda Novak, chairwoman of the search committee, said candidates and applicants are now being reviewed to fill the position of Dean of the Faculty of Social and Behavioral Sciences in the College of Arts and Sciences. The position will be vacated in August when Dean T.O. Wilkinson steps down after eight years.

Applications and nominations were accepted from April 5 to April 27. The search is restricted to current employees of the University's Amherst campus.

Novak said the committee is looking for someone who can "effectively interact with the higher administration and act as an effective spokesperson for the department."

Novak added the chosen candidate must also have a doctorate in social science, an established record of scholarship and a sound administrative background. Names of candidates and members of the search committee were not available due to affirmative action guidelines set for the committee, which is expected to reach a decision from early to mid-June.

— CARL DEMROW

Collegian photo by Mitch Drantch
PUMPING IRON — Steve Ferris and Mike Raab work out in Boyden on Friday.

Women's Forum

The Everywoman's Center at UMass is looking for volunteers and interns to staff the resource room at EWC for the summer. Credit is available for most undergraduates and college work study may be available for the summer. Applications must be received by May 24. For more information call 545-0883.

The Everywoman's Center is looking for volunteers to become Counselor Advocates four times a week. Credit may be available. For more information call 545-0883.

Womanshelter Companeras in Holyoke and Necessities in Northampton, two battered women's shelters, are looking for caring and comitted volunteers to become trained hotline staffers, provide information and referral, and crisis intervention and advocacy services. Bilingual and bicultural volunteers are especially needed. For information concerning Necessities call 536-1629.

Monday — The Women's Issues team will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 804.

Laura Lewin, ex-stripper and author of "Naked is the Best Disguise: My Life as a Stripper," will talk about the distinction between pornography and erotica at 7:30 p.m. in the Bangs Community Center in Amherst.

Tuesday — Life Options: Family and Work, sponsored by the Everywoman's Center will be held from 7-9 p.m. in the gallery of the Jones Library. For more information call 545-0883.

Think you're pregnant?

Use Predictor In-Home Pregnancy Test. It's the same as a hospital test.

You're on your own for the first time and life is a lot different now. If you think you might be pregnant, you want to know for sure. This is the time to use Predictor In-Home Pregnancy Test. It's the exact same test method used in over 2,000 hospitals and 13 million laboratory tests nationwide. So you know Predictor is accurate.

Predictor can be used as soon as nine days after you miss your period. It's convenient and gives you results in just one hour. Think you're pregnant? Remember, you can use Predictor with confidence, it's the test method used in over 2,000 American hospitals.

Nothing Predicts Pregnancy more accurately.

Nike® Meets The Challenge

NIKE CHALLENGE COURT
Men's sizes
Reg. $39.99
$30.

Sale ends 5/13

NIKE DIABLO
Women's sizes
Reg. $22.99
$18.
Similar style for men Nike Oceania Reg. $26.99 Now $21.

NIKE COMMUTER
Men's sizes
Reg. $29.99
$23.
Similar style for women Nike Bine Reg. $29.99 Now $23.

When you're at the top the competition is constantly demanding proof of your superiority. The Nike sale at Olympian is one more way we meet the competition, and help you meet the challenge.

OLYMPIAN
We thrive on competition.
Hampshire Mall, Rte. 9, Hadley.

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST

For students planning to take

English 112

(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984

THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)

MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)

No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument.

"My body is expecting."

An unwanted pregnancy can make you feel that you have no say over what your body is doing. But you do have a say. And a Preterm counselor will help you figure out what you want to do about it. Call today. Because some things are too important to be left to your body.
Preterm. 738-6210.

preterm
The most experienced reproductive health care center in the Northeast.
1942 Beacon Street
Brookline, MA 02146
A keyboard non-profit health care facility.
Teen Counseling Se Habla Espanol

4.75 To Start

Part-time positions available for dependable people to take physical retail inventories in Boston and nort. areas. Nationwide service needs people over 18 with phc. e and transportation. No experience necessary, only good math skills.

Must have weekend availability. Daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule allows you to average at least 40 - 80 hours a month.

Paid training on our audit calculators $5.00 per hour in 30 days provided you complete our training requirements. Opportunity for advancement. For more information call Mr. Kreplick.
617-938-9119 or 692-3040
Summer employment. Full-time next January.
See Student Employment Office

LEARN TO FLY

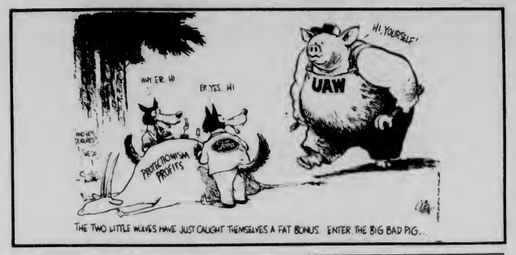
inexpensively earn your pilots license University Club open to five colleges. Cessna based in Northampton

Introductory Rides
546-4827 665-2577

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50

Monday and Tuesday
One Show Only!
Deer Hunter 7:00

DOWNTOWN AMHERST



$ Take an active role in all political and administrative proceedings in the CC/SU complex. Gain valuable experience as a Board of Governors employee. Pick up your application today, return it by Friday, May 11th 1984. We are an AA/EE employer. $

FREE!!!
FREE HEALTH COVERAGE FOR UMASS EMPLOYEES!

Valley Health Plan costs eligible employees nothing--and it covers more! Isn't it time you tried Valley Health?

Sign up at Personnel Office by June 6 or call a VHP rep for information - 256-0151

EDITORIAL/OPINION

THE TWO LITTLE WOLVES HAVE JUST CAUGHT THEMSELVES A FAT BONUS. ENTER THE BIG BAD PIG.

Running on empty and not sure why

— Were you at Justin Ryan's last night?
— Yeah, I have a wicked hangover...
— Did you see Bob? He was with Joan M. and...

It is with a certain amount of resentment that I overhear this coversation, having just come down from a two and a half week studying binge, and I eyed the two women with suspicion. I am sitting in the Hatch, staring sightlessly into a cup of water. I just finished two exams, and am reliving the hapless moment when I chose granite, gabbro, tillite and basalt as a set of igneous rocks, instead of basalt, andesite, rhyolite and felsite. My temper is short and my nerves raw.

Diane Lane

There is an obscure masochistic pleasure in test-taking; in feeling for "the outer edge of the envelope" as Tom Wolfe wrote in The Right Stuff. Why this should be so escapes me at the moment. The shy buds which are beginning to appear on trees bring with them flowers, and spring and finals. Everywhere I look, I see glazed eyes, ringed with lack of sleep. Bodies are tense, muscles slack with nervousness and nausea. It is the last lap, the home stretch, do-or-die.

For the moment though, I am free, and try honestly to shake off the ill feeling that lingers in my mind. The tests are done; I keep telling myself. Yet I cannot shake it; I am off into tomorrow and tomorrow and next week, and I am exhausted and what in heaven's name does Professor X really want in the term paper? I can't sleep at night, but am overcome by weariness in the library with only a lumpy bookbag and a windbreaker for comfort. It is an epidemic unique to universities, this voluntary narcolepsy. People are nodding, napping, sleeping and dozing. They are doing it in the reading room, in libraries, on littered couches in the campus center. One day I almost tripped over a man who lay on the tile floor of Goodell. In one hand he grasped the iron railing, and in the other a copy of "Symbolism in 19th Century Literature." After checking for signs of breathing, I nodded in sympathy and went on my way.

I have been considerably out of the mainstream lately, a condition which, as an incurably nosy person, is almost unbearable. While buried in my bookish pursuits I have, however, managed to keep a finger on the pulse. I noticed an article a few weeks ago lamenting the lack of student participation at a tuition-hike-protest-rally. Unfortunately, feelings of powerlessness continually undermine such nostalgic political frenzies. Students find consolation in grades; and in teacher's recommendations results they have immediate control over. It is, however immeasurable, something.

Socially conscious bickering has reached a hysterical, end of the semester pitch and I wonder again where tolerance has gone. The relevance of cafeteria turnstiles being located at penis level, as a unique male discriminatory tool (no pun intended) eludes me. Yet I do not contest the authors right to expose their ignorance.

I want to talk about separatism, and how I am convinced it cannot work, but life persistently intrudes on lofty thoughts with annoying domestic questions I cannot shrug off and which cloud the purity of my arguments. When, for example, can I safely remove the plastic from my apartment windows? Did I remember to make an appointment at the internship office? Whose turn is it to clean the bathroom?

It's no wonder I can't get anything done — I look at the pretty woman with a Justin Ryan's hangover and my jealousy at her freedom returns. Taking it easy, hanging out, getting a tan; I sorely miss the thoughtless screw-up I used to be. Responsibility has its rewards, none of which I can dredge up on my way to work, watching freshmen play frisbee.

I don't feel good about the tests, I can't feel sure about my answers. 150 places to make a mistake, did you say? My overwrought senses react to this news much like my ears do to fingernails on the blackboard. The brakes on this bus scream my tension. I don't have time to exercise, but I've gotta do something. I'm falling apart. My jogging takes on a neurotic aspect; evangelical sweat. I wish desperately, for a moment, that I had never come back to school. There's something to be said for vegging out on MASH re-runs and cheap wine, after all.

Ah, but it ain't true. Perspiration stings my eyes, and my lungs feel ready to burst with the unaccustomed intake of fresh air, but I am leaving some tension behind on the road. A challenge to my body relieves the challenge to my mind, if only temporarily. There isn't a lifestyle left which does not bring with it the baggage of some damned obligation, or painful forfeiture of freedom. No pain, no gain.

I run harder than usual for the last mile.

Diane Lane is a Collegian Columnist.

The next few years crucial for Israel

John Gilman

Election years are always interesting. Politicians are busy pointing their fingers at each other over such debacles as the budget deficit, Third World dominos, and acid rain. However, there is one issue that all politicians seem to agree upon. This is the belief that U.S. support for Israel must be absolute. This appears to be useful in the eyes of American foreign policy experts, but it is a relationship of usury that is very dangerous for the state of Israel.

The special relationship between Israel and the United States is hazardous on two accounts. First, the unequivocal support of the Americans encourages the hard-liners in the Israeli government to refuse to reach an equitable agreement with the Palestinians, and thus defuse the Middle East time bomb. It is not difficult to imagine a complete peace between the Arab countries and Israel if the Palestinians were given a just settlement. Certainly, as many of the problems faced by the Palestinians are the result of a lack of true support on the part of the Arab states, but it is the Israelis that hold the key to the end of Palestinian suffering. The continued successes that Israel has experienced in military confrontations with the Arabs have lessened the sense of urgency that should surround the question of the Palestinians in the minds of Israeli policy makers. However, each Arab defeat leads to two serious consequences for the region as a whole: it increases Arab animosity towards Israel, and leads to a frightening increase in the quality and technological sophistication of armaments in the Middle East. It is difficult to envision anything but a tragic ending to this situation if this upward spiral continues.

The second, and in my mind, much more omnious aspect of Israeli-American relations revolves around the U.S. government's motivations in the area. United States foreign policy is still built on the dubious theory of containment. The spread of communism and racial nationalism is seen as a threat to American interests, and the suppression of either of these is the goal of American policy in the Third World. In the post-Vietnam era, it is considered preferable to find surrogate powers to carry out these aims. In the Middle East, due to the nature of the region, this policy is immensely dangerous for the regional that chooses to play this role for the United States. The fall of the Shah of Iran has led the U.S. to see Israel as its new strategic bedfellow. To be sure, the U.S. has made overtures to conservative Arab governments in Jordan, Saudi Arabia, and Egypt to take on the role formerly played by Iran, but the results have not be fruitious. The recent castigation of the American efforts in the area by King Hussein of Jordan demonstrate the unpopular position of the U.S. in the Middle East. Even strongly anti-communist regimes such as Saudi Arabia (which still does not have diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union), have been distancing themselves from the United States.

If Israel continues to play the role of American surrogate in the Middle East, it may well find itself in a position of defending American interests at the expense of its own survival. Not all U.S. interests are synonymous with Israeli interests, and the growing dependence of Israel on American diplomatic, financial, and military guarantees may limit Israeli room to manuever in the event of a crisis in the Middle East. For Israel, oil is not the most vital question in the area, it is the survival of the state of Israel. If it begins to meddle in the affairs of the superpowers, it may well find itself sold out by America when other regional collaborators are found that are more palatable to the oil producers in the area. The United States' true concern in the Middle East is oil, and to protect it the policy makers are not likely to be deterred by sentimental feelings towards Israel. An Israel abandoned by America, but with the taint of American surrogate on it may be hard pressed to continue to withstand the pressures its current stands are generating. If one does not like the odds of a South African regime surrounded by hostile countries, and isolated in world opinion, then the prospects for an Israel without U.S. support are less than rosy. When and if American and Israeli paths diverge, the future of Israel will be dependent on how it behaves in the next few years. After all, Israel only has to lose one war, and the whole enterprise is relegated to the dust bins of history.

John Gilman is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

Stockbridge overlooked again

To the Editor,

I am writing in regard to the Collegian article titled "Sheep, pigs to highlight tour," April 30. As usual, the Stockbridge School of Agriculture has received no credit. It is true that some UMass students are helping out with the Deerfield Dairy Facility tours, but the majority of tour guides are Stockbridge students.

The method which is being used to give the children tours was also coordinated by Stockbridge animal agriculture majors, with the help of Mr. Bernie Hilton.

Stockbridge is indeed a very active part of this campus and deserves to be recognized as such.

Karen Neggers
Stockbridge "85"

Sinking deeper and deeper and...

To the Editor,

I write to express frustration at the sorry state of the library system at UMass (Collegian, April 20). It is hard to fathom the illogic that has dropped UMass near the bottom in reserach capability.

A library system should be the nucleus of any university. Such a slide (to rank 86th!) is a reflection on the seriousness, or lack of it, by the UMass administration. To put it bluntly, the past five to 10 years of decline in the library system make the past six years of men's basketball resemble a Final Four appearance.

As and alumni of Ohio State, part of the 'cultural wasteland' in the eyes of many New Englanders, I find the reverse to be the case with regard to the library. How does the university expect to compete with other research centers? Why are there no reading rooms for graduate students?

Why must we be dehumanized by forking over a student ID for a single journal in the Goodell 'reading room?' Past experience shows that many interesting articles are found by random search. We need free access.

I agree with English Professor Robert Brogran that the research facilities are "an exercise in futility." A sinking library is no excuse for short-changing the students of UMass. It is time to wake up.

Ralf Ratsson
Amherst

Remember to give the gift of life

To the Editor,

The American Red Cross Blood Services of Western Massachusetts would like to express our sincerest appreciation to all blood donors who gave of themselves during the 1983-84 academic year.

High School and College students are our prize donors — YOU give 46 percent of the blood we collect in Western Mass. That's nearly half of the blood supply for our area! We think that's wonderful in the Fall, Winter and Spring, however, when Summer comes and schools are out of session — the blood supply is cut back by that same 46 percent! Often times this is the reason for hospital blood shortages and Region-wide Blood Appeals during the summer months.

We would like for all of our student donors to consider presenting themselves at local bloodmobiles or at the Springfield Donor Center at 235 Chestnut Street at least once during your summer recess. Collectively it will make a tremendous difference. The patients who require blood transfusion and we at the Red Cross are indebted to our donors. We thank you for your generous gift of life. This summer please remember and give blood.

American Red Cross Blood Services

Archer Kent

191 No. Pleasant
Amherst

253-3534

sale ends May 12

CAMPUS GROOMING NEEDS

Cover Girl Shape 'N Blush — $1.99 — reg. $3.59

One-A-Day Plus Iron 75 tablets — $2.79 — reg. $3.99

Clairol Frost & Tip Kit — $5.59 — reg. $8.35

Stri-Dex Medicated Pads 75 count — $1.79 — reg. $2.99

Unisol preservative-free saline solution 25 count — $4.39 — reg. $6.55

Tums Antacid 3 roll pkg. — 69¢ — reg. $1.25

Bic Shavers 5 count — 59¢ — reg. $1.19

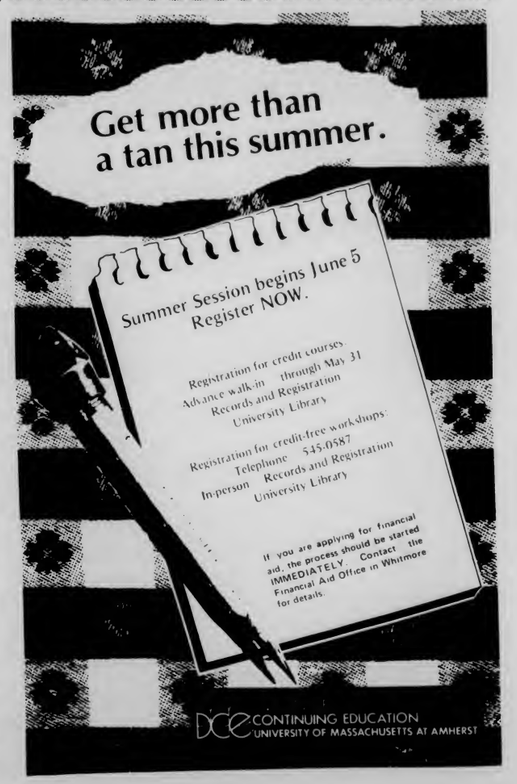
Vidal Sassoon Protein Pac Treatment 1 oz. — 79¢ — reg. $1.79

Regular Strength Anacin • 3 24 tablets — 99¢ — reg. $1.59

Neet Cream Hair Remover 2 oz. tube reg, or cocoa butter — $1.89 — reg. $2.85

10% OFF

SATURDAY ONLY!
Come to Archer Kent any Saturday with a valid student I.D. and we'll give you 10% OFF your total purchases!



Graduate Student Senate Elections

May 7th and 8th
Campus Center Concourse opposite the Blue Wall
9:00 - 4:00

Candidates:

PRESIDENT: Sanjiv Dugal
VICE PRESIDENT: Joseph Tim Clifford
Christos Karastamatis

VOTE

$99,300
IN CASH & PRIZES ON
LISTEN FOR DETAILS ON
99 THE 103 FM
HOT SPOT

HEALTH and BEAUTY AID

SALE

Crest 6.4 oz. — $1.37 — save 60¢

Colgate Toothbrush — 51¢

Silkience 7 oz. shampoo or conditioner — $1.49 — Save 79¢

Scope 24 oz. — $2.23

DOUBLE MANUFACTURERS COUPONS on HBA Items

10 CONTAC — Contac 10's — $2.12

Buf-Puf sponge reg or gentle — $1.70 — Save $1.52

Secret Solid 2 oz. — $1.73 — Save $1.10

14 oz. J & J Baby Powder — $1.83 — save 77¢

Open M-F 9-4 Sat 11-4

Located in Campus Center

Sale items are also available in the Mini Store

UNIVERSITY STORE

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day before they take place except Monday which will carry Monday's and Tuesday's events. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

HILLEL COUNCIL MEETING — 6 pm Campus Center 802

PEACEMAKERS MEETING — Planning events for next year. Anyone who wants to help or just give suggestions is needed. Also need people who want to dedicate services next year. Refreshments. 4:30 p.m. 428 SUB

STUDENT ALLIANCE FOR ISRAEL MEETING — 7:30 pm Campus Center 802

WMUA GENERAL STATION BODY MEETING — All members must attend! Elections will be held during this meeting. 7:30 Room 168C

CONCERT: VOCAL JAZZ ENSEMBLE — UMass Vocal Jazz Ensemble, directed by Horace Boyer, will perform jazz and gospel music selections. Soloist: Geoffrey Matteon, saxophone. Free. 8:00 pm Bezanson Recital Hall

UMASS AMATEUR RADIO ASSOCIATION MEETING — This will be our last meeting this semester. Plans for the summer will be discussed. Everyone is welcome. Check CC schedule for room number. #:30 pm Campus Center

SCERA WOMEN'S ISSUES TEAM — Join us to evaluate our semester's work and make summer and fall plans. New members welcome. 4:30 CC804

HANDICAPPED AWARENESS DAYS — Workshops and events. Call for schedule. all day C.C. Koncourse get a blast out of the Collegian

MASS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13 (whitewall blem)
$32.00 includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No Amherst, MA
Across from Wetrobes Store
549-4704

LAND
Terrific Bargain
10 acres ONLY $8000
Northfield -
Only 25 mi. to Amherst.
For info and terms just call owner.
802-257-4347 Days
802-254-9369 Eves.

ROCK & ROLL
DYNAMITE RECORDS
NEED CASH?
We will buy your records and tapes
Cash or Trade
and get 25% more
Thornes, a marketplace plus!
150 Main Street, Northampton 584-1580
SOUL JAZZ CLASSICAL

HIGH NOTES
Singing Telegram and Balloon Delivery Service
NEW IDEA for MOM'S DAY
INFLATED HEART BALLOON
sent UPS to her door. It will float out of it's box with a card from you!
Order by May 9th Call 665-7664

Distinguished Visitors Program
and
Governors Program Council
presents

Dr. Ruth Westheimer

"SEXUALLY SPEAKING"

Monday, May 7, 1984 at 8:00 PM
Student Union Ballroom

Tickets $2. 5-College Students $4. General Public

Tickets available until 4 PM at FAC at the door 7 - 8 PM
and all Datatix locations

MONDAY NITE SPECIAL

Time Out

Giant Bar Drinks $1.65

16 oz. Draft 85¢

Two T.V.'s

Free Popcorn

Happy Hour Prices
4 PM to closing
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA

WANTED

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term.
Please call the
Ride Service
545-2148

Sponsored by: The Commuter Area Gov't

HEALTH and BEAUTY AID SALE

$3.45

B & L 8 oz. sensitive eyes saline solution

$2.11 reg. $3.64

B & L sensitive eyes cleaning solution

B & L Lens Lubricant .5 oz. $2.35

B & L Daily Cleaner 1.5 oz.

$2.11 reg. $3.64

$2.35

Coppertone 8 oz. Lot. or Oil

DOUBLE MANUFACTURERS COUPONS on HBA Items

HDR Cond. or Shampoo reg. or extra body 7 oz. $1.39 reg. $2.64

79¢ 11 oz.

$3.09 reg. $4.05
Tampax 40's - reg - super - reg slender - super plus

$1.06
4.6 oz. Aqua Fresh

Open M-F 9-4 Sat 11-4 Located in Campus Center

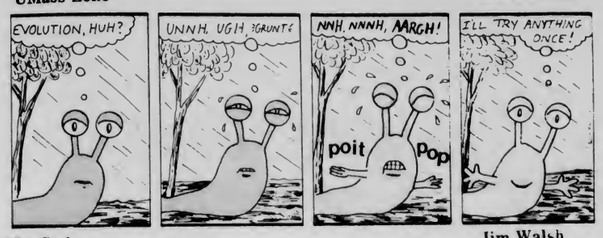
Sale items are also available in the Mini Store

UNIVERSITY STORE

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS

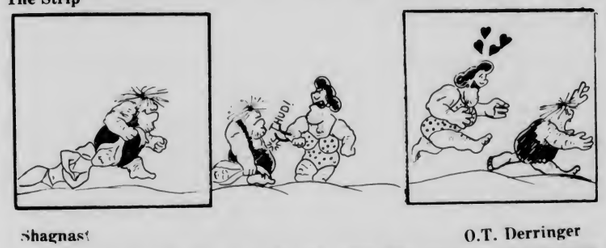
$7.00
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
Valid with Barb & Julie only C

FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment



Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

Attention all RSO Groups occupying space in the CC/SU complex. All keys must be returned or reissued by September 30, 1984 or deposits will be forfeited!!
Please return keys in 415 SUB during the following hours:
Monday 1:00 - 3:45
Tuesday 12:30 - 2:30
Wednesday 1:00 - 3:45
Thursday 12:30 - 2:30
Friday closed
any questions call the Board of Governors at 545-0198



Bloom County by Berke Breathed

UMass Zone Mark Rollins

The Strip Jim Walsh

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

Off Campus Sullivan & Gillbert

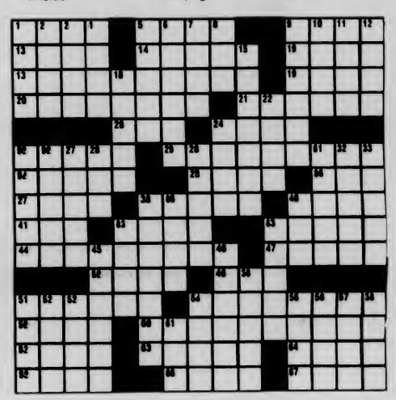
D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Swiss Turkey Sandwich
Squash Bake

BASICS LUNCH
Caponata with Pocket Bread
Squash Bake

DINNER
Roast Top Round of Beef/ Mushroom Sauce
Fried Shrimp Dinner/ Cocktail Sauce, Tartar Sauce
Deviled Egg Cold Plate

BASICS DINNER
Garbanzo Cheese Loaf/ Mushroom Sauce
Fried Shrimp Dinner/ Cocktail Sauce, Tartar Sauce



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Plentiful
5 Lake formed by Hoover Dam
9 Go on a journey
13 Inland lake
14 Ornamental tag
16 The days of old
17 Game for the dexterous
19 Distress
20 Animal on a diet?
21 Tolerates
23 Stake
24 Breakfast food
25 Young blade
29 Arises
34 Inventor of electrical devices
35 Bit of sausage
36 Nabokov novel
37 Know one's ——
38 Minute pore
40 A Wilson
41 Anger
42 Biting
43 Mme. de Poitiers
44 Most ingenious
47 Law partner?
48 Author of "Trinity"
49 Peccary, e.g.
51 Word of greeting, in Israel
54 Hebraic or Arabic studies
59 Nursery item
60 Joanne Woodward's mate
62 Certain code
63 Moist clay
64 "Rule, Britannia" composer
65 Tres ——
66 Letters, from Athens
67 Do a gardener's job

DOWN
1 Indian VIP
2 Shiraz's locale
3 Opposite of fiction
4 Actress Sommer
5 Dull finish
6 Long-legged herons
7 Of wings
8 Water droplets
9 Pool activity
10 Kind of runner
11 Put-in-Bay's lake
12 Recognizes
15 Catherine the Great, e.g.
18 Native-born Israeli
22 Depend (with "on")
24 Homburg feature
25 Impassive
26 Bailey or Buck
27 Name in cosmetics
28 Pacino and others
30 Works diligently
31 Leafy lunch
32 Commune in Italy
33 Kind of doll
38 Acts frugally
39 Ascot items
40 Evergreen
42 Flying prefix
43 Motherless one, on the range
45 Roman god of fire
46 Actress Ritter
50 All (stage direction)
51 Attempt
52 Mata ——
53 Nautical term
54 Vested garment
55 "—— the night before..."
56 Hungarian name
57 Rattan
58 Prune, in Scotland
61 Bar order

LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds
is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT

Audio	Help Wanted	Roommate Wanted
Auto For Sale	Instruction	Services
Calculators	Lost	Summer Sublet
Entertainment	Motorcycles	To Sublet
For Rent	Personals	Travel
For Sale	Ride Wanted	Wanted
Found	Rider Wanted	Wanted to Rent
	Room Wanted

Weather

Monday, becoming cloudy, with rain possible, high temperatures in the 50s. Monday night, highs will be around 45 degrees, with rain likely. Tuesday will remain cloudy, with a chance of rain, highs in the 60s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	R	I	F	S		I	A	M	I	E	N		B	L	I	A	S
D	U	K	E		A	V	I	A	N		S	T	O	I	A
T	I	C	K	E	R		U	O	L	L	Y	S	I	D	E	A
E	S	E		O	M	N	I		O	I	O		O	N	I	S
U	I	S	I	A	N	A		D	N	A
S	T	A	N	D		O	P	I	N	I	O	N		P	L	E
C	L	O	T	P		A	R	E	A	S		I	R	R	I	T	E	D
A	L	T	O		I	N	A	V	E	D		M	Y	V	I	E
R	E	S	I	S	T		S	T	E	I	N		A	C	T	I	E
P	U	L	I	T	Z	E	R			N	O	D		A	M	A	N	D	A
S	I	D	E	S	H	O	W		W	A	M	P	E		S	O	N
P	L	A	C	I	D		I	N	I	T	I	A	L		D	I	E	T
C	A	T	I	O		M	A	I	N	T	I	E		I	R	I	A	N
A	V	E	R		O	H	M		G	O	D		A	I	S	I	S	T

ARMY/NAVY Clothing Sale

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday
10 am to 8 pm (except Wednesday, 4 pm)
Student Union Ballroom

* Marine Rip Stop Camel Pants..... $10 - 13
* Brand New BDU Camel Pants..... $22
* Jackets..... $8 - 15
* Fatigue Pants..... $4 - 7.50
* Army/Navy Raincoats..... $10 - 15
* Down Filled Mummy Sleeping Bags..... $25 - 30
* Airforce Sunglasses..... $5 - 7
* And Much Much More

GARDEN ROTO TILLING

Prompt Reasonable Reliable

323-5120

This is the Year to Plan Your Career!

Limited number of graduate study awards.

Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

SUMMER JOB INTERVIEWS
Wednesday, May 9th
Room 178, Campus Center

Applications and advanced sign-up at Student Employment Office, Rm. 239A, Whitmore.
The Association for the Help of Retarded Children, Nassau County Chapter, operates a summer residential camp for the mentally retarded in the Catskill Mts. at Hunter, NY.
Positions available:
Male/Female General Cabin Counselors
Male/Female Counselors to work with our profoundly retarded campers
Program Counselors to instruct Nature & Sewing
R.N.'s, W.S.I.'s, Office & Kitchen Staff
CAMP LOYALTOWN, AHRC
189 Wheatley Road, Brookville, NY 11545
(516) 626-1000, Ext. 31
We are particularly looking for energetic and empathetic men to work with our male campers.

Mother's Day Buffet

at the

Top of the Campus Restaurant

featuring
a festive buffet from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
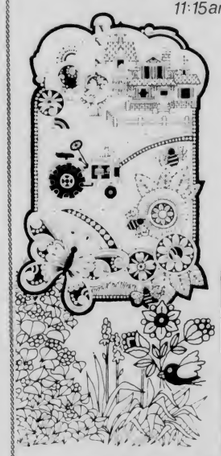
on May 13th

$8.95 for Adults
$4.50 for Children



Mom will receive a free flower

Call now for reservations
549-6000 ext 639

SPRING FEST '84

Wednesday, May 9, 1984
11:15am - 1:30pm

"Finger Lickin Feast"
Fried Chicken
Fish & Chips
& a special
COLD SALAD PLATE
also
Potato Salad
Coleslaw
Assorted Desserts
Select any entree & dessert for only $3.00

UMass/Coke Treasure Hunt Continues
• SONY TVs 5" • TVs • Radios

BLUEWALL BAR HAPPY HOUR

BLUEWALL CAFETERIA

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Someone immediately to take lease on i bedroom Brandywine apt 360/month 549-0667

WANTED TO RENT

Wented Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

I need to rent a moped June-August. Amherst area. Licensed driver. Call kelley at 546-4207 after 7:00 PM

2 or 3 bedroom apt in Puffton, Brandywine, Townehouse, or Colonial Village. Will take in summer or fall. 546-6808, 6810, 6813

Quiet, responsible graduate student couple looking for a place, starting June. Would share house or apartment, near UMass. 545-1536 days, 253-9664, nights excellent references

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Alpine 7123 car stereo, AM/FM cassette with auto-eject, Dolby. $170 549-6499

Stereo Vector Research 45 watt receiver Technics tumtable TDC4A speakers best offer 546-6456

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Buick wagon runs great body solid 70000 miles 500.00 549-7666

CAPE COD

Females needed to live on Main St. in Hyannis. First call first serve. Call Cindy 6-6651

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FEMALE ROOMMATE WANTED

To shere room in Brandywine Apt for more info call Jodi 256-1235

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Liva across from Emily Dickenson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

X-lg bedroom in split level apt rent negotiable quiet 665-2127

Puffton Village one bedroom available, need two people starting June 1 549-7686

Nonsmoking female for summer and fall Please call evening 253-7806

Summer Sublet fall option 2 bdrm apt $330/no neg Sunderland call 665-3959

2 bedroom Brittany Manor available June 1 with fall option $450 includes heat call after 10 pm 253-5907

N Amherst 2 bdrm bus rte 375 + avail 6/1 549-6894 eves

Summer housing available 496 No Pleasant St 253-9015

FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

One year old twin bed, table and 4 chairs best offer Wendy 584-2905

Sears apartment washer dryer excellent condition 250.00 call evenings 665-8116 negotiable

Japenese Go Set. Almost new $40. Rich 549-4786, 665-7034

FOUND

3 keys on keychain that can be attached to belt. In Puffton Village on 4/28. Has one UMass key on it. Call Jeff 549-4071

Found: Jacket outside on the Metawampe Lawn by the Hatch - May 2, 1984. Call 549-6118 or 549-7789 after 5 Pm to identify

Purse found in Northeast area on April 30 call 6-5817 to identify

HELP WANTED

Men's Canter now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Housekeepers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

Weitresses and Generel Laborers apply at the Rusty Nail 3 to 5 weekdays

Union Video is hiring a part-time summer mgr. July-August 15 hrs/wk 3.35 hr. video skills required an AA/EO employer apply 216 SUB by 5/9

Internetional Environmentel Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

Counter Help part time apply at Amherst Deli start immediately

Alaska Summer Jobs - Good money$$. Parks, Fisheries, Wilderness Resorts, Logging and much more. . .Summer Employment Guide. 1984 listings. $4.95 Northquest, 300 Union Ave, Bldg. 12 Campbell, CA 95008

Part time sales. Audio background or sales exper. necc. Also, p. time car stereo installer. Apply at The Sound Co. 201 N Pleasant

Still need a summer job? Work as an activist on a nat'l voter registration campaign and help to shape state environmental policy. MASSPIRG is noe hiring full and part-time summer staff for public education and fundraising. $135-225/a week. Mon -Fri 2-10 PM. Will train. Call Sandy 256-6434

UMess Sorority seeks housemother for upcoming 2 years. Responsible female grad student preferred, Free room & board with salary 250$ per month. Call 545-2152 ask for Toni or Mary

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

LOST

Emerald and Diemond Ring must find! Reward! Call Deirdre 549-1703

Gold wetch near SBA on 5/2 @ 11:05 Reward! Call Lisa 545-0527

Large green duffle bag full of imp. personal items; wallet, books, etc. Please please please call 665-3503

Lost 3 rings in SOM area extreme sentimental value $500. reward call 549-7758

Would the person who removed my bike from Hasbrouck April 30. I will pay for the return of my boke. No questions call 323-6010

MOM AND DAD

Mom and Dad -- Just checking to see if you read the WHOLE paper! Happy Anniversary one day late! (No paper on Sundays, sorry!) Love, Scoop

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Keweseki KZ550 was $1200 now $1000 great shape call 546-8965

NEAG ELECTIONS

Elections for Northeast Area Government officers will be held from 11 am - 2 pm and from 4 pm - 6:30 pm on Tuesday May 8th in the barracks at the Worcester DC All Northesr residents are encouraged to vote.

PERSONALS

Attention all Greeks: Greekfest - Don't forget - May 2-8 fun and games parties

GREASE - Solidlaterpatty! Black-eye? Only two more shows - better get it right this time

To the person with my leather jacket!! It's definitely worth the price! (gas key is irreplacable) Please call!! 256-0924

To Beth my sugarpie honeybuns Happy 20th Birthday Love, Todd

Hey Sue !
Happy 21st Buddy !
You're excellent !
Have a good one !!
Love ya, Lisa

Mel Congratulations with Nabiscol!! Get pysched!! Business trips? Love, Rose

ANNOUNCEMENT
Martha Connors would like to announce the engagement of her friend,
Miss Victoria L. Hamilton to Mr. David Flood
Everyone is quite thrilled!!
Congratulations

Contact Lenses Replaced. Bausch Lomb $25. Others available. Call with your prescription. Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8561

To the new brothers of Phi Mu Delta - Congratulations and thanks again - signed I don't care

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Casas, Pepers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

$300.00 REWARD

For recovery of Hifly 300 Sailboerd taken from concert at Sowest on Apr 29 call Cathy Yates at 256-6761

RIDE WANTED

To Calif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

ROOM WANTED

Male seeks room (single or shared) in apt. anywhere! For next fall-spring Dave 546-7738

Do you need roommates? We're 2 females looking to share townhouse apt for fall-summer sublet possible please call Julie 6-8026 or Pam 6-8011

Room wented for summer in Hyannis near Dunfeys call Michelle 545-0527

Desperate for a room in Hyannis erea for summer! Jennifer 256-1341

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wented to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-6088 Kris 256-0556

Female roommate wented to share summer cottage in Yarmouth 1050 by May 20 call ASAP Judy 1 617 648 0944

Responsible female wanted to share room in Puffton--Annie 6-8309, Chris 6-8313

Roommete wanted for Hedley apt summer ¼ mile from UMass $185/mo call Paul 549-1636 after 6:00

Female nonsmoker wented for 84 Brittany call 546-8343 546-8275

$133/mth Southwood Apts, fall option female Stacy 256-0638

Roommete to shere downtown Northampton apartment 200/mth inc heat 584-7608 Meg

Wanted: 2 females to share room in Brittany Manor start Sept 256-0383

Female roommate for summer near Amherst Center, on bus rte 118/mo 253-2763

2 roommates wnated for Brandywine apartment call 546-5435

Female roommete wanted Brandywine starting May 25th fall option call 546-7098

For rent 1 bedroom in two bedroom apt downtown Noho call Jennifer 584-5972

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Free coffee end donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

SUMMER RENTALS

Centrally located on campus kitchen facilities cable TV furnished 250 single 150 double call Jim K 545-0047 or 545-2150

SUMMER SUBLET

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

Crown Point furnished 2 bedrooms pool Route 9 bus route next to JR's Price Chopper 253-3782

Two bedroom apt in Amherst Centar cheap! call now 549-7605

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

Summer sublet w/fell option spacious 4 bedroom and 2 bath on bus route rent negotiable call 256-8247

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

Cheap summer sublet Rolling Green 1 room of 2 253-5467 evenings

One bedroom in semicoop house in Amherst 150/month 253-3545

Summer sublet w/fall option -preferably two females, each get own room, located on Main Street. On bus route call Sue at 256-8304

Two bedroom Coloniel Village partially furnished convenient! rent negotiable call 256-6606

1 bedroom apt $250. available June 1 fall option 256-0988 PM

Fall option 1 bedroom Colonial Village 253-3363 250 includes hot water

Large room with private bath in Puffton Village. Ideal for couple. $210 per month phone 549-8989

Two bedroom apt in Presidential summer only, furnished please call 546-5558 or 546-5563

One room available Presidential Apts call evenings 549-5808

Fully furnished Brandywine Apt price very negotiable call anytime 549-0569

1 bedroom in big beautiful apartment on bus line in walking distance of campus and town. $150/month or BO 256-0170

Summer sublet with fall option Colonial Village, $150/month Craig 256-0078

Summer sublet with fall option 1 or 2 bedrooms available in huge beautiful house 100 yards from Hampshire Mall and bus route rent negotiable call Jane or Lisa at 584-4309

Perfect summer sublet Amherst Center 1 large bedroom yard, pool, tennis. Rent negotiable 549-5799

Furnished one bedroom Puffton apt pool airconditioning laundry 549-7864

2 bdrm apt (take 1 or both rooms) summer/fall option 665-7604

Summer sublet only. Negotiable. Pool bus stops call Staci 256-1288

Presidentiel Apt 2 to 3 people closest apts to campus cheapest rate available all summer. Call Eric 546-6407 Andy 546-3279

Puffton summer sublet w/possible fall option for more info call 549-6971 253-5045

Whet a bergein! Puffton apt 2 bdrm 2 bt ideal location furnished A/C must see call anytime 546-5298 or 546-5300

2 bedrooms in 3 bedroom house convenient location rent negotiable call now 549-3856

SUMMER SUBLET W/FALL OPTION

Brandywine 1 room for 1 or 2 persons fully furnished call 549-2773 after 5 PM

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt fantastic location $125 call Carolyn 253-3630

One bedroom apt in Presidential summer sub/fall option 355/mo 549-6644

Apartment with fall option $147.50 month Colonial Village Apartment near bus routes call Bill or Greg 256-0419 keep trying

Puffton summer sublet with fall option 1 bedrm in 2 bedrm apt mature, responsible, female 549-4869

Townehouse summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt call George or Joe 549-0902

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

2 bedroom Townehouse Apt available June 1st - Sept 1st call 549-4585

1 bdrm apt Crestview summer sublet w/fall option walking distance to UMass on bus route AC avail June 1 360/mo 549-7826

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Sublet fell option 2 brm $330 per month Sunderland summer rent negotiable call between 9-11 am or other 665-4744

Rivergiede - 2 bedroom, pool, AC, 3-story, bus, summer - fall option 256-1393

1 bd room in Sunderland dishwasher/disposal 320 all utilities. Pool & tennis 665-8315

Wanted: First summer-session sublet. Near town-campus. Call 5-9 pm Sue S. 549-6040

One bedroom in three bdrm apt. in house available end May - Sept 1 near town & campus (Amherst) rent nego 256-1421 ask for Laura

One bedroom apt in Puffton June - Sept rent negotiable 546-5082

Ready now or June 1 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt on bus line, near Puffers Pond. Nothing down. Just $115 per month. Fall option 549-0437

House in town for sumemr 3 bdrm cheap call Sue 6-8142

Southwood apts 2 bedroom townhouse w/fall option call 6-5370, 6-5195 after 3 pm

Two bedroom apt summer w/fall option cheap, all utilities included 665-4953 evenings

One bedroom summer sublet with fall option Cliffside apt 665-7956

3 bdrm Townhouse apt avail for summer at a reas rate 546-5113

Sports

Gorillas fall short at the Carrier Dome

By RUSS WHINNEM

There was to be no upset of the Orangemen.

But it was no Dome destruction either, and perhaps the overriding frustration of the Gorillas as they left the Carrier Dome turf Saturday, besides the fact that they believed they really could have beaten Syracuse, was the fact that the 12-5 final score wasn't indicative of what this game was like.

While it may sound like nothing more than sour grapes, this was a game into the fourth quarter. Massachusetts came out in that period and within two minutes had hit net twice, cutting the Syracuse lead to 7-5.

First, Matthew O'Reilly found an open Tom Lukacovic and the junior beat Orangeman goalie Tom Nims low. Then when Mike Fiorini converted a Bubba Sanford feed while falling down, it was suddenly a two goal game.

But faster than you can say National Champions, the Orangemen responded and four seconds later it was 9-5, a four goal lead again.

Syracuse attackman and leading goal scorer Tom Korrie got both the goals, as he took a Tim Nelson pass and found an opening low from outside, and then came across the middle and hit while in mid-air to restore the margin.

From there the Gorillas hit the goal post for the fourth (count 'em, four) time, and moments later the roof caved in.

Nelson came from behind the net on goalie Gerry Moreau's right side and jumped up to beat Moreau high left, to make it 10-5 at the six minute mark.

Then Korrie surfaced again finding himself wide open in front. Moreau never had a chance when Randy Lunblad got the ball to Korrie. Korrie raising his stick was the most familiar thing Massachusetts saw all day, as his goal was the sixth of the afternoon.

Twenty-four seconds later, Nelson walked through the Gorilla defense from behind and stuffed home another for the 12-5 lead at 8:27.

That left 6½ minutes for Massachusetts to put something together, and despite pushing up the offense, they couldn't score.

"I think the key was our lack of scoring, our extra man play, and the fact that they converted their broken plays," said head coach Dick Garber later. "That's the difference between a good team and a great team."

Nowhere was that lack of scoring more evident than on the extra man situation. The Orangemen scored on three of the nine Gorilla penalties, while UMass was head spinning 1-10 in the same situation.

"That was the ball game," said Garber.

Paralleling that was Syracuse's ability to capitalize where the Gorillas didn't. The Orangemen, smooth as silk around the opposition's net made the most of opportunities.

Conversely, Garber felt that his team should have been up at the half (instead of trailing 5-3), after shooting 23 times, despite a Syracuse defense that did an effective job of stripping the ball outside.

"We could have beaten them," reflected Ken Freeman later. "We had to play mistake-free, and we made mistakes."

So the trip against the number one team had come up empty. For three quarters and a little more the Gorillas were right there, even out playing Syracuse for long stratches of time. And as Massachusetts began to think about UNH, that emptiness was reflected a little deeper by the fact that this one was a lot closer.

The University of Massachusetts lacrosse team will face the University of New Hampshire in a makeup game today at 3:00 p.m. at The Hill. The 11th ranked Gorillas are 6-4 and fighting for an NCAA playoff bid.

Starters whip subs as football springs open

By DAN LEBERFELD
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts spring football practice came to a close in the usual fashion, the annual intersquad scrimmage held on Saturday at Alumni Stadium.

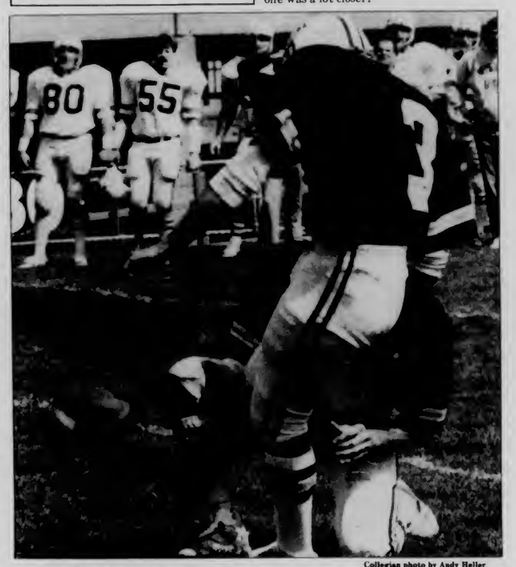
The game pitted the Minutemen starters against the reserves who are trying to unseat them. New coach Bob Stull had mixed emotions about his first look at new troops in a game situation.

The former Washington Husky assistant was happy with the progress quarterback Bob Simeone showed in leading the starters to a 20-0 victory over the reserves.

"Simeone has made a lot of progress," said Stull, who was the offensive coordinator for two Rose Bowl teams at Washington.

The 6'2" 225 pound Simeone was the Minutemen's starting quarterback during the second half of his freshman year and the first half of his sophomore year before being benched because of erratic play. On Saturday the sophomore from Farmington, Connecticut completed 12 of 21 passes for 156 yards and two touchdowns.

On the negative side Stull expressed disappointment with the large number of fumbles and interceptions that plagued both units in the game.



"I thought the game was sloppy. We wouldn't beat the worst team on our schedule with all the penalties and fumbles that occurred."

This game was a good way for the veterans to establish themselves with the new coach. One veteran that really showed his worth was junior wide receiver Bob Simeone who hooked up with his brother Jim on pass plays of 47 and 30 yards. The first of the spectacular catch variety and the second for a touchdown.

With Kevin Jackson's graduation the elder Simeone is the only legitimate wide receiver on the squad. Two days before the game Stull switched sophomore defensive back John Crowley to receiver to alleviate the problem.

On defense a couple of transfer defensive tackles shined for the starter's squad. 6'4", 250 pound Ed Sullivan, a transfer from Iowa and 6'2", 265 pound Mike Dwyer, a transfer from Rhode Island both showed they could make an impact next season. They dominated the line of scrimmage throughout the game and each collected a few sacks.

These two players should play a big role on the squad because of some recent happenings. Starting defensive tackle Ken Johnson left school sighting personal reasons and middle guard Peter Tracy is saddled with a knew problem.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

University of Massachusetts kicker George Papoutsidis hits one of his two field goals in Saturday's intersquad game at Alumni Stadium. The Starters were 20-0 winners.

Softballers lose two in tourney

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

PISCATAWAY NEW JERSEY -- The inexperience of the University of Massachusetts softball team finally showed through despite their best efforts in a disappointing Alantic Ten tournament this weekend.

Coach Elaine Sortino started only two seniors, shortshop Alyson Rioux and center fielder Tina Coffin with four freshmen and three sophomores composing the rest of the lineup.

This combination started off the tournament in fine fashion beating Penn State 6 to 2 on 11 hits in the first game Saturday. But then the tent collapsed. Rutgers demoralized UMass 7-0 on Saturday. And then Penn State sent the top seeded Minutewomen home in third place with a tough 5-3 loss Sunday morning.

The Nittany Lions took control of the last game, jumping out to a 4-0 lead and never looking back.

"It was a wierd weekend," Sortino said. "It's hard to evaluate a weekend like this. I never expected the scores to be like this."

With the two losses in the double elimination tourney, UMass record dropped to 29-12 and the Minutewomen saw their chances for a NCAA bid fly out the window.

The tournament started out on the right foot as Coffin lead off the first Penn State game with a single followed by a Sally Maher sacrifice, A Rioux single and a Janet Miller RBI single for a 1-0 lead.

From then on it was clear sailing for UMass, who set the pace in rolling to a 6-2 win. Coffin went two-for-two with a triple, Debbie Cole went two-for-three with a double and Lynn Pekarski went two- for -two with a double.

"I couldn't have asked for anything more," Sortino said after the opener. "Everybody hit the ball well.

"Against Rutgers, we looked tentative at the plate. We could have taken matter into out own hands but for some reason we didn't."

Rutgers exploded for three runs in the fourth on a triple, a single and two doubles, taking control of the game and rattling the Minutewomen.

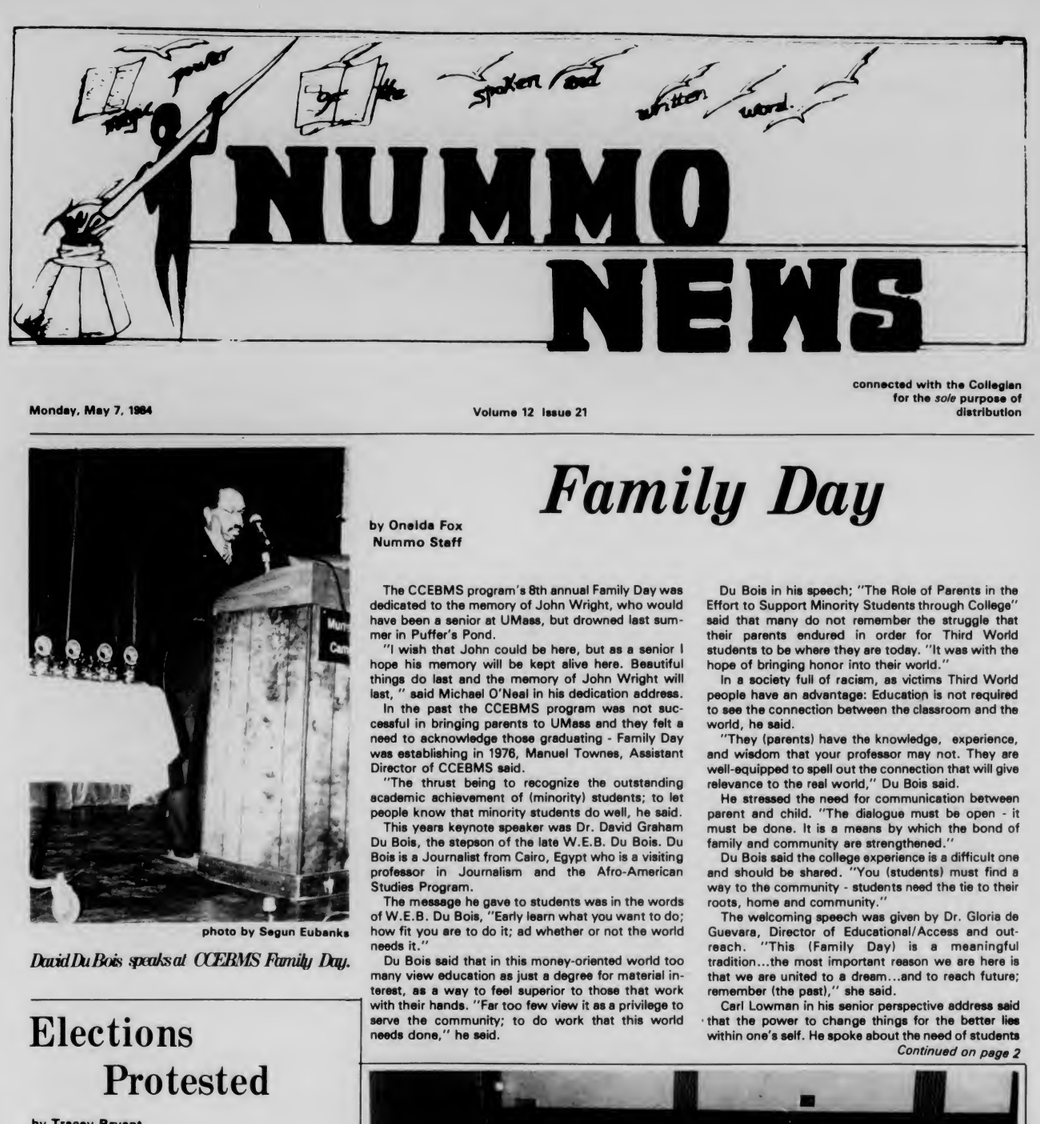
Rutgers rocked pitchers Cathy Reed and Lynn Stockley for three doubles and two triples.

UMass on the otherhand, could only manage two hits by Beth Talbott and Maher as they posed no offensive threat.

However, UMass had another chance in the consolation round against PSU. But the Lions jumped all over UMass taking a 4-0 lead enroute to another victory. Penn State ended up losing to Rutgers in the final 8-4.

The Minutewomen, who have come from behind to win only twice in 41 games this year, scratched out three runs on a Carol Frattaroli inside-the-park homerun, an RBI single by Maher and a shot to short by Rioux in the second and third innings to put UMass within one, 4-3.

Tennis men end season



By MIKE LEVINE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's tennis team finished their season with two matches that coach Manny Roberts and his players will remember all summer long--an 8-1 pasting of Central Connecticut, followed by a 9-0 shut-out of American International College. The wins gave the netmen a final record of 4-4 in Roberts' final season as UMass coach.

The Central Connecticut match saw the Minutemen take five of the six singles matches from the Blue Devils. Steve Jordan, Marc Weinstein, Earl Small, Barry Katz, and Paul Zaretsky were the winners for UMass. The doubles duos of Jordan/Wayne Peterson, Weinstein/Small, and Zaretsky/Jon DeKlerk were all leading in their doubles matches when rain forced everyone inside. Since UMass already had five victories, the remaining matches lost their importance anyway.

The AIC match saw Jordan win his last singles match the easy way--by forfeit. Peterson also won by forfeit, while Weinstein, Small, DeKlerk, and John Sommerstein all won in the straight sets. UMass also won the doubles matches easily, as Jordan and Peterson beat Charlie Mahar 6-2 6-1, Weinstein and Sommerstein beat Dan Oram and Dave Chesley 6-0 6-0, and Katz and DeKlerk defeated Ali Medi and Ed Odey 6-3 6-0.

As for next Fall, prospects look good for the team. Only Jordan will graduate, while Roberts has good freshman coming in.

Monday, May 7, 1984 Volume 12 Issue 21

connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution

photo by Segun Eubanks

David Du Bois speaks at CCEBMS Family Day.

Family Day

by Oneida Fox
Nummo Staff

The CCEBMS program's 8th annual Family Day was dedicated to the memory of John Wright, who would have been a senior at UMass, but drowned last summer in Puffer's Pond.

"I wish that John could be here, but as a senior I hope his memory will be kept alive here. Beautiful things do last and the memory of John Wright will last, " said Michael O'Neal in his dedication address.

In the past the CCEBMS program was not successful in bringing parents to UMass and they felt a need to acknowledge those graduating - Family Day was establishing in 1976, Manuel Townes, Assistant Director of CCEBMS said.

"The thrust being to recognize the outstanding academic achievement of (minority) students; to let people know that minority students do well, he said.

This years keynote speaker was Dr. David Graham Du Bois, the stepson of the late W.E.B. Du Bois. Du Bois is a Journalist from Cairo, Egypt who is a visiting professor in Journalism and the Afro-American Studies Program.

The message he gave to students was in the words of W.E.B. Du Bois, "Early learn what you want to do; how fit you are to do it; ad whether or not the world needs it."

Du Bois said that in this money-oriented world too many view education as just a degree for material interest, as a way to feel superior to those that work with their hands. "Far too few view it as a privilege to serve the community; to do work that this world needs done," he said.

Du Bois said the college experience is a difficult one and should be shared. "You (students) must find a way to the community - students need the tie to their roots, home and community."

The welcoming speech was given by Dr. Gloria de Guevara, Director of Educational/Access and outreach. "This (Family Day) is a meaningful tradition...the most important reason we are here is that we are united to a dream...and to reach future; remember (the past)," she said.

Carl Lowman in his senior perspective address said that the power to change things for the better lies within one's self. He spoke about the need of students

Continued on page 2

Elections Protested

by Tracey Bryant
Nummo Staff
Michael Nauls
Nummo Correspondent

Last week's Senate meeting was the stage for heated accusations and protest against the Southwest Assemblies' presidential elections.

Amidst many arguments and confusion it was clearly established that certain election by-laws had been violated.

The Senate has voided the elections, but now the responsibility is on the Southwest community to demand "a democratic and unbiased election," said Michael Nauls, co-coordinator of the Malcolm X Center, and Black Caucus Southwest representative.

The Southwest Assembly's Executive Board postponed the April 23 and 24 election until May 1 and 2. It is still unclear whether or not they had the authority to do this.

The original nomination deadline was April 9. But because of complaints that publicity was not adequate to insure a fair and open election, Dave McCarthy, co-president of Southwest Assembly, talked to Joe Benowitz, Governmental Affairs chairman, and the Southwest Executive Board reopened the nominations for two days - April 26 and 27.

Continued on page 3

Who are these Who are these people? Funk-o-thon 1984. photo by Segun Eubanks

Liberation Day

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

The African Liberation Day Panel Discussion on Friday, May 4, 1984 began with Dr. Alfred Moleah, author of "Namibia, struggle for liberation," discussing Namibia's present status. He said, "The people in Namibia continue struggling to survive."

Prof. David Du Bois discussed some aspects of the foreign policy. He said, "The Reagan administration is talked about because it is the present administration that we are suffering from." The Reagan administration has to maintain a status quo, said Du Bois. Its objective is to neutralize and undermine the ability of majority rule, said Du Bois, referring to South Africa's present condition.

Another objective is to undermine the role of the United Nations which the administration hopes to break up altogether, he said.

One way the adminstration can achieve this, Du Bois said, is by maintaining and expanding U.S. trade and to crush any efforts to attain an economic boycott.

One may ask how the administration can get away with such actions. The reason for this, is the "indigenous racism of the people in this country," Du Bois said. The people have no knowledge of the history of Africa, let alone knowledge of African cultures. The role of the media is to keep America in the dark about what's going on. He said this is also done to make the Africans appear ignorant. "South Africa is an example of the most powerful act of racism on earth today," he said.

As Americans, our first responsibility is to stop and turn around what is happening to African people," Du Bois said. We should begin this by providing areas with news about Africa. "We should provide information, to fill the gaps," he said. We should take initiative individually and electively; by organizing campaigns and boycotts.

We should also make sure that the issue of South Africa is on the agenda of all perspective candidates; and support those who are concerned - Jesse Jackson. He ended with "the two struggles are one."

Bob Moore then spoke on the perception of white people in Africa. He began by saying, "If America can accept the invasion of Grenada, then it is not surprising that what is going on in South Africa is accepted." He continued with, "To understand, you must see the truth in all problems." In the 1920's the major manifestation was the color line, the manifestation of the color line still exist today.

Most whites have grown up with the "Tarzan" aspect of white supremacy, Moore said Disneyland and Busch Gardens have jungle rides where the riders are traveling down the streams of Africa and Black savages come out of nowhere and frighten the riders. Textbooks portray Africa ignorantly also.

Agreeing with Prof. Du Bois, Moore said, "Action must be taken now," to put an end to racism.

Continued from page 1

to redefine their values and beliefs, and strive for what they want. "Use the experience of the past and avoid the pitfalls of the future. We (Third World people) are on the rise. Whatever we want, this is the time to take it. We have dominion over our own minds," he said.

Michael O'Neal said that his four years at UMass were not easy; that without CCEBMS, and his family, he would not be "walking out the door" as a senior.

Du Bois believes that our lives have been determined by monetary gains, but students should try to remember that they are expected to be the leaders of the future. "Leaders that remember from whence they came."

While Guavera said that their is a need for unity, equality and justice. "The struggle continues and together we will win."

On Family Day the Shirley Graham-Du Bois Award, the community service award, was presented to Michael Nauls and Sylvia Kinn. Michael Nauls is co-coordinator of the Malcolm X Center and Sylvia Kin is treasurer of Afrik-Am.

Media Manipulation

by Tracey Bryant
Nummo Staff

Editorial

There is one thing on the minds of many politically "concerned" whites today: How to make sure Blacks vote within the Democratic Party. They are trying to figure out how to manipulate Jackson and the Black voting population to insure a Democratic victory -anything but Reagan, except Jackson.

They don't have any confidence that Blacks will continue their loyalty to the Democratic Party after the Party eliminates Jackson from the nomination. And this lack of confidence is not illogical considering the fact that Blacks have no reason, besides Jesse Jackson presenting their interests, to be particularly loyal to the Democratic Party.

What I really resent is the consistent attempt to see and analyze Black people as a group that responds to events but does not consider them. They refuse to believe that Black people will continue to look after their best interest even if their best hope is delayed.

Many "concerned" whites would like to believe that 'this is politics' and Blacks are 'politically unsophisticated.' We have always had to choose between a rock and a hard place, even throughout American political history. This decision is no more difficult than many that have been made in the political past by Black people.

Is it that these "concerned" individuals and entities lack confidence in Black people's political adroitness or is that the right choice for Black people is not in the interest of these "concerned" entities?

If these concerned people and interest groups don't really believe that their interests are tied to that of Black people's, then it would be very necessary for concerned parties to convince Blacks that their interests lie with certain groups while denying any immediate interest or gain in the outcome.

Of course the media would be chiefest in such an endeavor having the perfect guise of fairness and objectivity. And the quickest way to sway a large group of people being led for the moment by one person would be persuade the leader.

A wise woman once said, "If you want to know what a journalist is trying to say or accomplishment, read the last paragraph." The first paragraph or so simply explains the subject matter. To understand the journalist's perceptions and biases, bypass the quotes and examine the journalist's paraphrasing and descriptive analysis.

The following is the first few paragraphs and the last paragraph of the May, 7, 1984 Time magazine cover story on Jesse Jackson by Evan Thomas. (Newsweek also did a cover story on Jackson.)

It is clear what this journalist is trying to do and why it was the cover story. Many Blacks read this story and had the same assessment. If we are politically unsophisticated, then the article is politically crude. Although it was journalistically correct, it was not honest. And that is our disillusionment with the American news media.

There is the Jesse Jackson thet blacks revere. He is the embodiment of black pride, an incandescent force glowing beside dull white politiciens, demending respect end "our feir shere." He is the powerbroker who is ignored or petronized at great risk.

There is the Jesse Jackson thet meny whites distrust end some even feer. He is the former black radical, the civil rights leeder who threetened white businessmen with economic boycotts, the presidential cendidete who celled Jews "Hymie" end New York City "Hymietown." In his shedow, neither embraced nor disavowed, stends Minister Louis Ferrakhan, leeder of the Netion of Islem, e Black Muslim sect, who has preised Hitler and seemed to threeten e black reporter with deeth.

In recent weeks, these conflicting prerceptions of Jesse Jackson have come to overshedow his remarkeble echievements in the Democretic primaries. Almost overnight, he shettered the prevailing wisdom thet e black could not make a credible run for the presidency.

But as his successes multiplied, so did concerns about his cendidecy. Would he raise the erm of the Democretic nominee in San Frencisco, or stelk engrily from the convention hall? Would he bring et the black vote for Democrats in November or sit sulking on the sidelines? Would his efforts lead to black political power or white backlesh?

Much depends on how Jackson handles himself in the weeks eheed. If he is intemperate in his public utterances, if he locks himself into unreelistic demands, he could wound the Democratic nominee, discredit himself end further divide the races. But if he reaches e rapprochement with the party's candidete, then campaigns for him in a temperate and intelligent way, Jackson could greatly enlerge the role of blecks in national poltics. In that way, Jesse Jackson's cendidacy could turn out to be e powerful and positive force, e reminder of the diversity end promise of American politics.

-by Evan Thomas

Full-fledged Kappa Alpha Psi brothers relaxing. photos by Segun Eubanks

Roving Reporter

"How do you feel about the tuition hike planned for next year?"

photo by Segun Eubanks

Bryant Lewis of the Upward Bound Program:

"Sure, I think there should be an increase. I had to deal with one."

Maria DaLuz, a Junior Art Major: "I disagree with the tuition increase because I think it will deny access to a portion of the students. Nobody should be denied be denied college education because he or or she does not have the money."

photo by Segun Eubanks

"I don't think that there should be tuition at all. I don't mean free tuition because that implies that you are giving something away. Everyone has a right to education."

Mitchell Smith of the A Better Chance House Program

photo by Segun Eubanks

"Never Another Battered Woman"

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

On Thursday, May 2nd, 1984 the Everywoman's Center sponsored a lecture/discussion on "Historical perspectives of the Batered Woman's Movement and its relationship to Violence Against Women in our Society." Author and Feminist activist, Susan Schechter, led the discussion, with the goal of "raising consciousness of violence against women," Schechter made it clear that "the essence of being victimized is when one's dignity is taken away; helplessness, is (then) experienced. She also said that many women, after they have been victimized, experience various feelings like rage, self-hatred, guilt or terror.

Twenty-five percent of the beatings last from 45 minutes to aboute 5 hours. Schecter said "women are always caught in double binds."

The other forms of abuse besides violence that women experience are emotional and economic. The emotional aspect for example, is when women are insulted and told things like, "if you were smarter, thingswould have turned out differently." One aspect of economic abuse is when the woman's check is taken away or she is only given a limited amout of money for groceries, the woman is then restricted.

Strong messages are sometimes used to make women fearful. When the separation of a couple occurs, and one morning the woman's dog is found dead in her car. If a man is capable of killing an animal-to maintain control, he may also be able to kill a person and/or sexually assault them Schecter said.

There are many after-effects of a beating. Women may loose their self-esteem along with the physical injuries. Women may also become drug abusers as a result of obsessive beatings.

What do the men gain? They usually gain a feeling of power, control, and in their opinions social standing.

Violence is socially created. Some men feel they have the right to beat women because they believe women are property. At one time it was legal for men to beat their wives, but this law no longer exists.

Schechter, "doesn't feel that tradition died in a year," (meaning with time). We are sometimes called "advocates for chnange," she said.

Shelters for battered women are facing cutbacks. Schechter said that "when there is fear in a relationship, there is inequality." She further stated that all women should become involved with what is going on in society

When women go to institutions for help, they are said to be hysterical neurotic or a hypercontriacts sha said. They are given a tranquilizer and sent home, this is the process of re-victimization. She also stated that many times, if the women is not hysterical, she is often not believed.

Many people encourage women to return to their abuser, because "he didn't really mean it, or it will be okay." said Schechter. This is not always true, because a lot of the beating continues, and the women continue to suffer, emotionally and physically, Schetcher explained.

Schecter said that what is not really considered, is that "this victimization can happen to anyone." Sometimes the abuse involves burns, strangulazation, cuts or stabs. She also said that the myth that battered women experience a momentary loss has to be corrected. The feelings of loss are not often always everlasting.

Continued from page 1

According to Cassandra Edwards, a Black Caucus and Southwest Area Government (SWAG) member, McCarthy informed her that the new deadline for nomination papers was Friday 12 noon. At approximately 10:30 Friday morning Edwards slipped the papers under the SWAG office door because no one was in.

According to McCarthy, he told Edwards that he would be in the SWAG office until 12 midnight Thursday; making that the nomination papers deadline.

Benowitz stamped the papers invalid because they did not meet the deadline he and McCarthy had discussed.

Sharon Jackson and Paula Williams, the people tha nomination papers were for will be taking the necessary steps to redress what they feel is unjust actions that impeded their democratic rights.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Tracey Bryant	Editor In Chief
Andrea Baker	Business Manager
Oneida Fox	Reporter
Yvonne Mendez	Layout Editor
Charles Rinehart	Graphics
Judith Russ	Typesetter
Donette Wilson	Researcher

• • • Contributors • • •

Ed Cohen	Photographer
Segun Eubanks	Correspondent
Marc-Elliot Giles	Photographer
Russell Jordan	Correspondent

Address all letters to the Editor to:
NUMMO NEWS, New Africa House 103

Announcements

★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★★

JEWISH WOMEN: 5 PERSPECTIVIES

A panel discussion on Jewish women's identities
Date: Thursday, May 3rd
Time: 7:00 pm.
Location: Campus Center 162 - 172 at UMass
Sponsored by the Jewish Feminist Group.

"DO LORD REMEMBER ME"
Location: Chapin Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke College
Date: Friday, Saturday May 5th and 6th
Time: 8:00 PM
Admission: 2:00 - Students, $3.00 - General Public

NEAG OFFICER ELECTION

Northeast Area Government is having officer elections.

Date: Tuesday, May 8, 1984
Time: 11:0 AM - 2:OO PM and 4:00 PM - 6:30 PM
Location: The Worcester Dining Commons in the barracks.

HUMAN RELATIONS FORUM

Date: Wednesday, May 9
Time: 12:00 - 1:30 PM
Location: Campus Center 917

MALCOM X PICNIC THROWDOWN!

Date: Sat. May 12, 1984
Time: 0:00 PM - 5:00 AM
Place: Hampden Student Building
DJ's: Husky and Mix Master Mike

MALCOM X PICNIC

Date: May 12, 1984
Time: 10:00 AM- 5:00 PM
Place: Southwest Horseshoe
Featuring Inner-City Galaxy Band from NYC, the Jamherst Breakers, a men and women's basketball tournament, poetry readings, and a day's full of activities.

Everywomen's Center at Umass/Amhest is looking for volunteers and interns to staff the resource room at EWC for the summer and fall. University and community women are invited to apply. Credit is available for this work for most UMass undergraduate students. College work-study may be available for the summer. Summer applications must be received by May 24 at 4:00 pm.

Interviews can be scheduled as applications are received. Staffing of the resoure room and orientation begin the week of May 27 - June 3rd.

Tired of the Meal Plan?

YVONNE'S PLACE

Monday - Friday
12:30 - 6:30 pm
A sample of treats include:

Fried Chicken
Island Curried Fish
Vegitarian Platter
Fried Rice
Curry

Thursday - Friday
Student Discount Days

Lamb
Shrimp
Beef
Curried Goat
Free Dessert

Basement of the New Africa House

545-2012

New at Yvonne's,
Tuesdays and Thursdays
The LUNCH BUCKET:
a bucket full of chicken
with a roll, cole slaw and potato salad.
Friday is Soul Food day.
Coffee and Donuts are served daily.
WEST INDIAN COOKING AT ITS BEST!!

CCEBMS/BCP SUMMER ADVISOR POSITIONS AVAILABLE

24 hour live-in positions.
DUTIES: Responsble for residential ife of students in the program, enforcement of University and Summer Program policies.
QUALIFICATIONS: Experience working with non-traditional and minority students.
Pick up applications from Greg Roberts, CCEBMS, New Africa House and Manuela Pacheco, BCP, Wilder Hall.

SCULPTURED CLAY MASKS

The Augusta Savage Gallery is hosting the mask works done by Prof. Femi Richards' Afro-American Studies 112 -"Sculpture/Clay" class.

COUNSELING SURVEYS

Please return you counseling survey as soon as possible. Your response can help improve counseling services. THANK YOU!

GOODWIN MEMORIAL
AME ZION CHURCH

TIME: Sunday School from 10-11 AM.
Sunday Services, 11 AM -12:30 PM.
LOCATION: 41 Woodside Ave., a half block off of route 9.
PASTOR: Rev. Samuel Henderson.
For more information: call the church at 256-0720 or the pastor in Springfield at 739-5450.

The Lesbian Union (L.U.) is open 9-5 daily. It is a relaxed, comfortable space where women can meet, talk, study and share.
Rap groups are held at the L.U. Thursday nights at 7 PM. Peer counseling Hotline, at 545-3409, is open Monday-Wednesday nights from 5-9 PM.
Along with the phone line, the office is open to all lesbians.

SUPPORT GROUP FOR BATTERED WOMEN

Everywoman's Center at UMASS will be sponsoring a support group for battered women, to begin in early June. The group, which will run for 8 weeks (dates to be announced) will focus on some common issues facing women who have been/or are in (physically/mentally) abusive relationships; such as fear, anger, making plans, family and friends reactions, and trying to recapture trust and security in relationships.

Confidentiality is assured.

For more information and to register for the group, please call Everywoman's Center at 545-0883.

JOB: ABC-TUTOR

"A Better Chance" House in Amherst needs a live-in science tutor for the 1984-85 academic year. Room and Board are providing free in exchanging for a committment to tutor academically promising minority students attending Amherst Regional High School.

Deadline: Send resume and transcript by Ma 15 to: JoAnn James, 80 Valley View Drive, Amherst, Ma. 01002

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 67 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Tuesday, May 8, 1984

Former arson suspect files suits for $13 million

UMass officials, FBI named as defendants

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student formerly charged with arson is seeking $13 million in two lawsuits filed yesterday charging more than 15 defendants with violations of her rights in connection with her arrest and subsequent suspension from the University last December.

Yvette I. Henry, 20, a senior chemistry major from Philadelphia, was arrested Dec. 2 and charged with setting the 15th fire in her dormitory, Crampton House, last semester, which was discovered when a student returned from a shower to find papers on her desk on fire.

Following the arrest, Henry was held overnight in jail, suspended and barred from the University and fired from her job as a Resident Assistant. She was later permitted back on campus to attend classes only in the presence of an escort. All charges against her were dropped Dec. 23 for lack of evidence.

The suits, filed in U.S. District Court in Springfield, seek $6.5 million each in compensatory damages on a total of 17 counts charging law enforcement agencies and University officials with violating Henry's rights. The charges include false arrest and imprisonment, illegal search and seizure of her property, invasion of privacy, defamation, negligence, illegal suspension, eviction, interrogation and termination of employment. The case, which requests a jury trial, will not be heard for three to five years, according to Henry's attorneys.

Defendants named in one suit include the FBI, State Fire Marshall Joseph A. O'Keefe, the University, State Trooper Jay Bowman, Director of UMass Public Safety Gerald T. O'Neil, associate Director Philip J. Cavanaugh, Dean of Students William F. Field, Executive Director of Housing Services Joseph A. Zannini, police officers and unidentified University personnel.

The second suit names the University, Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, News Bureau Director Arthur S. Clifford, Field, O'Neil, Cavanaugh and housing staff.

The complaints allege that the arrest of Henry, a black woman, was based on racial considerations in connection with a psychological profile compiled by the FBI to target suspects in the rash of more than 40 small fires found mostly in trash cans, bathrooms and on bulletin boards across campus last fall.

The evening of her arrest, Henry was "induced by trickery and deceit" to accompany officers to a trailer near the UMass police station, where she was questioned for up to three hours without legal counsel and then arrested, according to the complaint.

Henry has suffered public contempt and ridicule from "slanderous, false and defamatory" statements issued to the press and others that "directly or by innuendo" falsely accused her of setting numerous fires at the University, the suit stated. In addition, Henry's academic record does not yet reflect full credit for her fall courses, which will affect her ability to graduate this month as well as her future employment or education, the complaint says.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Richard Cole (left) of Boston, Charles J. DiMare (center) of UMass Legal Services Office and Harry L. Miles at Northampton discuss the lawsuits at a press conference yesterday.

In addition to compensatory damages, the suits seek a mandate forbidding the release of all records compiled during the investigation and the erasure of any references to actions against Henry from her school record. They also seek an order for the completion of Henry's academic file as well as punitive damages.

University counsel Sidney Myers could not be reached for comment, but Daniel Melley, director of UMass community relations, said the University believes proper procedures were followed.

Henry's attorneys, Charles DiMare of the UMass student Legal Services Office; Richard Cole of Boston and Harry L. Miles of Northampton yesterday declined to comment on efforts made to settle the case out of court. Depositions are scheduled to begin in early July, they said.

Worried student plans treetop vigil

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts senior's concern about declining enrollment in the Stockbridge School of Agriculture has driven him up a tree.

Richard Barrett, 23, a senior landscape operations major from Millis, said he will stay in a tree off of North Pleasant Street until Friday afternoon to draw attention to and demonstrate the extent of his concern "to increase enrollment and awareness of the Stockbridge School of Agriculture."

"If one person more comes to Stockbridge, I guess that's successful," Barrett said.

A few weeks after a Stockbridge Student Senate meeting about declining enrollment in the school, Barrett, who is also president of the Stockbridge fraternity Alpha Tau Gamma, said he decided the best way to gain publicity was to do something "zanny and crazy."

"At the meeting people just blew a lot of hot air about what they should do to increase enrollment and I came up with the idea of sitting in a tree for five days to increase attention," he said.

Iona Mae Reynolds, associate director of Stockbridge, said 304 students are currently enrolled in the school's two year program. Like other schools at the University of Massachusetts, Stockbridge is limited by University space and accomodations. Reynolds said 250 first year students can be admitted into the program but only 154 freshman are currently enrolled.

Barrett said enrollment has declined because people are not aware of the educational opportunities that Stockbridge offers in fields such as turf management, landscape operations, agriculture business management and animal agriculture.

Barrett said his professors said he was "crazy" but are supportive and told him "to go for it, more or less." He added that he is not worried about missing classes because he only has final projects due before his graduation later this month.

Other Alpha Tau Gamma members said they will help Barrett by sending food and other necessities in a plastic milk carton to the four by eight foot platform located

Continued on page 3

Collegian photo by Larry Cabans

UP A TREE — Richard Barrett began yesterday his five day vigil in a tree to call attention to the declining enrollment of the Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

Dr. Ruth advocates sexual frankness

By JIM FINKLE
Collegian Staff

Celebrity psycho-sexual therapist Ruth Westheimer entertained more than 700 University of Massachusetts students last night with her frank talk on such topics as orgasm, contraception and masturbation.

"When I teach human sexuality, I never ask a personal question," Westheimer said. "I never ask a student to stand up and tell us with which hand do you masturbate."

Westheimer has captivated audiences over the past three years through a weekly radio program over New York radio station WNYN. Over the past two years the 47" therapist has made regular appearances on Late Night With David Letterman and The Tonight Show.

But, in her private practice as a professional psychosexual therapist, Westheimer—known as Doctor Ruth to her many fans—does ask detailed questions about her patients' sex lives.

"When things go well in my office, I know what A, B and C are doing tonight because I told them what to do," she said. "I also know how X, Y and Z are masturbating because I told them how."

During her two-hour presentation, Westheimer attempted to dispell what she called "myths and misconceptions" about sex.

"All of us come from a Victorian, puritan background," she said, referring to several myths and taboos society holds regarding sex.

While discussing myths about contraception, Westheimer criticized the withdrawal method of birth control as being

Continued on page 3

INSIDE:

Seven chemical companies agree to pay $180 ..... million to Vietnam veterans ..... p. 2

Lacrosse defeats UNH 12-6 ..... p. 12

"You'd be surprised how much being a good actor pays off."
— Ronald Reagan

World and National News

Agent Orange makers offer victims $180,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven chemical companies yesterday agreed to pay $180 million in a tentative out-of-court settlement with 15,000 Vietnam veterans who claimed injuries from exposure to Agent Orange.

U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein announced the settlement as jury selection was to begin in a class-action trial of the veterans' damage claims. The payments will go into special bank accounts and, with interest, could amount to a $250 million fund to pay the claims for damages from exposure to the wartime herbicide.

Weinstein said he would withhold his approval of the settlement until public hearings were held to determine whether it was fair.

If the settlement is approved, the money will be paid out over six years, and funds will be kept in reserve for up to 25 years to cover claims for future illnesses, said Kenneth Feinberg, a court-appointed attorney who will help administer the settlement.

The veterans contended they suffered cancer, liver and nerve damage, skin problems, sensitivity to light and mental disturbances because they were forced to handle Agent Orange, march through areas sprayed with it and drink from streams contaminated by it.

Wives of some veterans said they had miscarriages because of their husbands' exposure, and children of the ex-soldiers allegedly had birth defects because of their fathers' exposure.

The veterans did not specify how much they sought in damages.

No information was available as to how the payments will be divided among the chemical companies. None of the defendants' lawyers were present at yesterday's court session.

Under the settlement, none of the chemical companies admit liability for the injuries. They had argued that if anyone was at fault, it was the U.S. military for misusing the product.

The settlement stipulates that both sides reserve the right to sue the U.S. government for misuse of the chemical.

However, only the veterans' relatives have pending claims against the government. A serviceman cannot sue the government for claims arising out of his service.

"We do have significant concerns about the settlement. It would appear that the government, for example, is not obligated in any way and that could cause problems in the future," said John Terzano, vice-president of Vietnam Veterans of America, in Washington.

But he added, "We think this would be a stimulus to a legislative remedy also." He attributed the chemical company's willingness to settle to fear that they would be found culpable.

El Salvador returns show Duarte ahead

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Moderate presidential candidate Jose Napoleon Duarte held the lead yesterday over ultra-right opponent Roberto d'Aubuisson in balloting that drew hundreds of thousands of Salvadorans to the polls.

Unofficial tabulations by both sides in Sunday's runoff gave Duarte, a Christian Democrat, the edge over d'Aubuisson, candidate of the Republican Nationalist Alliance.

Christian Democrat unofficial figures show Duarte winning with about 55 percent of the vote.

At a news conference yesterday, d'Aubuisson said figures compiled by his party, known as ARENA, show Duarte with a slight lead. He predicted an outcome so close that neither party will be able to ignore the political force of the other in the government.

The voting was largely free of rebel disruption and of the bureaucratic bungling that marred the first round.

However, d'Aubuisson said ARENA has proof of many voting irregularities.

AP Laserphoto

VICTORY RIDE — Jose Napolean Duarte is hoisted on the shoulders of supporters on his arrival at the Christian Democratic Party headquarters in El Salvador Monday.

Digest

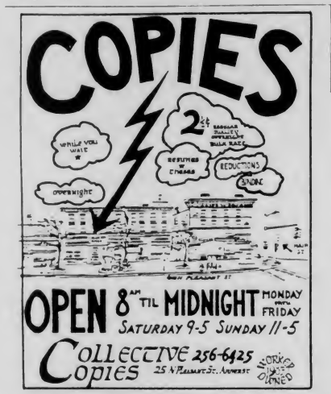
By The Associated Press

Former Tufts professor sentenced for slaying

DEDHAM — A pudgy anatomy professor was given an 18-20 year prison term yesterday for killing his young lover with a sledgehammer—a crime the prosecutor said he "would have gotten away with" if police hadn't staged a massive investigation.

"The investigation has shown this defendant to be a pathological liar," said prosecutor John Kivlan in seeking the maximum sentence against William H. Douglas, 42, a former Tufts University professor.

"Were it not for an unprecedented and exhaustive investigation by the commonwealth, he would have gotten away with it," Kivlan told Judge Roger Donahue in Norfolk Superior Court.



"He pleaded guilty at the last minute because he knew—body or no body—that the commonwealth could prove he killed her."

Death penalty laws called unconstitutional

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Legislature, eager to pass a death penalty statue in 1982 before Gov. Michael S. Dukakis returned to office, approved a law that contains several constitutional defects, attorneys told the state Supreme Court yesterday.

Lawyers for three Worcester men accused of murdering a state trooper asked the court to strike down the law on several grounds. They said one unclear passage would allow defendants to avoid capital punishment if the pleaded guilty—but face the death penalty if they tried to prove their innocence through a trial.

"I can't possibly conceive of a defendant who chooses a course of defense that could lead to the death penalty," defense attorney Donald Deren said. "...As human beings they would take the least line of risk."

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS

$7.00 * (with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
• Valid with Barb & Julie only C

FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST
For students planning to take
English 112
(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984
THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)
MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)
No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument

LAND
Terrific Bargain
10 acres ONLY $8000
Northfield -
Only 25 mi. to Amherst.
For info and terms just call owner.
802-257-4347 Days
802-254-9369 Eves.

4.75 To Start
Part-time positions available for dependable people to take physical retail inventories in Boston and nort: areas. Nationwide service needs people over 18 with phc 'e and transportation. No experience necessary, only good math skills.
Must have weekend availabilty. Daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule allows you to average at least 40 - 80 hours a month.
Paid training on our audit calculators $5.00 per hour in 30 days provided you complete our training requirements. Opportunity for advancement. For more information call Mr. Kreplick.
617-938-9119 or 692-3040
Summer employment. Full-time next January.
See Student Employment Office

LEARN TO FLY

inexpensively earn your pilots license University Club open to five colleges. Cessna based in Northampton
546-4827 Introductory Rides 665-2577

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Cris Schuster
Copy Editor — Ian Polumbaum
Layout Technician — Will Hopkins
Photo Technician — Andy Heller
Production Supervisor — Mat Atkins
Production — John Wielgus, Mike Lennon, Tim Riviere, Suzanne Lewis, Lisa A. Reynolds, Jon O'Hearn, Marianne Walsh

Dastardly Dans
TUESDAY and THURSDAY NITES
$3.00 all the draft beer you can drink
9 pm - 12 midnight

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

Gordon NcKibben, editor of the Boston Globe Business section spoke last night about how the media reports business.

Reporters from Boston Globe stress importance of business

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

The better newspapers in the country take business seriously because it is an important fact of life, according to the Boston Globe business section editor.

A panel of four Boston Globe business reporters, moderated by journalism professor James Boylan, addressed a small audience last night at the University of Massachusetts about "How media reports business."

"The Boston Globe can and should cover New England business better than anyone," Gordon NcKibben, the business section editor, said. "That's our real reason for being."

NcKibben said the Globe has a staff of 300 people, 20 of whom work in the business section, originally called the "Economy" section.

"Business economy coverage is getting a little more respect," NcKibben said. "We're attracting some of the very best reporters both in this region and all over the U.S."

Jan Wong, the banking and finance reporter, said, "There is usually money behind every story. Businesses don't want to tell you anything. I find that really challenging."

Wong said it is hard to convey the excitement of reporting business on paper but it is exciting when one company takes over another.

Ron Rosenberg, the high technology and computer reporter, said, "The number of high technology stories one can cover is so diverse."

He said the stories he writes now couldn't have been written two to five years ago because the industry has changed so quickly — both big and small companies are now in people's homes in every way.

Kirk Scharfenberg, deputy editor of the editorial page, said he writes mostly anti-business stories.

"(Big business) is such a dominant culture and almost no one is speaking out against it," Scharfenberg said. "The business page is not going to cover the wacko things on the editorial page."

Speaker: Hasidic Judaism does not exploit women

By TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

The Torah, the Jewish holy scripture, describes the value of women as human beings and dismisses any possibility of the exploitation of women, according to the Co-Director of Chabad House, Shifra Deren, Jewish women who spoke at a recent panel discussion at the University of Massachusetts.

Deren, said that within the Hasidic community, on which strictly follows the Torah, the family is valued greatly.

"Family and children are the commitments in my life," she said. "It's a lifestyle that I chose."

Deren discussed the stereotypes associated with the traditional Jewish woman's life.

"The husband is not dominant and the wife is not passive, submissive," Deren said. "In a typical Hasidic home, 'best friends' or 'partnership' is appropriate for husband and wife," she said.

"Every child is a source of blessing," Deren said of her large family. Parents giving the best they can means showing children how to care, share and recognize the needs of others," she said.

"The focus of Judaism is to make the world a better place," Deren said. "In a broader sense, parents and children mean teachers and students."

Ora Zehavi, an Israeli woman who has been in the United States only nine months, spoke about the economic, historical and political situations in Israel affect in women.

Women there must join the Israeli Army, work to support the family, and educate and help raise children, Zehavi said.

"Still, women dress nicely, they go to events, they are involved," she said. Through radio, T.V. and newspapers. "Women are always speaking political," she said.

Women are involved in many volunteer organizations to improve life in Israel, Zehavi said.

"I think it's harder for a woman to live in Israel than it is to live in the United States," she said.

There are many ways to be Jewish, said Felice Yeskel, a lesbian and feminist. She said friends once told her that being Jewish is not what one believes, but what one does and how one lives.

"I feel a sense of responsibility to a people and a religion that has struggled for many years," Yeskel said. But there is something about the way traditional Judaism is set up that is not right, she said.

The Jewish community often excludes lesbians, she said.

But the lesbian-feminist community, in turn is often very anti-Semetic, she added.

"It is often a very confusing and painful feeling and process," Yeskel said.

"There is an emerging culture and community of Jewish lesbians, Jewish feminists," Yeskel said. "I feel like I'm finding a tradition, rescuing a tradition and creating a tradition all at the same time."

★ Treetop Vigil

Continued from page 1

about 30 feet from the ground. Barrett said he will sleep in a hammock about 50 feet from the ground which will be covered with a canvas to protect him from rain.

"I plan to do homework, reading and maybe a little pruning perhaps," Barrett joked.

One of Barrett's instructors, Dennis Ryan, an assistant professor of Landscape Architecture, said he supports his student's action.

"I think it's unique. The whole idea is to draw attention to Stockbridge and that's fine," Ryan said. "I think Stockbridge has been looked on as a second class citizen for a long time and there is no reason for it."

William Simard, 21, a senior turf management major who is helping Barrett in his endeavor, said, "I think he can make it come off and get people interested. A lot of people are interested in turf management, landscaping and breeding animals but they don't know where to get the education."

Stockbridge, established in 1918, is one of about six schools in the country that have a two year program where students are taught by university faculty, Reynolds said.

★ Dr. Ruth

Continued from page 1

both physiologically and psychologically dangerous. "He is worried 'will I pull out in time,'" she said. "She is worried 'will he pull out in time.'"

She recommended a system in which both the man and woman shared responsibility for contraception by alternating the use of a condom and a diaphragm with vaginal cream.

"I believe in women carrying condoms in their pocketbooks," she said. "They come in all colors now. They can match any pocketbook."

Similarly, the male must be trained to insert a diaphragm into a woman properly, she said. "If we can train physicians to do it, then we can certainly train every good lover."

During her weekly radio talk show in which listeners ask her explicit sexual questions, Westheimer said she tries to answer questions with a sense of humor.

The funniest question she has been asked during her broadcasting career came from a man who said he had a "terrific relationship with his girlfriend," she said. "He said to me, 'she likes to toss onion rings on my erect penis.'"

"I giggled just like you did," she told the audience. "I always try to visualize the questions my listeners are asking me."

The presentation was co-sponsored by the Distinguished Visitors Program and the Governor's Program Council.

Burned poster found in dorm

By TOM MILLETON
and BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

At 2:33 a.m. Saturday, a burnt poster was found on the door to a room on the 4th floor of John Adams Dormitory, University of Massachusetts police reported. An alarm on the floor was sounded and the building was evacuated before police arrived, they said. The Amherst Fire Department and Environmental Health and Safety officials responded.

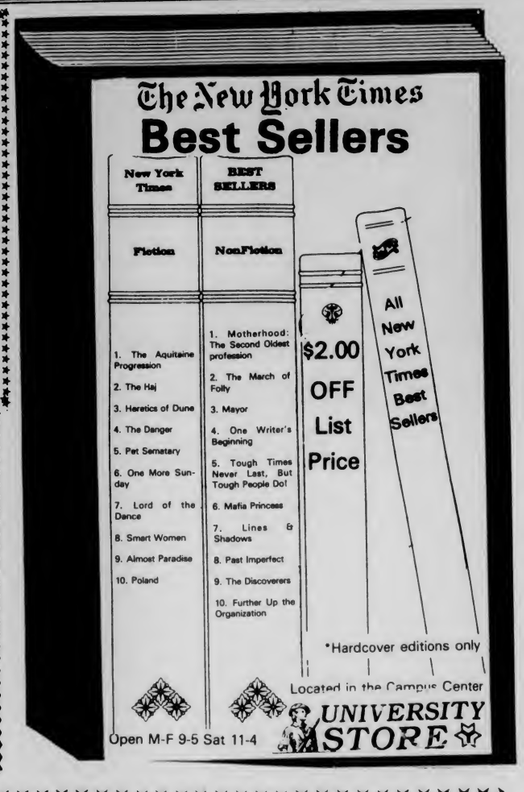
A man was placed under protective custody Sunday after he was diagnosed as being intoxicated after almost knocking down the medical tent while chasing after his dog at the Spring Concert, according to police. During a scuffle with police an officer's fingers were injured and the man was subsequently placed in custody and had to be carried into a cell, police said. The man's dog bit someone and was taken to the pound, police said.

Between 11:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. police on foot patrol confiscated several small bags of marijuana and three smoking pipes at the Spring Concert Sunday, police said. No arrests were made in the incidents, according to police.

Several pieces of camera equipment valued at $1,600 stolen from Mackimmie Dormitory were recovered Sunday by police after an anonymous call from an emergency telephone in Lot 21 near the Southwest Residential area, police said. The equipment, some of it damaged, was left on the ground in the parking lot, police said. The items were taken sometime between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 12 p.m. Saturday from a room which had been used for a photography workshop.

Amherst police reported they answered 142 calls over the weekend, and reported that the Speed and Alcohol Patrol stopped 54 cars but made no arrests.

Police made two arrests involving erratic operation of a motor vehicle. A 28-year-old Belchertown man was arrested about 12:30 a.m. Saturday on Main Street and a 21-year-old Pine Grove resident was arrested about 1 a.m. Sunday on Shumway Street both for erratic driving and operating while intoxicated.



Collegian photo by Larry Cabana

BECOMING AWARE — As part of Handicapped Awareness Day, Kelli Connelly and Warren Gossels, both sophomores, tried to raise their awareness of handicappism by riding in wheelchairs yesterday.

SUMMER JOB INTERVIEWS
Wednesday, May 9th
Room 178, Campus Center
Applications and advanced sign-up at Student Employment Office, Rm. 239A, Whitmore.
The Association for the Help of Retarded Children, Nassau County Chapter, operates a summer residential camp for the mentally retarded in the Catskill Mts. at Hunter, NY.
Positions available:
Male/Female General Cabin Counselors
Male/Female Counselors to work with our profoundly retarded campers
Program Counselors to instruct Nature & Sewing
R.N.'s, W.S.I.'s, Office & Kitchen Staff
CAMP LOYALTOWN, AHRC
189 Wheatley Road, Brookville, NY 11545
(516) 626-1000, Ext. 31
We are particularly looking for energetic and empathetic men to work with our male campers.

Handicapped Awareness Days

Handicapped Awareness Days are happening today and tomorrow on the Campus Center Concourse. Workshops, films, speakers and special events. Look for our table on the Concourse.
sponsored by the Handicapped Students Collective, the Commuter Area Government, and the Student Activities Offices.

Grand Prize Drawing at the SPRING FESTIVAL
Blue Wall
11:30 - 1:30 May 9th
LUCKY KEY WINNERS
drawing for the following prizes
2 Sony Watchman TV AM/FM
5 Magnavox 5 inch outside TV
3 Sony AM/FM stereo
Coke
Treasure Chest

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Racism is too pervasive

Last semester a rash of small fires plagued Crampton dormitory in Southwest. The Federal Bureau of Investigation (F.B.I.) was called in by the chancellor and systematically narrowed the list of suspects in the dorm, which was more than 80 percent white, to five women. All five suspects were women of color. The F.B.I. singled out its suspects on the basis of a psychological study which profiled the arsonist as being a woman of color.

A Black Resident Assistant from Philadelphia, was charged with setting one of the fires in Crampton House on December 2, 1983. She was arrested after the F.B.I. analyzed a note allegedly left by the arsonist. The F.B.I. specialists concluded after a grammatical analysis that the note was probably written by a person of color.

This semester, the Collegian printed a racist cartoon. Subsequently, the paper's Black Affairs editor, wrote an editorial condemning the paper's Board of Editors for printing the racist cartoon. Shortly afterwards she was suspended and then reinstated.

Meanwhile, the Amherst College Board of Trustees published a controversial report which stated that students at that white dominated institution of higher learning are of a superior genetic makeup, thus lending credence to the doctrine of white supremacy.

The descriptions supplied here are only brief glimpses at a problem that plagues both our society and our system of higher education. Racism in the United States is the result of this country's historically biased social, cultural, economic and political systems which have worked to the advantage of whites at the expense of people of color.

Racism is prejudice reinforced by the power of a society's institutions. In our society whites are in control of our governmental, educational, judicial, industrial, military, and business institutions. Clearly, our society has been dominated by whites from the days of slavery to the present. In this way our society is eurocentrically based, and because of this, only whites in the United States can be racist. Certainly, if people of color were in charge of our major institutions they too would have the power necessary to enforce prejudices they may have and therefore be racists.

Our educational system is the engine that drives our major institutions and therefore it has the potential to reinforce or break down the pervasive influence of racism. Thus far the educational establishment in this country has not been totally responsive to society's needs in this regard. For example, it is common practice in high schools to use I.Q. tests reflecting white middle class values as a tool to track students. The Scholastic Aptitude Tests that college admissions officers use to gauge applicant's ability to handle a college curriculum are culturally focused such that individuals brought up in white middle class environments have a decided advantage. Sadly, this is appropriate considering the fact that most college curriculums attempt to address the interests of white upper middle class students.

Throughout the "average" student's educational experience, one is taught that Columbus discovered America, but nary a whisper is heard of his having presided over the genocide of the Arawak Indians. We are taught to appreciate the contributions of men like George Washington and Thomas Jefferson, but few of us learn the work of W.E.B. DuBois and Harriet Tubman. The curriculum, student body, faculty and administration at UMass all reflect the racial inequalities that pervade higher education in the United States.

Most of us study a traditional curriculum; 93 percent of our student population is white; our faculty is predominantly white and male; and, our administration is top heavy with white males.

The mere fact that people of color make up 23 percent of this country's population, and less than 7 percent of our student population, attests to the fact that educational opportunities are not comparable for all members of our society.

If this country is to continue to move forward we must change our attitudes about race. Education provides the impetus for progress, and in order for us to effect real social change, we must achieve real educational reform. If we are to flourish, racial inequity and awareness must be priorities for the students of today, and the teachers of tomorrow.

The SCERA Anti-Racism Team is a recognized student organization

SCERA Anti-Racism team

Salvador election's impact

With Jose Napoleon Duarte as the likely victor in El Salvador's elections, the Administration will undoubtedly be glad for an improved climate to win additional military aid. Not that the ideological differences with its old protege Roberto d'Aubuisson are all that substantial. Both Republican organizations seem to share a minimal concern for human rights. Why else would Reagan trash human rights requirements, or try to tie military aid to African food aid and low-income fuel assistance? Both were low, last-ditch attempts to sever military aid from humanitarian concerns, although the latter maneuver stupidly suggested the opposite process. What motivates the Administration and the CIA to support Duarte is the prospect of aid, not the injustices which they have heretofore found more convenient to ignore.

Thomas Pitoniak

Let's hope that Duarte and others can accomplish real reforms in the government and the military. But unfortunately the right-wing possesses a tenacious concern for self-preservation. As you may recall, the Defense Minister is that great lover of humanity, Gen. Eugenio Vides Casanova. In an interview at the end of April, the General had these grim words of warning: "Whoever commits the error of trying to change the institution at full speed will not obtain anything." He is confident that the military will be respected, with himself as a prime mover behind a "new" El Salvador. "After the elections, a united armed forces will bring the nation together." (Times; "Duarte Vows to Crush Death Squads"; May 1) One must wonder what changes will occur with the armed forces as agents of unity.

Duarte will assume the role of commander-in-chief. But constitutionally, the military chooses its own leaders; it has committees to analyze unfavorable elements and to identify potential threats. They are deathly effective. Prof. R. J. Henle reminds us in a letter in the April 23 New York Times of the committee on the media: "Recall the military's destruction of the two independent newpapers, with the torture and murder of one editor and the escape of the other into the Mexican embassy."

It is similar in some ways to the disproportionate roles of the military and the CIA in the determination of our own Central American policy. Among other business, the CIA has been prodding rebel groups by threatening to withhold aid. Jose Davila Menbreno, a leader of the Costa Rica-based contra group Democratic Revolutionary Alliance (ARDE), says they have received "little envelopes from friends that contained as little as $5000 or as much as $60,000." The CIA has even threatened to raid headquarters of sluggish rebels. It won't deny that it has paid the head of the Salvadoran Treasury $90,000. The head of that police arm, Col. Nicolas Carranza, is widely suspected of being involved in the rightist death squads.

Of course, the Senate Intelligence committee has respected Casey's projects. In response to requests to investigate CIA-death squad links, they assigned the task to, who else, the CIA itself. Don't expect too many revelations. Of course, this only bothers those who have the audacity to complicate anti-communist hysteria by bringing up the unpopular topic of human beings and their right to live unharassed. Quick -tell me about the planned Cuban offensive.

If Reagan has his way, we may be off to war in 1985. The greatest force holding us back is the November elections; otherwise the domino theory is the order of the day. Witness Reagan's planned speech to accuse Congress of being to blame if El Salvador goes "down the tubes." Besides skirting his own moral negligence, this is absurd. He is already blessed with a complacent Senate, a confused House, and a wonderfully uninformed public. After all, what matters is not how much human rights violations decrease, but how much awareness and concern is obscured by communophobia.

Mr. Duarte has spoken boldly against the terrorism in El Salvador, and deserves credit for speaking of negotiations with the left. If he tries to clean up the military and government, however, he will need real help and support. Unfortunately, Reagan is more likely to be concerned with using a Duarte victory for political enhancement as a champion of human rights. He will also use it in his crusade for military aid, meanwhile forgetting the original social and economic problems which engender revolution and instability. The people of this world deserve a little more concern.

Thomas Pitoniak is a Collegian columnist

Letters

Ignorance isn't bliss

To the Editor,

I would like to respond to an editorial in Tuesday's Collegian, written by Jonathan W. Homes. Mr. Homes would like to know why people are consistently arguing about political questions while the sun is shining and the break of spring is to be celebrated.

As there have been Collegian editorials in the past that I have disagreed with, I still respect anyone willing to go out on a limb and state their case. I feel that I have not practiced my democratic right (some would say "obligation") to respond with my own views. However, when Mr. Homes took a political stand (whether he thinks so or not) denouncing those who take political stands, I was prompted to reply.

Someone please tell Homes that the sun may be shining when the first bomb is dropped. Luckily, there are those who work to avoid human catastrophe before the fact, rather than sitting on their rear ends celebrating non-involvement and blissful ignorance. Welcome to 1984 Mr. Homes; it's your year.

Glenn Pierce
Amherst

A UMass specialty

In today's world of technological advancement, the overall success in such fields as medicine have increased beyond earlier beliefs. Man has discovered ways to cure his body from diseases of all kinds, from such major procedures as organ transplants to simple techniques such as brushing and flossing teeth. Hold on, your saying! Right? What do heart failures and cavities have in common? The answer: both are health problems that effect a large majority of the American population.

Contrary to popular belief, dental disease,, mainly in the form of cavities (caries) and gum disease (periodontal disease), is not normal, but it is common. The fact of the matter is that seventy-five percent of America's population over the age of twenty-one have some form of periodontal disease. Fifty percent of all Americans do not get the professional dental attention that they so vitally need. Many people do not realize the implications of poor dental hygiene and the consequences that face them in the future.

In the past, a restorative approach was taken in the field of dentistry. It was simply acceptable to get cavities and to lose your teeth as you reached your fifties. However, research into these two problems shows that they are easily prevented by proper oral hygiene.

So why am I writing this article to you, the UMass student? I'm trying to awaken some of you to the fact that you have a great resource within your grasp. The University Health Service's Dental clinic and its peer-education program are truly unique in the field.

The first part of this program is run not only by dentists and dental hygienists, but by concerned pre-dental students. Your peers teach you the proper techniques of brushing and flossing in an atmosphere that is casual and not embarrassing. Pre-dental students such as myself, can identify with your problems and needs, therefore, we can better assist you in solving them. The class lasts only one hour; that's it! Surely, you can find an hour in your busy schedule to learn something so important.

The second part of the UHS Dental Service is the clinic itself. This office is staffed with several great dentists and dental hygienists, all prepared to help patients with general and specific problems. The clinic's philosophy is to stress prevention. Therefore, upon your requested visits to the office, the hygienist reviews preventive techniques previously taught to you in the class.

The clinic does charge for some services, but not the class. These costs are very reasonable by today's price standards. Detailed information can be obtained at the clinic itself.

Even if you think you have no problems with oral hygiene, you can always learn something new. A visit to the short class might just save you some problems in the future.

Overall, the staff at the clinic will teach you something not too many others will — how to prevent serious and expensive problems before they start. Stop in and find out what you're missing.

By Steven M. Bobrowski
Central

BODY SHOP
SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00
X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18
Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F 7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm
Summer workouts start June 4
LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL

MOLLY'S
ANTIQUE AND VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-549-6446 MON-SAT. 10-5:00

GARDEN
ROTO TILLING
Prompt Reasonable Reliable
323-5120

of mice and men
by john steinbeck
may 3-5, 9-12 · 8pm
rand theater, university of massachusetts
tickets: fac box office - 545-2511

Soft Contact Lens Center
Extended wear soft lenses from $48. ea.
Daily wear Soft lenses from $25. ea.
Heat disinfecting units $12.95 reg. $30.
Check out these
Contact Lens Solution Prices
Opti-clean Reg 2.98 SALE 1.98
Sensitive Eyes System Reg 3.75 SALE 2.49
Adapettes Reg 1.00 SALE .50
Soft Contact Lens Deluxe Cases Reg. 3.75 SALE 1.98
Many more Solutions on Sale COME & SEE
B & L Sunglasses 20% off
Vuarnet Sunglasses 20% off with this ad
Amherst Optical Shoppe 195 N Pleasant St 256-6403
Amherst Optical Shoppe 170 University Dr. 253-5412
in the Amherst Med Ctr.

WANTED
People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term.
Please call the
Ride Service
545-2148
Sponsored by: The Commuter Area Gov't

BLUE WALL
18+ / PUBLIC WELCOME
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
99¢
TUES. Sponsored by GPC
COMEDY NIGHT
featuring LIVE BOSTON COMEDIANS
WED. A Dancin' Good Time with
CIRCLE
THURS. Cecil Brooks and ETHNIC FUNK
FRI NIGHTCLUBBING
with a Special WMUA D.J.

Arts

Performance Art for the '80s

"Interaction Arts"
Performance Art from NYC

By CHARLES FRANCIS CARROLL
Collegian Staff

A group of five artists representing "Interaction Arts" of New York came to the University this past weekend for two days of performance art, a show Friday evening with computer, film, solo & group improvization, dance, and art jokes, and a workshop and slide presentation on Saturday afternoon.

Performance art is the rage of late in New York and has been packing them in at studios, stages, and galleries in Soho and Off-Broadway, but the university community could only muster a small audience for these young yet prestigious artists. But the lack of numbers allowed a rarely achieved interaction between the performers and the privileged few who attended the events sponsored by the Graduate Art Students Association and the UMass Arts Council.

On Friday, "Interaction Arts" displayed the talents of the individual members with five acts, one right after the other. The first featured Joe Lowery who performed something of a detective story that blended the suspense of Dashiell Hammet with the lingo of Anthony Burgess in a computerized Clockwork Orange. There was even a standup comic spiff of The Myth of Sisyphus in between the video voice program and prose narrative interweave.

The second act was no less intense, featuring playwright Frank South and choreographer Debra Wanner in a dance routine which divided the audience's attention between a campus salesman for American Express, Eurail Pass, Insurance, etc. and an energetic dancer. Wanner's dance was captivating and liberating at the same time, and yet had to compete with South's barker pitch which he delivered with a kind of Jerry Lewis/Tony Perkins angst. This act was drawn out to the maximum absurdity, making one wish we would never see another advertisement or hear another sales pitch again.

Next, Bill Gordh performed quick Dada skits, interplaying infantile feelings with complete nonsense to give the impression of childhood and regression, a desperate helplessness. I was caught slighly offguard then as Bill Gordh departed and Jerri Allyn took the stage. Wasn't that her on the poster with the teddy bear?

As a woman's voice came over the auditorium's speaking system and began a monologue questioning the social definitions of words like "queer" and "normal," Allyn would speak at times into the mike and over the sound system, entering the monologue and making it a dialogue, occasionally joined by another female voice, to emphasize certain points in their argument against sexual stereotypes, gender classification, and homosexual discrimination.

After a short dance film, Junction, shown with the accompaniment of Bill Gordh's guitar, the Smith Bros. performed zanily to the accompaniment of a beer bottle. If I were to explain their act, it would only deform it. But it would go something like the following: Three men, Lowry, South, and Gordh, interact in a room with chairs, beers, and a teddy bear.

Each in his own way and all together, they portray relationships between individuals who have become so hopelessly confused by their social malaise that they are unable to act in any way other than as fools. The Smith Bros. expose the shallows of society by exploring the depths of the human condition, until fading into a meaninglessness approaching death if only in its overcoming the meaning of life. And yet they make us laugh at the frailty of our condition with a stage presence as spirited as the Marx Bros.

On Saturday, the artists gave a slide presentation documenting performance art, before leading smaller group workshops. During a question and answer period, I asked "What distinguishes performance art from theater?" From the various responses the only clear distinction was the different traditions and origins between the two forms of performance.

Of Mice and Men shines

By STEPHEN HOWE
Collegian Staff

Critics and biographers agree that John Steinbeck wrote his small masterpiece, Of Mice and Men, with the idea that the novel would be adapted for the stage.

This was done in fine fashion by the University of Massachusetts theater department under the direction of Harry Mahnnken.

Steinbeck's tale of two drifters, Lennie and George, who cling to each other and the desperate hope of someday owning a farm of their own, is an American classic and is required reading in most high schools and colleges. Thursday night's performance at the Rand Theater brought Steinbeck's novel to life in a way that delighted and entertained the audience.

In the role of Lennie, the simple-minded behemoth, Thomas A. Quinn turned in the evening's finest performance. He captured, in great detail, the fears and joys of this huge but gentle man, who could not comprehend the world he lived in.

Quinn delighted the audience with Lennie's child-like antics and his faithful devotion to his friend and traveling companion, George.

Rick O'Neil put in a fine performance as the small, quick-thinking George, caught between his devotion to his friend and his exasperation with Lennie's mental limitations.

Quinn and O'Neil work very effectively together to develop the feeling that, as much as Lennie needs George to keep him out of trouble, George also needs Lennie to keep from being alone in the world, like the other transient laborers.

The relationship between the two men is also emphasized by a very imaginative stage design. The sets are angled upward, away from the audience, which allows Lennie to appear all the more massive, simply by staying to the rear of the stage. By doing this Quinn towers over O'Neil and the rest of the cast.

In the role of Candy, the crippled old ranch hand who gets caught-up in Lennie and Georges' dream, T.J. Sheehan puts in a solid performance. He gives to the character of Candy an eccentricity that makes his remenisences of the past and his new-found hopes for the future, seem of great consequence, which of course, they are not.

As Curley, the trouble-making bosse's son, Christopher Darland is truly despicable, which is of course indicative of a fine performance.

Lee Hammond gives a fine performance as the negro stable-buck living a life of isolation and desperation in his room in the barn. He is not allowed to enter the bunkhouse of the white workers, and must content hisself to stay in his room and read books.

The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater brings to life the American classic, Of Mice and Men, with style and professionalism.

The performance runs from May through 12 and begins at 8 p.m.

Thomas Quinn in Of Mice and Men

This is the Year to Plan Your Career!
Limited number of graduate study awards.
Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions
In celebration of Mother's Day, the Wedding day and upcoming graduation, we cordially invite you to our fifth
GENTLEMEN ONLY NIGHT
Thursday, May 10, 6-10 pm
Give her the gift she'll truly appreciate.
Refreshments served. Come join us.
Calvin Klein underwear for women has arrived.
Carriage Shops (upper level)
233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-6915
NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 1-4:30

ARMY/NAVY
Clothing Sale
Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday
10 am to 8 pm (except Wednesday, 4 pm)
Student Union Ballroom
* Marine Rip Stop Camel Pants..... $10 - 13
* Brand New BDU Camel Pants..... $22
* Jackets..... $8 - 15
* Fatigue Pants..... $4 - 7.50
* Army/Navy Raincoats..... $10 - 15
* Down Filled Mummy Sleeping Bags..... $25 - 30
* Airforce Sunglasses..... $5 - 7
* And Much Much More

LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds
is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT
Audio
Auto For Sale
Calculators
Entertainment
For Rent
For Sale
Found
Help Wanted
Instruction
Lost
Motorcycles
Personals
Ride Wanted
Rider Wanted
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Wanted
Wanted to Rent

FREE!!!
FREE HEALTH COVERAGE FOR UMASS EMPLOYEES!
Valley Health Plan costs eligible employees nothing--and it covers more! Isn't it time you tried Valley Health?

Sign up at Personnel Office by June 6 or call a VHP rep for information - 256-0151

HIGH NOTES
Singing Telegram and Balloon Delivery Service
NEW IDEA for MOM'S DAY
INFLATED HEART BALLOON sent UPS to her door. It will float out of it's box with a card from you!
REMEMBER MOTHER'S DAY THIS SUNDAY, MAY 13
Order by May 9th Call 665-7664

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl. $34.95 6 Cyl. $39.95 8 Cyl. $44.95
We'll install new resistor spark plugs points & condenser adjust idle speed set timing test battery and charging system inspect rotor distributor cap PVC valve ignition cables air filter and vapor canister filter. Includes Emission Test and Printout.
Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99
includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

Wednesday, May 9
5, 7, 9, 11
Campus Center Auditorium
Sponsored by Alpha Zeta
Admission: $1. at 5; $1 50 7, 9, 11

TUESDAY
TWO FOR ONE
all liquor drinks
9 till 11
with music by
RACK-A-DISC
9 til 1 NO COVER
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Attention all RSO Groups occupying space in the CC/SU complex. All keys must be returned or reissued by September 30, 1984 or deposits will be forfeited!!
Please return keys in 415 SUB during the following hours:
Monday 1:00 - 3:45
Tuesday 12:30 - 2:30
Wednesday 1:00 - 3:45
Thursday 12:30 - 2:30
Friday closed
any questions call the Board of Governors at 545-0198

Attention All Students!

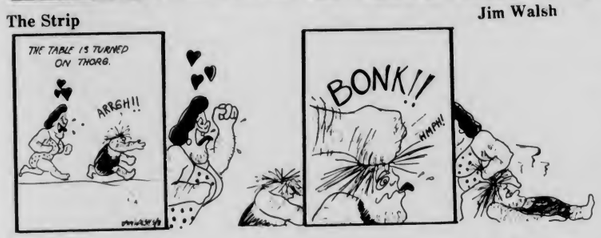
Earn $ money and gain valuable professional experience in finance, management, and public service while you develop your communication skills, organization and leadership abilities. If you're interested:

Campus Center/ Student Union Board of Governors

is accepting applications for the following coordinator positions:

- Display
- Finance
- Food Services
- Public Relations
- Special Projects
- Building Operations
- Vendor Certification
- Governors Program Council
- University Store Retail Services
- Space Economic Development
- Conference Services/ Accomodations

Jobs begin September 1984
Applications available in Campus Center 817
Deadline: Friday, May 11, 1984 at 4:00 pm
Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer



Bloom County — by Berke Breathed

UMass Zone — Mark Rollins

The Strip — Jim Walsh

Shagnasty — O.T. Derringer

Off Campus — Sullivan & Gillbert

D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Deli Beef Sandwich
Quiche Lorraine

BASICS LUNCH
Flat Bread Sandwich
Quiche Lorraine

DINNER
Rotini/Tomato Meat Sauce
Roast Pork/Gravy,
Spiced Apples
Silver Palate Salad Plate

BASICS DINNER
Golden Carrot Bake/
White Sauce
Hi-Protein Spaghetti/
Tomato Sauce with Tofu and Mushrooms

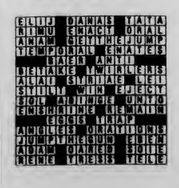
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Bib. prophet
5 Actor Andrews and namesakes
10 Bye-bye
14 Red pine
15 Legislate
16 Graduate's exam
17 Philippine sumac
18 —— on (anticipate)
20 Worldly
22 Relatives on the mother's side
23 Boxer Max
24 Against
25 Cause (oneself) to go
28 Baton experts
32 Kirghiz range
33 Grooves
35 Muumuu accessory
36 Avocet's relative
38 Gain the day
39 Do a bouncer's job
41 Callao coin
42 On —— (revelling)
45 Biblical preposition
46 Hold sacred
48 Stay
50 Menu choices
51 Kind of door
52 Acute and right
55 Convention specialties
59 Start prematurely
61 Scrooge, to friends
62 Rock star Ant
63 Like a shell
64 Silk, in Paris
65 Descartes
66 Ringlet
67 Vision or scope starter

DOWN
1 Part of Q.E.D.
2 Ancestry
3 Mideast leader
4 Elude a trial, in a way
5 Students' goals
6 Close, to Coleridge
7 Part of NEA
8 Do something
9 Unusual energy, medically speaking
10 Go ——, order in "Monopoly"
11 In —— (bogged down)
12 Moderate
13 Skier's milieu
19 Menu word
21 Leaf-cluster decoration
24 Flying
25 Singing voice: Fr.
26 Rock star —— John
27 Coin tosser's choice
28 Threefold
29 Former queen of Italy
30 Right: Comb. form
31 Be a board member
34 Skiers Phil and Steve Mahre, e.g.
37 Objective
40 Most jittery
43 His nibs
44 Part of the daily routine
47 "So ——" (honest)
49 Consume
51 Aligns
52 Gaping
53 Painting subject
54 Wash. worker
55 Fairy tale character
56 Hautboy
57 Diamond or Simon
58 Snicker ——
60 Jug lug



LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds
is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT

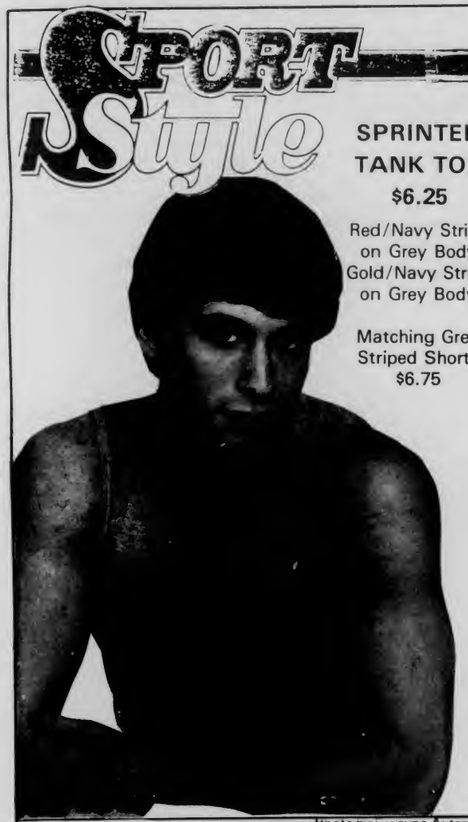
Audio
Auto For Sale
Calculators
Entertainment
For Rent
For Sale
Found
Help Wanted
Instruction
Lost
Motorcycles
Personals
Ride Wanted
Rider Wanted
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Wanted
Wanted to Rent

Weather

Today, rain and possibly a thunderstorm, highs in the 50s. Tonight, showers, lows in the 40s. Tomorrow, mostly cloudy with a chance of showers, highs around 60.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

Governor's Program Council



presents:
"Friedhoffer, the Mad Man of Magic"
in conjunction with the hilarious
"Slap Happy"
combo-together, FREE!
Wed. May 9
1st show 12:30-1:00 pm
Student Union. . .
Campus Roaming, then. .
2nd show 1:30 - 2:00 pm
Flagstone Terrace
Raindate: Thurs, May 10

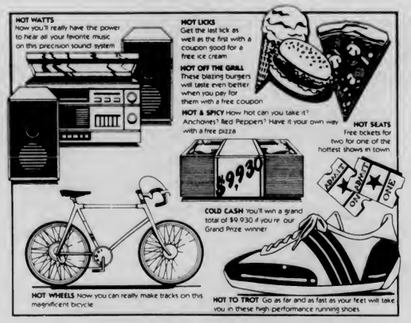
Pleasant Street Theater/ Amherst Cinema Film Nights
"EL NORTE"
Pleasant Street Theater, Northampton
Tuesday, May 8, 10 pm show ONLY
"THE BIG STORE", "NIGHT AT THE OPERA" & "DAY AT THE RACES"
Amherst Cinema
Wednesday May 9, 7:00 pm
These films are free
and open to UMass students with a valid UMass I.D.
Sponsored by the Commuter Area Government

Sport Style

SPRINTER TANK TOP
$6.25
Red/Navy Stripe on Grey Body
Gold/Navy Stripe on Grey Body

Matching Grey Striped Shorts
$6.75

David S. Photo by Dwayne Autery



Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

WIN WITH THE HOT SPOT!
$99,300 IN CASH & PRIZES.

HOW

1. Sign up at a participating merchant and be eligible to win our Grand Prize, $9,930.
2. Show your Hot Spot button to any participating merchant and win an immediate discount.
3. Put a Hot Spot bumper-sticker on your car. If we spot your sticker, we'll announce your license plate number on the air. Then you call the station and you're a prize winner.

WHAT

Listen for details on
99.3 THE HOT SPOT FM

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUDIO

Alpine 7123 car stereo, AM/FM cassette with auto-eject, Dolby. $170 549-6499

Stereo Vector Research 45 watt receiver Technics turntable TDC4A speakers best offer 546-6456

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Buick wagon runs great body solid 70000 miles 500.00 549-7666

1974 Triumph TR6 great condition, excellent body and engine, many extras $4000 or BO 546-5516 Dan

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FEMALE ROOMMATE WANTED

To shere room in Brendywine Apt for more info call Jodi 256-1235

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Live across from Emily Dickenson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

X-ig bedroom in split level apt rent negotiable quiet 665-2127

Puffton Village one bedroom available, need two people starting June 1 549-7686

Nonsmoking female for summer and fall Please call evening 253-7806

Summer Sublet fall option 2 bdrm apt $330/no neg Sunderland call 665-3959

2 bedroom Brittany Manor available June 1 with fall option $450 includes heat call after 10 pm 253-5907

Summer housing available 496 No Pleasant St 253-9015

Two rooms in house. Summer with fall option. Walk to campus & town. Furnished. 125-150/mo Dan Jackie 549-6041

FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

One year old twin bed, table and 4 chairs best offer Wendy 584-2905

Japanese Go Set. Almost new $40. Rich 549-4786, 665-7034

Puch 10 speed bicycle. Excellent condition - almost new. $120 or BO call Bruce at 6-3263

Couch for sale beige convertible 85 or BO 546-5727 546-5368

Solid oak dresser, wall shelves 665-7920

Man's brown leather bike jacket not yet broken in size 42 like new $60 546-5132

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Housekeepers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

Waitresses and General Laborers apply at the Rusty Nail 3 to 5 weekdays

Union VIdeo is hiring a part-time summer mgr. July-August 15 hrs/wk 3.35 hr. video skills required an AA/EO employer apply 216 SUB by 5/9

International Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

Counter Help part time apply at Amherst Deli start immediately

Part time sales. Audio background or sales exper. necc. Also, p. time car stereo installer. Apply at The Sound Co. 201 N Pleasant

Still need a summer job? Work as an activist on a nat'l voter registration campaign and help to shape state environmental policy. MASSPIRG is noe hiring full and part-time summer staff for public education and fundraising. $135-225/a week. Mon -Fri 2-10 PM. Will train. Call Sandy 256-6434

UMass Sorority saaks housemother for upcoming 2 years. Responsible female grad student preferred. Free room & board with salary 2508 per month. Call 545-2152 ask for Toni or Mary

Work this summar on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

COUNSELORS, Excellent Maine Camp, call Mrs. Fritts (201) 538-5409

Boston Excursion Boat Company needs dependable summer help for snack bar and catering. Call A.C. Cruise Lines 617-426-8419

LOST

Lost 3 rings in SOM area extreme sentimental value $500. reward call 549-7758

Keys on Sandy's Rainbow keychain if found please call Sandy 546-5505

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Kawasaki KZ550 was $1200 now $1000 great shape call 546-8965

NEAG ELECTIONS

Elections for Northeast Area Government officers will be held from 11 am - 2 pm and from 4 pm - 6:30 pm on Tuesday May 8th in the barracks at the Worcester DC All Northeast residents are encouraged to vote.

PERSONALS

Deer Minda
Happy #10
I love you!
Mitch

RJD Just wanted to say how much I love you! Let's make the most of these next 3 weeks and look forward to a great summer! Love you forever and always!!! Gues Who XOXO

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Thases, Casas, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

$300.00 REWARD

For racovary of Hifly 300 Sailboard taken from concert at Sowest on Apr 29 call Cathy Yates at 256-6761

RIDE WANTED

To Calif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

RODI, SUE

Congratulations Baby
The Collegian will love you
I love you forever, Michael

ROOM WANTED

Male seeks room (single or shared) in apt. anywhere! For next fall-spring Dave 546-7738

Do you need roommates? We're 2 females looking to share townhouse apt for fall-summer sublet possible please call Julie 6-8026 or Pam 6-8011

Room wanted for summer in Hyannis near Dunfeys call Michelle 545-0527

Desparate for a room in Hyannis area for summer! Jennifer 256-1341

Room wanted - looking for room in Hyannis/Yarmouth area please call Patty 546-5275

Help! Own bedrm. near campus sought for fall. Senior PoliSci/JS student, neither grind nor party animal. No cig. smokers, please. Ian 6-6177 nights

ROOMMATE WANTED

Famala roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amharst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-6089 Kris 256-0556

Female roommate wanted to share summer cottage in Yarmouth 1050 by May 20 call ASAP Judy 1 617 648 0944

Responsible female wanted to share room in Puffton--Annie 6-8309, Chris 6-8313

Female nonsmoker wanted in Brittany for fall 84 call 546-8343 546-8275

Roommate to shere downtown Northampton apartment 200/mth inc heat 584-7608 Meg

Wantad: 2 females to share room in Brittany Manor start Sept 256-0393

Female roommate for summer near Amherst Center, on bus rte 118/mo 253-2763

Famele roommate wantad Brandywine starting May 25th fall option call 546-7098

For rent 1 bedroom in two bedroom apt downtown Noho call Jennifer 584-5972

Female roommate wanted for fall in Brittany Manor call 546-8152

Roommate wanted for Rolling Green 2 bdrm AC pool on bus rt summer and/or fall M/F 202 incl Liz 256-8261

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

Fast accurate typing on IBM Selectric $1.25/page 584-3965 Leslea

SUMMER SUBLET

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

Two bedroom apt in Amherst Center cheap! call now 549-7605

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

Summar sublet w/fall option spacious 4 bedroom and 2 bath on bus route rent negotiable call 256-8247

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

Cheap summer sublet Rolling Green 1 room of 2 253-5467 evenings

Summar sublet w/fall option -preferably two females, each get own room, located on Main Street. On bus route call Sue at 256-8304

Two badroom Colonial Villaga partially furnished convenient! rent negotiable call 256-6608

Large room with private bath in Puffton Village. Ideal for couple. $210 per month phone 549-6999

Two bedroom apt in Presidantial summer only, furnished please call 546-5558 or 546-5593

Fully furnished Brendywine Apt price very negotiable call anytime 549-0569

1 bedroom in big beautiful apartment on bus line in walking distance of campus and town. $150/month or BO 256-0170

Summar sublet with fall option Colonial Village, $150/month Craig 256-0078

Summar sublet with fall option 1 or 2 bedrooms available in huge beautiful house 100 yards from Hampshire Mall and bus route rent negotiable call Jane or Lisa at 584-4309

Parfact summar sublet Amherst Center 1 large bedroom yard, pool, tennis. Rent negotiable 549-5799

Furnishad one bedroom Puffton apt pool airconditioning laundry 549-7864

Summer sublet only. Negotiable. Pool bus stops call Staci 256-1288

Presidantial Apt 2 to 3 people closest apts to campus cheapest rate available all summer. Call Eric 546-6407 Andy 546-3279

Puffton summer sublet w/possible fall option for more info call 549-6971 253-5045

Two bedroom spacious apartment furnished rent negotiable call Beth 6-6491

Swiss Village summer sublet 2 bedrooms inexpensive 256-1405 Joe Eric

3 bedroom townhouse apts rent cheap call 256-0707 or 256-0660 evenings

Two bedroom apt fully furnished rent negotiable 5 miles to campus call evenings 665-8114

2 bedrm in 2 badrm furnishad apt center of town. Prefer serious student. Avail. June $250/mo Jan/Barb after 4 pm 253-7818

Furnishad room in house next to Crestview, prefer nonsmoking male. $130/mo incl util, call Vincent 549-1867

Rolling Green cheap clean 2 bdroom $400 month AC pool 253-2175

SUMMER SUBLET W/FALL OPTION

Brandywine 1 room for 1 or 2 persons fully furnished call 549-2773 after 5 PM

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

One bedroom apt in Presidential summer sub/fall option 355/mo 549-6644

Apartment with fall option $147.50 month Colonial Village Apartment near bus routes call Bill or Greg 256-0419 keep trying

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

2 bedroom Townahouse Apt available June 1st - Sept 1st call 549-4585

1 bdrm apt Crestview summer sublet w/fall option walking distance to UMass on bus route AC avail June 1 360/mo 549-7826

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Sublet fall option 2 brm $330 per month Sunderland summer rent negotiable call between 9-11 am or other 665-4744

1 bd room in Sunderland dishwasher/disposal 320 all utilities. Pool & tennis 665-8315

Wanted: First summer session sublet. Near town-campus. Call 5-9 pm Sue S. 549-6040

One bedroom in three bdrm apt. in house available end May - Sept 1 near town & campus (Amherst) rent nego 256-1421 ask for Laura

One bedroom apt in Puffton June - Sept rent negotiable 546-5082

Ready now or June 1 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt on bus line, near Puffers Pond. Nothing down. Just $115 per month. Fall option 549-0437

House in town for summer 3 bdrm cheap call Sue 6-8142

Southwood apts 2 bedroom townhouse w/fall option call 6-5370, 6-5195 after 3 pm

Two bedroom apt summer w/fall option cheap, all utilities included 665-4953 evenings

One bedroom summer sublet with fall option Cliffside apt 665-7956

3 bdrm Townhouse apt avail for summer at a reas rate 546-5113

1 bdrm 295 mo. oncludes utilities, swimming pool, tennis cts & dishwasher evenings 665-7920 with fall option

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summer and fall only, furnished 256-1205

4 badroom apartment on bus route summer sublet with fall option. 1½ baths, cable TV 174 per room includes all utilities call after 5:00 546-9322

3 bd apt fall option Amherst Center prime location beautiful tall ceilings huge windows fireplace June 1 256-1004

Summer sublet in Townehouse. Close to campus. Call George 549-0902.

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Someone immediately to take lease on i bedroom Brandywine apt 360/month 549-0667

Looking for usad electric bass guitar under $100 549-0363 Derek call nights

Puffton-Rolling Green 3 bdroom will take June/Sept 253-2175

WANTED TO RENT

Wantad Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

I need to rent a moped June-August. Amherst area. Licensed driver. Call kelley at 546-4207 after 7:00 PM

2 or 3 bedroom apt in Puffton, Brandywine, Townehouse, or Colonial Village. Will take in summer or fall. 546-6808, 6810, 6813

Quiet, responsible graduate student couple looking for a place, starting June. Would share house or apartment, near UMass. 545-1536 days, 253-9664, nights excellent references

Rolling Green apartment or room wanted Reward! Call Wayne or Dan 256-1355

Sports

SPORTS NOTICE — There will be an informational meeting for all those interested in being a basketball manager for the men's basketball team on Friday May 11, in the basketball office in Room 222 Boyden. If you have any questions please contact the basketball office at 545-2610 or call Pete Bernard at 546-6899.

Gorillas tame the Wildcats, 12-6

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

It wasn't the prettiest of games, or victories, but it was decisive, and fighting for a playoff berth as they are, the Gorillas will chalk this one up without much argument.

Tenth ranked Massachusetts came into the game looking to ring up some serious numbers against the University of New Hampshire to help convince the lacrosse poll masters that they are a much better club than the score of Saturday's 12-5 loss to number one Syracuse indicates. What they ran into was a pesky UNH team that despite being outplayed by the Gorillas all day long, managed to keep sticking in a goal here and there to stop it from becoming a run away. What they finally came away with was a 12-6 victory, as Ken Freeman lead the way with four goals.

There were times when Massachusetts looked fantastic and there were others when they hurt themselves with missed execution. There were two, three, and four goal leads built, but just when it seemed Massachusetts would pull away, the Wildcats would pop up on the doorstep and find an opening to keep it interesting.

Finally, after UNH had closed within three at 9-6, five minutes into the final quarter, Freeman, ("I'm playing with more confidence."), turned a Matt O'Reilly pass into paydirt just over a minute later, and then slammed the door by warding off a stick to the head to fire a cross shot past UNH goalie Andy Soma. It was 11-6 with six minutes left and the game was, for all intensive purposes, over.

"Today was not a picturesque win," head coach Dick Garber would say later. "But 12-6 can't be all bad. UNH is a good team."

Some of the highlights included the Tom Lukacovic score, that saw Bubba Sandford rifle a perfect pass to Lukacovic who rifled a lightning quick release home for a 3-2 Massachusetts lead in the second quarter.

Others included Mike Fiorini's play right before the half, with the Gorillas leading 5-3, that lead to them getting another moments later. Fiorini caused a UNH defenseman fits who was trying to make a routine clear, finally slapping the ball away and onto the stick of Lukacovic, who in turn hit Sandford on the run, and Sandford decked Soma before beating him for a 6-3 lead, with only ten seconds left.

Finally, there was the play of Ben Stokes, the sophomore netminder called to duty for two minutes in the second quarter, in place of Gerry Moreau who was nailed with a slashing penalty. The moment was crucial because with the score tied at two and UNH on the man-up situation, a goal could've meant some momentum. Instead it meant nothing for the Wildcats because Stokes stepped in and made two big saves to keep it tied.

"Stoksie stepped in and did the job," smiled Garber. Stokes himself, shrugged it off. "That's my job right now. I've just got to be ready to play," he said. "I was a little nervous out there, but you're always nervous. You just have to make the plays."

Gorilla highlights aside, a side attraction was the coaching match-up, which as most people know by now, features Father Garber against Son Garber, Ted.

While the younger Garber spent much of the afternoon furious at the officials, ("It wasn't the cause of the final score...but those guys should be refereeing J.V. games.")

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

CRASHING THE CREASE — UMass attackman Mike Fiorini and a teammate don't seem to find the ball at hand, so instead they try to push UNH defender Steve Zamojski (30) into the net, while other UNH defenders try to ward them off in yesterday's 12-6 Gorilla victory.

Gazelles face Yale in first round of NCAA's

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The road trip continues for the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team. The Gazelles, who have played just three of their 12 games this season at home face another road contest tomorrow, but the team welcomes it.

UMass will be facing Yale University Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the opening round of the NCAA tournament. It is the third year in a row that the Gazelles have qualified for the NCAA tourney.

UMass won the national title in 1982 and finished fourth last year.

"We are very happy we are still playing," Coach Polly Keener said. "We just wish we were playing at home."

UMass earned the right to play Yale by topping James Madison 8-7 in the ECAC tournament on Friday before falling to fourth seeded New Hampshire in the title tilt in Baltimore on Saturday, 8-4.

UNH, whom UMass topped 10-9 in their season opener, won the automatic NCAA bid while top-seeded Loyola and the third-seeded Gazelles received at-large bids into the 12 team NCAA tourney.

The Gazelles, who are now 7-5 on the year, faced a must-win situation against James Madison on Friday in the ECAC semi-finals. UMass took a 2-0 lead before James Madison came back to take a 5-4 halftime lead.

"It was pretty much even the whole way," Keener said. However, second seeded Madison took a 7-5 lead with five minutes to play. Linda Haytayan scored the Gazelle's last two goals to give UMass the winning margin.

Pam Moryl scored three goals in the victor. Mary Scott added two and Posy Seifert scored one.

Debbie DeJesus played a stellar game in goal and the defense, co-captain Carol Progulske said, had one of their better games of the season.

"We slowed James Madison down and didn't let them run the fast break. Once we set up the zone (defense) we're tough."

Against UNH, who upset Loyola 9-5, UMass was flat at the outset and UNH ran away with a 4-1 lead and took control of the game.

"We were flatfooted on defense and we didn't contain them," Progulske said. "The UNH game was kind of anti-climatical (after the big James Madison win)."

New Hampshire countered the UMass attack with a stiff defense and outstanding play by their goalie Robin Balducci. "We were slow to begin with," Keener said, "and had a lot of turnovers on attack."

"We are a young team," Keener said. "We have learned a lot but we're still on the rise. We haven't had our peak yet."

That's good news for UMass as they head into the NCAA opening round tomorrow. The winner of the Yale game faces fourth ranked Harvard on Saturday in Cambridge.

"The Yale game is a toss-up," Keener said. "If we play well, we can take them. We can't make a lot of mistakes."

Keener also said, "One thing our players can be proud of is that they played their hearts out until the last whistle, (in the UNH loss) and if they play like that, they'll do very well."

Minutemen travel to Dartmouth

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

The final leg of a roller coaster 1984 voyage for the University of Massachusetts baseball team commences today with the ultimate destination, the galaxy of respectability, no closer than a distant quasar.

Three doubleheaders (including today at Dartmouth) and a single game with Amherst College await the Minutemen, whose slate reads 15-23. For a club that returned nearly everyone from last year's 20-17 squad, .500 is now unreachable, a nightmare few envisioned when the northern campaign opened in early April. For the record, the Minutemen are 11-14 east of the Mississippi River after 1 4-9 season-opening trip to New Mexico.

"I expected to do better, especially with the northern part of our schedule," said Coach Dick Bergquist. "everyone expected to do better, so there is somewhat of a disappointing feeling, but 15 wins isn't too bad. We are in a tough conference. Temple and URI are two of the better teams in the East."

Today's opponent, the Big Green from Hanover, New Hampshire, are struggling near the bottom of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League. However, four of their top pitchers are freshman. The outfield is the team's strength with leading hitter Steve Karol and senior Pat Lavery.

For UMass, Andy Clark (3-3, 5.40, 46 hits and 37 runs in 36.2 innings) and Rob Kostro (3-4, 9.26, 81 hits and 65 runs in 46.2 innings. Ouch.) are the scheduled starters, with Tony Presnal getting the call against the Lord Jeffs on Thursday.

UMass leftfielder Bruce Kingman, (.356, 29 BB, 36 hits) enjoying a stellar campaign, was injured over the weekend in an off-the-field accident and will miss the remainder of the season. Tom Fabian will replace him.

Following Thursday's inter-city tangle with Amherst, the Minutemen travel to Boston Friday to take on an improved Northeastern University. The season concludes Sunday afternoon at Lorden Field against the Providence Friars, who have already set a school record for most victories in a single season. They are a shoe-in for the ECAC playoffs, along with Maine and UConn.

NOTES: Sunday was a glorious day for New England intercollegiate baseball. The Maine Black Bears, recognized as the finest team in the region, swept a doubleheader from the 10th ranked Miami Hurricanes in Orono, behind the pitching of Bill Swift, who allowed only his second earned run of the year in the first game, and freshman Scott Morse, who hurled no-hit ball for 7 2/3 innings.

Western Mass. holds on for win

The Western Massachusetts Lacrosse Club narrowly defeated the Narragansett Lacrosse Club up in Rhode Island Sunday by a 15-14 margin in United States Club Lacrosse Association Division play.

The Western Massachusetts squad, which evened its record at 2-2, was led by the strong attack of two former University of Massachusetts All-Americans, Jim Weller and Jeff Spooner, who along with Rob Carey of Longmeadow, accounted for 13 of the goals, while adding six assists between them on this productive afternoon.

Western Mass. goaltender, Tom Curran, another former Gorilla, played well in stopping a strong Narragansett attack. He was added by a steady defense led by Larry Leckonby and Rich McLoone.

The Western Mass. Club will face U.S.C.L.A. Division leader, Brine Lacrosse Club, at 1 p.m. Sunday at Westfield State College in their final division contest.

Soviets drop out of Olympics - See story on p. 16

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIX, Issue 68 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Wednesday, May 9, 1984

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

IT'S RAINING AGAIN—Students wait for buses in front of the Fine Arts Center yesterday while using anything available to shield themselves from the downpour.

Amherst reps reject landfill capping delay

By DAVID LINTON and
LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Amherst Town Meeting members Monday night overruled recent recommendations by the Town Manager, the Board of Selectmen and the Finance Committee to delay capping the town's old landfill.

Town officials had hoped for a delay in capping the landfill, located off Route 9, in order to secure a $500,000 grant from the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering to help pay for the operation. In overruling the recommendations, Town Meeting members also disagreed with Amherst Auto Parts owner Gordon Palley about the date of that company's relocation.

Capping the old dump means covering it with a layer of clay to prevent rainwater from seeping through the trash and polluting underground water. Amherst Auto Parts, which is located on part of the landfill would have to be moved from the site by September 1 in order for the town to complete the operation by a December 1 deadline, Selectman Fred Steinbeck said.

But, Gordon Paley, president of Amherst Auto Parts said yesterday, "It is physically and financially impossible for me to be out by Dec. 1."

At a special Town Meeting last April, members permitted a zoning change to allow Amherst Auto to move to a location across the street. Palley said he has already done "quite a bit since the land has been rezoned."

The article requesting the capping of the landfill was submitted through a petition by the Amherst Citizens Against Pollution (ACAP). The group largely consists of University of Massachusetts students.

Precinct three member Linda Lockwood, who made the motion to cap the dump by Dec. 1, said yesterday, "Amherst Auto Parts has had ample opportunity to get off the land. Most of the area is ready for capping. It's absurd to hold up the whole process for a small portion of land."

Norwood, a member of ACAP said approximately $600,000 was allocated to cap the dump last fall but the action was held up by negotiations with Amherst Auto for a solution which would not bankrupt the salvage company. Town Manager Barry Del Castilho said the town will formally notify Amherst Auto Parts to move before Sept. 15 after reaching no agreement in talks with Palley yesterday. He said negotiations would continue to reach a viable agreement.

Graduate Senate elects new vice - president

President and treasurer get unopposed wins

By SEAN CASEY
Collegian Staff

Christos Karastamatis captured the position of vice-president and Greg Graham was re-elected executive officer of the University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate after elections held this week.

Incumbent president Sanjiv Dugal was re-elected while Alison Huettner, a senator from the Linguistics department, was elected treasurer. Both ran unopposed.

Dugal thanked the Senate and said he hopes to continue his hard work.

Karastamatis, a doctoral candidate from Greece, defeated Joseph Clifford. He said he hopes to increase communication among graduate students, most likely through expanding the graduate newsletter and possibly producing more frequent issues.

Karastamatis added that, although unionization efforts for teaching and resource assistants failed this semester, many problems do exist which must be dealt with, possibly by a committee to structure guidelines concerning the availability and distribution of assistantships.

Karastamatis has been involved with the senate this past year, and has served on the senate's political issues committee, the Graduate Council and the Western Massachusetts Latin American Solidarity Committee.

Graham, a doctoral student from the Sociology department, defeated Polymer Science department senator Chris Lantman to retain his position as executive officer.

Graham said he would like to serve on the Legal Services Office governing board next year and would also like to deal with issues concerning assistantships and faculty evaluation procedures.

"The questionnaire results should give us (the senate) a better basis for information to address graduate students' problems and concerns," he said.

In the past year, Graham has worked to uncover the then dormant student grievance procedure, signed this fall by Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, helped with TA/RA organization efforts, observed the teacher contract negotiations and served one the Graduate Council, a position he hopes to keep.

Huettner said she will call on her two years as senator and finance committee member to guide her as treasurer.

"I would like to see us fund a lot of the groups which come to us moderately, rather than a few of them a lot," she said.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Sanjiv Dugal, above, and Christos Karastamatis, below, were graduate student senate election winners.

UMass workers file status suit for benefits

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Dean of Students William F. Field said last week that University Childcare workers, who have filed a lawsuit charging that their employment status is incorrect, may be reclassified by the end of June.

The union University Childcare Employees Association filed suit April 24 to prompt the University to award full employment status with related benefits to some workers classified as temporary employees.

William Newman, lawyer for the association, said the suit alleges that the University is in contempt of a 1976 court order because the administration is filling permanent positions with staff workers classified as temporary.

Temporary workers receive no employment benefits, nor are they recognized as employees of the University.

The statements from Field, issued in a memo, establishes a six week schedule for current childcare workers to submit applications and references for a review committee to conduct interviews and make recommendations for full-time appointments.

Final approvals will be handled by the vice chancellor for Student Affairs and the University Personnel Office.

"During the first phase of conversions of positions from non-benefited to benefited positions, fiscal restraints will require that the benefited positions be full time, supplemented by part time staff . . . and by students and interns," the memo states.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis Madson has said that 10 to 13 positions are involved and $60,000 to $75,000 will be required to fund the full time status.

Elizabeth Perkins, director of University Childcare said, "The actual number of positions converted to full-time is dependent on the age makeup and enrollment of children."

"I'm hopeful that we may resolve this by July 1," Perkins said.

INSIDE:

Stockbridge student still in tree despite rain p.3

Collegian editorial on the need for a yearbook p.7

Women's Lacrosse plays Yale today in playoff action p.16

"The school's ain't what they used to be and never was."
—Will Rogers

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

FLOATING HOME—Residents of Williamson, West Virginia look at home that drifted away from its foundations yesterday in a swelling flood.

Chinese student sentenced to death

Peking, China (AP) — A high school student who stole 31 cultural relics and bashed a policeman with an iron bar during a robbery has been sentenced to death in Hunan province, the official news agency Zinhua reported today.

Xinhua said Xu Fandi was sentenced Monday but the Changsha Intermediate People's Court suspended the execution for two years because he was under 18 when he committed the crimes last October.

In China's penal system, people under 18 who commit capital crimes often get suspended death sentences, which are later usually commuted to life imprisonment.

Xinhua said Xu broke into the Hunan Provincial Museum last October, smashed seven showcases and stole relics from a collection of burial objects from the Han Dynast, 206 B.C.-220 A.D.

Police recovered most of the stolen articles, Xinhua said.

Seven defendants may be tried for Pope shooting

ROME (AP) - A state prosecutor recommended Tuesday that three Bulgarians and four Turks stand trial in connection with he 1981 attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II, the Italian news agency ANSA reported.

State Prosecutor Antonio Albano filed the request with the Court of Appeals in Rome asking trials for Segei Ivanov Antonov, former station manager of the Bulgarian state airlines in Rome, and two former Bulgarian Embassy employees: Todor Ayvazov and Vassiliev Kolev, ANSA said, quoting unidentified sources.

Under Italian law, Albano's recommendation is not binding. It is intended for consideration by Judge Ilario Martella, who is in charge of investigating the May 13, 1981, assassination attempt.

Consolo said he had not seen the recommendation and did not know the exact charge but "it is probably for complicity" in the shooting carried out by Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca, who is serving a life sentence in Italy for the attack and is apparently cooperating with investigators.

Reagan program to bail out nuclear industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration offered Tuesday to help the troubled nuclear industry over some regulatory hurdles but refused to bail out the few utility companies that are facing bankruptcy because of stalled atomic plants.

Energy Secretary Donald Hodel told nuclear and utility industry officials that the administration will start participating in both state and federal licensing and ratemaking proceedings "to assure that the national interest is adequately considered by regulators."

Specifically, Hodel said the department hopes to have a plan ready within the next two weeks to test whether an acceptable evacuation of a 10-mile area around the completed Shoreham nuclear power plant on Long Island is possible.

New Gov. Mario Cuomo and the Suffolk County Legislature have said an ability to evacuate the area is impossible because of the large population on the island.

Mondale takes Maryland primary; Hart scraping through midwest

(AP)—Walter F. Mondale defeated Sen. Gary Hart int he Maryland primary Tuesday night and led comfortably in North Carolina. Hart forged narrow leads in the midwestern battlegrounds of Ohio and Indiana in his now-or-never bid to slow the former vice president's drive for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Hart's campaign claimed Indiana, with campaign spokeswoman Kathy Bushkin declaring, "We needed to show we could win in a northern industrial state," Still, Ohio, with 154 delegates at stake, that was the spotlighted race.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson was a distant third in all four states. He was attracting more than three-quarters of the black vote, according to TV network interviews, but failed to garner significant white support.

The contests carried a prize of 368 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, and win or lose, Mondale was assured of a continuing commanding lead over his rivals.

He began the day with 1,252.05 convention delegates, compared with 738.75 for Hart and 237.2 for Jackson. Those totals omitted Texas, where Mondale may have won 100 or more delegates on Saturday. It takes 1,967 delegates to win the nomination.

In Ohio, with 154 delegates at stake, Hart led for 70, Mondale for 67 and Jackson for 11. Hart had 43 percent of the popular vote, to 41 percent for Mondale and 14 percent for Jackson.

In North Carolina, with 75 delegates at stake, Mondale led for 48, Hart for 25, Jackson for 2. Mondale had 39 percent of the popular vote, to 33 percent for Hart and 18 percent for Jackson.

Mass. to host Olympic torch; 47 carrying flame on Thursday

BOSTON (AP) — Forty-seven runners, including two teenagers in wheelchairs, a retarded youngster, a blind woman and three former Olympic competitors will carry the flaming Olympic torch in a 150-mile relay through Massachusetts on its way to Los Angeles.

The torch, a part of modern Olympics ceremony since the Amsterdam games in Massachusetts just after midnight Thursday.

The torch, a part o /modern Olympics ceremony since the Amsterdam games in 1928, is scheduled to first reach the Bay State in North Attleboro.

Euring the day, it will be passed from runner to runner along a route from Plainville to the Statehouse in Boston to Southbridge, where it will be handed over the Connecticut border.

Michael LaRocca, 13, and Warren Miklon, 15, will carry the torch in their wheelchairs for a kilometer each. Lou Miano, a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, said Tuesday.

LaRocca will be handed the torch in Jamaica Plain at 11 a.m., and Miklon is scheduled to carry it through Watertown at about 1 p.m.

Miano said that Janet Rowley, a blind Saugust woman who has won gold medals in running events at the Special Olympics, will carry the torch through Brookline.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — David Summersby
Copy Editor — Ralph Roberts
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Brian K. Gonye
Production Supervisor — Pete Soderberg
Production — John Wielgus, Pamela Smith, Leslie King, Mike Lennon, Norm Achin, Tim Riviere, Ansel Zinter, Beth Poudrier, Lynn Eisenberg, Marsha Wilcon, Shelley Witkiewicz, Michelle Phelan, Ellen Nahigian, Jim Rice

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Attention RSO Groups
be a part of the
Summer Orientation Issue
of the Collegian.
The deadline
for advertising
is May 10th

Mother's Day
Buffet
at the Top of the Campus Restaurant

featuring
a festive buffet from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
on May 13th
$8.95 for Adults
$4.50 for Children
Mom will receive
a free flower
Call now
for reservations
549-6000
ext 639

Local district attorney says Henry arrest was justified

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

While charges against former Crampton resident assistant Yvette Henry were dropped three weeks after she was charged with setting fire to papers on a student's desk, the local district attorney has said that "given the same set of facts, I'd make the same decision again" and arrest her.

In a February interview, Northwestern District Attorney W. Michael Ryan detailed the case's events and theories of investigators trying to solve the rash of more than 40 small, suspicious fires on the University of Massachusetts campus last fall.

The FBI felt, "if we let this woman go, the best she would do would be to commit suicide. . . and take a good portion of UMass with her."
— W. Michael Ryan

The investigation's result included Henry's arrest, and the 20-year-old chemistry major from Philadelphia was then suspended and barred from the University, evicted from her room and fired from her R.A. job. She was later permitted to attend classes, in the presence of an escort, before all charges against her were dropped Dec. 23.

She is now seeking $13 million in compensatory damages for rights and violations and defamation in connection with the arrest and subsequent administrative actions.

Two other students were also arrested, one acquitted, one fined for damages to a fire alarm box he ripped from a wall, and a janitor was found guilty of writing notes threatening arson found in and around Crampton. Those notes, Ryan said, were one factor leading to Henry's arrest.

Ryan said investigators, who then included the state fire marshal and the FBI, felt there was a trend in the fires, which started in trash cans and included bulletin boards when the desktop fire was reported.

"They were getting more and more serious, and the notes were getting more and more threatening," he said. "at the time, we thought the same person setting the fires was writing the notes."

The FBI profile of the arsonist, compiled from information investigators gave the agency, said the person, probably a woman because of the varied times of the numerous fires in the all female dorm, would be a middle child, who had lost her father at a young age, Ryan said. Yvette Henry fit that description.

According to the profile, the arsonist "desperately wanted to be caught—if she wasn't apprehended, she would do something that would hurt a great number of people," he said. "About the same time we learned Yvette was a chemistry major and could cause a fire or bomb explosion."

The FBI told investigators, "You may have another Jonestown on your hands," Ryan said, referring to the mass murder suicide in Guyana several years ago. He said investigators had been informed that Henry had planned a "going away party" scheduled for the night of her arrest, when officials feared she would "kill herself and blow the dorm up."

Ryan said oral statements from floor residents questioned after the desktop fire led investigators to suspect Henry, but once written statements were requested from the residents, they were more unsure of what they saw.

Some had been talking to others, or walking around—even the student security guard stationed on the floor had gone downstairs for a soda—so their testimony was less concrete than had been orignally thought, he said.

"The changes in the stories were not of great substance, but they were of great significance," Ryan said. And many residents were upset once Henry was arrested, and even helped raise bail, he added.

Crampton underwent an administrative search, legal when it is felt there is a danger to public safety, according to Ryan, the afternoon of the arrest. "We had to do something quick—people were beside themselves," he said.

Henry was brought in for questioning, and though her lawsuits filed Monday say, in part, that she was interrogated without counsel, Ryan said in February that she was given that option.

"She was informed she had a right to an attorney and if she wanted to stop the questioning, she could stop it any time," he said. "When police were questioning her, questions were raised whether she had asked for a lawyer, and response was she didn't want one. (We thought) she was playing mind games with the investigators, and no one was too alarmed.

"The thought was (according to the FBI profile) she would probably confess to everything, which she didn't do," Ryan said. "(We thought it was a game of cat and mouse and she would keep it going...after a couple hours it became apparent she was not going to confess."

But the FBI felt, "if we let this woman go, the best she would do would be to commit suicide...and take a good portion of UMass with her," Ryan said.

Figuring that the arsonist and writer of notes, which read, for example, "Die Crampton," were one and the same, investigators compared Henry's signature from the dorm security log to the handwriting on the notes, and they seemed similar, Ryan said.

"No one was really interested in convicting someone of setting 40 fires, but to stop the fires from happening and get help for the person who was setting them."
— W. Michael Ryan

The official analysis was sent to Boston but because of delays, the results—which were negative—were not obtained until Dec. 21, two days before charges were dropped and the semester ended.

"We heard on late Wednesday afternoon that the handwriting was not the same," Ryan said, noting that he then notified Henry's attorneys that charges would be dropped and a public statement issued.

"But we still had somebody (the note writer) who was potentially suicidal. When she (the janitor) was arrested, we dropped the charges."

But on Dec. 2, Ryan maintains, investigators had established probable cause for Henry's arrest.

"There was 100 percent agreement that we had arrested the right person, but there was still considerable sympathy among law enforcement people," Ryan said. "There's no question, based on the information they had, that there was probably cause and an arrest warrant was issued. The burden at the trial would be proof beyond a reasonable doubt...Eventually, we got all our statistics together and the bottom had fallen out of our case.

"No one was really interested in convicting someone of setting 40 fires," he added, "but to stop the fires from happening and get help for the person who was setting them."

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Students check out a variety of clothes for bargain prices at yesterday's Army/Navy sale held in the Student Union Ballroom. The sale will be held again today and tomorrow.

$1000 of merchandise stolen

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

Two paging units and chargers valued at $1,000 were stolen from the head janitor's closet of Washington Dormitory in Southwest between 2:45 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. Monday, University of Massachusetts police said. The lock core was removed to gain entry they said.

All four tires of a car parked near Baker Dormitory in Central were slashed and its windshield wipers bent causing $500 of damamge, police said.

A flute and its case valued at $500 belonging to a student were stolen from the Old Chapel building between April 30th and May 1st, police said. The items had been locked and stored away, police said.

Police have the description of a man who walked past a room on the third floor of Patterson Dormitory four times with his shorts unzipped. Police responded at 7:55 p.m. Sunday to the complaint and conducted a search. The man had been seen by many students police said, but he was not apprehended.

A 26-year-old Springfield man was arrested for trespassing after being noticed at 4:19 p.m. Monday, police said. The man was reported to have been lying on the ground with his feet hanging out onto Massachusetts Avenue, police said.

A $123 window of a car was smashed while it was parked outside of John Adams Dormitory in Southwest and the driver was delivering a pizza, police said. The incident, which also ruined $23 worth of pizza occured shortly after midnight Saturday, police said.

At about 12 a.m. Sunday, police and the Amherst Fire Department extinguished a fire behind Field Dormitory in Orchard Hill, police said. Several students were standing around a fire after a cookout, police said.

Aggie tree sitter holds on

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts student who is perched in a red maple tree on North Pleasant Street remains eager despite yesterday's rain, to draw attention to the plight of declining enrollment in the Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

Richard Barrett, 23, a senior landscape operations major in Stockbridge, has been in a tree in front of the Stockbridge fraternity Alpha Tau Gamma since Monday morning, and plans to remain there until Friday. His biggest worry last night was the weather. Barrett said he got soaked in yesterday's rain, but was not discouraged.

"I was scared Monday, thinking it would be a flop, but today's media coverage has encourage me," the Millis, Ma. native said.

"People have been really great," Barrett said. "They drive by and ask 'Whaddya need?' " During an interview people honked their horns at him and waved.

Barrett plans to "read and relax" while he is up there, coming down only to go to the bathroom, and to change his clothes after yesterday's downpour. His platform thirty feet up includes a canvas cover, climbing equipment, and a desk.

"If the weather improves, I've got plenty of homework to do," he said. "I'll probably do more hanging out than anything, though. Mostly trying to figure out what to say to you media guys."

Barrett said he was bothered by television reports that he was protesting something. "I'm just worried about people not knowing about Stockbridge," he said. "I'm not protesting anything."

Barrett said he thinks what he is doing will help draw attention to the agriculture school. Already, the wire services and television stations have reported on his temporary home.

Asked if he could imagine staying up there past his Friday deadline, Barrett smiled and said, "Come on."

Senior class getting good response to leaving $12,000 in Scholarships

By JEANNETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Members of the Senior Class Committee and the University of Massachusetts Development Office are soliciting funds so that the Class of 1984 can leave, as part of its legacy, two $600 scholarships.

"We set a goal of $15,000," Assistant Director of Alumni Affairs Larry Kocot said. The scholarships will be offered to UMass students on the basis of financial need, he said.

"It was a challenge," Kocot said. "Other colleges said we couldn't do it (raise the money) because we didn't have enough spirit."

Kocot said response to the soliciting has been "really positive," with more than 40 percent of the contacted students offering money.

"Students are responding better than alumni," he said. "This will hopefully become part of an annual fund."

"Most seniors want to help out," said Kocot.

Agriculture still stressed

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

Agriculture is still important in our technological world, and the University of Massachusetts and Hampshire College are proving this, said Iona Reynolds, acting director of the Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

Hampshire College and UMass are the only colleges in the five college area that have agriculture programs, and UMass is the only area college which offers a degree in agriculture.

Hampshire College recently received a $100,000 grant from the Jessie B. Cox Charitable Trust of Boston, mainly to support sheep management research. Four Hampshire College students have also received Jessie Noyes Foundation Scholarships to fund their work in agriculture. The scholarships total $4,000 each.

At Stockbridge, a two-year school, students get "hands-on experience," Reynolds said. The second semester in Stockbridge lasts eight weeks, and then the students "put to use what they have learned," Reynolds said. They go out and work on a job in their major.

Hampshire College's agriculture department consists of the research and breeding of sheep, and the training of livestock-guiding dogs.

The agriculture department in Hampshire College is "project oriented; the students use the farm center as a lab," Russell Powell, coordinator of Public Information of Hampshire, said.

There are seven different agriculture majors in Stockbridge which offer associates degrees. They are Agriculture business management, Animal agriculture, Abroculture and park management (the care of ornamental and shade trees,) Floriculture, Fruit and Vegetable Management, Landscape Operations, and "We have the best Turf Management (program) in the country," Reynolds said.

There are no agriculture majors offered at Hampshire College. "Generally speaking the students who work at the farm center are majoring in natural science," Powell said.

Reynolds said the job market for such majors is good but there has been a decline in enrollment at Stockbridge. Thirty to thirty-five percent of Stockbridge students continue schooling to receive a bachelors degree.

"The feeling of many students in Stockbridge is "I need the bachelors degree to get a job, but I use what I have learned in Stockbridge," said Reynolds.

This is the Year to Plan Your Career!

Limited number of graduate study awards.

Unique 1 year graduate program combines an internship with graduate courses. Internships are available in community-based residential or vocational program working with adults who are mentally retarded or mentally ill or adolescents who are autistic. Generous scholarships and financial aid available. Bachelors degree required. Applications currently being accepted. Write or call: Donna J. McMaster, 9 Heaton Street, Montpelier, VT 05602 (802) 229-0326.

WANTED

People who will be able to offer students rides at the end of this term.

Please call the

Ride Service

545-2148

Sponsored by: The Commuter Area Gov't

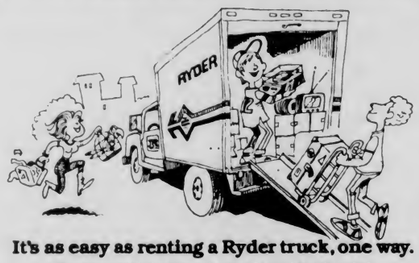
Wednesday, May 16
4-7 PM
Southwest Playing Fields

Free bus service from Franklin and Worcester parking lots.

In event of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s.

board members: bring i.d.

COUNTRY BAR-B-Q



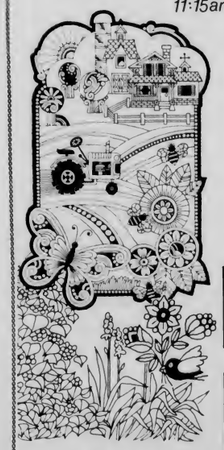
Non-Board Members - $4.75 in advance. Tickets on sale now at Munchies, Snack Bars, Franklin Meal Ticket Office.

Governor's Program Council

presents:
"Friedhoffer, the Mad Man of Magic"
in conjunction with the hilarious
"Slap Happy"
combo-together, FREE!
Wed. May 9
1st show 12:30-1:00 pm
Student Union. . .
Campus Roaming, then. .
2nd show 1:30 - 2:00 pm
Flagstone Terrace
Raindate: Thurs, May 10

Move Yourself, All Your Stuff, And Save, Too!

It's as easy as renting a Ryder truck, one way.



Compare costs before you make plans for moving at the end of the semester.
If you're 18 or older and have a valid driver's license, you can use a Ryder truck, rent-it-here, leave-it-there. Load up your stereo, 10-speed, clothes; everything. You'll still have room, no doubt, for one or two friends with their things to share the cost.
Compare that to the price of a plane ticket. Or even a bus. Plus shipping.
Rent a newer truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world – Ryder. The best truck money can rent.

STUDENT DISCOUNT COUPON
RYDER TRUCK RENTAL, INC.
The holder of this coupon is entitled to a
15% DISCOUNT
on any ONE WAY rental of a Ryder truck. Present this coupon to any Ryder location in New England and save even more.
One coupon redeemable per transaction. Not valid with other promotions.
Call (413) 736-8361 or your local dealer for information.
Renters Signature_____ Expires 8/30/84

SPRING FEST '84

Wednesday, May 9, 1984

11:15am – 1:30pm

"Finger Lickin Feast"
Fried Chicken
Fish & Chips
& a special
COLD SALAD PLATE
also
Potato Salad
Coleslaw
Assorted Desserts
Select any entree & dessert for only $3.00

UMass/Coke Treasure Hunt Continues
• SONY TVs 5" • TVs • Radios

BLUEWALL BAR HAPPY HOUR

BLUEWALL CAFETERIA

Black Affairs

Solutions sought for hiring minorities

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Recognizing the existing biases and working against these odds will help increase the number of women, blacks and other minorities in federal and state leadership positions, according to a colloquium on the recruitment of more women, blacks and other minorities for leadership positions yesterday at the University of Massachusetts.

Participating in the colloquium were Theodore DiMauro, former Mayor of Springfield, Mass.; Thurman L. Milner, Mayor of Hartford, Conn.; Nancy Banks, Town Manager of Acton, Mass.; Louis Hayward, former manager of Amherst and Chief of the Municipal Data Management and Technical Assistance Bureau in Boston.

David A. Booth of the Political Science Department at UMass and chair of the colloquium said it is common to see women in town elections. He added countless blacks have followed the example of Wilson Goode and Harold Washington, but on nation wide basis, white males tend to hold the positions of town managers, chief administrative officials and other top leadership positions. Blacks only hold eight percent of these, he said.

Booth said some claim the rationale behind the small number is not on the system but on the individual.

Affirmative Action which has been in existence for ten years reflects the situation, Booth said. "It is ten years out of date," he said. Because it was imposed by court order, Banks said it is fulfilled only in body but not in spirit.

Milner called Affirmative Action a set aside program. "It sets aside instead of blending in," he said. He added Affirmative Action is not an assistant type program, it uses the same hiring process as the general hiring. "It separates it does not make you part of the mainstream," he said.

Milner said women are now considered minorities so employers can fill the Affirmative Action quota, after reaching the 15 percent requirement companies stop hiring even though they don't have colored minorities.

Milner who is the 322 black mayor in the country said in reality he knew "Hartford would not elect a black mayor" but he said he was encouraged by the negative feelings blacks had. He said he was proving that it could have been done.

Hayward said that since the 1950's, women and minorities have been offered good opportunities in the public sector. Like Milner, Hayward agreed that women, blacks and other minorities must move around the obstacles of union and social services in order to develop a broader opportunity for themselves in the public sector.

When looking for a job, Hayward recommended to look at the jurisdiction and at the agencies, find out about their leadership track record and if they are willing to make changes and adjustments when hiring black minorities and women.

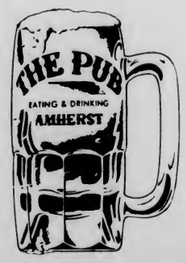
Milner said if racism and sexism did not exist he and the other participants would not have been explaining how to recruit women and minorities, "we would be telling how to recruit Americans, not classes of Americans."

Hartford's Mayor Thilman L. Milner speaking yesterday on The Urban Management Profession: Recruiting more women, blacks and other minorities for leadership positions.

4.75 To Start

Part-time positions available for dependable people to take physical retail inventories in Boston and north areas. Nationwide service needs people over 18 with phone and transportation. No experience necessary, only good math skills.
Must have weekend availabilty. Daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule allows you to average at least 40 - 80 hours a month.
Paid training on our audit calculators $5.00 per hour in 30 days provided you complete our training requirements. Opportunity for advancement. For more information call Mr. Krepick.
617-938-9119 or 892-3040
Summer employment. Full-time next January.
See Student Employment Office

WILD AMERICA IS OUR CAMPUS



Stimulating career-oriented BS, MS secondary and jr high school or summer expedition degree programs.
Newfoundland to California
Practical, cross-cultural 1 to 4 years small group camping. Field studies and encounters with deep ecological problems, society and self. Financial aid and postgraduate grants available
NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY
EXPEDITION INSTITUTE
Sharon, CT 06069 (203) 364-0522

Mother's Day is May 12th
Remember your mother on her day.
Send a card from
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

LAND
Terrific Bargain
10 acres ONLY $8000
Northfield -
Only 25 mi. to Amherst.
For info and terms just call owner.
802-257-4347 Days
802-254-9369 Eves.

LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds
is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT

Audio
Auto For Sale
Calculators
Entertainment
For Rent
For Sale
Found
Help Wanted
Instruction
Lost
Motorcycles
Personals
Ride Wanted
Rider Wanted
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Wanted
Wanted to Rent

PUB MUG NIGHT
- Every Wednesday -
35¢ BEERS
Miller - Miller Lite
Music by
Rack-A-Disc
- Dancing -
No Cover

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

TONIGHT! (AND EVERY WEDNESDAY)
LIVE NEW YORK COMEDY SHOW
ALREADY AN AREA TRADITION!
FEATURING...
the BEST of the BIG APPLE!
SHOWTIME 11:00 P.M.
75¢ MIXED DRINKS 8–11
NO COVER
THURSDAY:
Ladies Nite ✓ complimentary 1st drink 8 ✓ 10:30
2 FOR 1 ALL NIGHT LONG
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY from 8–10
NEW ENLARGED 2—STAGE DANCE FLOOR
THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!
Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

Have you hugged your teddy bear today?

Get your official 1984 Amherst Teddy Bear Rally tee shirt now. On sale in downtown Amherst at Hastings, College Drug Store, the Salt Box, House of Walsh and Chamber of Commerce office (basement of Lord Jeffery Inn).

ADULT SIZES $7 CHILDREN'S SIZES $6

Amherst Teddy Bear Rally

Saturday, Aug. 4, Amherst Common

GATHERING for a CELEBRATION of LIFE
with AMERICAN INDIAN SONGS & POEMS

in person
TRIBAL VOICE
with
JOHN TRUDELL

Traditional Indian Songs
by Quiltman, Madeline & Bark

FRIDAY MAY 11th 7 PM

CAPE COD LOUNGE Student Union Building

University of Massachusetts

Amherst, MA

sponsored by: American Indian Students' Association & the Arts Council

Attention All Students!

Earn $ money and gain valuable professional experience in finance, management, and public service while you develop your communication skills, organization and leadership abilities. If you're interested:

Campus Center/ Student Union Board of Governors

is accepting applications for the following coordinator positions:

- Display
- Finance
- Food Services
- Public Relations
- Special Projects
- Building Operations
- Vendor Certification
- Governors Program Council
- University Store Retail Services
- Space Economic Development
- Conference Services/ Accomodations

Jobs begin September 1984

Applications available in Campus Center 817

Deadline: Friday, May 11, 1984 at 4:00 pm

Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Scott Clark

The need for a yearbook

The Undergraduate Student Senate holds the future of the 115 year old tradition in the palm of their hands tonight as they vote on whether or not to authorize a combination grant/loan package of $20,000 for the 1985 Index, the University of Massachusetts yearbook.

Last week, the senate passed the 1985 student activities budget which included $16,000 for the Index, an amount the yearbook editor in chief has said is insufficient to put out a worthy product.

While the Index has been plagued in recent years by mismanagement and missed deadlines, the current 1984 yearbook staff has proven they are capable of using the $36,000 allocation to put out a good book.

Some SGA senators have urged the Index to try and be self-supporting. At last Wednesday's senate meeting, several senators asked why the Index could not be like the Collegian and sell advertisements. This suggestion has one very important and damaging ramification.

The Index should not cease to be a yearbook and start to be a magazine. When students graduate they should be given a book full of memories of people, events and places, not business establishments.

While the yearbook staff, current and future, should make every effort to ensure that past management problems do not reoccur they should not be held responsible for past mistakes which their predecessors have made.

The SGA should not give away money easily, either. They should work with the new 1985 Index staff to ensure repayment of the money loaned to them, by possibly offering management advice and by periodically auditing the yearbook and checking on their progress.

The Index has been an integral part of UMass for 115 years and should be given the opportunity to prove it can continue for at least 115 more.

Unsigned editorials relect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Sifting through the rhetoric

Tim Rudolph

The Commuter Area Government, (formerly known as the Commuter Collective), has been without a working democratic constitution for many months now. The operation has been functioning under a provisional government, the Commuter Area Junta, excuse me, I mean Commuter Area Governing Board, which continues to spend money at a rate the equivalent to more than $100 daily. This board has made an effort for a new government by drafting a new commuter constitution. I tried to sift through the poor grammar and structual inadequacies to find the "meaning" of the document. Let's take a look.

The good stuff starts with Article II. The purpose of the organization is stated to "represent the diverse interests of all commuting undergraduates...." That must explain the so-called Progressive Film Series. That must explain transfers out of their accounts to Students Against Militarism, Radical Student Union, and Western Mass Latin American Solidarity Committee, (with whom they share their office). This last group are the folks bringing you Rock Against the Contras, remember the freedom fighters against Soviet sponsored international communist terrorism. It seems when you get through the list of events the Commuter Area Government does represent all the interests, in the words of SGA Treasurer Assistant Diane Rossi, "the entire political spectrum, from liberal to Marxist."

Moving quickly along. Article IV. To govern commuters you get a 15 member Commuter Area Governing Board to govern you. Not bad, 15 students to represent nearly half the undergraduate population and spend 40 odd thousand dollars in funds. More importantly, all appointed or hired officers, Governing Board members, senators, etc. are required to "have a working knowledge of the Commuter Area Governments anti-racist/anti-sexist philosophy." In essence, this restriction ties in students elected at large and those seeking employment to the Commuter Area Government to a particular philosophy. This group is openly seeking collectivism, vaguely reminiscent of the Commuter Collective. Collectivism and conformity producing an equality of all members to the least common denominator. Equality preventing individuality, creativity, and exploration which equates to statist oppression.

O.K. I admit it. I'm against collectives, against socialism, and against communism. I recognize that these philosophies represent the greatest threat to the civil liberties of the individual, and here we have the threat to microcosm. Only communists build walls to keep their subjects in. Only Commuter area governments require their subjects to "have a working knowledge" and adherence to a policy not defined in the document. This is discrimination pure and simple. It is hard to rationalize discrimination as a tool to get rid of discrimination.

Before some of you start hooting and hollering about anti-racist/anti-sexist remember back to who conceived and authored the Equal Rights and Opportunity Provision of the new SGA Constitution. It was me. I'm against discrimination in any form, including reverse discrimination and seemingly tacit restrictions which promote discrimination.

Beyond the issue of discrimination, how was an anti-racist/anti-sexist policy arrived at. If restrictions were going to be employed. Fighting against anti-Semitism is a noble and necessary cause. Isn't this regarded as important enough? What about anti-communism? Whoops, almost forgot what group I was dealing with here.

I'm tired of these holier-than-thou self-proclaimed saviors of civilization. Maybe if they declared Amherst a Marxist-Free Zone, then commuters could have democracy and maybe some moderates and conservatives would be added to the spectrum.

Where's the democracy?

Tim Rudolph is a former SGA senator.

Return of the killer frisbee

Joseph McCormack

UMass has its share of top-ranked athletic teams, and Zoo Disc is certainly one of them. These athletes have won much acclaim for their agile wizardry with a piece of plastic. Likewise there are many devoted amateurs who spend summers on beaches and campgrounds polishing their skills. This article is not intended to offend or repress these groups in any way. The UMass frisbee elite should be free to practice their chosen art form.

However there is a huge, seething mass of uncontrolable novices whose incredible spastics with frisbees is undoubtibly the leading cause of concussions on campus. The worst ones insist on carrying a beer in the other hand. Trying to escape anything that one of them throws is like trying to dodge a guided missile.

The killer frisbee epidemic is only just beginning, but by the time spring concert arrives, it will be so out of control that no part of the campus will be safe. The health service attempts to minimize injuries by posting daily the Frisbee Index.

The Frisbee Index is the average number of frisbees over one square-yard of UMass land at any given time. Under three is considered safe, between four and six is considered hazardous, and seven or over is rated worse than a nuclear accident.

UMass has been known to go as high as ten.

During the Pond Concert Series last spring one student reported being struck by three frisbees simultaneously. Whether the incident was a deliberate assault or just bad luck is not known.

On that same day, there were so many frisbees flying over the pond area that Dick Albert's Super Color Weather Radar in Boston predicted major thunderstorm activity for the week.

There is no doubt that something has to be done, but what? This is one of those few times where the Administration might be useful. The Administration should outlaw the use of frisbees, except by liscenced frisbees users. A small application fee would cover the cost of the program.

Frisbee enthusiasts would then have to prominently display their liscences on their clothing while frisbeeing. A Special Frisbee Control Unit, attached to the UMass police force, could then make periodic sweeps of the campus, nabbing violators and jailing them.

Of course there must be testing procedures to ensure that only qualified applicants receive liscences. Actual qualifications would be left up to the newly-appointed Vice-Chancellor for Frisbee Affairs. Applicants should at the very least be required to take one Intro frisbee course at Hampshire College.

Write your SGA senator before the frisbee plague arrives.

Joseph McCormack is a UMass student

Letters

The cold, harsh realities of life

To the Editor,

Amidst all the clamor about such atrocities as Playboy in the Campus Center store, subs in the pond and Libyans in England has been lost an issue of utmost importance. The lack of press on this problem staggers the imagination considering its nearly global significance. I'm referring to something that makes Ronny's trip to China seem like a trip to the men's room. I am of course talking about the terrible torture of many of our fellow students. This is going on right under the roof of the Student Union Building. I heard one student screaming in agony just this afternoon. I refuse to believe that it has been allowed to continue for more than a week now. I would rather have bamboo shoots jabbed under my nails than suffer this pain much longer. I must expose the perpetrators of these acts.

The mini store is doing it! They have allowed the popcorn machine to remain broken for more than a week. I break into a cold sweat when I enter the building hoping upon that it's been repaired. Each day my heart breaks. How can they be so cruel as to force me to study for hours on end without a popcorn lover at UMass to help us rectify this horrible situation in the same way you helped stamp out cat juggling in Mexico?

Mark Victory
Amherst

Duffey's unanswered questions

To the Editor,

UMass Amherst has a policy banning classified research. That means that no nuclear weapons research can be done legitimately on this campus.

Thursday evening was the selectboard hearing on making Amherst a nuclear free zone. The Nuclear Free Amherst proposal explicitly states that it does not prohibit, "Basic research, the purpose of which is other than the development of nuclear weapons or components thereof."

The proposal therefore does not restrict research any more than it is already supposedly restricted by UMass policy. Yet Chancellor Duffey felt it necessary to send a statement against the Nuclear Free Amherst proposal, asserting contradictorily that it was wrong to restrict research and that the proposal was redundant anyway since such research is already restricted.

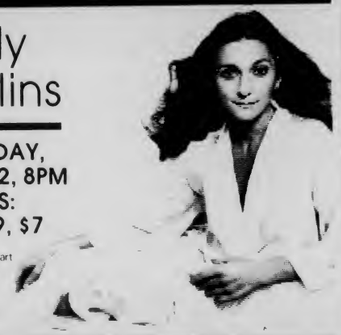
Something's wrong here. Why the self-contradiction? If the Act is in fact redundant with regard to University research, why bother coming out against it?

What does the Act threaten that's not supposed to be going on anyway?

Deborah Kutenplon
Amherst

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.



OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning.
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13
(whitewall blem)
$32.00
Includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No. Amherst, MA
Across from Warrobss Store
549-4704

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST
For students planning to take
English 112
(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984
THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)
MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)
No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument.

of mice and men
by john steinbeck
may 3-5, 9-12 · 8pm
rand theater, university of massachusetts
tickets: fac box office - 545-2511

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Judy Collins
SATURDAY, MAY 12, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7
Sponsored in part by a grant from Kollmorgen Corporation Electro-Optical Division

Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

Tartuffe delights, entertains

By ANN HARRISON
Collegian Correspondent

Moliere's Tartuffe, first performed at Versailles in 1664, was presented by the Mt. Holyoke College Department of Theatre Arts in a series of seven shows at the Laboratory Theatre.

Banned by King Louis XIV for three years, Tartuffe represents Moliere's attack on the hypocritical piety of the Catholic hierarchy in 17th century France. The action of the play takes place in the Pariesan household of a French aristocrate whose family is trying to convince him that he is being deceived by the seemingly devout cleric Tartuffe. Through a series of elaborate schemes, the aristocrate Orgon is finally convinced that Tartuffe is not what he seems. When Tartuffe is expelled from Orgon's estate, he lays claim to the property which the landowner has gifted to him in a moment of misdirected trust. Orgon is rescued from the results of his folly by a last minute edict from his wise ruling monarch.

Bob Kornhiser gave an excellent performance as the wiley Tartuffe, who manipulates the gullible Orgon (played by Paul Wildman). Kornhiser brought to the role the classic evil treachery of everyone's favorite villian. His adroit transformations from schemer to penitent Christian and his ardent pursuit of Orgon's wife Elmire provided the best moments of the action. Judging from the audience's response to Tartuffe's vigerous attempts at seduction, Kornhiser might well have stole the show with this protrayal of carnal ferver. His long suffering prey, Kim Mahaney played a good foil to these advances.

The exaggerated ineptitude of Orgon led a series of commendable characterizations of foppish 17th century dandies. Wildman's role as gentleman fool was greatly highlighted with well executed period costumes. It is difficult not to regard a character in red-heeled shoes, plumed hat, elaborate brocade and lace as something of an ass and Wildman rounded out the role with slap-stick precision.

The other male supporting characters were equally as farcical. They included Andrew Hawley, who played Orgon's rather inept young son, the suiter of Orgon's young daughter played by Bill Collins and Greg Alexander's Cleante who plays staight man to the general absurdity of the action.

The role of Orgon's hapless daughter Mariane, promised as a bride to Tartuffe was played by Karla Hendrick who appears to have mastered the "pained expression." Amy McCarthy rounded out this group of capable performers as the sharp-tounged maidservant Dorine who gives a rather overpowering performance in the first act.

The beautifully executed period costumes worn by the players in this drama were complicated by the equally vivid set designed by Oliver Allyn. The combination of the flamboyant costuming and the garish color scheme on the set highlighted the rather frenzied pace of the action as the play progressed.

While the individual roles of the characters and the production support was of a generally high quality, Tartuffe appears to loose much of its biting satire out of the historical context of the age. Period pieces such as this rely heavily on the audience identifying with the individual characters yet underlying messages sometimes get lost in the presentation. Although the theme of carnal clerics is an old and easily recognizable motif, some effort should have been made to give the audience some appreciation for the amount of controversy Tartuffe attracted when it was first produced.

What appears now as a quaint satirical drama was actually a brazen attempt by Louis XIV's favorite comedic artist to call attention to the false piety of an intrenched political force. While Louis XIV was the figurehead of government authority, much of the political power at the time was weilded by Catholic authorities. As a satire of this institution, Tartuffe was for Moliere, a symbol of the freedom and dignity of his profession. The scandle it caused emperiled his fortunes and prompted his theatres to be closed.

Such histories appear to exist independent of the performances which prompt them, yet audiences insight into the context of the drama, perhaps through a brief mention in the program, would have elevated Tartuffe above the level of a pleasing Thursday night diversion.

artslines.....

The University of Massachusetts Chapel Jazz Ensemble, directed by David Sporny, will appear in its final concert of the season on Thursday, May 10 at 8:00 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall.

Saxophonist Frederick Tillis, Director of the Afro-American Music and Jazz Studies Program at the University, will be guest soloist. Tillis will perform two classic John Coltrane compositions, "Equinox" and "Naima."

The 19-member band will play a broad range of jazz styles, including the music of Count Basie, Mel Lewis, Thad Jones, and Woody Herman. By popular demand, there will be a repeat performance of Bob Mintzer's "Good News," heard at the ensemble's December concert.

Band director David Sporny has a noted reputation in the jazz world. He taught for 16 years at the Interlochen Arts Academy where he initiated the jazz programs and formed the nationally recognized Studio Orchestra and his own 17-piece Dave Sporny Big Band. He has been chosen to direct the 1985 Western District Jazz Ensemble of the Massachusetts Music Educators Association.

Thursday's concert is presented free of charge by the Department of Music and Dance. For further information call the Music Office at 545-2227.

Arts

Winter's fans treated well

THE PAUL WINTER CONSORT WITH UMASS CHAMBER CHOIR
Fine Arts Center
Tuesday May 1

By PETER WISSOKER
Collegian Staff

Last Tuesday, the UMass Chamber Choir presented The Paul Winter Consort in a two part concert. The first part featured the consort and the second featured the Consort and the Chamber Choir. Both parts were well performed and the fans of Winter's music were treated to an enjoyable evening.

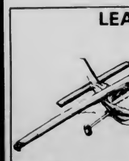
The Paul Winter Consort revolved around the saxophone playing of Paul Winter. Winter started the consort after having achieved international success touring the world in the good name of the United States. That was way back in 1962. Winter and his ensemble were invited by Jackie Kennedy to play at the White House. Heavily influenced by Dave Brubeck ("Take Five") and the Brazillian musicians that he met on tour, Winter expanded his musical horizons and sought to create a broadbased ensemble that would encompass a wide variety of musical styles.

When the consort was formed it involved musicians such as Ralph Towner and Glenn Moore. As the seventies progressed Winter became more interested in making music that reflected, for him, the earth and it's beauty.

The consort at this point features Paul Halley on piano, Glen Velex on percussion, Eugene Friesen on Cello and John Clark on French Horn. Both Velez and Friesen are very good musicans. Velez makes the tambourine sound like an entire drumset. Friesen seems to be a classical celloist who took an interest in avant-garde classical music and then jazz.

In the first half of the concert the ensemble performed mostly selections from Winter's Sunsinger album. The music is the ensemble's tribute to the sun. Alot of the music was written by pianist Paul Halley, whose own style often sounds like the piano at a hotel piano bar. The consort also performed songs from their upcoming album of music made in the grand canyon. It is an expression of their feelings for the canyon. Alot of it sounded like accompaniment for a National Geographical special. There was very little improvisation as even the Brubeckian influence faded away.

The second half of the concert featured a performance of Winter's "Earth Mass." This mass was written on the request of the pastor at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York where they often record. This peice featured the Chamber Choir. Unfortunately they were not well liked, but what you could hear sounded very nice. Under the direction of E. Wayne Abercrombie they were always in tune, on time and in general they sounded pretty sharp.



The set started the French Hornist John Clark playing a variation of "Somewhere over the Rainbow" from the balcony. Other pieces that were played included "Wolf Eyes." Unfortunately they had to leave the wolf at home and had to use a tape. They also played "Common Ground" which they used to end the conert in a sing along. One real highlight of the show was celloist Eugene Friesen's duet with John Clark. Friesen's playing is just another piece of evidence that the cello is being redisovered as an instrument.

If you like the Paul Winter Consort you will certainly go see them. For others I would suggest that you think about whether you want to listen to TV music. Or even better, don't take my word for it, listen to a recent album of theirs and judge for yourself.

Percussionist Warren Gossels of the Chapel Jazz Ensemble. See Artslines.

Granola Nite
WEDNESDAY
6:00 Josh n' Jeff
7:00 David Beenhauer
8:00 - Close Earth Day Trio
w/ Mike Pattavena
Another BOG event
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Berrell's Ice Cream

LEARN TO FLY

inexpensively earn your pilots license University Club open to five colleges. Cessna based in Northampton
546-4827 Introductory Rides 665-2577

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00 *
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
* Valid with Barb & Julie only C
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Commencement 1984

10:00 a.m., Sunday, May 27

All Candidates
There will be no Commencement rehearsal for degree candidates. Candidates should assemble by school/college at Alumni Stadium no later than 9 a.m. graduation morning, May 27, 1984. Signs will be posted indicating schools, and Commencement Marshals will issue specific instructions and distribute programs. Upon signal, candidates will follow the Commencement Marshals to the assigned areas and be seated.

Candidates will receive diploma covers from the deans of their school or college.

Who is Eligible to Participate?

Undergraduate degree candidates who anticipate completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1984. Questions concerning academic status should be directed to the Records Office, 213 Whitmore, 545-0555.

Master's degree candidates who have previously submitted the Degree Application Form by April 27, 1984 to the Office of Degree Requirements stating the intention to complete all requirements. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Doctoral degree candidates who have completed all degree requirements by April 27, 1984. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Faculty
Faculty and staff should assemble at the SOUTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel between the Facilities/Information Center and the stadium wall. Faculty will be part of the processional and will be seated immediately in front of the candidates from each school and college.

Note: Commencement '84 is on SUNDAY, May 27.

Parents and Invited Guests Plan to Arrive Early — Space is Limited
Since the Commencement Exercises are open to the public and guest seating is without reservation, parents and friends should plan to arrive early to ensure good seating.

Handicapped Seating
Viewing area for the handicapped will be located on both sides of the stadium on the eastern and western walkways. Since seating is limited, only one person may accompany the handicapped guest.

Invitations
There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend the ceremony and tickets are not required. Each undergraduate student will receive a packet of six formal invitations. Students are urged to encourage their guests to arrive early for good seating.

Caps, Gowns, and Hoods

Undergraduate Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge upon presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Master's Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge upon presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels, may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Doctoral Degree Candidates
Doctoral caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 4 p.m., upon clearance by the Office of Degree Requirements. On Commencement Day, caps, gowns, tassels, and hoods may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the NORTHWEST end of the stadium (on the gravel area).

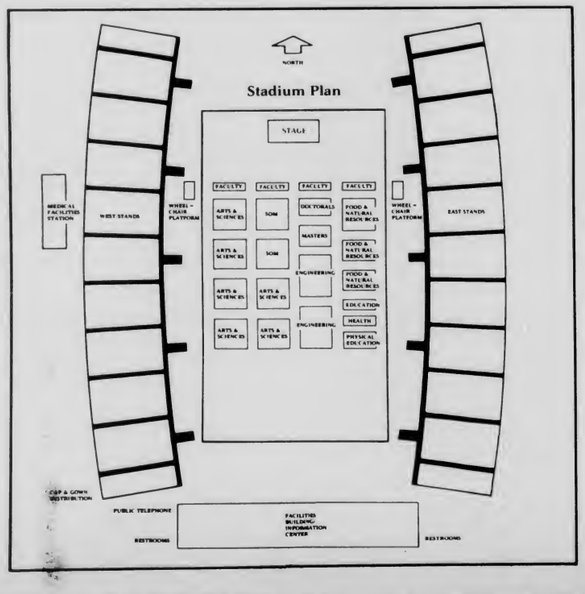
Doctoral candidates who plan to participate in the Commencement ceremony must have a hood. Each Ph.D. candidate's name will be announced over the stadium sound system and two officers of the University will drape the hood on the candidate's shoulders. Doctoral hoods can be purchased only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, A249 Graduate Research Center, at a cost of $26. (Five College Doctoral Hoods will be available at $42.95.) Doctoral hoods may be rented through the University Store.



Rentals
Academic apparel for this year's University Commencement may be rented through the University Store. All faculty members are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. THE LAST DAY TO ORDER IS FRIDAY, MAY 18. Payment must be made at the time of order and there will be no refunds if apparel is not used. Academic apparel may also be purchased. For further information about rentals or purchases, please contact Connie Szelewicki at the University Store, 545-2619.

Accommodations
Many area motels are already booked for Friday and Saturday before Commencement. A limited number of rooms in University housing will be available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 25, 26, and 27. Please contact the Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center, 545-3400, by May 10. There is a $5 cash key deposit — to be returned when the key is returned.

Food Services
Coffee, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at both rotundas on the North side of the stadium.

Schedule of Events	Date	Time	Place
Stockbridge Commencement	Sat., May 26	1:30 p.m.	FAC Concert Hall
ROTC Commissioning Ceremony	Sun., May 27	8:00 a.m.	FAC Concert Hall
Nursing Commencement	Sun., May 27	1:00 p.m.	Rhododendron Garden Rain site: 329 Morrill Science Center

1984 Commencement Ceremony: Sun., May 27, 10 a.m.-12 noon

Commencement Ceremony Schedule

9 a.m.	Robing for Commencement. Appropriate signs will be displayed. Graduates should line up according to their school or college.
9:30 a.m.	Seating of Graduates
10 a.m.	Procession starts
12 noon	Ceremony ends

Parking
Parking at the stadium is extremely limited. Commencement traffic will be directed to several parking lots located nearby and shuttle buses will transport you the short distance to the stadium. You will be dropped off directly in front of the stadium and buses will return you to the lots immediately following the ceremonies.

Radio Traffic Control
In an effort to aid the traffic flow at Commencement, WTTT radio in Amherst 1430 on the AM dial will broadcast traffic reports throughout the morning. Please tune to 1430AM once you arrive in Amherst for the best route to the ceremonies.

General Information

Diplomas will be mailed to graduates in the fall.

Medical facilities will be located in the van under Section 8 of the stands.

Public telephones will be located on the west side of the Facilities/Information Center.

Restrooms are located at either end of the Facilities/Information Center at the south end of the stadium.

Viewing areas for those confined to wheelchairs will be located on both sides of the stadium, on eastern and western walkways.

For additional information, contact the Office of Community Relations, 390 Whitmore, 545-2560.

ALCOHOL IS NOT PERMITTED IN THE STADIUM.

RAIN DATE
There is no alternative rain site. The ceremony will be held outside regardless of the weather. The ceremony will be delayed a maximum of two hours in the event of heavy rain. In the event of torrential rains the ceremony will be cancelled. Listen to local radio stations early Sunday morning to hear if the decision to delay or cancel has been made.

Hypercurricula...

25 PLUS CLUB MEETING — Older students social and meeting in the relaxing atmosphere of the Faculty Club, located behind Morrill. Final meeting of the year. For ingo, 545-2148. 4-6:00 p.m., Faculty Club.

FILMS — Big Store, 7 p.m., Night at the Opera, 8:30 p.m., Day at the Races, 10 p.m. 3 Marx Bros. films. Free to UMass students. 7-12:00 midnight, Pleasant St. Theatre, Northampton.

ZILDJIAN CYMBAL CLINIC — Clinic will feature the display and sale of more than 100 types of Zildjian cymbals and gongs, as well as Calato Regal Tip sticks and mallets. 3:00 p.m., Old Chapel Auditorium.

15th ANNUAL CONCERT OF MUSIC FOR PERCUSSION INSTRUMENTS — University Percussion Ensemble, directed by Peter Tanner, and guests, Estela Olevsky, piano; Dorothy Ornest, narrator; and Horace Boyer, narrator, will perform works of Gardner Read, John Williams, Mozart, and others. Free. 8:00 p.m., Bowker Auditorium.

BIKE CLUB MEETING — Final plans for tour 12th & 13th. Everyone welcome. CC904.

SALE — Army/Navy goods will be on sale. 9:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m., May 8, 10; 9-4:00 p.m., May 9, SUB.

COMMITTEE FOR EQUAL RIGHTS & REPRODUCTIVE FREEDOM MEETING — Join us to elvaluate the semester and make summer & fall plans—All welcome! 4:00 p.m., CC801.

LECTURE ON THE KIBBUTZ IN ISRAEL — "Meeting Individual Needs in Collective Living: the Social Structure of the Kibbutz" and "The Role of the Kibbutz in the 1980's" are the topics to be addressed by Israel Maizel. 7:00 p.m., HERT 111.

INFORMATION ABOUT ISRAEL — Israel Maizel will conduct interviews and share information about programs in Israel. Call Hillel for an appointment.

Watch for Andy Gordon's TRAILERS every Friday!

BODY SHOP

SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00

X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18

Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F 7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm
Summer workouts start June 4
LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL.

The Place to be is Time Out

Free Popcorn
Two TV's
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. PLEASANT ST AMHERST, MA

Need an Ice Cream?
REAL ICE CREAM?
Hurry!

the hatch
ice cream shop

ARMY/NAVY Clothing Sale
Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday
10 am to 8 pm (except Wednesday, 4 pm)
Student Union Ballroom
* Marine Rip Stop Camel Pants.....$10 - 13
* Brand New BDU Camel Pants.....$22
* Jackets.....$8 - 15
* Fatigue Pants.....$4 - 7.50
* Army/Navy Raincoats.....$10 - 15
* Down Filled Mummy Sleeping Bags.....$25 - 30
* Airforce Sunglasses.....$5 - 7
* And Much Much More

think spring!

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst
open Sunday

Hertz / PENSKE wants you to

MOVE YOURSELF

at these special one-way prices*

Call now and reserve your brand new 1984 GMC Vandura™

- AIR CONDITIONING
- AUTO TRANSMISSION
- POWER STEERING
- RADIO
- FREE MOVING GUIDE
- FUEL ECONOMY-AERODYNAMICALLY DESIGNED
- TAKES REGULAR GAS

Other size trucks are available for comparable savings.

Chicopee 594-5186

Northampton 586-8391

Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental & Leasing

Parking Notice

The Parking Office wishes to remind the University Community that the deadline for renewing parking assignments for 1984-1985 Academic Year is Friday, May 18, 1984. Any application submitted after May 18, 1984 will be assigned after all renewals and the waiting list have been processed and will be treated as new applications.

Wednesday Amherst Cinema Night May 9th

A Marx Brothers marathon with 3 of their best known films 7:00 Big Store/8:30 Night at the Opera/10:00 Day at the Races. Admission is free with a valid UMass ID

Look what's new at the the Hungry U Restaurant

Every Sunday & Monday Night — 99¢ pitchers with a large pizza; 99¢ Bloody Mary's all day Sunday!

Every Tuesday & Thursday 3-6, 9 'til close — 2 in 1 Jumbo Drinks and Drafts; 2 for 1 Bottled Beer and Pitchers

Wednesdays — Spaghetti Night! Spaghetti with broccoli, eggplant and mushrooms with soup or salad, and beverage (glass of beer or wine) ONLY $4.25

Fridays — Happy Hour!! 2 - 6 75¢ 1 Liquor Bar Drinks Kronenbourg $1.00

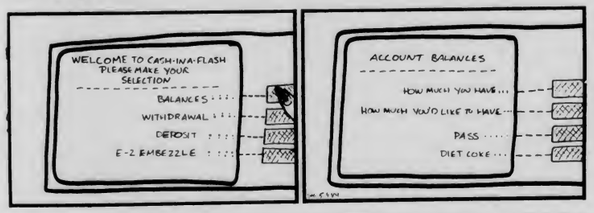
Saturdays — HOT NEW ITEM!! Beef Nuggets 1 order free with every pitcher of beer 10 'til close

55 University Dr. Amherst 549-5713

clip and save

Bloom County — by Berke Breathed

UMass Zone — Mark Rollins



The Strip — Jim Walsh

Shagnasty — O.T. Derringer

Off Campus — Sullivan & Gillbert

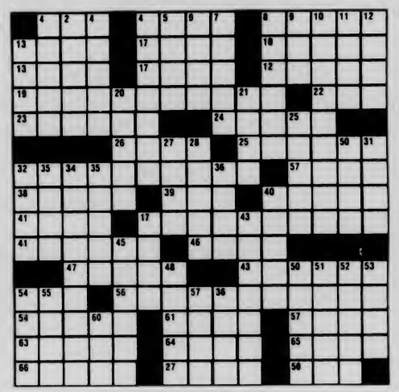
D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Brown Derby Sandwich
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole

BASICS LUNCH
Garden Sandwich
Broccoli and Cauliflower Casserole

DINNER
Baked Ham/ Fruit Sauce
BBQ Beef Cubes
Sweet and Sour Tofu

BASICS DINNER
Baked Cod with Lemon Wedge
Sweet and Sour Tofu



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Droop
4 Grumpy crustacean?
8 Back numbers
13 Telier's station
14 An hour for Vergil
15 Apotheosize
16 Bath's river
17 Site of first Olympic games, Greece
18 Monarchy in the Himalayas
19 Prognosis
22 Leprechaun
23 Typist's imperative
24 Prognosticators
26 Reddish shade
29 Declaimed
32 Conjecture
37 Pianist Peter
38 "...blood, toil, —— and sweat": Churchill
39 Congruous
40 Short and sweet
41 Sorcerers of old
42 Presumptions
44 Soothsayer
46 Four quarters
47 Task
49 Tease
54 Baba of fiction
56 Divine, as with tea leaves
59 Bed down
61 Put-on
62 Oh, dear!
63 Regale
64 Peerless person
65 Library item
66 Powerful beam
67 Cincinnati players
68 Fed. retirement org.

DOWN
1 Fully enjoy
2 Ancient Greek shopping mall
3 Units of heredity
4 Give someone a lift
5 Sound of thunder
6 Seed shield
7 Grounds
8 Hazard
9 "Golden Treasury" item
10 Touters
11 Viva voce exam
12 Ego
13 Bistro
20 Stipulations
21 Gaseous lamp
25 Rajah's spouse
27 Hold back
28 Like the Tower of Pisa?
30 Gaelic
31 "He who can, ——": GBS
32 Vapor: Comb. form
33 Burn to a crisp
34 Solomonlike
35 Dan Tanna on "Vega$"
36 Indians of Nebraska
40 The Graces
42 Tenor, at times
43 Leather processors
45 Golf iron
48 Fumble, in baseball
50 Les —— Unis
51 Greek island, site of an oracle
52 Camel's cousin
53 Otherwise
54 Asian salt lake
55 Broad-topped hill
57 Tommy of Broadway
58 Availed oneself of
60 Vane direction

LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds
is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT

Audio	Help Wanted	Roommate Wanted
Auto For Sale	Instruction	Services
Calculators	Lost	Summer Sublet
Entertainment	Motorcycles	To Sublet
For Rent	Personals	Travel
For Sale	Ride Wanted	Wanted
Found	Rider Wanted	Wanted to Rent
	Room Wanted

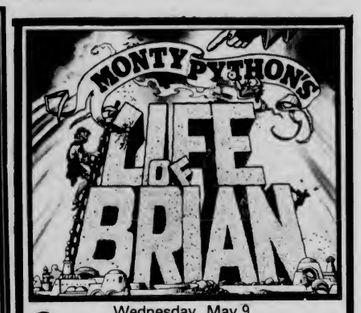
Weather

WEDNESDAY—partly sunny with a chance of showers, highs in the 60's. Thursday, variable cloudiness with a chance of rain.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	T	T	Y	E	N	D		I	M	M	U	N	E
S	T	E	E	L	I	E	R		M	E	A	S	U	R	E
T	A	I	L	B	O	Y		P	A	G	E	B	O	Y
A	L	E		E	I	N	N	E	A	D	S		I	T	E
R	O	O	D		S	E	A	L	S		W	A	I	T	A
E	S	S	E	D		S	T	E		B	I	N	G	S
	S	T	R	I	A	W	S		O	R	D	A	I	N	S	A
		A	N	I	E			A	S	H
C	A	N	A	D	A		S	T	E	A	L	S
P	A	N	G	E		N	I	P	T		S	W	I	T	S
O	N	D	I	E		D	I	E	S		S	E	A	T
O	T	O		V	I	T	A	M	I	N		A	L	T	A
M	A	U	R		B	O	Y		G	O	O	D	B	O	Y
S	T	R	I	A	T	E		E	R	A	S	E	R	S
A	S	T	A	T	I	D		R	E	S	O	U	S

College is an Investment...
Protect It!
...Buckle-Up
DOT
A message from University Health Services



FACULTY
There's an alternative to the Textbook Annex
Jeffery
Amherst
Bookshop
We offer fast, responsive service on your course book orders. . .as well as being a full-service general bookstore.
Free Special Ordering
student & faculty discounts
on trade books & supplies
Call us with your summer & fall orders:
253-3381

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
* FREE to UMass students with ID *
Wednesday to Saturday
The Big Store 7:00
A Night at the Opera 8:30
A Day at the Races 10:00
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

GARDEN
ROTO TILLING
Prompt Reasonable Reliable
323-5120

ARMY/NAVY
Clothing Sale
Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday
10 am to 8 pm (except Wednesday, 4 pm)
Student Union Ballroom
* Marine Rip Stop Camel Pants. . . . . $10 - 13
* Brand New BDU Camel Pants. $22
* Jackets. . . . . $8 - 15
* Fatigue Pants. . . . . $4 - 7.50
* Army/Navy Raincoats. . . . . $10 - 15
* Down Filled Mummy Sleeping Bags. . . . . $25 - 30
* Airforce Sunglasses. . . . . $5 - 7
* And Much Much More

Tonight FUNNYBONES Cocktail Lounge
LADIES 1st 2 drinks FREE
7 pm - 1 am
★ LIVE ENTERTAINMENT ★
Begins 10:00 pm NO COVER
- 90¢ Drafts All Night Long -
A GREAT TIME NEVER COST LESS
322 Rt 9, Hadley across from Mt Farms Mall
Open 11:00 am - 1:00 am Mon - Sat
1:00 pm - 1:00 am Sunday

Wednesday, May 9
5, 7, 9, 11
Campus Center Auditorium
Sponsored by Alpha Zeta
Admission: $1. at 5; $1.50 7, 9, 11

2 Brittany Manor apts available 1 bedroom each 1 with fall option, low price, newly rennovated 253-3389

Townhouse apt - furnished room (apt) available CHEAP June - Aug Mike 549-4861

Brandywine 2 bedroom June - August price negotiable call 546-6024 546-6019 546-6041

Possible fall great apartment 5 min from campus 549-1178 keep trying

Female for own room Puffton $150.00 + Trish or Terri eves 549-4621

Four bedroom house, furnished, large kitchen, living room, pantry. Washer and dryer. Near Look Park. $300 or best offer 586-9506

SUMMER SUBLET W/FALL OPTION

Brandywine 1 room for 1 or 2 persons fully furnished call 549-2773 after 5 PM

TO SUBLET

Two bedroom apt on bus route cheap rent summer sublet with fall option 665-7518

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

One bedroom apt in Presidential summer sub/fall option 355/mo 549-6644

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

2 bedroom Townehouse Apt available June 1st - Sept 1st call 549-4585

1 bdrm apt Crestview summer sublet w/fall option walking distance to UMass on bus route AC avail June 1 360/mo 549-7826

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Sublet fall option 2 brm $330 per month Sunderland summer rent negotiable call between 9-11 am or other 665-4744

1 bd room in Sunderland dishwasher/disposal 320 all utilities. Pool & tennis 665-8315

Wanted: First summer-session sublet. Near town-campus. Call 5-9 pm Sue S. 549-6040

One bedroom in three bdrm apt. in house available end May - Sept 1 near town & campus (Amherst) rent nego 256-1421 ask for Laura

One bedroom apt in Puffton June - Sept rent negotiable 546-5082

Ready now or June 1 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt on bus line, near Puffers Pond. Nothing down. Just $115 per month. Fall option 549-0437

House in town for sumemr 3 bdrm cheap call Sue 6-8142

Two bedroom apt summer w/fall option cheap, all utilities included 665-4953 evenings

One bedroom summer sublet with fall option Cliffside apt 665-7956

3 bdrm Townhouse apt avail for summer at a reas rate 546-5113

1 bdrm 295 mo. oncludes utilities, swimming pool, tennis cts & dishwasher evenings 665-7920 with fall option

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt to sublet for summer and fall only, furnished 256-1205

4 bedroom apartment on bus route summer sublet with fall option. 1½ baths, cable TV 174 per room includes all utilities call after 5:00 546-9322

3 bd apt fall option Amherst Center prime location beautiful tall ceilings huge windows fireplace June 1 256-1004

4 bdrm 2 bath Amherst apt w/fall option negotiable summer rent 256-1014

from June 1 with fall option two bedroom apt on Sunderland bus route 330/month 665-8314

Room available summer possible fall option. Rent negotiable. Call 256-0011 evenings

1 bdrm 280 month includes utilities pool tennis Cliffside apts bus route June 1 fall option 665-2156

Two bedroom apt available one fall option near Puffton wood stove 549-0112

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Southwood townhouse, serious students please. Jeff leave message 253-3497

TYPING

Professional Typing Service including: theses, manuscripts, medical reports, dictaphone. Emergency service. Call 536-2336, 6-10 PM

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Looking for used electric bass guitar under $100 549-0363 Derek call nights

Puffton-Rolling Green 3 bdroom will take June/Sept 253-2175

I need se ticket for Lionel Ritchie at the Centrum please call Sharon ASAP 546-9693

2-3 bdrm apt close to campus wanted for fall will pay summer please call 6-5345/6-5349

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

I need to rent a moped June-August. Amherst area. Licensed driver. Call kelley at 546-4207 after 7:00 PM

2 or 3 bedroom apt in Puffton, Brandywine, Townehouse, or Colonial Village. Will take in summer or fall. 546-6808, 6810, 6813

Rolling Green apartment or room wanted Reward! Call Wayne or Dan 256-1355

Two females looking for apt for fall 84 preferably Colonial Village or surrounding area will take for sumemr please call evenings 546-6924

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

ALL QUALITY SUNGLASSES

Today is the day - Sunny or Rainy - for buying Vuarnets and Raybans. Don't let these fantastic bargains slip away. Look for table in the CCC today or call Bruce 549-2879

AUTO FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

73 Buick wagon runs great body solid 70000 miles 500.00 549-7666

1974 Triumph TR6 great condition, excellent body and engine, many extras $4000 or BO 546-5516 Dan

72 Chev Impala 200 or best 256-8809. It runs!

1973 VW Superbeetle looks great, runs great. Lt Blue $895.00 549-4816

1973 Van rebuilt engine sunroof radial very dependable 665-3955 after 5 BO Mike

1971 Volkswagen Superbeetle excellent condition sunroof light blue $800 call 546-5039

1974 Camero high mileage but mint condition 549-6821 or 549-0482

'69 Chevelle Malibu Classic $300 549-1178 keep trying

BOARDERS FOR FALL '84 WANTED

For home like atmosphere call Sigma Kappa Sorority 256-6887 ask for Sylvia or Louise

CHEAP, CHEAP, CHEAP

★ Two bedroom apt on bus route to sublet ★
★ Rate very cheap and negotiable ★
★ Please call 546-8861 ★

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FEMALE ROOMMATE WANTED

To share room in Brandywine Apt for more info call Jodi 256-1235

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Live across from Emily Dickenson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

X-lg bedroom in split level apt rent negotiable quiet 665-2127

2 bedroom Brittany Menor available June 1 with fall option $450 Includes heat call after 10 pm 253-5907

Summer housing available 496 No Pleasant St 253-9015

Two rooms in house. Summer with fall option. Walk to campus & town. Furnished. 125-150/mo Dan Jackie 549-6041

$360 cash to the people who take over my lease - one bedroom Crestview 10 minute walk to campus 360/mo + util 549-5949

Townahouse Apartment, 2 bedroom for summer. $90 per person. Call 546-8234 or 546-8024, evenings

Lrg bdl bdrm in spacious 2 bdrm apt. Avail June 1 665-2236

Southwood Apts 1 bedroom townhouse summer w/fall option very clean 256-8225

Beautiful Amherst Center apartment $400.00/month includes utilities 2 person 253-2157

2 roommates for house on Rt 9 Belchertown; on bus route; $140 plus utilities call Mark 546-8422/546-9200

Two bedroom Southwood Apt available for summer with fall option 253-7373

Summer sublet fall option 2 bedroom Southwood Apt 256-0832

One bedroom apt Colonial Village available 6/1 w/fall option 256-0909 evenings

Spacious 2 bdrm apt Squire Village June 1, fall option 665-7923

FOR SALE

Japanese Go Set. Almost new $40. Rich 549-4786, 665-7034

Puch 10 speed bicycle. Excellent condition - almost new. $120 or BO call Bruce at 6-3263

Solid oak dresser, wall shelves 665-7920

Men's brown leather bike jacket not yet broken in size 42 like new $60 546-5132

Two 10-speed bicycles $65 each 253-2861

Beds, desks, kitchen chairs, table and other furnishings. Best offers. 549-0505

Apple II+, two drives, Micromodem, printer and accessories. $1695 or best offer. Call Keith 546-9349

FOUND

14K Gold Chain; pendant w/initial found 5/7 near Whitmore. Call Dolores 545-3436

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Housekeepers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

International Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

Part time sales. Audio background or sales exper. necc. Also, p. time car stereo installer. Apply at The Sound Co. 201 N Pleasant

Still need a summer job? Work as an activist on a nat'l voter registration campaign and help to shape state environmental policy. MASSPIRG is noe hiring full and part-time summer staff for public education and fundraising. $135-225/a week. Mon -Fri 2-10 PM. Will train. Call Sandy 256-6434

UMass Sorority seeks housemother for upcoming 2 years. Responsible female grad student preferred. Free room & board with salary 250$ per month. Call 545-2152 ask for Toni or Mary

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

COUNSELORS, Excellent Maine Camp, call Mrs. Fritts (201) 538-5409

Government Jobs. $16,559-$50,553/year. Now hiring. Your area. Call 1-805-687-6000 ext. R-9616.

Studentsl Summer jobs on campusl Apply to Telefund, Memorial Hall, 545-3509

Help wanted cook needed at local fraternity call anytime 253-9032 ask for Mark

Summer work out West 318/week call for info 549-7529

Drivers wanted for mobile vending vehicles summer Cape Cod Pete 584-9580

LOST

Lost 3 rings in SOM area extreme sentimental value $500. reward call 549-7758

Keys on Sandy's Rainbow keychain if found please call Sandy 546-5505

Black and red pack at Pond Series jeanjacket with ID inside 584-5662 reward

Patchwork sweatshirt lost at FAC on 4/28. Call 546-4878 if found

Lost blue jacket. Scituate High School Football embroidered on it. If found please please call 546-7744, great sentimental value. Reward no questions asked

Pearl necklace deep sentimental value help please! Reward Terry 549-4071

Lost: Key Ring with approximately six keys if found call 546-3290 reward!!

MOTORCYCLES

Yamaha 400 speciel 1982 - Mag wheels, new rear tire, backrest, crashbars, 2 helmets and lock 6700 miles 6-6987 BO

1981 Suzuki GS450 miles 7000 $750 or BO call Peter 549-7544

1980 Yamaha 400XS great condition 5000 miles many x-tras $1,000 or best call 549-7581

1980 Yemeha XS400 special, cafe bars, $850 Chris after 5 665-4148

PERSONALS

Patricia M. Smith we have your ID. It's at the Collegian

LIGHTS OUT PARTY TONIGHT AT 3C (10 PM) WEAR YOUR P.J'S AND BRING CANDLES

(Stubbe) Herr Goodkind: Tis I, Garreth of Exeter! Art thou coming to England? Get address & write! Greetings Greek! (D.D.) Go to Collegian Office for address

The Honors Student Association would like to thank Bart's for donating gift

Greek 246 - Party in honor of Dikaiopolis coming soon.

Problems with your employer? Call LSO 545-1995

Need a place to live next fall? Female boarders wanted. Good food home-like atmosphere. For info call 545-0162/2092. Keep trying!

Hi Mom, Here is your personal; was it really worth buying the Collegian for? Love, Pammy, Susie, Sharon

To Kurt from 2nd flr Moore - I think you're adorable! Meet me at the Pub tonight at 11 if you're interested. Love TSG

Brian, Dave, Dave, Frankie and esp. Scott - Thanks for making my first year here the best ever! Here's to next fall. Love, Susanne

WE HAVE BALLS - basketballs, baseballs softballs, footballs, tennis balls racquetballs, squashballs golfballs & frisbees

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

WHATS YOUR RACQUET?

We have Tennis Racquets, Racqetball Racquets, Squash Racquets & Balls!

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertetions, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

$300.00 REWARD

For recovery of Hifly 300 Sailboard taken from concert at Sowest on Apr 29 call Cathy Yates at 256-6761

RIDE WANTED

To Calif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

To Arizone end of semester share everything John 549-1358

Rids needed to the West Coast. California or the Northwest, Sometime after May 24th will share expenses, call Cory at 546-8770

ROOM WANTED

Male seeks room (single or shared) in apt. anywhere! For next fall-spring Dave 546-7738

Desparate for a room in Hyannis area for summer! Jennifer 256-1341

Room wanted - looking for room in Hyannis/Yarmouth area please call Patty 546-5275

Help! Own bedrm. near campus sought for fall. Senior PoliSci/JS student, neither grind nor party animal. No cig. smokers, please. Ian 6-6177 nights

Room wanted for fall preferably in N Amherst apertment summer possible Carol 549-3720

Room wanted in Harwichport for summer near Lincoln Lodge call Lori 545-0527

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-8089 Kris 256-0556

Female nonsmoker wanted in Brittany for fall 84 call 546-8343 546-8275

Roommate to share downtown Northampton apartment 200/mth inc heat 584-7608 Meg

Wanted: 2 females to share room in Brittany Manor start Sept 256-0393

Female roommate for summer near Amherst Center, on bus rte 118/mo 253-2763

Female roommate wanted Brandywine starting May 25th fall option call 546-7098

For rent 1 bedroom in two bedroom apt downtown Noho call Jennifer 584-5972

Female roommate wanted for fall in Brittany Manor call 546-8152

Roommate wanted for Rolling Green 2 bdrm AC pool on bus rt summer and/or fall M/F 202 incl Liz 256-8261

Presidential apt two people needed share one room 10 min walk, 111/mth/per + 20 utilities call Tom 549-6726

Moving to White Plains NY area looking for female roommate, just acquired job call Vikki 549-6869

Two roommates wanted for fall. Brittany Manor call Cyndi 253-3032

1 or 2 roommates wanted Brittany Manor male or female call 546-8111

Summer sublet and fall one female roommate wanted to share large room in Rolling Green $114.50 month everything included fully furnished on bus route call 253-3422

SERVICES

RESUMES You don't have to go off campus to get a professionally typeset resume. Come to Collegian Graphics Rm 105 CC. Fast service, competitive prices. M-F 9-2:30

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

SUMMER SUBLET

Two block from campus house with many rooms, beautiful lawn approximately 100.00 rent great deal 549-7666

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

Summer sublet w/fall option spacious 4 bedroom and 2 bath on bus route rent negotiable call 256-8247

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

Two bedroom Colonial Villege partially furnished convenient! rent negotiable call 256-6608

1 bedroom in big beautiful apartment on bus line in walking distance of campus and town. $150/month or BO 256-0170

Perfect summer sublet Amherst Center 1 large bedroom yard, pool, tennis. Rent negotiable 549-5799

Furnished one bedroom Puffton apt pool airconditioning laundry 549-7864

Summer sublet only. Negotiable. Pool bus stops call Staci 256-1288

Presidential Apt 2 to 3 people closest apts to campus cheapest rate available all summer. Call Eric 546-6407 Andy 546-3279

Two bedroom spacious apartment furnished rent negotiable call Beth 6-6491

Swiss Village summer sublet 2 bedrooms inexpensive 256-1405 Joe Eric

3 bedroom townhouse apts rent cheap call 256-0707 or 256-0660 evenings

Two bedroom apt fully furnished rent negotiable 5 miles to campus call evenings 665-8114

2 bedrm in 2 bedrm furnished apt center of town. Prefer serious student. Avail. June $250/mo Jan/Barb after 4 pm 253-7818

Furnished room in house next to Crestview, prefer nonsmoking male. $130/mo incl util, call Vincent 549-1867

Rolling Green cheap clean 2 bdroom $400 month AC pool 253-2175

Summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Southwood apt 253-7422

4 bedrooms available at Swiss Village summer sublet with fall option call 253-5274

Brandywine two bedrooms rent negotiable 546-5341, 546-7625

1 bedroom 3 bedroom house fall option partially furnished laundry bus route presently 2 male grads call eves 190+ negotiable 256-6673

With fall option in Southwood townhouse call 256-0051 after 6:00 ask for Ed

w/fall option 1 br Crestview walk to campus on bus rt across from Puffton 549-7792

Puffton - 1 bedroom person needed for summer $80 a month 546-8294

Double Brittany bedroom in three bedroom apt with fall opt 256-7484 $160/per person

Two bedroom apt utilities included pool bus route fall option $370 Cliffside 665-8501

2 bedroom townhouse in Squire Villege for June July and August, big rooms best offer Dave K 548-6461

Brandywine summer sublet furnished, best offer, call 546-5382

Sports

U.S. athletes upset at Soviet pullout

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

United States athletes and coaches Tuesday compared the Soviet Union's pullout from the Summer Olympics to the American-led boycott four years ago, saying it could threaten the future of the Games.

"If other countries follow the Soviet lead, the Games will be reduced to nothing more than a regional contest, similar to the way our pullout in 1980 reduced the Moscow Games to nothing more than regionals," said Al Oerter, a four-time gold medalist in the discussion. "The Games are in real jeopardy now.

"I'm amazed at the pullout because I always felt it was their intention to come to the United States and win every possible gold medal, to embarrass us in our own backyard, and at the same time to complain about our air, our security, everything," said Oerter, who is trying to earn a berth on the U.S. Olympic team.

Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said the United States was "paying the price for 1980." Both he and Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, promised to work to reverse the Soviet decision. The Olympic deadline for announcing participation is June 2.

Abie Grossfeld, gymnastics coach at Southern Connecticut State University and head coach of the U.S. gymnastics team for the Summer Games, said, "Politics is becoming much too involved in the Olympics. I don't think we should have pulled out in 1980. It was a political ploy."

George Raveling, Iowa's basketball coach and an assistant to U.S. Olympic Coach Bobby Knight, called the boycott "another step toward what ultimately could be the demise of the Olympics."

"It just dramatized how much winning and losing is over-emphasized in the world today - obviously the Olympics have become a political vehicle. We're not any less guilty because we're the ones that set the precedent. I don't think we can objectively sit here and point a finger at the Russians.

"Each of us needs to sit back and take an objective look at international competition. We need to do something to rid ourselves of the political element that has crept into international athletics."

Jody Anderson, a competitor in the heptathlon, said she feels "sorry for the athletes because it is all political. Athletes have nothing to do with it."

Long-jumper Willie Banks said, "The Olympics were originally a friendly competition between countries. But it seems they've become a political tool for the powers that be."

Olympic wrestling coach Dan Gable said simply, "I'm mad. We should never have held these Olympics in Los Angeles because we boycotted Moscow in 1980. If the Olympics were held in another country, we would not be having this problem. The gold without the Communist nations is, without doubt, a little bit tarnished."

Gable was one Olympian who believed the Soviets may yet be a part of the Games. "Just because someone says something, don't count that official," he said. "I'm not counting them out yet."

AP Laserphoto

GOT WHAT THEY WANTED—David Balsiger, right, president of Southern California's Ban the Soviets cups his ear listening to a question yesterday in L.A. Coalition members Nick Sorokin, left, and Tony Mezeika sit in.

Gazelles open up NCAA tourney against Yale

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The opponent is Yale University, but the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team wants another crack at Harvard, who topped UMass 9-5 earlier this season.

But one game at a time. Yale is the opposition as the Gazelles, 7-5, open the NCAA playoffs this afternoon at 4 p.m. in New Haven, Conn. The winner of this opening round clash gets the right to meet Harvard Saturday in Cambridge for the right to go to the Final Four on May 19, 20 at Boston University.

"We are trying not to look ahead," sophomore Chris Kocot said. "We feel that we are in an easier bracket but I'm sure that's the way Yale and Harvard feel. We have to go out and play like it's our last game of the year."

Which it will be if the Gazelles overlook Yale.
The Eli have had an up and down year according to coach Polly Keener and she called the game a toss-up.

"If we can play well, we can take them. We won't be able to make a lot of mistakes. We have to play clean, aggressive lacrosse throughout the game," Keener said.
Leader scorer junior attackman Pam Moyrl agreed. "We have to capitalize when we get the ball and not throw it away after the defense has worked so hard to get it for us."

The key factor in the game may be the defensive power of the Gazelles, who like to settle back into a tough zone defense.

When UMass can get its defense set up, there are as many as eight (not counting goalie Debbie DeJesus) of the 12 players on the field working on defense.
"We put all our strengths into the zone," Keener said. And when the Gazelles have been able to set up their zone, they have been a tough nut to crack.
The problems come on the transitions and the fast breaks. UMass has been very vulnerable to the fast break throughout the season and want to stop this today.
"We have to stop them on the fast breaks," Kocot said. "We have gotten in most trouble usually setting up the zone."

So, it is a match with the Elis today at 4 p.m. for the right to meet Harvard on Saturday. If UMass can beat Harvard, they will be in the Final Four for the third consecutive year.

But only if they get by Yale. "We can only take them one at a time," Keener said. "The players are ready.
"But they will have to work their tails off to get it."

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

The UMass rugby team (white and red), shown here against Cambridge club in April, will be competing in the New England championships this weekend.

Celts-Knicks clash

BOSTON (AP) - They are like two adversaries who meet regularly over a chessboard. There are few secrets about strategy, only tactical adjustments to counter each other's moves.

"They're going to make us beat them from outside with the guards, obviously," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. "And we're not hitting the shots."

"I just don't think you can change things overnight," said New York's big weapon, Bernard King. "I've been doing a lot of thinking and, game by game, I've been able to make some adjustments to their defense."

After battling back from a 2-0 deficit to even their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series, the Knicks visit the Celtics for tonight's fifth game.

The teams split their six regular-season games. Boston got into the Eastern Conference semifinals with New York by beating Washington in the opening series. The Knicks did it by eliminating Detroit.

The Massachusetts Daily
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 69 © UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Thursday, May 10, 1984

Associate provost Cole announces resignation

By JIM FINKLE and LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Johnetta B. Cole yesterday announced that she resigned two weeks ago as University of Massachusetts associate provost for undergraduate education.

Cole, who is completing a one-year appointment as a Russell Sage Foundation professor at Hunter College in New York City, said she plans to remain in that city to teach and complete anthropological research on women in America.

Collegian file photo

Johnnetta B. Cole

She will work at Hunter College as a visiting professor of anthropology while remaining a tenured professor in the anthropology department.

However, she said she is unsure whether she will actually return to UMass.

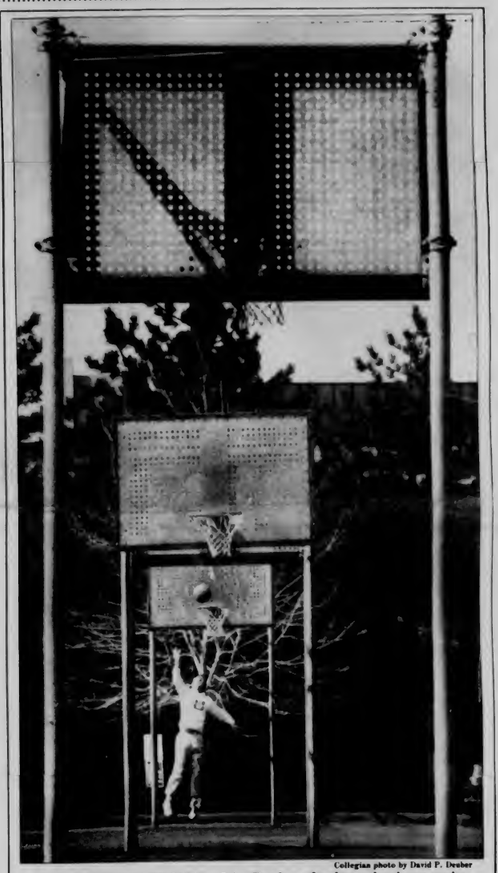
"I cannot say I am definitely not coming back," Cole said. "This (coming) year is very handy for me, but it does not cut the tie with UMass."

She will continue to do field research in New York for a book titled All American Women that will examine whether "there are enough experiences, attitudes and values that American women share to constitute a culture," she said.

Cole said that because New York contains a diversity of women with the varying backgrounds found throughout America, it is an ideal place to conduct her research. "It's a very exciting place to be," she said.

When Cole realized she would need to spend another year away from the University to complete her research, she decided to resign from her administrative duties because "the position demands that someone be working there full-time." She said that requiring someone to fill her vacancy in an acting position for two years could weaken that person's ability to do the job well.

Fern Johnson, who became acting associate provost when Cole left, said her resignation from the administration is "a tremendous loss."



"She went into an administrative position and did something with it," Johnson said. "She put that position on the map."

Johnson called Cole "a bright, dynamic, wonderful person" who "had a golden opportunity to do research after a period of very intense administrative work."

"She has been very energized by having this year to do her anthropology scholarship," Johnson said.

As associate provost, Cole was responsible for representing the University administration on all academic committees related to undergraduate education. She was also a vocal supporter and principle author of the Faculty Senate Ad Hoc Committee's controversial general education curriculum proposal.

"It was clearly unfortunate that the proposal did not receive a more favorable response from the faculty," Cole said. When a new draft is considered next fall, Cole said she plans to "make a response along with my colleagues in the anthropology department."

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

ALL ALONE IN FRONT — John Brady, a freshman business major, shoots hoop last week at the Southwest Residential Area basketball courts.

The Valley Woman's Voice in danger of folding, again

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

For the second time in six months the only feminist collective newspaper in the Pioneer Valley, the Valley Women's Voice is in serious danger of folding.

"The paper only has enough money to pay its bills and put out the June issue," said the paper's coordinator, Joan Wilce.

The fate of the paper depends on whether they can raise enough money to hire a full-time coordinator and attract a new staff," Wilce said.

"There is a tremendous amount of burnout and apathy among the current staff," said Amy Hasbrouck, a writer and former student intern at the paper.

But, said Buck McWilliams, one of two advertising representatives, "The paper needs more hierarchy and structure instead of being a haphazard feminist collective.

"The paper was going to fold last semester, but a couple of people decided to keep it going. It always falls on the shoulders of a couple of individuals."

The Voice has appeals for financial assistance to the Arts Council, the Graduate Senate and University of Massachusetts Dean of Students William F. Field, but the University administration is not "backing it because it's a feminist newspaper," said Voice member Ila O'Brien.

Continued on page 5

INSIDE:

Women's Department six years old ..... p. 7
Chancellor issues annual report ..... p. 3
Zoo Disc heads for the playoffs ..... p. 22
Gazelles nip Yale in overtime, 6-5 ..... p. 24

"The best thing about journalism is you're never working, but you're always working."
— Ken Bazinet

Senate postpones yearbook decision until next semester

By IAN POLUMBAUM
Collegian Staff

The fate of Index, the University of Massachusetts yearbook, will remain uncertain until the beginning of next semester, due to last night's Undergraduate Student Senate decision to table until September 19 the question of additional funding for the book.

On May 2, Student Government Association Treasurer John Mooradian proposed a combination loan/grant of $20,000 to Index from an SGA emergency fund to bring the yearbook's funding up to the amount its editor said is necessary to produce the 1985 edition. The Senate tabled that motion until yesterday.

Last night's vote, according to SGA officers, amounted to a commitment to give Index the additional money in September — provided the yearbook staff has, by that time, demonstrated that it has overcome management problems and can pay back the $10,000 loan portion of the emergency allocation.

"In September, we will know for sure whether we will get a (1985) yearbook," said Budget Committee Chairman Joseph Sparks. "If they do their job the way they say they will, they'll have no problem getting the money.

"If they can't do the job, we shouldn't throw away another $20,000. Why should we give them the money now, when we don't know if they can do it?"

Index Editor Kevin Fachetti said last week that he and his staff planned to pay back the loan by selling copies of the 1982

Continued on page 5

World and National News

Spark of Soviet boycott flares world tensions

Soviet boycott a threat to future Olympic games

Associated Press

Western government officials, newspaper columnists and athletes said yesterday that the Soviet decision to boycott the Los Angeles Olympics could spell the end of the modern Olympic movement.

"The Olympic games as we knew and loved them...died yesterday of malice, greed and corruption," wrote sports columnist Ian Wooldridge in the London Daily Mail.

Bulgaria yesterday followed the example set by the Soviets the day before and announced it would not participate in the 1984 summer Games in Los Angeles. Romania had already said it will take part.

Other Eastern Europe nations remained silent on their plans for the July 28-Aug. 12 Games.

Western European leaders, including Spanish Premier Felipe Gonzalez and Australian Sports Minister John Brown, urged the Soviets to reconsider their decision.

But in Paris, Soviet Ambassador Yuli Vorontsov said the pullout was "definite and irreversible."

In Moscow, the Kremlin said the action was justified by the "arrogant hegemonistic course" of U.S. President Ronald Reagan's administration. A Tass news agency comment yesterday said Washington's policies put it "at odds with the noble ideals of the Olympic movement."

In Munich, Willi Daume, head of the West German Olympic Committee and head of the International Olympic Committee's Eligibility Committee, urged IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch to go immediately to Moscow to negotiate Soviet re-entry into the Olympiad.

In Paris, Mario Vasquez Rana of Mexico, president of the Association of National Olympic Committees, said Samaranch will go to Moscow on Friday.

AP Laserphoto

Juan Antonio Samaranch, left, president of the International Olympic Committee, and Peter Ueberroth, chairman of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, talk to reporters outside the West Wing of the White House Tuesday after meeting with President Reagan to discuss the announced pull-out of the Soviet Union from the 1984 Olympic Games.

Bulgaria first to follow Soviets in withdrawl

Associated Press

Bulgaria yesterday became the first Eastern bloc country to follow the Soviet Union's example in pulling out of the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, as Americans used shuttle diplomacy in a worldwide game of wits to keep other nations in the Games.

A statement by the official Bulgarian news agency BTA said the national Olympic Committee voted "unanimously against the participation of Bulgaria in the Games because of the existence of an abnormal situation in this American city." Bulgaria is the closest Soviet ally in the Eastern bloc.

A delegation selected by the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee was in East Germany trying to convince officials that their athletes would be secure in Los Angeles.

Other Olympic officials were meeting in California with representatives of "three or four" countries friendly to the Soviets, the president of the organizing committee said yesterday.

But most Eastern bloc countries and Cuba were silent on whether they planned to join the Soviet Union, which announced Tuesday it was withdrawing from the Games because of "anti-Soviet hysteria" and concerns for the safety of athletes.

It was a case of the Americans going to great lengths to keep some of their toughest opponents in the competition.

Soviet athletes captured the most medals in the past three Summer Olympics, including 1976 when nearly 40 countries boycotted the Montreal Games to protest a New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa and 1980 when then-President Jimmy Carter called for a boycott of the Moscow Olympics to protest the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Eighty-one countries stayed away from the Moscow Games.

East Germany was the No. 2 medal winner behind the Soviets in the 1980 Summer Games.

President Reagan said in Washington yesterday he was greatly disappointed by the Soviet decision and called it "unfair to the young people that have been waiting for so long to participate in those games."

"It ought to be remembered by all of us that the games more than 2,000 years ago started as a means of bringing peace between the Greek city states," Reagan said. "And in those days, even if a war was going on, when Olympic year came, they called off the war in order to hold the games.

Shultz charges Soviets fear defections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz said yesterday he expects the Soviet Union will try to influence the outcome of the U.S. election, possibly by escalating violence in Central America in October.

But Shultz told a group of western Massachusetts business people, political leaders and educators that he did not expect the Soviets to have a major impact.

Shultz told an issues seminar arranged by Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., that the Soviets were unable to affect the outcomes of the most recent elections in West Germany and Great Britain.

Reporters attended the Shultz portion of the seminar under the understanding from Conte's office they could report on Shultz's statements but could not use direct quotes.

Shultz also said he did not think the Soviets decided to boycott the summer Olympics in Los Angeles because of their stated concern about security for their athletes.

Instead, he said, the boycott may have been triggered because of the United States' decision to boycott the winter Olympics in Moscow four years ago as a response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Reagan denounces 'communist terror'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, arguing the United States is fighting a "communist reign of terror" in Central America, declared last night that Salvadoran guerrillas with Cuban support are poised to topple the shaky El Salvador government unless the United States provides more military aid.

"The simple questions are: Will we support freedom in this hemisphere or not?...Will we stop the spread of communism in this hemisphere or not? Will we act while there is still time?" Reagan asked in remarks prepared for a nationally broadcast address to the nation from the Oval Office.

In a speech devoted to convincing Americans he is pursuing the right course in Central America and to pressuring Congress into supplying more military aid to that region of turmoil, the president decried the "new isolationists" who prefer a policy of "wishful thinking" to action.

"As I talk to you tonight, there are young Salvadoran soldiers in the field facing the terrorists and guerrillas in El Salvador with the clips in their rifles the only ammunition they have," Reagan said.

Digest

By The Associated Press

High tech report called 'disservice to industry'

BOSTON — A report questioning the high tech industry's impact on the Massachusetts economy contains inaccurate employment data, is "naive on economic theory" and is "so distorted as to be a disservice to industry," states Economic Affairs Secretary Evelyn Murphy has complained.

But she acknowledges the report correctly notes that high technology workers earn less than out-of-state employees.

The 80-page union-supported study released April 23 by the High Tech Research Group miscalculated total job growth statewide by excluding several new categories of workers, Ms. Murphy said at a news conference yesterday.

The report said total jobs in the state increased by 721,600 from 1972 to 1982, but she said the number actually increased by 388,000. The survey also said one of seven jobs could be attributed to high tech, but Ms. Murphy said one out of four was correct.

Tough drug bill killed in Senate

BOSTON— Citing constitutional problems, the Massachusetts Senate has killed a bill that would deny bail to anyone charged with possessing illegal drugs with a street value of $25,000 or more.

"This bill is offensive to any of us, all of us, who hold up our hands every couple of years and agree to uphold the constitution of the United States of America," Sen. Edward Burke said yesterday after the senate voted 18-13 to table the bill, an action which usually kills a proposal for the year.

Sen. Patricia McGovern, Senate chair of the criminal justice committee, said no Massachusetts law has prevented bail for a defendant since 1902 when the state tried to pass such a law for people accused of treason.

Even murder suspects are entitled to apply for bail under legal protection that dates back to the Magna Carta, the Lawrence Democrat said.

"What we're talking about here is going against the entire course of Western legal history. It's an abhorrent thought," she said.

But Sen. Edward Kirby, R-Whitman, said that "not since the Magna Carta has there been a threat to society like the drug trade."

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Paul Basken
Copy Editor — Stephen Howe
Photo Technician — Paul Desmarais
Production Supervisor — Lesley Clark
Production — John Wielgus, Marianne Walsh, Karen Darr, Catherine Hall, Merrianne Hrycin, Mat Atkins, Lissa Kiernan, Amy Ke[illegible], James Shanahan

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Collegian
Spring 1984
Board of Editors

Joel Myerson
Editor in Chief

Bill Wall, Managing Editor — J.P. Shanahan, Production Manager
Andrew May, Business Manager — Josh Meyer, Editorial Editor
Drew [illegible] & Dave Deuber, Co Editors — [illegible] Drory, Editor
Gerry [illegible], Sports Editor — Miriam Zoll, Women's Issues Editor
Lisa Mosley, Arts Editor — Yadira Betances, Black Affairs Editor

Human relations forum addresses sexual harassment

By TAARA HOFFMAN
Collegian Staff

Students and faculty subjected to sexual harassment within the University of Massachusetts community have not been using the grievance procedures outlined in the University's sexual harassment policy, Ombudsman Howard Gadlin said yesterday.

Gadlin, who participated in a Human Relations Forum that focused on the issue of the two-year-old policy, said many people hesitate to pursue grievance procedures vigorously because they fear retaliation from the harasser.

Students fear their grades will be altered if they reveal a teacher's identity, and employees fear they will be demoted, transferred, or fired if they reveal their supervisor's identity as a harasser, Gadlin said.

Myra Hindus, coordinator of the Working Women's Program at the Everywoman's Center, who also participated in the forum, added her charge that the current policy protects repeat offenders.

Gadlin, who as Ombudsman informally negotiates sexual harassment cases, questioned at what point he should draw higher University officials into a confidential case involving a repeat sexual offender.

Another issue discussed and currently being reviewed is the vague definition of sexual harassment and how the community interprets behavior that may be considered harassment.

"People are careful about their advances so that other interpretations of what is said is reasonably plausible," Gadlin said. "Advances are ambiguous enough so that people would hesitate to call them sexual harassment."

There is also concern about whom individuals pressing grievance procedures should contact in order to file complaints.

According to the sexual harassment policy, individuals who are harassed are urged to approach the head of their department, which implies the harassment is occurring in an academic setting.

Grant Engle of the Office of Human Relations, said "the supervisor closest to the problem is the person who should take the appropriate actions."

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

GETTING HOOKED — Boilermaker foreman Michael Jackson adjusts a crane at the baghouse construction site near the Campus Center garage.

Nursing home staff without a contract during negotiations

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Union workers at the Amherst Nursing Home (AMH) are now working without a contract after their 1982 contract expired yesterday and administrators failed to extend it.

AMH management and the New England Health Care Employees Union, District 1199 have been negotiating a new contract since March.

"We now have no protection from wage reductions, losing our jobs, or harassment," said Karl Meyer, a bargaining unit member.

Meyer said despite the fact that "many union members are extremely upset by the contract expiration," there are no plans to strike before the next bargaining session scheduled for May 17.

"By law, we must give ten days notice before we strike. Although we have no current strike plans, we will take any action that we feel is neccessary," said Meyer, who participated in a strike in 1982 before reaching terms for the current contract.

A press release issued by AMH's management states, "Outstanding issues include: the requirement of everyone to join the union, or having the option of donating (dues) to charity...(and) the union dictating how managers will train employees."

The release does not mention a requested $1-per-hour pay increase for the union workers, who earn $4 to $5 per-hour.

Nurse's aides, housekeepers, and laundry and maintenance workers at the nursing home are all eligible to join the union, or are required to donate the equivalent of union dues to a charity.

"The union wants the charity option taken away...(and) the union desires language in the contract telling management how it will train employees. Management believes that the union should not dictate how management will train their staff," the release states.

Bargaining unit members said although the union workers train new employees in the use of specialized equipment, management maintains that those workers are not qualified to make any recommendations about training procedures.

However, Betty Kravetz, co-owner of the nursing home, said management trains new employmees.

Bargaining unit member Peg Vezina said, "We had an incident just recently where a patient was dropped to the floor because the machinery that was being used was broken, and no one had been trained to recognize this or to fix it."

Another union member, Lisa Winter, said the management attempts to dissolve the union every two years by not bargaining in good faith, "which happened in 1982 when workers went on strike after negotiations broke down."

Bargaining unit member Leslie Jennings also said that at a previous bargaining session, Kravetz had stated that as a spiritualist, the spirits had told her that having a union was no good.

Although Kravetz acknowledged that the subject of spiritualism had come up during bargaining sessions, she had no comment as to whether she considers herself to be a spiritualist.

Women's management roles examined

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Not being accustomed to working with other women as peers creates conflicts for women in leadership positions, said a woman who participated in a recent colloquium, held at the University of Massachusetts to explore the recruitment of women, blacks and other minorities in urban management professions.

Nancy Banks, town manager of Acton, said she thought she would never hold a leadership position because she believed "being a woman would impede me from pursuing my personal goals."

She said that during the recession of the 1970's she didn't know if she didn't get a job because of her sex, or because there were no jobs for anyone.

Then, she said affirmative action brought job training and efforts were made to find a fob for women and minorities.

"The advantages outweighed the disadvantages," Banks said, adding that because it was imposed by the courts, it was only fulfilled bodily, not spiritually.

Now ten percent of the municipal managers in the country are women, according to David A Booth of the political science department at the University. Booth also said that of the 150 positions in Massachusetts, 63 of them are filled by women.

When she applied for the job of assistant manager of Lexington, she said she "did not go through a screening process." However, "being a woman should not be used as a crutch or used against your failures or successes," Banks said. She added that being a female is a contributing factor for getting interviews.

Banks said she felt she was the right person to do the job as town manager of Acton. But she cited an incident in which she offered to drive a group of men to a conference. She said her male counterparts were threatened by her offer and other incidents with the "powerful little woman."

Chancellor stresses varied curriculum

By KEN BAZINET
Collegian Staff

For the University of Massachusetts to maintain its position among other schools during the next decade, the general undergraduate education curriculum should provide students with practical skills and information beyond their majors, according to a newly released publication.

In his annual report released yesterday, Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey stated that the general education issue, focal point of undergraduate education, should keep UMass from providing an undergraduate program which "replicates a specialized graduate curriculum."

"The importance of general education extends well beyond undergraduate training to graduate study and research," Duffey stated in the report. "The difference between good research and great research is often the ability of researchers to reach beyond their discipline for models and paradigms."

The 32-page glossy publication, which will be distributed to 46,000 people, including those who regularly receive Contact, another UMass publication, also addressed the future of graduate education, and research, and summarized the 1983 operating costs of the University.

"For this campus, the next decade is crucial," Duffey stated in the report. "We must consolodate our achievements of the last quarter century while managing our present and future resources with care. We must renovate and refurbish the physical structure of the campus, and equally important, we must reassess both what we do and how we do it."

The report includes an introductory statement and two essays by Duffey--one on the role of undergraduate education and the second on graduate education and research. Some of the successful campus programs are also highlighted in the report, which was edited by Mary Young of the University relations and development staff.

Collegian photo by Paul Desmarais

A WHEEL GOOD TIME — Matthew and David, two patrons of the Grass Roots Daycare Center near the Southwest Residential Area, enjoy the tire ride.

New study areas available

In order to address the "severe lack of study space on campus," which has "reached crisis proportions," two dining commons and conference rooms in the Campus Center will be open Sunday through Thursday evenings through the end of final examination period, according to student president Rick Patrick.

The Student Government Association President's Office, in coordination with the area governments, has secured the green room in Worcester Dining Commons and the north room of Berkshire D.C., Patrick said.

Beginning Monday, available study rooms in the Campus Center will be listed on the building's daily schedule, as determined by the scheduling office, said Campus Center director Bill Harris.

— LAURA KOESTER

Camaro stolen; room burglarized

University of Massachusetts police yesterday reported the theft, sometime Monday, of a 1977 Chevrolet Camaro from Lot 21, across the street from the Southwest Residential Area.

Also, a 1975 Camaro was recovered by Holyoke Police Tuesday after it had been reported stolen from campus sometime Sunday, police said.

A wallet and its contents, valued at $40, were reported stolen from an unlocked room in Field Dormitory in the Orchard Hill Residential Area between 1 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, according to police.

— TOM MIDDLETON

Financial writer lecturing tonight

Stock market authority, Max Bowser, will speak tonight on stocks and investments in the Campus Center Room 917 at 7:30 p.m..

Bowser has appeared on the Financial News Network, is regularly published in financial journals, and is the author of the nationally published Bowser Report.

His appearance will be sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Investment Club. Refreshments will be served.

LAST 3 DAYS

OPEN THURS. FRI. 'Til 9 PM

FREE CAR STEREO INSTALLATION*

OPEN THURS. FRI. 'til 9 PM

INSTALLED FREE

JENSEN AM/FM STEREO CAR CASSETTE STEREO SYSTEM

A GREAT VALUE. JENSEN 8 WATT AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE RECEIVER WITH PUSH BUTTON TUNING, FADER CONTROL, LOCKING FAST FORWARD & REVERSE AND MATCHED WITH A PAIR OF JENSEN 1283 4 INCH FULL RANGE SPEAKERS.

$169.99

INSTALLED FREE

ALPINE. JENSEN AM/FM STEREO CAR CASSETTE STEREO SYSTEM

AUTO REVERSE ALPINE 7150 AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE WITH PATENTED CASSETTE GLIDE, LOCKING FAST FORWARD AND REWIND, AFC AND MATCHED WITH A JENSEN 1077 5¼ INCH COAX SPEAKERS WITH 20 OUNCE MAGNET AND PIEZO TWEETER.

$239.99

INSTALLED FREE

ALPINE. PIONEER DIGITAL AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE CAR MUSIC SYSTEM

DIGITAL AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE, THE ALPINE 7162, WITH POWER AMP, FADER, AUTO REVERSE, 12 STATION PRESET, AUTO SEEK STATION LOCATOR, SEPARATE BASS & TREBLE AND A PAIR OF PIONEER 6904 6 x 9 - 80 WATT COAX SPEAKERS.

$339.99

INSTALLED FREE

JENSEN DIGITAL AM/FM STEREO DOLBY CASSETTE WITH ELECTRONIC TUNING

JENSEN 520 - 10 WATT AUTO REVERSE DOLBY AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE WITH BASS & TREBLE, FADER, ELECTRONIC SCAN TUNING, 10 STATION PRESETS, DIGITAL CLOCK, FEATHER TOUCH CONTROLS AND A PAIR OF JENSEN'S BEST 6x9 TRIAXIAL (#3033) 100 WATT GREAT SOUNDING SPEAKERS.

$499.99

AlpineHigh Fidelity DELUXE CAR MUSIC SYSTEM

INSTALLED FREE

$1099.99

THIS HIGH FIDELITY SYSTEM FEATURES THE ALPINE 7146 AM/FM STEREO DIGITAL RECEIVER WITH DOLBY, THE ALPINE 3011 - 5 BAND GRAPHIC EQUALIZER, THE ALPINE 3516 - 18 WATT PER CHANNEL AMP FOR THE ALPINE 6142 SPEAKERS, THE ALPINE 3518 - 40 WATT PER CHANNEL AMP FOR THE ALPINE 6391 - 3 WAY FERRO FLUID POLYMER SPEAKERS AND - YES, ALL INSTALLED FREE.

* OUR FREE INSTALLATION SALE ENDS ABSOLUTELY ON MAY 12, 1984. APPOINTMENTS WILL BE MADE IN ORDER OF PURCHASE. TO QUALIFY FOR FREE INSTALLATION, ALL SYSTEMS MUST BE PAID IN FULL BY MAY 12th, 1984, EVEN THOUGH INSTALLATION MAY BE SCHEDULED AT A LATER DATE. ANY ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT NEEDED WILL BE A CUSTOMER'S EXPENSE. ANTENNA INSTALLATION IS NOT INCLUDED IN FREE INSTALLATION. CERTAIN PREMIUM DOMESTIC & IMPORTED CARS WILL INCUR SOME EXPENSE FOR INSTALLATION.

The Sound Company SINCE 1961

SPRINGFIELD 447 SUMNER AVE. at the X 736-3629 Open Thurs & Fri Till 9 P.M. Open Sundays 12-5

CHICOPEE FAIRFIELD Mall near Caldors 593-8330 Open Every Evening till 9:30 PM Open Sunday 12-5

AMHERST 201 N Pleasant Street 256-0744 Open Thurs & Friday Evenings Til 9 PM

Student remains treed

Dean Jack Denison wasn't at all dismayed to find one of his students perched in a tree yesterday.

"We're behind you 100 percent," Denison, the head of the Stockbridge School of Agriculture, told Richard Barrett during a noon visit to the foot of the red maple where the senior has perched 50-feet off the ground since Monday morning.

Barrett, 23, a landscape architecture major from Millis, said he climbed the tree to attract attention and more students to the two-year college affiliated with the University of Massachusetts and won't come down until Friday afternoon.

"He's a very nice young man who has accomplished just what he set out to do," said Denison. "He had kind of a hard night with all the rain we got, but he's surviving. It's been received kind of nicely. Lots of students have stopped and looked at his climbing equipment and cars toot on their way by."

Despite an abundance of jobs for its graduates, Denison said enrollments have been declining at the school. "We had a huge increase in the late 1960s when you had all those student uprisings and the back-to-the-land movement was big, but we have lost that peak," he said.

4.0 diet & study plan

Send $4.00 m.o. to: KLM Associates, 2 Winter St. Salem, MA 01970

RENT ONE OF OURS

Car • Truck • Van

North Amherst Motors

Rt. 63, No Amherst

549-2880

Le Boudoir Intimate Fashions

In celebration of Mother's Day, the Wedding day and upcoming Graduation, we cordially invite you to our fifth

GENTLEMEN ONLY NIGHT

Thursday May 10, 6-10 pm

Give her the gift she'll truly appreciate. Peignoir sets, teddies, camisoles and tap pants, bustiers, garter belts and stockings, as well as a wide selection of basics. Refreshments served.

Come join us Calvin Klein Underwear for women has arrived Carriage Shops (upper level) 233 N. Pleasant St., Amherst NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 1-4:30 549-6915

GARDEN ROTO TILLING

Prompt Reasonable Reliable

323-5120

★ Valley Women's Voice

Continued from page 1

Wilce said the Voice will hold an open meeting on May 15 at the Everywomen's Center to try to "get a sense of direction, and assess the committment of the community to the Voice."

"If people aren't willing to support it, there's no sense having it at all," she said.

"The paper plays a unique role in the community," Wilce said. "We provide a forum for women's issues, hands on experience for new writers, we provide an announcement service for non-profit groups, a calendar of women's events, opportunities for student internships, and an important vehicle for advertising for all-women services in the Pioneer Valley.

"What we really need is a coordinator who will coordinate all the different functions and ensure continuity from the volunteers. We had a strong collective structure in the beginning, but it got weaker as the initial founders left."

The Voice is a UMass student-run business that has access to facilities of the Student Government Association's Communications Office. In addition, they have office space at the Everywoman's Center.

Wilce, however, stressed the advantages of breaking with the University altogether saying that, "in order to create a new position, we have to go through a lot of red tape here."

"The paper is open to any and all women — gay, straight or whatever," Wilce said. "We need subscriptions, private donations, people with grant writing and fundraising skills, and above all new writers."

Health services launching safety belt awareness drive

By RAE HEPWORTH
Colegian Correspondent

While approximately 35 percent of Amherst residents use safety belts, the goal of a local campaign is to double that number and increase public awareness of safety belts.

Today, the University Health Services, (UHS), has scheduled an Observation Day, during which student volunteers will be checking cars to see how many motorists wear safety belts in the UMass area.

"It is not scientific," UHS spokesperson Diane Wolfe said, "but we are trying to be visible."

Wolfe said another goal is "to clear up many of the myths surrounding the use of safety belts." She said while many people fear being trapped in burning cars, "less than one-half percent of all auto accidents involve fire." If motorists wear safety belts, she said, they are more likely to remain conscious.

"College students typically feel confident and invulnerable to such tragedies, yet the statistics show that one out of every 70 babies born today will die in an automobile crash," Wolfe said.

An educational workshop is scheduled for 10 a.m. on May 15 at the North Village Apartments for parents and their children as part of the UHS campaign.

★ Student senate

Continued from page 1

and 1983 yearbooks.

Approximately 2,400 undistributed 1982 copies are now stacked in the corridor outside the Index office. The 1983 edition has not been printed yet.

"My main fear," Sparks said, "is that when we come back in the Fall we'll see the same stack of '82 books, with a nice stack of the '83 books across the hall, and that they'll start tiling the floor and ceiling with the '84s and '85s."

But Fachetti said he was "absolutely confident" that enough yearbooks could be sold to pay off the loan, and that this year's Index will be distributed on time. "We've met all our deadlines," he said.

Not everyone advocated giving the Index staff a chance to prove itself over the summer.

"Of four students who talked to me, three said 'no yearbook,'" said senate member John Kovich. "I don't think we should give them the money at all." But the motion to table the issue until September passed by voice vote.

Fachetti said, "The book is still not secure..but I'm less worried than I was (a week ago).

"It was the best we could do. If we hadn't tabled it, chances are we wouldn't get the money."

The Senate also voted down a proposal to appoint a member of the Jewish Caucus to the SGA summer coordinating committee. Opponents of the motion said that Jews, while frequently victimized by anti-Semitism, are not underrepresented in the SGA.

Nothing Else Feels Like Navy Flying.

The thunderous roar of jet engines rolls across the carrier's flight deck.

Throttles are at full power, and you're waiting for the signal to launch.

Now. The catapult fires. G forces press you back into your seat. Suddenly, you're flying low and fast over the open sea. Zero to 150 in 2.5 seconds.

Nothing else feels like Navy flying. Nothing. And when you become a pilot or flight officer you're at the very heart of it.

Once you've earned your wings, the Navy puts you in full control of a multi-million-dollar supersophisticated combination of jet aircraft and electronic wizardry.

And Navy training makes sure you're up to the challenge. Rigorous flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

Leadership and professional schooling prepare you for the immediate decision-making authority and management responsibility you have as an officer in the Navy.

On the ground, as a Navy officer, you work with and supervise today's most highly skilled aviation professionals. In the air, as part of the naval aviation team, you have about the most exciting job anyone can have.

It's a uniquely rewarding job with pay to match. You start at $18,300 a year —more than the average corporation pays you just out of college. After four years, with regular Navy promotions and pay increases, your annual salary climbs to $31,100. That's over and above a full package of benefits and privileges.

Find out how much more a job in naval aviation has to offer. Fill in the coupon. No other job gives you the kind of leadership experience or fast responsibility you get as part of the naval aviation team. And nothing else feels like Navy flying.

NAVY OPPORTUNITY INFORMATION CENTER W 346
P.O. Box 5000, Clifton, NJ 07015

☐ Please send me more information about becoming a member of the Naval Aviation Team. (OA)

Name (First) (Please Print) (Last)
Address Apt #
City
State Zip
*College/University
Age ‡Year in College •GPA
▲Major/Minor
Phone Number (Area Code) Best Time to Call

This is for general recruitment information. You do not have to furnish any of the information requested. Of course, the more we know, the more we can help to determine the kinds of Navy positions for which you qualify.

Navy Officers Get Responsibility Fast.

College is an Investment...

Protect It! ...Buckle-Up

DI

A message from University Health Services

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS

$7.00 * (with this coupon)

$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry

$11.50 Long Hair

Expires 5/31/84

• Valid with Barb & Julie only C

FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment

Styles by Deborah

65 University Drive

Amherst, MA 549-5610

TONIGHT

Hear the new music of

Rack-A-Disc

Requests Welcome

Two For One 9 til 11

- All Liquor Drinks -

No Cover

THE PUB

15 East Pleasant St. AMHERST

Hertz / PENSKE wants you to

MOVE YOURSELF

at these special one-way prices*

Call now and reserve your brand new 1984 GMC Vandura™

- AIR CONDITIONING
- AUTO TRANSMISSION
- POWER STEERING
- RADIO
- FREE MOVING GUIDE
- FUEL ECONOMY-AERODYNAMICALLY DESIGNED
- TAKES REGULAR GAS

Other size trucks are available for comparable savings.

Chicopee 594-5186

Northampton 586-8391

Hertz

PENSKE Truck Rental & Leasing

Sharon S Photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

TONIGHT!

FOR 21 ALL NIGHT LONG

FRIDAY and SATURDAY

8 to 10:00 2 for 1

THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!
WITH MORE ROOM TO BOOGIE!
★ENLARGED 2-STAGE DANCE FLOOR★

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

Looking back: Women's occupation of Collegian

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

Six years ago this week, a group of women barricaded themselves inside the Collegian offices for more than a week to protest what they claimed was censorship and misrepresentation of "women's news."

In 1978, Julie Melrose, a leader of the occupation and the Collegian Women's Editor at the time, claimed news stories and editorials generated by her department were being censored by Collegian editors.

There was censoring of women's news," she says. "Such basics as health information, like the dangers of using the Pill and smoking, were not printed. Copy stories were held three days and then they labeled it dated news."

But according to Dorothy Clark, who was the Collegian Managing Editor that spring, women's news was not intentionally ommitted from the paper.

"To a degree that's true," she says. "There was a definite lack of awareness of women's news and women's history on the part of the staff. As for it being a systematic denial of women's access to women's news in the paper, that was not the way it was."

Several weeks before the twelve day long occupation, Melrose said she and other members of the women's community tried to negotiate with the Collegian and integrate "women's news," or create a separate women's page, similar to the Black Affairs page.

"Women were protesting pornographic ads and cartoons that were displayed in the Collegian," says Janice Raymond, a women's studies professor who participated in the take-over. "There was an enormous amount of effort from women's groups on campus to meet with the Collegian editors before the occupation to work out some of the things in an open, public forum."

When negotiations between the Collegian and the women's groups failed, the women brought their case before the Undergraduate Student Senate.

"People in the senate were concerned that a paper funded by student taxes was involved in censorship," Melrose says. "They decided that the Collegian should give separate space or have student funding stopped." The Collegian no longer accepts any SGA funding, as it relies solely on advertising revenue.

John Hite, the Student Government President in 1978, recalled that when the women and the Collegian could not reach an agreement, the Senate voted to cut off funding to the Collegian because "they felt the women's position was correct."

"The next morning, I vetoed it," says Hite, who is currently the director of Alumni Affairs. "The rationale was that cutting off funds of a newspaper for political reasons was a violation of the First Amendment."

A few days later the senate voted to overrule Hite's veto, at which point the Collegian Board of Editors brought Hite, as president of the SGA, to court.

Melrose says the Collegian editors found a judge who was "willing to issue an injunction saying that if the Senate did freeze Collegian money, that could be violating the Collegian's freedom of press by dictating what should or shouldn't be in the paper."

Looking back on the matter, former Managing Editor Clark says, bringing the issue to court "really wasn't the proper thing or smart thing to do."

"It was a cop out on the part of the Board of Editors," she says. "As I see it now, it was an effort to take the heat off the editors and shift it to the entire staff."

"They were asking for something to the effect of four pages per week," Clark recalled. "We had financial problems (at the time) and the paper was small. Giving up that much space would have limited the rest of the paper."

"At the time," she says, "we termed women to be a special interest group. The argument was if we do it for women we'll have to do it for every other group who feels they should have space because they are students."

Raymond said there was a need for separate pages because there can be no "power without some kind of autonomous base."

"You don't get into the mainstream until you get a center of autonomy to get the issues across," she said. "So with no center of autonomy, there was no power to have meaningful integration of women's news to take place."

Joe Quinlan, who was news editor that semester, said Melrose "was more a member of the women's community than she was a member of the Collegian."

"Her views were very much from the women's groups," he said. "She had very strong beliefs and they were hard to be understood by us in the news room.

On the night of April 30th, after unsuccessful negotiations and a court decision declaring the Senate vote unconstitutional, 50 women waited until the last Collegian staff member left the office before they locked themselves inside, marking the first night of an occupation that would draw international attention.

Inside the occupied office, Raymond recalled, there was a lot of "high energy."

"Women started to learn the techniques of putting out a newspaper," she said, "and they started learning typesetting and graphics and ultimately the Valley Women's Voice came about.

During the occupation, the protestors received international media attention, hundreds of telegrams from women's groups in the United States and seven other countries, and prominent women activists, Robin Morgan and Andrea Dworkin, came to campus and spoke in support of the take-over.

Meanwhile, the Collegian staff operated out of student apartments, profesor's homes and eventually, Goodell Library.

On the twelfth day of the occupation, with the help of political science professor Jean Elshtain and the Ombudsman at the time, Bob Wellman, a compromise was reached between the protestors and the Collegian.

Elshtain, who had been appointed chair of the Chancellor's Commission on Women's News by acting Chancellor Bromery, drew up a plan calling for a "fact finding mission" to review and investigate the problem. The commission, comprised of faculty, members of both groups, and students, heard testimonies and evidence all summer long.

"There were some philosophical debates about what campus newspapers should be in terms of special interest or autonomy," Elshtain said. "The Collegian people felt very embattled. They tried to point out that the staff was 50 percent women and that they could not, in a sense, give special treatment to one group that claimed they represented all women but really represented a faction of feminists."

"It was definitely an ideological difference," Wellman said. "The women's group was giving one perspective about what news was and the Collegian brought another."

By the end of the summer, the commission recommended "guaranteed space for women's advocacy articles and features," that the Women's Editor job description be rewritten, that the women's editor be selected in accordance with the Collegian constitution, that the women's news editor follow revised Collegian policy for editorials and budget meetings, and that the women's editor have a wide measure of autonomy with respect to guaranteed space.

In the fall of 1978, the Collegian rejected the recommendations of the Chancellor's Commission on Women's News, claiming once again that they would not cater to special interest groups. Chancellor Bromery refused to enforce the findings of his commission, and later that fall, Julie Melrose resigned from her position of Collegian Women's Editor.

SUMMER WORK

We have many clerical, light industrial, and secretarial positions available. This is an opportunity for you to gain first-habd business experience in our local client companies. No fees. Call for an appointment now!

FIRST TEMPORARY
Burlington, Ma
273-1421

LEARN TO FLY

inexpensively earn your pilots license University Club open to five colleges. Cessna based in Northampton

548-4827 Introductory Rides 665-2577

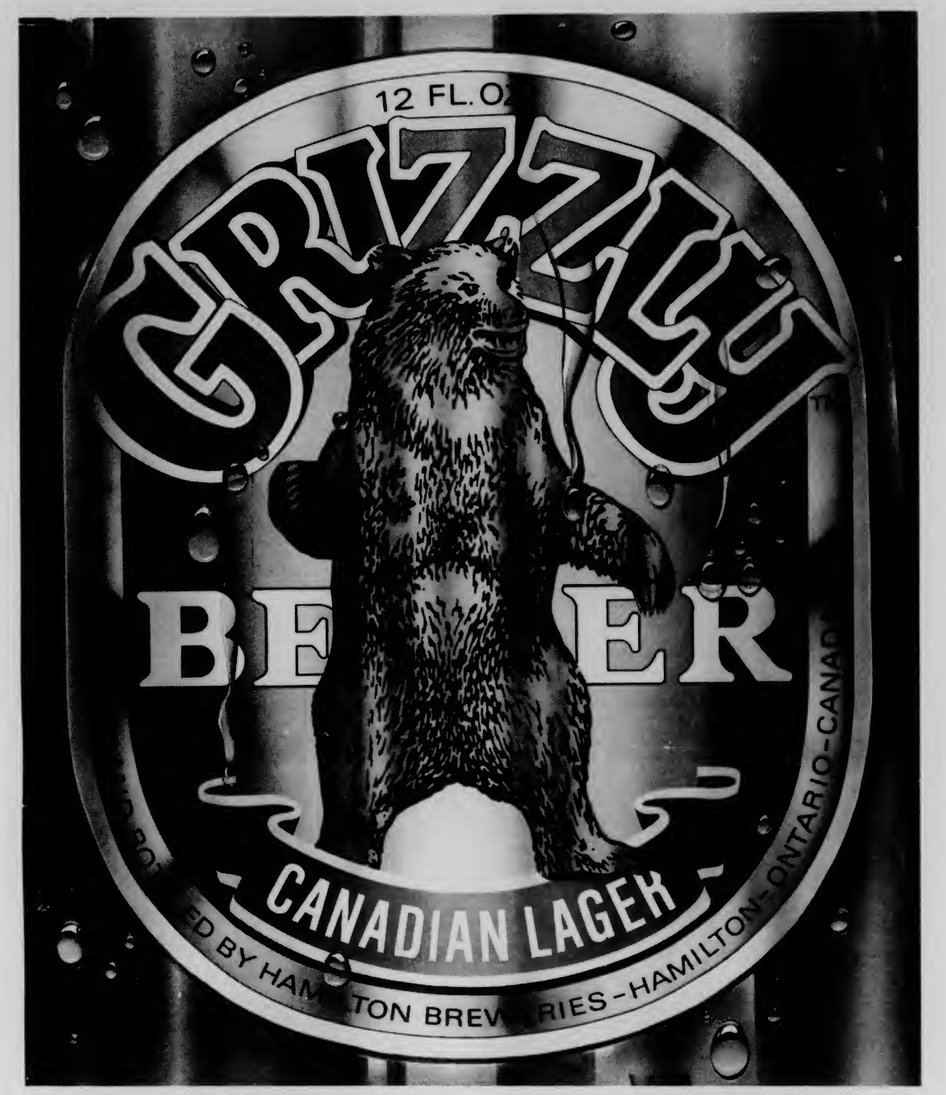
Barsie's Hours 11:30 AM 1:00 AM 7 days

43 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA 01002

SHADES HAPPY HOUR

EVERY THURSDAY
4 - 10

WEAR YOUR SHADES AND GET TOP SHELF HIGHBALLS FOR $1.25!
& OTHER HAPPY HOUR SPECIALS!



of mice and men
by john steinbeck
may 3-5, 9-12 · 8pm
rand theater, university of massachusetts
tickets: fac box office- 545-2511

LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds

is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT

Audio	Help Wanted	Room Wanted
Auto For Sale	Instruction	Roommate Wanted
Calculators	Lost	Services
Entertainment	Motorcycles	Summer Sublet
For Rent	Personals	To Sublet
For Sale	Ride Wanted	Travel
Found	Rider Wanted	Wanted
		Wanted to Rent

Canada's Bear of Beers is here!

Down from the North Woods of Canada comes Grizzly Beer. Not just another Canadian beer, but a rare breed of brew.
An authentic Canadian lager—naturally aged, so it's remarkably smooth. With a flavor no other Canadian beer can stand up to. The bear of beers is here!

GRIZZLY™

CANADA'S BEAR OF BEERS
Imported by Van Munching & Co., Inc., New York, N.Y.

POND SERIES 1984

Photos by Katie Watters

Almost 10,000 students spent Sunday with Spyro Gyra, and Utopia in the grand finale of this year's outdoor concert series.

Move Yourself, All Your Stuff, And Save, Too!

It's as easy as renting a Ryder truck, one way.

Compare costs before you make plans for moving at the end of the semester.
If you're 18 or older and have a valid driver's license, you can use a Ryder truck, rent-it-here, leave-it-there. Load up your stereo, 10-speed, clothes; everything. You'll still have room, no doubt, for one or two friends with their things to share the cost.
Compare that to the price of a plane ticket. Or even a bus.
Plus shipping.
Rent a newer truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world - Ryder. The best truck money can rent.

STUDENT DISCOUNT COUPON
RYDER TRUCK RENTAL, INC.
The holder of this coupon is entitled to a
15% DISCOUNT
on any ONE WAY rental of a Ryder truck. Present this coupon to any Ryder location in New England and save even more.
One coupon redeemable per transaction. Not valid with other promotions.
Call (413) 736-8361 or your local dealer for information.
Renters Signature_____ Expires 8/30/84

Have you hugged your teddy bear today?

Get your official 1984 Amherst Teddy Bear Rally tee shirt now. On sale in downtown Amherst at Hastings, College Drug Store, the Salt Box, House of Walsh and Chamber of Commerce office (basement of Lord Jeffery Inn).
ADULT SIZES $7 CHILDREN'S SIZES $6

Amherst Teddy Bear Rally
Saturday, Aug. 4, Amherst Common

Letters

Vulgar graffiti must be removed

To the Editor,

Last week I visited the campus of the University of Massachusetts with my son. It was the first visit for both of us and we were extremely impressed. The Massachusetts Daily Collegian was among the things which impressed us.

We were not, however, impressed by the graffiti on the library walls. We were told that the same kind of filth that we saw in the library decorates the dorm walls, and we cannot understand why students do not rise up against this.

Graffiti per se is fun and intellectually stimulating. But even this kind of graffiti is out of place on the hallowed walls of a library. Check out other universities; you'll find UMass is unique in permitting students to write pornography on the walls of tax-payer-funded buildings.

From all I have heard about and seen of the University of Massachusetts, you have much to be proud of. Allowing this desecration of public buildings lowers your esteem in the academic world and adds to your probably-undeserved nickname.

Catherine A. Olohan
Stowe

Real proof of violence is lacking

To the Editor,

It seems that the current hot debate among the hypersensitive UMass liberal community concerns the "link" between Playboy, Penthouse and Playgirl magazines and violence against women.

Needless to say, I am quite shocked to learn of this connection; I had thought that sexual oppression on our campus would disappear overnight when the Hatch outlawed the sale of "sensual sausages."

Perhaps I should not make light of this argument, rape is a violent, dehumanizing crime and we must do all we can to reduce its incidence. On the surface it seems reasonable to assume that there could be some cause and effect relationship between pornography and rape. Actually a number of studies have shown a relationship, however they have found a negative, rather than a positive, correlation.

One study (Goldstein, Kant and Hartman, 1974) found that sex criminals had less exposure to pornography than non-criminals. It was found that sex criminals typically came from families "characterized by restrictiveness and repression concerning sex...they have heard less, seen less, read less and talked less about sex than comparable individuals who did not commit such crimes." Another researcher (Eysenck, 1972) found that the average male had seen a picture of a couple having intercourse by age fourteen, the average sex criminal had not seen such a picture until age eighteen.

In 1965 Denmark legalized all forms of pornography. Soon afterwards all types of sex crimes dereased, from a high of just over seven hundred in 1965 and 1966, to a low of just over three hundred in 1969. The decrease included all forms of sex crimes (Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, 1970) including child molestation which dropped from 220 to 67 cases a year (Kutchinsky, 1972). Presumably, sexual deviants found that they could vicariously indulge their urges with pornography rather than acting them out with real people.

If hard-core pornography will not lead an otherwise normal individual to commit a rape then I find it hard to believe that a Playboy will. Some people may find these magazines personally objectional, however, I feel that they are basically harmless and that their removal from the University store would be a senseless restriction of the personal freedom of choice of any students who wish to purchase them. We have been subjected to many strident emotional appeals against the sale of these magazines, but so far we have not been presented with any hard evidence which proves the sale of these magazines leads to violence against women.

Kurt Stellwagen
Northampton

From May 10th thru May 23rd
be our guest - choose from our Entree Specialties and receive

$1.00 OFF EACH DINNER
In your party
(50¢ OFF CHILDREN'S MENU DINNERS)
WITH THIS COUPON
Limit one coupon per family — $1 off each adult dinner and 50¢ off each children's menu dinner.
Example: 2 adults and 2 children — each adult receives $1 off dinner and each children's dinner 50¢ off.
Dinner menu served 11 a.m.-10 p.m. every day.

TRY THE NEW McMANUS FOR DINNER

Sun.-Thurs. 6 a.m.-3 a.m.
Fri & Sat 24 Hrs
Super Stop & Shop Campus Shopping Center Rte 9, Hadley/Amherst 256-6669

James H. McManus eating place
Coca-Cola

Senior Citizens Discounts 2-5 PM 20% All Other Times 10% Does not apply to specials

Soft Contact Lens Center
Extended wear soft lenses from $48. ea.
Daily wear Soft lenses from $25. ea.
Heat disinfecting units $12.95 reg. $30.
Check out these
Contact Lens Solution Prices
Opti-clean Reg 2.98 SALE 1.98
Sensitive Eyes System Reg 3.75 SALE 2.49
Adapettes Reg 1.00 SALE .50
Soft Contact Lens Deluxe Cases Reg. 3.75 SALE 1.98
Many more Solutions on Sale COME & SEE
B & L Sunglasses 20% off
Vuarnet Sunglasses 20% off with this ad

Amherst Optical Shoppe 195 N Pleasant St 256-6403
Amherst Optical Shoppe 170 University Dr. 253-5412
in the Amherst Med Ctr.

EDITORIAL/OPINION

One graduating writer's last will and testament

I have been writing columns at UMass for three years now, and I constantly run into problems with people who think I have something against them. They are often right. So here is a last will and testament, to those who have made my life difficult, or at least, exciting.

Josh Meyer

To the College Republicans, I leave brains, so they can actually think for themselves, and not mimic the stupid policies of a deranged, 73 year old actor. If there has ever been an unfortunate contradiction in terms, it is a young Republican, and I think they should know that.

To the radical feminists who hate me for being a (white) male, I leave a copy of the Kama Sutra, or The Joy of Sex, so they can learn that sexuality, or talking about sex isn't necessarily sexism, or degradation and objectification of women.

To some of the Third World members of our community, I leave several books on journalism, so they can understand that when we reporters criticize someone like Jesse Jackson, it is because they deserve it, not because they belong to one race, color or creed.

To the "radicals," I leave a sense of pragmatism, a firm grip on reality, and a sense of individuality, so they can stop their dogmatic complaining about everything, and engage in constructive, worthwhile dissent. I also leave them "Question Authority" buttons so they can question everyone, including themselves not just the College Republicans.

To the Greek system members, I leave them their own inflated egos and sense of self-importance, and their own Greek Area system, because they deserve it.

To my Journalistic Studies professors, I leave a five year subscription to the Collegian and other college papers. The Collegian, so they can see why we Collegian staff members were always burnt out, and the other papers, so they can finally admit that we're not such a bad paper.

To my underclass friends, I leave my seven point plan for having fun on week nights, and my 27 point plan for weekend fun and excitement.

To the Collegian, I leave the list of articles I thought about, but never wrote. I also leave to them all my news "clips," because they'll never help me get a job anyway.

To ROTC cadets, I leave lots of books on the Vietnam War, and shoe polish, so they can practice obedience and patronization of their superiors.

To Chancellor Duffey, I leave a high ranking position in Washington, D.C. so he can stop throwing expensive cocktail parties for his influential friends, and get a real job.

To Vice Chancellor for University Relations and Development Deirdre Ling, I leave nothing, since no one knows who she is or what she does to earn $63,000 a year anyway.

To the Office of Alumni Affairs I leave a rich Class of '84 alumni, so they can finally get large endowments.

To Whitmore administrators I leave a bronzed copy of the Fifth Amendment (No comment), as if they don't know it already.

To Dean of Students William Field, who has been here for 23 years, I leave a simplified version of the Student Code of Conduct since he seems to have no working knowledge of it.

To the gay and lesbian awareness groups, I leave them their own newspaper, so they won't harass the next Editorial Editor for not printing every one of their 18,000 letters to the Editor about how awful UMass is.

To Whitmore staff people, I leave a five hour trip to "The Maze," at night, blindfolded, so they can see how it feels to be a student dealing with the Whitmore bureaucracy.

To all graduating seniors, I leave my congratulations on a job well done. It seemed like no one wanted us to graduate, but we might anyway. I also leave them automatic laughing machines to leave on their least favorite professor's desk.

Well, that just about sums it up. As usual, I can expect a flood of righteously indignant letters in response to my article. It's just too bad I won't be around to read them.

Josh Meyer has been a Collegian columnist

Editor's Note: The author hopes the above mentioned will take this in the lighthearted manner that it was intended.

Understanding the Mid East

Election years are very interesting. It is the time when the U.S.-Israeli relationship comes under its closest scrutiny. Issues facing the Middle East are easily misrepresented. Such was the case with John Gilman's column in the Collegian Tuesday.

Like many Americans Mr. Gilman labors under the belief that U.S. support for Israel is absolute. One has only to look at American actions to see that this is not so. The U.S. sold AWACs to Saudi Arabia after Israel's strong objection. Some American arms sold to Saudi Arabia turned up in the hands of the P.L.O. in Lebanon. This was in direct opposition to the terms of the sale but Saudi Arabia still gets American support. This year the United States was willing to sell arms to Jordan. It was only King Hussein's harsh criticism of American policy that called this deal into question, not Israeli objections to the agreement.

Another misconception is that peace between Israel and the Arab States would happen tomorrow, if only Israel granted the Palestinians a homeland. How can the Arabs live in peace with Israel if they cannot live in peace with each other? Not all wars in the Middle East have been between the Arab States and Israel. Arabs have been fighting each other in Lebanon since the early 70s. A deadly battle is taking place right now between Arabs and Iranians in the Persian Gulf. During the Yemen civil war not only was Arab fighting Arab but each side was supported by different Arab nations. And what of the 15,000 Syrian men, women and children massacred by one of their own President in Hama in the early part of this decade? These are just a few of the conflicts existing in the Arab world.

The heart of the Arab-Israeli conflict is not the Palestinian issue but rather the intransigent refusal on the part of the Arabs to accept the right of Israel to exist. The Palestine Liberation Organization was established in 1964 before Israel held the so-called occupied territories. At that time the only land to "liberate" was Israel proper. Exterminating Israel is justified according to the Palestine National Covenant because "the claim of historical and religious ties between Jews and Palestine does not tally with historical reality..." This statement not only denies Israel the right to exist, it denies historical facts.

A third misconception is the view of Israel as America's "strategic bedfellow." America is only now beginning to realize that Israel is a strategic asset. Israel is the only democracy in the Middle East. As such it has much in common with the United States. This is taken for granted in America to a certain extent. American efforts with other nations in the Middle East have been and will always be haphazard. Iran is a prime example.

Finally, it becomes tiring to see the names of Israel and South Africa linked. Israel was one of the first countries to denounce South African apartheid at the United Nations, a fact which is ignored. Arab trade with South Africa is also rarely mentioned. Paradoxically, the countries with the power to influence South Africa have not done so. South Africa uses Arab oil. Instead of halting the flow of oil to South Africa, Arab oil producers used their monetary influence in Black African countries, forcing these nations to cut off relations with Israel in the 1970's. Many of these countries are now reestablishing ties with Israel. Zaire has already done so. The Ivory Coast, Sudan, Gabon, Liberia and the Central African Republic are also taking steps towards renewing friendship with Israel. The result of these ties have been Israeli-African programmes designed to attack the roots of poverty and not only the symptoms. The three major areas of development are medicine, agriculture and community planning.

In this election year it is our fervent hope that the electorate makes sound judgements in the voting booth. These decisions cannot be made on the basis of the half-truths and misinformation.

Michal Shekel is a Hillel employee

Learning from the past

He is in the twighlight of life now, and he knows his time will one day come. His 72 years have been filled with seemingly endless struggles that have viciously challenged the foundation of his character. Trials and tribulations which would have broken any other person have scarred his life. And yet, through it all he has endured, and he awakes each new day with a twinkle in his eye and a childish grin on his face that stirs your curiousity and moves your heart.

Reuven M. Carlyle

Morris Waldman is his name, the fourth of six peasant children born in a small Russian border town, around the turn of the century. As a child, scarlet fever took the hearing in his right ear, while most of the other village people lost their lives. It was that early lack of medical care which instilled in him a life-long dream to be a doctor of medicine — although he would never attend school beyond the sixth grade. It was also the family's lack of food and clothing that filled his soul with inspiration, ambition and dedication towards building a better life in a better land. He once told me, "We had no food or money or doctors to care for us, but we had love in our family."

In the mid 1920s, fleeing the persecution of Russian Jews and searching for economic and social freedom, Morris along with his parents and siblings — armed only with an unshakeable family love — came to the land of opportunity. It has been over half a century since Morris first set foot on Ellis Island in New York City harbor. Yet even to this day as he passes by the historical sight, his eyes seem to enter a different time zone of history, remembering his past struggles and thanking God for his difficult yet happy 72 years.

He remembers how, a long time ago, as a 16-year-old barely able to speak English, he managed to buy a corner grocery store in Newark, N.J. He remembers the Great Depression, when his only meal each day was a sandwich from his store, and he remembers trying desperately to help feed the hungry of Newark. He remembers how his dreams of education were withered away by the harsh reality of necessary food and clothing for his family. But the memories are not all sad. He takes pride in his ability to help educate his children and grandchildren, and how they in turn bring him the greatest gifts of all — love, respect and dignity.

Morris is a warm and humble man. A stock five feet two inches at best, with worn hands and slightly hunched shoulders from almost 40 years of hard physical labor in his corner grocery store. Over the years, he has become a connoisseur of classical music and fine art and he knows the labyrinth of the stock market like the back of his hand. Yet still, his greatest pleasure comes from the simplicities of life, such as making children laugh and sharing a sunny day with his grandchildren.

When exams have gotten me down and the life of a student does not find me in high spirits, I think about Morris Waldman and his lost dreams of a formal education. And if I ever forget about the millions of people around the world who can only dream of an education, my weekly phone call from Morris will remind me when he says, "My dear grandson, share with me what you have learned."

Reuven M. Carlyle is a UMass student

The time for equality is now

To the Editor,

Last week I intended to have a pleasant evening at the Comedy Night at the Blue Wall. It was anything but that. Most of the humor was at the expense of Lesbian and Gay men which deeply offended me. What do people find funny about people dying of Aids? It's hard for me to understand why people can't see that Gays and Lesbians want to live free and productive lives without harassment and to be able to show affection to their loved one when and where he or she wishes to.

Gays and Lesbians are looking for the job security that comes as a right to every heterosexual and is protected by law, but a homosexual can be fired because of who he or she expresses his or her love to. They can be denied housing because the landlord does not want a "queer" living underneath their roof. Everywhere Gays and Lesbians look they see heterosexual advertising, men and women showing physical affection towards one another and yet they are accused of flaunting their sexuality when they only hold hands while crossing the campus.

While most couples can go to a bar uptown for a date with their loved one a Gay or Lesbian must wait for a PGA dance or go to Springfield if they wish to dance or show affection. The PGA puts up posters for their dances and workshops, yet in five minutes they are ripped down by homophobic people who either can't understand homosexuality, or to amuse the friends with whom they ate with at the time. We no longer accept racist, anti-semitic, and ablelist slurs. The time has come to reject homophobic slurs as well.

John Boden
Orchard Hill

ON CAMPUS

Paid Advertisement

Paid Advertisement

EAST SIDE

East Side gov't news

Central Area Government

Today is the last day to apply for the position of Greenough Artist-in-Residence, a part-time, live-in position in the Central/Orchard Hill Residential College. The position is funded by the Central Area Council, and compensation includes a two-room furnished dormitory suite, reserved parking, use of facilities, and a stipend of $375.00 per semester. All resumes and portfolios must be submitted to Baker B-22 or B-30 by 5:00 p.m. Wednesday, May 9. For further information please call Shara Garay at 6-6375 or 5-2080.

Do you remember your first day at UMass as a freshman? Lost, confused, disoriented? Well, you can help make this fall's incoming freshmen's first day a lot easier by getting involved in your dorm's New Students Assistance Program. Beginning this fall, approximately six students from each dorm in Central/Orchard Hill will arrive a few days early in preparation of a more comfortable and memorable first day for freshmen. If interested, contact your residence director.

The last Central Area Council meeting this semester will be held Monday, May 14 at 7:00 p.m. in Chadbourne. All are invited.

Orchard Hill Area Government

This Saturday is BOWL DAY. We're all set for the event. All we need is some cooperation from the weather. The bands will start at 12 and run till 5. During the day residence halls will be selling food and sponsoring activities. In the afternoon the traditional Tug-of-War will be held. If you're interested in this keep your eyes posted for more info. We could also use extra help with security for the day. If you'd like a free T-shirt and food contact Mike at 6-6669, Mary at 6-6677, or Laura at 6-6766. They'll be glad to have your help for the day.

OHAG meetings are every Sunday nite at 9 P.M. in Field Main Lounge. Come down and meet us. Perhaps your dorm doesn't have a representative and you could fill it. Give us a try.

We'd like to thank the UMass Music Theater Guild for their spectacular and professional performance of GREASE. We're glad to have them each year because they just keep getting better and better.

There will be a Photo Contest going on prior to Bowl Day. Prizes will be awarded. More information will be posted in your dorm.

It's been a great year for Orchard Hill. We'd like to thank everyone for all their help, support, and cooperation in our numerous activities. Next year looks great with it being the twentieth anniversary of Orchard Hill. For those not returning to Orchard Hill, we hope we've helped to provide an environment conducive to both your work and recreation. For those who will be back we'll greet you with another full slate of ideas, activities, and topics. Good luck with exams, future endeavors, and summer plans.

Sylvan Area Government

Sylvan Area is proud to announce the new officers for the 1984-85 year: Co-presidents Dave Bassi and Marty Matfess, Vice-president Michael Oduro, treasurer Scott Clark, and secretary Paula Loughlin. We hope that all Sylvan residents enjoyed the East Side Concert as well as Sylvan Day, both were sponsored by Sylvan area Government. Have a great summer and we hope to see you next semester.

Northeast Area Government

North East area Government meets Tuesdays in the Mary Lyon Lounge at 6 p.m. All interested people are encouraged to attend. Currently N.E.A.G. is working with Sylvan area Government in planning a coffee house and welcome back dance for the fall semester. Planning is also starting for other fall events. Anyone having suggestions or wishing to help, please attend Tuesdays meeting ir contact David Valade at 545-5419.

East Side Arts

On May 10 there will be a final meeting for the executive staff of the East Side Event. This will be followed by a meeting of the East side Arts Council.

There will be a photo contest this Thursday in Dickinson Main Lounge. For more information call Bill at 6-6893.

East Side arts council is also proud to sponsor a B.F.A. show in Wheeler Gallery. The exhibit will feature works by David Schock. The opening will be from 3:00 - 5:00 on Sunday. The show will run from May 13 -18.

On Sunday May 13 there will be an outdoor "Jazz Fest" in co-ordination with the Brown brunch, featuring the "New Moments Jazz Ensemble". The event will run from 1:30 - 3:30.

A photo essay by Mark Richardson will be featured in a B.F.A. Exhibit, sponsored by E. side Arts Council. The opening will be from 3- 5 in the Wheeler Gallery, and the show will run from May 20 - 26.

A great opportunity! Are you a communication or Educational media major, if you are then EastSide Audio-Visual department may be the place for you. EastSide A-V is looking for a intern to maintain equipment; develop and work with staff concerning programming events; and train others in the use of A-V equipment. For further info contact Mr. K Henry at 545-0290 or Ms Allen at 545-0422.

Men's Center

The coordinator will be responsible for promoting the atmosphere and reputation of the Center as being pro-feminist, and sensitive to issues of all men. S/he will work with other Center members, university resource personel, housing staff and student government organizations to identify common goals and objectives which will respond to the needs of the diverse student population. Applications and job descriptions are availabe in Brett 130 or Johnson 103. Application deadline is May 11.

Residential Calendar: May 10 — 20

May 10

Daryl Storrs will present an M.F.A. thesis exhibit in Hampden Gallery.

The Student Union Gallery presents a student film and video festival from 7-9 p.m. in the Student Union Gallery. Works by James Burke, Glenn Cardamone, Scott Haller, Jeff Jemison and Pat Peek will be shown. Please come and enjoy the films and videos. Discussion and questions encouraged. Refreshments will be served.

Coffee House: Field main lounge 8:00-12:00 p.m.

Final Meeting for the Executive Staff of the E. Side Event. Room 162 Campus Center 6:00 p.m.

East Side Arts Council meeting 7:30 p.m. room 163 Campus Center.

Photo contest: from 2:30-5:30 in Dickenson main lounge. For more information call Bill 6-6893.

May 11

Applications for two jobs in the S.G.A. presidents office are in rm. 406 Campus Center.

Applications for Mens center co-ordinator position are due. (applications must be returned to Brett 130 or Johnson 103).

University Dancers will perform at 8:00 p.m. in Hampden Theatre.

Daryl Storrs will present an M.F.A. thesis exhibit in Hampden Gallery.

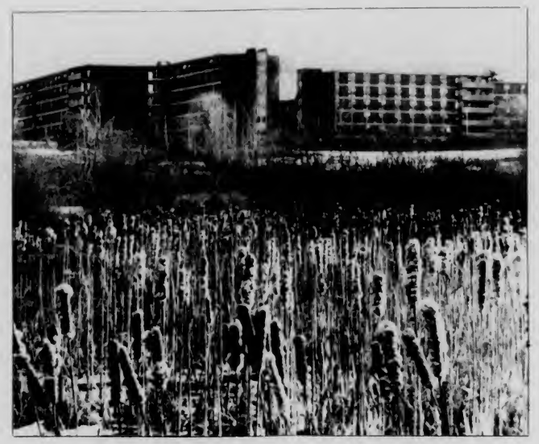
May 12

Bowl Day: Bands will begin at 12:00 and run until 5:00. All activities will take place in Orchard Hill.

"Lets Beat Homophobia": Sign a petition for heterosexual support of Gay and Lesbian march (petition support drive table will be located in the C.C.C.)

University Dancers will perform at 8:00 p.m. in Hampden Theatre.

May 13



Ann Taulbee will present an M.F.A. thesis exhibit in Hampden Gallery.

Baker, Chadbourne Greenough tri-dorm picnic. Food, fun, and bands will begin at 12:00 p.m.

O.H.A.G. meeting in Field main lounge. 9:00 p.m.

B.F.A. show Wheeler Gallery featuring figurative works by David Schock. Opening from 3-5 on Sunday.

Outdoor Jazz Fest in co-ordination with Brown brunch featuring the "New Moments in Jazz Ensemble" from 1:30 to 3:30. Free.

May 14

Last Central Area Council meeting will be in Chadbourne at 7:00 p.m.

Ann Taulbee will present an M.F.A. thesis exhibit in Hampden gallery.

B.F.A. exhibit featuring works by David Schock. Wheeler Gallery.

May 15

Ann Taulbee will present an M.F.A. thesis in Hampden Gallery.

B.F.A. show Wheeler Gallery, featuring figurative works by David Schock.

May 16

Movie: "In the Shadow of the Bomb" 8:00 p.m. Hampden Theatre.

Ann Taulbee will present an M.F.A. thesis in Hampden Gallery

B.F.A. show, Wheeler Gallery, features figurative works by David Schock.

May 17

Ann Taulbee will present an M.F.A. thesis in Hampden Gallery.

B.F.A. show Wheeler Gallery, features figurative works by David Schock.

May 18

Ann Taulbee will present an M.F.A. thesis in Hampden Gallery.

B.F.A. show Wheeler Gallery, features figurative works by David Schock.

May 20

B.F.A. exhibit featuring a photo essay by Mark Richardson will open from 3-5 in Wheeler Gallery. The show will run from May 20-26.

As ON CAMPUS concludes its first semester of updating residential news and information; we only hope it responded to both the needs of the students, and the groups and governments which represent them. Your input would be greatly appreciated, and taken into consideration in the semesters to come, so please take the time to respond by campus mail to the following questionnaire.

1. Do you feel ON CAMPUS is a necessary information source?
2. Do you feel the "Collegian" adequately covered residential news and affairs before ON CAMPUS?
3. Do you feel ON CAMPUS would benefit from being distributed more regularly?
4. Do you feel ON CAMPUS fairly represents all residentially based groups?
5. How would you change or improve ON CAMPUS?
6. Any additional comments or suggestions?

Thank you for your support in our first semsester.

John Philip Forti
Eastside Editor

Jack Murgia
West side Editor

(Please mail responses to John Forti/Brett Offices as soon as possible)

Study for finals in the D.C.

Tired of crowded libraries where you can't concentrate? Or noisy dorms where you can't hear yourself think? Well thanks to the efforts if SGA presidents Rick Patrick and Jim Keller among others, study space is now available through finals time. While efforts were made to open Franklin Dining commons for the residents of Central and Orchard Hill, the request was denied. Worcester and Berkshire however; will be open from 8:30 to 12:30 p.m. on the following days:

Monday May 7 - Thursday 10
Sunday May 13 - Thursday 17
Sunday May 20 - Wednesday 23

For more information call the S.G.A. Presidents Office at 5-0341

HAVE A GREAT SUMMER

WEST SIDE

SWAG News

John Adams, Kennedy, and Washington dormitories all received funding at the May 3rd SWAG meeting, as the new SWAG officers were sworn in despite a storm of controversy surrounding the validity of the May 1st and 2nd elections held throughout Southwest. Last Wednesday the Undergraduate Student Senate pased a motion invalidating the Southwest Assembly elections.

The controversy is centered on the Jackson/Williams candidacy that claims it had permission to pass in nomination papers by noon on Friday. Dave McCarthy, outgoing president of SWAG, claims that he told them the deadline would be extended until midnight on Thursday. McCarthy says that he stayed in the SWAG office until 1:30 am on Thursday night, but did not receive the papers until he found them under the SWAG office door in Hampden Center the next morning. The protest by those in support of the Jackson/Willimas candidacy was voiced at the Undergraduate Student Senate meeting the following Wednesday and resulted in the invalidation of the elections.

According to Joel Rabinowitz, however, the SGA motion is illegal and has no bearing on the election results because it was passed in violation of the SGA constitution's by-laws. Rabinowitz, Southwest Area Government elections coordinator and chair of the Undergraduate Student Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee, said that the by-laws require that any complaints regarding the elections must be taken to a committee first before it can reach the senate floor. Why did the senate act so quickly? Senate Speaker Chris Sullivan says that the large amount of confusion concerning the elections may have been partly responsible. McCarthy thinks it may have been more than that. McCarthy says that the reason why the Southwest Assembly's autonomy was violated may be personal. "I am not the most well liked (person in SGA), . . .that goes back to when I was writing for the Collegian." Meanwhile the Southwest Assembly has approved the election results while, according to Sullivan, the consensus of the senators is that the Jackson/Williams Candidacy did not get a fair chance.

In any case the assembly voted to approve the elections, confident that the SGA motion is invalid. The new officers, co-presidents Arthur Stephenson and Bill Collins, co-vice-presidents Jo Bonne Kaplan and Catherine Turner, treasurer Eric Ericson, and Publicity Chair Tom Ioradi, were sworn in on a purchase order and took a vow to ". . . never take Southwest Area Government into debt."

The new officials invite all students residing in Southwest to drop by the SWAG office in Hampden with any comments or suggestions that they have.

Southwest Fest

After a long and tumultuous week of events, Southwest Week was proclaimed more or less a success. Between 10 and 20 thousand people attended the concert on Sunday afternoon and about 1,000 showed up at the block party on Friday. While many at the meeting felt some of the incidents were blown out of proportion, there was a general concern among the members of SWAG that some measures must be taken to prevent the problems that occurred at this year's block party if it is to be held again. The organizers of Southwest Week would like to thank the Hampden Theatre crew for their help at the concert and Loretta Messenger of the Student Activities Office, "without whose help," said McCarthy, "anything could have been done."

Southwest Arts

Here's what's happening at Hampden Center:

On May 11 and 12 the University Dancers will perform at 8:00 pm in the Theatre. This original piece choreographed and performed by the University Dancers consists of student works and senior projects.

From May 6 to May 11 Daryl Storrs will present an MFA (Masters of Fine Arts) Thesis exhibit in Hampden Gallery featuring recent lithographs by the artist. The work combines a sharp observation of nature with a rich orchestration of pattern and space and offers an excellent example of how the medium of lithography can be used as a vehicle for personal expression.

May 13 - May 18 Ann Taulbee will also present a MFA thesis.

The final scheduled event of the spring series is In The Shadow of The Bomb on May 16 at 8:00 pm in Hampden Theatre. The nuclear threat from the physician's perspective is presented by Physicians for Social Responsibility and dancer Linett Desmett. Music, dance and film highlight this interpretive piece combining a potential holocaust. If you have any questions about any of the shows call Betty Cervantes at 545-2803.

Daryl V. Storrs
M.F.A. Thesis Exhibition
Hampden Gallery

COMPUTERIZED BUY-BACK

CASH FOR BOOKS

ONLY AT

Half Price Paid on Hundreds of Titles

Half Price Paid on Hundreds of Titles

THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX

MAY 14 - 25
9:00 - 4:00

Monday - Friday

FAST • EFFICIENT • RELIABLE

Arts

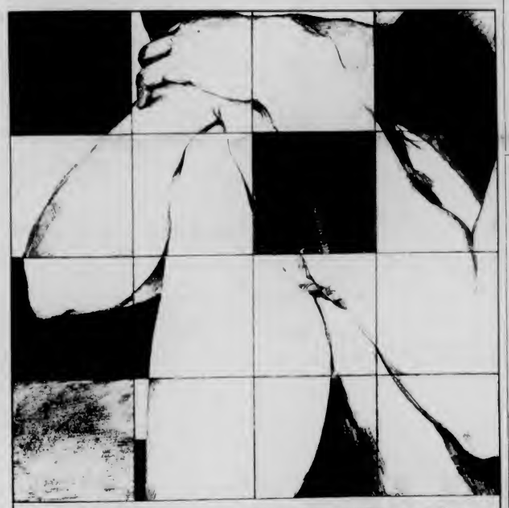
Beautiful Australian remake

By COUNT RAMIN ZAHED
Collegian Correspondent

Years ago, when I used to go sailing with Mel Gibson, I kept telling him to make a movie about the sea. You can imagine how happy I was to discover that he was starring in the latest remake of the classic Mutiny On The Bounty.

The 1984 version, called The Bounty, directed by Australia's Roger Donaldson, is based on a novel by Richard Hough. This film basically does the same thing that Greystoke did to the old Tarzan movies: Donaldson tries to dig deep into the characters, adds a wonderful score by Vangelis, uses extremely beautiful shots of the South Pacific and Tahitian natives and, voila, we have another impressive film.

The plot, for those who missed the original 1935 version with Clark Gable and the 1962 remake with Brando, is as follows: the British naval ship Bounty was sent out to Tahiti in 1787 in the command of Captain William Bligh. The mission? To bring a shipment of breadfruit for the slaves in Jamaica. Upon their stay in Tahiti, the sailors develop a fondness for the native women and the easy life. Under the leadership of Fletcher Christian, played by our old friend Mr. Gibson, they revolt and put the captain and a few crewmen on a small boat, assuming that they would soon perish.



Captain Bligh (Anthony Hopkins), however, survives and faces court-martial in England for losing the ship; thus providing us with the flashbacks. The scenes in the court also allow Laurence Olivier and Edward Fox to shine in their small parts as the Senior officer in charge of the court and the prosecuting officer, respectively. Meanwhile, Christian, the crew, and their Tahitian friends sail to Pitcairn Island.

The two earlier versions of the movie gave rather one-dimensional perspectives to the leading roles. Bligh was portrayed as sadistic and disciplined, while Christian was heroic and liberal. Donaldson allows the characters to be more realistic. Bligh is portrayed with a level of sympathy, and Christian is more confused than valiant.

Although the performances are very strong, one still doesn't know whether to feel for the mutineers or to abhor their savagery. When the pulp material is taken out of a legend, this problem of confusion usually arises as it did in the recent Greystoke.

Not to worry, though. The Bounty offers a lot to lovers of the sea and picturesque geography. The king of the Tahitian tribe, played by Wi Kuki Kaa, is a superb character.

Ignoring a few minor problems, The Bounty fulfills anyone's expectation of a romantic sailor-native-sea movie. I knew Mel wouldn't let me down.

A piece by David Schock, which will be exhibited in Wheeler Gallery.

artslines...

A B.F.A. Degree showing of works by David W. Schock will be held in Wheeler Gallery (located in Wheeler dormitory) from May 13 to May 19th. The gallery is open to the public Monday through Thursday, 7p.m. to 11 p.m. The opening will be held between 3 and 5 p.m. on May 13. For further information contact Debbie Pepper at 545-2745.

Edward Albee's The Zoo Story will open this evening at Hampshire College's Emily Dickenson Theater. The play will be performed nightly through Saturday, May 12. All performances will begin at 8 p.m. Admission is $2 for the general public and $1.50 for Hampshire students and staff. For reservations and further information, call the Theatre box office at 549-4600, ext. 351.

American portrait miniatures from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tannenbaum will be on display at the Mead Art Museum at Amherst College through June 21. The exhibition is the first in a series of small shows which will feature works from the collections of Amherst College Alumni. For further information, call 542-2335.

The UMass Choral Union, conducted by E. Wayne Abercrombie, will perform works by Leonard Bernstein and Benjamin Britten on Tuesday, May 15 in the First Congregational Church on Main Street in Amherst. The program will include such works as Bernstein's Chichester Psalms. An orchestra will accompany the 90 member Choral Union. The performance begins at 8 p.m. and is free of charge. For further information, call 545-2227.

Johnny rocks the blues

JOHNNY WINTER
Guitar Slinger
(Alligator Records)

By JACK BRESNAHAN
Collegian Correspondent

It sometimes seems that the term "wailing" is used all too loosely when describing the way someone plays guitar. But Johnny Winter is a man that helps define ands puts into perspective that euphemism. He is certainly someone by whom all others in his genre could be judged. His sordid personal life has proven that he is a tenacious survivor, while musically he is almost without compare.

Guitar Slinger comes four years after his last effort, Raisin Cain, and similarly has a strong rock feeling, though it's definitely the blues.

This new band is complimentary to Johnny's playing, giving him room to cut loose. The drummer, Casey Jones, and bassist Johnny B. Gayden, (one time with Staple Singers), are longstanding members of Albert Collins' Icebreakers. They are completely familiar with that Texas blues-edged guitar. Also appearing are The Mellow Fellows Horns, whose heavyset "Big Twist," is a favorite of Dan Akroyd. The band is rounded out by other seasoned musicians Ken Saydak and horn arranger, saxaphonist Gene Barge. Making a cameo appearance is harp player Billy Branch, another veteran of the Chicago blues circuit.

The songs are an interesting collection, and none of them were written by Johnny. They must have had to blow the dust off of some of these when they brought them out. Where else but on a blues song ("Boot Hill") could the credits say the writer and publisher are unknown. Winter also does Earl King's "Trick Bag," a song about a woeful relationship, on this album. He utilizes the slide as is customary on the little known "Iodine In My Coffee," by Muddy. The harp helps bring out the Chicago sound in this one. "Mad Dog," finds Johnny barking and howling, interdispersed between searing leads. On "I Smell Trouble," he finishes off in the unmistakable style of Junior Wells. The slow one on the album is "Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye," which he originally did on his Before The Storm album of 1973. The version is less country, and is a much better arrangement. Probably my favorite is "Lights Out," with a driving sax and straight-ahead wailing coming from the depths of Johnny's soul.

As if Guitar Slinger were not enough, Texas Guitar Slim also appears on Sonny Terry's new album which also features Willie Dixon. Not only is Johnny back in the spotlight, but by cooperating with one another as these albums indicate, bluesmen are helping ensure that the blues stay alive. Johnny Winter appears this Saturday, May 12th, at The Country Squire, Rte 83, Ellington, Connecticut.

Look what's new at
the Hungry U Restaurant

Every Sunday & Monday Night
99¢ pitchers with a large pizza
99¢ Bloody Mary's all day Sunday!

Every Tuesday & Thursday
3-6, 9 'til close
2 in 1 Jumbo Drinks and Drafts
2 for 1 Bottled Beer and Pitchers

Wednesdays
Spaghetti Night!
Spaghetti with broccoli, eggplant and mushrooms with soup or salad, and beverage (glass of beer or wine)
ONLY $4.25

Fridays
Happy Hour!! 2 - 6
75¢ 1 Liquor Bar Drinks
Kronenbourg $1.00

Saturdays HOT NEW ITEM!!
Beef Nuggets
1 order free
with every pitcher of beer
10 'til close

55 University Dr. Amherst
549-5713
clip and save

The Party Never Stops!

JUSTIN RYAN'S challenges you to
BEAT THE CLOCK

7:00-9:00 | 9:00-10:00 | 10:00-11:00 | 11:00-CLOSE

50¢ Drinks 75¢ Drinks 1.25 Drinks 1.75 Drinks
75¢ Food 1.25 Food 1.75 Food Reg. Price-Food

Tonight - Thursday Night

KICK OFF LOUNGE
Catch Stanley Cup Action
Tonight in the Kickoff Lounge
Islanders vs Edmonton 8 PM

Mother's Day is May 12th
Remember your mother
on her day.
Send a card from
A.J. HASTINGS
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Dastardly Dans
TUESDAY and
THURSDAY NITES
$3.00 all the draft beer
you can drink
9 pm - 12 midnight

$99,300
IN CASH & PRIZES ON
LISTEN FOR DETAILS ON
THE 99 FM
HOT SPOT

Happy Hour
THURSDAY
Draft Beer... only 65¢
3-7 PM
*Proof of Age Required
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR/STUDENT UNION

Glass Reunion

THE UNCOMMON IMPORT
DOS EQUIS

LAND
Terrific Bargain
10 acres ONLY $8000
Northfield -
Only 25 mi. to Amherst.
For info and terms just call owner.
802-257-4347 Days
802-254-9369 Eves.

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST

For students planning to take
English 112
(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984

THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)

MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)

No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument.

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day before they take place except Monday which will carry Monday's and Tuesday's events. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

FREE CONCERT: UMASS CHAPEL JAZZ ENSEMBLE - Directed by David Sporny, the Ensemble will play a broad range of jazz styles, including the music of Count Basie, Mel Lewis, Thad Jones, and Woody Herman. 8 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

FIELD HOUSE COFFEEHOUSE - Field Main Lounge will be the site of an evening of activities including music and improvisation. Free food and drink. Stop by and give us a look. 8-12 p.m., Field Main Lounge.

INTERESTED IN LEARNING ABOUT STOCKS? - Come listen to Max Bowser, expert on mini-priced stocks. 7:30 p.m., Campus Center Rm 917.

STUDENT FILM AND VIDEO FESTIVAL - Students involved in film and video invite you to their opening at the student union gallery. Works by James Burke, Glenn Cardamone, and Scott Haller will be shown. Viewings and discussion. 7-9 p.m., Student Union Gallery.

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's ICE CREAM
Hornes Mooseplace 260 South St Edwards Northampton 7:11 p.m. Open Daily 11:30 to 8 Sat 'til 11:30 586-8431

Attention RSO Groups
be a part of the
Summer Orientation Issue
of the Collegian.
The deadline
for advertising
is May 11th

STUDENT FILM
and
VIDEO FESTIVAL
THURSDAY, MAY 10
7-9 pm
at the
STUDENT UNION GALLERY
Student Union Building
Works by:
James Burke,
Glenn Cardamone,
Scott Haller, and Pat Peek
Viewings and Discussion
For more information call 545-0792

ARMY/NAVY
Clothing Sale
LAST DAY
10 am to 8 pm
Student Union Ballroom

* Marine Rip Stop Camel Pants..... $10 - 13
* Brand New BDU Camel Pants..... $22
* Jackets..... $8 - 15
* Fatigue Pants..... $4 - 7.50
* Army/Navy Raincoats..... $10 - 15
* Down Filled Mummy Sleeping Bags..... $25 - 30
* Airforce Sunglasses..... $5 - 7
* And Much Much More

GENUINE
Budweiser
KING OF BEERS
INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS
Softball Quarter Finals Winners
Crimson Crew vs Lucky 13
Untouchables vs Cell Debris
The Stompers vs The Dings
Mary Lyon's Cubs vs The Beepers
CoRec Softball
Infection vs Bluejays
East Side vs Untouchables
Mismitt Kids vs Exercise Science
Grad Fac
Bioya vs Rising Stars
Cell Debris vs Damn'd
Say Hey vs Busters
Standard Deviation vs Education
Men's Soccer Finals
Latin Brothers vs Victory
Semis Women's Soccer
DFST vs 2 East
Drillers vs All Stars
Grad Fac
International United vs Imploders
Mostly Foreigners vs Hellenic
Good Luck on Finals
have a good summer!
GENUINE
this Bud's for you!

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Commencement 1984

10:00 a.m., Sunday, May 27

All Candidates
There will be no Commencement rehearsal for degree candidates. Candidates should assemble by school/college at Alumni Stadium no later than 9 a.m. graduation morning, May 27, 1984. Signs will be posted indicating schools and Commencement Marshals will issue specific instructions and distribute programs. Upon signal, candidates will follow the Commencement Marshals to the assigned areas and be seated.

Candidates will receive diploma covers from the dean of their school or college.

Who is Eligible to Participate?

Undergraduate degree candidates who anticipate completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1984. Questions concerning academic status should be directed to the Records Office, 213 Whitmore, 545-0555.

Master's degree candidates who have previously submitted the Degree Application Form by April 27, 1984 to the Office of Degree Requirements stating their intention to complete all requirements. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249 Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Doctoral degree candidates who have completed all degree requirements by April 27, 1984. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249 Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Faculty
Faculty and staff should assemble at the SOUTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel between the Facilities/Information Center and the stadium wall. Faculty will be part of the processional and will be seated immediately in front of the candidates from each school and college.

Note: Commencement '84 is on SUNDAY, May 27.

Parents and Invited Guests Plan to Arrive Early — Space is Limited
Since the Commencement Exercises are open to the public, and guest seating is without reservation, parents and friends should plan to arrive early to ensure good seating.

Handicapped Seating
A viewing area for the handicapped will be located on both sides of the stadium on the eastern and western walkways. Since seating is limited, only one person may accompany the handicapped guest.

Invitations
There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend the ceremony, and tickets are not required. Each undergraduate student will receive a packet of six formal invitations. Students are urged to encourage their guests to arrive early for good seating.

Caps, Gowns, and Hoods

Undergraduate Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Master's Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Doctoral Degree Candidates
Doctoral caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 4 p.m., upon clearance by the Office of Degree Requirements. On Commencement Day, caps, gowns, tassels, and hoods may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the NORTHWEST end of the stadium (on the gravel area).

Doctoral candidates who plan to participate in the Commencement ceremony must have a hood. Each Ph.D. candidate's name will be announced over the stadium sound system and two officers of the University will drape the hood on the candidate's shoulders. Doctoral hoods can be purchased only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, A249 Graduate Research Center, at a cost of $26. (Five College Doctoral Hoods will be available at $42.95.) Doctoral hoods may be rented through the University Store.

Rentals
Academic apparel for this year's University Commencement may be rented through the University Store. All faculty members are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. THE LAST DAY TO ORDER IS FRIDAY, MAY 18. Payment must be made at the time of order and there will be no refunds if apparel is not used. Academic apparel may also be purchased. For further information about rentals or purchases, please contact Connie Szelewicki at the University Store, 545-2619.

Accommodations
Many area motels are already booked for Friday and Saturday before Commencement. A limited number of rooms in University housing will be available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 25, 26, and 27. Please contact the Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center, 545-3400, by May 10. There is a $5 cash key deposit — to be returned when the key is returned.

Food Services
Coffee, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at four rotundas on the North side of the stadium.

Commencement Ceremony Schedule

9 a.m.	Robing for Commencement. Appropriate signs will be displayed. Graduates should line up according to [illegible] hood or college.
9:30 a.m.	Seating of Graduates
10 a.m.	Procession starts
12 noon	Ceremony ends

Parking
Parking at the stadium is extremely limited. Commencement traffic will be directed to several parking lots located nearby and shuttle buses will transport you the short distance to the stadium. You will be dropped off directly in front of the stadium and buses will return you to the lots immediately following the ceremonies.

Radio Traffic Control
In an effort to aid the traffic flow at Commencement, WTTT radio in Amherst (1430 on the AM dial) will broadcast traffic reports throughout the morning. Please tune to 1430AM once you arrive in Amherst for the best route to the ceremonies.

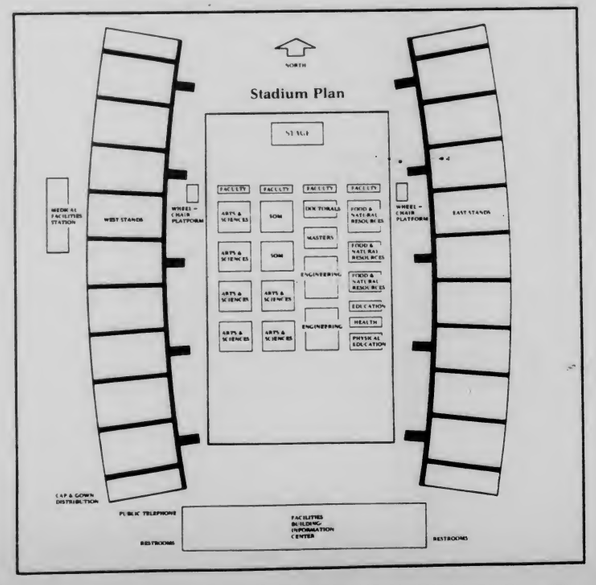
General Information
Diplomas will be mailed to graduates in the fall.

Medical facilities will be located on the rain under Section 8 of the stands.

Public telephones will be located on the west side of the Facilities/Information Center.

Restrooms are located at either end of the Facilities Information Center at the south end of the stadium.

Viewing areas for those confined to wheelchairs will be located on both sides of the stadium, on eastern and western walkways.



For additional information, contact the Office of Community Relations, 390 Whitmore, 545-2560.

ALCOHOL IS NOT PERMITTED IN THE STADIUM.

RAIN DATE
There is no alternative rain site. The ceremony will be held outside regardless of the weather. The ceremony will be delayed a maximum of two hours in the event of heavy rain. In the event of torrential rains the ceremony will be cancelled. Listen to local radio stations early Sunday morning to hear if the decision to delay or cancel has been made.

Schedule of Events	Date	Time	Place
Stockbridge Commencement	Sat., May 26	1:30 p.m.	FAC Concert Hall
ROTC Commissioning Ceremony	Sun., May 27	8:00 a.m.	FAC Concert Hall
Nursing Commencement	Sun., May 27	1:00 p.m.	Rhododendron Garden Rain site: 329 Morrill Science Center

1984 Commencement Ceremony: Sun., May 27, 10 a.m.-12 noon

Bloom County by Berke Breathed

UMass Zone Mark Rollins

The Strip Jim Walsh

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

Off Campus Sullivan & Gillbert

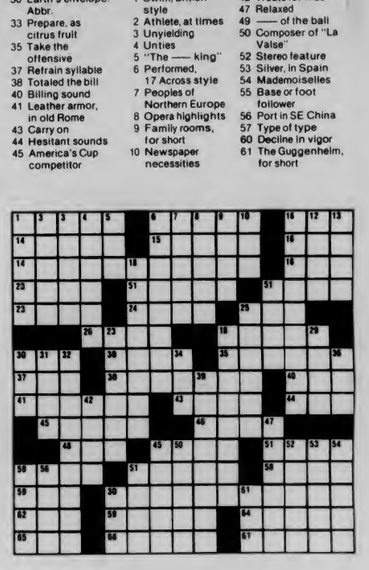
D.C. Menu

LUNCH
Austrian Raviola
Grilled Cheese Sandwich

BASICS LUNCH
Grilled Cheese
On Wheatberry
Soybean, Corn
Tomato Casserole

DINNER
Fried Chicken/
Supreme Sauce,
Cranberry Sauce
Chopped Beefsteak
Special

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Mushroom
Fondue Bake
Fried Chicken/
Supreme Sauce,
Cranberry Sauce



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 City in NW Switzerland
6 Bow
11 Cap, cent or coat
14 Broadway personage
15 Like a shell
16 Devon river
17 Athletes' summit meeting
19 Author Yutang
20 Towel word
21 Hall of Famer Rixey and namesakes
22 Chess move
23 Sea eagle
24 Minimizing ending
25 Florida feature
26 Soup seasoning
28 Scottish landowner
30 Earth's envelope: Abbr.
33 Prepare, as citrus fruit
35 Take the offensive
37 Refrain syllable
38 Totaled the bill
40 Billing sound
41 Leather armor, in old Rome
43 Carry on
44 Hesitant sounds
45 America's Cup competitor
46 Road sign
48 Kicker's stand
49 Writer Harte
51 Head rest, in a way
55 Words of contempt
57 Norman Vincent
58 Admiral Halsey, to friends
59 One of a Latin trio
60 Award at 17 Across
62 Chaney
63 Ironwoods
64 Weld
65 Fleur-de-——
66 Highlanders
67 Porches of yore

DOWN
1 Swim, British style
2 Athlete, at times
3 Unyielding
4 Unties
5 "The —— king"
6 Performed, 17 Across style
7 Peoples of Northern Europe
8 Opera highlights
9 Family rooms, for short
10 Newspaper necessities
11 Event at 17 Across
12 Go off
13 Sand hill, in Devon
18 Assaulted verbally
22 Spring months, in Paris
25 City in cen. Wyoming
27 Cochise, for one
28 "Music," to a comedian
29 Designer of note
30 Ocean: Abbr.
31 Famed ancient city
32 Athletes' endurance tests
34 Actor Ayres
36 Altos or Gatos
39 Immemorial
42 Treats for kids
47 Relaxed
49 —— of the ball
50 Composer of "La Valse"
52 Stereo feature
53 Silver, in Spain
54 Mademoiselles
55 Base or foot follower
56 Port in SE China
57 Type of type
60 Decline in vigor
61 The Guggenheim, for short

LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds
is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT

Audio
Auto For Sale
Calculators
Entertainment
For Rent
For Sale
Found
Help Wanted
Instruction
Lost
Motorcycles
Personals
Ride Wanted
Rider Wanted
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Wanted
Wanted to Rent

Weather

Today will be sunny, with highs about 65 to 70. Tonight, mostly clear with lows again in the 40s. Tomorrow will be mild with increasing cloudiness and a chance of showers. Highs in the 60s along south coasts and well into the 70s inland.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	T	A	G	C	O	A	T	D	I	D	O	T	S
C	A	G	E	M	O	N	A	A	D	O	R	E
A	V	O	I	N	E	L	I	S	N	E	P	A	L
F	O	R	E	J	E	L	L	I	N	G	E	L	F
C	H	A	R	T	E	R	S	E	S	T	E	L	S
				A	U	S	T	E	N	A	G	E	D
A	S	S	U	M	P	T	I	O	N	I	N	T	E	R
T	E	A	R	S	E	A	P	A	R	T	L	E	S	S
M	A	S	H	H	Y	P	O	T	H	E	S	E	S
O	R	A	C	L	E	S	V	E	I	N
			C	H	O	L	I	A	M	B	E	R	I	C
A	L	I		P	O	L	I	T	I	C	I	A	N
M	O	T	O	R	I	S	T	S	I	N	G	E	R	S
A	M	U	S	E	D		C	H	E	E	R
C	A	S	T	E	N		R	E	D	O		S	S	A

adirondack music

"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"

What do you do when you have over 100 open and demo car stereos that you want to get rid of???? Some missing knobs, some faceplates, all working with full mfrg. warranty.

You Blow Them Out!!!

Sony XR 25 indash auto reverse players from $79.95
Pioneer indash players from $49.95
Clarion indash players from $49.95
other players from $19.45

There are many, many spectacular values. Car stereo specials priced below original dealers cost. Car stereo speakers from $5.00 pair.

Truly tremendous values this weekend only at Adirondack Music

Don't forgot about our orphan speakers room where you can buy a $500 speaker for $5.

Need home stereo gear? Check out these fantastic values.
Vector Research VCX 400 cassette decks $199.00
Dolby B Dolby C solonoid controls and all logic circuitry
Vector Research 9000 receiver, digital 160 watts receiver mfgr, sugg. value $750.00 ½ price - $375.00
Toshiba SA 2500 receiver 50 watts DC amp
½ original retail $125.00
Kenwood Super System Special
Kenwood 60 watt Receiver
Cassette Deck
Turntable
Speakers
all for $399.00

TELL CATE!

"Tell CATE what?"
"About your class, silly."
"What about my class? Like my midterm that we didn't get back yet?"
"Well yeah, sort of. CATE is a guide for students to pick out some hip teachers."
"Oh yeah, I get it, put out by the faculty, right?"
"NO space-cadet, where you been? It's put out by the students - LIKE YOU - for other students."
"Oh yeah? Sounds good; I wish I knew about it last semester, I ended up with a couple of duds. But wait a minute, what do you mean I'M putting it out?"
"C'mon Voltaire-brains, chill out; it's a joint effort, but you have to do it if you want a good guide."
"Of cosmic significance, uh?"
"Right, that's it - 'OF COSMIC SIGNIFICANCE' - just make sure you fill it out and get it back to the STUDENT UNION. You can fill them out there in fact."
"Okay, I'm cool. How about this:. . . (whisper, whisper, whisper)"
"Whew! I don't know about you. You've had a lot of fantasies, BUT THIS, is choice! I bet they publish it! Go on, do it. . .

TELL CATE!

Celtics do Knicks, lead 3-2

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, led by Larry Bird and Kevin McHale, charged to a 27-point lead early in the second half, withstood a New York comeback and went on to a 121-99 victory over the Knicks last night, taking a 3-2 lead in their National Basketball Association playoff.

Bird finished with 26 points and McHale 22 as the Celtics moved to within one victory of advancing to the Eastern Conference final, with the sixth game in the best-of-seven series shifting to New York Friday night.

Bird, who also had 10 assists and nine rebounds, triggered the early Boston outburst by scoring 10 of the Celtics' first 14.

★ Men's and Women's track

Continued from page 24

held at Monteville, Ct.

The Minutewomen were impressive, setting a meet record and breaking three school records as they finished among the top of the twenty-three schools who scored.

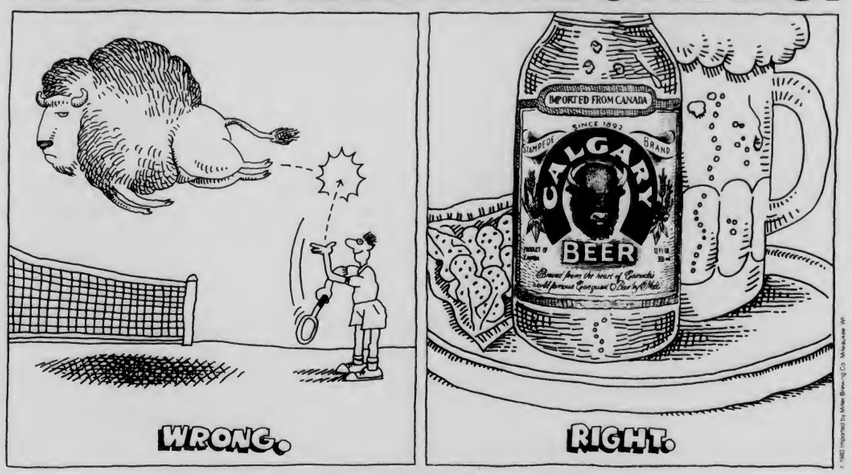
The four by 400 team of Sue Goldstein, Deb Smith, Barbara Cullinan and Leah Loftis set a meet record as they finished first in 3:50.78. Cullinan, Loftis and Goldstein were together again, along with Kayla Morrison, and set a school record in the 400 relay as they captured second place with a time of 48.77.

Morrison set a school record in the 100 meter dash when she ran 12.42 in the semifinals; a shade slower in the finals, she finished second overall in 12.46. Morrison continued breaking records as she finished second in the 200 meters with a time of 25.32.

Goldstein and Loftis finished second and fifth respectively in the 400 meters, 56.85 and 58.03.

Coming up this weekend is the ECAC's at Penn State.

BODY SHOP



SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00

X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18

Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F 7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm
Summer workouts start June 4

LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL.

HOW TO SERVE A BUFFALO.

INTRODUCING CALGARY CANADIAN BEER.

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION

Gas Saving Tune-up

4 Cyl $34.95 6 Cyl $39.95 8 Cyl $44.95

We'll install new resistor spark plugs points & condenser adjust idle speed set timing test battery and charging system inspect rotor, distributor cap PVC valve ignition cables air filter and vapor canister filter Includes Emission Test and Printout

Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99

includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check

North Amherst Tire & Auto Center

"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"

78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA

Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

Sports Notice

There will be an informational meeting for all those interested in being basketball managers for the men's basketball team on Friday, May 11 at the basketball office in Boyden 222 at 3:30 p.m..

If you have any questions, please contact the basketball office at 545-2610 or Pete Bernard at 546-6899.

Zoo Disc heads to Tufts for Ultimate playoffs

By TIMOTHY RIVIERE
Collegian Staff

Zoo Disc, the University of Massachusetts men's ultimate frisbee team, travels to Tufts University in Medford this weekend to compete in the first National Collegiate Ultimate Championships. A field of ten teams, representing the nation's five regions will clash in Medford.

Joining Zoo Disc will be Stanford, Chabot, University of Kansas, Michigan State, University of Pennsylvania, Glassboro State, University of Texas, Syracuse and host Tufts. This will mark the first time a tournament has sported college teams from all regions.

Zoo Disc qualified for the Nationals by winning the Northeast Regionals two weeks ago in Albany, N.Y.. Zoo Disc defeated a pesky Syracuse squad, 21-13 in the finals. Syracuse jumped out to a 5-3 lead before Zoo put it in gear and cruised into half-time with an 11-6 advantage.

Prior to the finals, Zoo Disc walked through pool play on Saturday beating Yale, Brown and Albany. The quarterfinals saw Zoo Disc matched with Wesleyan. It was a relatively easy win, 15-5, and they went on to the semis and Brockport. Brockport played well in the first half staying within striking distance at 9-8. The second half belonged to Zoo Disc as they advanced to the finals by winning 18-11.

The "Road to Medford" has not yet tested Zoo Disc but the Nationals promise to be challenging. Zoo Disc brings their 30-6 record to Tufts anticipating stiff competition.

Senior Robert Barnicle puts it into perspective; "You can compare us to Georgetown, we're the favorites and everyone is looking to bump us off. We've got to be strong and meet the challenge."

The spring season started on a positive note in late March when Zoo Disc placed second in the April Fools Fest in Washington D.C., losing in the finals to Kaboom 15-12. While starting off well Zoo Disc has been able to keep their objectives in mind.

"Winning the Nationals has been our goal all season long," claims senior Ed Fleck, "and anything less than a strong performance will be disappointing." The key to Zoo Disc's success this season has been its man to man defense. By playing tough defense Zoo Disc has been able to force opponents into making offensive mistakes. The Defense has tightened as the season has progressed and there will be no holding back this weekend.

"There is no reason why we can't win this thing if we continue to come together as a team and realize that we all must make personal sacrifices for the good of the team" adds Geoff Rockwell.

Collegian file photo

STRECHIN' FOR THE DISC — Members of the University of Massachusetts Ultimate Frisbee team go for the disc in earlier competition. Pictured is Tom Baylock (far left, in black), Bruce Todd (screened, in middle), and Robert Bernide looking on. Zoo Disc travels to Medford this weekend.

Sleeveless Fleece Vest $8.50

Assorted Designs

Hearts Flowers Dots Sailboats

Sharon S Photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

TO SUBLET

1 bedroom Colonial Vill near pool with fall option 253-5764

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Sublet fall option 2 brm $330 per month Sunderland summer rent negotiable call between 9-11 am or other 665-4744

One bedroom in three bdrm apt. in house available end May - Sept 1 near town & campus (Amherst) rent nego 256-1421 ask for Laura

One bedroom apt in Puffton June - Sept rent negotiable 546-5082

Brandywine 2 bedroom June - August price negotiable call 546-6024 546-6019 546-6041

Possible fall great apartment 5 min from campus 549-1178 keep trying

Female for own room Puffton $150.00 + Trish or Terri eves 549-4621

One bedroom super summer sublet in Brandywine pool, tennis courts, partially furnished, rent negotiable Valerie 549-6766

2 bedroom Southwood townhouse sumemr sublet fall option August - free 385/mo 256-6041

Practically on campus! New 2 bdrm apt w/fall option 549-5613

Puffton 3 bedroom apartment. Summer sublet, close to campus 549-1219

Ready now or June 1 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt on bus line, near Puffers Pond. Nothing down. Just $115 per month. Fall option 549-0437

Two bedroom apt summer w/fall option cheap, all utilities included 665-4953 evenings

One bedroom summer sublet with fall option Cliffside apt 665-7956

3 bdrm Townhouse apt avail for summer at a reas rate 546-5113

4 bedroom epertment on bus route summer sublet with fall option. 1 ½ baths, cable TV 174 per room includes all utilities call after 5:00 546-9322

4 bdrm 2 beth Amherst apt w/fall option negotiable summer rent 256-1014

from June 1 with fall option two bedroom apt on Sunderland bus route 330/month 665-8314

Room eveileble summer possible fall option. Rent negotiable. Call 256-0011 evenings

1 bdrm 280 month includes utilities pool tennis Cliffside apts bus route June 1 fall option 665-2156

Two bedroom apt available one fall option near Puffton wood stove 549-0112

Two bedroom apartment in Colonial Village summer sublet fall option telephone 256-8597

2 bedrm Cliffside apt for June 1 w/fall option. Pool, tennis, bus rt. $340 neg inc utilities 665-4556

3 rooms in house - 2 with fall option close to town & campus $170 549-5519

Four bedroom house, furnished, large kitchen, living room, pantry. Washer and dryer. Near Look Park. $300 or best offer 586-9506

1 bdr apt near Puffers Pond $200/m fall option 549-7522 (day) 542-2363 (n)

Room in quiet house walking distance very negotiable 546-8912 keep trying

Summer sublet 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Brittany call 546-6560 after 6 PM

Brandywine 2 bdrm apt cheap $350/month or BO + utilities call 6-9643, 6235

Brandywine two bedroom fully furnished 75/mo per person 549-0124 anytime

Convenient Amherst Center 2 double rooms rent negotiable call 6-5651 eves

2 bedroom apt, Presidential, summer rent negotiable, Russell 253-9632 Bill 546-6270

Full townhouse for 1, 2, or 3 persons call Mike 546-7399

Townehouse summer sublet only. Subletor and/or roommates wanted. 2 bedroom, fully furnished Jim 546-6301 anytime

Spacious 2 bedroom apt. Furnished private and quiet 467-9832

Brandywine 1½ bedrooms cheap call 549-4824

One bedroom - prime location! House by Puffton. Two people 100/month June 1st Mary or Melissa 549-0528

Amherst Center apt for 1 person furnished June 1 to Sept 1 call 256-6079

Brandywine 2 bedrooms for summer and 1 for fall furnished call 549-2773 after 5 PM

This is a great deal - 2 room Southwood apartment starting June 1st we will be very very neg. tennis courts and pool - call Mitch 256-0967

TYPING

Professional Typing Service including: theses, manuscripts, medical reports, dictaphone. Emergency service. Call 536-2336, 6-10 PM

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

2-3 bdrm apt close to campus wanted for fall will pay summer please call 6-5345/6-5349

Experienced Painter sash and trim skills prefered call after 5:00 665-2665

WANTED TO RENT

Wented Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

Two females looking for apt for fall 84 preferably Colonial Village or surrounding area will take for sumemr please call evenings 546-6924

Need a piece to live in Chatham from 6-15 to 9-15 please call Christine 549-1616

WELCOME BACK MIKE JOE!!

Gainsville Green won't be seen But Zona's always near So grab a spoon, we'll party soon Cause everyone's glad you'll be here! T.Q. & R.J.M.

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

1974 Triumph TR6 great condition, excellent body and engine, many extras $4000 or BO 546-5516 Dan

72 Chev Impala 200 or best 256-8809. It runs!

1973 VW Superbeetle looks great, runs great. Lt Blue $895.00 549-4816

1973 Ven rebuilt engine sunroof radial very dependable 665-3855 after 5 BO Mike

1971 Volkswegen Superbeetle excellent condition sunroof light blue $800 call 546-5039

1974 Camero high mileage but mint condition 549-6821 or 549-0482

'69 Chevelle Malibu Classic $300 549-1178 keep trying

'76 Fiat 131S w/'78 engine runs great, good mpg, needs some work $650 253-3339

BOARDERS FOR FALL '84 WANTED

For home like etmosphere call Sigma Kappa Sorority 256-6887 ask for Sylvia or Louise

CHEAP, CHEAP, CHEAP

★ Two bedroom apt on bus route to sublet ★
★ Rete very cheep and negotiable ★
★ Please call 546-8861 ★

CHEAP SUBLET

Summer $80 mo + nice house Amherst near bus dishwasher 2 singles 253-5237 keep trying

ECKANKAR PRESENTS

"The Ancient Science of Soul Travel" room 804 CC 7:30 today

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

MAX BOWSER speaks on Stocks and Investments
Thursday, May 10 CC Rm 917 7:30 PM
!!!!! Tonight !!!!!
Refreshments will be served

FALL HOUSING

Rooms now available for all university women in close to campus sorority house. Ask for Lisa B or Sue G at 545-0527

FOR RENT

Large studio epertment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Live across from Emily Dickenson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

X-lg bedroom in split level apt rent negotiable quiet 665-2127

Two rooms in house. Summer with fall option. Walk to campus & town. Furnished. 125-150/mo Dan Jackie 549-6041

$360 cash to the people who take over my lease - one bedroom Crestview 10 minute walk to campus 360/mo + util 549-5949

Lrg bdl bdrm in spacious 2 bdrm apt. Avail June 1 665-2236

Southwood Apts 1 bedroom townhouse summer w/fall option very clean 256-8225

Beautiful Amherst Centar epertment $400.00/month includes utilities 2 person 253-2157

2 roommates for house on Rt 9 Belchertown; on bus route; $140 plus utilities call Mark 546-8422/546-9200

Summer sublet fall option 2 bedroom Southwood Apt 256-0832

One bedroom apt Colonial Village available 6/1 w/fall option 256-0909 evenings

Specious 2 bdrm apt Squire Village June 1, fall option 665-7923

Furnished efficiency apertment, carpet, AC, summer, fall option, $205 (Belchertown). 323-6704

1 bedroom apt $250 available June 1 fall option 256-0868 PM

5-bed house Sept 1 $700 plus utilities, large lot, in Hadley on busline. Skibiski Realtors 584-3428

3 bedroom townhouse on bus route summer sublet fall option call 665-4896

Brittany Manor apartments - two bedroom - cheap summer sublet with fall option avoid waiting lists!! Call: 256-1351

2 bdrm N. Amherst bus route 375+ available June 1 549-6894

Swiss Village apertment, cheap!! Summer, fall option four bedrooms. We'll give you August free!! 256-0052

FOR SALE

Japenese Go Set. Almost new $40. Rich 549-4786, 665-7034

Two 10-speed bicycles $65 each 253-2861

Beds, desks, kitchen chairs, table and other furnishings. Best offers. 549-0505

Apple II+, two drives, Micromodem, printer and accessories. $1695 or best offer. Call Keith 546-9349

Two twin beds great shape $100 or best offer Debbie 549-5998

Huge drafting table with parallel edge $40. 256-0550

Full bed $100 unfinished dresser $50 both six months old 549-6500

Couch for sale beige convertible 85 or BO 546-5727 or 546-5368

Womens size 9 boots skis bindings poles $125 or BO Maureen 545-0239 or 549-7621

Guiter - Gilberto six string classical and case excellent condition $150 549-7697

FOUND

14K Gold Chain; pendant w/initial found 5/7 near Whitmore. Call Dolores 545-3436

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Housekeepers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

International Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

Part time sales. Audio background or sales exper. necc. Also, p. time car stereo installer. Apply at The Sound Co. 201 N Pleasant

UMess Sorority seeks housemother for upcoming 2 years. Responsible female grad student preferred. Free room & board with salary 250$ per month. Call 545-2152 ask for Toni or Mary

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

COUNSELORS, Excellent Maine Camp, call Mrs. Fritts (201) 538-5409

Students! Summer jobs on campus! Apply to Telefund, Memorial Hall, 545-3509

Help wented cook needed at local fraternity call anytime 253-9032 ask for Mark

Summer work out West 318/week call for info 549-7529

PARTTIME WEEKEND: Production workers needed to fill-in for employees on vacation/leave. Church Seat Company, Division of Bemis Mfg. Company, Palmer Road, Monson, MA 01057 (413) 267-5511

LOST

Petchwork sweetshirt lost at FAC on 4/28. Call 546-4878 if found

Lost blue jacket, Scituate High School Football embroidered on it. If found please please call 546-7744, great sentimental value. Reward no questions asked

Pearl necklace deep sentimental value help please! Reward Terry 549-4071

Lost: Key Ring with approximately six keys if found call 546-3290 reward!!

Black loose-leaf notebook with one notebook inside. Lost in either Whitmore Cafeteria or by the phone in Whitmore on May 7th. Reward. Call 549-1014 or 586-9576

White purse Saturday May 5th at JR's important set of keys, can't replace some. If found PLEASE call 546-7217 or 256-0027 keep trying

Collie-Retriever (Columbus) lost 5/1. Long hair, curled tail, smart. 256-0550

Somewhere in Southwest. About 30 slides. Please call 256-1472

LOWEST RENT AROUND

Summer sublet with fall option 3 bedroom apt. $360/month summer rent negotiable. Scenic view and pool 665-7914 keep trying!!!!

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Suzuki GS450 miles 7000 $750 or BO call Peter 549-7544

1980 Yamaha 400XS great condition 5000 miles many x-tras $1,000 or best call 549-7581

1980 Yemeha XS400 speciel, cafe bars, $850 Chris after 5 665-4148

'80 KZ-440 LTD 900$ 6 speed mag wheels in great condition, always kept under cover, approx 65 mpg

PERSONALS

Petricia M. Smith we have your ID. It's at the Collegian

Need e piece to live next fall? Female boarders wanted. Good food home-like atmosphere. For info call 545-0162/2092. Keep trying!

WE HAVE BALLS - basketballs, baseballs softballs, footballs, tennis balls racquetballs, squashballs golfballs & frisbees

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

WHATS YOUR RACQUET?

We have Tennis Racquets, Racqetball Racquets, Squash Racquets & Bats!

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

TIM
You are wonderful and I love you
Lisa

Sherry, I miss you. Good luck with finals. Have a wonderful summer. See you in class with the ultimate tan. I love you. Greg

Contact Lenses Replaced. Bausch and Lomb $25. Others available. Call with your prescription. Dr. Spencer University Drive 256-8561

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

$300.00 REWARD

For recovery of Hifly 300 Sailboard taken from concert at Sowest on Apr 29 call Cathy Yates at 256-6761

RIDE WANTED

To Calif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

To Arizone end of semester share everything John 549-1358

Ride needed to the West Coast. California or the Northwest, Sometime after May 24th will share expenses, call Cory at 546-8770

Ride needed to central NJ May 18 or 19. Will share expenses. Call Lisa 6-5965

I need a ride to Needhem end back this weekend. If you can drive me home call 6-6111 Claire

To the Cape Friday may 11 after 12:00 share expenses! Please call Marjorie 546-5090

ROOM WANTED

Male seeks room (single or shared) in apt. anywhere! For next fall-spring Dave 546-7738

Room wented - looking for room in Hyannis/Yarmouth area please call Patty 546-5275

Help! Own bedrm. near campus sought for fall. Senior PoliSci/JS student, neither grind nor party animal. No cig. smokers, please. Ian 6-6177 nights

Room wanted for fall preferably in N Amherst apartment summer possible Carol 549-3720

Room wanted in Herwichport for summer near Lincoln Lodge call Lori 545-0527

Room needed for two in West Yarmouth/Hyannis area. Call Tom or Mike 253-9868

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wented to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-6089 Kris 256-0556

Female nonsmoker wanted in Brittany for fall 84 call 546-8343 546-8275

Roommate to share downtown Northampton apartment 200/mth inc heat 584-7608 Meg

Female roommate for summer near Amherst Center, on bus rte 118/mo 253-2763

For rent 1 bedroom in two bedroom apt downtown Noho call Jennifer 584-5972

Female roommate wented for fall in Brittany Manor call 546-8152

Presidentiel apt two people needed share one room 10 min walk, 111/mth/per + 20 utilities call Tom 549-6726

Moving to White Plains NY area looking for female roommate, just acquired job call Vikki 549-6869

Two roommates wanted for fall. Brittany Manor call Cyndi 253-3032

1 or 2 roommates wanted Brittany Manor male or female call 546-8111

Summer sublet and fall one female roommate wanted to share large room in Rolling Green $114.50 month everything included fully furnished on bus route call 253-3422

Cool female roommate wanted to share summer sublet/fall option Puffton call 549-2633

Roommate wanted for Southwood apt rate negotiable Information call Margeret 546-1411

Summer sublet/fall option North Amherst 150+ 5 min to bus close to campus 549-0146

Brandywine summer sublet 1 room open for fall 549-7697

Brandywine female to share room possible fall option call 549-1405/546-4791

SERVICES

Free coffee end donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite. 253-5111

SKIS FOR SALE

Must sell Rossignol 190 cm $70 or best offer Mike 256-1201

SUBLET ON BEACON HILL

One bedroom in 3 bedroom apt. female pnly. Avail 5-15 to 8-31. Great location 237/per mo inc. utilities 546-5124 or evenings after 8 pm 617-720-4427

SUMMER SUBLET

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

Presidentiel Apt 2 to 3 people closest apts to campus cheapest rate available all summer. Call Eric 546-6407 Andy 546-3279

3 bedroom townehouse apts rent cheap call 256-0707 or 256-0660 evenings

Two bedroom apt fully furnished rent negotiable 5 miles to campus call evenings 665-8114

1 bedrm in 2 bedrm furnished apt center of town. Prefer serious student. Avail. June $250/mo Jan/Barb after 4 pm 253-7818

Summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Southwood apt 253-7422

4 bedrooms avelieble at Swiss Village summer sublet with fall option call 253-5274

Brandywine two bedrooms rent negotiable 546-5341, 546-7625

With fall option in Southwood townhouse call 256-0051 after 6:00 ask for Ed

Puffton - 1 bedroom person needed for summer $80 a month 546-8294

Double Britteny bedroom in three bedroom apt with fall opt 256-7484 $160/per person

Two bedroom apt utilities included pool bus route fall option $370 Cliffside 665-8501

2 bedroom townhouse in Squire Village for June July and August, big rooms best offer Dave K 546-6461

Brandywine summer sublet furnished, best offer, call 546-5382

2 Britteny Manor apts evailable 1 bedroom each 1 with fall option, low price, newly rennovated 253-3389

Townhouse apt - furnished room (apt) available CHEAP June - Aug Mike 549-4861

Sports

Gazelles nip Yale in overtime, 6-5

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

"They know how to handle intensity."

The words of University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse head coach Polly Keener quite accurately describe the Gazelles 6-5 overtime victory over Yale in New Haven, Connecticut.

Sophomore Bunny Forbes gave the Minutewomen the victory about three minutes into the overtime period, sending them into the next round of the NCAA tournament against Harvard University.

Things did not start too well against the Lady Elis, who were quick off the starting blocks. Yale started off with an aggressive style, giving them a 2-0 lead early on.

Keener and UMass then changed their strategy by sending in an extra attacker and the new offensive set worked. Yale had trouble adjusting to the increased play and found themselves in a deadlock when the teams went to halftime.

Early, tough pressure led to an extremely intense second half, with both clubs working very hard. The Gazelles jumped ahead at one point but the Lady Elis would have none of that, as they battled back to a tie.

These two evenly matched teams fought hard for the rest of the game, but both sides' adrenalin canceled each other out and the overtime began.

The ability to handle intensity was never more evident than in freshman Lana Nesmith, who made a critical interception deep in UMass territory. This theft led to UMass holding the ball and setting up for their game-winning shot.

Forbes then got the ball at just the right position and fired it in the net, giving the Gazelles the victory.

Linda Haytayan led the scoring for the Minutewomen with the hat trick3 goals, for anyone who doesn't know). d junior Pam Moryl added two.

The big story, however, was the UMass defense. Nesmith, and seniors Patty Shea and Carol Progulske all played outstanding.

But it was goalie Debbie DeJesus that shined when UMass needed it the most.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

MAKIN' HER MOVE — University of Massachusetts' Pam Moryl faces three Boston College defenders earlier this season. The Minutewomen traveled to Yale yesterday.

"Debbie was stopping the ball at critical times, and Carol and Patty were incredible," said Keener.

"The team played consistantly well the entire game. We've been working hard on that the whole season."

Against Harvard, which will be in Cambridge, UMass will be playing a club that beat them earlier in the season, but that is deceiving. It was UMass' second game and they were still ironing out the rough spots.

The team is ready to play them again, but it's going to be tough," said Keener. 'Harvard's skills are stronger than Yale's."

But the Gazelles, who also have shown a knack for coming from behind, will still need the outstanding defensive play to advance in the NCAA's.

One thing is for sure, they will always have the intensity.

Men's track places third; ECAC's next on agenda

By M.E. MURRAY
Collegian Staff

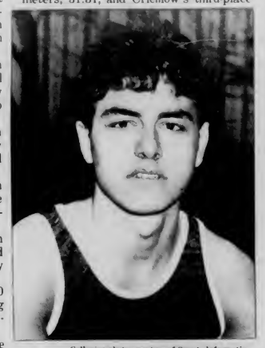
The University of Massachusetts men's track team captured third-place last weekend at the Easterns held in New Britain, Ct., finishing just behind champion Lowell University and runner-up Southern Connecticut.

Having already captured the Easterns in Cross-Country and Indoor-Track, Lowell completed a triple-crown sweep as they defeated powerful defending-champ Southern by twelve points, 139-127.

UMass' 99 points pushed the Minutemen way ahead of their nearest rivals, New Haven and Central Connecticut, who tied for fourth with 43 points.

The Minutemen had expected to finish behind the two powerhouses but the wide margin between third and fourth was a surprise.

"It was a real good day," said Coach Ken O'Brien. "Most of our scorers finished higher than expected and we just ran away from some of the field."



Ted White took first-place in the 800 meters, posting a time of 1:54.9 and adding to the championship he had captured indoors in that event.

Rashid Piggitt leaped to a victory in the long-jump, 22' 3" and then teamed up with Darrin Whittaker, Ferde Adaboe and Rawle Crichlow in the four by 100 relay, achieving third-place, 43.5.

Whittaker and Adaboe both figured in the triple-jump, finishing second and third respectively, 45' 6½" and 45' 4".

Senior Rod LaFlamme continued his winning ways in the steeple-chase, finishing first in a time of 9:19, while Neal Dickson, Brian Osborne, Mark Themea and John Okerman teamed up to take the bronze in the four by 400 relay.

In other highlights: Themeas's second-place finish in the 1500 meters, 3:56; Wayne Levy — second-place in the 10,000 meters, 31:31; and Crichlow's third-place in the 200, 22.17.

Collegian photo courtesy of Sports Information.

Ted White, 800 meters champion at the Easterns held this past weekend in New Britan.

Many of the scorers have qualified for this weekend's New Englands to be run Saturday and Sunday at Dartmouth.

Also in action last weekend, the University of Massachusetts women's track team captured fifth-place in the New Englands

Continued on page 21

Sports Log

By TONY BETROS
Collegian Staff

Just a few thoughts...

Yes, this is the final column of the Sports Log for the semester. If you look back to the previous columns, you know where they are, either lining your parakeet's cage or surrounding any accidents the Irish Setter may have "done," there were a lot of predictions...Some were right on the button, some way off the mark. Lets hope that next semester I will do my homework a little more and get some more stuff right.

One area which I was way off on was the NHL. The Islanders are really the epitome of a perfect hockey team. They go against the Rangers, tough, physical, and beat them...They then face the Capitals, who possessed a great defense, and beat them...Then they played Montreal, riding high after beating the Bruins in three straight (I had to put it in one more time) and playing a very conservative style of play, and beat them.

Edmonton is next for the Islanders. This column has been quite critical of the Oilers, and with good reason. Sure, they have the best record in hockey and score quite a few goals. In fact, they have actually counted more goals than rallies in front of the Student Union, but that's debatable...The Islanders have beaten the Oilers the last 15 times, including a four game sweep last year in the finals...Look for the Isles to take it in five at the most, as they should get the fifth Cup in a row.

The NBA playoffs are in full swing, with the Knicks-Celtics matchup drawing the most people. Boston, after flying out the first two games, ran into a brick wall known as Bernard King. King looked awesome in game 4, hitting for 43 points, and the Knicks proved that they look very good with him playing well, and very bad with him playing poorly...It's kind of like hackysack. When that hacker is out there hacking--or sacker, sacking, whichever you prefer--it is poetry in motion. But when he/she is a little slow afoot, that sack goes in all directions.

The Celtics, as a team, looked pitiful the past two games. Where they really bit the preverbial big one was at the free throw line. Gerald Henderson and Cedric Maxwell are each at about 50 percent from the stripe in the playoffs...It doesn't look like Michael Jackson will invite them to the Pepsi hot shot contest...If I may switch subjects, it looks like Michael and his brothers will be in Boston this summer, with tickets rumored to cost 30 bucks a pop. The question is, can we afford to be the new generation.

Look for the winner of the Celts-Knicks series to take on the Lakers, who got an early Christmas present in the form of Derick Harper. It seems that Harper, with about 7 seconds left in the game on Sunday, thought that his team was ahead and proceeded to run out the clock. The only problem is that the game was tied at the time...Dallas' coach Dick Motta said it best when he just "wanted to go out and tackle him."

Finally, a quick word of thanks to all the people who gave me the ideas to work with, especially my roommates, Glenn and Bill, who had the courage to hold their heads up when others would belittle me...Also, thanks to all the people who rooted for the Bruins (Tim & co.) so I could have the last laugh and especially the man they call Flip, who is still in shock after the loss of Moses and the others...Lastly, thanks to my editor, Gerry DeSimas, who gave me the freedom to write--no, I am not accepting an academy award.

See you in September.

No more need be said.

The Massachusetts Daily

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 70 ©UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Friday, May 11, 1984

Rochester biologist to head UMass academics

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

After more than a year without a permanent provost, a search committee announced it has found a suitable candidate for the highest academic position at the University of Massachusetts.

Noted biologist and University of Rochester provost Richard O'Brien will become vice chancellor for academic affairs and provost at UMass, subject to the approval of the University Board of Trustees and State Board of Regents.

O'Brien, 55, will become the Chancellor's chief academic adviser and internal administrative leader when he fills the position vacated by Loren Baritz last April.

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey has approved the committee's choice. Final approval by the UMass Board of Trustees and the Massachusetts Board of Regents of Higher Education is "almost positive and just a technicality," said search committee chair Richard S. Stein, a UMass chemistry professor.

Samuel F. Conti, who has been acting provost since last September, may fill a newly formed position of vice chancellor of research and graduate studies, Stein said.

Stein said about 220 candidates went through "intense scrutiny and criteria for the most qualified candidate."

"The committee was looking for someone who has the respect and stature for a leadership position and who has had experience in the type of tasks he'd deal with here," Stein said. "We didn't want to appoint someone too narrow. We looked for someone who could appreciate both the arts and sciences, someone who could interact well with the faculty."

The committee met O'Brien when he and seven finalists came to Amherst recently. The candidates were narrowed down and Duffey approved the committee's decision.

O'Brien has met with the campus deans, administrators, and faculty, as well as UMass President David C. Knapp, the trustees, and the regents, Stein said.

"Various people had different opinions but overall, the decision was favorable," he said.

The committee had chosen final candidates six months ago, but none were chosen. "None were acceptable," Stein said. The committee had to find new candidates, he said.

O'Brien decided to accept the UMass provost seat because he was not picked to be president of the University of Rochester, Stein said.

O'Brien earned an undergraduate degree in 1950 in English literature at the University of Reading in England, and a Ph.D. in chemistry in 1954 from the University of Western Ontario.

Pornography foes encounter protest

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

Emotional arguments broke out Thursday in the Campus Center when an anti-pornography group picketing in front of the University Store clashed with a counter group protesting censorship.

Peggy Shaw, a sophomore STEPEC major who began picketing against pornography at 10:30 a.m. yesterday, said the picket was an educational picket.

"It's not a protest advocating censorship," she said. "We feel the channels used so far, the BOG (Board of Governors) and the SGA (Student Government Association), aren't getting the message across quickly enough. Everyday women are being hurt by pornography and men's definition of women is being perverted by it."

John Wrisley, a 21-year-old theatre major who picketed in the counter demonstration beginning at 3 p.m. yesterday, said by choosing the University Store as their location to picket, the anti-pornography group was "putting political pressure on the store and the University."

Julie Melrose, a member of the Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Violence that has done community education about pornography all semester, said the anti-pornography demonstration was held to bring the issue of violence against women back into focus.

"There's a certain point when a political struggle reaches a level of verbal debate," Melrose said. "When the real issues are lost in the struggle, one of the ways to bring the issue back to violence against women is by communicating through guerilla theatre."

Mark Nolan, a junior industrial engineering major watching the picket, said it was "good they (the anti-pornography protestors) were taking the time to exercise their freedoms."

"I do disagree with what they're doing," he said. Pornography "doesn't have a negative effect on women but on society. It creates all sorts of anxieties - anxieties about wanting something you can't have."

Peter Lee, a 19-year-old COINS major from Natick who participated in the counter demonstration, said holding a picket in front of the store was "exposing people to undue pressure."

"If you're protesting men's magazines you have to look at the articles that tell women how to control your man," he said. "If they're not trying to censor, then picketing and standing outside the store is a wee bit offensive."

Tom Dworkin, the first male to picket in the anti-pornography protest yesterday morning, said "men feel peer pressure not to picket" against pornography because "men are taught to be real proud of their sexuality, and many men connect pornography with sexuality."

"I'm accepting responsibility because it's a male problem," he said. "Pornography contributes to a society that contributes to an attitude of violence against women. If you're a woman and you look at women being hurt, it's psychic violence against you."

Sarah Bain, a 21-year-old interior design major from Minnesota, said "pornography hurts as much as you want it to hurt."

As for the "women who are in the magazines, that's their life and their job," she said. "I buy Playboy for my boyfriend at school prices, I read it.

University Store Manager Winthrop Cummings said the pickets did not interfere with yesterday's business very much.

Collegian Photos by Katie Watters

S.E. Chase (top) demonstrates in an anti-pornography picket outside the University Store yesterday while demonstrators against censorship counter-demonstrated.

Senior pond party lacks liquor license

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

In a break from recent years, no beer will be provided for the senior event this year.

The event will be free for seniors and food and alcohol will be permitted, University of Massachusetts Student Activities Office Program Advisor Kenneth Abert said yesterday.

Formally called the Chancellor's Reception for Seniors, the Senior Day Event is scheduled from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Campus Pond on May 25. Live entertainment from the Armstrong Brothers and the Sex Execs will be featured, Abert said.

"It will be much like the Pond Series and there will be no bottles and kegs. The University will not supply alcohol this year," Randy Donant, director of the Student Activities Office, said. "The idea is to turn the entertainment into a big barbecue kind of thing."

The rain date will be Saturday, May 26.

Abert said a student committee met with administration officials in March and decided to alter the program. The administration played no part in the final decision, he said. The committee made the decision not to provide beer.

"The committee just wanted to make it more of a picnic atmosphere," Abert said.

Undergraduates are welcome to attend the ceremonies but will have to pay for the meal, he said. Seniors will receive invitations from the chancellor.

The event will cost the SAO approximately $8,000.

Former SGA President Jim Murphy, a member of the student committee that planned the event, said the committee had to address a number of concerns such as alcohol consumption and safety, along with the goal of making it free for seniors.

At the initial meeting with students in March, administration officials expressed concern about alcohol consumption, crowd control and safety, Murphy said.

"The solution we had hoped would be was to make it a free event," Murphy said. "There were also complaints from seniors who don't drink beer."

Abert said the committee was open to all students. Advertisements were taken out in the Collegian in March to help plan the event, he said.

Inside:

Veterans complete trail for handicapped p.3

Olympic tradition lost in politics p.7

Gorillas and Gazelles in big games tomorrow .. p.16

"Catching a fly ball is a pleasure, but knowing what to do with it is a business."
—Tommy Hennish

Digest

By The Associated Press

Leather factory ignites city

PEABODY (AP) — An explosion that "sounded like an atomic bomb" sparked a fire in a downtown leather company yesterday, and high winds quickly fanned the blaze through two city blocks and sent flames 60 feet into the air.

The Air Force rushed foam-carrying trucks to battle the roaring blaze, and hospitals reported at least 11 people were treated for injuries, with one in critical condition.

"It blew up right in front of my eyes," said Salem patrolman Bertram Trumblay, who was driving his cruiser through a nearby cemetery when the building exploded. "It sounded like an atomic bomb."

Firefighting units from nearby suburbs, as well as foam-spreading units from two Air Force bases and Boston's Logan Airport, were called to battle the fire as it spread to surrounding buildings.

"The wind is our biggest enemy," said Peabody Fire Chief Nick Gerakaris. "We can't get the water to the fire."

The explosion apparently occured in the lacquer room of the Henry Leather Co., a rambling, multi-storied wooden structure that extends three blocks to the rear of Main Street. The company also was the scene of several small fires last November.

The fire quickly spread to a neighboring building that houses several small businesses. Two other buildings behind the leather company were also engulfed in flames as the inferno spread.

Much of the downtown area was evacuated, and power and telephone service was cut. Black smoke was visible 10 miles from the scene, and flames could be seen leaping from the tops of buildings.

Heat from the blaze melted the headlights on a firetruck and siding on a nearby house.

Salem Deputy Fire Chief James McDonnell said investigators were checking to find out from the building's owners what chemicals were in the building.

'Firestarter' begins in Bangor

BANGOR, Me (AP) — Stephen King's hometown has swapped its rough-hewn, logging town image for the trappings of Tinseltown for the world premiere of his new movie, "Firestarter."

Tuxedoed gentlemen escorted women in furs and evening gowns up Main Street on Wednesday to the red-carpeted entrance of the Bangor Cinema for the official debut of the film, based on the novel by the 37-year-old, best-selling horror writer.

A few dozen bystanders were on hand as producer Dino DeLaurentiis, child star Drew Barrymore and King—perhaps the city's best-known resident since the legendary Paul Bunyan—emerged from limousines.

"Geez, what a good time," dead-panned the formally attired King as he walked into the theater.

"Hi," said Miss Barrymore as she walked by wearing a flaming red three-tiered taffeta dress with cap sleeves.

New 'embassy' in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — In this city where only two nations have opened an embassy, the Christian Lebanese Forces militia is unfurling the flag of Lebanon from an eighth floor window facing the Israeli Parliament.

The establishment of a Lebanese forces "information office" here is an open act of defiance of Lebanese President Amin Gemayel and his government's recent tilt toward Syria.

It is also concrete evidence that Israel intends to continue open ties with its long-time allies in the Christian heartland north of Beirut, despite Lebanon's abrogation of its 1983 accord with Israel.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Gerry deSimas
Copy Editor — Jim Finkle
Layout Technician — Steve Anderson
Photo Technician — Katie Watters
Production Supervisor — Will Hopkins
Production — Ellen Waxman, Joy McCarty, Lynn Eisenberg, Marsha Wilcon, Ellen Nahigen, John Wielgus, Jane Hirshberg, Suzanne Lewis, Mike Lennon, Conor Plunkett, Kim Foster, Jim Rice

Wednesday, May 16
4-7 PM
Southwest Playing Fields
Free bus service from Franklin and Worcester parking lots.
LIVE MUSIC
FUN!
In event of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s.
board members: bring i.d.
COUNTRY BAR-B-Q
Non-Board Members - $4.75 in advance. Tickets on sale now at Munchies, Snack Bars, Franklin Meal Ticket Office.

KICK OFF LOUNGE
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT
Coming this weekend. . .
Saturday Happy Hour featuring "Just George" 4:00 - ?
(from the Boston & Cape Cod circuit)
— All you can eat Chicken Wings! —
AT JUSTIN RYAN'S

THE MOST WIDELY KNOWN ALLIGATOR IN THE WORLD IS REALLY A CROCODILE.
Regularly $25.00 each
SELECTED COLORS NOW REDUCED
$20 EACH 2 FOR $35
IZOD LACOSTE
House of Walsh, Inc.
32 Main Street
Amherst, Massachusetts
Daily 9:00 to 5:30 253-3361

SALE
BEETHOVEN
PACHELBEL CANON and other Baroque Favorites
Allegro
CASSETTES
SPECIAL CLASSICAL SELECTION!
3 for 9.96
A special selection by your favorite composers and artists. Shown are just a few examples from Allegro, Everyman and Everest. Many more titles to choose from.
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Veterans provide access to Frost Trail

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts Veterans Service Organization (VSO) members have recently completed the first phase of construction of a special path for the handicapped on the Robert Frost Trail near Cushman Brook in Amherst.

VSO President Alec McLeod said about 1,000 yards of the trail are accessible to people confined to wheelchairs as a result of the effort.

Lane's Quarry of Amherst donated nine truckloads of a special trap rock dust to spread on the trail, McLeod said. A group of campus veterans volunteered time to put it down and tamp it, he said.

According to McLeod, this is the first phase of making the trail accessible to people with different physical handicaps. "Our next plan is to construct a special rope guide rail along this part of the trail so that blind people can use it," he said.

"Several of us who work at the Vets office thought this would be a good thing to do for the community and a good way to bring area vets together," said VSO member Martin Murray.

Wheelbarrows, rakes, shovels and a pickup truck were donated by the Amherst Conservation Committee, the Amherst Highway Department and the Hitchcock Environmental Center.

"Peter Westover, head of the Amherst Trails Committee, was a big help in organizing some of this project for us, and we're working with the Lion's Club to get the rope railing in place," McLeod said.

Collegian Photo by Andy Heller

Veterans work on the new handicapped trail in Cushman Park.

"The Veterans Service Organization is an RSO (Recognized Student Organization) that serves the estimated 800 Vietnam veterans going to school at the University," McLeod said. "This is one of the activities we're doing to get vets together.

"About ten vets and several people who were just walking on the trail have been working on this for about three weekends," McLeod said. "We've received a lot of support from the local community with donations, and everyone who worked volunteered their time."

The VSO also sponsors a Veteran's Road Race every fall that is similar to Run for Ritter, McLeod said.

Campus Center BOG elects new officers

By RALPH ROBERTS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Campus Center Board of Governors elected three new officers for the fall semester last night.

Newly elected chair Bob Abele and treasurer Fran Hegler both won their positions unopposed. The vice-chair race, however, had four candidates. Karina Gray came away with the victory.

All three winners expressed eagerness for next semester's work and s w next fall as a key transitional phase.

Abele, who will only be in office for one semester before graduating said he had a "unique opportunity to set strong guidelines for the board."

"It's definitely going to benefit the board that I'm leaving after one semester. In years before, the head people have had a tendency to slack off in their second semester.

"This way I'll be able to advise the next chair coming into office. Our programs won't be halted over the summer. We'll have the same person coming back," Abele said.

In the vice-chair race, four candidates made speeches lasting about five minutes each before Gray was elected by secret ballot to the seat.

"I'm so psyched! I think I was elected because I put a lot of time in at the office. That's exactly what I plan to continue doing," Gray said.

"Besides serving the board by being a watchdog over the University administration, I would also like to develop a constructive relationship with administration," Gray said.

Hegler also saw a need for close communication with the University administration, especially since student fees may be on the rise again next semester.

"The Campus Center Trust Fund has a projected $300,000 debt scheduled for '85," Hegler said. "We don't want students paying any more than they have to. After all, just getting by is tough enough."

The elections mark the first time in many years that two officers were women.

Board memberSteve Davis said this may bring a new image to the board. "It's good to see two women in executive positions on the board. They're both highly capable candidates who will no doubt demonstrate excellent leadership for the entire board."

While the bulk of the new officers' work will not start until next semester, Abele said the board will be fairly busy throughout the summer keeping an eye on the administration, "making sure students' interests are constantly watched out for."

"We need to get an early jump on fixing Campus Center leaks, doing a thorough cleaning job of the building, and making sure student utility space is protected from space hawks," he said. "I would like to even get a little more space."

Steam shutdown to prevent 'catastrophic loss'

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

To ward off what a Physical Plant supervisor calls "catastrophic losses" this coming winter, the main steam line at the University of Massachusetts will shut down for a week at the end of the semester.

Physical Plant Work Management Supervisor Howard C. Fay said if repairs were not done during the week of May 27, many problems could arise in the winter.

"The damages would be incredible," Fay said. "There would be no heat and the campus would have to shut down and would not be able to reopen for at least 3 to 4 months."

The steam line, which runs underground from the coal fuel plant generates power for campus heating and cooling operations.

During repairs, "every building on campus that requires steam will be shut down," Fay said. More than 90 buildings will be without hot water and air conditioning that week, including the Murray Lincoln Campus Center and the Whitmore Administration Building.

University Health Services will not be affected, Fay said.

The repairs will cost about $180,000, according to Physical Plant Director Roger Cherewatti.

He said the steam lines have been plagued by leaky pipes for "too long." Crews will be working 12 hours a day until the job is completed, he said.

"Whether or not the job is completed, the steam is going back up on June 1 or I'll be shoveling coal myself," Cherewatti said.

Extensive work will also begin on steam pipes in the Southwest Residential Area. Those repairs will require more time, Fay said.

University Apartments, Lincoln Apartments and Prince House, which will be affected by the shut-down, will be provided with portable steam generators for hot water and air conditioning, Fay said.

"But heads of residence staying in other dormitories will be without domestic hot water use," Faye said. "We are setting up facilities in the stadium locker room. We'll provide curtains and dividers and a security guard."

William Harris, director of the Campus Center, said the Hatch and the Coffee Shop will be closed during the week of the shut down but other operations will run as usual.

"Not much will be going on that week," Harris said.

Town to buy mountain conservation site

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The Amherst Town Meeting approved Wednesday night the acquisition of 22 acres of land for conservation use at a cost of $270,00.

Town meeting members voted 131-45 to purchase Mt. Pollux from owner Howard Atkins. Some members expressed concern that taxpayers' needs were disregarded.

Nancy Gordon, a town meeting member from Precinct 4, said yesterday the town's approval "indicates that now we have purchased land which is not suitable for development at the expense of land which could be developed."

Gordon said not enough time was given to debate the purchase. "All too often the town has approached questions of expenditures as if no one was paying for them," she said.

Conservation Commission Chairman Carl Carlozzi said the town would be "making a big mistake" if it did not buy the area.

"If anyone has ever stood on the peak and seen the spectacular view of Amherst, they would think twice about this opportunity," Carlozzi said.

Most of the $270,000 will be raised through taxes, with $20,000 donated by a private group. But Carlozzi said he expects at least 50 percent reimbursement from the state, and possibly up to 80 percent.

Carlozzi and Selectman Allen Torrey called Mt. Pollux "a special piece of land," that the town "had as a significant part of its master plan" for years.

Town meeting member Isabelle Callahan, from Precinct 7, said the town already has 800 acres of conservation land, in addition to the new land.

"We're spending money like a bunch of drunken sailors," Callahan said. "Someday you're going to meet Proposition 2½ head-on and you will have to make some very hard cuts."

Torrey said the town has never spent so much money for conservation land. But "with the reimbursement, it's a once in a lifetime opportunity."

In addition to other land acquisitions, town meeting members approved 120-47 to appropriate $15,000 for a study of the development of the old landfill on Belchertown Road. The proposal, by a majority of the selectmen, to eventually turn the landfill into "a multi-use recreational area" met opposition by many members.

Elizabeth Cramer, of Precinct 7, said there was not enough discussion on this proposal.

Selectman Fred Steinbeck said the area was too close to Route 9 to be safe for children, and proper lighting was unavailable.

Town Manager Barry Del Castilho said the plan to build baseball fields, basketball courts, and parking lots would cost about $500,000.

Marchers: 'have a gay day'

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

A march and rally to promote the recognition and empowerment of gays and lesbians will begin at noon tomorrow in Northampton.

The march, beginning at the Bridge Street School and ending at Pulaski Park in downtown Northampton, will be followed by a rally featuring speakers and music.

Jane Cleland, a spokesperson for the Lesbian and Gay Liberation March Committee, said the march is being held both for celebration and political reasons.

"The purpose is to make the gay and lesbian community visible, to empower gays and lesbians and to build coalitions," she said. "It's also for fun - have a gay day. It's on us.

"It's for politics and it's for power and it's for celebration with consciousness."

The march is being held after a legal battle with Northampton authorities, who originally said the march could not be held on a Saturday.

Cleland said the march is being sponsored in solidarity with other progressive groups.

"Eighty, 90, or 100 groups have endorsed us," she said.

Gay and Lesbian Activists (GALA), the committee that is sponsoring the march, was founded in 1982 to promote the freedoms and rights of gays and lesbians.

"To pursue our goals we are engaged in internal education and outreach to other lesbian and gay groups," she said.

A group of 110 "peacekeepers" will be on hand to assist the marchers and to keep space between hecklers and demonstrators, she said.

Cleland said the "peacekeepers" were trained through role playing learn how to diffuse hostility.

Scuba gear taken from UMass Cage

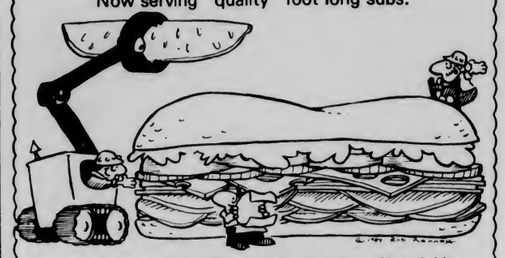
University of Massachusetts police reported $850 of scuba equipment including wet suit jackets, regulators and vests were stolen from the Curry Hicks scuba room between 4 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 a.m. Wednesday. The case is under investigation, but police have no suspects.

A 20-year-old Missouri man was arrested for driving without a license, driving at night without headlights, failure to stop for a police officer and speeding after a chase that led police to Hadley.

Univeristy police found the man sleeping in his car in Parking Lot 34 and asked him to unlock and open the door, police said. The man started his car and drove westward to Hadley.

The man was speeding, lost control of his car, and hit a guard rail at an intersection, police said.

At that point, the car flipped over, came to a rest on its wheels, and the man jumped out and was pursued by police for a half mile through flooded fields before being caught, police said.



—TOM MIDDLETON

TELL CATE!

"Tell CATE what?"
"About your class, silly."
"What about my class? Like my midterm that we didn't get back yet?"
"Well yeah, sort of. CATE is a guide for students to pick out some hip teachers."
"Oh yeah, I get it, put out by the faculty, right?"
"NO space-cadet, where you been? It's put out by the students - LIKE YOU - for other students."
"Oh yeah? Sounds good; I wish I knew about it last semester, I ended up with a couple of duds. But wait a minute, what do you mean I'M putting it out?"
"C'mon Voltaire-brains, chill out; it's a joint effort, but you have to do it if you want a good guide."
"Of cosmic significance, uh?"
"Right, that's it - 'OF COSMIC SIGNIFICANCE' - just make sure you fill it out and get it back to the STUDENT UNION. You can fill them out there in fact."
"Okay, I'm cool. How about this:. . . (whisper, whisper, whisper)"
"Whew! I don't know about you. You've had a lot of fantasies, BUT THIS, is choice! I bet they publish it! Go on, do it. . .

TELL CATE!

Can we build one for you?
Now serving "quality" foot long subs.

If you believe that a sub should be more than just a lot of bread. It's time to visit THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Amherst Carriage Shops Open 'til 8 P.M. 549-6314

SHIMMYS
ICE CREAM
POPCORN

Do yourself a favor at Shimmy's - it's yummy!

- Make your choice of Shimmy corn from one of our 24 delicious flavors
- Blend fruits, nuts, candies or cookies with a giant portion of lucious ice cream to give you a taste like none other

Riverside Park Shopping Plaza
Rte. 63 North Amherst
(take right at traffic light past Pinochio's Pizza)

Rugby Shirts
Embroidered "UMass"
Assorted Colors S-M-L-XL
$29.95

John C Sharon S Photo by Dwayne Autery

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

FOURSEASONS

Location: On Route 9 in Front of Mountain Farms Mall
Just a quick jaunt from free bus stop at Hampshire Mall

BUD.....cans or bts.....$9.99
MICHELOB.....cans.....$10.99
ROLLING ROCK.....bts.....$8.99
GENESSEE BEER.....bts.....$6.95
RED, WHITE, BLUE.....cans.....$6.99
UTICA CLUB.....bts.....$5.99
RINGNESS..light or dark..$13.99/cs or $3.99/six

VODKA and GIN.....1.75 L.....$7.99
JACK DANIELS.....750 ml.....$8.99
KAHLUA.....750 ml.....$10.99
BLACK VELVET.....1.75 L
.....$12.99 less $3.00 rebate $9.99

RIUNITE WINES.....750 ml.....2/$5.00
SEBASTIANI TABLE WINES.....1.5 L.....$3.99
ALMADEN TABLE WINES.....3 L.....$6.99
FRANZIA WINES.....4 L.....$6.99

And don't forget - your empties are welcome here.
BEER BALLS
OTHER SPECIALS
KEGS
ICE
RT. 9 HADLEY

Black Affairs

Caucus elects coordinators

By YADIRA A. BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Increasing Caucus membership, solidifying the community, working together with Third World organizations and developing a network of communication between the Caucus and these organizations, are the top priorities of the new elected coordinators of the Third World Legislative Caucus of the Student Government Association (SGA) at the University of Massachusetts.

George Vazquez was elected as the internal coordinator of the Caucus, while Marylin G. Bou and John Ruddock were elected as external coordinators, for the 1984-85 school year.

Vazquez has been a member of the Caucus for over a year, he has co-chaired the SGA budgets committee and was also the campus leader of the new State Student Association of Massachusetts (SSAM).

Bou has been a member of the Caucus since she became a student last fall and is a correspondent for the Collegian. Ruddock is the president for the Students for Jesse Organization on campus and has been a member of the Caucus and the SGA for two and a half years. In addition, he is the political advocate for the Commuter Area Government and is founder and production coordinator of UHURU, the Third World performing ensemble of UMass.

"The three are soon to become premier decision makers of the Third World Caucus in the future and are also seen as the future leaders in the Third World community," said Robert Teixteira outgoing Caucus chair for a year.

"Students need to realize the interrelationship of Third World students affairs and the Third World Caucus," Ruddock said. He added their hope that "upon realizing the need for participation (students) will invest their energy in making this concept of uniting students groups and the Caucus a reality." The three agree there is a high caliber of apathy on the part of Third World students on campus, but Bou said, "We must deal with it in a constructive manner."

To solidify the community, she said she will "work with the Third World organization, get them to listen, respect and work constructively with one another and (get them to) work closely with the Office of Third World Affairs."

Vazquez, whose job will be to chair the Caucus in the SGA, said the Caucus must redefine its goals and objectives before it helps others. "The goals and objectives reflect the interest value of the membership," he said, adding that with set goals the Caucus will allure and maintain its members. The three said increasing the membership of the Caucus will be one of their top priorities. In doing so, Vazquez said he will be able to be more selective on who represents the Caucus on the SGA floor. When Third World organizations send members to the Caucus, it will accurately reflect the interest of the Third World community when expressing views and concerns."

Collegian Photo by Katie Watters

Passing on the power, to continue the struggle. Marilyn Bou (left), Robert Teixteira (center), and John Ruddock.

Leader runs as independent

DARLENE JACKSON
Collegian Staff

Due to the success of Reverend Jesse Jackson's campaign, Dennis Serrette, an Afro-American trade union and community leader for 20 years is running for the presidency of the United States on an independent ballot, said Mary Rivera, coordinator for the Massachusetts and New England Area Dennis Serrette campaign Tuesday at the University of Massachusetts.

Our question is what is going to happen after the Democratic Party Convention and when Jackson is no longer on the ballot in November, Rivera said.

"The Serrette campaign is an opportunity for the millions of people who are registered to vote for someone like Jesse, who aren't registered to vote for someone like Mondale, to have the opportunity to vote, to build an independent third party," she said. It is time for a third party in this country, she said. The reason why many people don't vote for either the Republican or Democratic party is because they are not represented by either party and the votes will go nowhere, Rivera said.

Jackson's campaign has opened up several issues, such as racism and poverty in this country from the point of view of the people, as well as registering blacks and Latinos to vote, she said.

Serrette's independent campaign stands for the right of people to decent jobs, decent health care, education and housing.

He stands against militarism, for a slashing of the military budget and a nuclear freeze, against U.S. intervention in Central America, the Middle East and Africa, and against racism, sexism and anti-gay bigotry, she said.

"The campaign is very successful," she said. He is on the ballot in ten states and has had the backing of a broad coalition of independent third parties around the country.

Africa discussed

By MARANN CASSELL
Collegian Correspondent

The current trends taking place in Southern Africa, South Africa specifically, and the role the United States plays in these trends were discussed in a panel discussion, as part of the African Liberation Day recently held at the University of Massachusetts.

Speaking on the panel were Abdulrah Man Mohammed Babu of Amherst College, Abraham Gora of the Azanian Pan African Confederation, Alfred Moleah of Tempa University, David G. DuBois of UMass, and Robert Moore of Amherst College.

Gora said that the important request for any liberation is "the oppression must first and foremost become unattainable to people mentally—it is only then that you can remove it physically." He added, "You cannot change a situation unless you are conscious of it. You must be clearly conscious of your situation, because a slave can only decide to free himself if he understands that he is a slave and has been exploited, and that his position is man-made and is not some divine ruling from somewhere."

Gora said colonialism has existed in South Africa for over 300 years, and it is time for change. "It has been said that in the Bible, Jesus said, if somebody smacks you on the right cheek, you must turn the other, but those people forget that the Bible tells you that you must also do that 70 times 7, because there is a limit to it."

Speaking on the concerns of Liberation in Naimbia, Moleah said that the Southwestern African People's Organization (SWAPO) arms struggle is the only answer to South Africa. He also said Reagan's foreign policy to Africa, especially to South Africa, has aided the oppression in Africa.

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening telephone sales for Fine Arts Center series subscription.
Approx. 20 hrs. per week from June 4 -July 13. Work study preferred.
UMass students only. Descriptions and applications available from Dave, 207 Hasbrouck thru Wed. May 16. call 545-0190.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13 (whitewall blem)
$32.00
includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobes Store
549-4704

安城中國飯店
Amherst Chinese Foods
Best Mandarin Food
62-64 Main St.
Amherst
Closed Wednesdays
WE DO NOT USE MSG OR ARTIFICIAL COLOR
We use FRESH Vegetables from Our Own Farm
BEER & WINE LICENSE
SUNDAY BRUNCH
ALL YOU CAN EAT
$5.95
253-7835

MIKE'S WESTVIEW CAFE
Friday Afternoon Readjustment Attitude Period
Chew and Screw
food served at 5:30 PM
all you can carry $1.00

DELANO'S

presents
May Special
STEINHAUSER
Proper ID a Must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

Fall Work Study Positions
available in Undergraduate Admissions Office.
Clerical, 10 hours per week, day and evening hours
If interested, call 545-0222

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Friday and Saturday
The Big Store 7:00
A Night at the Opera 8:30
A Day at the Races 10:00
Sunday - Tuesday
Terms of Endearment 7:00
Mommy Dearest 9:20
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

THE WOK
Rte. 9 Hadley, Ma.

Fri. May 11
& Sat. May 12
The Return of

A.T. DOE

Special Drink Prices-
Come early for best seats

Fri & Sat Open till 2 a.m. 586-1202 proper attire required
available for private parties

of mice and men
by john steinbeck
may 3-5, 9-12 · 8pm
rand theater, university of massachusetts
tickets: fac box office- 545-2511

RT. 47 SUNDERLAND
You must be 18 to enter
Open 'til 2
665-4937
24 Hour Taped Message

The rusty nail Inn PROUDLY PRESENTS

Tonight:
GIRLS NIGHT OUT
and THE RADIATORS
5¢ drafts 8-9 pm $3.00 cover

Saturday, May 12:
THE STOMPERS
$6.50 cover

All tickets available Wednesdays in the Campus Center

U.S. NAVY MEDICINE
MEDICAL SCHOOL SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

Are you currently in medical school and seeking an avenue to continue your education without financial burden, a Medical future that affords a practice without administrative and financial worries? If so, the Navy has an outstanding opportunity for you in the Medical School Scholarship Program.

BENEFITS
- Full tuition and educational fees
- $479.00 per month stipend
- Commission as a United States Naval Officer
- Internship and Residency training available upon graduation

OBLIGATION
- Three years active duty service as a Navy Medical Officer after graduation.
- 45 days of required annual active duty that can be spent in Navy clerkships (required, elective, clinical or research) or at Officer Indoctrination School.

BASIC QUALIFICATIONS
- U.S. Citizen • Excellent professional references
- Enrolled in AMA approved medical school

For further information, write or call:
LT. John Romac
Medical Officer Program
Leo W. O'Brien Federal Bldg
Albany, NY 12207
(518) 472-4424

BLUE WALL
18 + Welcome
A NEW SENSORY EXPERIENCE
Friday "1984"
DANCE!
SOUND!
LIGHTS!
NIGHTCLUBBING
Live D.J. from WMUA
MIX MASTER MIKE
Happy Hour Prices 91¢ Cover

EDITORIAL/OPINION

Those mystifying machines

I must confess that I have become somewhat of a pinball addict. Those intervals between classes and studying and Collegian work, coupled with the spare quarters from paying for a Globe or Times with a dollar bill almost every day, have gotten to me.

I am absorbed in the game to the point where I get carried away sometimes. I have been seen vigorously triggering the "tilt" light in disgust after watching the spinner hit "subtract a ball," meaning I have lost not quite twenty seconds after I first pulled the plunger. I curse on occasion - though not nearly loud enough for anyone to hear me over the outrageous cacophony of beeps, bings and whooshes in the Campus Center arcade.

Ian Polumbaum

But there are apparently folks quite a bit worse off than I am. From time to time a sharp noise can be heard over the electronic din. It is not the ball bouncing up and hitting the glass, nor the satisfying pop signifying a replay, but the unmistakable sound of someone's hand smashing down on the top of a machine.

What spurs these disconsolate souls to wreak such impassioned revenge on gleaming masses of circuitry? Perhaps it is the unsporting behavior of the machines themselves. Some of them even gloat when they win! "The battle is over...Mars is supreme," proclaims one. "Too much English," says Eight Ball Deluxe when a hapless opponent tilts.

One would expect the video game scene to be a bit mellower. It is here that one occasionally finds a player totally warped on LSD or psilocybin, enjoying the sounds and colors immensely and running the high score up to 32 million in the process.

But here, too, fists fly when people lose. What did I do to deserve this? Donkey Kong must wonder from time to time.

Whatever the cause(s). I fear that one of these days the consequences will be worse than a loud noise and a little embarassment.

I am waiting for shards to fly and everyone to turn and stare - just for a moment before going back to their consoles.

But I am hesitant to suggest to these guys (I have yet to see a woman slug an arcade machine) that they take it easy, to warn them that they might mutilate their hand or find themselves in large debt to the University. I've gotten one black eye this semester, from an unfriendly Frisbee, and the last thing I need is to incur the wrath of a flipper-head scorned.

So I just watch (and listen) in amazement as some people display their tendency to feed coins to basically inanimate objects and then assault them.

Of course, most arcade-goers don't react so strongly to the realization that they've just wasted another quarter. Some just walk away muttering. I do my best to shrug and smile.

After all, in the final analysis the machines always have the last laugh. They get our money.

Ian Polumbaum is a Collegian columist.

A new Olympic tradition

It has happened again. For the fifth time since the Mexico City Olympics began the trend, politics have invaded the supposedly sacred Olympic Games.

In 1968, Tommie Smith and John Carlos, of the United States track and field team, raised their black-gloved fists on the medal stand as a protest against the treatment of blacks in the U.S.A.

In 1972, Palestinian terrorists disrupted the Munich games, and shocked the world, when they murdered 11 members of the Israeli Olympic team.

Brian Frates

Four years later, the 1976 Montreal Olympic Games were boycotted by over twenty-four nations. The nations were protesting the South African tour of a rugby team from New Zealand.

At the 1980 Moscow games, the United States boycotted in protest over the Soviet union's military presence in Afghanistan. Over 60 nations joined the boycott.

We now find that the Soviet Union (and one can expect the Eastern Bloc nations to follow suit) will not send a delegation to the 1984 Olympic Games to be held in Los Angeles. They claim that the United States has "flaunted Olympic tradition."

The question Olympic officials must now ask themselves is whether or not there is any Olympic tradition left.

For far too long politicians, both Olympic and national, have held the fate of the Olympic Games in their hands. It is a shame that politicians make the decisions which so greatly affect the games. What of the athletes for whom Pierre de Coubertin revived the idea of the Olympic Games? Shouldn't they have some say as to what goes on at the Olympics? It is highly unlikely that either American or Soviet athletes wished to boycott the 1980 and 1984 games, respectively. Yet, the American delegation was notably absent in Moscow, and one can expect the same to hold true for the Soviets in Los Angeles. It would seem that the Olympic Games serve as little more than a soapbox from which the politicians of the world can make known their causes.

In order for the Olympics to uphold their true tradition, all of the nations of the world must be represented. If, as has been the case these last two years, nations from only one side of the "Iron Curtain" attend the games, then the games are not the event Baron de Coubertin planned them to be. They are not a coming together of the world's greatest amateur athletes (even this issue has been questioned). Rather, they are simply another tournament in one sport or another.

In order for the Olympic Games to return to their proper glory, the politicians who seek to control their destiny must be shut out of Olympic decision making. The Olympics are an athletic showcase, not a political arena, and should be treated as such.

Whatever is to be done must be done soon. The 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea are fast approaching. In this age of political maneuverings, the shooting down of a South Korean airliner last year is sure to have some effect on those Olympic games. One can only hope that the games will have returned to their former glory by then. If they have not, then a new Olympic "tradition" will have surely begun.

Brian Frates is a UMass student.

Letters

CATE is a needed voice

To the Editor,

The Course and Teacher Evaluation project (C.A.T.E) at UMass is a way to insure student input into teacher performance and course quality. It has run into two difficulties. The first one is from most of the faculty, whom, even though not directly opposed to C.A.T.E., are also not going to promote it. The students also have not taken much initiative as the 10 percent response to the evaluations sent out have shown. It is obvious that the best evaluators of a teacher and course are the students themselves. The evaluations administered through the faculty at the end of each semester is strictly for departmental use and even a court battle waged against them last year by the Academic Affairs Committee could not change that.

It then becomes interesting to ask why there is so much resistance to such a procedure when the purpose becomes to serve the students instead of the departments? The answer, I believe, is a hard one to swallow, for there is no one to blame and is also not in the self interest of any single group but is basic to why we are here. It then becomes evident that we are our own worst enemies when it comes to taking control of our education and especially our lives. Responsibility is the key to a working democracy and at the same time is a frightening burden as our experience with C.A.T.E. at UMass has shown us. One can then imagine how much harder it must be to live democratically outside the University.

Pedro D. Reissig
SGA Academic Affairs Committee

Picketing is only the first step

To the Editor:

For some time now I have wanted to write a letter about the pornography problem on campus. So I went to the campus store and looked at the magazines being sold. Then the seriousness of the problem hit me. I went to the library to look up the definition of pornography. It read, "1. description or portrayal of prostitutes or prostitution 2. obscene or licentious writing, painting, etc." Next I looked up prostitute: "1. A woman who offers her body for hire for purposes of sexual intercourse; a harlot; whore 2. One who offers his services solely for financial gain or for unworthy purposes." Not only are Penthouse and Playboy pornographic, but all forms of advertisement that attempt to exploit us or manipulate us.

The picketing of the campus store has inspired me to write this letter in support of the protesters. Don't stop with the obvious exploitation of the human body; go to the roots and stop commercialism. Let's end the lust for money, for it wreaks havoc and poverty upon the human soul, and only corrupts our civil liberties.

Libby Hubbard
Amherst

Can't hide from the truth

"You're going to miss me when you graduate," I brightly informed you and Markus, as we walked home from a meeting last week. You replied by each grabbing an arm and a leg, and tossing me into a nearby hedge. Minor cuts and scratches aside, let me admit that I got what I deserved, for "You'll miss me when you graduate" has become my solemn refrain, of late.

It's a refrain that came in handy recently, when we took one of our impromptu sojourns to Judie's, for popovers and wine.

Elizabeth Luciano

"Tell her we want a window seat," I demanded under my breath, as the hostess approached us.

"You tell her. You're the one who wants to sit there," you said.

"I can't. I'm shy."

The hostess began to lead us to a table towards the back of the restaurant. You cleared your throat loudly.

"Excuse me, I think we'd prefer a seat near the window," you said. After she left, you hissed across the table, accusing me of being a whimp.

"Don't call me names. You'll miss me when you graduate," I whined.

Then there was the time we had one of our Newman Center Sunday brunch bets. I claimed that Sarah Purcell was on "Falcon Crest." You correctly maintained that she wasn't, and won. As usual, damn it. So when we meandered down to the basement cafeteria, Boston Globe in hand, I doled out all of $3.00 for our breakfasts.

"Maybe I'll win next week," I sighed.

"No, you won't. You're a loser," you said, comfortingly.

"Just wait 'til June, when you have to buy your own brunches," I said. "You'll miss me, after you graduate."

Not all of our conversations took place over food. For instance, I knocked on your door at 2 a.m. one night, after being dropped on my head by a prince who turned out to be a toad. Usually asleep by midnight, you were still awake, reading a trashy, private-eye novel.

"I figured you might stop by," you grumbled.

"Thanks," I sniffled.

"You're not going to do anything stupid, like cry, are you?" you grumbled some more.

"Of course not," I said, and promptly did so at great length, in your arms. Fortunately, you're not the kind of insensitive lunk who says not to cry. What you did say, when I came up for air ten minutes later, was,

"You're acting like a jerk."

"I know," I admitted, wiping my nose on your shirt, "but you'll miss me when you graduate."

I've been bugging you, lately, to bequeath something to me, when you leave. You said that you needed all your tee shirts, and to just forget about the stereo. What I haven't told you is that I want a piece of you to keep for myself, when you're gone. So I'm buying your old refrigerator since I needed one, anyway. I grave you the check, yesterday, with "sexual favors" written on the "memo" line.

"Very funny, Elizabeth," you said. "How am I supposed to cash this?"

"That's your problem" I snickered unsympathetically.

"You're acting like a bitch," you said.

"Yes," I agreed, "but you'll miss me when you graduate."

Let me be honest. What I've really been meaning to say, through all the bitching and whining, is that I'm going to miss you. A lot.

But happy graduation anyway to everyone—you'll be missed.

Elizabeth Luciano is a Collegian columnist.

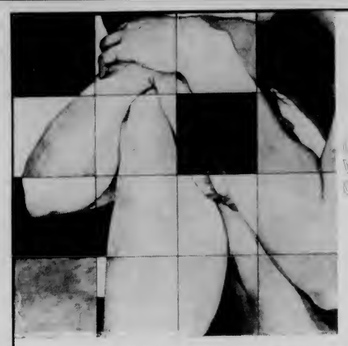
Inventors of the Smoosh-in

We mix by hand your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award winning homemade ice cream!

Herrell's Ice Cream

ATTENTION SUMMER SESSION STUDENTS
WRITING PROGRAM PLACEMENT TEST

For students planning to take



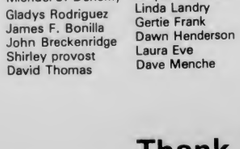
English 112

(formerly 190A), "B" Core, during Summer Session 1984

THURSDAY, MAY 17, 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (1st session)

MONDAY, JULY 2 7 PM, BARTLETT 61 (2nd session)

No one will be admitted into English 112 without this test. Bring ID and writing instrument.



B.F.A. Exhibition Show
David A. Schnair
Wheeler Gallery
Opening May 13
May 13-19
UMASS
3-5pm

sponsored by: East Side Arts Council and Residential Education East

amc THEATRES
$2.00 MATINEE & TWILITE SHOW
NT. TANNER X 584-7155
FOR THE BREAK OF YOUR LIFE!
Breakin'
ROBIN WILLIAMS
MOSCOW ON THE HUDSON
ROBERT REDFORD
THE NATURAL
Stephen King's FIRESTARTER
HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7256
From the first laugh, you'll be hooked!
Splash
For a fabulous treasure, they share an adventure no one could imagine.
Romancing The STONE
Sixteen Candles
THE BOUNTY
THE CITY LATE SHOWS
FRI & SAT at 12:15 SEATS $3.50
The Grateful Dead Movie
The Rocky Horror Picture Show
The Warriors
Pink Floyd The Wall

RENT ONE OF OURS
Car • Truck • Van
North Amherst Motors
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

LEARN TO FLY

inexpensively earn your pilots license
University Club open to five colleges. Cessna based in Northampton
546-4827 Introductory Rides 665-2577

Amherst Flics presents:
The Graduate
Shows at 7 and 9
$1.50
Fri. Sat. Sun. Amherst College, Merrill 1

GARDEN
ROTO TILLING
Prompt Reasonable Reliable
323-5120

Petition For Heterosexual Support of the Gay and Lesbian March

This is a petition for heterosexual support of the gay and lesbian march Saturday, May 12, 1984. It is very important for people of all kinds to fight oppression of all kinds. It is said that gays and lesbians make up 10% of a given population. Presently homosexuals do not have the same constitutional rights as so called "straight" people. For example homosexuals can be fired from their place of work if their boss finds them undesirable on the sole grounds of their sexual preference. Also a gay or lesbian can be evicted from their place of residence because of their sexual preference. Laws such as these must be changed. It is up to you to beat homophobia.

David C. Martin
Heidi Nordberg
J.K. Norcott
Lance Mann
Sheila P. Donohue
Thomas A. Raskin
Stephen Shuster
Grace Olshansky
Jeffery P. LaRoche
Jeffery L. Stoluff
John Laskevich
Andree Kehn
Laurie Mullen
Heidi Salz
Leslie Kim Loe
Elaine D. Mosgofian
Stephen Keye
Carolyn Krason
Laurel O'Hillet
Tracy A. McGarry
Mary Stack-Dunne
Linda L. Marston
Dorann Lomp
James M. Bock
Patricia Daley
M. Jane Pagen
John Bode
Jessie T. Prunier

Ellen Reynolds
David A. Rego
Lee C. Knowles
Lauren Powers
Ellyn Kestnbaum
Jorge Syiek
Mary C. Catanese
Linda Colby
Clare Bouzan
Frederica Kelly
Sara Joan Frankle
John Share
Larry Tafe
Tom A. Dworkin
Deborah Woncman
Samantha Garrett
Michael J. Denomy
Gladys Rodriguez
James F. Bonilla
John Breckenridge
Shirley provost
David Thomas

Danica Chipman-Carter
Beth Lait
Glenn Dodes
Anne L. Bidner
Francis E. Byrne
Richard K. McRae
Karen V. Murk
Mary Fulker
Carol Meya
Doug Medeiras
Geri Breg
Allison Campbell
Marybeth Hennessy
Faith Lally
Simon Barnes
Kathleen Reilly
Stephen A. Hilt
Linda Landry
Gertie Frank
Dawn Henderson
Laura Eve
Dave Menche

Francis Trainor
Marc Ponaszuck
Geoffrey Curran
Geoffrey A. Feller
Donna Motley
Jessica Heimer
Kathleen A. Ego
Jean Carroll
Deirdre Desmond
Christine M. O'Connor
Catherine M. Alman
Kate Griffin
Brian M. Delaney
Ann Conyngham
Heidi Snyder
Fern Spierer
David Smargon
Charmaine Wijeyesingae
Brian Stacy
Leslie Power
Michael Cerrato
Julia Maycock
Carolyn Frimpter

Heidi Holland
Margie Boone
Stacy A. Roach
Mary McGarry
Gregory Field
Priscilla Andrew
Natalie Krebs
Avery Schroeder
Tira Pandolf
Lisa Gannon
Michael Karpinski
Rachel Somers
Leslie Kincaid
Susan Goldman
Rosanne Beaurivage
Diana Tetens
Kara M. Lucciola
Frances Trainor
Janice Ribeiro
Sarah Phalon
Kim Rosa

Michael Jackman
Jeff King
Henry Rinehart
Joan Goldberg
Frances Hamilton
Daniel S. Oster
Craig Brown
Karl Meyer
James Leone
Susan J. Manning
Lisa F. Cohen
Kathleen A. Burke
Marica Balint
Eric C. Arnold
Nancy M. Deppert
Margaret Stanne
Nicholas Komar
Gerald Weinstein
Randy Sailer
Patricia Coleman
Maria Calcaterra

Robert M. Samuels
Margie Boone
Dan Avery
Ava Gips
Patricia Savas
Jeanne Antill
Aime DeGrenier
Melanie Brickell
Brian C. Miller
Paul Selkirk
Scott Moseley
Diane Schenk
Jeanie Gido
Debra L. Korzec
David J. Audenon
Ramin L. Zayas
Kaj Mulder
Jacqueline Perez
Leah Gordon,
Stephen Gielda
Trish Hickey
Maria R. Barros
Beth Tobin
Joy McCarty
Kate Neave
Elizabeth Krauss
Stacy Gardner
Dianne H. Haben
Julie Cirillo

Thank You For Your Support

Arts

Trailers by Andy Gordon

Not a regular TRAILERS this week. Next week or sometime I'll have the usual spew and a rag on Hardbodies (All right I admit it, I saw the thing—but didn't pay for it). This week though, for the benefit of film students or undergraduates interested in film, I'd like to briefly comment on the dozen or so film classes I've taken here and in the area that deals with production and theory.

RHETORIC OF FILM — Freshman year feels like a long time ago and I only vaguely remember taking this class, although my transcript confirms that I did indeed. In any case, I'm pretty sure it was a lot of fun and about the easiest way in the world to get rid of a B-core requirement.

INTRO TO MASS MEDIA — This and all those other stupid intro courses are virtually useless. If you come out learning anything you didn't already know then you started out pretty hurting. Mass media affects the way people think about things? Really? Wow! Except to fulfill Communications requirements, these courses are good for nothing but easy A's. Incidentally, ComStu majors have to be real wary about expecting to be taught the things they need. As a rule, majors will get an education through their own initiative alone. Which is not to totally rag on the department; it has some really sharp people in it, but most of them are students, not faculty.

UNDERSTANDING FILM/DOCUMENTARY FILM — These two classes in the school of education rotate and are often uncertain, but when they are taught, they're fairly easy to get into and very interesting. A filmmaker named Liane Brandon teaches them and is a good person for film students to know, as she has the real scoop on how movies are made; budgets, hassles, film stock. Unfortunately, the courses are real basic, but they're perfect for underclassmen just getting their feet wet.

POLITICS THROUGH FILM — Another good course. One of the few theory courses that really makes its points and deals with links between film and society accurately. They show great movies too, including Rollerball and Ordinary People.

HISTORY OF FILM — A ridiculously difficult class to get into, considering how lame it is. The films they show are about the worst, although spewhead film intellectuals enjoy talking them to death (let's face it, artist or not, Ingmar Bergman is a gloomy old fuck and I don't like watching his movies). The class should really be called HISTORY THROUGH FILM, as it deals more with film as a sociological document than as a technical medium. If you must take it, make sure your discussion leader is a grad student, not one of the bigwigs, who are just such authorities about how to make good films (so let's see them try themselves, the spewheads).

FILM AND LITERATURE — This English class is fantastic. Jack Shaddoian definitely knows more about movies than most ComSpew teachers. The pictures shown are often questionable but he seems to make even the lamest appearing film interesting for reasons you never would have picked up. Take it for fun if nothing else.

AVANT-GARDE FILM — In general the only thing I dislike more than avant-garde films are people who enjoy them. Blurry, random images spliced together in short pieces ranks just behind the sun as things I like to look at for a long time. But nevertheless the class was slightly more interesting than I had anticipated. One annoying thing—everything, everything, was related directly to sex; doors, fruit, shoes. Come on, give us a break.

FILM PRODUCTION (Hampshire College) — Hampshire has some dynamite equipment, which is the sole reason to take this or any other Hampshire film class. All the stereotypes are true—students there are pseudointellectual bonehead flaky puffs and don't know anything about anything. Sitting through film discussions there is tantamount to torture and most of the films they emulate so much are certain migraine inducers. Show them something with recognizable characters, continuity and, God forbid, good, focused exposures and they bum.

FILM PRODUCTION — Now we're talking. Nancy Florian is an excellent teacher and the students in the class are extremely sharp (I'd say all destined for some sort of success in the industry). Unfortunately, the course is just about impossible to get into and one semester is not nearly long enough to learn everything a burgeoning filmmaker must know. Another problem, and this is the case with all production courses, is that since so much of the work is stuff you have to do on your own (shooting, editing etc.), too often students are subjected to screenings of shit films about the dadaist film movement and African guys trying to cash money orders.

TELEVISION PRODUCTION — Another education class. The equipment isn't as modern as that in the ComSpew dept., but at least you don't have to auction off your first born for a place in the class. Not a hard class to get into, and a lot of fun for even those not interested in careers in the T.V. industry.

SCREENWRITING (Smith College) — A class that'll keep you on your toes. Usually an interesting blend of socialites and hardcore man-haters, there's always someone to attack anything you'll ever write for the class. Four credits and easy to get into, and a swell way to get invited to Smith parties.

FILM CRITICISM — When I was a freshman, Steve Murphy, then film editor of the Collegian, warned me to never, never take this course. I didn't, and from what I understand I'm psyched.

There are a slew of other related classes, which either voluntarily or not I did not take. If you're really interested in a career in the industry, probably the best thing you could do would be to create an independent study based on whatever concentration you're most likely to follow and take the "free time", so to speak, to develop your skills. If it's production, pick up a Hampshire course for four credits and use of their equipment. In any case, as I said, it's initiative alone that will get you through.

Local Best Bets: If you missed last week's Stephen King horror film, this week's starts today. Firestarter features Drew Barrymore as a little girl who can make things burst into flames just by picturing them in her mind (when she hits adolescence her boyfriends are gonna bum). Martin Sheen, George C. Scott and Heather Locklear also turn up to walk around and mumble. It's at the Mountain Farms tumbleweed factory. Also opening at the Mountian Farms today is Sean Penn in Racing with the Moon, which I hear is very good. Elizabeth McGovern and Nicholas Cage also star. The Amherst Cinema still has that dandy Marx Brothers triple feature, based on the Queen albums of the same names.

The East Side Arts Council and Residential Education East presents. . .

"The New Moments"

A Jazz Experience

Sunday May 13th 1:30 - 3:30

outside Brown House in Sylvan Area in coordination with Brown Brunch

FREE

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall

Judy Collins

SATURDAY, MAY 12, 8PM
TICKETS: $11, $9, $7

Sponsored in part by a grant from Kollmorgen Corporation Electro-Optical Division

Five-College Students Half-Price. Tickets Available at Fine Arts Center Box Office, DATATIX Outlets and Springfield Civic Center Call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-243-4842

THE•BEST•OF•EVERYTHING
The Eight

JAZZ Sarah Vaughan
BROADWAY Sophisticated Ladies
WINNERS CIRCLE Boston Chamber Music Society
CHAMBER MUSIC Juilliard String Quartet
ORCHESTRA Minnesota Orchestra
SAMPLER Ray Charles
THEATER Romeo and Juliet
DANCE Swan Lake
AND MANY OTHER FINE PERFORMANCES

1984-85 SEASON
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
MC/VISA FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS HALF-PRICE
For more information call (413)545-2511
Subscribe Now!

COMPUTERIZED BUY-BACK

CASH FOR BOOKS

ONLY AT

Half Price
Paid on Hundreds of Titles

Half Price
Paid on Hundreds of Titles

THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX

MAY 14 - 25
9:00 - 4:00

Monday - Friday

FAST • EFFICIENT • RELIABLE

Attention RSO Groups
be a part of the
Summer Orientation Issue
of the Collegian.
The deadline
for advertising
is May 16th

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed the day before they take place except Monday which will carry Monday's and Tuesday's events. Friday will carry Saturday and Sunday.

TRIBAL VOICE WITH JOHN TRUDELL — In concert: American Indian poetry and music with traditional songs by Quiltman, Madeline and Bark. A celebration of life and the sensitivity and strength of the Indian spirit. Free and open to the public. 7:00 p.m. tonite, SU Cape Cod Lounge.

CONCERT: UNIVERSITY CHORALE — Directed by Dick duBois, the Chorale will perform Spanish songs, American spirituals, and works by Haydn, Schutz, Brahms, and duBois in its last local concert before departing on a three-week concert tour of Spain and Portugal. Sunday, 3:00 p.m., Bowker Auditorium.

CONCERT: UMASS OPERA WORKSHOP — Miss Chicken Little by Alec Wilder and scenes from operas of Mozart will highlight the spring performance of Opera Workshop. Concert is free. Saturday, 2 and 4:30 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

CONCERT: UNIVERSITY YOUTH WIND ENSEMBLE — Malcolm W. Rowell, Jr. will conduct the University Youth Wind Ensemble in a free concert featuring works by Arnold, Tull, Nelhybel, Berlioz, and Fillmore. Free. Tonite, 7:30 p.m., Bowker Auditorium.

think spring!

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st. amherst
Open Sunday

Governor's Program Council

presents:
"Friedhoffer, the Mad Man of Magic"
in conjunction with the hilarious
"Slap Happy"
combo-together, FREE!
Fri. May 11
1st show 12:30 - 1:00 pm
Student Union
2nd show 1:30 - 2:00 pm
Flagstone Terrace

BODY SHOP

SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00

X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18

Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F
7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm

Summer workouts start June 4
LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL

Mother's Day Buffet
at the
Top of the Campus Restaurant

featuring
a festive buffet from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.
on May 13th
$8.95 for Adults
$4.50 for Children
Mom will receive
a free flower
Call now
for reservations
549-6000
ext 639

Spring Clothing
Skirts • Blouses • Shawls
India Print T-Shirts
&
Many styles of Chinese Shoes
EARRINGS · EARCUFFS

THE MERCANTILE
Open Daily 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Amherst Carriage Shops
18 Center St., Northampton

$15.95
Hooded
Sweatshirt
50/50

Red
Maroon
Grey
White
Navy

John C Sharon S Photo by Dwayne Autery
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Look what's new at
the Hungry U Restaurant

Every Sunday & Monday Night
99¢ pitchers with a large pizza
99¢ Bloody Mary's all day Sunday!

Every Tuesday & Thursday 3-6, 9 'til close
2 in 1 Jumbo Drinks and Drafts
2 for 1 Bottled Beer and Pitchers

Wednesdays
Spaghetti Night!
Spaghetti with broccoli, eggplant and mushrooms with soup or salad, and beverage (glass of beer or wine)
ONLY $4.25

Fridays
Happy Hour!! 2 - 6
75¢ 1 Liquor Bar Drinks
Kronenbourg $1.00

Saturdays HOT NEW ITEM!!
Beef Nuggets
1 order free
with every pitcher of beer
10 'til close

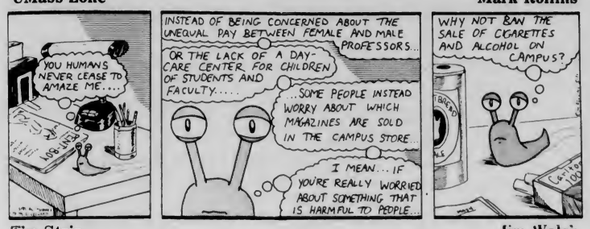
55 University Dr. Amherst
549-5713
clip and save

STADIUM

LIQUORS

Budweiser export bottles.... $9.95 + 1.50
Budweiser Light export bottles ..... $9.95 + 1.50
Busch 12 oz. cans..... $9.35 + 1.20
Michelob 12 oz. cans..... $10.95 + 1.20
Milwaukee Best 12 oz. cans ..... $7.00 + 1.20

Vodka 1.75 L..... $8.25
Gin 1.75 L..... $8.99
Almaden 4 L..... $6.99
Sebastiani 3 L..... $5.99
Gallo 3 L..... $5.90



not responsible for typographical errors

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

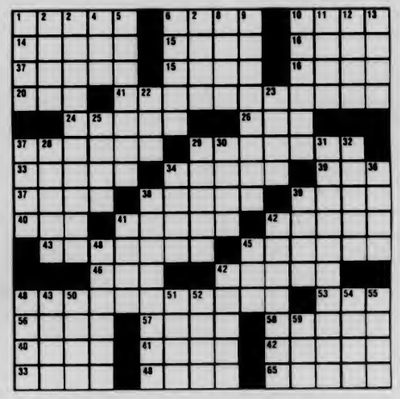
Bloom County by Berke Breathed

UMass Zone — Mark Rollins

The Strip — Jim Walsh

Shagnasty — O.T. Derringer

Off Campus — Sullivan & Gillbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Summarize in a way
6 WWII service woman
10 Hacks
14 Giraffe's relative
15 Ancient city, SE of Rome
16 To —— (exactly)
17 Davis of films
18 Sediment
19 Reddish-brown
20 Vane letters
21 Askew, in folk language
24 Loon's relative
26 Half of a half-and-half
27 Hair nets
29 Short drapery
33 Silver or Traveller
34 Party poppers
35 Land measure
37 Cow-headed goddess
38 Suffragette and family
39 Military insignia
40 Pince——
41 Soho chum
42 Linguine
43 Lawmaker
45 Snowbirds
46 Always, to a poet
47 Office worker
48 What it rains when it pours?
53 Beau, in France
56 Center of rotation
57 "Ridi Pagliaccio," e.g.
58 Did sums
60 Entreaty
61 Time period
62 Come from behind
63 Brazil's neighbor
64 Some merinos
65 Dude

DOWN
1 Court attire
2 Makes do (with "out")
3 Classify
4 To the point
5 —— resistance
6 Squander
7 Dismounted
8 In a skillful way
9 High, narrow passages
10 Bizet's gypsy
11 At the pinnacle
12 Swain
13 Wash. personages
22 Lib. arts degrees
23 Alack's partner
25 Sea of Antarctica
27 Part of a leg
28 Some things to count
29 Politician's target
30 Aesthetically pretentious
31 String game
32 One of the Muses
34 "The Censor"
36 Historian's topics
38 Link
39 Companion of safe
41 Yucatan Indian
42 Celestial phenomena
44 Bahamas' capital
45 Lively dance
47 Froths
48 "Dogpatch" creator
49 Car part
50 Stadium feature
51 Attracted
52 Dreadful
54 Peli's partner
55 Bucolic poem
59 Grackle

Weather

Partly sunny, windy and mild today with a chance of showers in the western hills, highs in the 70's. Fair tonight, lows 45 to 55. Saturday, partly sunny and warm, highs 70 to 80.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

DC MENU

LUNCH
TOP YOUR OWN PIZZA
Individual Cheese Pizza/
Sausage Topping,
Hamburg Topping
Pepperoni Topping

BASICS LUNCH
TOP YOUR OWN PIZZA
Individual Cheese Pizza/
Eggplant Topping
Tuna Topping
Chopped Chick Peas

DINNER
Meatloaf Vilardi
Seafood and Shell Casserole
Fruit Plate with Cranberry Bread

BASICS DINNER
Creamed Vegetable
Croquettes with Sauce
Seafood and Shell Casserole

LAST DAY
to place Collegian classifieds

is Monday May 14 by 3:45
DON'T MISS OUT

Audio
Auto For Sale
Calculators
Entertainment
For Rent
For Sale
Found
Help Wanted
Instruction
Lost
Motorcycles
Personals
Ride Wanted
Rider Wanted
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Wanted
Wanted to Rent

GATHERING for a CELEBRATION of LIFE
with AMERICAN INDIAN SONGS & POEMS

in person
TRIBAL VOICE
with
JOHN TRUDELL

Traditional Indian Songs
by Quiltman, Madeline & Bark

FRIDAY MAY 11th 7 PM

CAPE COD LOUNGE Student Union Building

University of Massachusetts

Amherst, MA

sponsored by: American Indian
Students' Association & the Arts Council

Sharon S. - John C. photo by Dwayne Autery

$3.00
T-Shirts

plain or printed assorted colors & logos quantities limited located on sale tables
in the front of the store

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

---

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

Presidential Apt 2 to 3 people closest apts to campus cheapest rate available all summer. Call Eric 546-6407 Andy 546-3279

3 bedroom townhouse apts rant cheap call 256-0707 or 256-0660 evenings

Two bedroom apt fully furnished rent negotiable 5 miles to campus call evenings 665-8114

1 bedrm in 2 bedrm furnished apt center of town. Prefer serious student. Avail. June $250/mo Jan/Barb after 4 pm 253-7818

Summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Southwood apt 253-7422

4 bedrooms available at Swiss Village summer sublet with fall option call 253-5274

Brandywine two bedrooms rent negotiable 546-5341, 546-7625

With fall option in Southwood townhouse call 256-0051 after 6:00 ask for Ed

Double Brittany bedroom in three bedroom apt with fall opt 256-7484 $160/per person

Two bedroom apt utilities included pool bus route fall option $370 Cliffside 665-8501

2 bedroom townhouse in Squire Village for June July and August, big rooms best offer Dave K 546-6461

Brandywine summer sublet furnished, best offer, call 546-5382

2 Brittany Manor apts available 1 bedroom each 1 with fall option, low price, newly rennovated 253-3389

Townhouse apt - furnished room (apt) available CHEAP June - Aug Mike 549-4861

Brandywine 2 bedroom June - August price negotiable call 546-6024 546-6019 546-6041

Possible fall great apartment 5 min from campus 549-1178 keep trying

Female for own room Puffton $150.00 + Trish or Terri eves 549-4621

Four bedroom house, furnished, large kitchen, living room. pantry. Washer and dryer. Near Look Park. $300 or best offer 586-9506

1 bdr apt near Puffers Pond $200/m fall option 549-7522 (day) 542-2363 (n)

Room in quiet house walking distance very negotiable 546-8912 keep trying

Summer sublet 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Brittany call 546-6560 after 6 PM

Brandywine 2 bdrm apt cheap $350/month or BO + utilities call 6-9643, 6235

Convanient Amherst Center 2 double rooms rent negotiable call 6-5651 eves

2 bedroom apt, Presidential, summer rent negotiable, Russell 253-9632 Bill 546-6270

Full townhouse for 1, 2, or 3 persons call Mike 546-7399

Townehouse summer sublet only. Subletor and/or roommates wanted. 2 bedroom, fully furnished Jim 546-6301 anytime

Specious 2 bedroom apt. Furnished private and quiet 467-9832

Brandywine 1½ bedrooms cheap call 549-4824

Puffton 3 bedroom apartment. Summer sublet, close to campus 549-1219

One bedroom - prime location! House by Puffton. Two people 100/month June 1st Mary or Melissa 549-0528

Amherst Center apt for 1 person furnished June 1 to Sept 1 call 256-6079

Summer sublet fall option 2 br townhouse in Southwood call 256-0630

With fall option 2 bedroom apt in Southwood call 253-3111 Dan

Puffton summer sublet w/possible fall option for more info 549-6971 253-5045

Southwood 2 bedroom apt available Jun 1 - Sept 1 inexpensive 546-3282

Rooms in large house for rent 1 poss fall option Main Street on bus route rent negotiable begin June 1 256-0967

Rolling Green 1 bdrm Sue 546-1223 or Jodi 256-0807 after 7 pm

5 bedroom house kitchen living room bath off 116 in Sunderland 5 min from campus $650 mo 665-3918 fall option

One bedroom Rolling Green close to cheap pool air conditioning call 256-6905

5 bedroom house in Amherst next to Swiss Village, on bus route partially furnished only $75 a month call Dan 256-6761

4 rooms in N Amherst house 100+ per room 549-6055

Brandywine 2 bedroom summer sublet rent negotiable call 546-5088 546-5186

2 rms in house with fall option 586-7037 call eves

3 bdrm Townehouse apt fully furnished one mile from campus. Call before 12 am or after 8 pm 549-0307

Furnished room in house next to Crestview, prefer nonsmoking male $130/mo incl util, call Vincent 549-1867

Beautiful, furnished room near Amherst Center, on bus route MUST SEE! $140.00 inclusive Mary 253-7317 evenings

Puffton single room - for female rent negotiable call 546-1146 or 546-1100

SUMMER SUBLET WITH FALL OPTION

Brendywine 2 bedrooms for summer and 1 for fall furnished call 549-2773 after 5 PM

TO SUBLET

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Sublet fall option 2 brm $330 per month Sunderland summer rent negotiable call between 9-11 am or other 665-4744

One bedroom apt in Puffton June - Sept rent negotiable 546-5082

Reedy now or June 1 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt on bus line, near Puffers Pond. Nothing down. Just $115 per month. Fall option 549-0437

Two bedroom apt summer w/fall option cheap, all utilities included 665-4953 evenings

One bedroom summer sublet with fall option Cliffside apt 665-7956

3 bdrm Townhouse apt avail for summer at a reas rate 546-5113

4 bedroom apartment on bus route summer sublet with fall option. 1½ baths, cable TV 174 per room includes all utilities call after 5:00 546-9322

4 bdrm 2 bath Amherst apt w/fall option negotiable summer rent 256-1014

from June 1 with fall option two bedroom apt on Sunderland bus routa 330/month 665-8314

Room evellable summer possible fall option. Rent negotiable. Call 256-0011 evenings

1 bdrm 280 month includes utilities pool tennis Cliffside apts bus route June 1 fall option 665-2156

Two bedroom apt available ona fall option near Puffton wood stove 549-0112

Two bedroom apartment in Colonial Village summer sublet fall option telephona 256-8597

2 bdrm Cliffside apt for June 1 w/fall option. Pool, tennis, bus rt. $340 neg inc utilities 665-4556

One bedroom super summar sublet in Brandywine pool, tennis courts, partially furnished, rent negotiable Valerie 549-6766

2 bedroom Southwood townhouse sumemr sublet fall option August - free 385/mo 256-6041

3 rooms in house - 2 with fall option close to town & campus $170 549-5519

House - available June 1st - fall option 5+ bedrooms on bus route, walking distance to town and campus, heat included call 256-0992

2 people needed for 1 bd in 2 bd Brandywine apt $70/prsn for summer sblt call 546-9406 or 546-9403 keep trying

Summer sublet with fall option $295, utilities included 256-1482 Kevin

TYPING

Professional Typing Service including: theses, manuscripts, medical raports, dictaphone. Emergency service. Call 536-2336, 6-10 PM

VERY CHEAP SUMMER SUBLET

This is a greet deal - 2 room Southwood apartment starting June 1st we will be very very neg. tennis courts and pool - call Mitch 256-0967

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Experienced Painter sash and trim skills prefered call after 5:00 665-2665

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted Puffton or Presidentiel apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

Need a place to live in Chathem from 6-15 to 9-15 please call Christina 549-1616

Responsible women needed summer housing great location cheap rent call 549-6823

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Triumph TR6 great condition, excellent body and engine, many extras $4000 or BO 546-5516 Dan

72 Chev Impala 200 or best 256-8809. It runs!

1973 VW Superbeetle looks great, runs great. Lt Blue $895.00 549-4816

1973 Ven rebuilt engine sunroof radial very dapendable 665-3855 after 5 BO Mike

1971 Volkswagen Superbeetle excellent condition sunroof light blue $800 call 546-5039

'69 Chevalle Malibu Classic $300 549-1178 keep trying

'76 Fiat 131S w/'78 engine runs great, good mpg, needs some work $650 253-3339

1972 Camero new tires and trans. must sell - $500 549-6934

1977 Toyota Corolla 4 speed great condition $1400 call 256-0311

BOARDERS FOR FALL '84 WANTED

For home like atmosphere call Sigma Kappa Sorority 256-6887 ask for Sylvia or Louise

 BOOZE & SEX ***

Roommate needed for fall 84 2 br Southwood apt 117 mo heat incl available summer also 256-0970

CHEAP, CHEAP, CHEAP

Two bedroom apt on bus route to sublet
Rate very cheap and negotiable
Please call 546-8861

CHEAP SUBLET

Summer $80 mo + nice house Amherst near bus dishwasher 2 singles 253-5237 keep trying

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

FALL HOUSING

Rooms now available for all university women in close to campus sorority house. Ask for Lisa B or Sue G at 545-0527

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Live across from Emily Dickenson House 2 bedroom apt, 1 room available summer/fall option 256-0681

Two rooms in house. Summer with fall option. Walk to campus & town. Furnished. 125-150/mo Dan Jackie 549-6041

$360 cash to the people who take over my lease - one bedroom Crestview 10 minute walk to campus 360/mo + util 549-5949

Southwood Apts 1 bedroom townhouse summer w/fall option very clean 256-8225

Beautiful Amherst Center apartment $400.00/month includes utilities 2 person 253-2157

2 roommates for house on Rt 9 Belchertown; on bus route; $140 plus utilities call Mark 546-8422/546-9200

Summer sublet fall option 2 bedroom Southwood Apt 256-0832

One bedroom apt Colonial Village available 6/1 w/fall option 256-0909 evenings

Specious 2 bdrm apt Squire Village June 1, fall option 665-7923

Furnished efficiency epartment, carpet, AC, summer, fall option, $205 (Belchertown). 323-6704

1 bedroom apt $250 available June 1 fall option 256-0868 PM

5-bed house Sept 1 $700 plus utilities, large lot, in Hadley on busline. Skibisk Realtors 584-3428

3 bedroom townhouse on bus route summer sublet fall option call 665-4896

Brittany Manor apartments - two bedroom - cheap summer sublet with fall option avoid waiting lists!! Call: 256-1351

2 bdrm N. Amherst bus route 375+ available June 1 549-6894

Swiss Village epartment, cheap!! Summer, fall option four bedrooms. We'll give you August free!! 256-0052

Fall option fall option fall option 3 bedroom apt., 10 min walk to campus summer sublet with fall option call 549-6993, keep trying

Britteny Manor two bedroom July August rent free fall option 256-1062

One bedroom in house near Amherst Center available June 1. 145+ call 256-0796

FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year. $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

Japanese Go Set. Almost new $40. Rich 549-4786, 665-7034

Two 10-spaed bicycles $65 each 253-2861

Apple II+, two drives, Micromodem, printer and accessories. $1695 or best offer. Call Keith 546-9349

Two twin beds great shape $100 or best offer Debbie 549-5998

Huge drafting table with parallel edge $40. 256-0550

Full bed $100 unfinished dresser $50 both six months old 549-6500

New double bed - great price call Jodi 549-2638

Electric Guitar Vantage black with case mint condition $175 Josh 546-6534

Almost new double bed, bureau, desk, bookcase and sofa. Best offers. 256-0883

Double bed like new and dresser best offe Sandy 256-0358

FOUND

Gold bracelet outside Student Union around May 1st call to identify 546-9756, Ellen

HELP WANTED

Men's Center now hiring fall student coordinator. Application, description available 130 Brett, 103 Johnson. Deadline May 11. AA/EOE

Housekeapers weekends & weekdays thri the summer. Positions available immediately for reliable persons. Past experience helpful. Apply Howard Johnsons Motor Lodge Rte 9 Hadley

International Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

Pert time sales. Audio background or sales exper. necc. Also, p. time car stereo installer. Apply at The Sound Co. 201 N Pleasant

UMess Sorority seeks housemothar for upcoming 2 years. Responsible female grad student preferred. Free room & board with salary 250$ per month. Call 545-2152 ask for Toni or Mary

Work this summer on energy policies, toxic waste & utility ripoffs, with Mass Fair Share's political outreach and fundraising staff. No experience necessary. Paid training. Hours 1:30 - 10:00 pm M-F $156-225/wk + benefits call 586-8713

COUNSELORS, Excellent Maine Camp, call Mrs. Fritts (201) 538-5409

Students! Summer jobs on campus! Apply to Telefund, Memorial Hall, 545-3509

Help wanted cook needed at local fraternity call anytime 253-9032 ask for Mark

Summar work out West 318/week call for info 549-7529

PARTTIME WEEKEND: Production workers needed to fill-in for employees on vacation/leave. Church Seat Company, Division of Bemis Mfg. Company, Palmer Road, Monson, MA 01057 (413) 267-5511

Boston Excursion Boat Company needs dependable summer help for snack bar and catering. Call A.C. Cruise Liners 617-426-8419

Summer Jobs - House Painting; Boston, Cape, Connecticut, NY, NJ; No experience necessary, we will train. $150 - $250 a week. Work with peers outdoors. 736-2193

FARM HAND call Scott's TRee Farm 665-4791

LOST

Lost blue jacket, Scituate High School Football embroidered on it. If found please please call 546-7744, great sentimental value. Reward no questions asked

Peorl necklace deep sentimental value help please! Reward Terry 549-4071

Lost: Key Ring with approximately six keys if found call 546-3290 reward!!

Bleck loose-leaf notebook with one notebook inside. Lost in either Whitmore Cafeteria or by the phone in Whitmore on May 7th. Reward. Call 549-1014 or 586-9576

White purse Saturday May 5th at JR's important set of keys, can't replace some. If found PLEASE call 546-7217 or 256-0027 keep trying

Collie-Retriever (Columbus) lost 5/1. Long hair, curled tail, smart. 256-0550

Somewhere in Southwest. About 30 slides. Please call 256-1472

Lost - Denim Jacket/pr glasses - reward call Peter 546-9075

Gold chain bracelet hopefully with small heart pendant lost Tu Ap 21 call Jenni at 546-4282 reward

LOWEST RENT AROUND

Summar sublet with fall option 3 bedroom apt. $360/month summer rent negotiable. Scenic view and pool 665-7914 keep trying!!!!

MOTORCYCLES

1981 Suzuki GS450 miles 7000 $750 or BO call Peter 549-7544

1980 Yamaha 400XS great condition 5000 miles many x-tras $1,000 or best call 549-7581

1980 Yamaha XS400 special, cafe bars, $850 Chris after 5 665-4148

'80 KZ-440 LTD 900$ 6 speed mag wheels in great condition, always kept under cover, approx 65 mpg 549-7719

1977 Suzuki 750 - new - tires brakes sprockets chain etc with helmet $1000 or BO 6-6128

1983 Yamaha spacial 50cc mint condition only 3000 miles $500 or BO call Alan at 546-5322

PERSONALS

Patricia M. Smith we have your ID. It's at the Collegian

Need a place to live next fall? Female boarders wanted. Good food home-like atmosphere. For info call 545-0162/2092. Keep trying!

WE HAVE BALLS - basketballs, baseballs softballs, footballs, tennis balls racquetballs, squashballs golfballs & frisbees

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

WHATS YOUR RACQUET?

We have Tennis Racquets, Racqetball Racquets, Squash Racquets & Batsl

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

Roommate: Cuando un amigo se va queda un espacio vacio. Gracias por todo. Te voy a extranar mucho TQM Ana

Heppy Birthday Martha Love a nonteenager

Steve, Are you "smitten?" I am. Happy first anniversary. Liz

I love you bug! Lets never fight again you mean the world to me love Sue

Jen Davushka Happy Belated Birthday next year I'll be on time looking forward to a geat summer love Bob

Mark - You're my favorite Ryan and I love you so. Lin (6/1 & 5/18!)

Dave Stamer Jow Welsh you're both terrific Thanks for the fun in Florida Jrs never made Brittany Congrats on graduating good luck love Kathy

Heppy Mother's Dey, Lisa B. You'ra the best! Luv, Karen

Ilene G - Happy 20th! You can buy. Mr Greenjeans misses you!! We'll go drinking for sure. Love ya TGL

Problems with your landlord? Call LSO 545-1995

Heppy Birthdey Wavey!! Hope you have a wonderful day!! Wove and best wishes, The Amazon Women

Anne Happy B-dayl It's been a great year and we're looking forward to another. It only gets better. Love ya, the fellow BBOC and Freckles

Christina DZ, Get psyched for initiation! Love your Big Sister

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RANDEE LOPATE

Here is your personal: Good luck on finals. Love ya --- Schnecky

$300.00 REWARD

For recovery of Hifly 300 Sailboard taken from concert at Sowest on Apr 29 call Cathy Yates at 256-6761

RIDE WANTED

To Calif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

To Arizona end of semester share everything John 549-1358

Ride needed to central NJ May 18 or 19. Will share expenses. Call Lisa 6-5965

Chicago - I need a ride to Chicago after May 25 at 6 p.m. I'll share driving and expenses. I travel light. Please call Cris at 545-3500 during the day and 546-6672 at night Keep trying

ROOM WANTED

Room wantad - looking for room in Hyannis/Yarmouth area please call Patty 546-5275

Room wanted in Harwichport for summar near Lincoln Lodge call Lori 545-0527

Room needed for two in West Yarmouth/Hyannis area. Call Tom or Mike 253-9868

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wantad to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amharst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-6089 Kris 256-0556

Female nonsmoker wanted in Brittany for fall 84 call 546-8343 546-8275

For rant 1 bedroom in two bedroom apt downtown Noho call Jennifer 584-5972

Presidentiel apt two people needed share one room 10 min walk, 111/mth/per + 20 utilities call Tom 549-6726

Summar sublet and fall one female roommate wanted to share large room in Rolling Green $114.50 month everything included fully furnished on bus route call 253-3422

Cool female roommate wanted to share summer sublet/fall option Puffton call 549-2633

Roommate wanted for Southwood apt rate negotiable information call Margarat 546-1411

Summer sublet/fall option North Amherst 150+ 5 min to bus close to campus 549-0146

Brandywine summer sublet 1 room open for fall 549-7697

Brandywine female to share room possible fall option call 549-1405/546-4791

2 men and 1 woman have a 5 bdrm house for fall. We are looking for 2 or 3 roommates. Preferably easy going people who seek a healthy mix of studying and partying call Mat 546-7087

1 or 2 roommates wanted for fall in Britany Manor call 546-8111

1 female to shere 3 bedroom in Puffton 549-7845 for fall

We have a nice 3 bedroom house in a pleasant neighborhood, 1 mile from campus. We need roommates for this summer and fall 549-6621

Roommate wanted for 1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt for summer and fall only reasonable Amherst 256-1205

Central Northampton on bus room in apartment starting June 1 584-1381

SERVICES

Free coffee and donuts, Monday and Wednesday mornings. During finals period after 6 pm, Commuter Lounge, 216 SUB. A service of the Commuter Area Government.

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite. 253-5111

Fast accurate typing on IBM Selectric $1.25/page 584-3865 Leslea

SKIS FOR SALE

Must sell Rossignol 190 cm $70 or best offer Mike 256-1201

SUBLET ON BEACON HILL

One bedroom in 3 bedroom apt. female only. Avail 5-15 to 8-31. Great location 237/per mo inc. utilities 546-5124 or evenings after 8 pm 617-720-4427

SUMMER SUBLET

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

Sports

Post looks to end Lax playoff hunt

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

A victory on Saturday and a little bit of help from the lacrosse pollsters would certainly make University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse coach Dick Garber and his Gorillas very happy come Sunday.

It has come down to the final game of the season for the 10th ranked Gorillas as they play host to C.W. Post on Boyden Hill at 2:00 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

UMass with a 7-4 season record will do some scoreboard watching as they vie for the coveted number eight ranking that means a berth in the NCAA lacrosse playoffs, currently owned by Delaware. They are also competing with Maryland, which holds the number nine spot, and Navy, which is just one point back at number 11. Massachusetts has the advantage of a tougher schedule over Delaware, something the pollsters should take into account.

But, first things first. C.W. Post is no pushover, as evidenced by their 13-10 victory over Division III champion Hobart, and one and two goal losses respectively to Harvard and Army, which have put them at an even 6-6.

"Post is like Hofstra and Adelphi. They come from the hotbed of lacrosse on Long Island. That's the reason we play them. They are a significant Division I team who is committed to a major schedule. We played them last year and I know they're rough. I don't consider them a weaker team," said Garber.

C.W. Post is led by attackman Sal Maltese, a speedy rider who scored six times against Hobart. Jim Povich is a good midfielder and Pete Sanders is an accomplished stickhandler.

Massachusetts is still number one in New England, two points ahead of Brown, who defeated UMass earlier in the season. Take Monday's victory over UNH and a Saturday win, and the New England Championship should be theirs.

"As it boils down, because of other things, we have to win this game for the N.E. Championship and to be compared with Delaware, Maryland and Navy. Also, 8-4 is a nice reversal from last season (5-10)," added Garber.

"We have to start gearing up for them. We've got a couple of our middies back (Co-Captain Stuart Orns and Neal Cunningham), and we ran three lines against UNH instead of two. In our style of play, when we get the ball we like to control it," Garber said.

Collegian Photo by David P. Deuber

UMass Lacrosse coach Dick Garber gives instructions to his team. The 10th ranked Gorillas face C.W. Post Saturday.

Final Four looms...

Gazelles going for it all

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

They will be meeting for the second time this season. But there will be more at stake this time around when the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team meets Harvard Saturday at 1 p.m. in Cambridge in the NCAA quarter-finals.

The winner of tomorrow's match-up earns a berth in the Final Four to be held next weekend at Boston University.

The fourth ranked Crimson defeated UMass 7-4 in the Gazelles' second game of the year after UMass blew a 4-1 halftime lead.

"We want revenge," UMass co-captain Carol Progulske said. "We were inexperienced. We didn't have the killer instinct."

"In the first half, we played our game," attackman Mary Scott said, but in the second half they took us out of our game."

But that was in April and even though Harvard sports a 12-1 record, the Gazelles are confident that they can take the Crimson.

"People have gotten more confidence with each game. They have grown and have more experience," Pam Moyrl, the team's leading scorer said. Moyrl leads the Gazelles with 43 goals and 15 assists for 58 points.

"The team has jelled together now," Progulske said. "We know what to expect from each other. Pressure situations have helped us."

Indeed, this is a different team than the one that collapsed in the second half against Harvard in April.

"Early in the season, everyone said UMass would be poor and we kind of talked ourselves into mediocrity," Progulske said. "Now we know we can do the job."

UMass, now 8-5, got the job done against Yale Wednesday taking the contest in overtime.

"They were tough," interim coach Polly Keener said of Yale. "They played right into our hands."

Against Harvard, Keener said the Gazelles "Have to be strong throughout the game. I want them to play the kind of game that they can feel good about in the end."

Tomorrow's game is also a rematch of last year's quarterfinal match in Amherst which UMass won 7-6. Last year, UMass went onto the Final Four and finished fourth. The Gazelles ended with a 12-5-1 record. The year before UMass went 10-0 and won the national title.

Stat watch — Moyrl leads the team with 58 points while co-captain Linad Haytayan is second with 28 goals and 14 assists for 42 points. Sue Kosloski has 10 goals while Mary Scott and Bunny Forbes have 8.

UMass outslugged, 8-7

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

There are those who claim the game of baseball is boring, and there are those who saw the University of Massachusetts play Amherst College yesterday.

The Lord Jeffs, on the power of three home runs, took a tight 8-7 victory over UMass at Lorden Field before a good crowd, but it wasn't easy.

The Minutemen, after battling back from being down 5-0, came to within a run of the Jeffs as sophomore outfielder Mike Tomasello made his varsity debut a successful one with a two run homer in the eighth that DH Tony Szklany followed up a batter later with a vicious shot to right that cleared everything to make it 8-7.

The Minutemen, who fall to 15-24, started the ninth with their version of Goose Gossage on the mound, 6-3, 205 pound Jeff Jensen.

Jensen got into a minor jam walking a batter and (ouch) hitting another as he couldn't control a blazing fastball, but he settled down getting hot-hitting (4 for 5) Jeff Templeton to strike out, throwing a ground ball that shortstop Angie Salustri turned into an out at the plate, and then sitting down catcher Bob Foote with another strike out.

The Minutemen managed but three ground outs in the ninth but Jeff coach Bill Thurston knew he was in a game.

"In this place you never know what'll happen," said the excitable Amherst mentor. "They hit us hard, and we hit them hard."

Amherst started strong off of loser Tony Presnal (3-7) as Templeton followed a two run homer to right by Kyle O'Brien with a blast to right center to make it 3-0. The 20-3-1 (and first ranked in Division 3 in New England) Jeffs then made it 5-0 in the fourth.

In a little-league like bottom of the fourth Massachusetts started by getting Dan Clifford to first on a single, and then to third on a passed ball. Szklany dribbed a grounder to first that scored a run before starter Carmen Monks allowed two walks and a wild pitch that scored Jack Bloise prior to giving way to Steve Harris.

Harris walked a pair before Steve Messina doubled in Andy Connors and Salustri to make it 5-4.

Amherst scored two in the seventh before Tomasello and Szklany made it close in the eighth.

"I'm proud of the way the guys came back today," said UMass coach Dick Berquist. "Jensen has a hell of an arm and the underclassmen showed me a lot."

Messina, who now needs one RBI for the UMass record, was 3 for 5 and Clifford was 4 for 4. The Minutemen play two at Northeastern today, a pair at home against Providence Sunday, and two more at home Tuesday against Dartmouth.

Seniors hope to give softball two more victories at Adelphi

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

For four seasons, these two women have been starters and fixtures at their positions. Both have gathered All-American honors at one time or another. And both will play in their last game for the yellow, maroon and white of the University of Massachusetts softball team tomorrow.

Centerfielder Tina Coffin and shortstop Allyson Rioux, the only seniors on Elaine Sortino's 17 member Minutewoman squad, will be making their final appearances in UMass uniforms as Massachusetts takes on Adelphi University in a season-ending doubleheader Saturday at 1 p.m. in Garden City, Long Island.

"This is something that I never thought I would experience," Coffin said of her final game. "I just never thought about it."

"I just hope we can win and we can finish the season and my career on a high note." Coffin, a second team All-American outfielder in her sophomore year, leads the team in stolen bases with 11. She is batting .290 with 12 RBIs, 38 hits and four doubles.

Rioux, an All-American at shortstop, leads the team in batting with a .372 average. She also leads the team in RBIs (30), hits (45), homers (3) and doubles (6). But more than individual honors, these two seniors want to finish up with a win. And a win would never be sweeter than one over Adelphi. Coming off a disappointing performance at the Atlantic 10 championships, where UMass took third, the Minutewomen feel that they have something to prove.

"This game means a lot to the team," Coffin said. "We have a chance to prove something to ourselves and the people in the region and across the country. If we beat this team, it will prove a lot.

"It will say we can beat the better teams. As good as we have been, we haven't proved it like we have wanted to."

Massachusetts comes into the game with a 29-12 record and has a shot for a 30 win season for the second straight year. Adelphi, still in the running for a NCAA at-large playoff berth, is ranked first in the Northeast region with a 37-5 record.

"We want to go out and play as well as we can possibly play and end the season on a positive note," head coach Elaine Sortino said.

Adelphi nipped UMass 1-0 in March down in South Carolina and Sortino said that game could have gone either way.

"This game is important to us," Coffin said.

For Coffin and Rioux, it's more than important. It's their last UMass game. That says it all.

The Massachusetts Daily

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 72 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) Monday, May 14, 1984

Collegian photo by Katie Watters

These marchers led the Gay and Lesbian Activists (GALA) parade in Northampton Saturday.

Gays demonstrate in Northampton

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Despite periods of intermittent rain, at least 1500 people marched Saturday in Northampton to rally for Gay and Lesbian rights.

Although the official crowd estimate was 1500, organizers of the march estimated 2400, almost double last year's turnout.

The march began at Bridge Street School and ended as a rally in Polaski Park. In spite of the presence of counter-demonstrators, there were no arrests or violent incidents of any kind.

Most bystanders expressed neutrality or approval: "This is very thrilling. It's a historic thing," said one bystander. A University of Masschusetts employee said "Gays have been persecuted throughout the ages. They should never be persecuted again."

However, one Northampton resident called the march "a disgrace. It's unnatural and degenerate. Everyone has the right to be what they are, but they don't have to flaunt it."

An employee of Florsheim shoes said it would have been better to hold the march on Sunday because "The day before Mother's Day is usually very busy."

Employees of Sze's looked on and clapped as marchers went by. "If I weren't working, I'd be marching," one worker said.

According to Gay and Lesbian Activists (GALA) organizers, the march was held to "throw off the cloak of invisibility which characterizes our lives as gay people. We have to assert ourselves in a dramatic way to make up for all the times we're avoided, ignored and put down."

Another purpose was to draw connections between the oppression of gays and lesbians and racism, sexism, imperialism, anti-semitism, and economic discrimination. The march was endorsed by nearly 60 groups, including the Northampton Committee on Central America and the New Jewish Agenda.

The rally included taped and live music, dancing, speakers, and an alternately festive and serious atmosphere. GALA member Kim Christiansen asserted "We cannot maintain our rights unless we organize and fight. We are tired of being tolerated or not tolerated in this town. We are an important part of the community."

Originally, Northampton town officials denied GALA a march permit for Saturday because they could not guarantee public safety and they anticipated traffic and congestion problems.

"Anytime establishing a good business climate becomes more important than insuring people's right to freedom of assembly, freedom of speech, right to unionize, right to a humane environment - we all lose," Christiansen said.

Ben Schatz of the Massachusetts Gay Political Caucus said, "We are very close to getting a Civil Rights bill to prohibit discrimination against gays. People should write letters to their legislators in support of the bill."

Armando Gaitar of "El Comite" in Boston said gays are oppressed in housing, work, and in social situations. "We have lost many people through suicide, alcoholism, and mental illness." He spoke of the "internalized shame, fear and oppression which tears our psyches and souls apart."

TA's low pay affects quality of teaching

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

A decline in the numbers and quality of teaching assistants (TAs) and teaching associates could lower the quality of education at the University, according to some faculty, administration and Graduate Student Senate members.

Low pay offered to the graduate student TAs at the University of Massachusetts can drive some of the most-qualified students to other universities that will pay them more, said one UMass professor.

"Stipends for grad students (TAs) haven't been raised since 1979, when it was raised from $3,400 to $4,400, where it has remained," said psychology prof. Harry Schumer.

"Other state universities nationwide raise their stipends while we remain the same," Schumer said. "We're no longer competition."

Schumer added that increasing student enrollment, coupled with a steady number of TAs, will make it harder for professors to give individual attention to students, and "there will be more and more use of multiple-choice tests and larger class sizes."

"Students will become just another number," he said.

Gregory Graham, executive officer of the Graduate Student Senate, said that with inflation rates of the past ten years, "real wages (for TAs) have declined 40 percent."

The numbers of TAs, especially in some departments, are declining also, Graham said.

"There are variations across campus but generally, the number of TAs has not really increased and enrollment has gone up," Graham said. "It's especially a critical problem in the social sciences. What I hear from deans in the social sciences is that it is extremely difficult to recruit the best students because of funding."

Schumer added that while TAs are becoming a scarce commodity in the social sciences, TA allocations are increasing in the School of Management and the School of Engineering.

Schumer said that when he raised the issue at a Faculty Senate meeting, Acting Provost Samuel Conti "only told us 'yes, it's an issue and we should form a task force,' and nothing else."

But Fern L. Johnson, acting associate provost for undergraduate education said, "We're working on increasing TA stipends for fiscal year '86."

Students may pay monthly school bill

By GREG BROWN
Collegian Staff

Beginning next semester, students at the University of Massachusetts will have an alternative to paying their semesterly tuition and fees bills in one lump sum before the beginning of the term.

The University is offering a payment plan that will divide annual charges into tenths and will allow students to budget their payments over a ten-month period.

Under the payment plan, students will receive a monthly bill from a Rhode Island management firm, instead of one complete bill from the University.

The new program, to be implemented by the Bursar's Office, will be "effective immediately," according to Vice-Chancellor of Administration and Finance John L. DeNyse, beginning with the 1984-85 school year.

DeNyse said the program was conceived "at the request of an awful lot of students and parents to find every way possible to pay their bills."

The program, to be sponsored by Academic Management Services, Inc. of Pawtucket, Rhode Island, has no interest charges and will cost students $40.00.

The plan includes life benefit coverage, "which guarantees payment of the unpaid balance of the budgeted amount in the event of the death of the enrolled parent," according to a letter sent to students by the Bursar's Office.

That letter estimated next year's tuition and fees for Massachusetts residents as $1980 and non-residents as $4710.

"It is intended to be a positive thing," Bursar Robert R. Mishol said Friday. "It isn't permanent, but we expect it to work out."

Although the initial consideration was student needs, the University's cash flow was also a deciding factor, Mishol said. "The committee, which was formed last semester, felt this was "the fairest, most equitable plan," he said.

"I'm very much in favor of it," said DeNyse. "I hope it will help a lot of people."

Amherst appoints Dean of Faculty

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

An Amherst College chemistry professor was appointed Dean of Faculty at that school last week, according to an Amherst College spokesperson.

Richard D. Fink was appointed to the post by Acting President G. Armour Craig, according to Terry Allen, associate secretary for public affairs at Amherst.

Fink will take office July 1. He has served as Acting Dean of Faculty for the past year while Dean Mary Catherine Bateson was on leave. Bateson has resigned the post, effective June 30, and will resume her position as professor of anthropology at Amherst.

"Obviously he has the confidence of his colleagues and the confidence of the administration. Professor Fink is well known and does good work. Everyone is very pleased he has been made permanent dean," Allen said.

The new dean has been on the faculty of the chemistry department since 1964. He has served as chairman of the department for three years.

Fink has a B.A. degree from Harvard College, a Ph.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and an honorary master's degree from Amherst College. He is a member of the American Physical Society, the American Chemical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and Sigma Chi.

Fink, a specialist in chemical physics, has been published extensively in professional journals and has been the principal investigator for research projects funded by the Petroleum Research Fund of the American Chemical Society, the National Institute of Health and the National Science Foundation.

Inside:

Stockbridge student returns to earth . . p.3

SGA faulted for infantile image p.7

Gazelles bound for NCAA quarterfinals p.16

"To limit the press is to insult a nation; to prohibit reading of certain books is to declare the inhabitants to be either fools or slaves."
— Claude Helvetius

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

MOTHER'S DAY VISITOR — President Reagan has lunch with some of Washington's other elderly Sunday, at the Jeanne Jugan Home for the aged. Reagan can be seen on right side of table.

Future lack of garbage dumps may threaten environment

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts communities face a trash-filled future with broadening water and other environmental pollution because the state is running out of space for garbage dumps, say waste collection industry and state officials.

In addition, of the state's 203 private and public dumps and landfills, an estimatd 70 percent violate some environmental regulations, at least 30 are considered illegal because they haven't been inspected by state authorities, and landfill seepage has contaminated water in 11 communities, according to state officials.

"We are in a bind," Beatrice Nessen of the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering said in an interview published Sunday.

"We don't have an adequate staff. Our record is that we don't shut down a landfill unless we have to. Our action is of last resort. Our record is one of delay, delay, delay..."

"For the short term, we have some very serious problems in the northeast part of the state, which are symptomatic of the larger problem, state Environmental Affairs Secretary James Hoyte said in another interview.

Eastern Massachusetts alone daily produces 10,000 tons of garbage, enough, say authorities, to fill the 60-story Hancock Tower, the tallest in New England, in three weeks.

"It will end up on the roads and streets," said hauler Frank Sarno of Sarno Disposal of Burlington about the prospect of halting collection because of no place to dump garbage. "It won't be a pretty sight."

Private haulers want the state to use eminent domain to seize land for new dumps, a step officials are hesitant to do. Communities without landfills have resisted establishing new dumps.

Correction

The funds for senior day are drawn from the budgets of the chancellor, vice-chancellor for student affairs, the vice-chancellor for university relations and development and commencement fees, not from the Student Activities Office as reported in Friday's Collegian.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — John O'Connell
Copy Editor — Mary-Sheila Loughlin
Layout Technician — Ellen Waxman
Photo Technician — Mitch Drantch
Production Supervisor — Ed Tausky
Production — Laura Zigman, John Wielgus, Leslie King, Judy Hayden, Mat Atkins, Pete Soderburg

Subscription Rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding vacations, exam periods, or holidays. Subscriptions are available for $18 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts. Postmaster: Send address changes to the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Town citizens ban nuclear weapons

BOSTON (AP) — Citizens in small towns across Massachusetts are waging a quiet campaign to slow the global arms race by declaring their communities off-limits to nuclear weapons.

Activists like Dean Airs, a Falmouth carpenter, are in the forefront of a worldwide movement to create "nuclear-free zones" — town by town and village by village. In the end, they hope to leave no room on the planet for weapons-making.

"Our eventual goal is to declare the entire Cape a nuclear-free zone," Airs said in a telephone interview last week. And at the opposite end of the state, clustered around the university towns of Amherst and Northampton, allies are trying to keep weapons out of the Connecticut Valley.

As far as can be determined, nuclear activity already exists in none of these neighborhoods.

"The movement is certainly coalescing," said Rich Schreuer, a Northeastern University graduate student who helped last year to lead a losing battle to declare a nuclear-free zone in Cambridge, one of the few communities in the state where work on weapons research is carried out.

By the reckoning of the Cambridge-based Mobilization for Survival, there are now 14 nuclear-free zones in Massachusetts and campaigns are underway in 19 other communities.

Last year, Leverett, New Salem, Heath and the Martha's Vineyard towns of Tisbury, West Tisbury and Gay Head took the step, banning the manufacture or transport of nuclear weapons within their limits.

Earlier this year, they were joined by Shutesbury, Ashfield, Williamsburg, Nantucket, Provincetown, Somerville, Newton and Brookline.

The details vary from town to town. Some have passed binding local laws; others have merely certified public opinion through referendums. Similarly, the language of each policy differs, but many follow the suggestions of a national clearinghouse, Nuclear-Free America, based in Baltimore.

At town meetings and elections in coming months, the issue will be posed in the Connecticut Valley communities of Amherst, Belchertown, Hadley, Longmeadow and Northampton.

It is also coming up in Wendall, Worthington, Greenfield, Scituate and in the Cape Cod towns of Barnstable, Bourne, Chatham, Dennis, Falmouth, Mashpee, Orleans, Sandwich and Yarmouth.

Toilet malfunction annoys astronauts

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The astronauts are annoyed and NASA is embarrassed. After five years of research and $12 million worth of engineering, the space shuttle's toilet still doesn't work.

The billion-dollar shuttle has made 11 trips into space so far. The sophisticated toilet has malfunctioned on 10 of the voyages.

Breakdowns are so consistent that some astronaut crews have renamed some of the settings on its control panel "outhouse mode" and "flying debris mode."

"It has been very disappointing," Dan Germany, crew systems manageer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Johnson Space Center, said last week.

"Nobody likes to think that the world's greatest right-stuff guys can't go up there and go to the bathroom."

On one mission earlier this year, Robert "Hoot" Gibson had to use a crowbar to unjam the toilet. Last year, astronauts Sally Ride and Fred Hauck had to fix it with a camera bracket.

Officials at General Electric, which designed and built the toilet, are reluctant to talk about it. They referred all questions to the shuttle's chief contractor, Rockwell International.

MASS. APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13 (whitewall blem)
$32.00 includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No Amherst, MA
Across from Wattobee Store
549-4704

OOPS!
Now's the time to call
North Amherst Motors
Expert repairs & reconditioning
Rt. 63, No Amherst
549-2880

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's Ice Cream

GET OFF YOUR BUTT. . .
and make this summer pay off for many summers to come. Start your own sporting goods distribution business and earn generous multi-level commissions by sharing this opportunity with others. Call 256-8664 for an appointment to learn more about this rapidly expanding operation. A $20. investment will get you off and running!

Attention RSO Groups
be a part of the
Summer Orientation Issue
of the Collegian.
The deadline
for advertising
is May 16th

Greeks see 'conflict' on new rules

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

Residents of the Greek Area at the University of Massachusetts support new rules implemented by the administration, but many feel a compromise should be worked out regarding their implementation, said the recently-resigned president of the Interfraternity Council.

Gregg Andonian said in an interview a week after his resignation that the new rules "came fast and furious" at the Greeks, but fraternity and sorority members "realize they are needed to make our community a better one."

"Greeks, in my opinion, should do things because they want to, not because they have to," Andonian said. "We support the administration in their efforts, but a conflict has developed."

The Greek Affairs staff, headed by Michael Schardein, have enforced old rules with increased frequency this year. These rules apply specifically to parties in chapter houses and to keeping up grade point averages. This is Schardein's first year at UMass.

Andonian said he resigned from the IFC because of this conflict and from what he termed "the inability of myself to confront the problem and deal with it in a constructive manner."

"It would be better for all involved if these rules were enforced gradually instead of all at once," Andonian said. "Some seniors here were going wild a few years ago and now they are faced with a totally different situation, we should have more time to adjust."

Andonian said he feels the IFC "has the ability to deal with the problem. We just don't. I resigned because I'm not the administrative type I guess. We support everything the school is trying to do, we don't want another Amherst College here," said Andonian in reference to the recent closing of Amherst College fraternities by their Board of Trustees.

Andonian, a sophomore in Beta Kappa Phi, is being replaced for the semester by IFC vice-presidents Dave Donovan and Jay Flynn. Elections will be held next semester for a new president.

"The IFC has done a lot on our own," Andonian said. "We are trying to make the Greek area a more attractive alternative to every student. We've set some rules for ourselves regarding rush and grades. We are trying."

"In the future the Greek area will become better because of the changes both and the IFC and the administration are putting in. Both sides just have to work together," Andonian noted.

Collegian photo by Mitch Drantch

WORTH THE EFFORT — Nicholas Cokas, a senior economics major makes his dog Skilo work for his snacks yesterday, as Cynthia Christenson, a senior fashion marketing major, looks on.

Women's Forum

Women's Forum is a weekly listing of events relating to women's issues. Notices should be sent to the Women's News Editor, care of the Collegian, the Friday before the event.

— The Everwoman's Center at UMass is looking for volunteers and interns to staff the resource room at EWC for the summer and fall. Interns and volunteers provide information about area services and events; medical and legal referrals; do occasional crisis intervention; and up-date and maintain resource and referral information. Credit is available for this work for most UMass undergraduates and college work-study may be available for the summer. For more information concerning job description and applications, contact Sandy Mandel at 545-0883.

— Everywoman's Center at UMass will be sponsoring a support group for battered women beginning in early June. The group will run for eight weeks and will focus on some issues facing women who have been/are in (physically/mentally) abusive relationships. Confidentiality is assured. For more information and to register for the group contact the Everywomen's Center at 545-0883.

Tuesday — Carole Johnson will discuss "Comparable Worth and Pay Equity as the second of a three-part series titled "Working Women in the 80s" from 7 to 9 p.m. in the gallery of the Jones Library.

Tuesday — A movie and discussion titled "A feminist perspective on revolutionary Nicaragua" will be held at Hampshire College at 8:00 p.m. in Franklin Patterson Hall.

Tuesday — WMUA's investigation program at 6:00 will be a debate on pornography. Listener participation is invited.

Collegian photo by Mitch Drantch

MOTHER'S DAY GATHERING — Members of Lambda Chi Alpha invited their mothers over for a family barbecue Sunday. Many moms from 35 families showed up for the event, and are shown here enjoying the food and good weather.

Stockbridge student back on the ground

By RITA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts senior who literally went out on a limb to publicize declining enrollment in the Stockbridge School of Agriculture came back to earth Friday after spending five days in a tree.

Richard Barrett, 23, a senior landscape operations major, descended from its temporary home, a 50-foot red maple tree Friday after spending five days perched on a wooden plank to try and call attention to the Stockbridge program, which has seen enrollment steadily decline in the past few years.

"It was fun, but I'll probably never sleep in another tree," said the senior from Millis who was doused with champagne by some of his fellow Stockbridge students.

Barrett began his tree top sit-in Monday, and despite a steady rainfall on Tuesday, remained in the tree except for the few times he had to go to the bathroom.

"I went up to just spread the word about Stockbridge...(the attention) was a lot better than I ever expected," said Barrett, who was cheered by about 40 to 50 people upon his arrival to the ground.

Jack Denison, dean of Stockbridge said the "excellent publicity" had already reaped some results. Denison said two students, attracted by Barrett's stunt, made calls to the school's admissions office during the week to inquire about its program.

Stockbridge is just a "small entity in relation to the big (UMass) campus, and this kind of publicity is excellent," Denison said.

"Something like this gets the press interested without an, negative aspects. In the past there's been a little problem with public relations at the University. This is better than any drug busts, rapes, or jumping off buildings," he said.

Stockbridge currently has 304 students in the two-year program, about 200 shy of the school's capacity, according to school officials.

Barrett, who is also president of the Stockbridge fraternity Alpha Tau Gamma, said he wasn't sure what would come out of his actions when he started his climb Monday at 9 a.m.

"I only had second doubts at 9:05, but after that the hardest part was Tuesday when it rained.

"People would walk by and say 'hey tree guy, tree guy'. Everyone was really supportive," Barrett said.

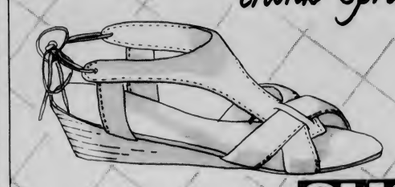
Mostly everyone who watched Barrett return to earth agreed his feat was one of the best things to happen to Stockbridge in recent memory.

"When he told me he was going up there I didn't think he'd go this far, everyone's psyched. Who knows, it worked this good maybe he should stay up there another week," said William J. Simard, 21, a senior Stockbridge turf management major from Holyoke.

Mark A. Noonan, 21, a urban forestry major from East Longmeadow, and an alumnus of Stockbridge said Barrett's actions have gone a lot further than the story of a man sitting in a tree.

"After the first day, people were getting over the novelty, then they started talking about and asking 'what is Stockbridge?'. The whole thing has increased awareness of the school," Noonan sid.

Bruce MacDougall, dean of the College of Food and Natural Resources, said Barrett's vigil "shows the spirit of the Stockbridge school," and has been "great" for the whole University.



Stockbridge was formed in 1918, and currently features majors in turf management, landscape operations, agriculture business management and animal agriculture.

Read The Collegian!

Attention Seniors!

The 1984 Index will be distributed this fall.
If you would like the yearbook
to be mailed to you,
please send your permanent
address and $2.50
check for postage and handling to:
Index, 103 C.C.
by May 26.

think spring!

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst
open Sunday

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
Monday is NICKEL NITE!
Every Other Drink 5¢ 7 pm - 1 am
Choose any drink in our extensive bar.
No cover charge.
322 Rt. 9 Hadley
across from Mt. Farms Mall
Open 11:00 am - 1:00 am Mon - Sat
1:00 pm - 1:00 am Sunday

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00 *
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
* Valid with Barb & Julie only C
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

$29.95
Heavyweight Rugby
with embroidered
"UMass"
assorted colors

Sharon S. Photo by Dwayne Autery
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Wednesday, May 16
4-7 PM
Southwest Playing Fields

Free bus service from Franklin and Worcester parking lots.

In event of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s.

board members: bring i.d.
COUNTRY BAR-B-Q
Non-Board Members - $4.75 in advance. Tickets on sale now at Munchies, Snack Bars, Franklin Meal Ticket Office.

$ Part Time Summer Jobs $
Many positions in the retail auditing field being held open for UMass students. RGIS inventory specialists has 4 offices in Eastern Mass. We need dependable people with transportation and phone. No experience necessary - only basic math skills. $4.75 to start with salary reviews to $6.00. Must have weekend availability; daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule. Opportunity to work full-time next January break. Great reference for your future.
Contact Student Employment of office nearest you.
Boston north to 128 - 938-9119
Boston and south - 699-4014
North of 128 - 692-3040 West of 495 - 366-6471

Hypercurricula

"Hypercurricula," a listing of events held at the University of Massachusetts and surrounding area, is published daily in the Collegian. Events are listed only on the day they are taking place.

BIKE COOP EVENTS — Last opportunity of semester for purchases or tool rental — Friday. We're offering workshop Thursday eve, and trying to open for summer. Sign up at Coop.

HILLEL COUNCIL MEETING — 6 p.m. Dukes Room.

WMUA GENERAL STATION BODY MEETING — Last meeting of the semester. People who plan to be here this summer are especially encouraged to attend. 7:30 p.m. 101 Campus Center.

C.U.S.P. GENERAL MEETING — Come to the LAST Psychology Club meeting. Elections will be held for all positions so get those campaign speeches ready! New members are always welcome. 7:00 p.m. Tobin 304.

If it was worth 4 years, It's worth another second. ...Buckle-Up!
DOC
A message from University Health Services

Do You Like To Do Summer Child Care?
Referral Services:
Evenings, weekends, days
List your times available
and other information
on our Summer Babysitting List.
Come to University Child Care/
Child Care Office
First Floor Bulletin Board,
Berkshire House

BODY SHOP
SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00
X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18
Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F
7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm
Summer workouts start June 4
LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening telephone sales for Fine Arts Center series subscription.
Approx. 20 hrs. per week from June 4 -July 13. Work study preferred. UMass students only. Descriptions and applications available from Dave, 207 Hasbrouck thru Wed. May 16. call 545-0190.

AMHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Monday and Tuesday
Terms of Endearment
7:00
Mommy Dearest
9:20
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

MONDAY NITE SPECIAL
Time Out
Giant Bar Drinks $1.65
16 oz. Draft 85¢
Two T.V.'s
Free Popcorn

Happy Hour Prices
4 PM to closing
AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, MA

BLUES IN THE BLUE WALL
18 & PUBLIC WELCOME
CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS
THURS
MAY 17, 1984
BOARD OF GOVERNORS PRESENTS
the LEGENDARY BLUES BAND
SPECIAL GUESTS
THE WILDCAT O'HALLORAN BLUES BAND

formerly
THE MUDDY WATERS BLUES BAND
THESE BLUES VETERANS HAVE PLAYED ALL OVER THE WORLD WITH ARTISTS LIKE ERIC CLAPTON, THE ROLLING STONES, AND JOHNNY WINTER
FREE!
THIS RARE OPPORTUNITY TO SEE THE LEGENDARY BLUES BAND IS BROUGHT TO YOU FREE OF CHARGE BY THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS AS A THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT OF BLUES IN THE BLUEWALL.

S-M-L-XL
Navy
White
Grey

$21.95
Hooded Sweatshirt
with sewn on 5" Tackle Twill
Letters

John C. Photo by Dwayne Autery
Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

COMPUTERIZED BUY-BACK

CASH FOR BOOKS

ONLY AT

Half Price Paid on Hundreds of Titles

Half Price Paid on Hundreds of Titles

THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX

MAY 14 - 25
9:00 - 4:00

Monday - Friday

FAST • EFFICIENT • RELIABLE

EDITORIAL/OPINION

A year of controversy and endless bickering

The "student government: who cares?" sentiment expressed in a column in March recently abated, at least temporarily, after the student senate provoked storms over two issues: pornography and the UMass yearbook.

But on the whole, the SGA has found it difficult to convince people that beneath (or should I saw above) all the bull, significant things get accomplished. In many minds, "SGA" is synonymous with endless petty bickering, parliamentary disputes and personal power struggles.

Ian Polumbaum

This is a shame. The Public Policy Committee's valiant fight against tuition hikes, though it did not have the desired effect, showed that there are people in the SGA who do more than pay lip service to student interests. The same can be said for the plans to educate students about religious cult activity on campus and the investigation of Student Activities Office sper ding — assuming the latter is progressing, not just being talked about.

Unfortunately, during much of the senate proceedings I covered for the Collegian this spring, discussion of important issues was overshadowed by the ranting and raving of people with chips on their shoulders.

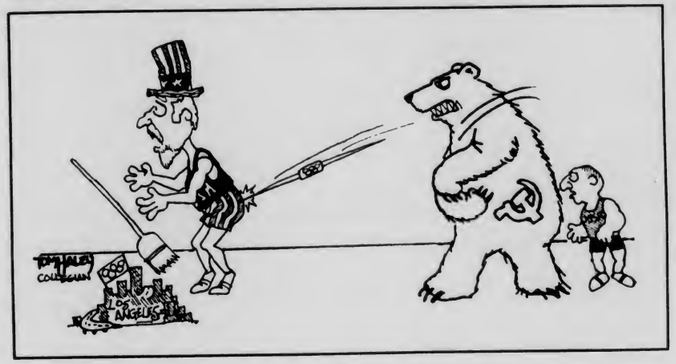
While waiting for newsworthy decisions to be made, I have been treated to a senator resigning because he didn't get his way in the elections and to innumerable procedural snafus, including an absurdly long debate over whether President Rick Patrick violated SGA bylaws in reappointing the Student Attorney General. Senator Jay Flynn's obsession with rules notwithstanding, this dispute was fueled by a few senators' animosity toward Patrick.

There was also an hour of debate on a proposal, eventually approved, to restructure the agenda so that senators could more easily get motions brought to the floor.

The proposal arose from the belief that Speaker Chris Sullivan wields too much power, that nothing gets voted on unless he wants it to. More than one senator has said to me that Sullivan's wanting to "run things just his way" reduces the SGA's effectiveness.

This criticism might be taken more seriously if not for the way it has come forth. The motion to change the agenda was made by one senator preoccupied with carrying on a personal vendetta against Sullivan.

No one who has been to a few Senate sessions is not familiarwith this character. He stalks around like a caged lion, asking question after question after question, searching for a way to back whomever he is interrogating into a corner, inevitably drawing an "out of order" reprimand — and never passing up an opportunity to insult the Speaker.



His alleged antics involving campaign posters, a 4 a.m. video session, a shoving match with another senator (with whom he carries on a constant infantile feud), and a Collegian reporter have made his name a household word in these parts (thus he is a public figure of sorts, vulnerable to being dragged through the mud in this column).

The Senate spent most of the first meeting I covered (Feb. 29) bickering over whether to issue an official reprimand for some of this senator's escapades. Parliamentary procedure was used ingeniously to block the censure.

Hence that is what appeared on the front page the next day. What I have left off the front pages, perhaps mistakenly, is Public Policy chair Fran Pheeney announcing she is "sick and tired of all the petty power struggles," Finance co-chair Beth Miller interrupting debate to say, "I'm sick of all these vindictive questions and answers," and Senator Hugh Grogan lamenting "our tendency to undercut our fellow senators, to forget that we're on the same side."

Again, the SGA is far from a useless body. (Remember — they funded all those concerts!) It is much more than "a sinecure away from the real world," as the April Fool's Collegian put it. But one hopes that next year it will do a better job of proving this to everyone.

Ian Polumbaum is a Collegian columnist who reported on SGA senate meetings this semester.

Coming home

"You can never go home again" — Thomas Wolfe
"The more things change, the more they stay the same." — Anonymous

Wandering back on campus after a year of life in the "real world," I thought about these quotes and their seeming contradiction. I say "seeming" because in their own peculiar ways, each describes my own impressions of UMass after being away for one year.

Some things at UMass will never change. After receiving the Collegian at home for the past 50 weeks, I'm happy to report that the SGA is just as misguided, unrepresentative, and out of control as ever. It would seem the SGA is destined to be little more than a paper tiger for the rest of its life.

John F. Hudson

The various sub-groups on campus — gays, blacks, feminists, radicals, etc. — still seek to alienate and disenfranchise themselves from the overwhelming majority of people on campus. I know that they don't seek to do this in their various causes and crusades, but it happens. Ask John Doe or Mary Smith what they think about oppression and discrimination on campus and they'll look at you with a blank stare, shrug their shoulders, and sigh. Realistically they know that they have more "important" things to worry about.

How have things changed? Why can't alumni go home again? Priorities change. New values develop. A year ago, saving the world was on my top 10 list of things to do. Now keeping my job, acquiring new skills, and living independently keep me nicely busy. And to a point that's sad. But as any graduate will tell you, once you leave the Happy Valley behind you, burning issues often become vague memories.

Physically, things on campus have changed also. Buildings are remodeled, barriers removed, and put up. And the people change too. They look so young. And questions like "whatever happened to...? dominates all my conversations while back on campus. When you think about it, UMass is like one large turnstyle, forever moving, even changing.

So on my return to this campus one year after leaving, I feel a little confused, slightly nostalgic, and happy with the realization that UMass is really now just a memory for me, a happy one, but a memory. When I got out I kept thinking to myself how wonderful it would be to return as a student and do the four years all over again. But I now realize this is unrealistic. I went home again and realized that you can't go back home. And if you live your life in the past, if you live your life attached to the Happy Valley and all its wonderful, exciting fallacies, you won't grow. You'll be cheating yourself and those around you. Goodbye UMass — it was fun while it lasted.

"...those days are gone forever, over a long time ago."
— Steely Dan

John F. Hudson ('83) was a columnist for three years and now works as a writer for Honeywell Inc.

Letters

Banning magazines is wrong

To the Editor.

The people demonstrating against pornography are advocating banning magazines from the Campus Center and the University. This is censorship and violates freedom of speech and of the press. Also, they say that the portrayal of women in the magazines is violent, etc. Banning the magazines will not change this, which they say is the problem. They should work to change the content. If they ban Hustler, Playboy, Playgirl, etc., what is next? Family Circle, Time, Newsweek,...

Strider Pineo
Sunderland

Discrimination does exist

To the Editor,

I have been a Commuter Area senator for barely a month, but in that short time I have never witnessed such a flagrantly absurd statement as that which was uttered by Student Senator Robert Teixeira, in front of the entire student senate on their final meeting of the semester. At issue was a motion to amend the new Senate Government Associations constitution in order to allow the newly formed Jewish Caucus to appoint a member/senator to the SGA Coordinating Committee. The Coordinating Committee functions as the SGA when it is not in session, such as summer and winter breaks.

Mr. Teixeira, chair of the Third World Caucus, was vehemently opposed to this motion and to the argument that Jewish students suffered discrimination on this campus and therefore needed a guarantee to be represented on the coordinating committee. Senator Teixeira stated, "I don't think Jewish students have been discriminated against on this campus." If Mr. Teixeira had been reading the Collegian, he would have noted several instances of violent and sick acts of anti-semitism reported earlier this year at the University. What bothers me is why a senator, who has supposedly spent his entire senate career fighting discrimination and oppression, and who presently chairs a caucus dedicated to protect the rights of minorities and to fighting racism, would make such a ridiculous and uninformed statement. I trust that most students are aware that anti-semitism has and does exist at UMass, and hopefully those who don't, like Mr. Teixeira, will soon learn otherwise.

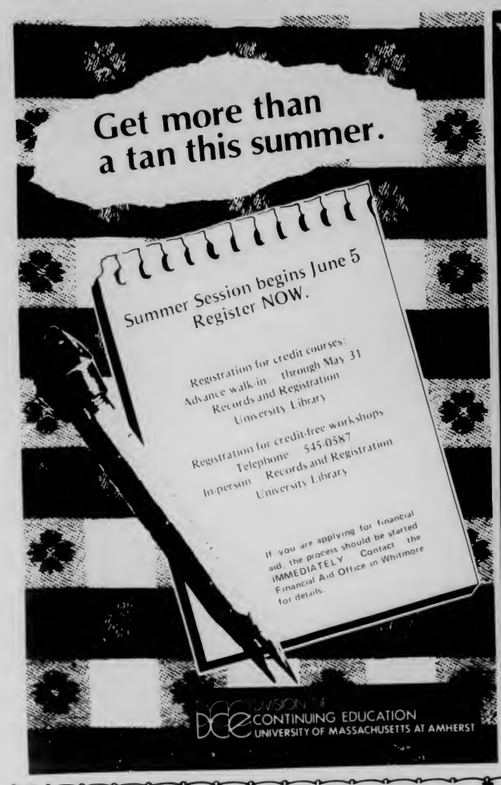
Unfortunately, all that we can ask now from Senator Teixeira is for an apology and a promise to research other forms of discrimination, like anti-semitism, and to work towards their abolishment.

Dennis Martin
Amherst

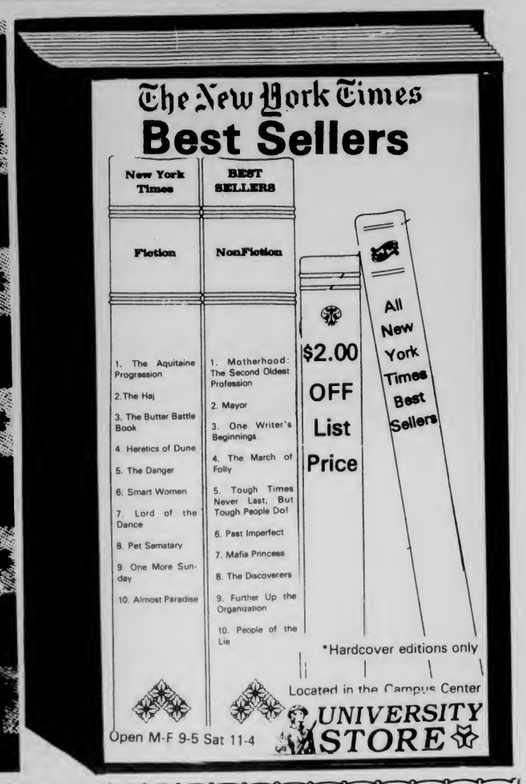
Why can't people take a joke?

To the Editor,

I have been intending to get this comment printed since the first time I read a column in the Collegian. The view I hold is one of a secure individual who feels no requirement to defend himself. My complaint is aimed at all the sorry people who can't take humor in stride.



I believe that people who can't take a joke are the most insecure form of misguided souls in existence. They are in the category of the lowest forms of plant life. Humor is a medium intended to alleviate friction, and should not be looked upon as a means of being offensive. All of these victimized souls complaining about the degredation they have endured in the name of humor are enough to cause one to regurgitate on his Nikes.



I fail to understand how these supposedly intelligent individuals can take offense in something that is meant to make them laugh. Whether a joke is directed at women, homosexuals, animals, blacks, or the dead, it should be weighed only on its ability to make people laugh. Anything that can get a chuckle should be viewed as a positive action. But instead these snivelers take things out of context and complain about the poor taste of cartoons in the Collegian. Can anyone who takes a cartoon seriously be taken seriously?

The criticism of the comedians in the Blue Wall last week is just one example of such feeble thought. I don't really care about John Boden's sexual preferance, but I wonder about his sense of humor.

Jon M. Shepeluk
Southwest

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Arts

Judy Collins still charms

JUDY COLLINS
Saturday, May 12
Fine Arts Center

By CRIS SCHUSTER
Collegian Staff

Judy Collins knows how to give a classy performance.

Only the word class could describe her singing, the confident way she interacted with the audience and the way she accompanied herself on the piano Saturday night.

The tone of her performance was effectively set during her first song, "Bright Morning" when during a total blackout she sang the entire song from off stage. In just that one song, she calmed the audience down, showed them the range of her voice and let them know exactly what kind of show they were in for.

It was a mellow night as Collins performed some of her best known such as "Both Sides", "Amazing Grace" and "Send in the Clowns", a song she said had been recorded by every person who could sing, but which she thinks was written for her.

She charmed the audience by encouraging them to sing along on some of her songs and telling them tales of her childhood efforts to practice the piano and her desire to become a classical pianist.

But, she said, Mozart began to pale once she discovered the guitar and folk songs. Collins, however, demonstrated her incredible ability as a pianist during the second half of her show. But, for most of the concert she was accompanied by her band with Warren Odze on drums, Zev Katz on bass and Shelton Becton on piano.

Collins' sweet and clear voice practically bounced off the walls of the Center with its power. Each word was clearly audible. She has supreme control over her voice and sang such notes as are rarely heard from a performer on stage, except during operas. In one song, she held a note for awhile, said, "I never used to be able to do this when I was smoking but now it's very easy," and continued to hold the same note without taking a breath.

Collins made an effort to make each song personal, as if she was talking about herself. One left the concert feeling as if she had just met and gotten to know the real Judy Collins personally. Collins, a very good story teller and songwriter, kept the audience laughing whenever she spoke. When the concert ended, it seemed as if she really didn't want to leave the stage because she was having so much fun.

But, as in almost any performance, there were a few flaws, not with Collins herself, but with her selection of songs. Collins is a very gifted songwriter and has written numerous songs. However, she performed songs which were too closely associated with other singers; "The Rose," "I Won't Last a Day Without You," "City of New Orleans," and "Memory" were a few. Although she varied the songs somewhat, she didn't vary them enough to make them her songs. It would have been so much better if she could have used all her own original songs, and material associated with her. She didn't need to depend on othe singers' material. Her songs, "Shoot First" and "Running" were a couple of the best songs in the show.

Another problem was her pianist, who was also her musical director and backup vocalist. Becton had an annoying and distracting manner of directing the other two musicians. His signals should not have been so obvious. At times I felt as though I were watching a symphony conductor on stage.

However, Collins showed that she loved being on stage and she was unflappable on it. During the first act, just as she was going to sign a few love songs, her shirt came partly unbuttoned. "Oh! I'm coming undressed. Just at the right place in the show," she laughed.

Despite the flaws, watching Judy Collins perform was a great way to spend a Saturday night. And hopefully it won't take her another five years before she decides to come back to Amherst.

Collins sings sweet and clear.

artslines...

The Fine Arts Center of the University of Massachusetts has announced its 1984-85 season. The Center has been responsible for some of the most exciting arts events that have taken place in the area, and next year's schedule promises to carry on a tradition of high-quality entertainment.

The fall season opens October 9 when the Houston Ballet returns to Amherst to perform "Swan Lake." Their "Sleeping Beauty" sold out the Center last fall. This full-length production of "Swan Lake" will be accompanied by the Houston Ballet Orchestra. On November 5, another dance company, Canada's Royal Winnipeg Ballet, will perform a program representing the works of many renowned international choreographers.

The fall season opens October 9 when the Houston Ballet returns to Amherst to perform "Swan Lake." Their "Sleeping Beauty" sold out the Center last fall. This full-length production of "Swan Lake" will be accompanied by the Houston Ballet Orchestra. On November 5, another dance company, Canada's Royal Winnipeg Ballet, will perform a program representing the works of many renowned international choreographers.

and the Philly Pops on October 19. The Boston Chamber Music Society on October 13, Dizzy Gillespie on October 24, Sarah Vaughn on December 1, and violist Paul Neubauer on December 7.

For more information call the FAC box office at 545-2511.

The best has a taste all its own.

A taste that's not easy to find. It's something you have to strive for. In everything you do. And when you've done it, when you've found the best in yourself, taste it in the beer you drink. Ask for Bud Light.®

Bring out your best,™ Minutemen.

© Anheuser-Busch, Inc. St. Louis, Mo.

Move Yourself, All Your Stuff, And Save, Too!

It's as easy as renting a Ryder truck, one way.

Compare costs before you make plans for moving at the end of the semester.

If you're 18 or older and have a valid driver's license, you can use a Ryder truck, rent-it-here, leave-it-there. Load up your stereo, 10-speed, clothes; everything. You'll still have room, no doubt, for one or two friends with their things to share the cost.

Compare that to the price of a plane ticket. Or even a bus. Plus shipping.

Rent a newer truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world – Ryder. The best truck money can rent.

STUDENT DISCOUNT COUPON
RYDER TRUCK RENTAL, INC.
The holder of this coupon is entitled to a
15% DISCOUNT
on any ONE WAY rental of a Ryder truck. Present this coupon to any Ryder location in New England and save even more.

One coupon redeemable per transaction. Not valid with other promotions.
Call (413) 736-8361 or your local dealer for information.
Renters Signature _____ Expires 8/30/84

5 Days Only

TIMEX SALE

May 14 through May 18
10 - 4:30

Over 400 watches to choose from

From $13.99 reg. $19.99 to $48.99 reg. $69.99

30% OFF list price

Sale located on the concourse in front of the store

UNIVERSITY STORE

ART SUPPLIES

25% OFF suggested list price

REMBRANDT® WATERCOLOUR

When you're looking for professional quality watercolour, ask for Rembrandt. When you're looking for watercolour to meet your most exacting requirements, ask for Rembrandt.

Whether using brush, sponge or airbrush, ask for Rembrandt. Rembrandt provides a comprehensive selection of 72 transparent colours. From rich, real-life colours to the most delicate washes, you can achieve perfection in the most subtle detail.

Superior Dutch quality assures only the most carefully selected pigments, yielding the highest degree of lightfastness available.

For your Art & Engineering needs.
Open M-F 9-5 Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center
UNIVERSITY STORE

Student Note & Printing Service

STUDENT NOTES
will close for the semester
Wednesday May 16
at 7:00 p.m.

Please pick up all notes by this time.

The print/copy shop will remain open through Thursday May 24.
Watch for summer hours.

STUDENT NOTE & PRINTING SERVICE
401/403 Student Union
545-2271

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

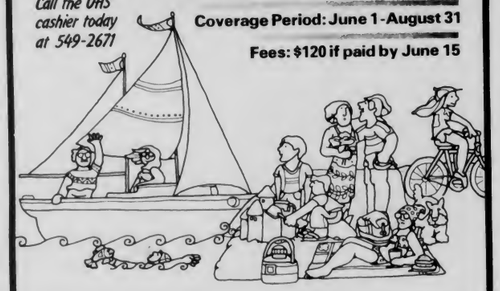
Summer Health Coverage

Basic Student Health

Eligibility: Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith and UMass Students

Coverage Period: June 1-August 31

Fees: $60 if paid before June 1
$75 if paid during June



Comprehensive Dependent Health Plan

Eligibility: Dependents of UMass Students who are enrolled in the 1983-1984 Supplemental Health Benefits Plan

Coverage Period: June 1-August 31

Fees: $120 if paid by June 15

Call the UHS cashier today at 549-2671

BOOK OF THE WEEK
$1.00 OFF

THE DO-IT-YOURSELF PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN KIT

EVERYBODY FOR PRESIDENT™

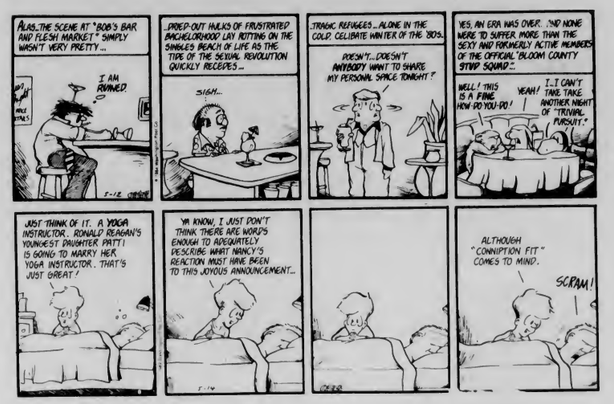
Everything you need to know to run for the highest office in the land

Includes: ● Official U.S. Federal Election Commission Statement of Candidacy Form (Mod. F) ● Official U.S. Federal Election Commission Statement of Organization Form (Mod. F. 1000) ● Original Certificate of Candidacy ("Name it") ● Everybody for President Bumper Sticker ● White House Parking Decal

by Gil Campbell and Martha Gorman

Everybody for President
by Gil Campbell and Martha Gorman

Located in the Campus Center



UNIVERSITY STORE

YOU'VE BEEN KISSED.

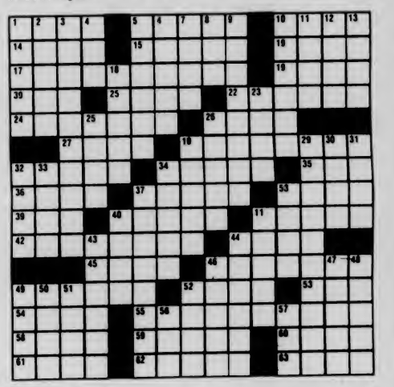
Come pick your kiss up on concourse today 9- 4

Kim Acker
Bob Alexander
John Allen of 617
Judy Anderson
Tim Anderson
Felice Apolinsky
Linda Arnold
Chuck Auger
Thomas Barbeau
Bruce Barishman
Andrea Barry
Brian Bartkus
Mark Bavelock
Brenda Bentley
Bernice
Bill Berstein
Lauren Bertsch
Amy Bial
Marshall Blake
Lisa Boisseau
Michael Bolland
Sue Bonaseto
Steve Bonasoni
Angie Bonilla
Boola and Andy
Jim Bowers
Martha Brennan
Sheri Brodie
Sue Brown
Tara Bhtavnani
Bubba
Bucko
Cheryl Burbank
Edward Burke
Wendy Bussiere
Lauren Canuel
Mark Carey
Jeffery Carr
Laurie Carroll
Rich Carter
Brian Cashman
Elise Cassuto
Chris Chadwick
Russell Channen
Chris Ann (Chi Omega)
Diana Churchill
Rose Circeo
Bert Clearly
Jill Clemmer
Ben Cohen
Jonny Cohen
Sue Colen
Joe Commare
Jim Connors
Kyle Cooper
Michael Cosseboom
Kathy Costalos
Karen Crowley
Linda Crowley
Jerry Cryan
Lisa Culhane
Pamela Cushman
Reid Cutting
Bob Dacey
Gene Daley
Mike Davis
Rob Dean
Chris Deehy
Peter Dion
Dylan M. Dobbyn
Michele Dolan
Dearest Don
R.J. Donovan
Dave Doran
Bob Doyle
Holly Dubow
Bhanu Durvasula
Naresh Durvasula
Paul Earsy
Paul Eberly
Nick Economou
Gary Edelstein
Gail Ela
Mary Elia
David Elkins
Amy Ellis
Bill Fabre
Sue Fairbank
Scott Ferris
Cindy Feinburg
Gail Feinstein
Vicki Feinstein
Brian Ferri
Karen Fieldstad
Scott Flagel
Foo
Angela Forster
Kyler Foster
Jean Fountaine
Scott Fountain
Sandt Fraas
Chris Ann Frazier
Neil Freidman
Ron Friend
Bob Frye
Peg Fuller
Vinnie Furtado
Joanne Galipault
Ilene Garber
Jon Gazziniga
Laura Gendron
Shari Genn
Brenda George
James G. Geruntho
Grace Giagoli
Brian Gillis
Vivian Glassman
Lorrie Glovsky
William Goetz
Amy Beth Gonick
Rich Gonzalez
Francine Graff
Richie Greenwald
John Grippo
Andy Grodin
Danny Gunn
Lee Hacohen
Jenny Haddon
Lisa Halligan
Mark [illegible]
Dale Hamson
David Hanlon
Kevin Hanrahar
Maureen Harrington
Jennifer Harter
Dave Hautenan
Doug Hayes
Jackie Hebert
Trish Hennessy
Hally Henry
Rick Hensen
Dawn Hersey
Cynthia Hester
Alison Hiers
Karen Hill
Dear Hope
Peter Houseboy (XO)
Joanne Horkan
Rebekah Hulse
(Buildings and grounds)
Chris Husgen
Garry Hutchings
Eric Jaeger
Ron James
Jamie and Gordon and Jonathan
Sam Jeffries
Lind Jhong
Jim and Kris and Andy
JoHess
Gail Johnson
Mary Johnston
Steve Jordon
Dave Kampner
Adrian Kaplan
Susie Kaplan
Tina Kaplan
Joan Kashman
John Kells
Anne Kelly
Jaimie Kessler
Liz Kimmel
John Rising
Laura Klaus
Klein Barrie
Tim Knollmeyer
Richard Knowlton
Elizabeth Kogos
Sherill Kogo
Mindy Koster
Bobbert Kostro
Chuckness Kostr
K.P. [illegible]
Stephen Krebs
Carla Kszaszc
Killer Lamb
George Lane
Marty Lavadinho
Levin Lautz
Lucy Lazetera
Peter Lazzari
James Lee
Karen Lennon
Mike Leonard
Mike Lesher
Paul Lesser
Lauren L'Esperance
Danny Levy
Elina Liedes
Megan Light
Kurt Lindhiemer
Mary Lobello
Todd Lombard
Jennider Lomp
Francine Lopes
Tony Lopes
Lisa Lovell
Mark Lozouski
Laura Lufty
John Lynch
Melissa MacDonnell
Michael Mahoney
Brian Maimone
Yolanda Maldanado
John Malley
Jim Malloy
Alison Maloon
Rob Mansfield
Michael Marotta
David Marberger
Tom Marino
[illegible] Marie Marshall
Marion Martini
David Massicott
Wendy McAfee
Kathleen McCarthy
Scot McCracker
John McDonald
Martha McGrail
Tim McKeown
Steve Messina
Karen Miller (Leach)
Suzanne Missent
Bob Moffett
Alf Molina
Emile Molineaux
Mary Molloy
Yasmin Moran
Diane Morris
Susan Morth
Bonnie Moscovitz
MSGT. Don Moss
Kate Mullin
Randy Mulsman
Billie Munro
Jack Murgia
Chris Murphy
Patty (K.Q.) Murphy
Steve Murphy
Sutu Nath
Cynthia Needham
Dave Needham
John Neville
Karen O'Callaghan
Ilene O'Dea
John O'Donnell
Hillary Olson
Vicki Olson
Stephen Ossen
Debra Packard
Christine Paganuzzi
Jill Parks
James Paul
Bill Paulson
Matt Peterson
Eric Peterson
Jeff Juneau
Peter Petras
Karen P. Fister
Marlane Phillips
Lisa Pike
George Pilibosian
Ginny Pimentel
Lisa Culhane
John Pisano
Stephanie Pobudzie
Jane Podolak
Jonathan Polleys
Kathy Porter
Larissa Potapchuk
Andrew Prescott
Corey Prince
Kathy Prunier
Dan Puschak
Brian Quigley
Marty Rasnick
Dave Rath
Petra Reckert
John Reese
Maureen Regan
Jackie "Jane" Reis
Ron "Rat" Restani
Mark Rich
Pete Riddell
Margie Ricker
Richard Riley
Alan Robbins
Pamela Robbins
Chris Robinson
Flicka Rodman
Dianne C. Rossi (sweetie)
Penny Routh
David "Boomer" Rowinski
Dave Ruane
David Russell
Dick Rymsza
R. Sean Saganey
Ed Rush
Dave Sage
David Salem
Terry Samuel
Mardez Sanchez
Srikant Sastry
Eric Saundergeld
Doug Schapero
Peter Schapero
Laurie & Reed Schimelfing
Stephen Schipani
Alan D. Schirch
Crusty Schmidt
Donna Schneckloth
Jim Schromm
Schlomo Schwartz
Matt Segal
Beth Selbst
Michael Shandein
Stephen Shea
Cathy Sheedy
Steve Sheraton
Geoffrey Skur
Debbie Sidman
Beth Simon
Jennifer Simon
"Bonehead" Sinnott
Tom Sinnott
Suzanne Sklar
Patricia Small (Knowlton)
Don Smith
Sean Smith
David Snowball
Kathy Soucy
Kim Sousa
John Spinney
Allison Spitzer
Lori Swanson
Aaron-Mac Fillabuster-Von Staats
Peter Stark
Mark Steil
Andy Stone
Ed Struzziero
Sue, Rm. 339-Van Meter Suite 206 (McNam.)
Sue Tesoro
Todd Thomas
Kandi Thompson
Sherwood Thompson
Lisa Turesky
Jennifer Turner
Mark L. Twomey
Tom Uschok
Demetri Valhouli
Tammy Vogel
Ann Voorhees
Robert Voss
Bucko Wall
Maureen Walsh
Leigh Warren
Lisa Wary
Dana Weaver
Beth Weinberg
Kim Wendell
Bruce Wenning
Bruce Wenning
Jody Wexler
Patti Wheaton
Ted White
Bill Whittemore
Sam Wilkins
Timothy Willett
Dan Williams
Thomas William Wilson, Jr.
David Winmill
Jeff Woods
Bus Wright
Scott Wylie
Evan Yampolsky
Jenny York
JeffYoung
Michael Zarbo
Jow Zawawi
Zelle
Elizabeth Zwerling

sponsored by Chi Omega

The Strip — Jim Wals...

Off Campus — Sullivan & Gillbert



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Affair for men only
5 Farm equipment industrialist
10 Oil flask, of old
14 Heavenly bear
15 Musical group
16 Way in
17 Cadge
19 A Fitzgerald
20 Jewelry purchase
21 Island near Java
22 E.B. White's forte
24 Reserve
26 Greek god
27 Bag or board
28 Tractable
32 Part of a ship's bow
34 Waft
35 "You're a better man than ——..."
36 Yearn for
37 A Bailey
38 Look over
39 Mrs., in Madrid
40 Grayish in color
41 Bower
42 Warmer of a sort
44 To love, in Avila
45 November losers
46 Curtain speeches
49 Kind of crane
52 Sorry!
53 Refrain syllable
54 Be contiguous
55 Collector's assignment
58 Clock
59 Bathsheba's husband
60 Beginning with tasse
61 Colloid
62 Actress Spacek
63 Algerian seaport

DOWN
1 Mine shaft features
2 Characteristic
3 "...—— your country can do...:" JFK
4 Jay, to a Scot
5 Fondness
6 Place for an eleve
7 Small case, European style
8 Kind of room, for short
9 Heavenly
10 Port on the Black Sea
11 She gets what she wants
12 More than one: Prefix
13 Historians' concerns
18 Lessen
23 Dispatched
25 June bloom
26 Columnist Cleveland
28 Having wings
29 Orwell concept
30 Composer of "Symphonie Espagnole"
31 Non, title for a former professor
32 Yesterday's roast, today
33 Peak, in combinations
34 Acts of derring-do
37 Duck-billed mammal
38 Certain exam
40 Asperse
41 One of the Plain People
43 Clay worker
44 Unenthusiastic attitude
46 Actress Lanchester and others
47 Pasture grass
48 Luxurious fabric
49 Spanish cat
50 "...carry —— stick"
51 Legendary Roman king
52 Bargain sale warning
56 Biblical lion
57 Tokyo, in other times

Weather

Showers may continue today, and it will remain cloudy, with temperatures in the 60s. Tonight will be cold and clammy, tomorrow sunny, with loud music and frisbees prevalent, especially in dormitory areas and around the campus pond.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

E	L	I	J		D	A	N	A	S		T	A	T	A
R	I	M	U		E	N	A	C	T		O	R	A	L
A	N	A	M		G	E	T	T	H	E	J	U	M	P
T	E	M	P	O	R	A	L		E	N	A	T	E	S
			U	A	E	R		A	N	T	I
B	E	T	A	K	E		T	W	I	R	L	E	R	S
A	L	A	I		S	T	R	A	T	A	E		L	E	I
S	T	I	L	L		W	I	N		E	J	E	C	T
S	O	L		A	B	I	N	G	E		U	N	T	O
E	N	S	I	G	N		E	N	E	M	A		L	N
			E	G	G	S		T	R	A	P
A	N	G	L	E	S		O	N	A	T	O	N	S
J	U	M	P	T	H	E	G	U	N		E	B	E	N
A	D	A	M		O	A	N	E	D		S	O	L	E
R	E	N	E		T	R	E	S	S		T	E	L	E

The Collegian
is now accepting applications for the following positions:

Associate Managing Editor (5)
Copy Editor (5)
Layout Technician (5)
Librarian
Associate News Editor (3)
Associate Editorial Editor
Associate Womens New Editor
Associate Sports Editor
Associate Black Affairs Editor
Associate Arts Editor

Today is the Last Day!

to place Collegian classifieds

Audio
Auto For Sale
Calculators
Entertainment
For Rent
For Sale
Found
Help Wanted
Instruction
Lost
Motorcycles
Personals
Ride Wanted
Rider Wanted
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Wanted
Wanted to Rent

Deadline is 3:45pm

DON'T MISS OUT

THE SHORTEST DISTANCE BETWEEN YOUR ENGINEERING DEGREE AND MANAGEMENT COULD BE O.C.S.

If O.C.S. (Army Officer Candidate School) looks tangential at first, look again. Look at it from management's point of view. Management wants engineering skill plus leadership ability in the people it moves up the ladder.

O.C.S. is a great place to get started on leadership. It is a 14-week challenge to your mental and physical toughness. And if you pass the tests, you will come out strong, sure and in great shape—a commissioned officer in the Army, ready to exercise the leadership that civilian companies put such a premium on.

If you are about to get your degree in engineering, the O.C.S. challenge could be your best next step.

To find out more about O.C.S., call the Commanding Officer in your area: CPT Wittenburg, 1-413-785-0350

ARMY. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Summer Jobs Available

Evening security workers/ushers wanted for Bright Moments Jazz Concerts on July 5, 12, 19 for approx. 5 hours/shift (limited number of additional hours available also) Work study preferred but not required. UMass students only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and applications available from Dave, 207 Hasbrouck, 545-0190 thru Fri. 5/25.

LEARN TO FLY

inexpensively earn your pilots license University Club open to five colleges. Cessna based in Northampton

546-4827 Introductory Rides 665-2577

College is an Investment... Protect It! ...Buckle-Up

A message from University Health Services

Feminist Graphic Artist needed to design a poster of the Fall '84 Women's Film Festival

Contact Liisa in the Women's Leadership Project Student Union 415 or call 545-0254

United Areas Council presents

Destructive Cults in America

What makes a cult destructive? A destructive cult recruits deceptively and obtains members through systematic, manipulative techniques of thought reform or mind control. Members are totally controlled by authoritarian leaders who have no regard for society's laws, ethics or morals. Leaders live in splendor while members work long hours under deplorable conditions gaining more money and members.

Film and Panel Discussion Tonite at 7:30 PM CC 164

Sponsored by the Grad Student Senate, SWAG, SAG, OHAG, CAG, NEAG, and the Commuter Area Gov't

One bedroom Rolling Green close to cheap pool air conditioning call 256-6905

5 bedroom house in Amherst next to Swiss Village, on bus route partially furnished only $75 a month call Dan 256-6761

4 rooms in N Amherst house 100+ per room 549-6055

Brandywine 2 bedroom summer sublet rent negotiable call 546-5088 546-5186

2 rms in house with fall option 586-7037 call eves

June to Sept one person in house large room across Puffton price negotiable 549-7516

Townhouse apartment 2 bedrooms. June 1 - Aug 31. Rent negotiable 546-9559, 546-9605

Female roommate wanted furnished Puffton apartment call 549-0496

Room(s) 4 rent. Swiss Village, very negotibale. Furnished to the hilt! Cindy 256-1474

Southwood 2 bdrm w/fall option summer rent negotiable 253-5517

3 bdrm Townahouse apt fully furnished one mile from campus. Call before 12 am or after 8 pm 549-0307

Beautiful, furnished room near Amherst Center, on bus route MUST SEE! $140.00 inclusive Mary 253-7317 evenings

Puffton single room - for female rent negotiable call 546-1146 or 546-1100

SUMMER SUBLET WITH FALL OPTION

Brandywine 2 bedrooms for summer and 1 for fall furnished call 549-2773 after 5 PM

TO SUBLET

$85 sublet 3 or 4 people needed for 2 bedrm Brandywine summer sublet available June 1st thru Sept 1 call Michelle 546-4917 after 11 PM

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Room available summer possible fall option. Rent negotiable. Call 256-0011 evenings

Two bedroom apt available one fall option near Puffton wood stove 549-0112

Two bedroom apartment in Colonial Villaga summer sublet fall option telephone 256-8597

2 bedrm Cliffside apt for June 1 w/fall option. Pool, tennis, bus rt. $340 neg inc utilities 665-4556

One bedroom super summer sublet in Brandywine pool, tennis courts, partially furnished, rent negotiable Valerie 549-6766

3 rooms in house - 2 with fall option close to town & campus $170 549-5619

House - available June 1st - fall option 5+ bedrooms on bus route, walking distance to town and campus, heat included call 256-0992

2 people needad for 1 bd in 2 bd Brandywine apt $70/prsn for summer sblt call 546-9406 or 546-9403 keep trying

Summer sublet with fall option $295, utilities included 256-1482 Kevin

w/fall option great location 253-3630 Gail eve $180 mo

Squire Village 2 bdrm townhouse great for 4 people or less fall option 665-4128

Brandywine one bedroom apartment summer sublet, possible fall option 549-5825

Choose us!! Needed immediately 1 or 2 people to share large bedroom in brand new Sunderland duplex $100/mo call 665-3072 after 6 pm

Colonial Village 2 bedroom summer/fall option. On bus route . 256-0088

To sublet cheap 2 rm of 4 avlb pay 2 mo 1 free fall opt Mike/Doug 253-2083

One bedroom apt Cliffside 150 includes everything pool and tennis 665-4576

Cliffside summar sublet fell option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom. Responsible female 180/mo inclusive. Available June or July your choice. Summer rent negotiable 665-3509

Two bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option rent neg 665-4201

TRAVEL

Plane ticket 1 way BOS. to L.A. BO Tom 549-0661

TYPING

Professionel Typing Service including: theses, manuscripts, medical reports, dictaphone. Emergency service. Call 536-2336, 6-10 PM

VERY CHEAP SUMMER SUBLET

This is a great deal - 2 room Southwood apartment starting June 1st we will be very very neg. tennis courts and pool - call Mitch 256-0967

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Experianced Painter sash and trim skills prefered call after 5:00 665-2665

Old, crackad, saltad, unrepairable cowboy boots. Drop off CCCTWTh

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

Need a place to live in Chetham from 6-15 to 9-15 please call Christine 549-1616

Responsible women needad summer housing great location cheap rent call 549-6823

2 people looking to share an apt in Puffton or Brandywine for fall 84 call 6-5290 or 6-9706

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

ADVERTISING

The last chence to advertise in the Collegian is TODAY at 3:45 pm

AN OFFER YOU CAN'T REFUSE

Great summer sublet - 2 bedroom apt in Townehouse June - Aug best offer - fully furnished. All luxuries available call 549-0709 now!

AUTO FOR SALE

1974 Triumph TR6 great condition, excellent body and engine, many extras $4000 or BO 546-5516 Dan

'76 Fiat 131S w/'78 engine runs great, good mpg, needs some work $650 253-3339

1972 Camero new tires and trans. must sell - $500 549-6934

73 Mustang Convertible it runs, great summer car, great project car, almost inspectable, $350, BO 545-3117

77 Toyota Celica GT coupe 86k 5 spd AC/rear dgf excel cond inside and out great gas mileage $2350 neg 256-1456

BOARDERS FOR FALL '84 WANTED

For home like atmosphara call Sigma Kappa Sorority 256-6887 ask for Sylvia or Louise

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

Madhatter Booze Cruise - featuring the Castoways and DJ. Prizes for best hats 1st prize $75. Leaves Boston Harbor June 8 for info: Mike 546-6031 ltd. tix

FALL HOUSING

Rooms now available for all university women in close to campus sorority house. Ask for Lisa B or Sue G at 545-0527

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Southwood Apts 1 bedroom townhouse summer w/fall option very clean 256-8225

Summer sublet fall option 2 bedroom Southwood Apt 256-0832

Furnished efficiency epartment, carpet, AC, summer, fall option, $205 (Belchertown). 323-6704

3 bedroom townhouse on bus route summer sublet fall option call 665-4896

Fell option fall option fall option 3 bedroom apt., 10 min walk to campus summer sublet with fall option call 549-6993, keep trying

Brittany Menor two bedroom July August rent free fall option 256-1062

One bedroom in house near Amharst Center available June 1. 145+ call 256-0796

Summer sublet w/fall option 4 bedroom apt w/2 bathrooms. Summer rent very cheap. Call 256-8247

Two bedroom apt at Brittany Manor summer sublet with fall option. Call 253-7728

One bedroom apt. 3 mo sublet or 15 mo lease. Quiet, ¼ mi from UMass, bus. 360 mo 549-2641

2 bedroom evail June 1 with fall option Brittany Manor summer rent negot call after 10. 253-5907

Femele wented nonsmoker for summer sublet and fall option, own room, pool, bus route, $150/month plus utilities, call 253-7806 evenings summer rent negot.

One bdrm apt. at Cliffside, all-electric, dishwasher, bus route, pool, tennis courts, quiet, summer sublet with fall option 665-3735

FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports cer, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

Japenese Go Set. Almost new $40. Rich 549-4786, 665-7034

New double bed - great price call Jodi 549-2638

Electric Guitar Vantage black with case mint condition $175 Josh 546-6534

Almost new double bed, bureau, desk, bookcase and sofa. Best offers. 256-0883

Wood desk $50, light blue rug $55 both in excellent condition call Laurie 549-6358

One year old twin bed. Must sell $65 Wendy 584-2905

FOUND

Found! Ring in NOPE girl's locker room call 546-8352 to identify

HELP WANTED

Internetional Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

COUNSELORS, Excellent Maine Camp, call Mrs. Fritts (201) 538-5409

Students! Summer jobs on campus! Apply to Telefund, Memorial Hall, 545-3509

Help wanted cook needed at local fraternity call anytime 253-9032 ask for Mark

Summar work out West 318/week call for info 549-7529

PARTTIME WEEKEND: Production workers needed to fill-in for employees on vacation/leave. Church Seat Company, Division of Bemis Mfg. Company, Palmer Road, Monson, MA 01057 (413) 267-5511

Summer Jobs - House Painting; Boston, Cape, Connecticut, NY, NJ; No experience necessary, we will train. $150 - $250 a week. Work with peers outdoors. 736-2193

FARM HAND call Scott's Tree Farm 665-4791

Housefather wanted for local sorority for fall '84 semester, free room & board in exchange for minor repairs. For more info call 256-6874 ask for Jody

Still need a summer job? Work as an activist on a nat'l voter registration campaign and help shape state environmental policy. MASSPIRG is now hiring full-time summer staff for public education and fundraising. $135-225/week. Mon-Fri 2-10 PM. Will train. Call Sandy 256-6434

2 positions @ 40 hrs/wk working on course and teacher evaluation guide good writing and editing necessary applications available in 420 Student Union deadline May 17th @ noon more info call 545-0341 SGA is AA/EEO

HEY MWF TRAMP CLASS

I had fun and I know you did too! Lets try to keep in touch with each other. Good Luck on finals! Thanks for the memories. In the future lets watch out for those big fluffy buns. Joel

LOST

Lost blue jacket, Scituate High School Football embroidered on it. If found please please call 546-7744, great sentimental value. Reward no questions asked

Black loose-leaf notebook with one notebook inside. Lost in either Whitmore Cafeteria or by the phone in Whitmore on May 7th. Reward. Call 549-1014 or 586-9576

Somewhera in Southwest. About 30 slides. Please call 256-1472

Lost - Denim Jacket/pr glasses - reward call Peter 546-9075

Gold chain breceiet hopefully with small heart pendant lost Tu Ap 21 call Jenni at 546-4282 reward

Beautiful gold watch (Caravelle Bulava Quartz) deep sentimental value. If found please call 256-1098

LOWEST RENT AROUND

Summer sublet with fall option 3 bedroom apt. $360/month summer rent negotiable. Scenic view and pool 665-7914 keep trying!!!!

MOTORCYCLES

1980 Yamahe XS400 special, cafe bars, $850 Chris after 5 665-4148

'80 KZ-440 LTD 900¢ 6 speed mag wheels in great condition, always kept under cover, approx 65 mpg 549-7719

1977 Suzuki 750 - new - tires brakes sprockets chain etc with helmet $1000 or BO 6-6128

1983 Yamaha special 50cc mint condition only 3000 miles $500 or BO call Alan at 546-5332

79 Suzuki PE 175 best offer call 665-4340 after 3 pm

Yamaha 175 enduro 500 miles - like new on/off road w/helmet $500 549-0159

PERSONALS

Patricia M. Smith we have your ID. It's at the Collegian

Need a place to live next fall? Female boarders wanted. Good food home-like atmosphere. For info call 545-0162/2092. Keep trying!

WE HAVE BALLS - basketballs, baseballs softballs, footballs, tennis balls racquetballs, squashballs golfballs & frisbees

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP "Your Sporting Goods Connection" M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

WHATS YOUR RACQUET?

We have Tennis Racquets, Racqetball Racquets, Squash Racquets & Bats!

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP "Your Sporting Goods Connection" M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

Hey Patty Ritter You didn't think I was going to let you leave without a personal did you? Thanx 10/17

Michele, Don't ever forget: Blue Wall Happy Hours, proctoring, buttercreme mints, "the nose", and of course Newman Center. I'm really gonna miss ya next semester! Love, Jane

Last chance to place a classified ad is TODAY, before 3:45 pm. Don't miss out!

Brian, Only you could have made my last year at UMass so special. You're one in a million kid! Congrats with AT&T and Happy Birthday! Love always Lori

Caryn Happy 20th I'll miss you and always love you Alan

Sua Mac! Happy Birthday you mad dog! Didn't think I'd do it, did you? Love, Karen

Cindy, You're a great neighbor and an incredible hugger! Hope you get everything you want in England. I'll miss ya! Jim

Learn about the Moonies and other destructive cults. UAC presents "Destructive Cults in America" film and panel discussion. Tonite at 7:30, CC 164

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertations, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

To Calif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

Ride needed to central NJ May 18 or 19. Will share expenses. Call Lisa 6-5965

Chicago - I need a ride to Chicago after May 25 at 6 p.m. I'll share driving and expenses. I travel light. Please call Cris at 545-3500 during the day and 546-6672 at night Keep trying

Need rida to Logen Airport or Boston Tuesday May 22, between 12:00 and 5:00 pm must catch 8:00 flight call Mike at 546-1456

RIDERS WANTED

Drivers to drive cer to Milwaukee area some expenses paid. Call 367-2473 evenings

ROOM WANTED

Room wanted - looking for room in Hyannis/Yarmouth area please call Patty 546-5275

Room needed for two in West Yarmouth/Hyannis area. Call Tom or Mike 253-9868

Cape Cod - I need place for summer call Lyn 256-8606

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommete wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-8089 Kris 256-0566

Female nonsmoker wanted in Brittany for fall 84 call 546-8343 546-8275

Roommete wented for Southwood opt rate negotiebla informetion call Margeret 546-1411

Summer sublet/fall option North Amherst 150+ 5 min to bus close to campus 549-0146

Brandywine female to share room possible fall option call 549-1405/546-4791

We heve a nice 3 bedroom house in a pleasant neighborhood, 1 mile from campus. We need roommates for this summer and fall 549-6621

Roommate wanted for 1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt for summer and fall only reasonable Amherst 256-1205

Central Northampton on bus room in apartment starting June 1 584-1381

Female wantad for singla in Puffton $128 summer sublet fall option furnished 549-4537

Single room in convenient, quiet Squire Village townhouse call 665-3175

Martha's Vinayard roommates wanted summer '84 reasonable call 546-1175 or 617-693-6565

One famala roommata wantad to share a two bedroom Brandywine apartment call 546-5186 or 546-5088

Female roommate wanted for 2 bedroom apt. call 549-2719

3 rms in 4 bdrm condo 9/1 lease/credit references required 6-10 pm 256-0768

SENIORS

The 1984 Index will be distributed this fall. If you would like the yearbook to be mailed to you, please send your permanent address and $2.50 check for postage and handling to: Index, 103 CC by May 26.

SERVICES

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite. 253-5111

Fast accurate typing on IBM Selectric $1.25/page 584-3665 Leslea

SKIS FOR SALE

Must sell Rossignol 190 cm $70 or best offer Mike 256-1201

SPENDING THE SUMMER IN DC?

So am I! Let's share an apartment call ASAP 665-8126

SUMMER RENTALS

Centrally locatad on campus full kitchen facilities cable TV furnished 250 single 150 double call Jim K 545-2150 545-0047

SUMMER SUBLET

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

3 bedroom townhouse apts rent cheap call 256-0707 or 256-0660 evenings

1 bedrm in 2 bedrm furnished apt center of town. Prefer serious student. Avail. June $250/mo Jan/Barb after 4 pm 253-7818

Summer sublet with fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Southwood apt 253-7422

4 bedrooms available at Swiss Village summer sublet with fall option call 253-5274

Two bedroom apt utilities included pool bus route fall option $370 Cliffside 665-8501

Brandywine summer sublet furnished, best offer, call 546-5382

2 Brittany Manor apts available 1 bedroom each 1 with fall option, low price, newly rennovated 253-3389

Female for own room Puffton $150.00 + Trish or Terri eves 549-4621

Four bedroom house, furnished, large kitchen, living room. pantry. Washer and dryer. Near Look Park. $300 or best offer 586-9506

1 bdr apt near Puffers Pond $200/m fall option 549-7522 (day) 542-2363 (n)

Summer sublet 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Brittany call 546-6660 after 6 PM

2 bedroom apt, Presidential, summer rent negotiable, Russell 253-9632 Bill 546-6270

Specious 2 bedroom apt. Furnished private and quiet 467-9832

One bedroom - prime location! House by Puffton. Two people 100/month June 1st Mary or Melissa 549-0528

Amherst Center apt for 1 person furnished June 1 to Sept 1 call 256-8079

Summer sublet fall option 2 br townhouse in Southwood call 256-0630

With fell option 2 bedroom apt in Southwood call 253-3111 Dan

Puffton summer sublet w/possible fall option for more info 549-8971 253-5045

Southwood 2 bedroom apt available Jun 1 - Sept 1 inexpensive 546-3282

Rooms in large house for rent 1 poss fall option Main Street on bus route rent negotiable begin June 1 256-0967

Rolling Green 1 bdrm Sue 546-1223 or Jodi 256-0807 after 7 pm

5 bedroom house kitchen living room bath off 116 in Sunderland 5 min from campus $650 mo 665-3918 fall option

Final Four Bound...

Gazelles beat Harvard 5-4 on Moryl goal

By ED CUNNINGHAM
Collegian Staff

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. - At the outset of every lacrosse season there are hundreds of teams preparing for a successful campaign. Few have dreams of a national ranking or a shot at the national tournament. As they say every year at this time when the dust settles and the NCAA quarter finals of women's lacrosse are history...and then there were four.

The four finalists for 1984 are Maryland, Delaware, Temple and the University of Massachusets.

Interim UMass head coach Polly Keener had said time and time again that this was a young team with a lot to learn and work on. "They learned," stated Keener. "They have the capacity to play under pressure and they have gained a tremendous amount of experience."

An early season 7-4 loss was revenged on Saturday. The Gazelles defeated Harvard in the NCAA quarterfinals by a one goal margin 5-4 to advance to the final four.

The locals traveled to Cambridge and pounced on the Crimson right away, scoring the first two goals of the contest. At the end of the first half UMass was still up by two, but the score was 4-2.

The game became a power vs. power struggle with neither team willing to fold. Harvard was able to push two goals by the stingy UMass defense and the score was knotted at four.

The game remained tied until the 1:07 mark. If the end result was not fitting, it was at least typical for this team. The second leading scorer for the Minutewomen, Linda Haytayan had the first shot but bounced it off the post on the near side. The ball rebounded out into someone's awaiting stick. At the end of that stick was the leading scorer for UMass, Pam Moryl. Moryl wasted no time in sailing the game winner into the twine, for the game winner.

The locals have a week to prepare for next Saturdays game at Boston University which will be their toughest of the season. UMass (9-5) faces undefeated Maryland (15-0-1), the number one seed in the tournament.

Temple will face Delaware on Saturday as well and the exact order of the top four teams in the nations.

Sports

Gorillas top Post, fall short of playoffs

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

Seamus McGovern fires in his first goal of the season despite the efforts of the Post defense. The Gorillas won the game 18-8, but finished at -10 on the season, short of an NCAA playoff berth.

There will be no playoffs this year for the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team, despite an impressive 18-8 drubbing of C.W. Post here Saturday before a small, but enthusiastic crowd at mud-drenched Boyden Field.

The lacrosse poollsters determined yesterday that UMass should stay in its tenth position in the country, and that Delaware would receive the last playoff spot up for grabs.

It was not a disappointing season for Garber's Gorillas. They went 8-4 on the year, a good comeback after last year's unfortunate 5-10 season. They defeated some impressive teams, the likes of Army, Hofstra and Cornell, but also lost some games they could have won (a 9-8 overtime loss to Brown at home).

They did play well Saturday. The defense was strong, the offense ran the fast break well, and they dominated ball control for much of the second half. They played well enough in fact, that some of the seniors playing in their last game for UMass were happy even if they didn't earn a berth.

"It's been a great comeback, even if we don't make it. We played a great last game," said Co-Captain John Mincone.

"It was great to win our last home game. In the second half, we came out and scored a lot. Everyone played really well," added Mincone's defensive partner, Barry (Sleepy) Cain.

Finally midfielder Rich (Vito) Messina summed it up for most of the seniors. "We played very well. We were very excited to play our last game at home. I loved playing at UMass and I loved my four years here."

The game itself was a contest for the first half and was even in Post's favor after the first quarter.

"It was a good win. In the first half, they came to play. They dominated early and outplayed us. We regrouped and ran more lines at them. We finally got the fast break going. The defense was tough, and has been tough all year. These guys (Mincone, Cain and Tommy Aldrich) play a one-on-one and don't get beat," said Coach Dick Garber.

The Gorillas came out almost as sluggish as the weather.

Post came back with two quick goals, before Peter Martino tied it up half a minute later with the first of his two on the afternoon. But Post responded back, to take a 3-2 lead after one quarter.

Bubba Sandford and Ken Freeman sandwiched fast break goals around Messina's screen shot to put the Gorillas up 5-3.

C.W. Post came up with a goal six minutes later to trim it to 5-4, before Mike Fiorini put UMass up by two again. Post hung tough, and scored 11 seconds after that goal to end their first half output.

Tom Lukacovic (four goals) and Greg Fisk both put in Fiorini passes to give the Gorillas an 8-5 halftime lead.

Martino opened up the second half scoring with an unassisted run down the middle of the field. Post cut it to 9-6, before UMass uncorked a barrage of goals.

Lukacovic and Fiorini both got their second of the game assisted by Hatton, off Post mistakes. Lukacovic then got the hat trick from Messina on a backhand shot to make it 12-6 UMass.

Seamus McGovern got his first tally of the season, 27 seconds later off a Stu Orns pass. Sandford finished off the third quarter scoring, which the Gorillas dominated at both ends of the field with his second fast break score.

In the fourth quarter, Lukacovic got his fourth, while Sandford and Freeman (with two in the quarter) both got hat tricks around two garbage goals for Post to make it an 18-8 final.

Minutemen take two from Providence Friars

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Alleluia. Rejoice and be glad. For the University of Massachusetts baseball team has risen. And just in time to turn what was, at midseason, a rapidly sinking ship into a full-throttle U-boat.

Yes, they are 18-25. But yesterday's doubleheader sweep of the number two-ranked team in New England, the Providence College Friars, indicates that maybe, just maybe, these guys aren't as bad as their record indicates. Perhaps the first three-quarters of the season was just a bad dream and now reality beckons with an obliging hand.

Whatever, yesterday's 7-5 and 4-1 twin-killing was a result of near flawless Minutemen baseball. Clutch hitting and masterful relief pitching can claim partial credit. The balance goes to outstanding infield defense, which bailed UMass out in the second game with three doubleplays, and an excellent five-inning performance by starter Jim Knopf, also in the nightcap.

In the opener, UMass reached Providence's Chuck Howard (a no-hitter to his name a few weeks ago) early, scoring twice in the first on three singles and two Friar errors and once in the second on a leadoff homer by Dan Clifford. UM could have and should have garnered more in the second inning, loading the bases after Clifford's blast, but Todd Comeau, who led the UM single season hit record of 54, set by Doug Welenc in 1969 in the nightcap bounced into a 6-4-3 DP.

Providence stormed back in the fourth, scoring five runs on six hits, including five singles. When the Friars elected to lift Howard after five, the Minutemen took full advantage in the sixth, battering a wild John Hindle for four runs, two coming home on an Angelo Salustri double to left. Matt Subcoz, who came on in the fifth, retired eight consecutive Friar batters to pick up the win.

Proving that the ninth time is always a charm, Jim Knopf tossed aside the memory of eight frustrating starts to pitch well enough to face only two batters above the minimum in five innings of work. The hitters managed single tallies in the first, third, fifth, and sixth to provide the support.

Softball postponed

The University of Massachusetts ended up their season Saturday with a long bus ride. Saturday's doubleheader with Adelphi University was washed out by the rain ending UMass' season at 29-12.

The Minutewomen left Amherst at 11:30 Saturday morning with the game still on only to drive to Stamford, Conn where Coach Elaine Sortino called to check with Adelphi officials, who then at 1:30 called the game citing wet field conditions and the possibility of injuries.

— GERRY deSIMAS

Celtics beat Knicks, advance to semifinals

BOSTON (AP) - Larry Bird scored 28 of his career play-off high 39 points in a devastating first half as the Boston Celtics rolled Sunday to 121-104 victory over the New York Knicks, moving into the Eastern Conference finals in a bid for a 15th National Basketball Association championship.

Robert Parish scored 22 points and Dennis Johnson 21 as the Celtics overwhelmed the Knicks in the seventh and deciding game of their conference semifinal.

What happens to a dream deferred?

Does it dry up
like a raisin in the sun?
Or fester like a sore -
And then run?
Does it stink like rotten meat?
Or crust and sugar over -
like a syrupy sweet?
Maybe it just sags
like a heavy load.

Or does it explode?

"What's happening Nigger" they said to me,
Lying there in pain and agony.
Being beaten brutelly by a white man,
For stealing some of his tasty good ham.
Next thing I knew, I was dead,
With my wife and children at home. Never again to be fed.

NEWS

A Black news service publication connected with the Collegian for the sole purpose of distribution

Monday, May 14, 1984 Volume 12 Issue 22

Dare to look inside!

by Tracey Bryant
Oneida Fox
Donette Wilson Nummo Staff

NUMMO NEWS wants to know has anyone in the community learned from the past acts of racism that have plagued our campus this year and years past. Most did not get treated in the sensitive manner that they warranted.

These few examples merely represent the more numerous everyday incidences of racism that are ignored, overlooked, or laughed at.

The people perpetuating racism are the ones who cry, 'You're overreacting, you're paranoid; and anti-white.'

They further insult our intelligence (and humanity, by tring to justify - and in actuality defend, their racist statements, decisions and policies.

By pleading ignorance and hiding behind structure they explain to us that WE misunderstood, and misinterpreted what they insist is constructive criticism or light humour.

"Racism is prejudice reinforced by the power of a society's institutions." Since the days of slavery whites have controlled American society. They control the government, the educational and judicial systems; the industrial, military and business institutions.

"...If this country is to continue to move forward we must change our attitudes about race. Education provides the impetus for progress, and in order for us to effect real social change, we must achieve real educational reform. If we are to flourish, racial inequity and awareness must be priorities for the students of today, and the teachers of tomorrow."
(Quotes taken from the SCERA Anti-Racism Team editorial on racism as printed in the COLLEGIAN on May 8, 1984.)

The following pages review a few examples of racism that were brought to light in the past year.

Retrospective on Racism

What is the meaning of this cartoon?

School finances aided Jackson's History visit?

by Petar Abraham
Collegian Staff

The speech given last Thursday night at the University of Massachusetts by Democratic presidential hopeful Rev. Jasse Jackson was partially funded by University sourcas using student funds.

A total of $2,250 was spent on the speech with the Board of Governors (BOG), the Student Government Association's (SGA) Finance Committee and the Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs office contributing $1,250. Afrik-Am, a Recognized Studant Organization, (RSO) added the remaining $1,000.

John Ruddock, presidant of Students for Jesse, a new RSO, requasted money from the Department of Public Safety (through the division of Studant Affairs) and from the Board of Governors. Ruddock, according to the Registrar's Office yesterday, is not currantly a studant at UMass and was withdrawn on Novembar 8, 1983.

Records in the SGA trasurer's office revaal that the BOG contributed $400, the vice-chancellor's office put up $350 and the SGA finance committee gava $500, all of these from funds collected from studants for the purpose of studant affairs.

The breakdown of the $2,250 budgat, provided by Eric Nietzche, *(spelled Nitetzche in the original article)*SGA Trassurer, shows that $350 want to rent out the Fine Arts Center for tha speech, $300 went for sound equipmant, $250 a piece paid for publicity and the work of the physical plant (barriars and trash cans), $400 want to simulcast the speech to tha Studant Union Ballroom, $100 went toward "hospitality," $50 paid for the printing of tickats and $100 each went for badges and miscellaneous costs.

"He (Jackson) is coming to UMass not so much as a presidential candidate, but as a Black History Month keynote speakar because of his longstanding commitment to black history and culture," said Sharon Davies, Five Collega Campaign coordinator for Jackson, in an interview prior to the speech.

Ruddock maintained befora the visit by Jackson that "(the speech) is going to be on black history, political and social changes that have been made in recent years." But that contradicts the speech's emphasis, which was clearly on Jackson's political campaign.

"No honoria, no financial endorsemant is being mada by the Students for Jesse, the SGA or any University affiliate. We are providing support service, for him to come to a forum for cultural expression which we feel is needed," Ruddock said before the speech.

Jackson was supposed to be the keynote speakar for the initial presentation of Black History Month, but the fiary minister only briefly mentioned that celebration, instead spending most of his time attacking President Ronald Reagan's policies and boosting his own candidacy.

For all intents and purposes it was a campaign rally, complete with signs reading "We Love You Jesse," Black History Month would have mada an excellent topic for a man with Jackson's qualificatios, but it would appear his speech was an appeal for votes.

People at the speech wara handed cards asking for contributions to Jackson's campaign fund. Tha cards wera addressed to Jackson's local headquarters.

"John Ruddock came to me asking for funds to simulcast tha speech and because I thought it would be a big part of Black History Month, so I gava (the funds) to him," said Mike Railly, chair of the BOG.

"As it turned out it was basically a campaign rally," Railly noted.

Dennis Madson, vice-chancellor of Student Affairs, said too that Ruddock asked for funds. "The sponsoring student organization (Students for Jesse) (spelled Jessee in the original article) asked for security personnal and wa responded with two uniformed officers (who ware on ovartime) and members of the Public Safaty office administration staff," he said.

So what happened is that Ruddock asked for, and raceived, $750. Tha SGA, as mentioned, added $500.

Whan Georga McGovern, another Democratic hopeful, was on campus the day before Jackson, neither tha SGA or the BOG gave any funds at all. The security costs, according to Madson, "were small."

Why was John Ruddock, a non-student, allowed to solicit money? Can Ruddock be the president of a studant group? Ruddock could not be reached for commant yesterday.

Jesse Jackson may have fooled people into thinking he was only going to speakabout Black History Month, and if that is the case, the University is at fault for giving money towards his interest. Why were people allowed to hand out cards asking for money? The speech, from every accent, was a campaign rally, not a historical talk.

This University needs to examine its procedures for providing funding for political candidates and to studant groups that support candidates. A public university should not have to give funding for candidates with campaign chests more substantial than student resources.

The questions arise as to whether student monies should be used in support of any candidate and does the appearance of Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey on the stage constitute an endorsement? Students appear to have little actual say as to where the SGA, BOG or Student Affairs money goes after representatives are elected, and it is doubtful that most intended their money to be used in support of any particular candidate.

from the Wednesday, Feb. 8, 1984 issue of the Collegian

Jackson's part of History

from the Feb. 10 issue of the Collegian

TO THE EDITOR,

Regarding Petar Abraham's news analysis of Feb. 8. It is amazing to sae how Abraham's criticisms seem to arise only in tha face of doubt. If Mr. Abraham is deeply compellad to provide studants with information about what their monay is financing, I suggest he rasearch the whola pictura and not just skatch out his own biases.

Students paid thousands of dollars for repairs on the chancellor's house. Students funded the largast (monetarily speaking) little 'mini' store. Furthermora, for years a larga chunk of the Student Government Association's (SGA) budget has gone to UPC, whether or not thay fill thair quota of 'good lina-ups', as long as they kaap a running deficit. Funds hava also been provided for othar performancas when the nature of the performance was previously unknown. All recipients of such funds were not students.

The point is that students have constantly funded proceedings while being totally ignorant of allocation procedures as wall as being totally removed from any decision making process.

Peter Abraham chooses to hit the limelight by making himself shina with the print of the front pages. By doing so he attacks a major avent which aroused numerous people, many of whom pay their SATF quota, and do in fact have a right to choose who they want to come and speak. No rasons implied, the eloquence of an orator does not depend upon the conditions or topics of their performance.

Jesse Jackson did in fact start off Black History month with a boom. He addressed Black History and more importantly the historical factors affecting present situations. The realm of disussion did encompass cultural, political, socio-economic, and historical issues of humanity, all of which are directly related to the sentiments surrounding Black History Month. It would be violently ignorant to pretend tha Jesse Jackson is not the presidential candidate that he is. Should he have come and acted as if he was not the man, who besides being an extremely competent candidate, is an important figure in Black history as it moves through the present? I believe this was Abraham's notion, to separata one's beliefs from one's self.

Mr. Abraham should first analyza his own raalities before trying to divide and condemn what is maaningful for others. Maybe self-analysis could provide some insight about the extent to which his cultural biases push him to interrogate such a humane performanca aliciting hope and harmony.

AMY MARION
AMHERST

Explanation for editor's suspension

A week ago today, a nationally syndicated cartoon was printed on the Editorial/Opinion page of the Collegian. Many raaders, especially members of the Third World community, were offended by the content of the cartoon. Two days ago, Yadira Betances, the editor of the Black Affairs page of the Collegian, wrote an editorial criticizing the newspaper for printing what the Third World community felt was a blatantly racist cartoon. Yadira was subsequently suspended from her position by me. However, I have rescinded that suspension.

The editorial cartoon generated a somewhat unexpected response. In making the decision to print the cartoon, the Editorial page editor felt that it portrayed a desperate situation which still exists in parts of Africa, through no fault of the people living there. By printing the cartoon, the editor felt he was making the community more aware of this situation. His intent was not to offend any members of the community.

Unfortunately, many people were offended. The content of the cartoon could understandably be interpreted as racist, although that was not the Collegian's intention. The Editorial/Opinion page serves as a forum for the free discussion of important issues. The cartoon in question tried to do this by using "shock value;" some believed it went too far.

Continued on page 2

Collegian insensitivity purposeful?

Now, Big Brother (Collegian editors) may deem that the following words must be censored or abridged. But, rest assured that if critics of Collegian policy are suppressed within the Collegian institution, they could come out when the powder keg is ignited.

Recently, by many accounts, the UMass Daily Collegian Board of Editors have tamporarily degenarated this student run newspaper into a racist and reactionary mouthpiece spouting ugly sensationalism and Orwellian double talk. Let me explain.

First, their degenaration began on 2/2/83, the day the Rev. Jasse Jackson appeared on campus as the keynote speaker in a celebration to kick off Black History Month. The Collegian editorial staff, in all its arrogance, denied Yadira Betancas, the Collegian Black Affairs editor, her right to write the cover story on the front page of the Collegian. Instead, they assigned their so-called objective reporter Pater Abraham to cover the story while denying Yadira one of two complementary tickets in their attampt to keep Black Affairs from covering the naws event.

Well, if I do say so, I feel the above was nothing but an insult to the UMass Third World Community as well as the Black Affairs staff. It is well known that the Black Affairs staff, by tradition and raspect, wera always the writers who covered major naws stories affacting the Third World community on the front pages of the Collegian.

Second, the spouting of their sensationalism and double talk manifasted itself with the front page printing of a so-called "News Analysis" antitled "School Finances Aid Jackson's History Visit" (P. Abraham 2/8/84) and the printing of a racist cartoon on its editorial page.

The article turned out to be nothing but a partisan editorial against the Jackson campaign, an aditorial which belonged on the editorial page. Even where Mr. Abraham neglected to be balanced. For one exampla, Abraham seeked the opinion of Michael Reilly on the Board of Governors (BOG), who contributed money for a live videocast to over 800 students in the Campus Center Auditorium. However, that is one opinion. Abraham did not ask members of Afrik-Am, the studant senate, or of Student Affairs for their opinions. These groups contributed far mora money for production costs than the BOG. So much for balanced...journalism.

Also, Mr. Abraham nor the Collegian should have the right to peer into a student's personal academic or administrative record. This kind of activity should be left solely to the University administration and the SGA registrar, not to peeping Toms.

As for the editorial cartoon implying that Arabs and their nations are responsible for starvation in Africa, no words can express my shock and anger. Perhaps a history lasson is needed. Starvation in Africa is a direct result of European and Amarican Colonialism and Neo-Colonialism. There was naver wide-spraad starvation in Africa until the Europeans invaded and imposed a foreign social, political, and economic system upon Africa. For exampla, Africans wera forced to grow cash crops for European markets instead of food for themselves. These economic ralationships and many mora with the Capitalist World still exist. Starvation will and when these imbalanced relationships end. Arabs are in no way rasponsible for these colonial ralationships, rather, they too ara a victim of them.

The Collegian owes the Arab, African, and Univarsity community an apology for their insult. Imagina what would happen if the cartoon read "Zionist League gives America money instead of feeding starving Palestinians." Imagine the outcry this would arouse.

However, the Collegian's racism and double talk has not anded. Yadira Betances was suspended last Wednesday after printing an editorial concerned itself with the credibility of a newspaper that prints racist cartoons. The bossman has rationalized that Yadira has criticized the paper by "implying that the Collegian is racist." This act, he said, ws "injurious, and not in the best interest of the newspaper."

This is outrageous. In a meeting with members of the Third World community on Thursday, Dec. 16th, Collegian Editor-in-chief Joel Myerson answared yes when asked if the Collegian was institutionally racist. Well, isn't it ironic that the same person who suspended Yadira for critiquing Collegian racism has now admitted to Collegian racism.

Many questions must be answered. How was Yadira's editorial damaging? At tha least, has not her editorial helped te Collegian's credibility? And, isn't their a double standard at work hara? Why weren't the editors who allowed the printing of a blatantly racist cartoon and a front page editorial suspended?

I don't know about you, but I am permanently offended. Maybe now is a time for change. Perhaps an independent editorial board should be estblished to insure responsible journalism. Or, mayba a complete restructuring of the Collegian is needed, I sure hope it happens soon before the powder keg begins to burn.

Robert Teixeira, Coordinator, Third World Caucus

from the Feb. 21, 1984 issue of the Collegian

Continued from page 1

Yadira Betances was obviously deeply offended by this cartoon. Considering the situation, I can appreciate her need to respond to the cartoon as quickly as possible. She acted as one who has suffered the pain and indignation of racism.

I suspended her because of her method of responding, not because she doesn't have the right to express her opinion. The Collegian policies are very clear, and are necessary to maintain the high standards the paper has set for itself. No staff member should publically criticize the paper before bringing the issue to the Board of Editors. An issue which cannot be resolved by the Board can then be discussed on the Editorial/Opinion page. A suspension questions whether or not a violation has occurred. In my opinion, there was a question at the time. In light of the events leading to that suspension, I cannot justify making it permanent.

Joel Myerson is the Collegian Editor in chief.

Editor's note: The integrity of a newspaper depends on the legitimacy of its constitution. The suspension was invoked solely on the interpretation of the Editor in Chief.

from the Tuesday, Feb. 21, 1984 issue of the Collegian.

Editor's response to racism charges

As the Editorial page editor, and the person responsible for printing the cartoon "that screamed racism," two Fridays ago, I feel compelled to respond. Much controversy has erupted surrounding the printing of the cartoons and the events that followed.

Editors of the Collegian, including myself have been accused of being not only ignorant and insensitiva in deciding what to print, but of being racist ourselvas. I apologize that the intent of the cartoon was misraad, and seen as offensive to members of the community. It was seen as a detrimental attack on Democratic nominee candidate Jesse Jackson and on those people starving in Africa. The national syndicated cartoon (which, incidentally was printed in many papers of all political bents) was not meant to be racist by the author, and I cartainly did not intand on printing offensiva, or even objectionable matarial when I decided to print the cartoon. Thera are many Africans who do suffer at the expense of American and European multinational corporations. That was why I printed the cartoon; because it raised questions about the legitimacy of political contributions from outside the United Statas. My intarpretation was that the cartoon was not a negative stereotype but a reflection of someona genuinely concerned with the problem of starvation in devaloping nations. To me, the cartoon had political implications, and that was all.

The cartoon did present a lia in that Rev. Jackson did not accept campaign funds from the Arab league; the funds wara donated to Operation PUSH (People United to Save Humanity), an organization Jackson had been director of prior to his candidacy. Being an internationally syndicated cartoon, I assumed the allegation to be accurate, and for that I apologiza.

The response to the cartoon by mambers of the UMass Third World comunity was overwhalming, which leads me to believe that I made a mistake in judgment. To say, however, that I intentionally, or even ignorantly, printed the cartoon is to make an untrue and unjustified personal attack.

To be aware means to not make stereotypical ganaralizations. Unfortunataly that ideal has been completely neglected in this case. No critic even mentioned all the strong anti-racism articles and afforts that have been undertaken this year by the Collegian staff as a whole, and by myself as the Editorial Editor. If anyone had bothared to ask, they would have learned that I spent a good part of last year co-authoring a book on racism awareness training for people of all racas so that they may bettar understand and address issues of prajudice and opprassion. On the basis of this, and other effort I have undertakan, it would be unfair to accuse ma of racial ignoranca and insensitivity.

It is very hard for an editor to judge how somathing printed will be perceived by the public. UMass is divarse enough to generata controversy ovar any issua. But the issue of racism that has been raised this tima is a particularly ugly one because there are no two sides to the problem of racism. While the laws of segregation that legally subordinated blacks and other minorities have been repealed, racism still remains a subliminal cancer that plagues the majority of Amarican citizens, black and white. Racial prajudice and opprassion permeate the fabric of American society so deeply that sometimes those who claim to be most awara of the problems are the ones who are least willing to confront them in society and within themselves.

I strongly believe that myself, and the Collegian as a whole has confronted the issue. We hope to eliminate the type of attitudes that prompt the printing of racist material, but we also understand that in order to eradicate or discredit racist viewpoints, the issue of racism itself must be confronted, and brought into discussion in a public forum such as the Collegian editorial page. But to bring up any subject matter con-

Continued on page 6

Although NUMMO NEWS agrees with the above statement, we feel that the legitimacy of a constitution can not be the sole basis for defining the integrity of a newspaper.

A paper can not maintain its integrity if its definition does not match its actions (i.e., "a campus newspaper").

Collage photos by Ed Cohen, Segun Eubanks and Mark-Elliot Giles.

Yvette

from the Dec. 5, 1983 issue of Nummo News

On Friday, December 2, at approximately 6:00 pm., officers from the state and university police departments took Yvette Henry, a 20 year old Crampton Resident Assistant, into custody in connection with the rash of fires that have plagued Crampton dormitories this semester. Two hours later officials arrested Yvette Henry and charged her with two complaints alleging burning the property of another.

Friends and family of Henry, particularly from the Third World Community were shocked and outraged at the circumstances surrounding the investigation and arrest. Aside from the official announcement, police have not released any information concerning evidence of witnesses against Henry.

Students and faculty got together to help raise enough funds to get Henry released from Franklin County Jail in Greenfield, Ma. Bail was set at $10,000 and the group successfully raised the $1,000 needed for bond late Sunday afternoon. Henry will be arraigned Monday morning in Northampton District Court.

Black Woman Arrested in Crampton Fires

by Segun Eubanks
Nummo Correspondent

The arrest of Yvette Henry took the Third World community by surprise. Reactions of those who knew Yvette were that of shock and outrage. A resident of Crampton dormitory who asked not to be identified said that when the police announced Yvette's arrest more than half the people in the room broke down crying. "We just could not believe that Yvette could do that."

Reaction was similar to all those who know Yvatte as the news of her arrest quickly spread on a national level. We at Nummo News believe that the Black community and in fact all of the community must take a long hard look at this investigation and arrest. We must ask a lot of questions and demand a lot of answers before we accept the conclusion of the authorities.

First of all, let us consider some facts. Yvette Henry is a senior at the university. For three years she has maintained a high grade-point average in a very difficult major, Chemistry. Yvette has never been in any sort of trouble with the police and has a perfect record as a citizen.

Now let's ask some questions. Considering Yvette's circumstances, why was her bail so high? Why did police wait until late Friday to arrest Yvette, causing major difficulty in abtaining a bondsperson and getting access to funds? If Yvette is only charged with two out of twenty fires, why are police so anxious to pin all the fires on her? Think about these questions.

More facts: In a letter dated December 2, 1983 from the office of Dean William Field, Yvette Henry was suspended and barred from the university. There have been actual cases where male students were caught in the act of rape and were not suspended or barred. Why did they suspend and bar Yvette?

Why is it that Black administrators could get no information from police, student activities, or the Dean's Office? Yet immediately after the arrest Philadelphia's largest radio station, WKYW began announcing the arrest every fifteen minutes.

We need answers to all these questions. But there are two more very important facts that we must examine. 1) Of the five suspects the police announced, all of them were Third World women. In a study done by the university a few years back, vandalism was described as mainly "a white male problem." Yet all five suspect were Third World women?

The second and perhaps most important fact is that since Yvette was arrested, there have been three more fires, one of them in Crampton. The police have labeled these "copy cat" fires. What proof do the police hae that these fires were not set by the original arsonist? If Yvette is innocent until proven guilty why are the police so eager to brush these latest fires off? If the original arsonist is still out there aren't the police putting the safety of all of us in jeopardy?

We must seriously consider the facts and find answers to these questions and more. Nummo News believes that Yvette Henry should be immediately reinstated so that she may have the option of completing the semester. We feel that the university should continue extensive investigations of the most recent fires to find any possible connection. Finally, we must demand that the police present sufficient evidence to the community so that we may be assured of our safety on campus.

Lastly, due to the vast publicity of the case, there is no way that Yvette can come out of this without being seriously affected. Glenn Silva, UMass student Attorney General said, "I believe irreputable damage has been done to her character and she may never be able to continue her education." Yvette and her family needs the support and help of community and friends, regardless of the outcome.

from the Dec. 5, 1983 issue of Nummo News

Protest from a Community Minister

I am not writing this letter as an alumni holding two degrees from this institution, nor as member of the administrative staff. I am writing as a member of the community at large, because I feel a responsibility to raise some question - not because they stem from a consensus of the community or represnt a popular cause, but because moral conscience dictates it.

I realize that there are many facts of which I may not be well informed. If my concerns stem from ignorance, then perhaps they will be answered in order that the community at large may be enlightened.

On this campus two students are charged with two separate offenses. One, a young Black female charged with two complaints alleging burning of property of another. She was arraigned before District Court Judge Richard Connor on Monday, December 5, 1983. On this same date another student, a white male, was arraigned in Court Room Number One at 9:00 a.m. for allegedly raping a fourteen year old child.

One question to be considered is the value placed upon the separate offenses that would regulate the respective actions taken by the university. In the case of Ms. Henry, she was withdrawn from the university and issued a no trespassing order, barring her from setting foot on campus.

In the case of Mr. Briggs, it is my understanding that he remains a student in good standing until the jury reaches a verdict after hearing the facts in his case. Are we then to believe that justice shold be carried through in the latter example but not in the former? Or should we believe that the university takes stern sanctions against a student only when there has been national coverage and community outcry to convict someone? Or should we believe that if you are charged with sexually abusing and debasing the body of a 14 year old child, and potentially scarring that child's mind, that this is not worthy of, nor requires, university sanction? I personally believe that the alleged sex offender should have his day in court before being sanctioned by the university. So I applaud them for their sense of judicial reasoning and fair play in Mr. Briggs' case.

Is there a reason why Ms. Henry has not been afforded the same fair treatment? Or do we have two victims - both female - one a 20 year old college student accused of a crime and the other a 14 year old child who has been raped? Does justice fall short when a female is involved, or does justice fall short when one is a female and black? Is there a different set of standards applied when the subject is a white male, or a football player, who is accused of doing nothing less than raping a child? It is my fervent hope and prayer that these are not the standards applied in this case.

Much was made earlier about the psychological profile of an arsonist. If the experts are willing to consider this profile, I hope they will consider the following profile.

Continued from page 3

cerning racism is to risk having your own attitude towards it misjudged.

Each year, similar conflicts arise between the Collegian and groups on campus who feel they've been subject to adverse press coverage and prejudice. This time, critics have charged that the Collegian is helping to ignite "a powder keg" that will explode, presumably into a situation of increased racial tension. Wa hope that this won't be the case, and will do everything in our power to encourage positive dialogue and improved relationships between ourselves and those we have offended - something beneficial to everyone.

Josh Meyer is the Collegian Editorial Editor

from the Feb. 22, 1984 issue of the Collegian.

by Segun Eubanks
Nummo Correspondent

In Nummo News editorials of December 5 and 12, 1983, some questions were raised concerning the Yvette Henry case. Questions such as why Yvette was held for three hours and interrogated (without the presence of a lawyer) before her arrest.

Answers to some of these questions have been uncovered and have received publicity all over the nation, with the exception of Massachusetts. There seems to be a black-out of information in this area from the local press, including the UMass student-run newspaper the Collegian.

In a Collegian editorial (February 2, 1984) concerning the treatment of the case by area newspapers the article stated "As a student-run newspaper on this campus, our goal is to inform the public of prominent news events affecting the lives of people of the university - the bad news as well as the good."

Although we at Nummo feel that this goal is a noble one, we also believe that simply reporting the news is just one job of a responsible news organization.

Suspension violates due process

TO THE EDITOR,

The Collegian's policy of suspending members of its staff for "performance of official duties in a way to be injurious to the best interest of the newspaper" before guilt has been determined, violates the due process requirement on which the United States' judicial system is built.

I suggest that you clean-up this part of the Collegian's constitution containing this phrase, as it may be a source of further embarrassment to your paper. Finally, the Collegian may do well to review its policy about what it prints. My wish is that Yadira Betances, the Black Affairs editor will never have to write another editorial criticizing the Collegian for its insensitivity to the Third World community.

EUGENE BULL
THIRD WORLD CAUCUS

Cartoon is questioned

TO THE EDITOR,

I would like to know where the Editor-in-Chief of the Collegian along with the managing editor and also the editor of the editorial/opinion page have acquired their ethics. They have repeatedly felt justified in printing cartoons that are RACISTI As a Collegian correspondent and also a student of this University I am, needless to say, outraged.

They have insulted my intelligence and my people by thinking they have not offended us. I would like to see nothing less than a front page apology directed to the Third World and minority community.

If they continue to feel justified in insulting a particular community on this campus, then I would like to see them not print at all. It is an insult to the entire campus community to be exposed to trash.

At the beginning of this semester, racist cartoon number one was printed. The result of this was that the Editor of the Black Affairs page felt the need to write an editorial to somehow raise the conscience of the community.

She was subsequently suspended for her actions because she did not go through correct "procedures," meaning she did not show it to her supervisors so that they could discuss her editorial.

At that time I called for the suspension of Josh Meyer, who is the editor of the editorial/opinion page. This did not occur because the Editor-in-Chief, Joel Myerson, did not feel that the cartoon was injurious to the Collegian as stated in the constitution of the Collegian. This was also the base of reasoning used to suspend Yadira Betances, the Black Affairs Editor.

The result of the confrontation after the first cartoon was that Betances would be consulted when controversial cartoons and stories concerning the Third World community were presented to the Collegian. The question I now ask however is what good is a consultaion when if she does find something offensive such as the cartoon printed on Wednesday and her advise is disregarded.

The Black Affairs page is currently celebrating its 10 year anniversary. The page itself was started because of a cartoon that the minority and Third World community considered offensive and racist. How many times are we as a community to be subjected to this behavior?

MARILYN BOU
AMHERST

Justifying the Wrong One

by Segun Eubanks
Nummo Correspondent

Letter to the Editor,

I am writing this letter in response to the recent issue concerning alleged racist cartoons printed in the Collegian. To begin with, I would like to correct two basic points made in the letter written by Mr. Joel Myerson (Tuesday, May 1).

First of all, Mr. Myerson's explanation about the Ku Klux Klan cartoon was a good one. However, there was no mention what-so-ever about this cartoon in the letter written by Marilyn Bou (Friday, April 27).

The cartoons Ms. Bou objected to in her letter was the Hitler/Farrakhan cartoon ("printed on Wednesday" the 25th) and a cartoon "At the beginning of this semester" depicting Africa in a very negative way.

Therefore, it would seem that Mr. Myerson eloquently defended a cartoon that was not even in question.

Secondly, Mr. Myerson said that Louis Farrakhan (spelled wrong by Myerson) was quoted by the media as saying that Hitler was a "wickedly great man". This is only partially correct.

All the headlines in major newspapers only quoted the "great man" aspect and clearly implied that Farrakhan in some way worships or idolizes Hitler, although this is far from the truth.

The media also associated Farrakhan with the assassination of Malcolm X and has strongly implied the he wishes the same for Milton Coleman, the black reporter who leaked the story of Jackson's negative remarks about Jews (Newsweek, May 7, 1984). All these factors leading to "guilt by association" for Rev. Jackson and thereby hurting his presidential campaign.

It seems clear to some that the media has exploited, lied, and exaggerated these issues in order to cripple the campaign and the strong movement that has grown from it.

That is racism and bias and this is, I believe, what Ms. Bou is referring to about the cartoon.

In printing the cartoon the editors, at the very least, are supporting the racism and bias of mass media.

It was Mr. Meyerson, not Ms. Bou who misinterpreted the cartoon. For Mr. Meyerson to assume that the cartoon was not racist is a product of his own ignorance. And ignorance is no excuse for racism.

In closing I would like to point out that most good journalists (I would place Mr. Myerson in this category) usually write with consistency not contradiction. However, Mr. Myerson made a clear contradiction when he implied that Ms. Bou was biased because of her affiliation with Students for Jesse Jackson. First of all this is irrelevant, for we are all affectd by our environment and surroundings. Secondly, if Ms. Bou is biased then certainly Mr. Myerson, as Editor-In-Chief, must be biased in defending the Collegian. It seems he forgot the all-important rule: What's good for the goose is good for the gander.

Cartoons taken out of context

TO THE EDITOR,

Last Friday, a letter to the editor by Marilyn Bou questioned my ethics and the ethics of several other editors of the Collegian. However, rather than explaining her objections to two editorial cartoons published last week, she chose instead to attack me as racist, self-righteously assuming that her opinion about the cartoons is proof that they are racist. I think she has misinterpreted the cartoons and also does not understand the nature and purpose of an editorial page.

The first cartoon, drawn by Thomas Oliphant, a nationally syndicated cartoonist, deals with the recent trial in Greesboro, North Carolina, of members of the Ku Klux Klan accused of murdering several anti-Klan demonstrators. Even though there was overwhelming evidence against the KKK members (including a tape showing the killings), they were found not guilty. The cartoon pictures two men in robes winking at each other, with the caption "Free at last, free at last" (a quote from Martin Luther King, Jr.). The tragic irony of the quote seems obvious: the American legal system has once again prevented America's minorities from being free from racism.

The second cartoon, also drawn by Oliphant, questions Jesse Jackson's relationship with Louis Farakhan, who was quoted as saying that Hitler was a "wickedly great man." As a Presidential candidate, Jackson's relationship with Farakhan has to be questioned. By refusing to disassociate himself from Farakhan, Jackson has left himself open to being assumed to agree with Farakhan's views. This type of guilt by association is one of the drawbacks of being a public figura. Ms. Bou's objections to the cartoon may in part be due to the face that she is an active member of the Students for Jesse group on campus.

The editorial page axists to allow the free expression of people's views. The opinions expressed represent the author's or cartoonist's opinion, not the opinion of me, the editor of the editorial page, or the Collegian. Although possibla controversial cartoons are shown to several editors, the editorial page editor still has final say over what is printed. We try to print everything that we receive, which is the responsibility of an editorial page. Hopefully, the editorial page urges people to think about issues that are important to others in the community.

Many people on this campus are quick to condemn the Collegian as racist, sexist, anti-Semitic, homophobic, etc., because they don't agree with something they read on the editorial page. Some of the opinions are prejudiced, but that doesn't mean that they shouldn't be expressed.

These opinions exist, and not printing them will do nothing about erasing them. The editorial page should be a clear reflection of the community, not a collection of ideal statements or of opinions that agree with the editors'.

JOEL MYERSON
Collegian Editor-in-chief

Nummo News would like to extend a special good-by to Michael Nauls who did so much for the community this past year.

• • • NUMMO STAFF • • •

Tracey Bryant — Editor In Chief
Andrea Baker — Business Manager
Oneida Fox — Reporter
Yvonne Mendez — Layout Editor
Charles Rinehart — Graphics
Judith Russ — Typesetter
Donette Wilson — Researcher

• • • Contributors • • •

Ed Cohen — Photographer
Segun Eubanks — Correspondent
Marc-Elliot Giles — Photographer
Russell Jordan — Correspondent

Address all letters to the Editor to:
NUMMO NEWS, New Africa House 103

Bryant Lewis would like all who read his Roving Reporter caption to know that he meant it purely in jest.

Editorial

Ignorance is not Justifiable

by Donette Wilson
Nummo Staff

I have been living in Grayson dormitory for the past three semesters, and as the days go by, I find that I am faced with ignorant racist attitudes daily. When I first entered the university, I had no problem adjusting to system.

One day, the confederate flag that hung, so proudly, on the wall in the room next door, was called to my attention, by a friend. I immediately went to the occupants of the room and asked one of the young men "why is the flag on the wall?" The response that I was given was that "the flag represents my heritage." I asked the young man to be more specific and he said that his forefathers fought and died for "freedom of choice." I then asked him, "The choice to do what?" He responded, "THE CHOICE TO HAVE SLAVES IF THEY WANTED TO." If that is not racist, I don't know what is.

Another day, I was passing through Field Dormitory, and on one of the doors, I found, to my surprise, a postcard with "Greetings from down home Dixie," written on it. The card had a confederate flag and a few examples of southern life. For instance, there was a "southern mansion." There was a child, who just happened to be Black, sitting on a bale of cotton, with cotton pickers, who again just happened to be Black, standing in the background, looking as though they really enjoyed their work. I was insulted and I didn't really know how to act being a Black woman.

As I walk around the UMass campus, I notice the confederate flags hung proudly everywhere. I only wish that people would take other's feelings into consideration. At least take a history course and find out what does the Confederate flag represents. I was told by the young man next door that this flag is only there for the sake of decoration. After being confronted about something like that and I see it still there, I can only conclude that there was some truth to the response that I received. I have labeled the young man a racist and that will never change until that flag is removed from the wall and put away in a box, and then thrown out. And if there is some real truth to his feelings, burned.

During the fall semester of 1983, many more racist acts were performed. One day, I went into one of the bathroom stall in my dormitory and written above the toilet was "If Black is beautiful, then I just created a masterpiece." I don't think that things like that are really amusing.

Around Christmas, my floor decided to hang stockings. A fireplace was drawn and the lounge looked very festive. One day after returning from a long day of classes, the last thing I needed to see was something that would upset me.

I went to the lounge to see if my "secret santa" had left something for me, and surely santa did. Written in the drawn flames of the fire place was the name "Yvette Henry." I was so outraged at the insensitive attitudes of the people here at UMass.

I feel as thourgh this society cannot exist without Racism, and I am going to hollar "RACISM" every time I feel that something offensive is done to me. I hope that all racist acts are dealt with by every person that has been injured by them.

What has really changed?

As the Year Unfolded

by Oneida Fox
Nummo Staff

Have you noticed how many times the Third World community "misunderstood" and "misinterpreted" material and actions in this past year? Has anyone noticed how many defense letters of explanation have had to be written by the Editorial page editor and the Editor in Chief of the Collegian?

Where's there's that much smoke, there's bound to be at least a small fire.

In this last issue of the semester reviewing past incidences of racism on campus, Nummo News does not intend to attack the 3Collegian, although it would seem so. The Collegian is simply the most visible institution on campus by nature of being a newspaper; so it is easier to retrace their steps.

Also most of the publicized incidences have occurred within Collegian because their actions are more visible to the public eye. By far, the Collegian is not the only institution on campus that has wreaked havoc with the dignity of the Third World.

But Nummo News would like to extend our appreciation to all those who protested any or all of the racist material and incidences that have occured this year.

We urge everyone to learn about history, racism, and to widen their cultural perspectives so that they can better discern the information they received.

Is (Are) doing their job to eradicate racism?

1. The UMass faculty

2. The Administration

3. The Police

4. The Collegian

5. UMass Students

H--- No!!!!!!!!!

Nummo News hopes that the above statements will be taken in the heavy-hearted manner that it was intended. Thanks Josh!!!

Note to the Collegian: We at Nummo News do feel that you are part of an institutionally racist system. But we hope that in the future you will take serious strides to eradicate the racism therein.

As the year unfolded at UMass, one would think that this was the year that racism "ran rampant."

The year opened with an epidemic of fires (predominantly in Crampton House, Southwest) which brought in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who ingeniously narrowed the suspects from 26,000 students (less than 6 per cent Third World) to five Third World women in Crampton House. The FBI with efficiency in mind charged a Black Resident Assistant in Crampton with setting one of the fires in that dorm. Legal ethics and procedures were abandoned; which subsequently led to her arrest.

After she was officially ostracized from the UMass campus and made headlines nationally, the charges were dropped because of lack of evidence. She is presently suing university officials and others connected with her arrest for $13 million.

What happened to Yvette Henry is a violation of human rights; instead of being innocent until proven guilty, she was guilty and then proven innocent. This act should have made the issue of racism a sensitive one, but served only to make acts of racism more blatant.

The Collegian printed a cartoon that depicted Africa as underprivileged and Jesse Jackson accepting money from the Arab League to further his presidential campaign. When the Black Affairs editor wrote an editorial denouncing the cartoon and the Collegian Board of Editors, she was suspended. The justification given was that she did not follow the proper procedures in printing the editorial. After two days the editor-in-chief of the Collegian, ignoring proper procedure reinstated her.

The previous cartoon was the beginning of many more statements the Collegian believed would make light of an issue, that clearly is no laughing matter; and ignorance can not defend.

Jackson is then accused of illegally using university money to further his own political interest.

From the above, one would believe that whatever message was intended by these racist staments was gathered, but the Collegian was not yet satisfied. More racist Third World statements continued to pour in: enough clearly was not enough.

Last month Jackson was libeled once more in a cartoon. Farrakhan and Hitler are represented with Jackson and are going to shape up the Rain-bow Coalition - in other words Hitler is Jackson's man.

The preceding are just a few illustrations that have plagued this institution of learning - where students seem to recapitulate the errors of the past - for this academic year.

This year's incidences prove that some sleeping dogs should not be allowed to lay. It is important for feelings of frustration, hostility and anger (i.e., racism) to be placed out in the open. In order for people to redress the fact that racism exist in a blatant way, once the initiative to surface it is present.

Racism will not end until those capable of being racist stop and take a good look at their history, and learn that apathy can be as detrimental as malice.

In general people have to first admit that there is a problem, and work to improve it. The problem will not go away on its own and neither will Third World people.

Face it we are here to stay, try to make the best of it; learn to live with us and not ridicule us!

NOTHING!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Good-bye Tracey Bryant our fearless leader!!

Oneida, Donette, Judy and Shree will miss you!!!!

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

Volume CXIV, Issue 72 © UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) © Tuesday, May 15, 1984

Collegian photo by Larry Cabana

FAR FROM HOME — School of management professor Ron Mannino tries to convince the swans outside the school of management to return to the Campus Pond.

UMass/Amherst adopts own Latin motto today

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian Staff

For the first time in its 12-year history, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will have its own motto, "knowledge is beneficial to the Commonwealth," following an official announcement today.

The slogan, "reipublicae scientia prodest" in Latin, was written by senior classics major Karen McDonald, 22, of Ralls, Texas.

It was selected from 114 entries in a contest offering $100 for a motto that would represent the educational purpose of the University better than the current saying it shares with the state, according to the professor who came up with the motto idea.

"We felt often times the University was presented in a negative way in the public eye, and a lot of the good things that happen on campus were not presented in the press," added Vincent Cleary, a professor of classics. "We felt this was a positive thing to do for the school."

Cleary said the new motto was chosen because it had good rhythm and was "catchy and apt." He said the entries were narrowed first to 50 then to 10 finalists, most concerning knowledge, duty, light or truth. Some were ruled out for being too close to other schools' mottos, he said.

Runner-up mottos in the contest include "Educentur omnes," or "let all be educated" by graduate student Linda Yuretich, and "cumsapientia officium," meaning "with knowledge, duty" by Jerry Jungster, a graduate mathematics student.

The entries were evaluated by a nine member committee composed of faculty, graduate and undergraduate students, a librarian and Roger Roche, the director of design and production services at UMass.

Roche said the motto will be designed in Latin typeface and will be used in brochures and publications from the Amherst campus.

The official state seal and motto, and Indian logo encircled by the slogan "with the sword he seeks peace, but only under freedom" in Latin, will still be used on Universtiy correspondence, since changing this seal would require approval from the Board of Trustees, Roche said.

McDonald, who will graduate in December with a classics degree concentrating in Greek and Latin, said she was "shocked" to learn her motto had been chosen.

"I was trying to come up with abstract ideas for knowledge," she said, explaining her choice of words which refer to "all kinds of knowledge" at the University.

Panelists sound warning on cults' recruiting tactics

By BOB BURGESS
Collegian Staff

The "heavenly deception" used by cults like Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church to lure people into membership was discussed last night at the University of Massachusetts. Former Unification Church member, the national director of a cult awareness group, and a psychologist familiar with the circumstances surrounding young peoples' "susceptibility" discussed people's attraction to cults.

Speaking hours after a U.S. Supreme Court decision not to hear Rev. Moon's appeal on his tax conviction, Doug Lenz, a former "Moonie" said, "In a cult, your spiritual essence is the most important thing. They take you in, feed you, and make you believe that the cult's beliefs are the absolute truth."

Lenz, a doctoral candidate at UMass, said these beliefs are based on lies, or what is called "heavenly deception." From the time a person is first approached by cult recruiters, through the initial indoctrination period, to the 18 or 19 hour work days, cult members make the new member feel that he or she is "spiritually important."

But the real reasons, Lenz said, concern money.

"I was too valuable to the church, working long hours and making as much as $2,000 per week, for it to allow me to see anyone not in the church," he said.

While traveling cross-country after graduating from the University of New Hampshire, Lenz and a friend were approached by a Moonie. They listened to what he had to say, which included a free meal, and were eventually taken to a camp in northern California to spend a weekend.

Lenz said "that weekend" turned into two years of devotion to Rev. Moon and the Unification Church, before he was "deprogrammed" with the help of his parents and former Moonies.

Collegian photo by Pam Mednick

Dr. Michal Langone

The third panel member, Dr. Michal Langone, said that "susceptibilities" in people aging from 18 to 25 is what make them prime targets for cults.

"In your age group, stress is not uncommon. And when you are under stress, you are open to other ways of looking at the world, because you don't feel your ways are working" Langone said.

Tianjin exchange planned

UMass reaches out to China

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

After three years of planning and negotiation, the University of Massachusetts and Tianjin University of China signed a formal agreement yesterday "for a reciprocal exchange program and cooperation in academic and research activities."

According to the agreement, "Both universities will try to develop friendly relations on the basis of equality and mutual help."

Areas covered under the agreement include teaching, scientific research materials, laboratories and research centers, terms under which faculty may give visiting lectures, joint research programs, exchange of graduate students and advanced scholars, and mutual visits and correspondence.

The agreement does not specify the number of faculty of students who will participate in the exchange.

The idea began with a visit to Tianjin University in 1981 by former UMass Provost Loren Baritz, Director of International Programs Barbara Burns, and Professor Teng of the Asian languages and literature department.

Tianjin University is primarily a technical university. "We are very strong in engineering, but we are starting to develop a liberal arts program," said Dr. Shao-Xi Shi, president of Tianjin University. There are currently 8500 Chinese students, although Shi said the number will be brought up to 15,000 students by 1990.

There are 87 students from mainland China now attending UMass, Burns said. "Scholars started coming here after normalization of relations between the U.S. and China in 1979."

"Higher education receives very strong support from the Chinese government. Students pay only for their books," Shi said.

INSIDE:

Childcare workers circulating petition ..... p. 3

Sri Lanka kidnappers announce they will release Ohio couple ..... p. 2

A last look at men's lacrosse ..... p. 16

"Someday I will go to Oregon."
— Peter Abraham

World and National News

AP Laserphoto

SOCCER FEVER — Italian policemen, dressed in riot gear, fire tear gas against more than 10,000 soccer fans fighting for position to buy tickets to the Cup of Champions between Liverpool and Rome at the Olympic Stadium Monday. At least 10 people were injured, including three policemen.

Sri Lanka kidnappers say they will release Americans

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The kidnappers of an American couple said yesterday they have agreed to free the newlyweds, abandoning their demand for $2 million in gold but asking for the release of 20 jailed comrades.

The Eeelam People's Revolutionary Liberation Front said in a statement released in Madras, India, that it had "directed our comrades to release the two Americans in custody." It said the decision was in response to appeals by Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and the top elected official of India's Tamil Nadu state, M. G. Ramachandran.

The Tamil separatist group has "assured us they would release the couple" today, said K. Chockalingam, chief secretary of the Indian state in Madras.

The U.S. Embassy in Colombo and the American consulate in Madras said they had received no word yet on exactly when the couple, Stanley and Mary Elizabeth Allen, would be freed.

Soviet bloc will hold its own games

Sports officials in Poland said yesterday that Soviet-bloc nations are preparing to sponsor sports events in various countries to substitute for the Los Angeles Summer Olympics, which are being boycotted by the Soviet Union and some of its allies.

Meanwhile, President Reagan said yesterday he did not think there was "any action that I could take that would be prudent," to get the Soviets to change their minds and return to the Games.

"Naturally I would do anything if I thought it could have a result. And I have encouraged citizen groups and our people to do this," he said at a White House news conference.

Asked what he thought was the real reason for the Soviet boycott, Reagan replied: "Again, you'd have to ask them. The reasons they have given are absolutely false and we've been able to prove it. The Soviet claim that there might not be sufficient security... we were able to prove no one in the history of the Olympics has ever done as much as we're doing to ensure that."

A Polish official, who like other Polish sources spoke on condition he not be identified by name, said alternate sports events would not be held at the same time as the Los Angeles games to avoid conflicts with the Olympic charter, which specifically forbids "counter-games."

Sports officials from the Soviet Union and its allies met last week to discuss organizing a "counter-Olympics," but decided instead to divide events among Communist nations, said a Polish sports journalist. He declined to say where the meeting took place.

So far, eight Communist countries have withdrawn from the Olympics, but Poland is not one of them.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union's top sports official said today that his country's decision to withdraw from the Summer Olympics is "irrevocable."

Missile 'traitor' gets life sentence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — James Durwood Harper Jr., who pleaded guilty to selling U.S. missile secrets to communist agents, was sentenced yesterday to life in prison by a judge who called him a "traitor."

U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti said Harper has never expressed regret for his crimes. The judge said he would recommend Harper never be paroled, calling him "a traitor to this country."

Digest

By The Associated Press

Plant owners reach agreement on Seabrook reactor financing

CAMBRIDGE -- Owners of the Seabrook nuclear power plant unanimously approved a plan yesterday they said should save Seabrook's first reactor and avert bankruptcy for the plant's main owner.

Work on Seabrook I was halted abruptly April 18 when Public Service Company of New Hampshire was unable to borrow construction cash. Work on Seabrook II ended earlier.

The 16 utility-owners of Seabrook announced the agreement following an eight-hour closed-door meeting. Robert Hildreth, of Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, said the plan eliminates the main obstacle of earlier proposed solutions to the Seabrook crisis -- making other owners responsible if Public Serice was unable to meet its payments.

House Democrats step up attacks on Speaker McGee

BOSTON — Democratic House Speaker Thomas McGee was challenged yesterday to answer allegations that his aides have tried to help Republicans run for the House in an effort to bolster McGee's re-election campaign.

McGee refused to act on an unusual petition for a party caucus signed by 39 House Democrats loyal to Rep. George Keverian. Keverian is challenging McGee for the speaker's position next fall.

"I have not encouraged anyone to run against any incumbent Democrat," an angry McGee said in an impromptu news conference outside his Statehouse office.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — Cris Schuster
Copy Editor — Ian Polumbaum
Layout Technician — Will Hopkins
Photo Technician — Andy Heller
Production Supervisor — Mat Atkins
Production — John Wielgus, Mike Lennon, Tim Riviere
Dode B. Levenson, Lisa A. Reynolds, Jon O'Hearn

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award-winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's Ice Cream

LEARN TO FLY

inexpensively earn your pilots license University Club open to five colleges. Cessna based in Northampton
546-4827 Introductory Rides 665-2577

Dastardly Dans
TUESDAY and THURSDAY NITES
$3.00 all the draft beer you can drink
9 pm - 12 midnight

MASSACHUSETTS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
Gas Saving Tune-up
4 Cyl $34.95 6 Cyl $39.95 8 Cyl $44.95
We'll install new resistor spark plugs, points & condenser, adjust idle speed set timing, test battery and charging system, inspect rotor, distributor cap, PVC valve, ignition cables, air filter, and vapor canister filter. Includes Emission Test and Printout.
Lube, Oil & Filter $15.99
includes 5 quarts of 10-40 oil and safety check
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
"FULL SERVICE TIRE STORE"
78 Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst, MA
Across from Watroba's Store 549-4704

CAR STEREO PACKAGE
$99
AM/FM Car Cassette and your choice of any pair of car speakers
Wide selection of Co-Axials, Tri-Axials, 4 and 5-way Speakers ranging from 20 to 300 watts
THEO'S AUDIO
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, Mass. (413) 586-9855

Collegian photo by David P. Deuber

HERE, CATCH! — Kyle Cambell, 4, of Amherst practices his Lacrosse playing at Boyden Field.

University childcare workers petition for benefit status

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

Members of the University of Massachusetts Childcare Employees Association are currently circulating a petition with a list of demands related to their lawsuit against the University to upgrade the employment status of 22 non-benefited childcare workers.

Claire Hamilton, association member and lead teacher at the North Village center, said the petition is a result of a lack of response and concrete information from University administrators.

The petition lists seven demands for "improved, quality daycare," Hamilton said, including the demand that all current 03, or non-benefited, positions become benefited, that there be no reduction in the daily nutrition program, and that parent fees not be increased.

Hamilton, a benefited worker, said she became involved "because I was concerned and convinced that benefiting these workers will increase the overall quality of daycare.

"If these positions are not upgraded to full employment and benefit status, we're going to have a greater turnover in staff and we may lose high quality teachers to other local daycare centers," she said.

The petition was initially circulated last Wednesday, Hamilton said, and completed petitions will be collected at the end of the week and presented to Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey.

The chancellor is currently overseeing a program to review childcare positions and staff for the eventual purpose of changing some non-benefited positions to benefited ones.

In addition to the petition, association members met with University Dean of Students William F. Field last Wednesday to discuss their demands, Hamilton said.

"The association is concerned that the chancellor's program allows staff to apply to a system, not specific positions. We have had very little official information as to what will happen," Hamilton said.

Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson has said that an estimated 10 to 13 positions will become benefited at a cost of $60,000 to $75,000.

Handicapped Affairs offers grant

By LARRY BOUCHIE
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Office of Handicapped Student Affairs is now accepting applications for a $325 grant to be used for a study or project related to disability issues.

Laura Rauscher, assistant coordinator for the Office, said the grant is sponsored in memory of Dr. Anthony Melchionda, a former University Health Services physician who also assisted the local Stavros Foundation, a handicapped advocacy group.

Melchionda's widow, Michelle, was largely responsible for establishing the grant, Rauscher said.

"After my husband's death in February of 1983, his friends and colleagues in the community made contributions for the grant," Melchionda said.

"This is the first grant and we hope to keep the fund going in the future, but we haven't yet worked out all the details," she said.

Any disabled student can draft a proposal for a project and turn it in to the Office in 231 Whitmore before June 1, Rauscher said.

The project must be related to a disability topic, Rauscher said.

"I'm hopeful that this program may ultimately be helpful to anyone who is doing related disability work or research," Melchionda said.

In addition to working for the University for 11 years, Melchionda was also the director of Hampshire College Health Services for three years.

The final decision will be made during the first week of June by Melchionda and the Office of Handicapped Student Affairs, Rauscher said.

Police arrest man with fake ID; seek dining commons table thieves

By TOM MIDDLETON
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts police reported that a 19-year-old Wellesley man was arrested at the Blue Wall bar entrance at 4:30 p.m. Friday and charged with possession of an altered license and marijuana.

Three circular tables totalling $225 were stolen from the Franklin Dining Commons between 6 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 a.m. Friday, police said. The incident is under investigation, but there are no suspects, police said.

A 19-year-old Easthampton man was arrested at 2:15 p.m. Saturday near John Adams Dormitory for transporting alcohol and disregarding a stop sign, police said.

A 28-year-old non-student was given a trespass notice at around 4 a.m. Monday, when he was found sleeping in the basement of the Old Chapel.

Gauges, a gas cap, a stereo system, and a stick shift ball valued at over $100 were stolen from a car in P lot. There are no suspects, police said.

A 35 mm camera valued at $100 was stolen Friday night from a 4th floor room in Kennedy dormitory.

A false fire alarm was reported on the 16th floor of Kennedy at 3:40 a.m. Saturday. The alarm was reportedly caused by a vandalized smoke detector.

At 3:13 a.m. Saturday on the 10th floor of John Adams dormitory, a fire alarm was triggered by a damaged water standpipe. There was some water damage, but no value was given. The case is under investigation.

Apply soon for Fulbright grants

Those interested in applying for the 1985-1986 Fulbright grants fro graduate study abroad should apply soon since at leat 500 applications are expected by the October 19 deadline.

Selection for the grants is based on the applicant's academic record, the quality of the proposed study plan, knowledge of the language and culture of the country involved and personal qualifications.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens who will hold a bachelor's degree before the beginning date of the grant.

Those interested in more information should contact Professor Joseph Lake at 545-2052 or 437 Herter Hall.

This year, the three UMass students who received Fulbright grants were: Scott Lindell in fisheries and genetics, to Sweden; Barry Keehan in managment studies, to Japan; and Leslie Stainton, with a Master of Fine Arts, to Spain.

—TAARA EDEN HOFFMAN

Everywomen's Center extends hours

The Everywoman's Center will be open extra hours for students studying and researching women's issues.

The Center will be open from 7 to 10 p.m. on Wednesday, 4 to 10 p.m. on Thursday, 4 to 10 p.m. on Friday, 2 to 10 p.m. on Sunday. Next week it will be open from 4 to 10 p.m. on Monday, 4 to 10 p.m. on May 22, and 7 to 10 p.m. on May 23 and from 4 to 10 p.m. on May 24.

Women's Issues advocate leaves SCERA for UConn

By REBECCA THATCHER
Collegian Staff

After coordinating the Women's Issues Team and the Anti-racism Team of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA) for three years at the University of Massachusetts, Tildy Turchinetz is leaving to attend the University of Connecticut graduate school of social work.

As a full-time professional advocate for SCERA, Turchinetz organized students to work on oppression issues. She was an organizer of the recent anti-pornography conference at UMass.

Turchinetz said women have gained much in recent years at the University but there is still much to be done.

"There have been a lot of victories, a lot of strides have been made," she said.

The student government's commitment is demonstrated by their funding of the Women's Leadership Project and the Women's Issues Team, she said.

The University has an "amazing" women's studies program and one of the best women's centers in the country, she added.

But, she said, there are very few women professors, and the standards used to hire professors and award tenure are biased towards men, she said.

Also, she said, the problem of violence against women on campus is not given enough attention.

"We worked on it and they gave us a few call boxes and a few lights," she said. Too may women don't take night classes or go to night meetings because they are afraid.

"More lights wouldn't change that," she said, "but it would help."

Turchinet said it is very important for men to be involved in pro-feminist groups and organizations such as Men Against Violence Against Women.

"As they say, men are a large part of the problem and they have to be a large part of the solution," she said.

"The year-long campaign against pornography organized by the Women's Issues Team has been successful because it has touched everybody.

She said the ridicule the campaign has been subjected to is also a demonstration of its success.

The connection between violence against women and pornography is a hard thing to recognize, she said.

Heidi Holland, a member of the Women's Issues Team, said Turchinetz will be missed "not just in SCERA but in other parts of the University she has affected."

Turchinetz graduated from UMass in 1981 with a degree in legal studies, and was involved in the Women's Issues Team and the Radical Student Union as an undergraduate.

Collegian photo by Larry Cabana

Tildy Turchinetz leaves SCERA

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

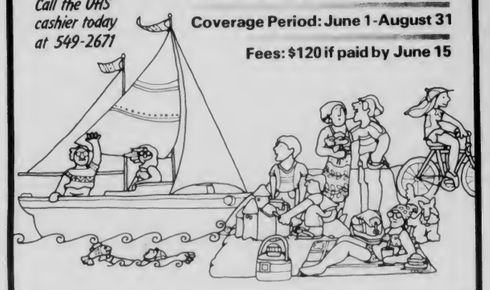
Summer Health Coverage

Basic Student Health

Eligibility: Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith and UMass Students

Coverage Period: June 1-August 31

Fees: $60 if paid before June 1
$75 if paid during June



Comprehensive Dependent Health Plan

Eligibility: Dependents of UMass Students who are enrolled in the 1983-1984 Supplemental Health Benefits Plan

Coverage Period: June 1-August 31

Fees: $120 if paid by June 15

Call the UHS cashier today at 549-2671

BLUES IN THE BLUE WALL

18+ & PUBLIC WELCOME

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS MAY 17, 1984

BOARD OF GOVERNORS PRESENTS

the LEGENDARY BLUES BAND

SPECIAL GUESTS THE WILDCAT O'HALLORAN BLUES BAND

formerly THE MUDDY WATERS BLUES BAND

THESE BLUES VETERANS HAVE PLAYED ALL OVER THE WORLD WITH ARTISTS LIKE ERIC CLAPTON, THE ROLLING STONES AND JOHNNY WINTER

FREE!

THIS RARE OPPORTUNITY TO SEE THE LEGENDARY BLUES BAND IS BROUGHT TO YOU FREE OF CHARGE BY THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS AS A THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT OF BLUES IN THE BLUEWALL

Come to the party. It's free!

99¢ "UMass" Painters Caps

Hooded Sweatshirt $15.95

Sharon S. - Photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

SUN SYSTEMS

by RuggedWear Ltd.

The Rugby Dress

Vivid pinstripes on a soft background for all Spring and Summer wear. Ideal mediumweight in pure, breathable cotton.

House of Walsh SUN SYSTEMS

32 Main St., Amherst • 253-3361 • Mon.-Sat., 9-5:30

SUN SYSTEMS

by RuggedWear Ltd.

RUGBY SKIRT and TANK TOP

Separates that go together for your active lifestyle. The Tank Top is specially patterned and cut for women in bright stripings that coordinate beautifully with RuggedWears cotton skirts.

House of Walsh SUN SYSTEMS

32 Main Street • Amherst • 9:00 AM - 5:30 PM Mon. - Sat. • 253-3361

Civility commission urges cultural diversity requirement

By JEANETTE DeFORGE
Collegian Staff

The addition of a Human and Cultural Diversity course requirement for all University of Massachusetts students was suggested by the Chancellor's Commission on Civility at a forum yesterday in the Campus Center.

The commission did not reach a decision as to what type of classes would be required, however, and the suggestion was only the first step in the process to make new core requirements.

The commission would like to begin requiring the diversity studies in the fall of 1985, said Joel Naroff, chairman of the General Education Council, which is developing ways to rearrange academic programs at UMass.

Psychology Professor Ervin Staub, chairman of the subcommittee on civility, said he believes students must learn how people from different cultures make judgements. Students should also study the products of other cultures and aspects of their philosophy, he said.

Students will also learn social principles of war and why and how cultures hurt each other, Staub said.

He also said the greatest resistance to a core requirement comes from the faculty.

Grant Ingle of the Office of Human Relations said a questionaire given to students showed that many believe there is a problem on campus in dealing with diversity and they also want to learn about other cultures.

The General Education Council has proposed that courses studying the cultures of European, African, Asian, Latin American, Middle Eastern and Native American peoples should be offered as part of the program. Courses studying women should also be offered, the council said.

Fern Johnson, acting associate provost for undergraduate education, said she was concerned that "students can end up taking a course involving their own culture."

In response to Johnson's concern, Meyer Weinberg, education director of the Horace Mann Bond Center for Equal Education, proposed a uniform course which discusses diversity in general. The Chancellor's Commission deemed this proposal impractical because of the wide range of topics that would have to be discussed.

$ Part Time Summer Jobs $

Many positions in the retail auditing field being held open for UMass students. RGIS inventory specialists has 4 offices in Eastern Mass. We need dependable people with transportation and phone. No experience necessary - only basic math skills. $4.75 to start with salary reviews to $6.00. Must have weekend availability; daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule. Opportunity to work full-time next January break. Great reference for your future.

Contact Student Employment of office nearest you.

Boston north to 128 - 938-9119
Boston and south - 699-4014
North of 128 - 692-3040 West of 494 - 366-6471

Attention Seniors!

The 1984 Index will be distributed this fall.
If you would like the yearbook to be mailed to you,
please send your permanent
address and $2.50
check for postage and handling to:
Index, 103 C.C.
by May 26.

MOLLY'S
ANTIQUE AND VINTAGE CLOTHING
THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
233 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST, MA 01002
413-549-6446 MON-SAT. 10-5:00

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

TONIGHT!

SENIOR NIGHT!
Complimentary 1st Drink 8-10:30 (w/ I.D.

2 FOR 1 8 to 11:00

50¢ DRAFTS ($2.50 Pitchers)

 ALL NIGHT! ******

WEDNESDAY:
Wet T-Shirt/Tan Contest
MALE and FEMALE
50$ cash prizes
75¢ MIXED DRINKS 8—11
NO COVER

★ NEW ENLARGED 2—STAGE DANCE FLOOR
THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB Disco • Top 40 • Rock

Letters

Setting the record straight

To the Editor,

Despite our continued efforts toward educating the campus community concerning our stance on the First Amendment and our goal to persuade the stores at the University not to stock Playboy, Penthouse, and Playgirl, there still seems to be considerable confusion and misinformation about this issue, and far too much eagerness to shout "book banning" and "censorship" before a serious examination of the facts.

First and foremost, it is important to recognize that this is not a First Amendment issue. The First Amendment prevents the government from interfering with the freedoms of speech and press. It imposes no limitation whatsoever on private action, such as the private action involved with a bookstore operated for the benefit of UMass students and supported by their student fees. According to a statement that appeared in the Daily Hampshire Gazette two weeks ago by Dean Alfange, a political scientist who teaches Constitutional Law at UMass, the First Amendment says nothing about what a bookseller can or should sell. Clearly, then, the First Amendment is not an issue here.

The Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography has never proposed the use of the courts or the power of the state to institute a "ban" on pornographic materials at the University. We have rather proposed that the stores on campus, as an act of prevention of violence against women and children—in response to student sentiment as expressed through the Undergraduate Student Senate—eliminate the sale of products which there is reason to believe may contribute to such violence. The difference is an important one, to us as well as to our critics, as we would not support the use of any possibly unconstitutional action. We are not suggesting that the University community obey a dictate imposed from without. We are suggesting that the University community voluntarily institute a moral action from within.

Second, it is important to keep in mind that the University Store has always practiced selective purchasing, which apparently to some people constitutes "censorship." The University Store does not carry every single magazine that is published. It decides, it selects, which ones it wishes to stock. This is not a matter of censorship. It is simply a matter of choice.

The same freedom of choice that any bookstore merchant exercises, the same freedom of choice any library exercises, to decide which books and magazines to acquire. If one insists on calling this freedom of choice "censorship," then one must accept that the University Store has always operated under a policy of "censorship."

The Univeristy Store refuses to carry—or censors, if you will—certain published materials, such as Hustler magazine, publications put out by the Ku Klux Klan or anti-Semitic materials. As one manager of the University Store told us, he would not stock such materials because he operates according to his own biases and does not think these products are appropriate for the University Store to carry. We of the Ad Hoc Committee are simply asking the managers of the University stores to remove woman-hating literature by applying the same standards that keep them from stocking racist and anti-Semitic literature.

Ad Hoc Committee on Campus Pornography

Regents don't understand library

To the Editor,

Ralf Ratsson's complaint of May 7th about inadequate support of the library, to which I had referred in a Faculty Senate meeting, should not be directed at our present University administration, which gave top priority to the library budget request. The problem is with the Regents, who lump our request in with those requests made by other commonwealth-supported institutions of higher education, and in comparison with these it looks very large. They seem not to realize that library budget serving the need of a major research university has to be of a totally greater magnitude from those libraries serving the needs of mainly undergraduate institutions.

There is also a similar lack of understanding in the administration and legislature of the Commonwealth.

Students and alumni could be our best advocates for a better understanding of those concerned with granting our library budget requests. Comparison of our budget with that of other industrial states such as Ohio and Michigan, even when these are still in a recession with heavy unemployment, should eventually be persuasive.

Please note that my given name is not Robert as referred to in Mr. Ratsson's letter.

Howard O. Brogan
English Dept.

No congratulations on this one

To the Editor,

Although Josh Meyer's column Thursday was intended to be read in a "lighthearted manner," I found it tasteless and maybe more appropriate for the personals section.

The Editorial/Opinion page has always been reserved for the voicing of sensitive, well-authored points of view. For some strange reason, I've always thought the columnists learn from their experiences to provide the reader with objective points of view to promote healthy journalism and enhance a paper's credibility. Through the flammable nature of this column, Mr. Meyer (whom I've always considered a responsible journalist), has created a gap in that credibility which makes me sad. Somehow the intent of his piece brings to mind the addage "Do as I say, not as I do." I'm sorry but congratulations on a "job well done" are not due here and I'm sorry that Mr. Meyer has to leave his education here with so many unresolved feelings about the University. Was it necessary to share his personal cynicism with all of us?

Ann Voorhees
Amherst

5 Days Only

TIMEX SALE

May 14 through May 18
10 - 4:30

Over 400 watches to choose from

From $13.99 reg. $19.99 to $48.99 reg. $69.99

30% OFF list price

Sale located on the concourse in front of the store

UNIVERSITY STORE

Graduate to Carbur's Five-College Club

Now that you've survived countless all-nighters, constant cramming, and endless exams, you've graduated to Carbur's Five-College Club.

Why not treat Mom and Dad to one...

...A formidable, five-decker feast featuring shrimp salad, seafood salad, sliced baked ham, turkey breast, roast beef, lettuce, tomato, and your choice of dressing!

Served with all the "Pomp and Circumstance" you could ask for!

For you Magna-Cum Laudes, the Rib-it Room specializes in prime prime rib and sumptuous seafood.

CARBUR'S
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
AT THE ELMWOOD, RT. 9 HADLEY, MASSACHUSETTS (413)586-1978

EDITORIAL/OPINION

HIS WORK COMPLETED, DR. FELDSTEIN LEAVES THE JUNGLE

Puffing their lives away

Smokers cramp my style. It's tough to act suave and look like you have a grip on things while reeking of damp tobbacco residue. You don't have to be a smoker to experience this scene again and again. Part of the problem is that people who would normally be so sweet as to bake you a cake if you were not feeling well or do some other sacrificial act in your behalf, suddenly decide to drop every courtesy they ever learned and proceed to torch up a butt. I don't know, maybe I should thank them for giving me a dose of essence de damp soot after shave.

Dode B. Levenson

Then there are those who try and make up for the fact that they smoke by claiming that they always dump out their ashtray—like it really makes a difference. I then have to wonder aloud if they have ever been in the same room with one of their ashtrays for more than a few seconds. The tragic truth is that you can be in a coliseum-sized room, and there could be you on one side and the ashtray on the other and you'd know it. Why? Because there is a thick, smokey paste that is formed when the hot cherry of a Marlboro grinds with the cheap plastic of the average ashtray.

Typically, the smouldering cloud manages to seek out my nostrils and deposit its foul stench on my clothes, my hair, and my books. My mouth begins to form a flavor that best resembles a molten tire which has been baptized in hell. Do you have any idea how hard it is to concentrate on anything when the odor of stale cigarettes is tugging incessantly at your nostrils? A smoker sure doesn't. If s/he did, then there wouldn't be such a widespread problem.

Now I hear the whine of the cigarette smoker every time s/he breaks open another pack. "You don't understand. I'm addicted. I'd love to quit, but I can't help myself." It's at this point where I begin to question how they got themselves in such a morbid situation in the first place. The list of excuses is as long as the waiting list for housing. "My parents smoked, so I guess I just picked it up." It's a damn good thing for your sake that your parents didn't make a habit of torturing baby puppies, now isn't it? You'd be wanted in all 50 states.

"I did it because I thought it was real cool. I thought the opposite sex dug it." Yeah, well I think that everyone on this campus would agree that torching up is the best aphrodisiac, especially when coupled with those sexy bright yellow teeth.

Think I'm being a little too hard on them? Not a chance. They have their own sections in restaurants, for crying out loud. They have their own section on planes, in movie theatres, trains and many other places. My goodness, they even have their own toothpaste! I think we've catered to the smokers long enough. I've had it with going to people's homes smelling like a well used ashtray. I really begin to care when I feel nauseous because I carry their nicotine calling card on my clothes.

The main problem is that smoking is so interwoven into our social culture that it is almost unquestionably tolerated everywhere you go. Some people might explain that they are only one person, and if they quit there will be plenty of others to more than make up for it. To these people I would give this piece of proverbial advice: Our environment is like the spider's web; even the smallest dew drop can make the entire web ripple from side to side.

So give us a break, take up chess or something, chew gum, play sports, I don't know, use your imagination, it's certainly more novel than lighting up. Try and do something that will allow you to leave your mark on people— but preferably in some form other than that of a stale cigarette.

Dode B. Levenson is a Collegian staff member.

There is help for Bulimia sufferers

To the Editor,

The 19-year-old sophomore's eyes frantically darted about in Munchys while looking at the shelves. What would be most satifsying? What foods could be devoured within the short walk back to the dorm? What would most easily "come up?" The last question pounded into the young woman's mind as she reached for the pint of French Vanilla ice-cream. The ice-cream was expensive, but worth every cent in flavor to her. In the back of her mind she knew that it was a waste though, as soon it would be purged and flushed away.

This portrayal of a woman suffering from bulimia, the binging disease, is not a true account, but certainly could be considered reliable information about what is happening on our college campus today. Bulimia can be defined as recurrent episodes of binge eating, followed by self-induced vomiting or purging through the use of laxatives and diuretics. Some of the symptoms include inconspicuous eating, swollen glands, and a percieved inability to stop eating voluntarily. There are many women suffering from this disorder at UMass, and evidence shows that it is prevalent in many of the dorms. Some women are known to binge and purge up to 18 times a day, but help should certainly be sought even if the number of times is minimal.

What can we as part of the University do to help these women who are suffering? Most importanlty we should accept the fact that we are all different and should be accepted for who we are, and not what we look like.

Help is available at UMass through such groups as the Everywomen's Center. Women on this campus should realize that they are not alone and that other women at the University are dealing with eating issues. Although many suffer from this disease, by getting help, it can be overcome.

Pamela Orenstein

Things to do, yesterday

I have been at UMass for three and a half years, and I've had so many enriching experiences that I'll never have room to remember them all. I've had so much fun I should be arrested for it.

Now that I'm leaving, I don't want to go. I'm trying to hold on to a past and a present that I've cherished so much I don't want to trade it in for anything, even a great job in the real world. (Although I don't have any job yet). I must leave, but I relinquish my grip unwillingly. There is so much here I haven't experienced yet, so I guess I'll write about a few of the things I always wanted to do myself (or at least write about).

Josh Meyer

I wish I had investigated why the clocks are never on time at UMass, and why so many other things never seem to work the way they should.

I wish I went to "The Maze," the underground pipes, and the other secret attractions at UMass (of which I have seen a few).

I admire the physically disabled students of UMass, and their incredible courage in achieving an education at such hardship. I regret never volunteering with the office of Handicapped Student Affairs so I could help out, get to know them, and learn from their strengths and convictions.

I wish I had gone down to Florida for one Spring Break, instead of staying at school to catch up on work, while never succeeding.

I wish I could have done more, personally and at my jobs to fight racism, sexism and other forms of oppression. I wish people would have taken the efforts I did make as sincere attempts at consciousness-raising. For the most part they did not, but such is the nature of armchair radicals.

I wish I had spent more time studying. I wish I had gotten up before noon on at least one weekend, and perhaps even have made it to the library. But as one famous author, Hunter S. Thompson once said, "Acting like an animal takes away the pain of being a man."

I wish I had taken the chance to express my gratitude and appreciation of those professors and staff who really tried to help and advise me. I wish I had taken all those courses I always wanted to, but blew off. And I wish I hadn't taken some of the ones I did.

I wish I had the time to tell all my friends how much they have meant to me. I wish that everyone had the time and inclination to do likewise.

There are a lot of things I wish I had done when I was a student at UMass. Thinking about them so that I may learn from my mistakes and omissions helps— regretting them does not. Now, as I graduate, I should try to remember that commencement means a time of beginning and of change (Webster's Dictionary). While it means much more than that, I'm glad I can think about leaving with optimism. Because even though I know I'll miss this weird place, I'm psyched to be entering the real world.

Josh Meyer is the Collegian editorial page editor and a graduating senior.

The Power of Students

The recent announcement by the United Technologies Corporation stating that they will not be returning to UMass is a success not only for those of us against militarism (UTC is the second largest Defense contractor) but for student empowerment as well. It is extremely important that the students become more aware of the corporate takeover of public higher education and the long range implications of such changes.

Paul Hetznecker

Increasingly this institution like many across the country has become beholden to big business in order to supplement funds for education which have been dramatically cut back under the Reagan administration.

Nowhere is this corporate control more evident than our own Board of Regents, the central decision making authority over the state's system of higher education. Board members include the ex-chairman of the High Tech Council and ex-chairman of the Mass. Business Roundtable, directors of Wang, Analog Devices, EG&G, and Bank of Boston. The makeup and decisions of the Board have, since its inception in 1980, reflected the interests of big business in this state and have thus been a matter of much discussion and controversy. There has, however, been very little discussion regarding corporate contracts with the University, whether it be with Conference Services, academic departments or any other area of the university system.

Every year big business pours millions of dollars into the University. Specifically UMass signs approximately 125 research contracts with major corporations annually. Not only are many of these contracts shaping the direction and priorities of the University, they are doing so at the expense of its autonomy. A case in point is the Polymer Science Department. Although the department is reputedly one of the best in the country, the department's relationship with its contractors is shockingly one-sided. Academic excellence means very little if those who profit from academic research have more control over what is being done than those who actually conduct the research.

The University cannot publish or disclose any research under this contract without a three month prior notification and the consent of the company. Finally Exxon holds patent rights to all research conducted during the project and is not obligated to pay any royalties to the University. Other contractors with the department include Mobil, Texaco, Monsanto, General Motors, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, Goodyear, DuPont and Xerox, all of whom have direct or indirect interlocking boards with Exxon. What may appear to be somewhat diverse research interests from various industries may in fact be the boundaries for this area of scientific knowledge as prescribed by the profit-seeking interests of big business.

While it is clear that the corporate takeover of public higher education has benefited the sciences and high tech-related fields, it has become more and more evident that the price for this takeover may in fact be the very essence of public higher education, academic freedom and autonomy. This is an area in which students should be greatly interested and involved because it is your education, your future and ultimately your freedom which is being infringed upon by this corporate takeover. Therefore I propose that the Undergraduate Student Senate and the Graduate Student Senate establish a permanent joint committee with the Office of Grants and Contracts and the University administration to review all current and future contracts, grants, gifts and investments that the University has with private industry and the Federal Government. The establishment of such a committee would be a very important step toward creating an empowered student body and a more democratic university. Whether it be weapons research, investments in South Africa or the maintenance of academic freedom, the business of the University if your business.

Paul Hetznecker is a UMass student.

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

Fall Work Study Positions
available in Undergraduate Admissions Office.
Clerical, 10 hours per week, day and evening hours
If interested, call 545-0222

Summer Jobs Available
Evening security workers/ushers wanted for Bright Moments Jazz Concerts on July 5, 12, 19 for approx. 5 hours/shift (limited number of additional hours available also) Work study preferred but not required. UMass students only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and applications available from Dave, 207 Hasbrouck, 545-0190 thru Fri. 5/25

Just Fun Arcade
presents
the
Thursday Night
Free Play Party
Hop on the bus
(Northampton 7:35/8:05)
This Thursday!! or drive down to
Just Fun Arcade
in the Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley Play all the machines
from 8:30 - 10:30
2 hours of fun for $2.00
Take a Break ★ ★ Take a Break

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
Tonight
LADIES 1st 2 drinks 99¢
7 pm - 1:00
Tom Gehrke Live!
10:00 pm no cover
Rt. 9 Hadley across from Mt. Farms Mall

Do You Like To Do Summer Child Care?
Referral Services:
Evenings, weekends, days
List your times available
and other information
on our Summer Babysitting List.
Come to University Child Care/
Child Care Office
First Floor Bulletin Board,
Berkshire House

MAY 17, 18, 19, 20
sidewalk sale days
&
31st AMHERST JAYCEES
community fair
MAY 17, 18, 19, 1984

Thursday, May 17
*All Day Long - Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
2:00-9:00 pm - Rides open

Friday, May 18
*All Day Long - Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
2:00 pm - Fair Opens: Booths, Food, Games, Prizes, Crafts and Rides by Fannelli Shows
7:00 pm - Coronation of King and Queen

Saturday, May 19
*All Day Long - Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
10:00 am - Parade from Community Field through Center to Amherst College
10:00 am - Rides and Booths open
11:00 am - Merchants' Auction - part 2
1:30 pm - Demonstration by the Hampshire Gymnasts
3:30 pm - Demonstration by the Hampshire Gymnasts
4:30 pm - Oompah Band/Community Band Concert
Midnight - Fair Closes

Sunday, May 20
*All Afternoon 12-5 - Sidewalk Sales

Sponsored By Amherst Downtown Council
In Co-operation with WTTT
WTTT 1430
There's No Place Like Downtown Amherst, Massachusetts

UVC
Just a reminder that Union Video Center will remain open this summer and video workshops will still be offered.
For more info contact:
545-1336
216 Student Union
Summer Hours:
M-F 10-2

If it was worth 4 years, It's worth another second. ...Buckle-Up!
DOT
A message from University Health Services

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS
$7.00 *
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
* Valid with Barb & Julie only C
FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment
Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

Arts

Art and omnicide

The SHADOW of the BOMB
University Gallery

By CHARLES FRANCIS CARROLL
Collegian Staff

A visit to the University Gallery at the Fine Arts Center will most certainly keep the pressure of finals in perspective, for the current exhibition showing through June 10th, The Shadow of the Bomb, reminds us of our common humanity (as opposed to individual concerns) by expressing the ultimate threat against us: the threat of nuclear annihilation.

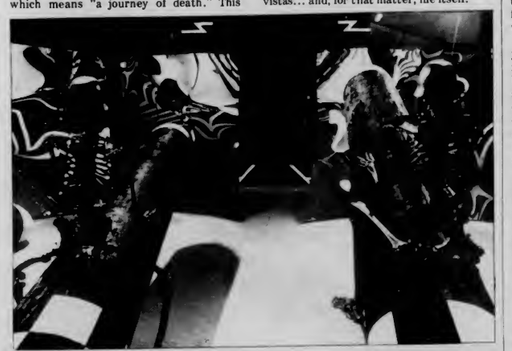
Grades become relative, if not entirely irrelevent, when we are confronted by the images in The Shadow of the Bomb, for they bear the grim truth that the University is in fact a nuclear target. You, at least I, would be terrified if someone pointed a loaded gun at us, but somehow we seem unperturbed by this unseen menace.

This, then, is the tour de force of the exhibition and, furthermore, the raison d'etre for the new political art fast emerging out of the ruins of Modernism: we need to be made aware of the world around us and its immediate implications for us. Shadow of the Bomb illustrates the scenario between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. who have, in effect, planned to carry out a holocaust so vast and unilateral in dimension that there is one word to describe it: omnicide, the death of all.

However this rapidly developing critical sensibility in the art of the Atomic Age be found in antiquity; for instance, in the epics of Homer, it has made the lessons of the past all the more significant in the present. In describing The Shadow of the Bomb, Sally Yard determined that the diverse works on exhibit were "united by the ill ease with which they look to the future, whether with humor, irony, urgency, or bluntness.... instill(ing) in us a sense of loss."

But the unifying aesthetic lies deeper than these mere poetic devices. What these artists have accomplished is the sublime, so that we, their audience, can penetrate the appearance of a secure world to its underlying destructiveness. Through the medium of art, we can have some sense of the supersensible, not through reason which has been abandoned by those who plot Mutually Assured Destruction, but by the aesthetic experience. Not through the beautiful, but through the sublime.

To a greater or lesser degree all three installations at the University Gallery succeed in attaining the sublime, but most noteworthy is Robert Morris' shocking Jornada del Muerto (the name of the place where the first atom bomb was tested) which means "a journey of death." This installation piece conjures up the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse by seating four black-helmeted skeletons, Slim Pickens style, on phallic warheads enclosed in a shroud of black curtain with full-sized, curved mirrors reflecting it all.



As you walk through the exhibit, the leering doomsday riders appear to loom in and out at you. I mention this so that you will walk through the installation since it is somewhat intimidating and we're not all that comfortable with its fun house interior. When I saw this show at the Hirshhorn Museum, one had no choice other than to walk through it as it was installed around a passageway. In this case, it is the centerpiece of the gallery and one tends to look at it from outside.

Accompanying the installation are a sequence of six panels with photos depicting the dark history of the atomic bomb. Mirrors on the back of these panels give glimpses of Leonardo's Deluge drawings. The entire main gallery has been painted black with a white line motiff from a blanket design of the Hopi Indians, the people of peace and the indigenous people of the Southwest bomb sites. The University Gallery has made considerable and painstaking efforts in setting up this elaborate installation, an effort which this major work by Robert Morris deserves. Also on display are Chris Burden's Cost Effective Micro-Weaponry That Works and Michael Smith's Goverment Approved Home Fallout Shelter Snack Bar.

For those who enjoy their voyage through the underworld at the University Gallery, you should also attend the other half of the exhibition at the Mt. Holyoke College Art Museum. I think in some ways it is even better, with multiple works more evenly presented by the thirteen artists including Morris, Nancy Spero, and Alex Grey.

This show features a sample of the awesome, however gruesome, environmental installation-concept piece by Edward Keinholz, The Non-War Memorial. Keinholz proposes that 50,000 army surplus uniforms be filled with clay and strewn randomly like dead bodies over a 75-acre tract of meadow which would be cleared and plowed under. Over a decade the "bodies" would rot and eventually the defoliated soil would sprout seed once again. Rather than immortalize war with a stone monument, Keinholz's work would typify humanity's transcience especially in the event of a nuclear war by means of an artwork approaching equal scale.

If you prefer flowers and scenic vistas to bodies and ashes, The Shadow of the Bomb may not be for you. But the issues presented in this exhibit cannot be ignored as easily as you might think, for if the bomb falls again, not only will grades be rendered obsolete, but also flowers... and scenic vistas... and, for that matter, life itself.

Robert Morris' Jornada del Muerto, one of three installations in The Shadow of the Bomb at the University Gallery.

Self-portrait by Polanski.

Roman Polanski speaks

ROMAN by POLANSKI
by Roman Polanski
450 pages. $17.95. Hardback.
William Morrow and Company.

By DAVID I. TAYLOR
Collegian Staff

If there was an Oscar for the most criticized, most victimized, most misrepresented and misunderstood director it would belong to Roman Polanski. Child molester, rapist, pervert, sick exploiter—Polanski has been called them all. The world, and especially America, with blind ignorance has never even given the man a chance to speak up against their uninformed prejudice. Finally Polanski has attempted to answer his critics with Roman, his autobiography, 450 pages of honest reply to the vicious and callous public and business that in its stupid and petty gossiping forgot that artists are people too.

The opening of the book deals with the young Polish Jew in Krakow, forced onto family after family when Nazi occupation caused his own family to be split up. From the beginning Polanski had an energy and vitality which could not be suppressed. Indeed his whole life could be seen as a reflection of this early reaction against the conformity of Nazism—Polanski has never denied that he is unconventional, that he is different, and a reactionary. His film training began at the Lodz film school in the fifties, where as well as directing he fell with enthusiasm into acting.

As well as documenting the career of the young Polanski, Roman gives a fascinating insight into the violently unstable history of Poland. Polanski's formative years were spent in a country torn by internal and external squabbles, an environment so often the breeding ground for artistic excellence, but also a suffocating leach to that same excellence if it remains within the system.

Polanski got out. He went to Paris and began his career in commerical film-making with Knife in the Water. From Paris, after attempts to return to the filmic wasteland of Poland, he went to London and finally to the United States. It was in the commercial film capital of the world that Polanski finally settled. His films were not merely artifacts, they were big business concerns and deserved Hollywood's fullest attention.

Roman plots the rise of the poor victimized Jewish boy to international jetsetting playboy. But throughout the book one cannot but help see the excitement of the boy with his new toy—money. Obvious, too, are the spongers and sharks that flocked around the new Golden Boy of Hollywood, the same who would so hatefully denounce him later, when he most needed their support.

The energy that pushed him through to the heights of Hollywood was able to show its true form when the pressure seemed to relax in the early seventies. Polanski's driving force was his intense love of life—an enevery that redirected itself as he matured, and adapted into a passionate desire for women. "Was it the sexual urge that had somehow been at the root of it all?", Polanski asks at the end of his book. But the sexual urge was just another manifestation of the man's desire to please, to be acceptable in a world that was unable to accept the man he was.

The true depth of the book is most apparent in Polanski's description of the circumstances surrounding the death of his pregnant wife, Sharon Tate, by the Manson "family." This episode in his life has been used and abused by the press so heartlessly that Polanski himself is as much a victim as his wife. The American press showed its true contemptibility by its despicable handling of the murder. A man's wife and child were murdered by an insane monster, and yet that same poor man was held responsible and his life was trashed by the childishly gossiping media. These are the true perverts. Polanski was good copy and his pain was immaterial when it came to the gratification of the scandal-hungry public.

When Polanski jumped bail in Los Angeles, after pleading guilty to having sex with a minor, it was not because he feared the penalty for his "crime." It was because his fair trial was jeopardized by prejudice and media misrepresentation. What he did was wrong, and Polanski was the first to admit it. But the true facts of the case could never be presented because the judicial powers had been tainted by a predisposition to belief in the fantasies concocted by the press. Hollywood feeds on fantasy, and is unable to comprehend where fact becomes fantasy. In such a world, justice cannot exist.

Polanski is an artist. But he is also a human being. The artist and the man are inseparable, but not so the artist and his works. Polanski's films have been confused with his life, and it is only with the publication of Roman that we can get any idea of the truth behind the lies of Hollywood. He is not a monster. He is not a pervert. He is unconventional but not immoral. But most of all, he is a film-maker of great talent, whose private life has been badly misunderstood and misrepresented. It can only be hoped that Roman will remove at least a little of the violent prejudice that exists in this country against a man who mistakenly took the freedom and ideals of America as representative of an honest land.

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Commencement 1984

10:00 a.m., Sunday, May 27

All Candidates
There will be no Commencement rehearsal for degree candidates. Candidates should assemble by school/college at Alumni Stadium no later than 9 a.m. graduation morning, May 27, 1984. Signs will be posted indicating schools, and Commencement Marshals will issue specific instructions and distribute programs. Upon signal, candidates will follow the Commencement Marshals to the assigned areas and be seated.

Candidates will receive diploma covers from the deans of their school or college.

Who is Eligible to Participate?

Undergraduate degree candidates who anticipate completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1984. Questions concerning academic status should be directed to the Records Office, 214 Whitmore, 545-0555.

Master's degree candidates who have previously submitted the Degree Application Form by April 27, 1984 to the Office of Degree Requirements stating the intention to complete all requirements. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Doctoral degree candidates who have completed all degree requirements by April 27, 1984. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249 Graduate Research Center, 545-0024.

Faculty
Faculty and staff should assemble at the SOUTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel between the Facilities/Information Center and the stadium wall. Faculty will be part of the processional and will be seated immediately in front of the candidates from each school and college.

Note: Commencement '84 is on SUNDAY, May 27.

Parents and Invited Guests Plan to Arrive Early — Space is Limited
Since the Commencement Exercises are open to the public and guest seating is without reservation, parents and friends should plan to arrive early to ensure good seating.

Handicapped Seating
Viewing area for the handicapped will be located on both sides of the stadium on the eastern and western walkways. Since seating is limited, only one person may accompany the handicapped guest.

Invitations
There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend the ceremony and tickets are not required. Each undergraduate/student will receive a packet of six formal invitations. Students are urged to encourage their guests to arrive early for good seating.

Caps, Gowns, and Hoods

Undergraduate Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge (on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Master's Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available at no charge (on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it) at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns, and tassels, may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Doctoral Degree Candidates
Doctoral caps, gowns, tassels, and invitations will be available only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 4 p.m., upon clearance by the Office of Degree Requirements. On Commencement Day, caps, gowns, tassels, and hoods may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the NORTHWEST end of the stadium (on the gravel area).

Doctoral candidates who plan to participate in the Commencement ceremony must have a hood. Each Ph.D. candidate's name will be announced over the stadium sound system and two officers of the University will drape the hood on the candidate's shoulders. Doctoral hoods can be purchased only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, A249 Graduate Research Center, at a cost of $26. (Five College Doctoral Hoods will be available at $42.95.) Doctoral hoods may be rented through the University Store.

Rentals
Academic apparel for this year's University Commencement may be rented through the University Store. All faculty members are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. THE LAST DAY TO ORDER IS FRIDAY, MAY 18. Payment must be made at the time of order and there will be no refunds if apparel is not used. Academic apparel may also be purchased. For further information about rentals or purchases, please contact Connie Szelewicki at the University Store, 545-2619.

Accommodations
Many area motels are already booked for Friday and Saturday before Commencement. A limited number of rooms in University housing will be available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 25, 26, and 27. Please contact the Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center, 545-3400, by May 10. There is a $5 cash key deposit — to be returned when the key is returned.

Food Services
Coffee, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at hot - rotundas on the North side of the stadium.

Schedule of Events	Date	Time	Place
Stockbridge Commencement	Sat., May 26	1:30 p.m.	FAC Concert Hall
ROTC Commissioning Ceremony	Sun., May 27	8:00 a.m.	FAC Concert Hall
Nursing Commencement	Sun., May 27	1:00 p.m.	Rhododendron Garden Rain site: 329 Morrill Science Center
1984 Commencement Ceremony	Sun., May 27	10 a.m.-12 noon

Commencement Ceremony Schedule

9 a.m.	Robing for Commencement. Appropriate signs will be displayed. Graduates should line up according to their school or college.
9:30 a.m.	Seating of Graduates
10 a.m.	Procession starts
12 noon	Ceremony ends

Parking
Parking at the stadium is extremely limited. Commencement traffic will be directed to several parking lots located nearby and shuttle buses will transport you the short distance to the stadium. You will be dropped off directly in front of the stadium and buses will return you to the lots immediately following the ceremonies.

Radio Traffic Control
In an effort to aid the traffic flow at Commencement, WTTT radio in Amherst 1430 on the AM dial will broadcast traffic reports throughout the morning. Please tune to 1430AM once you arrive in Amherst for the best route to the ceremonies.

General Information

Diplomas will be mailed to graduates in the fall.

Medical facilities will be located in the van under Section 8 of the stands.

Public telephones will be located on the west side of the Facilities/Information Center.

Restrooms are located at either end of the Facilities/Information Center at the south end of the stadium.

Viewing areas for those confined to wheelchairs will be located on both sides of the stadium, on eastern and western walkways.

For additional information, contact the Office of Community Relations, 390 Whitmore, 545-2560.

ALCOHOL IS NOT PERMITTED IN THE STADIUM.

RAIN DATE
There is no alternative rain site. The ceremony will be held outside regardless of the weather. The ceremony will be delayed a maximum of two hours in the event of heavy rain. In the event of torrential rains the ceremony will be cancelled. Listen to local radio stations early Sunday morning to hear if the decision to delay or cancel has been made.

Wednesday, May 16
4-7 PM
Southwest Playing Fields

Free bus service from Franklin and Worcester parking lots.

In event of rain, meal will be served in all D.C.s.

board members: bring i.d.

COUNTRY BAR-B-Q

Non-Board Members - $4.75 in advance. Tickets on sale now at Munchies, Snack Bars, Franklin Meal Ticket Office.

Hypercurricula...

POETRY & MUSIC FROM LATIN AMERICA — An evening of poetry and music from Grenada, Honduras, El Salvador, and Guatemala with Caldwell Taylor, Roberto Sosa, Armando Martinez, and Zoe Angelesey. 7:30 p.m., Grace Parish Hall.

AMHERST AREA NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH — Come join us for our weekly service of WORSHIP, PRAISE, and teaching from the Bible. We'll be here all summer. Come check us out! Sundays, 10:15 a.m., see CC schedule.

UMASS KARATE CLUB — Summer training—all students, faculty & staff welcome. Call S. Grimes at 5-1376.

AT&T PHONE DROP OFF — AT&T will be set up in CC165 for students who need to drop off phones. Students will not be able to pay their bills at this location. 10-5:00 p.m., CC165.

WORKING WOMEN IN THE 80's — a series of presentations sponsored by the Working Women's Program at the Everywoman's Center. The series consists of three sessions. Comparable Worth and Pay Equity will take place Tuesday, May 15, and will be facilitated by Carole Johnson. For more information call 5-0883. Talks are free of charge. Tuesdays, 7-9 p.m., Jones Library gallery, 43 Amity Street, Amherst.

CONCERT: UNIVERSITY CHORAL UNION — Music of Leonard Bernstein, Benjamin Britten, and UMass composer Robert Stern will be performed by the University Choral Union, Chamber Choir, and chamber orchestra. E. Wayne Abercrombie conducts. Free. 8:00 p.m., First Congregational Church, Main St., Amherst.

LUNCH WITH THE RABBI — Informal lunch time get-together. All are welcome! 12 noon, Suffolk Room.

FREE WRITING TUTORING — The Southwest Writing Center offers free confidential peer tutoring for all University students. Bring any assignment or writing project. Drop in; no appointment needed. 7-9:00 p.m., Pierpont Dorm.

AMHERST RAILWAY SOCIETY — Colour slides of late steam and early diesels from Buffalo to Boston and sundry points between. All are cordially invited. 8:00 p.m., Eng. East Auditorium.

NATO AND THE WARSAW PACT — As a wargamers club, we simulate past, present and future conflicts through the medium of detailed board games and model miniature armies. All may participate. 6:00 p.m., CC.

FINAL EXAM STRESS — Learn ways to deal with pressure and stress of exam-taking tonight on WMUA 91.1 FM on UMass Hotline. 6-7:00 p.m., ON THE AIR.

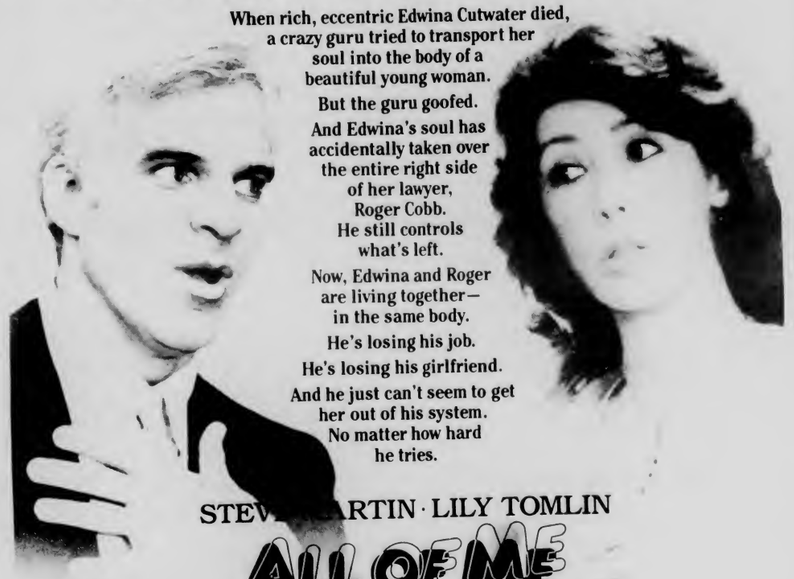
CONCERT: FACULTY BRASS QUINTET — Free concert will feature music of Reynolds, Scheidt, and Ewald performed by Walter Chesnut and Jeffrey Holmes, trumpets; Laura Klock, horn; David Sporny, trombone; and George Parks, tuba. Concert marks the final event in the music department's '83-'84 concert season. 8:00 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall.

What is Lily Tomlin doing in Steve Martin's body?

When rich, eccentric Edwina Cutwater died, a crazy guru tried to transport her soul into the body of a beautiful young woman.

But the guru goofed.

And Edwina's soul has accidentally taken over the entire right side of her lawyer, Roger Cobb.



He still controls what's left.

Now, Edwina and Roger are living together— in the same body.

He's losing his job.

He's losing his girlfriend.

And he just can't seem to get her out of his system. No matter how hard he tries.

STEVE MARTIN · LILY TOMLIN

ALL OF ME

A STEPHEN FRIEDMAN Production A CARL REINER Film "ALL OF ME"
Starring VICTORIA TENNANT as Terry Hoskins Screenplay by PHIL ALDEN ROBINSON Adaptation by HENRY OLEK
Based on the novel "ME TWO" by ED DAVIS Music by PATRICK WILLIAMS
Associate Producer PHIL ALDEN ROBINSON Produced by STEPHEN FRIEDMAN Directed by CARL REINER
A KINGS ROAD Presentation A UNIVERSAL Release

FREE SCREENING
Courtesy of Kodak

WEDNESDAY, MAY 16TH
7:00 PM
Seating is on a first come, first admitted basis.
AMHERST CINEMA
30 AMITY STREET
sponsored by
AMHERST CINEMA

Kodak Film. Because time goes by: Kodak

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening telephone sales for Fine Arts Center series subscription. Approx. 20 hrs. per week from June 4 -July 13. Work study preferred. UMass students only. Descriptions and applications available from Dave, 207 Hasbrouck thru Wed. May 16. call 545-0190.

WILD AMERICA IS OUR CAMPUS
Stimulating career-oriented BS, MS secondary and jr high school or summer expedition degree programs. Newfoundland to California. Practical, cross-cultural 1 to 4 years small group camping. Field studies and encounters with deep ecological problems, society and self. Financial aid and postgraduate grants available.
NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY
EXPEDITION INSTITUTE
Sharon, CT 06069 (203) 364-0520

Summerweight Sports Shirt $15.95

John C. - Photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

Move Yourself, All Your Stuff, And Save, Too!

It's as easy as renting a Ryder truck, one way.

Compare costs before you make plans for moving at the end of the semester.

If you're 18 or older and have a valid driver's license, you can use a Ryder truck, rent-it-here, leave-it there. Load up your stereo, 10-speed, clothes; everything. You'll still have room, no doubt, for one or two friends with their things to share the cost.

Compare that to the price of a plane ticket. Or even a bus.

Plus shipping.

Rent a newer truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world - Ryder. The best truck money can rent.

STUDENT DISCOUNT COUPON
RYDER TRUCK RENTAL, INC.

The holder of this coupon is entitled to a

15% DISCOUNT

on any ONE WAY rental of a Ryder truck. Present this coupon to any Ryder location in New England and save even more.

One coupon redeemable per transaction. Not valid with other promotions.

Call (413) 736-8361 or your local dealer for information.

Renters Signature_____ Expires 8/30/84

END OF SEMESTER INFORMATION

LAST DAY OF CLASSES Wednesday, May 16

FINAL EXAMS

Final exams will begin at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 19 with the last exam beginning at 10:30 a.m. on Friday, May 25. Thursday, May 17 and Friday, May 18 are reading days, and no classes or exams are scheduled. For information on specific exams, call the Information Data Bank at 545-1555 or the Scheduling Office at 545-2605.

RESIDENCE HALLS

All students must leave the residence halls by 6 p.m., Friday, May 25. Graduating seniors may stay until 4 p.m., Sunday, May 27.

TELEPHONES

Residence hall room telephones will be shut off beginning Friday, May 25. Seniors in the halls will have their phones shut off on Sunday, May 27. Any important calls should be made before then.

MAIL

First Class U.S. mail and packages received at Central Mail after residence halls close will be forwarded to students' home addresses. Anyone wanting magazines sent to a home address should send a change of address card to the publisher. Forwarding cards may be filled out at Central Mail in 306 Goodell, but cannot be guaranteed. All other mail will be discarded.

LIBRARIES

The Goodell and University Tower libraries are open Monday through Friday beginning on reading days from 8 a.m. to midnight, Saturday from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., and on Friday, May 25, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DINING COMMONS AND MUNCHY'S

The dining commons will be open through Friday, May 25. Dinner will be served that day until 6:30 p.m. at Worcester and Hampshire commons, and until 7 p.m. at Berkshire and Franklin commons. Munchy's stores will be open through May 24 from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. at Worcester and Franklin, and from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. at Hampden. On May 25 they will close at 5 p.m.

GRADUATION

For information on graduation, call TIPS at 545-1540, and ask for tape 1530.

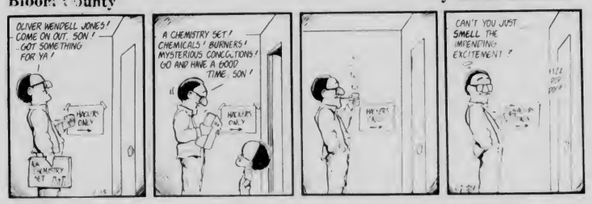
BUS SCHEDULES

UMass buses, as well as PVTA bus routes 301 to Mount Holyoke, Hampshire and Amherst colleges and 702 3 to Northampton, will run on their present schedules through Sunday, May 27. Summer schedules will begin on Monday, May 28. For schedule information, call 586-5806.

FALL 1984

Registration Day will be Tuesday, September 4. The first day of classes will be Wednesday, September 5.

GOOD LUCK WITH FINALS
Enjoy The Summer



IDB TIPS

a service of the Dean of Students Office

The UMass Zone — Mark Rollins

Bloom County — by Berke Breathed

Shagnasty — O.T. Derringer

Off Campus — Sullivan & Gillbert

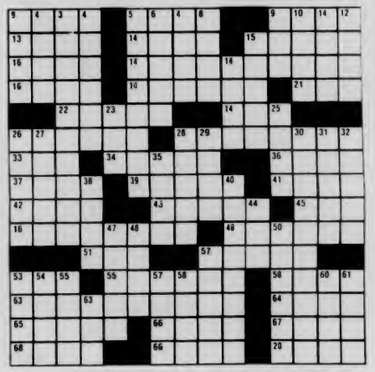
LUNCH
Hamburg on Roll
Liver and Onions

BASICS LUNCH
Golden Burgers
Garden Medley Casserole

DINNER
Turkey Roll Florentine Sandwich
Fisherman's Plate/Tartar Sauce, Cocktail Sauce
Caponata Spaghetti

BASICS DINNER
Fisherman's Plate/Tartar Sauce, Cocktail Sauce
Caponata Spaghetti



DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Margaret Farrar and Trude Jaffe

©1984 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

ACROSS
1 Part of P.O.S.H.
5 Ostrich's Australian cousins
9 —— Ray of the films
13 Concept, in Cannes
14 Publisher Conde
15 Eddy
16 Mother of Helen of Troy
17 Like a big spender
19 Parts of univ buildings
20 "The —— and the Sea"
21 Uniforms for KPs
22 TV producer Norman, et al
24 Plat abbreviations
26 Alien
28 Like some resources
33 Zodiac sign
34 "—— such man be trusted"; Shakespeare
36 Gaseous: Comb. form
37 "500" race place
39 Help
41 Do a sewing job
42 Weeds
43 Credo
45 Quagmire
46 Like few lenders
49 Upon even terms
51 Antique auto
52 "Ars ——..."
53 Creed
56 More pretentious
59 Dear, to Hans
62 Like an owl
64 Knowing
65 Wears out
66 Tiny opening
67 Wine: Prefix
68 Idaho, to some
69 Replied: Abbr.
70 It abuts Neb.

DOWN
1 Creep
2 Concert halls
3 Like a he-man
4 Sideboard item
5 Backed up, as a rule
6 Certain clays
7 Applied
8 Originate (with "from")
9 Barley "beard"
10 Beach resort
11 Scott
12 Ransom Eli —— builder of 51 Across 15 —— Maria
18 Biblical possessive
23 Feel peaked
25 French plane of WWI
26 —— Root, lawyer and statesman
27 Gaseous element
28 Hungry
29 "Darkness at ——"
30 Like a nitwit
31 Flynn
32 Shabby
35 Lug
38 River into the North Sea
40 Crossed again, as a stream
44 Camel color
47 Certain tides
48 Sped
50 Round houses
52 Lecherous looks
53 Followers of 53 Across
54 Freight mover
55 Japanese word for 54 Down
57 Cloth made from bark
58 An age
60 Sicilian sight
61 Mark or matches
63 Eric, the Viking

Weather

A chance of showers in the western hills today, otherwise, partly cloudy and cool, high temperatures in the 50s. Mostly cloudy tonight, variable cloudiness tomorrow. Temperatures continuing on the cool side. Lows tonight in the 40s, highs tomorrow in the upper 50s to 60s.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

P	O	R	T	E	M	U	S	■	A	L	D	O
I	D	E	E	■	N	A	S	T	■	S	W	I	A	L
L	E	D	I	A	■	F	I	R	E	M	A	N	D	E	D
L	A	B	S	■	O	L	D	M	A	N	■	O	D	S
■	■	■	L	E	A	R	S	■	■	S	T	S	■	■
E	X	O	T	I	C	■	U	L	A	P	P	E	D
L	E	O	■	L	E	T	N	O	■	A	E	N	I
T	I	N	Y	■	D	O	T	F	O	N	■	D	A	A	N
H	O	E	S	■	T	E	N	D	L	■	D	O	G
U	N	I	N	T	E	N	T	E	D	■	F	A	I	N	L	Y
■	■	■	H	E	O	■	L	O	N	G	A	■	■	■
I	S	M	■	A	R	T	I	E	D	■	L	I	E	L
S	M	A	R	T	E	A	N	E	D	■	O	N	T	O
T	I	N	E	S	■	P	O	N	E	■	O	E	N	O
S	P	U	D	■	A	N	S	D	■	S	O	A	K

The Collegian is now accepting applications for the following positions:

Associate Managing Editor (5)
Copy Editor (5)
Layout Technician (5)
Librarian
Associate News Editor (3)
Associate Editorial Editor
Associate Womens New Editor
Associate Sports Editor
Associate Black Affairs Editor
Associate Arts Editor

Final Women's Softball statistics for 1984 season

NAME	POS	G	AB	R	H	2B	HR	RBI	BT AVE
Allyson Rioux	SS	41	121	24	45	6	3	30	.372
Missy Oman	1b	8	27	5	10	0	0	4	.370
Beth Talbott	C	36	96	15	33	5	1	16	.344
Sally Maher	1b	40	127	24	42	5	2	21	.331
Amy Straut	1b	8	10	2	3	1	0	2	.300
Tina Coffin	CF	41	131	30	38	4	0	12	.290
Emily Bietsch	OF	33	78	14	21	1	0	8	.269
Lynn Pekarski	3b	17	38	4	10	0	1	9	.263
Janet Miller	OF	34	90	9	22	4	0	14	.244
Robin Read	3b	27	78	7	19	2	0	15	.244
Ann Ringrose	OF	19	36	12	8	0	0	3	.222
Carol Frattaroli	IF	40	116	14	24	6	1	8	.207
Anne King	C	29	55	4	11	4	0	11	.200
Debbie Cole	3b	38	93	13	18	2	0	4	.194
Cathy Reed	P	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Pitchers		26	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
UMASS		41	1096	177	304	40	8	157	.277
OPPONENTS		41	980	74	157	14	1	56	.160

PITCHING STATISTICS

NAME	G	GS	CG	IP	H	R	ER	BB
Krista Stanton	6	0	0	10.33	5	5	1	7
Lynn Stockley	24	22	19	148.67	78	39	25	51
Cathy Reed	20	19	13	121.66	74	30	23	32
UMASS	41	41	32	280.67	157	74	49	90
OPPONENTS	41	41	35	272.33	304	177	145	76

Womens soccer recruits

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Success breeds success. It's a lot easier to recruit after a 12-2-3 season, a New England championship and a third place finish nationally. And it shows.

Women's soccer Coach Kalekeni Banda is already reaping the benefits of last fall's banner season. Banda has come up with eight new players for the Minutewomen.

One of the most impressive finds is Leah Eicher, a Fairfax, Virginia native that has been going to school in Geneva, Switzerland. A forward from La Chatignerate High School, Eicher has played on the Swiss National team.

Four All-Americans will be coming to UMass next season. Debra Belkin, a member of the U.S. National team from Needham, Jolie DePauw, another member of the U.S. National team from Arlington, Virginia, Carolyn Micheel, from Columbia, Maryland and sweeper back Christine Semitt from Northport, New York will be here this fall.

Belkin, DePauw, and Micheel are all forwards.

Other recruits include Catherine Spence, an All-New England player from Hartford, Conn., (forward), Lisa Merlo, an All-Region forward from Boca Raton, Florida, and Monica Seta, an All-Region forward from Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Minutewomen graduate only two seniors, Mary Sztetela and All-American Stacey Flionis, one of the team MVP's from last fall.

Lori Stukes, a junior All-American, was also chosen as team MVP by the team. Junior forward Chris Taggart was also an All-American pick in 1983.

Things are looking good for Banda in 1984. "I'm tickled to death (with the recruiting)," Banda said.

★ softball

Continued from page 16

including the first sweep in five years of Rhode Island.

But coming off the emotional high of the wins that put UMass in the Atlantic 10, UConn swept two from UM and Temple pounded UMass 6-0 before UMass took the second game 7-0.

And to top off the season of frustration, UMass wasn't even given the chance to make up for its third place Atlantic 10 finish when Saturday's doubleheader with Adelphi was cancelled.

"I feel especially bad for the two seniors," Sortino said. "I would have loved to see them go to the national tournament and have their team with them."

Their team has a great future, though. With just Rioux and Coffin gone and the other 15 gaining valuable experience, youth and inconsistency should not be such a problem for the Minuewomen who will again be shooting for the NCAA tournament.

An elitist bourgeoisie photo of graduating Collegian Staff members will be taken at 5 p.m. today in the newsroom for tomorrow's paper.

BODY SHOP

SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00

X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18

Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F
7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm
Summer workouts start June 4
LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL

Soft Contact Lens Center
Extended wear soft lenses from $48. ea.
Daily wear Soft lenses from $25. ea.
Heat disinfecting units $12.95 reg. $30.
Check out these Contact Lens Solution Prices
Opti-clean Reg 2.98 SALE 1.98
Sensitive Eyes System Reg 3.75 SALE 2.49
Adapettes Reg 1.00 SALE .50
Soft Contact Lens Deluxe Cases Reg. 3.75 SALE 1.98
Many more Solutions on Sale COME & SEE
B & L Sunglasses 20% off
Vuarnet Sunglasses 20% off with this ad
Amherst Optical Shoppe 195 N Pleasant St 256-6403
Amherst Optical Shoppe 170 University Dr. 253-5412 in the Amherst Med Ctr.

Southwood 2 bdrm w/fall option summer rent negotiable 253-5517

4 bdrm 2 beth Swiss Vlg apt w/fall option 3 bdrms available 253-3851, one bdrm 253-2083

One bedroom summer sublet with fall option Cliffside apt 665-7956

Cheap summer sublet, any offer considered with fall option call Dave 665-3605

Big 2 bedroom furnished apartment June - August BO Dave K 546-6461

One bedroom available in apartment in Amherst Centre call evening 253-2683

Furnished bedroom to sublet for summer, fall option, cheap! Amherst, Chris 256-1205

With fall option. 2 bedroom apt at Cliffside. Great view, swimming pool, tennis courts. $360/month all utilities included. Call Thomas at 665-4493 eves.

Convenient Amherst Center 2 doubles $90 negotiable summer only 6-5651 6-4992

One bedroom in two bedroom, beautiful sunny house. Only one block from campus and Amherst Center. This is a steal! Call Cathy 549-2742

Brandywine Apt best offer call 549-2636

1 room in house. Walk to campus & town 110/mo + util 546-9960 or 549-1730

3 bdrm Townehouse apt fully furnished one mile from campus. Call before 12 am or after 8 pm 549-0307

TO SUBLET

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Room available summer possible fall option. Rent negotiable. Call 256-0011 evenings

Two bedroom apt available one fall option near Puffton wood stove 549-0112

Two bedroom apertment in Colonial Village summer sublet fall option telephone 256-8597

House - available June 1st - fall option 5+ bedrooms on bus route, walking distance to town and campus, heat included call 256-0992

2 people needed for 1 bd in 2 bd Brandywine apt $70/prsn for summer sblt call 546-9406 or 546-9403 keep trying

Summer sublet with fall option $295, utilities included 256-1482 Kevin

w/fall option great location 253-3630 Gail eve $180 mo

Squire Villege 2 bdrm townhouse great for 4 people or less fall option 665-4128

Brandywine one bedroom apartment summer sublet, possible fall option 549-5825

Choose us!! Needed immediately 1 or 2 people to share large bedroom in brand new Sunderland duplex $100/mo call 665-3072 after 6 pm

To sublet cheap 2 rm of 4 avlb pay 2 mo 1 free fall opt Mike/Doug 253-2083

One bedroom apt Cliffside 150 includes everything pool and tennis 665-4576

Cliffside summer sublet fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom. Responsible female 180/mo inclusive. Available June or July your choice. Summer rent negotiable 665-3509

Two bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option rent neg 665-4201

Colonial Village 2 bedroom summer/fall option. On bus route. Partially furnished 256-0088

Summer sublet room in house in Amherst fully furnished $90 per month includes utilities 323-5974 after 5 pm

4 bedroom sublet w/fall opt $140/month neg utilities included 253-5956

2 bedroom in large house close to town and campus summer w/fall option 160+ negotiable 256-0407

TRAVEL

Plane ticket 1 way BOS. to L.A. BO Tom 549-0661

NYC to Seattle one-way plane ticket only $170 call Megan 546-6649

TYPING

Professional Typing Service including: theses, manuscripts, medical reports, dictaphone. Emergency service. Call 536-2336, 6-10 PM

Practically on campus! New 2 bdrm apt w/fall option 549-5613

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Experienced Painter sash and trim skills prefered call after 5:00 665-2665

WANTED TO RENT

Wented Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

Responsible women needed summer housing great location cheap rent call 549-6823

2 people looking to share an apt in Puffton or Brandywine for fall 84 call 6-5290 or 6-9705

$50.00 reward grad student looking for eff apt for Sept, reasonable rent Nancy 5-2245 days leave message

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

AN OFFER YOU CAN'T REFUSE

Great summer sublet - 2 bedroom apt in Townehouse June - Aug best offer - fully furnished. All luxuries available call 549-0709 now!

AUTO FOR SALE

1972 Camero new tires and trans. must sell - $500 549-6934

73 Musteng Convertible it runs, great summer car, great project car, almost inspectable, $350, BO 545-3117

77 Toyote Celica GT coupe 86k 5 spd AC/rear dgf excel cond inside and out great gas mileage $2350 neg 256-1456

BOARDERS FOR FALL '84 WANTED

For home like atmosphere call Sigma Kappa Sorority 256-6887 ask for Sylvia or Louise

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ's, lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

Medhetter Booze Cruise - featuring the Castoways and DJ. Prizes for best hats 1st prize $75. Leaves Boston Harbor June 8 for info: Mike 546-6031 ltd. tix

FALL HOUSING

Rooms now available for all university women in close to campus sorority house. Ask for Lisa B or Sue G at 545-0527

FOR RENT

Large studio apartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Southwood Apts 1 bedroom townhouse summer w/fall option very clean 256-8225

Furnished efficiency apartment, carpet, AC, summer, fall option, $205 (Belchertown). 323-6704

One bedroom in house neer Amherst Center available June 1. 145+ call 256-0796

Summer sublet w/fall option 4 bedroom apt w/2 bathrooms. Summer rent very cheap. Call 256-8247

Two bedroom apt at Britteny Manor summer sublet with fall option. Call 253-7728

One bedroom apt, 3 mo sublet or 15 mo lease. Quiet, ¼ mi from UMass, bus. 360 mo 549-2641

2 bedroom aveil June 1 with fall option Brittany Manor summer rent negot call after 10. 253-5907

Female wanted nonsmoker for summer sublet and fall option, own room, pool, bus route, $150/month plus utilities, call 253-7806 evenings summer rent negot.

One bdrm apt. at Cliffside, all-electric, dishwasher, bus route, pool, tennis courts, quiet, summer sublet with fall option 665-3735

2 bedroom apt in Brittany Manor available for fall call 256-1279

One bedroom available in beautiful house furnished 1 mile from UMass 549-7865

Two bedroom apt Lantern Court available 6/1 w/fall option 665-7526

FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonett sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

New double bed - great price call Jodi 549-2638

Electric Guiter Vantage black with case mint condition $175 Josh 546-6534

Almost new double bed, bureau, desk, bookcase and sofa. Best offers. 256-0883

Wood desk $50, light blue rug $55 both in excellent condition call Laurie 549-6358

One year old twin bed. Must sell $65 Wendy 584-2905

Weterbed 4x7 apt-size 3 month old $150 Dan 256-1279

FOUND

Found! Ring in NOPE girl's locker room call 546-8352 to identify

FRIENDSHIP

Lori - You might be leaving Amherst but you will never be forgotten. I will always be there for the sad times and especially the good times. The memories will always be remembered and the future has a lot more. Friends forever, good luck! Love your little friend.

HELP WANTED

International Environmentel Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

COUNSELORS, Excellent Maine Camp, call Mrs. Fritts (201) 538-5409

Students! Summer jobs on campus! Apply to Telefund, Memorial Hall, 545-3509

Help wented cook needed at local fraternity call anytime 253-9032 ask for Mark

Summer work out West 318/week call for info 549-7529

PARTTIME WEEKEND: Production workers needed to fill-in for employees on vacation/leave. Church Seat Company, Division of Bemis Mfg. Company, Palmer Road, Monson, MA 01057 (413) 267-5511

Summer Jobs - House Painting; Boston, Cape, Connecticut, NY, NJ; No experience necessary, we will train. $150 - $250 a week. Work with peers outdoors. 736-2193

FARM HAND call Scott's Tree Farm 665-4791

Housefether wanted for local sorority for fall '84 semester, free room & board in exchange for minor repairs. For more info call 256-6874 ask for Jody

Still need a summer job? Work as an activist on a nat'l voter registration campaign and help shape state environmental policy. MASSPIRG is now hiring full-time summer staff for public education and fundraising. $135-225/week. Mon-Fri 2-10 PM. Will train. Call Sandy 256-6434

2 positions @ 40 hrs/wk working on course and teacher evaluation guide good writing and editing necessary applications available in 420 Student Union deadline May 17th @ noon more info call 545-0341 SGA is AA/EEO

KAREN S.

To the best roommete: You've helped me through so much, Kar, and I just want to say thanx! Here's to best friends, surviving the first year and a successful "Mint Julep" day! I love you! - Meryl

LOST

Lost blue jacket, Scituate High School Football embroidered on it. If found please please call 546-7744, great sentimental value. Reward no questions asked

Gold chain brecelet hopefully with small heart pendant lost Tu Ap 21 call Jenni at 546-4282 reward

Beautiful gold watch (Caravelle Bulava Quartz) deep sentimental value. If found please call 256-1098

MATT ZELEK STUD

To the kid who drinks 8 nights/week...thanks for the memories. GH. Brian, band-wagons, MTV, messy everything, schmokin bones (who me?), giving each other shit...you will be missed by many thanx Steve

MOTORCYCLES

'80 KZ-440 LTD 900i 6 speed mag wheels in great condition, always kept under cover, approx 65 mpg 549-7719

1983 Yamaha special 50cc mint condition only 3000 miles $500 or BO call Alan at 546-5332

79 Suzuki PE 175 best offer call 665-4340 after 3 pm

Yamaha 175 enduro 500 miles - like new on/off road w/helmet $500 549-0159

PERSONALS

Patricia M. Smith we have your ID. It's at the Collegian

Need a place to live next fall? Female boarders wanted. Good food home-like atmosphere. For info call 545-0162/2092. Keep trying!

WE HAVE BALLS - basketballs, baseballs softballs, footballs, tennis balls racquetballs, squashballs golfballs & frisbees

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building
WHATS YOUR RACQUET?
We have Tennis Racquets, Racqetball Racquets, Squash Racquets & Bats!

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

Eileen B. Manley Good luck with surgery Love Randa Maggie & Monique

Scery, have a jolly B-day and a borgie gorg time! Love L and S

Bimbo Happy 20th! Keep in touch next semester. If you don't I'll find ya and I'll kill ya! Love ya Lori

To Lauribell a southern belle Happy 22 Love Demelsa and Mattfree

Adrienne, Jenny, Henry, How could I leave UMass without leaving my first friend here a personal? Remember. . .basics lunch, yucky roommates, Sugarhill Gang, Joey D's, fake ID's, RA interviews, bulk nuts and raisins from Price Chopper, Midori, Gloria Stevens, and of course the Collegian? I can't believe how far we've come! I hope we're still having this much fun in 20 years. Good luck with everything - Lynn, B.B., Berger

Heppy Birthday Kers have a good one love ya "Cool"

Nency, I'm going to miss you! Love ya "Cool"

Greduating Gormanites (past and present) congratulations and lots of luck!!! Love Steph and Anna

Merk McGaunn - brother of mine, congrats on graduation & the accounting gig! Much success, fame and money to you in the future! Love, brother of yours, Scott

Hey. . . Vickie, Sue, Shari, Marybeth, Tori, Sharon, Leslie, Ginny. . .It's been a great year, lets all get back together in the fall OK? Enjoy the summer!! Love, Martha and George

Rose Licciderdello - your graduating and we will miss you so much. You are what makes college better than just going to school. We love you very much! Love, Scott and Karen

Holly D. - I'll stop the world and melt with you! - S

To all of the 81-82 Gorman Basement Dwellers: Kevin, Don, Jim, Steve, Dupo, Pam, Debbie, and Stephen Best of Luck with everything Wayne

Contact Lenses Replaced. Bausch Lomb $25. others available. Call with your prescription. Dr. Spencer UNiversity Drive 256-8561

PROFESSIONAL TYPING SERVICE

Dissertetions, Theses, Cases, Papers, acceptance guaranteed, on-campus, low rates, 584-7924 Nancy

RIDE WANTED

To Celif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

Chicago - I need a ride to Chicago after May 25 at 6 p.m. I'll share driving and expenses. I travel light. Please call Cris at 545-3500 during the day and 546-6672 at night Keep trying

Need ride to Logan Airport or Boston Tuesday May 22, between 12:00 and 5:00 pm must catch 8:00 flight call Mike at 546-1456

RIDERS WANTED

Drivers to drive cer to Milwaukee area some expenses paid. Call 367-2473 evenings

ROOM WANTED

Room needed for two in West Yarmouth/Hyannis area. Call Tom or Mike 253-9868

Cape Cod - I need place for summer call Lyn 256-8606

Male needs room (single or shared) for fall pref. near campus call Jim 256-1472

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wented to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-6089 Kris 256-0556

Roommete wanted for Southwood apt rate negotiable information cell Margeret 546-1411

Summer sublet/fall option North Amherst 150+ 5 min to bus close to campus 549-0146

Brandywine female to share room possible fall option call 549-1405/546-4791

Roommate wanted for 1 furnished bedroom in 4 bedroom apt for summer and fall only reasonable Amherst 256-1205

Central Northampton on bus room in apartment starting June 1 584-1381

Female wanted for single in Puffton $128 summer sublet fall option furnished 549-4537

Single room in convenient, quiet Squire Village townhouse call 665-3175

One female roommate wanted to share a two bedroom Brandywine apartment call 546-5186 or 546-5088

Female roommate wanted for 2 bedroom apt. call 549-2719

3 rms in 4 bdrm condo 9/1 lease/credit references required 6-10 pm 256-0768

Female wanted for fall to share lg bedroom in Squire Village. Call anytime Dawn 665-8534

House in Dennisport near beach call Mike 546-5067, Dan 546-4308 ASAP

3 bedroom apartment in Amherst Center 1 single plus one summer sublet only, both available June 1. For more information call Debbie 256-8064

Brendywine, 65 a month, female only to share room, call anytime 546-7133

Female nonsmoker roommete wanted for fall share room quiet Brittany apt 165/mth 256-1338 or 546-8582 keep trying

SENIORS

The 1984 Index will be distributed this fall. If you would like the yearbook to be mailed to you, please send your permanent address and $2.50 check for postage and handling to: Index, 103 CC by May 26.

SERVICES

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite. 253-5111

SPENDING THE SUMMER IN DC?

So em II Let's share an apartment call ASAP 665-8126

SUMMER RENTALS

Centrally located on campus full kitchen facilities cable TV furnished 250 single 150 double call Jim K 545-2150 545-0047

SUMMER SUBLET

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

1 bedrm in 2 bedrm furnished apt center of town. Prefer serious student. Avail. June $250/mo Jan/Barb after 4 pm 253-7818

4 bedrooms available at Swiss Village summer sublet with fall option call 253-5274

Two bedroom apt utilities included pool bus route fall option $370 Cliffside 665-8501

Brandywine summer sublet furnished, best offer, call 546-5382

2 Britteny Menor apts available 1 bedroom each 1 with fall option, low price, newly rennovated 253-3389

Female for own room Puffton $150.00 + Trish or Terri eves 549-4621

Four bedroom house, furnished, large kitchen, living room. pantry. Washer and dryer. Near Look Park. $300 or best offer 586-9506

1 bdr apt near Puffers Pond $200/m fall option 549-7522 (day) 542-2363 (n)

Summer sublet 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Brittany call 546-6560 after 6 PM

2 bedroom apt, Presidential, summer rent negotiable, Russell 253-9632 Bill 546-6270

Spacious 2 bedroom apt. Furnished private and quiet 467-9832

Amherst Center apt for 1 person furnished June 1 to Sept 1 call 256-6079

With fall option 2 bedroom apt in Southwood call 253-3111 Dan

Southwood 2 bedroom apt available Jun 1 - Sept 1 inexpensive 546-3282

Rolling Green 1 bdrm Sue 546-1223 or Jodi 256-0807 after 7 pm

One bedroom Rolling Green close to cheap pool air conditioning call 256-6905

5 bedroom house in Amherst next to Swiss Village, on bus route partially furnished only $75 a month call Dan 256-6761

2 rms in house with fall option 586-7037 call eves

Townhouse apartment 2 bedrooms. June 1 - Aug 31. Rent negotiable 546-9559, 546-9605

Female roommate wanted furnished Puffton apartment call 549-0496

Room(s) 4 rent. Swiss Village, very negotiable. Furnished to the hilt! Cindy 256-1474

Sports

Dartmouth travels to Amherst for doubleheader

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

Two months and 43 games ago, the University of Massachusetts baseball team found themselves smack in the middle of a desert oasis called Albuquerque, New Mexico, a mere 2,500 miles from home and 5,000 feet above sea level. They proceeded to lose nine of 13 games, two by the ridiculous counts of 23-8 and 15-10.

They limped home and immediately were swept in three by Temple, surrendering 22 runs in the final two games, and blanked by UConn, 4-0. On Tuesday, April 3, at 6 p.m. the slate read 4-13.

Slowly, but surely, the picture began to change. Victories over Holy Cross and Boston College, followed a week later by an encouraging doubleheader split with New England power Maine and a doubleheader sweep of UNH were evidence of said metamorphosis. The exclamation point was imprinted Sunday with a doubleheader sweep of Providence, the second-ranked team in New England.

And now the closing day is upon us. Ivy leaguer Dartmouth College journeys south from Hanover, N.H. to engage the Minutemen in a doubleheader today at Lorden Field at 2 p.m.

Since the UConn whitewashing, UMass is 14-12, probably a more realistic indicator of their true abilities and carries a three-game winning streak into today's clash with the Big Green, including the sweet sweep of Providence.

"It was definitely the most successful one-day performance this season and along with the victory over Maine is surely one of the highlights this year," said UMass Coach Dick Bergquist. "It proves we can play with anybody."

Pitching: Post-bombing Camodia presented a prettier picture than these guys after the New Mexico experience. Not when you give up 45 runs in the final three days. The lowest ERA is 4.19, that belonging to senior Tony Presnal (who starts for the final time today). The most wins on the staff belong to reliever Matt Subocz, who has pitched only 28.1 innings, yet has yielded 37 hits, 23 runs. To his credit, Subocz gets the ball over the plate, as evidenced by his miniscule six walks.

Freshman Jeff Jensen looks like a Goose Gossage clone and possesses the best arm on the staff. With a 9.12 ERA, Bob Kostro fell below expectations. In 52.1 innings, he was drubbed for 87 hits, 70 runs (53 earned), and has walked 41 while whiffing only 19. Overall, the team ERA was 6.62 in 316.2 innings. Ten times in the northern campaign the opposition recorded seven or more runs. Big years are expected of Kostro, Andy Clark and Jim Knopf in '85.

The Hitters: Individual records were set by Todd Comeau (tie for most hits—54 in one season—will probably get the record today) and Steve Messina (40 RBI's eclipses old mark of 37). Comeau was superb at .378, 32 RBI's, 12 doubles and 15-for-15 in stolen bases. Messina rebounded strongly from a subpar '83. Freshman Sean Flint, 7-12 (.583) in a brief stint at the tail end, looks like a good one.

Bruce Kingman also rebounded from a subpar '83 (.211) to hit .356 with 29 BB's and only 18 whiffs. Jack Bloise, smoking at .414 on April 4, has tailed off to .294. In all, five regulars are hitting over .300. Disappointments include Jeff Cimini, who has struck out 33 times in 103 AB's. The Minutemen showed surprising team speed, stealing 79 bases in 98 attempts.

A record of 18-25 may not sound like much, but it's a long way from 4-13. The entire starting unit, save pitchers, returns except for third baseman Andy Connors. Presnal is the sole pitcher graduating.

Mens lacrosse : Disappointed, but optimistic

By ADAM NAZIMOWITZ
Collegian Staff

The epitaph to the 1984 University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team should read -- A very good team that almost went to the NCAA's.

Although Coach Dick Garber tells his players at the beginning of every season that if they don't make the playoffs, it isn't the end of the world, there has to be some disappointment among the players and coaching staff since they come so close (only three points behind playoff bound number eight Delaware in the poll).

"As far as the tournament goes, that's a big thing to pull off. I think we are as good, if not better than the team that made it."

"Overall 8-4 is a great season, a good turn around from last year (5-10). One low spot was our loss to Harvard (10-7 at home). But we bounced back and won some big games and played great at Syracuse," added Garber.

As far as statistics go, UMass outscored their opponents by a 134-92 count. Gerry Moreau was solid in goal all season long and finished with a 7.3 goals against average.

The defense was tough all season. All-American Barry Cain is bound to be selected once again. Tommy Aldrich is only a sophomore, who is still improving. Co-Captain John Mincone was solid in front of the crease, keeping foes away from Moreau.

In the offensive department, junior playmaker Bubba Sandford led the Gorillas with 17 goals and 19 assists for 36 points.

Junior attackman Mike Fiorini will also return next year. He finished with 19 goals and 16 assists for 35 points. The third member of the offense, Tom Lukacovic led the team in goals with 23.

Midfielders Greg Fisk and Karl Hatton, the two best shooters on the team, according to Garber, both had good seasons with 25 and 19 points respectively.

"We graduate 10 people, a very significant crew. Otherwise, we have a good nucleus coming back. The attack is in good shape, but on defense we lost two of our starters. It looks like Aldrich and Gerry Byrne, who was hurt for most of the season will return. We also have on paper, a good group of freshmen coming in. We're optimistic it will be a good crew," concluded Garber.

Collegian photo by Brian K. Gonye

OUT OF THE CAGE — Goaltender Gerry Moreau (29 with the ball) looks for a teammate to clear it to. Defenders (left to right) Tommy Aldrich and Barry Cain look for a breakout, while Co-Captain John Mincone keeps the UNH attackers away from his goalie.

Collegian photo by Andy Heller

LEGGING IT OUT— Third baseman Debbie Cole beats the throw to first base in an earlier season game at Holy Cross. The minutewomen finished the season with a strong 29-12 mark.

Softball team concludes a frustrating season at 29-10

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

The record looks very good. So do the accomplishments. But for the high expectations of the University of Massachusetts softball team, it wasn't enough.

The accomplishments are many. Vermont Invitational champions, 15-game winning streak, another 20 plus winning season (29-12), qualification for the Atlantic 10 championships, four Atlantic 10 all-conference picks (Lynn Stockley, Carol Frattaroli, Sally Maher and Allyson Rioux) and one player (Rioux) who should be named All-American.

However, the Minutewomen didn't do two things that they wanted to. They didn't win the Atlantic 10 and qualify for the NCAA tournament.

They didn't do it because UMass was too inconsistent on offense and on the mound. And when they fell behind, they didn't have the experience to catch up.

"I think it was a frustrating season," UMass head coach Elaine Sortino said. "I'm not sure why there was a lack of consistency. Some days we were great. Other days mediocre."

Sortino cited, though, a lack of run production as a factor. "The potential is certainly there. The confidence of the young people has to grow."

This was a young team. Seniors Allyson Rioux (ss) and Tina Coffin (cf) stood out with four sophomores and three freshmen in the starting lineup.

Offensively, some of the youngsters struggled at the plate. In some games, they were superb. In others not so. The loss of junior Missy Oman in the eighth game of the season hurt. Oman was hitting .370 with two triples before getting hurt against Bowling Green.

Rioux, an All-American pick last year was steady all season long while Sally Maher rebounded from a slow start to finish over .300.

The pitching was strong but not as strong as many had hoped. Stockley (15-8, 1.18 ERA) and Cathy Reed (14-4, 1.32 ERA) were brilliant at times (they both threw no-hitters over Harvard) and at other times they were hammered.

Defensively, Sortino couldn't ask for more. "I couldn't have asked for a sounder infield." Maher played first for the second year after starting the year in the outfield before Oman got hurt.

Frattaroli made some super plays at second while Rioux dazzled the opposition at short, as usual. Debbie Cole ate up most of what came her way to third.

The season started off well with a strong trip to South Carolina where UMass went 9-4. "We held our own there," Sortino said. "It was an extremely difficult trip. They showed a great deal of character."

However when UMass came back up North, the inconsistency began. UMass split with Providence losing 8-2 and winning the second 3-2. After losing to Rutgers (1-0) and Miami of Ohio (2-1) UMass rattled off 15 straight wins

Continued on page 14

The Massachusetts Daily NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Collegian

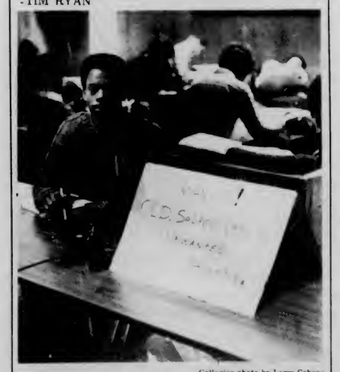
Volume CXIX, Issue 74 © UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) © Wednesday, May 16, 1984

GOT HIM!— Local residents, Jacob and Jason Glazier, bring in a carp from the Campus Center pond.

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

Graduate student wants the boot

Today is the last day of classes at the University of Massachusetts, and if you want to kick off your boots and celebrate, send them over to the Campus Center Concourse, where they may someday become part of "a new art form."



Yul Anderson, a UMass graduate student in the future studies department, has set up a table on the concourse and is collecting "old cowboy boots" from any passersby who wants to offer them.

Anderson said he is taking his endeavor very seriously. He has received many promises for boots, he said, and he is willing to correspond with anyone over the summer if they can give him their boots.

A graduate of the Dartmouth College drama department, Anderson said he would like to enter the fashion industry when he leaves UMass.

He said the new art form is "somewhat related" to his career interests, and was inspired by his future studies. However, he said he could not elaborate further.

-TIM RYAN

Collegian photo by Larry Cabana

BOOTS ANYONE?—University of Massachusetts graduate student, Yul Anderson, waits in the Campus Center for anyone willing to part with an old pair of cowboy boots for "a new art form" he is working on.

Local bus line union may strike

By LAURA KOESTER
Collegian Staff

Union members of Western Massachusetts Bus Lines, which operates a route from Amherst to Northampton, have recently filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and are threatening to strike before the end of the semester if conditions don't improve, according to one member of the newly created union that includes a number of University of Massachusetts students.

Paul Marquis, a former union member, said company president John Herlihy has been "actively involved in an intense and underhanded campaign of intimidation and harrassment against those involved with the unionization."

Because most of the passengers on the Amherst to Northampton route are students, staff and faculty, a union strike could have a big effect on the UMass community, according to a member being distributed by the union. That route is financed by student fees through the Pioneer Valley Transportation Authority, and the bus line currently employs 30 UMass students and 15 former students.

Herlihy has refused to recognize the union, voted in on December 7, 1983, because "students should not be allowed to participate in a union." "There is a 60 to 70 percent turnover rate in student employees each year. Out of 100 students who have worked for us in over four years, there is not one full time driver working now," Herlihy said. He said that in an operation like the busline a union is not "appropriate."

However, Marquis, feels Herlihy is manipulating the numbers and that the student/non-student classification is merely a "convenience." "Students work under the same conditions for the same rate as other employees," Marquis said. The union was established due to sub-standard working conditions, fluctuating personnel policies, minimal benefits and lack of job security," the memo said.

The first step they have taken is to file unfair labor practice charges with the NLRB because Herlihy's refusal to negotiate with them is in "direct violation of Federal Law, which requires an employer to "negotiate in good faith" with a duly elected representative."

Among the issues the union would like to see addressed in a contract are benefits such as overtime and sick time compensation, a formal grievance procedure, job bidding clarification, job descriptions, a promotion policy, and affirmative action guidelines, and a retirement/pension plan.

UMass sends out its acceptance slips

Although there are only 3,950 spaces available, as of yesterday more than 10,000 letters of acceptance have been mailed to worthy candidates to attend the University of Massachusetts beginning next fall, said David Bosquet, Associate Director for Undergraduate Admissions.

"Ideally, only about 40 percent of those accepted will themselves accept our offer of admission to the University," Bosquet said.

Eight members of the admissions staff review the total number of applications, but only one staff worker decides whether a candidate will be accepted, he said.

According to admissions office figures, both median Scholastic Aptitude Test scores and the high school rank of accepted freshman have risen by several percentage points over last year's.

The office received more than 17,000 applications for the fall, "up a little from last year, when we received 22 percent more than the year before," Bosquet said.

"Letters of acceptance started going out in January and continued to be sent until April 15. We also have some applications that are incomplete, and we're waiting to get additional information from those people before we make a decision," he said.

Bosquet said that SAT scores are most often the cause of incomplete application packets, possibly because the scores either haven't been noted on high school transcripts or mailed directly to the University.

Besides the 10,000 letters of acceptance, 1,600 candidates have been placed on a waiting list. If fewer than 3,950 candidates decide to attend the University, then those on the list will be accepted, he said. Otherwise, the list will be dissolved and those candidates will be notifed they will be eligible for January admission.

Inside:

The year in review for UMass by Anne McCrory p.3

James Baldwin: A real learning experience p.7

Andy Gordon's final trailers p.13

"The last thing we can say is that we have done our best and we offer no apologies."
—Joel Meyerson and Bill Wall

Soviets continue to reject assurances ; African sports head criticizes Soviets

Associated Press

A top African sports official Tuesday criticized the Soviet Unions withdrawal from the Los Angeles Olympics, and the president of the International Olympic Committee said he would continue to seek a reversal of the Soviet position.

Meanwhile, the official Soviet news agency again rejected U.S. assurances that visiting athletes would be safe at the Los Angeles Olympics and repeated charges that the U.S. government had supported anti-Soviet "terrorists" who would threaten athletes at the Games.

Amadou Lamine Ba, secretary general of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa, said in Yaounde , Cameroon, that he believes "Africa plans to participate" in the Olympics, barring unforeseen developments before the June 2 entry deadline.

At the same time, Lamine Ba said the council's executive committee would meet in Upper Volta June 16-17 "to analyze objectively the situation and decide the position to take." He said that he knows of no national Olympic Committee in Africa which has shown "the intention to abstain from participating at the Games."

Lamine Ba called the Soviet withdrawal, "a sovereign act which is not for us to approve or disapprove," but added that withdrawals by African countries "on the request or influence of the Soviet Union...is not envisioned for the moment."

In 1976 at Montreal, 26 African nations boycotted the Olympics to protest New Zealand's participation after a rugby team from that nation had toured South Africa, which has a racial policy of apartheid.

Mondale spurns Reagan for his weak policies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Branding President Reagan's Central American policy a failure, Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale on Tuesday called for an end to U.S. military exercises in the region and immediate negotiations seeking withdrawal of all outside forces.

"If Mr. Reagan wants a military solution, he will end up committing our country to direct military intervention," the former vice president said in a speech to the World Affairs Council.

"There is only one conclusion," said Mondale. "Mr. Reagan's failed policies are leading us toward war in that region."

4th graders accuse 5 youths of sex assault

QUINCY, MASS. (AP) - Five Boys ages 10 to 12 have been accused of cornering two fourth-grade girls in the basement of a Catholic church and sexually assaulting them, authorities said.

Authorities said the girls, aged 9 and 10 years old, went inside St. Boniface's Catholic Church to use the bathroom last January and were trapped by the boys.

Three of the boys are charged with assault with intent to rape and indecent assault and battery on one of the girls, said Norfolk District Attorney William D. Delahunt.

Guilty church worker awaits sentencing

BROWNSVILLE, TEXAS (AP) - A spokeswoman for a church-sponsored task force says it will continue to offer sanctuary to Central American refugees despite a church worker's conviction on charges of transporting illegal aliens.

After deliberating for three days, a jury on Monday found Stacey Lynn Merkt, 29, of Colorado Springs, Colo., guilty of transporting and conspiring to illegally transport three Salvadorans into the United States.

Ms. Merkt could be sentenced to up to 15 years in prison and a $9,000 fine, but prosecutors said she would probably be given probation as a first-time offender. Defense attorneys said the verdict would be appealed.

"I am not a criminal, and neither are those arrested and deported" by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, Ms. Merkt said after the verdict was announced.

"It's a sad day when church people in this country are persecuted for helping refugees, but in El Salvador they'd be dead," she said.

Lee Holstein, a spokeswoman for the Chicago Religious Task Force on Central America, a network of churches which have agreed to act as sanctuaries, said the prosecution of Ms. Merkt has not discouraged participation. She said task force membership has increased 25 percent since Ms. Merkts's arrest and the number of member churches has reached 125.

AP Laserphoto

RIDING THE COMEBACK TRAIL— Democratic presidential hopeful Gary Hart casually chews on a piece of straw while horseback riding in Denver yesterday. Hart was later to learn he had won the Nebraska and Oregon primaries in his bid for the nomination.

Today's Staff

Night Editor — David Summersby
Copy Editor — Ralph Roberts
Layout Technician — Susan Bankert
Photo Technician — Brian Gonye
Production Supervisor — Pete Soderberg
Production — Leslie King, Will Hopkins, Merriane Hryein, Leslie Clark, Pamela Smith, Conor Plunkett, Sue Gianetti, John Wielgus, Long Sleeve Summer Shirt

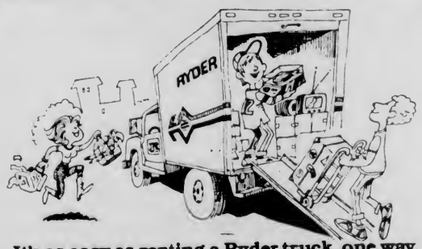
$7.45
reg. $9.95
aqua or royal imprinted "UMass"



Sleeveless Fleece Vest
$8.50
assorted designs

John C. - Sharon S. - Photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

Move Yourself, All Your Stuff, And Save, Too!

It's as easy as renting a Ryder truck, one way.

Compare costs before you make plans for moving at the end of the semester.
If you're 18 or older and have a valid driver's license, you can use a Ryder truck, rent-it-here, leave-it-there. Load up your stereo, 10-speed, clothes; everything. You'll still have room, no doubt, for one or two friends with their things to share the cost.
Compare that to the price of a plane ticket. Or even a bus. Plus shipping.
Rent a newer truck from the best-maintained, most dependable fleet in the world - Ryder. The best truck money can rent.

STUDENT DISCOUNT COUPON
RYDER TRUCK RENTAL, INC.
The holder of this coupon is entitled to a
15% DISCOUNT
on any ONE WAY rental of a Ryder truck. Present this coupon to any Ryder location in New England and save even more.
One coupon redeemable per transaction. Not valid with other promotions.
Call (413) 736-8361 or your local dealer for information.
Renters Signature _____ Expires 8/30/84

Arson, tuition, activism highlight news year

By ANNE McCRORY
Collegian News Editor

Arson, activism, administrative actions, news. Some of it is the reciprocation of daily life at the University of Massachusetts, some of it makes history at the school and in the state. This year has been full of both, and covering it all, while trying to maintain high journalistic standards and remain students at the same time has not been easy. But it has been worth the experience.

And now, for the year in review:

News Analysis

ARSON. The top news story of the year without a doubt, from both its regularity and its magnitude. Its events and implications ranged from Sept. 25, the date the first suspicious trash can fire in Southwest's all-women Crampton House was reported, to May 8, when a woman charged with setting one of the dormitory's 17 fires last fall filed two lawsuits seeking $13 million in damages for violations of her rights. Charges against the senior from Philadelphia were dropped three weeks after her arrest.

The "arson crisis," which continued minimally into the spring semester, was never solved.

TUITION. The Board of Regents wanted to increase it 15 percent for next fall, the Legislature tried to delay the Board's vote and failed, and our Amherst Rep. Jim Collins succeeded in passing an amendment through the House to curb the hike to about 6 percent, if the Senate concurs. The chancellor has attempted to remain uncommitted on the increase proposals, but his own attempt to slap a flat $50 hike on everyone's bill last fall cannot be forgotten.

Student protests along the way have gained varying amounts of support and success, though in general the task of promoting student interests has fallen on a few among the apathetic. While cost increases are to be expected, their intent must be evaluated with concern for the right to a public higher education.

PROTESTS. Against tuition, United Technologies Corp. on campus, Latin American speakers, and most notably, Grenada. The US government action to invade the tiny Carribbean nation resulted in two rallies on the UMass campus, both vocal, with demonstrators on both sides of the issue, and more student involvement than almost any other singular event on campus this year. Take note, Ronald Reagan.

FRATERNITIES. They're gone from Amherst College now, or soon will be, despite protests, a sit-in and even a hunger strike. But students were overruled by their trustees, and the small liberal arts school now joins Colby and Williams college in having a social scene sans Greeks.

PORNOGRAPHY. What is it, what does it cause and should it be banned from campus stores were the center of this controversy, originating with a group called the ad hoc committee on campus pornography and then moving to the Undergraduate Student Senate and the Campus Center Board of Governors (BOF).

Proponents of the action lectured on degradation and violence against women and its alleged connection with pornography, while others charged that the banning of Playboy, Playgirl, and Penthouse would be censorship.

The issue has culminated, for the time being, with senate plans to put the question out to students on the fall election ballot, while the BOG declined to recommend that the stores cease selling the material. Activists note that community education and awareness were their main goals, which members say they feel have been reached.

THE INDEX. They've had problems: the '82 Index still sits outside our Collegian offices, and the '83 book remains at the printers, though the current staff seems to be on schedule. So the action by the senate budget committee to first axe all funding and later recommend only $16,000 of the $38,000 originally sought seemed unfounded to the staff, who claim more money will have to come from somewhere if next year's seniors are going to get a book. The senate will take up the issue again and consider proposals for reallocations of funds in September.

A NEW PROVOST. Finally. University of Rochester Provost Richard O'Brien will fill that post here, beginning Sept. 1, after two temporary provosts held office in the year and a half since former provost Loren Baritz went on sabbatical and then assumed another position at another school. The provost, a joint title with vice chancellor for academic affairs, is the highest academic position at the University and the absence of an administrator to fill it had more than a few people on campus concerned. Welcome, Provost O'Brien.

ELECTIONS. Election year is half over, its impact quite visible on the UMass campus by the more than 3,000 voters who registered for the March 13 primary as part of "UMass Big Vote '84," as well as the active students campaigning for their candidate around campus that month. Sen. Gary Hart took Amherst, with George McGovern second and Jesse Jackson third. McGovern, the 1972 Massachusetts victor, spoke on campus to a packed Student Union Ballroom audience Feb. 1, and Jesse Jackson followed on Feb. 2 in the Fine Arts Center with a political speech and keynote address for Black History Month.

MISCELLANEOUS. The Stockbridge student who spent a week in a tree, a Hampshire College student who majored in frisbee, and two write-in candidates for a Sylvan house presidency who promised to jump in the Campus Pond Monday if, and only if, the Collegian would send a photographer. (We didn't.) Yes, the year was an interesting one for us in many ways, and hopefully we allowed you to learn the same. See you in the fall.

Collegian photo by Robert Falk

BINKLEY'S DARE—Carl Engvall of Butterfield fame and known to his friends as "Binkley" attempts to jump the Campus Center pond last week. To his chagrin the jump failed. Asked why he would ever attempt such a crazy thing, Binkley replied: "because it is there."

Collegian photo by Robert Falk

FIRE ONE—University of Massachusetts professor Paul Goldsmith and the Five College Radio Astronomy class try out the "rats" radio telescope outside the graduate research tower.

Faculty Senate in review

By LAURA YEE
Collegian Staff

Once every two weeks, a group of about 50 of the same professors gather to meet with administrative heads and discuss problems involving the faculty and academics that ultimately effect students and University at large. As with most problems, including the senate, solutions often do not arise without conflict and bickering first. But the senate usually manages to resolve its conflicts and differences to reach unanimous decisions that seek to benefit the school.

News Analysis

Some University of Massachusetts organizations may look back at the past academic year with a degree of dismay and disappointment when they realize some of their goals have not been reached. But not for the Faculty Senate, a legislative and decision making and problem solving body who served fellow faculty members, students and the university this year.

Committees are the thriving lifelines of the senate. When a problem arises, a committee is formed. The Rules Committee devotes itself to solving bylaw problems, the Space and Calendar Committe resolves conflicts in scheduling and allocating space, and the Graduate Council works on issues that arise in the graduate programs. The list of committees continues, and include not only professors and administrators but also students.

During the past academic year, the senate confronted a number of issues ranging from the simplicity of approving departmental courses to solving opposing stands on certain issues including a mandate to force professors to pay a $25 fee for lost keys that was left unresolved.

The senate's 1983-84 record of achievement warrants merit for a job well done. Last fall the group got tired of being pushed around when classroom space was taken and converted for non-academic uses. As a result, they passed a motion that required the administration to consult with them before allocating classroom space. Imagine anyone actually getting the administration to do something?

And when fellow colleagues, students and even Acting Provost Sam Conti were embarrassed and laughing at the appearance of advertisements in the Spring scheduling booklet where no one knew "who dunnit," the senate had the Rules Committee investigate the implications of the ads. It was settled that the ads remain in the booklets, on the conditions of the committee, but this did not stop committee chairman Chester Davis from calling the ads "cheap and chintzy looking."

The campus mud problem "unnerved" political science Professor Irving Howard, and when Arnold Freidmann, campus planning committee chairman, started to collaborate with Physical Plant director Roger Cherewatti, only good things resulted. This committee actually got Cherewatti to become a member (whether or not he'll be an active member remains questionable) and $47 million is on the way for renovations, repairs, and deferred maintenance.

This is not to say that the meetings always went smoothly or without dispute.

The issue of the state Legislature appropriating $3 million for the initial construction of a multi-sports facility sent the senate into an uproarious debate. Some supporters condemned faculty members of being "anti-sports" when they opposed the facility, but as Secretary Robert E. Jones said, the issue is one of priorities. "To spend $3 million seems, to many people, an inappropriate use of funds, when there are so many other critical needs," Jones said.

And "critical needs" prompted Mario DePillis, service committee chairman, to designate the Graduate Research Center as "the number one slum area on campus." His committee's efforts to lessen vandalism and increase security, but moreover, to abolish barbeques and beer parties in classrooms will not go thankless. Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson wants everyone to "keep our fingers crossed" since the chance of getting the requested $234,000 for additional security of campus buildings looks very optimistic.

For the fall, the senate will be faced with the controversy over the General Education proposal concerning possibilities of changing the academic curriculum.

"We spent much of the year on the general education proposal but finished it too late for this year," Jones said.

Regardless of the heated disputes or conflicting opinion of issues, the fervor of the faculty members continues to "take care of a large number of small, but nevertheless' significant, problems," Jones said.

"Dispute in the faculty senate meetings help publicize other problems," he said.

Lawyers to discuss U.S. politics

By MARY-SHEILA LOUGHLIN
Collegian Staff

Civil Rights lawyers Arthur Kinoy and Lewis Gurwitz, defenders of McCarthy-era Red Scare victims and inmates who rioted at Attica Prison, will give their perspectives tonight on political issues facing the United States, tonight at the University of Massachusetts.

Kinoy and Gurwitz are "people's lawyers," who" have had a profound impact on the legal (and) political system in the last 20 to 30 years," said Charles DiMare, director of the Legal Services Office, a sponsor for the event.

Kinoy and Gurwitz will discuss U.S. intervention in Central America, the invasion of Grenada, and the continuing repression of Native Americans, DiMare said.

Kinoy, a professor at the Rutgers University School of Law, will have copies of his recently published book Rights on Trial available for sale after the lecture. The book chronicles his involvement as a "People's lawyer," and includes such legal battles as the defense of union leaders and members unjustly condemned by Sen. Joseph McCarthy's anti-communist crusades of the early 1950s, representation of Mississippi Freedom Fighters, and the pre-Watergate uncovering of the Nixon administration.

Fall Work Study Positions
available in Undergraduate Admissions Office.
Clerical, 10 hours per week, day and evening hours
If interested, call 545-0222

Summer Jobs Available
Evening security workers/ushers wanted for Bright Moments Jazz Concerts on July 5, 12, 19 for approx. 5 hours/shift (limited number of additional hours available also) Work study preferred but not required. UMass students only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and applications available from Dave, 207 Hasbrouck, 545-0190 thru Fri. 5/25

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
Watch For. . .
LIVE ENTERTAINMENT ALL SUMMER LONG!
Every Monday
NICKEL NITE
every other drink 5¢
Every Tuesday
LADIES NIGHT
Ladies 1st 2 Drinks 99¢
We have the lowest prices in the area 7 days a week!
Rt. 9 Hadley across from Mt. Farms Mall

$3.00 Special Value
T-Shirts plain or printed - limited quantities
Sale Shirts located on special tables in front of store

Sharon S. - John Cruise - Photo by Dwayne Autery
assorted colors
Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

BODY SHOP
SPECIAL 25% OFF
Buy summer or fall membership. Now thru May 18
ONLY $33.75 reg. $45.00
X-SPECIAL 30% OFF
Buy both now & save $27
Reg. $90.
YOU PAY $63 thru May 18
Summer Hours
Boyden only M-F 7-9, 12-1, 3:30-5:30 pm
Summer workouts start June 4
LIMITED TO FIRST 500 MEMBERSHIPS
OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED IN THE FALL

The Sisters and Pledges of KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA would like to express sincere congratulations to the Graduating Class of '84! Good Luck. . .

Lynn	Karen J.	Favour	Jill
Triss	Jen	Susan	Diane
Linda	Patty	Alice	Dana
	Karen P.	Mary	Kathy

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
Friday & Saturday
LIVE BANDS!
9:30 No Cover
We have the lowest drink prices in the area 7 days a week!
Rt. 9 Hadley across from Mt. Farms Mall

LABORATORY TECHNICIAN
Chemistry
GTE Laboratories, the central research and development facility of the entire Corporation of more than 60 communications, products, research and service subsidiaries in the U.S. and 19 countries around the world, is currently seeking a talented Technician.
You will be responsible for carrying out experiments under supervision of professional staff members. Candidates must have the ability to work under minimal supervision and be able to analyze results of experiments and suggest alternate approaches to solving research problems. This position will require maintenance of laboratory equipment and ordering of supplies.
To qualify for this position you must have a background in organic, inorganic, physical, analytic or polymer chemistry as well as prior laboratory research experience as part of an undergraduate or summer work position.
GTE Laboratories offers an outstanding benefits package including a company-paid medical/life/dental insurance plan, a pension plan, paid holidays and vacations.
Please send your resume to Paul Houle, Employment Representative, GTE Laboratories, Inc., Box COL, 40 Sylvan Road, Waltham, MA 02254. We are an equal opportunity employer, M/F.
GTE
GTE Laboratories Incorporated

Amherst's bid for no nukes causing debate

By DAVID LINTON
Collegian Staff

Amherst may become one of several New England towns which have declared themselves "nuclear free zones" if town meeting members approve article 65 of the town warrant, but the issue has raised some eyebrows in the University of Massachusetts academic community.

Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey has called the act "laudable," but said it "puts an unnecessary and unwarranted restraint on freedom to do research."

Of the 33 Massachusetts communities where nuclear free zones are proposed or have been passed, only the Amherst ordinance could actually have some effect, since some nuclear-related research is conducted at UMass.

And at a public hearing on the act last month, a spokesperson for UMass read a statement from Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey which called the act "laudable," but said it "puts an unnecessary and unwarranted restraint on freedom to do research."

Article 65, or the Nuclear Free Amherst Act, says, "No person, corporation, public or private educational facility, laboratory, institution, or other entity shall intentionally, knowingly, or having reason to know, engage in the production of nuclear weapons or components in Amherst.

The act also calls for the town to divest itself within one year of its passage of any investments in industries or institutions which are engaged in nuclear weapons production. Section four of the act calls for the establishment of a committee which would review contracts in the town by the U.S. Department of Defense, the Energy Dept. and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. This portion of the act worries academians most.

"The problem, at least in my view, is that such a committee can abuse its powers and harass people if they choose to do so," said Leroy F. Cook, chairman of the UMass physics department.

But proponents of the act say they don't expect anyone to build a nuclear warhead in Amherst and that it is largely a symbolic statement.

"The act would actually effect little activity inside Amherst but that doesn't mean it's not important," said Daniel Smith, a visiting social science professor at Hampshire College.

"The act does not prescribe limits on basic research. It would affect applied research of the kind not done at the University (of Massachusetts)," Smith said. "I don't see why academic research would not be beyond moral responsibility. Academic freedom should not be promoted into an abstract good into itself like other freedoms."

Cook said he thinks the act is redundant in view of the provisions already in place at UMass prohibiting classified research. "I believe it is a statement by a group of people which indicates their beliefs on nuclear war," he said.

Hajime Sakai, a professor of physics at UMass said the impact of the power of the committee is not clear. He said research at the University is already reviewed by the Office of Grant and Contract Administration.

According to Camille G. Supka, coordinator of the contract Office, professors must submit proposals for contracts with industries, foundations and federal and state agencies with the office for fiscal and administrative review.

She said out of 1,125 proposals totaling $56.8 million submitted to the office in fiscal year 1983, only 780 contracts totaling $25.2 million were actually awarded.

Francis Fortino, one of the sponsors of the act, said the opponents, including Duffey, are strictly interpreting the wording of the act.

"We're essentially doing for the whole town what the University has done for itself by banning unclassified research," Fortino said.

The Board of Selectmen have not endorsed the act because opponents and supporters of the act are currently discussing a compromise amendment to ensure its passage. If the proposal does not pass, Fortino said a referendum on the issue would be possible in the fall.

"The ultimate goal is to put pressure on the powers that be with the proliferation of nuclear freeze zones to force elected officials to at last go back to the negotiating table for arms control," he said.

There are now 15 nuclear free zones in Massachusetts and efforts are underway in 8 other communities. Locally Leverett has joined the movement to ban nuclear weapons.

"The act does not prescribe limits on basic research. It would affect applied research of the kind not done at the University. I don't see why academic research should not be beyond moral responsibility."

—Prof. Daniel Smith
Hampshire College

Belchertown passed a nuclear free zone resolution Tuesday and Hadley, Northampton and Longmeadow will also address the issue in the coming months at town meetings and elections.

The action on the issue varies from town to town. Some have passed binding local laws banning the manufacturing or transport of nuclear weapons. The Amherst act will carry the force of law. Others have only passed resolutions declaring public opinion through referendums.

FUNNYBONES
Cocktail Lounge
It Doesn't Matter How You Get Here
Just Get Here
HAPPY HOUR 7 DAYS A WEEK
2 - 7 pm ALL DRINKS 99¢
Rt. 9 Hadley across from Mt. Farms Mall

Inventors of the Smoosh-in
We mix, by hand, your choice of candies and nuts directly into a scoop of our award winning homemade ice cream!
Herrell's

DELANO'S
Wednesday Nite
Early Happy Hour 9 to 11
Steinhauser Night
Free T-Shirts etc. . .
— Home of the Twofers —
Proper ID a Must
57 N. Pleasant St.
253-5141

UVC
Just a reminder that Union Video Center will remain open this summer and video workshops will still be offered. For more info contact:
545-1336
216 Student Union
Summer Hours:
M-F 10-2

If it was worth 4 years, It's worth another second. ...Buckle-Up!
A message from University Health Services

Why not celebrate graduation with a
NEW CAR?
Please call Ken gordon at Balise in Springfield
785-1311

Jonathan Reid
Entire stock of London Fog Coats & Jackets
20% off or more!!!
Hampshire Mall
Hadley

Just Fun Arcade
Take a Break
presents the
Thursday Night
Free Play Party
Hop on the bus (Northampton 7:35/8:05) or drive down to Just Fun Arcade in the Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley
This Thursday!!
Play all the machines from 8:30 - 10:30
2 hours of fun for $2.00

COMPUTERIZED BUY-BACK

CASH FOR BOOKS

ONLY AT

Half Price Paid on Hundreds of Titles

Half Price Paid on Hundreds of Titles

THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX

MAY 14 - 25
9:00 - 4:00

Monday - Friday

FAST • EFFICIENT • RELIABLE

Black Affairs

A learning experience ends

By MARILYN G. BOU
Collegian Correspondent

Sitting with James Baldwin after the last class on the History of the Civil Rights Movement. I had what many would call an enlighting and honorable experience this semester. The internationally reknowned author, who just finished his first and hopefully not the last semester as a five college visiting lecturer, provided his class with an experience many said they will not soon forget.

"If I could write and teach at the same time I would possibly consider a permanent position (in the five college area). You must be there for the students or else you are cheating them," Baldwin said.

In response on how he felt about the class, Mr. Baldwin said, "Now that it is over, I feel as if my students and I have been on a journey together." In class Baldwin told students and the many visitors who often came to class of the struggle which progressive Americans often had with perservative ones. Baldwin said he feels he has enlightened all those who have attended his lectures. "It now poses a responsibility on both of us. This being, to keep the faith and change this world." At the beginning of the course, students felt there was an atmosphere of expectation prevailed.

The class met every Tuesday and not only openly discussed but also gained knowledge on the history of the civil rights movement. "Baldwin is thoughtful. His character I feel, demonstrates his thoughtful concern for all humanity. Through his abilities as a scholarly writer, lecturer and teacher he expresses his deep-rooted feelings about oppression which are clearly embelished in his soul," said Kenneth Johnston a senior communications major.

Baldwin who said he was frightened at the beginning of the course because this was his first teaching experience now said he feels "I have learned a lot from my students, they taught me about people in this country. I feel a bond between myself and them."

Collegian photo by David Deuber

James Baldwin renown author and five college visiting lecturer speaking at the University of Massachusetts last fall.

AP Laserphoto

CAMPAIGN HUGS—Democratic presidential hopeful Rev. Jesse Jackson gives a big hug to seven-year old Nena Royale during a youth rally at San Francisco State University Tuesday.

Oakland needs volunteers

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

Addressing the root causes of thousands of homeless black people, police killings, infant mortality and unemployment, the black community of Oakland, California has made a call on volunteers to work on the Oakland Summer Project.

Ten thousand black people wander the streets or hole up in one of the city owned boarded up houses, according to a press release from the project organizing committee.

Since July of 1983, organizers from the UHURU House and the surrounding black community have seized an abandoned house, fixed it up and used it to house a homeless black mother and her children, said the press release.

In addition, UHURU House organizers built a tent city in a city park frequented by homeless black people who then organized a park council to get rid of drug pushers, and served over 1000 meals from the Joyce and Jeffrey Wheeler Free Food Program.

The press release said the tent city and food program were widely supported by people throughout the San Francisco Bay Area. However, "Every project was viciously attacked by the police, causing injuries and destroying property." Many arrests were made, but charges were later dropped, the release said.

"Twenty years ago this summer, eight hundred volunteers poured into Mississippi to help our people make critical advances in the organizing work in the rural areas and to take back across the land the realities they had learned in Mississippi. Now our people are mainly in the cities, often in the north, and still catching hell," said Omah Yeshtela, former SNNC leader from Florida and leader of the Oakland Struggle.

"The Oakland Summer Project will be an eye-opener, it will allow any progressive to go beyond discussion, study and intellectuals endeavor, to roll up their sleeves and learn the real work of building a movement at the community level. We have a strong black community with a proud history, and we have a solidarity movement within the white community which provides crucial resources and political support," Yeshtala said. The Oakland Summer project is modeled after the Mississippi Summer Project of 1964 which was organized by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee to bring supporters from all over the country to help build the Civil Rights Movement of 1964.

Projects will include helping to build a Freedom School, a free medical clinic and building community involvement with the current programs from the UHURU House, the Burning Spear Community Grpahics School, and African People's Free Childcare Collectives. Participants will do community organizing for tenant's rights and work to get out the vote for a Community Control Housing Initiative.

Volunteers will undergo a training session in regional centers before coming to Oakland. A reunion and commemoration of Mississippi Freedom Summer is planned for June.

For more information, please contact UHURU House, 7622 MacArthur Blvd., Oakland, Ca 94605. Telephone (415) 569-9620.

Note from editor's desk

By YADIRA BETANCES
Collegian Staff

As the Spring '84 semester comes to a close leaving behind the strenuous efforts made to pass classes, or to understand what one learned in relevance to our lives, let us not forget one important point: The struggle continues for the Third World community at the University of Massachusetts as well as in the American society.

This struggle has been waged for centuries now. It can be dated as far back as when our forefathers were forcefully brought to the new world to be enslaved in a "civilized" society.

The struggle reached its zenith during the turbulant Civil Rights Movement when a population then called Negro and demoralized by a second class citizenship, took the laws into their own hands to make sense out of the "greatest nation in the world."

Twenty or so years later, the struggle continues despite what the media and the society says. Yes, we gain some rights and it looks very impressive on black and white, but in practice everything is the same.

Little black children are still mentally crippled when they are not allowed to play with their white friends. Black men and women are still enslaved when they don't get a position despite their qualifications because of their skin color. Young black men and women are still embottled to a life of drugs, poverty and social ills because they are not totally accepted in their America.

I'm not bringing this crude reality to the surface in order to end the semester on a pessimistic note. If I've done that, I apologize. But my purpose is to instill in the minds of Third World students that everyone should join the struggle to assure the existence and ultimate survival of the race in the United States.

There are internal forces trying to turn back the clock of justice in trying to enslave Third World people in ghettoes. We must never let this happen. It is up to the young and educated to liberate the community of the chains of racism and prejudice.

The summer is ling and it can be used beneficially for the growth of our community. Let's not waste the most precious time of our lives by packing our education in a vacation sack then picking it up next fall. That's not the way to get educated. If you're enrolled at the University for this reason then you're wasting your time and denying the right to be educated to someone else who might have aspirations.

The best education one can receive is when one is teaching others to help themselves. Therefore use this summer to put in practice the abilities you've been learning this year in order to help the community bear fruits. Be a role model. Teach the young to grow up feeling proud of their skin color and their heritage. Help yours understand what is meant when our government enacts a new law indirectly affecting us. How indirect is it? How soon will it come knocking on our doors, ripping us apart?

The summer can also be used to brainstorm new ideas and suggestions to bring to the numerous Third World organizations. When we students return next fall, we will confront the same administration and the same foes that have haunted us through the year. These foes, like a nightmare, will always haunt us. Forever. That's why it's imperative to start acting today. The time has come. Let's not be weighted down by the negativism reflected of ourselves in our society.

Taking Rev. Jesse Jackson's slogan, let's remember "You are somebody. You are somebody. You are somebody." And as a dear friend always reminds me, think of the things that you want in life and not of the things that you don't.

Thank you...

The Black Affairs staff wishes to extend their thanks to all who have contributed to the department. We also send a special thank-you to all the members of the minority and Third World community for the support given to us while we were weathering several storms this semester. At this time we send our congratulations out to the minority and third world students who have been elected to key-note positions for the upcoming semester, we also wish you luck! Also a sincere congratulations we send to the graduating third world students, we thank-you for your friendships and good times, we send you off with the best of luck.

"UMass" painters caps 99¢

Hooded Sweatshirts $15.95

Sharon S. - John C. - Photo by Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

UNIVERSITY STORE

BLUES IN THE BLUE WALL

18+ & PUBLIC WELCOME

CAMPUS CENTER AT UMASS

THURS MAY 17, 1984

BOARD OF GOVERNORS PRESENTS

the LEGENDARY BLUES BAND

SPECIAL GUESTS
THE WILDCAT O'HALLORAN BLUES BAND

formerly THE MUDDY WATERS BLUES BAND

THESE BLUES VETERANS HAVE PLAYED ALL OVER THE WORLD WITH ARTISTS LIKE ERIC CLAPTON, THE ROLLING STONES AND JOHNNY WINTER.

FREE!

THIS RARE OPPORTUNITY TO SEE THE LEGENDARY BLUES BAND IS BROUGHT TO YOU FREE OF CHARGE BY THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS AS A THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT OF BLUES IN THE BLUEWALL

Come to the party. It's free!

Farewell and Good Luck

The Adulterer
Joe-Biff
Sachman
The Mad Russian
Fred MacMurray
The Party Skeleton
Macka
Jay-Fudd
Mitt
Ding-Ho
Fanno
Jumbo

From the Brothers of ΔX
(Hey guys, get a real job!)

SUN SYSTEMS

by RuggedWear Ltd.

The Rugby Dress

Vivid pinstripes on a soft background for all Spring and Summer wear. Ideal mediumweight in pure, breathable cotton.

House of Walsh

SUN SYSTEMS

Wounded Knee
Watergate
Chicago Seven
Rosenbergs
HUAC

Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party
Central America
Attica
Leonard Peltier

The only Indian America ever cared about.

Arthur Kinoy and Lewis Gurwitz:

Rights on Trial

UMass Campus Center Room 101
Wednesday, May 16, 7:30 pm
FREE — Open to the Public

Sponsored By:
Student Legal Services Office and the Pioneer Valley Chapter of the National Lawyer's Guild

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

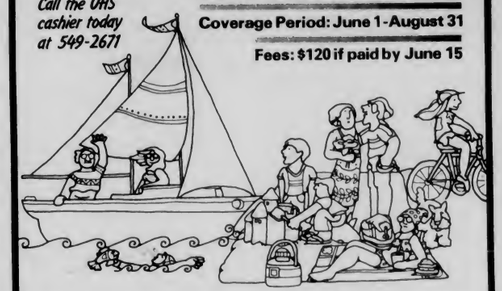
Summer Health Coverage

Basic Student Health

Eligibility: Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith and UMass Students

Coverage Period: June 1-August 31

Fees: $60 if paid before June 1
$75 if paid during June



Comprehensive Dependent Health Plan

Eligibility: Dependents of UMass Students who are enrolled in the 1983-1984 Supplemental Health Benefits Plan

Coverage Period: June 1-August 31

Fees: $120 if paid by June 15

Call the UHS cashier today at 549-2671

Mortar Board

Mortar Board is a national honor society of college seniors, The society recognizes the qualities of superior ability, outstanding and continued leadership and dedicated service to the college, university or community.

Founded by The Ohio State University, Swathmore College, The University of Michigan, and Cornell University in 1918, the Mortar Board now has 183 active chapters across the country.

The Isogon Chapter of the Mortar Board was installed at the University of Massachusetts in 1955. Those students who have shown qualities of academic excellence, leadership, and service are honored with membership. This year the selection committee reviewed approximately 250 information sheets from those students who merited eligibility.

The Mortar Board is pleased to announce the newly tapped members for 1984 - 1985:

John T. Smolek
Dulce Moreira
Anthony Francis Betros
Kirstin Jahn
William T. Rudolph
Maureen Micek
Laurence Francis Roberge
Mitchell Roye
Susan Gladwin
Mark Keeley
Karen Ahlers
Lori Ann Rubenfeld
Raymond Choiniere
Susan Connell
Beth Solomon
Jody Leshne
Grace Cucchissi
Peter Olsen
Stephanie Moll
Steven Cooperstein
David Stebbins
Darleen Martin
Mark Zuckerman
Michael Rosenthal
Karyn Zucker
Frederick Marsh
David Rego
Catherine Sotir
Imanuel Arin

We thank all who expressed interest in the Mortar Board Honor Society. This year, a great number of qualified Juniors made the competition most keen, and the decision quite difficult. To each applicant; you have every reason to be proud of your accomplishments during your college career. Certainly you are a credit to yourself and to the University. We know you will continue to strive for excellence. The Mortar Board extends its best wishes for a successful future.

James Pisini
President

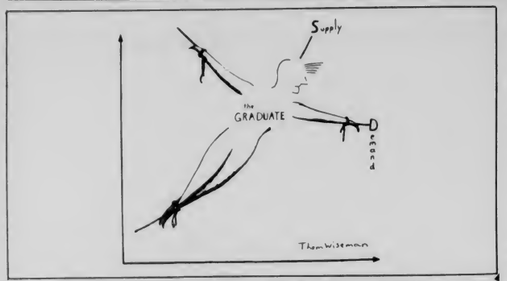
Sharon Riel
Selections Chairperson

5 Days Only

TIMEX SALE

May 14 through May 18
10 - 4:30

Over 400 watches to choose from



From $13.99 reg. $19.99 to $48.99 reg. $69.99

30% OFF list price

Sale located on the concourse in front of the store

UNIVERSITY STORE

EDITORIAL/

Academic guidelines

The following proposal is scheduled to be presented to the Faculty Senate at tomorrow's meeting.

"Each year an inordinate number of complaints and disputes about grades and course procedures come to department heads, deans, the Provost's and Ombuds Offices, and the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA). The great majority of these disputes could be avoided if faculty members took note of the minimal guidelines suggested below.

Academic Matters

This column suggests possible ways of minimizing some of the confusions and mis-understandings that lead to grievances. All courses cannot and should not be conducted identically. These guidelines are meant to be helpful. They are suggestions, not prescriptions. They do not intend to limit faculty freesom, to determine course structure of modes of evaluation.

- Make available an up to date syllabus to each student. Students look for the following information in your syllabus: your course objectives, your expectations and any special requirements for papers, projects, lab reports or exams, your attendance policies, your grading criteria and the approximate weight of each course requirement in the final grade, your examination schedule and any make-up or rescheduling policies, your policies on academic honesty, your office, phone and mailbox numbers.

Try to avoid major changes as the semester progresses.

- Since grading policies often tend to be a focus of confusion or misunderstanding, take special care to articulate your grading criteria and invite students to discuss related questions with you early in the course.

- Avoid further misunderstandings by reminding students of their responsibilities in your course. For instance, remind them that it is their responsibility to take exams at the scheduled times and know the location of their exams, to make alternative arrangements in advance if they have a legitimate reason for not being able to take an exam, and to provide appropriate explanation and documentation if they miss an exam without making prior arrangements. Remind students also of your policies and official University policy on make-up exams.

- Announce field trips and other special meetings, preferably in class and in writing. If these require activity on holidays and-or weekends, state this clearly.

Unless it is your custom to return exams, lab reports, papers and projects, retain all of your grading materials for timely review with students both during the semester and after final grades. Students have the right to discuss their grades with faculty: they should be apprised of your grading policies, see their work, and hear your evaluation of their work directly.

--Academic Matters Council

Waste not, want not

Did you ever wonder why it takes the Physical Plant so many personnel to mow a lawn? One person to mow the lawn, and the other two to hold up the truck! Did you ever wonder why the Physical Plant decided that the grass-bare areas in front of Knowlton and The Insititute for the Advanced Studies of the Humanties needed to be reseeded in late November and early December? They did a very thorough job -- they even put a flimsy fence around the areas where the students were not to walk. Unfortunately, the effort was wasted. As soon as the grass sprouted, and before they should have been, the string fences were removed. In no time the grass was tromped down. In all my years of landscaping I have never heard of planting seed that late in the season.

Evan L. Fielder

The other day I was walking down the hill from the Sylvan area, when I noticed a commotion about halfway down -- it looked like a serious accident. In reality it was simply the Physical Plant personnel picking up the grass clippings, pebbles, and other debris that winter leaves behind. What astounded me was the method they used to do it. Picture this if you will: One man with a push broom standing on the slope of the grass hill (I imagine his role in this scenario was to sweep the litter down the hill into the asphalt ditch that runs along the Sylvan road. I couldn't be sure though, because as long as I watched the operation, he did nothing.) In the ditch were two men with shovels who were putting the stuff into a bucket loader which followed them up the hill as they moved. When the bucket was about half full the machine backed off, crossed the road, and dumped the load into a dump truck which was parked on the sidewalk. Of course, with an operation of this proportion, there had to be a supervisor. I wasn't disappointed-he stood on the hill talking to the man with the broom. His yellow pickup was parked in front of Johnson House.

This scenario seems typical of most operations the Physical Plant conducts. What should occupy the time of two maybe three men, and a pickup truck, ends up taking five men, a pickup, a bucket loader, and a dump truck.

Have you ever wondered why it seems that tuition is always going up? Have you ever wondered how long the University of Massachusetts can continue to be the "Bread Basket" of under-employed labor (union or otherwise), if the cost of attending said university becomes so prohibitively expensive as to preclude the possibility of many from attending?

As a student who faces potential yearly tuition hikes, this blatant waste infuriates me, and I should think, many others. There are, I'm sure, other ways of cutting the school budget in order to minimize the effects of rising costs. However, it would seem logical to start with the most obvious areas first.

Evan L. Fielder is a UMass student.

Good luck class of 1984

The following column is directed to the graduating class of 1984.

Although we graduates are leaving with a solid education, each of us is leaving the University with a different education.

Emanuel S. Ellis

A major part of that education has been the courses we have taken. Those of us who are liberal arts majors have enjoyed an especially diverse education but everyone else has been a part of a diverse education as well. To fulfill our minimum of 120 credits, most of have taken at least 40 different courses. As if this were not diverse enough, it is with these vast educations and social experiences you may wonder what brings us together. It is our collective experiences at the University which unite us.

Most of us began our association-as-freshmen at the University with the summer orientation program. We learned so much about the school then we often wondered how we would ever get to know where each building was, let alone get there in time for class. Most of us have by now learned not only where every soda machine is but we also know when it is refilled.

At the end of orientation we learned an entirely new fact-of-life, that of pre-registration for classes. It was no easy matter to decide from the over 200 page course description catalogue. And then, just when we thought it was over, we had to learn how to read and use the schedule book so we could fill in the registration form correctly. Those of us graduating have apparently learned the necessary skills of scheduling and may deserve extra credit. After all we have made it through not only all the courses but we have lived through eight pre-registration sessions and eight add-drop periods as well.

After pre-registering for our classes we can all remember the first days of class. No discussion of this would be complete without mention of the syllabus. This was not only a schedule of exams and assignments but it was an overview of what the course was about. The purpose and accuracy of these is like a job-description - it tells the employee what the employer says you will be doing. We students may compare with the employee of our professor. We have been paid with a lasting education instead of a check.

Often, upon reading the syllabus, there was mention of a research paper due at the end of the semester. If you have done research then you have probably dealt with our staff of reference librarians. Many of us here today might still be in the library looking for reference material if it were not for this excellent staff. We all know the challenges of doing research among our nearly two-million volumes, journals and documents. We are testimony that not only is it possible to conduct research and survive the challenges of the experiences at this University, but it is downright WORTHWHILE!

The feelings we have developed are unique. The completion of requirements is felt in all of us. A great sense of accomplishment should be felt as well. We have accomplished what not everyone is priviledged to do even in this modern day 1984. We have accomplished what we came here for. We have accomplished an outstanding education.

This is what unites us - and in conjunction with our social life and backgrounds, this is what separates us and makes us individual. Hopefully, as we leave here we will remember not only these differences, we will all remember something deeper - we will all remember what it means to graduate from the University of Massachusetts.

Emanuel S. Ellis is a graduating senior.

Education before insults

As the semester winds down to an end, most of us would like to reflect back upon the more positive experiences of the year. Or if not so positive, we usually try to attain an understanding or perspective on what perhaps made the past months negative.

But this is not true of an on-campus publication, namely, Nummo News which may have intended to do such through its "Retrospective on Racism" but failed. Instead, Nummo used this time of conclusion and resolution to further oppress itself and the Third World Comunity.

Laura Yee

I understand that Nummo's purpose is to educate, to be a voice for and by the minority community on many social awareness issues, particularly black and minority issues. But its last issue of the semester does not come close in reflecting this.

Instead of capping the end of semester with optimistic and positive tidings for achieving awareness of minority students on an even larger spectrum, Nummo wholeheartedly devotes three of its pages to condemn and settle personal vandettas with the Collegian.

As a minority student who has felt the pangs of racism, I am embarrassed and disappointed but more so, outraged that Nummo has failed to be representive of its people. Nummo News cannot say with any degree of dignity, respect or honesty that their purpose is for the plight of minority students. By using itself to plough through the dregs and dig up the dirt of a supposedly resolved conflicting past tastelessly, Nummo perpetrates itself not as a resource for creating minority awareness but to use its power as a tool to personally attack others.

By reprinting numerous Collegian articles and political cartoons that supposedly scream "racism" without fair justification of purpose and content, Nummo not only proves itself unprofessional, but is cheating the minority community out of a facet of communication.

It's Nummo which screams racism that inflicts oppression upon itself by creating a forum for the exchange of attacks and insults instead of providing a common ground for minority awareness.

Don't narrow the margin, widen it.

Laura Yee is a member of the Committee for the Collegiate Educatin of Black and Minority Students and a Collegian staff member.

Letters Policy

All letters must be signed and include the writer's address and telephone number, which will not be published. Please type double spaced at 67 characters per line. Due to space limitations and the volume of mail, we regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters. All letters are subject to editing for clarity and length.

OPINION

Letters

'Distorted' view of senate meeting

To the Editor,

In response to his letter "Discrimination does exist" May 9, Denis Martin, for personal or political reasons, completely distorted and misquoted the comments that I made at last week's Student Senate meeting.

First of all, if Mr. Martin listened carefully, I said that I agree with members of the Jewish Caucus that Jewish culture and religion are oppressed in this country and at UMass. The definition used by the Jewish Caucus of being Jewish was that of a religous and cultural entity. Also, when Mr. Martin quoted me, he left out the words "Jews as a white ethnic group."

Second, as a Jewish student, it is absurd to think that I do not think that anti-semetism doesn't exist or to think that I was "vehemantly opposed" to having a Jewish Caucus representitive on the SGA Coordinating committee. Also, I was quite alarmed at the leadership of the Jewish Caucus for allowing Bill Collins to be the spokesperson for the Jewish Caucus on the Senate floor. Mr. Collins, who is not Jewish, has never been a friend of the Third World Caucus. At last months SGA Budget hearings, he spoke out against funding the anti-oppression payroll of SCERA, funding the Womens Leadership Project, and trashed Nummo News. It was this and other kinds of divisive activities like comparing the Jewish and Third World Caucuses that were responsible for the raising of tension on the Senate floor last week.

Robert Teixeira
Sunderland

Humor yes but oppression no

To the Editor,

Regarding the letter Monday by Jon M. Shepeluk titled "Why can't people take a joke?", I would like to respond. I fail to understand how anyone can laugh at a joke that is offensive to a person of an oppressed minority group. Mr. Shepeluk writes, "Whether a joke is directed at women, homosexuals, animals, blacks or the dead, it should be weighed only on its ability to make people laugh." I think it is sad that people should find humor in the very real plights of oppressed women, blacks, and gays. Mr. Shepeluk, have you heard the one about the white male heterosexual? I thought not.

Jeanne Shaw
Southwest

Stereotypes are way off base

To the Editor,

Andy Gordon is a talented, well-informed columnist who is probably headed for success in film criticism, but on the topic of student criticism he is woefully ignorant. I am referring to his column May 11, in which he wrote (about Smith film students), "usually an intersting blend of socialites and hardcore man-haters", and (about Hampshire students), "all the stereotypes are true—students there are pseudo-intellectual bonehead flaky puffs and don't know anything about anything."

First of all, I've met several dozen Smith students, and none of them was a hardcore man-hater, nor for that matter a softcore manhater (I guess the distinction is that one group reads Playgirl and the other Cosmo). Perhaps Andy is a hardcore paranoic.

Secondly, any stereotype of Hampshire students is bound to be wrong, because besides its normal annual turnover of old and new students, Hampshire's student body is also altered by an extra 40 percent each year; that is, about 40 percent of the new students who enter end up withdrawing from the school. Within a few semesters the "student type" changes considerably; and as a person who enrolled in Hampshire in 1980 and still spends a lot of time there, I can state with some conviction that both the general attitude and the spectrum of personality types at Hampshire are completely different today than they were four years ago.

Furthermore, Andy's specific characterizations are all wrong: "pseudointellecutal" implies a cold, cerebral type, but anybody who attended last week's Hampshire Music Festival knows how warm and emotive students there are, at least in 1984, and in general the emotionally charged political issues prevalent at Hampshire reveal the humanistic (as opposed to intellectual) emphasis of its students; "pseudo" here, along with "bonehead" and "don't know anything about anything," implies that students there aren't well-informed, thoughtful, or intelligent, but Hampshire's grad-school acceptance rate disproves this. Finally, the term "flaky puffs" reveals Andy's preference for the lack of individualism and commitment—as well as the desire to be streamlined—that characterizes so many thousands of UMass students. Or maybe Andy just doesn't like the way Hampshire students dress.

Andy's comments might have been ironic, because he does pay indirect homage to Hampshire by advising film students to "create an independant study based on (their) concentration," which is after all the heart of Hampshire's approach to education. But I can only suggest he stick to his topic, and leave stereotyping to ignoramuses like me.

Jimmm Erickson
Northampton

Beware of mind control

Moonies! Jonestown! E.S.T.! Persuasion! Coercion! Mind Control! These were the bases for an exceptional panel presentation put on by the United Areas Council Monday night. Dr. Michael Langone, a psychologist affiliated with the American Family Foundation, Priscilla Coates, of the Citizens' Freedom Foundation, and Doug Lenz, a graduate student here, shared their opinions and experiences concerning the forces of mind control. Specifically, they focused on the widespread occurrence of cults, or cult-like groups, and the harm which can result if individuals involved with these groups lose the freedom to examine themselves in a different perspective and acquire all the facts about the group. Analyses and comparisons, they said, reduce the chance or amount of deception and coercion by group leaders and other members.

Susan Nordyke

Persuasion occurs in many forms. On one extreme, salesmen encourage us to buy a product; on the other, hundreds of people took part in a mass suicide at Jonestown. Underlying both extremes are tactics relying on people's gullibilities and easy acceptance of "truths." Not until the person becomes aware can he or she then question the situation, make reflections and comparisons, and then judge it.

Last year I attended a class at Stanford called "the Psychology of Mind Control." Psychologist Phil Zimbardo was the instructor. Zimbardo is known particularly for his prison experiment, in which students took the roles of guards and prisoners. Within a few days the experiment was cut short because the "guards" became extremely violent and aggressive, and the "prisoners" broke down from the oppression. Cut from all outside influence, they made the prison their reality.

One of Zimbardo's prime objectives in the class was to make us realize that the only correct answer to the questions "Would I ever do that?" or "Would that ever happen to me?" is simply "I don't know." Forces of persuasion can be so powerful in such complex ways that it's impossible to know the extent to which they will affect individuals. He, like the panel members, stressed the need to be aware of the forces and the fact that any of us can become a target.

All universities should offer a course which deals with the influences and effects of mind control. A panel presentation is a good start; an in-depth course is even better to allow students to recognize influences and gain the ability to question and therefore reduce their vulnerabilities. UMass with its especially diverse student body and large psychology department is in a perfect position to set up this kind of course and invite many interesting and knowledgable guest speakers.

Perhaps the best thing to walk away from college with is the ability to think for yourself. Directly related to this is the ability to show at least some skepticism of any persuasional force, whatever form it may be in: Salespeople, parents, the media, cults.... The list is endless; the powers are unlimited. It's up to the individual to realize those powers.

-- Susan Nordyke is a UMass student.

Just want to hear good news

To the Editor,

To read a newspaper these days, amongst the tangled webs of media networks and information this, information that, data bits and data banks, is no easy task. We inevitably have to discard much of it, and hopefully pay attention only to what we need. I would say that what I want from a newspaper or television reporting is a minimal amount of factual information sprinkled in a larger group of words somehow managing to strike an inner sense of compassion while trying to heed to objective interpretation.

First of all, it does me no good to hear the same stories everyday about the same victims or casualties and the same promises and rhetoric. It actually causes me harm as each day that I read the paper, I loose faith and become more disillusioned. Its as if no one cared because all they do is add up their little daily facts and print it up "as it was," as if it were the last word. Somehow I believe that there is more to current events than just names and numbers.

It strikes me that todays news is like yesterdays history books in that it goes through a process of editing and selection from already subjective interpretations, (not description for it's not a laboratory experiment that's being documented,) which at best gives us a partial, factual account. The compassion I hope gets stirred in the readers doesn't come from the mere "facts" anymore, yet somehow it seems crazy that we pick up the paper each day and there is little that moves us, and I don't think its the lack of suffering in the world that prevents us from feeling much.

Pedro D. Reissig
Amherst

A 'blight on the University'

To the Editor

I'd like to applaud Kurt Stellwagen's letter in Thursday's Collegian, in which he addressed the lack of any sound basis for the so-called "pornography" dispute. I would like to add that, while there is some evidence that pornography reduces peoples' "sensitivity" to the issue of rape, there is no evidence that this increases the incidence of rape (as the Denmark experiment seems to confirm). The connection between an individual's "sensitivity" to the issue and that individual's behavior as a citizen has yet to be demonstrated.

I also question the tact that the "anti-porn" group has taken. By labeling magazines such as Playboy as pornographic, it seems that they are attempting to promote their own views through an emotionally-loaded rhetoric that isn't appropriate to the situation. Playboy and the other magazines mentioned are not pornographic by most peoples' standards.

I question Stellwagen's use of the term "liberal" in reference to this group. Their behavior is more in line with Joe McCarthy's self-serving attempts to get everybody stirred up about Commies that didn't really exist. This line of thinking is a blight on the University as a whole.

David Anderson
Northampton

81.2%

In a recent survey of UMass undergrads, 81.2 percent said they read the Collegian regularly, and half of those said they read it every day. That's more than three times the UMass readers of any other area paper!

SUMMER STUDY '84

Northeastern University is close to where you live or work this summer. We have five convenient locations; a wide choice of part-time undergraduate college courses; and four, five, and ten week sessions. For a degree, for career advancement, or simply to learn something new, Northeastern has it all in the Summer Quarter. Classes start the week of June 18; registration, the week of May 29. Hurry, find out more.

For a free Summer Schedule Guide, call us at 437-2400, or our 24-hour line 461-1400.

Northeastern University

University College/Lincoln College

Or mail this coupon to: Northeastern University, University College, 360 Huntington Ave., P.O. Box 154, Boston, MA 02117

Name

Address

City/Town State Zip

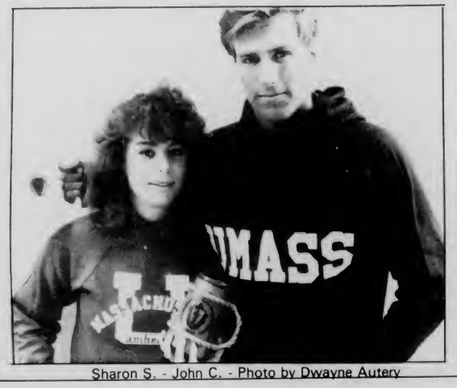
Northeastern University is an equal opportunity-affirmative action institution and employer

Un

$ Part Time Summer Jobs $

Many positions in the retail auditing field being held open for UMass students. RGIS inventory specialists has 4 offices in Eastern Mass. We need dependable people with transportation and phone. No experience necessary - only basic math skills. $4.75 to start with salary reviews to $6.00. Must have weekend availability; daytime shifts and some weeknights possible. Flexible schedule. Opportunity to work full-time next January break. Great reference for your future.

Contact Student Employment of office nearest you.



Boston north to 128 - 938-9119

Boston and south - 699-4014

North of 128 - 692-3040 West of 494 - 366-6471

"UMass" glassware for Graduation

Large assortment from shot glasses 16 oz. mugs

Sharon S. - John C. - Photo by Dwayne Autery

Open M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4

Located in the Campus Center

UNIVERSITY STORE

THE•BEST•OF•EVERYTHING

The Eight

3 JAZZ Sarah Vaughan

BROADWAY Sophisticated Ladies

2 WINNERS CIRCLE Boston Chamber Music Society

CHAMBER MUSIC Guilliard String Quartet

6

ORCHESTRA Minnesota Orchestra

7

SAMPLER Ray Charles

1 THEATER Romeo and Juliet

8

DANCE Swan Lake

AND MANY OTHER FINE PERFORMANCES

1984-85 SEASON

FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

MC/VISA FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS HALF-PRICE

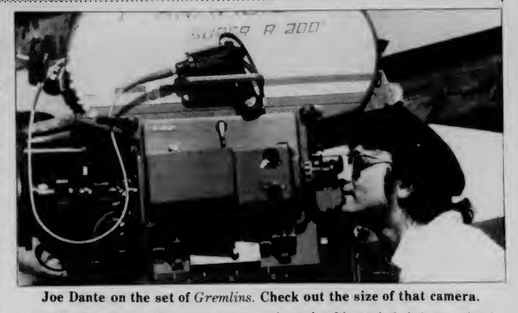
For more information call (413)545-2511

Subscribe now!

SUN SYSTEMS

by RuggedWear Ltd.

RUGBY SKIRT and TANK TOP



Separates that go together for your active lifestyle. The Tank Top is specially patterned and cut for women in bright stripings that coordinate beautifully with RuggedWears cotton skirts.

House of Walsh SUN SYSTEMS

32 Main Street • Amherst • 9:00 AM - 5:30 PM Mon. - Sat. • 253-3361

Arts

Trailers by Andy Gordon

Joe Dante on the set of Gremlins. Check out the size of that camera.

After years of grovelling to the movie studios to spare me some meager bits of information, now they're coming around. It's the eve of my last column - ever and I've got press releases coming out of my ears. Most are useless and silly at best, many are a tad late (Hardbodies and Children of the Corn came and went), but I'll share some of the interesting ones.

The "Star League of Planets" must be protected from it's enemy, the KO-DAN, in Universal's new picture, The Last Starfighter. The release reads, "Imagine, if you will for a moment, that certain video game machines with their digital sounds and effects on which the space wars of tomorrow are played out, were actually placed on this earth by alien planets; forces, perhaps, whose sole intention is to prepare select players to enter a step beyond the game and into an actual inter-galactic sphere -- to be the Starfighters and space warriors of now. Could this happen?" No, it couldn't. Next.

Warner Borthers has acquired worldwide distribution-except Japan-to the Francis Ford Coppola, George Lucas presentation of Mishima, it was announced Monday by Warners president Terry Semel. A biography of the Japanese novelist Yukio Mishima (who killed himself by ritual suicide in 1970), the film is to be directed by Paul Schrader. The picture will be made in Japanese, which is odd, as nowhere in the press info does it even imply that Schrader knows Japanese. The film is scheduled for release over a year from now. The box office opens at noon.

In a fairly controversial decision, MGM/UA announced last Thursday that it will not release the film Bolero, starring Bo Derek. After the film received an X rating from the Motion Picture Association of America, MGM demanded Director John Derek to cut the film, which he subsequently refused to do (good boy John, stick by your guns). Said Richard B. Graff, president of MGM distribution, "It is the policy of present management not to distribute X-rated motion pictures." The Dereks and Cannon films, the production company, will have to shop around for a new distributer now. Anyone interested should contact the Derek's during the week.

One of the better segments of Twilight Zone: The Movie was Joe Dante's "It's a Good Life", about a little boy with a lot of power. Dante is now directing Gremlins, a light thriller/adventure, for producer Steven "I own everything" Spielberg. Written by recent NYU graduate Chris Columbus (whose recent Reckless kind of sucked), the picture stars Zach Galligan as a youngster whose father brings home a rare pet from Chinatown. Also starring in what could be one of the big, summer hits (alongside Spielberg's Temple of Doom) are Fast Times at Ridgemont High's Phoebe Cates and Judge Reinhold.

The outrageous cast and technical credits behind the new baseball film, The Natural, should be reason enough to catch it. Opening Friday in the area, the picture stars Robert Redford, Robert Duvall and Glenn Close and was directed by Barry Levinson (Diner). Caleb Deschanel (The Black Stallion, Being There) photographed the film, and from what I understand one sequence involves a camera built by steadicam inventor Garret Brown that flies.

I'd like to see that. Redford hasn't acted in a film for over four years now and did the film he says, "as an homage to my father, who loves baseball and taught me to love it as a child."

Another amazing cast is assembled for Italian director Sergio Leones new epic, Once Upon a Time in America, about the Jewish mafia in the early part of this century. Reminiscent of the Godfather films, the picture stars Robert DeNiro and James Woods as boyhood cohorts in crime and their wheeling dealing is traced through five generations. Also starring in the picture are Treat Williams, Elizabeth McGovern, Burt Young, Joe Pesci and Tuesday Weld. Leone, you may recall, was the guy who made all those old spaghetti Westerns. Hopefully he's grown out of that extreme close-up phase, because if he hasn't I'm going to personally fly to Italy and crack him in the nose.

On the homefront, here at UMass several student films are going to be screened tomorrow night in the South College classroom. Among the films to be shown are Drew Ogier's The Vidiot, And the Days Go By, The Edge, The Hand, Four Week Warning (based on the Collegian editorial of the same name) Gone Fishing, and others. The informal screening will begin at 7. Attendance is mandatory for friends of the filmmakers.

It is expressly forbidden in Collegian policy for staff writers to read letters written to the editorial dept. that concern them. I knew someone would write in about my column Friday, though, so I peeked. Sure enough, a Hampshire College student resented being categorized as a pseudointellectual bonehead flaky puff who doesn't know anything about anything. Can't blame the guy for that. Actually, he raised several good points, and I'd like to kind of apologize. To set the record straight, the Hampshire students in my class are homehead flaky puffs who don't know anything about anything. Many of their other students are actually pretty sharp, and as evidenced during last Thursday's student film festival there, they do have several decent filmmakers. In fact, Circular Notions, a short by Todd Miller, was beyond words.

This doesn't come even near being related to film, but there's several questions and comments I've had on my mind for some time now. 1) Don't people who walk slow through the Campus Center suck? Maybe it's my N.Y.C. bred sense of urgency to get places, but I honestly feel that people who use the area between the C.C. vending machines and the Hatch to wander around and chit-chat should have large knives plunged into the base of their miserable spines. 2) Why is it it takes three times as long to get a speedie cheeseburger as a jumbo cheeseburger? I'd always assumed the "speedie" referred to the quickness of it's preparation. Maybe not. And speaking of Hatch food, has anyone else noticed that one out of ten pizzas they make tastes like balloons? That's right, balloons. The taste that stays on your tongue after you blow up a balloon. And what addictive chemical is it that they put in the Veal Parmagians? I'm going to have to stockpile a sack of them just to make it through the next couple of months.

In closing, I would like to reprint a few of my favorite movie quotes. "Life is made up of small comings and goings, and for everything we take with us there is something we leave behind." -- Summer of 42. "Everyone has the right to make an ass of himself. Don't let the world judge you too much." Ruth Gordon in Harold and Maude. "You're a dreamer, Boog." "Well, you know what they say, you don't got good dreams you got nightmares." Mickey Rourke in Diner. And this quote from Aidam Quinn in Reckless should have particular significance for those graduating. "There's something I've got to do. I've got to go. I don't know where-- just somewhere, out of here, and I've got to go now."

TRAILERS Trivia: No question, but tacked to the ceiling above the Collegian Arts Desk are two pairs of passes to a sneak preview of the film Making the Grade, and whoever grabs them can have them. As I close this column for the last time, I'd like to say it has been an honor amusing and informing those who enjoy this column, and pissing off those who do not. Take care; and remember my name.

Lance Guest as Alex and Dan O'Herlihy as Grig in a silly film you not I will ever see.

Congratulations "AHTS" kids!

The tops! And all our gra are hea ed in the direction of great success!

Derrick Taylor, father of UMass student David I. Taylor, prepares for a spot on the British Cycle Team in the 1984 Summer Olympics. Jolly good!

May ..io,19,20

SIDEWALK SALE DAYS & COMMUNITY FAIR

May 17,18,19

THURSDAY, May 17
* All Day Long - Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
2:00-9:00 pm - Rides open

FRIDAY, MAY 18
* All Day Long - Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
2:00 pm - Fair Opens: Booths, Food, Games, Prizes, Crafts and Rides by Fannelli Shows
7:00 pm - Coronation of King and Queen

SATURDAY, MAY 19
* All Day Long - Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
10:00 am - Parade from Community Field through Center to Amherst College
10:00 am - Rides and Booths open
11:00 am - Merchants' Auction - part 2
1:30 pm - Demonstration by the Hampshire Gymnasts
3:30 pm - Demonstration by the Hampshire Gymnasts
4:30 pm - Oompah Band/Community Band Concert
Midnight - Fair Closes

SUNDAY, MAY 20
* All Afternoon 12-5 - Sidewalk Sales

May 17,18,19,20

SIDEWALK SALE DAYS & COMMUNITY FAIR

May 17,18,19

DELANO'S

Come to Delano's and cool off
with your favorite beverage.
57 N. Pleasant St. 253-5141

OCEAN PACIFIC

Men's & Women's
O.P. Sportswear

swimsuits, hawaiian shirts, hats, pants, shorts, and much more

Saturday Clothes

Open Mon - Sat 10-6 Sun 12 - 5
266 N. Pleasant St. 253-9729

LAST CHANCE DEALS

Orphan Speakers
from $5.00 ea.
Orphan Car Stereos
from $10.00
One of a kind
Cassette Decks, Receivers and Turntables all at Sidewalk Sale
Special Prices!
Maxell UDXL II C-90 Tapes
2 for $5.00
Watts Disc Preeners
a $10.00 value
Record Cleaner $1.00 each
Be trendy Pierre Cardin
AM/FM Radios a $29.95 value
$9.95
Video Tape from $5.99
Nikko NP 500 II Turntables
a $129.95 value - $64.95

All items limited quantities and subject to prior sale -
Thanks —

"THE STEREO PROFESSIONALS"

adirondack music

The Place to be

is

Time Out

Free Popcorn

Two TV's

AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. PLEASANT ST AMHERST. MA

Sidewalk Sale

The Sale you wait for...
We won't disappoint you.

Lot's of bargains!
Lot's of fun!

SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st amherst

9 West
Zodiac
Bandolino
Capezio
Bellini
Sporto

SIDEWALK SALES

20% - 40% off selected
SPRING CLOTHING
20% - 40% off selected
CHINESE SHOES
Wildlife T-Shirts
originally $11.95 - $12.95 $6. each 2 for $10.
20% off all Bedspreads
20% off Bamboo Blinds
INDIA PRINT T-SHIRTS regularly $5.95
$5.00 each 2 for $10.00

MANY GIFT SPECIALS

Great Gifts - Great Prices
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

Great Spring Sale
SAVE

Assorted Nail Polishes & Lipstick. 95¢
Bic Pens. . . . . 19¢
Colgate Toothbrushes. . . . . 39¢
Scholls only $13.99
with manufacturers $4.00 coupon
50¢ off coupon
on all Suntan products
Notebooks - 5 subjects. $1.89
150 sheet Notebook. $1.29
Zorries: 99¢ Adults, 79¢ Children
Keri Lotion 6.5 oz. $1.99

COLLEGE DRUG
4 MAIN STREET, AMHERST Phone 253-2523

Be original. Express yourself. Join in on today's high fashion look with your very own 14K gold fingernail by IMG. Or wear a diamond nail for that special occasion.

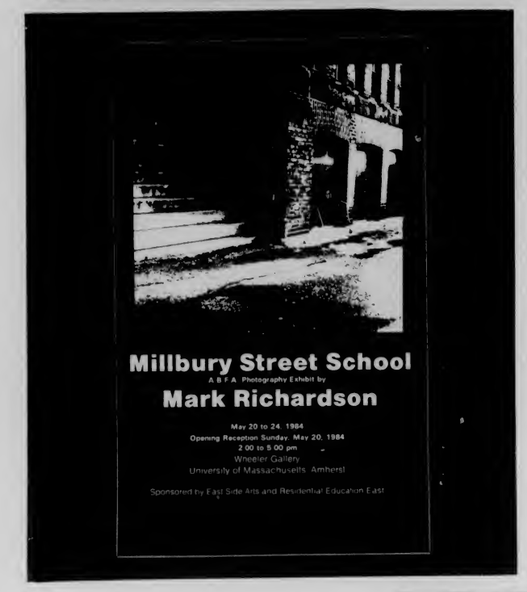
13 N. Pleasant Street, Amherst
256-0591
SELLING GOLD JEWELRY AT UNBEATABLE PRICES.

Lodestone

AMHERST DELICATESSEN

in the Carriage Shops Since 1975

On Campus Delivery Now Available 549-3717



OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
FOOT LONG SUBS
FRESH SALADS AND SOUP
KNISHES, PICKLES AND KOSHER HOT DOGS
BAGELS AND LOX
NEW YORK CHEESE CAKE
233 NORTH PLEASANT STREET
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS 549-6314

The Creative Needle

10-50% Off
select items

yarns - needlework - notions
Check out our Bargain Table

The Carriage Shops 549-6106
233 N. Pleasant St. Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30

CONGRATULATIONS
COLLEGE SENIORS!

You will soon be entering the Business & Professional World, and we have a Special Credit Offer, just for you!

- If you have secured a position after graduation, we will issue you a MasterCard or VISA Card with an initial credit line of $500.
- If you have not already secured employment, we would like to have you complete an application. We will reserve your Credit Card until you notify us of your employment.

To apply for your BayBanks MasterCard or VISA Card, just complete and return the coupon below.

Please return this coupon to the BayBanks Consumer Credit Division, BayBank Tower, 1500 Main Street, Springfield, MA 01115

I am interested in applying for a BayBanks MasterCard or VISA Card. Please send me an application.

Name _____

Address _____

City/Town _____ Zip _____

College _____

Telephone No. ( ) _____

BayBanks

COMMENCEMENT WEEKEND

We still have a few seats available.

Call 549-6000 ext. 639 for reservations.

Featuring a new/special Graduation Menu.

CONGRATULATIONS SENIORS

TOP of the CAMPUS
Restaurant & Lounge

WIN
TWO ROUND-TRIP AIR FARES TO EUROPE
ON ICELANDAIR

ICELANDAIR
 SNEAK PREVIEW **
CLIP THIS AD AND BRING IT TO THE THEATER FOR FREE ADMISSION FOR TWO
Thursday, May 17 8:00 PM
Mountain Farms Theater Russell Street, Hadley

MAY 17, 18, 19, 20
sidewalk sale days
&
31st AMHERST JAYCEES
community fair
MAY 17, 18, 19, 1984

Thursday, May 17
* All Day Long Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
2:00-9:00 pm Rides open

Friday, May 18
* All Day Long Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
2:00 pm Fair Opens: Booths, Food, Games, Prizes, Crafts and Rides by Fannelli Shows
7:00 pm Coronation of King and Queen

Saturday, May 19
* All Day Long Sidewalk Sales throughout downtown
10:00 am Parade from Community Field through Center to Amherst College
10:00 am Rides and Booths open
11:00 am Merchants' Auction part 2
1:30 pm Demonstration by the Hampshire Gymnasts
3:30 pm Demonstration by the Hampshire Gymnasts
4:30 pm Oompah Band/Community Band Concert
Midnight Fair Closes

Sunday, May 20
* All Afternoon 12-5 Sidewalk Sales

Sponsored By Amherst Downtown Council
In Co-operation with WTTT
WTTT 1430
There's No Place Like Downtown Amherst, Massachusetts

We're just another RSO, but we've got the presses

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

Collegian Spring, 1984 Board of Editors: (left to right) Yadira Betances, Joel Myerson, Lisa Mosley, J.P. Shanahan, Gerry DeSimas, Josh Meyer, Drew Ogier, Anne McCrory, Bill Wall, Miriam Zoll, Dave Deuber. (Missing: Andy May)

So, here's some drivel from our M.E.

By BILL WALL
Collegian Staff

The end of the 1983-84 academic year is rapidly drawing to a close as the Collegian prints its last edition of the semester, and, for many staff members, it will be the final effort of one of the most enjoyable experiences of their college career.

It takes an enormous amount of effort to publish a student-run daily newspaper and it is a testimony to the more than 200 people who comprise the staff that the paper will come out day after day informing the community it strives to serve. Although not always perfect, the staff does its best to produce a professional paper given the constraints of limited time, money and academics.

The past year has been a tumultuous one for the community and for the paper. There have been many controversies and some sour moments but overall it has been a positive, enjoyable learning experience.

One of the main purposes of the University is to provide a forum for the sharing of diverse ideas and experiences and we at the Collegian have done our best to live up to that ideal.

Much thanks has to go to those staff members and editors who persevered through thick and thin with the understanding that despite it all we were having one of the best times of our undergraduate careers and all the critics should simply try to do a better job themselves. As editorial editor Josh Meyer said "I could have easily been less hated, but I'd feel like I wasn't doing my job."

So be it. Those of us who are graduating, such as myself, let's continue the tradition of past Collegian staffers and excel in our chosen field (yah, right). And to those who are staying, may you have the best possible time and never give up on the paper, because without you it couldn't happen. Bye now...

And, if you want more: our names!!!

Business
Mike Altneu
Glenn Cameron
Liz Chiasson
Steve Gogonis
Joe Gorrusi
Tom Haley
Kathy Kelly
Gail Kleinman
Amy Krasilowski
Jim Lambert
John Levy
Eric Mann
Chris Miniff
Janet Morgenstern
Adrienne Newman
Andrea Pagsley
David Rath
Mark Roden
Jennifer Saccone
Lori Silver
Jodine Netzler
Elizabeth Young
Jacqueline Green
Sherry Sharfman
Vicki Silva
Sue Pincus
Liz Zwerling
Steve Silva
Jeff Hammond
Kevin McMahon
Gina Piazzia
Eric Levy
Rena Berman
Tom Quayle
Cathy Chilson
Jim Rietuben
Maureen Majerewski
John Fuller

Day Graphics
Joy McCarty
Lynn Eisenberg
Marsha Wilcon
Martha Connors
Michele Phelan
Shelley Witkiewicz
Beth Bazinet
Ellen Nahigian
Jim Rice
John Wielgus
Faye Whitney-Lussier

Night Graphics
Marianne Walsh
Mat Atkins
Ed Tausky
Peter Soderberg
Leslie Clark
Will Hopkins
Jon O'Hern
Ansel Zinter
Amy Keefe
Ellen Waxman
Doug Chapman
Sue Gianetti
Norm Achin
Conor Plunkett
Judy Hayden
Tim Riviere
Merrianne Hrycin
Kim Foster
Laura Zigman
Pamela Smith
Jane Hirshberg
Suzanne Lewis
Leslie King
Lissa Kiernan
Laurie MacDonald
Mike Lennon
Cathy Hall
Ann Hacker
Beth Ann Mookov
Lisa Reynolds
Shauneen Vail
Beth Poudrier
Karen Darr
Warren Gagne
Mike Schuster

Photo
Paul DesMarais
Andy Heller
Pam Madnick
Brian Gonye
Kate Wattera
Larry Cabana
Tom Kudla
Mitch Drantch

Copy Editors
Steve Howe
Mary Sheila Loughlin
Ian Polumbaum
Ralph Roberts
Jim Finkle

Layout Techs
Steve Anderson
Sue Bankert
Will Hopkins
Librarian—Tracy Hatch
Training Coordinator
—Tom Middleton

Sports Staff
Gerry deSimas
Adam Nazimowitz
Tony Betros
Bob Brock
John Badger
Rich Brunelli
Ed Cunningham
Kevin Deluca
Michele Dolan
Scott Hood
Ellen Haskins
Tom Kelly
Matt Luczow
Dan Leberfeld
Mike Levine
Martin E. Murray
Brian Murphy
Ellen Richard
Russ Whinnem
Scot Cooper
Ed Hayward
Tom Scollins
George Martins
Jay Holzman
Charisse Feinerman
Ariel Fowler

Editorial
John Kenney
Rita Murphy
John Gilman
Thomas Pitoniak
Elizabeth Luciano
Brooke States
Michele Dolan

News Staff
Peter Abraham
Ken Bazinet
Lisa Marie Cantwell
Julia Maycock
John Yonce
Jeannette deForge
Laura Yee
Paul Deamond
Jill Lang
David Linton
Sean Casey
Larry Bouchie
Bob Burgess
Risa Freeman
John Vincent
Dan Sobel
Greg Brown
Mary Cresse
Tom Kelley
David Muniz
Camden Pierce
Virginia Warfield
Robin Mandel
Laura Koester
Brian Sullivan
Nancy Bakar
Don Narey
Dave Chevan
Charles Francis Carroll

Arts
Christine Marini
Peter Winsoker
Andrew Gordon
Edward Been

Women's News
Taara Hoffman
Rebecca Thatcher
Lisa Stratouley
Melissa Graham
Diane Lane

Associate Managing Editors
Paul Basken
John O'Connell
Cris Schuster
David Summersby
Gerry DeSimas

Collegian
Spring 1984
Board of Editors

Joel Myerson
Editor in Chief

Bill Wall
Managing Editor

J.P. Shanahan
Production Manager

Andrew May
Business Manager

Josh Meyer
Editorial Editor

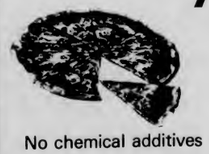
Drew Ogier & Dave Deuber
Photo Editors

Anne McCrory
News Editor

Gerry deSimas
Sports Editor

Miriam Zoll
Women's Issues Editor

Lisa Mosley
Arts Editor



Yadira Betances
Black Affairs Editor

Some of the Collegian staff's graduating seniors. On to greater glory . . .Good Luck!

Bread & Circus
NATURAL FOOD SUPERMARKETS

75¢ OFF with College ID
12" Whole Wheat Pizza offer good thru Fri 25
Discount on any 12" pizza

No chemical additives
No refined sugars
No artificial anything
Just the best natural food you can buy

Mon, Tues, Wed 9 am - 9 pm
Thurs & Fri 9 am - 9:30 pm
Sat 8 am - 9 pm Sun 12 noon - 6 pm
Mountain Farms Mall, Hadley
586-9932

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Commencement 1984

10:00 a.m., Sunday, May 27

All Candidates
Participation in the Commencement rehearsal for all graduate candidates. Candidates should assemble by school or college at Alumni Stadium no later than 9 a.m. on graduation morning, May 27, 1984. Signs will be posted indicating schools and Commencement Marshals will issue specific instructions and distribute programs. Upon signal, candidates will follow the Commencement Marshals to the assigned areas and be seated.

Candidates will receive diploma covers from the deans of their school or college.

Who is Eligible to Participate?

Undergraduate degree candidates who anticipate completing degree requirements by the end of the calendar year 1984. Questions concerning academic status should be directed to the Records Office, 213 Whitmore, 545-0555.

Master's degree candidates who have previously submitted the Degree Application Form by April 27, 1984 to the Office of Degree Requirements stating the intention to complete all requirements. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249 Graduate Research Center, 545-0824.

Doctoral degree candidates who have completed all degree requirements by April 27, 1984. Questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249 Graduate Research Center, 545-0824.

Faculty
Faculty and staff should assemble at the SOUTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel between the Facilities/Information Center and the stadium wall. Faculty will be part of the processional and will be seated immediately in front of the candidates from each school and college.

Note: Commencement '84 is on SUNDAY, May 27.

Parents and Invited Guests Plan to Arrive Early — Space is Limited
Since the Commencement Exercises are open to the public and guest seating is without reservation, parents and friends should plan to arrive early to ensure good seating.

Handicapped Seating
Viewing area for the handicapped will be located on both sides of the stadium on the eastern and western walkways. Since seating is limited, only one person may accompany the handicapped guest.

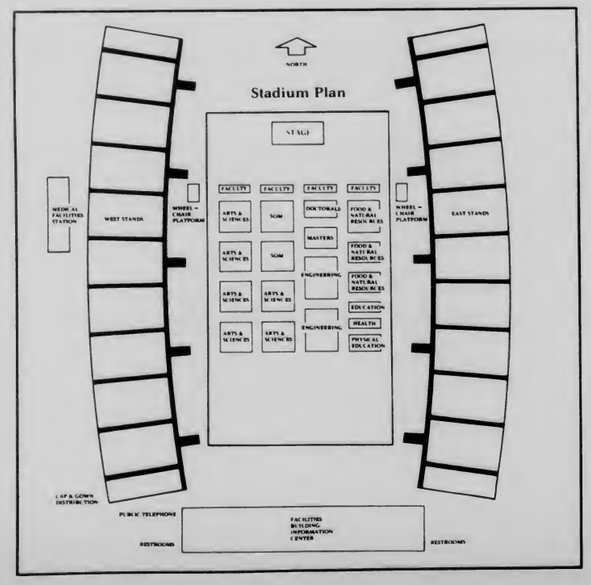
Invitations
There is no limit to the number of guests who may attend the ceremony and tickets are not required. Each undergraduate student will receive a packet of sectional invitations. Students are urged to encourage their guests to arrive early for good seating.

Caps, Gowns, and Hoods

Undergraduate Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels and invitations will be available at no charge on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Master's Degree Candidates
Caps, gowns, tassels and invitations will be available at no charge on presentation of an I.D. and announcement of the degree earned and the department awarding it at the Textbook Annex, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Commencement Day, May 27, caps, gowns and tassels may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the SOUTHWEST corner of Alumni Stadium.

Doctoral Degree Candidates
Doctoral caps, gowns, tassels and invitations will be available only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, Room A249, Graduate Research Center, April 30-May 25, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 4 p.m., upon clearance by the Office of Degree Requirements. On Commencement Day caps, gowns, tassels, and hoods may be obtained after 8 a.m. at the NORTHWEST end of the stadium on the gravel area.



Doctoral candidates who plan to participate in the Commencement ceremony must have a hood. Each Ph.D. candidate's name will be announced over the stadium sound system and two officers of the University will drape the hood on the candidate's shoulders. Doctoral hoods can be purchased only at the Office of Graduate Degree Requirements, A249 Graduate Research Center, at a cost of $26. Five College Doctoral Hoods will be available at $42.95. Doctoral hoods may be rented through the University Store.

Rentals
Academic apparel for this year's University Commencement may be rented through the University Store. All faculty members are urged to place their orders as soon as possible. THE LAST DAY TO ORDER IS FRIDAY, MAY 18. Payment must be made at the time of order and there will be no refunds if apparel is not used. Academic apparel may also be purchased. For further information about rentals or purchases, please contact Connie Szelewicki at the University Store, 545-2619.

Accommodations
Many area motels are already booked for Friday and Saturday before Commencement. A limited number of rooms in University housing will be available for relatives and other guests the nights of May 25, 26, and 27. Please contact the Conference Services Office, 918 Campus Center, 545-3400, by May 10. There is a $5 cash key deposit — to be returned when the key is returned.

Food Services
Coffee, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at both rotundas on the North side of the stadium.

Schedule of Events	Date	Time	Place
Stockbridge Commencement	Sat., May 26	1:30 p.m.	FAC Concert Hall
ROTC Commissioning Ceremony	Sun., May 27	8:00 a.m.	FAC Concert Hall
Nursing Commencement	Sun., May 27	1:00 p.m.	Rhododendron Garden Rain site: 329 Morrill Science Center
1984 Commencement Ceremony	Sun., May 27	10 a.m.-12 noon

Commencement Ceremony Schedule

9 a.m.	Robing for Commencement. Appropriate signs will be displayed. Graduates should line up according to ____, hood or college.
9:40 a.m.	Seating of Graduates
10 a.m.	Procession starts
12 noon	Ceremony ends

Parking
Parking at the stadium is extremely limited. Commencement traffic will be directed to several parking lots located nearby and shuttle buses will transport you the short distance to the stadium. You will be dropped off directly in front of the stadium and buses will return you to the lots immediately following the ceremonies.

Radio Traffic Control
In an effort to aid the traffic flow at Commencement, WTTT radio in Amherst 1430 on the AM dial will broadcast traffic reports throughout the morning. Please tune to 1430AM once you arrive in Amherst for the best route to the ceremonies.

General Information
Diplomas will be mailed to graduates in the fall.

Medical facilities will be located in the van under Section 8 of the stands.

Public telephones will be located on the west side of the Facilities/Information Center.

Restrooms are located at either end of the Facilities/Information Center at the south end of the stadium.

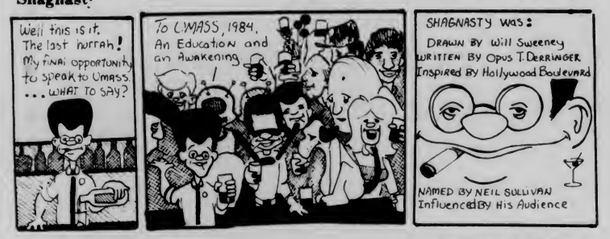
Viewing areas for those confined to wheelchairs will be located on both sides of the stadium, on eastern and western walkways.

For additional information, contact the Office of Community Relations, 390 Whitmore, 545-2560.

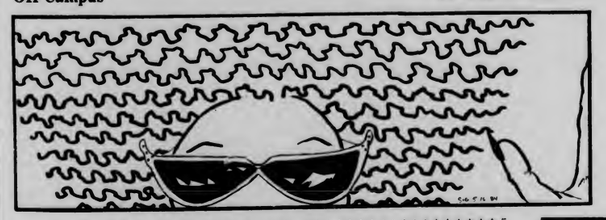
ALCOHOL IS NOT PERMITTED IN THE STADIUM.

RAIN DATE
There is no alternative rain site. The ceremony will be held outside regardless of the weather. The ceremony will be delayed a maximum of two hours in the event of heavy rain. In the event of torrential rains the ceremony will be cancelled. Listen to local radio stations early Sunday morning to hear if the decision to delay or cancel has been made.

Bloom County by Berke Breathed



The UMass Zone Mark Rollins



The Strip by Jim Walsh

Shagnasty O.T. Derringer

Off Campus Sullivan & Gillbert

Attention Seniors!
The 1984 Index will be distributed this fall.
If you would like the yearbook
to be mailed to you,
please send your permanent
address and $2.50
check for postage and handling to:
Index, 103 C.C.
by May 26.

Collegian BBQ

EXOTIC BISCUITS!
REFRESHMENTS!

At the home of the one and only
Drew Ogier
Get your official
'MR.T'
stamp with a small donation

Saturday at 3:00

Weather

Variable cloudiness and cool with highs in the mid 50s. Tonight, partly cloudy. Lows from the mid 30s to the mid 40s. Thursday, a mixture of clouds and sun. Highs mostly in the 60s, except in the mid 50s along the eastern coastal areas.

This Summer, take FOUNDATIONS of FEMINISM
WOST 201
Summer Session I
6/5 - 7/13
Mon - Fri 9:30 - 11
Instructor: Judith Branzburg, PH.D.

TONIGHT

UMASS LACROSSE FINAL____JAM

* Showing video clips of this years lacrosse season.

$1.00 Bar Drinks
(all night long)

- sponsored by UMass Lacrosse Team

Never Stop The Party

Also Tonight
"LADIES NIGHT"
All women are invited to DRINK FOR FREE from 8:00 - 9:00 pm
OPEN BAR

The staff of JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place
would like to thank all of you for an excellent year
Have a great summer & we look forward to seeing you in the fall!

JUSTIN RYAN'S
The Meeting Place

THE PARTY NEVER STOPS AT JUSTIN RYAN'S

KICK OFF LOUNGE
is your PLAYOFF HOTSPOT
"We'll show every game"
(overlapping games will be taped and shown at a later time)

50¢ DRAFTS during all events
1.00 skins & wings

Catch the Action
NHL - Stanley Cup Series
NBA Playoff's
Check out our giant screen TV

Sun, Mon, Tues, Wed, and Thurs nights
MANDATORY DRINK SPECIAL
BEAT THE CLOCK

STARTS AT 7:00 downstairs
8:00 upstairs

50¢ Drinks 75¢ Food

★★★Party at JR's!!★★★

Don't let This Week get you down.

Graduate to Carbur's Five-College Club

Now that you've survived countless all-nighters, constant cramming, and endless exams, you've graduated to Carbur's Five-College Club.

Why not treat Mom and Dad to one...

...A formidable, five-decker feast featuring shrimp salad, seafood salad, sliced baked ham, turkey breast, roast beef, lettuce, tomato, and your choice of dressing!

Served with all the "Pomp and Circumstance" you could ask for!

For you Magna-Cum Laudes, the Rib-it Room specializes in prime prime rib and sumptuous seafood.

CARBUR'S
RESTAURANT & LOUNGE
AT THE ELMWOOD, RT. 9 HADLEY, MASSACHUSETTS (413)586-1978

PERSONALIZED STYLE HAIRCUTS

$7.00 *
(with this coupon)
$10.00 with Shampoo and Blow Dry
$11.50 Long Hair
Expires 5/31/84
* Valid with Barb & Julie only C

FREE CONSULTATION Please call for an appointment

Styles by Deborah
65 University Drive
Amherst, MA 549-5610

STUDENT AIRFARES
round trip from LONDON $348
PARIS $378
MADRID $399
LUXEMBURG $469
AMSTERDAM $449
ZURICH $398
STOCKHOLM $[illegible]
CARACAS $293
BOGOTA $429
National Student Travel Bureau of the USA
266-1926
Council Travel/CIE
729 Boylston St
suite 201
Boston, MA 02116

Soft Contact Lens Center

Extended wear soft lenses from $48. ea.
Daily wear Soft lenses from $25. ea.
Heat disinfecting units $12.95 reg. $30.

Check out these Contact Lens Solution Prices

Opti-clean Reg 2.98 SALE 1.98
Sensitive Eyes System Reg 3.75 SALE 2.49
Adapettes Reg 1.00 SALE .50
Soft Contact Lens Deluxe Cases Reg. 3.75 SALE 1.98
Many more Solutions on Sale COME & SEE
B & L Sunglasses 20% off
Vuarnet Sunglasses 20% off with this ad

Amherst Optical Shoppe 195 N Pleasant St 256-6403
Amherst Optical Shoppe 170 University Dr. 253-5412
in the Amherst Med Ctr.

The Committee

requests the pleasure of your company

at a post-finals party for the students of

U/MASS. AMHERST

Friday, May 25th, 1984

STUDIO 54

254 W 54

New York City

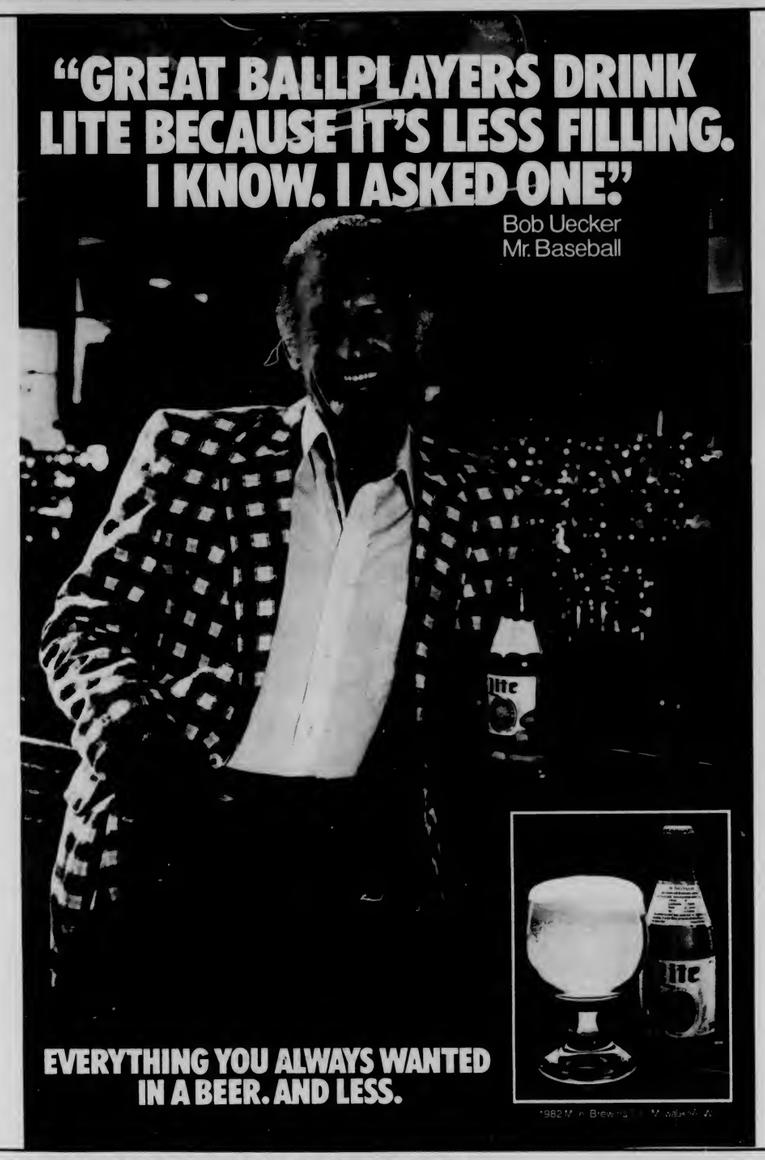
Doors Open 9:30 PM Sharp

Complimentary admission for two with this ad until 10:30 · after 10:30—$12 p.p.

clip this ad for admission

Pewter Topped Tankard $12.95

Hooded Sweatshirt $15.95



Many other styles of glassware available

Sharon S. Photo Dwayne Autery

Located in the Campus Center
Open
M-F 9-5
Sat 11-4
UNIVERSITY STORE

"GREAT BALLPLAYERS DRINK LITE BECAUSE IT'S LESS FILLING. I KNOW. I ASKED ONE."

Bob Uecker
Mr. Baseball

EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.

©1982 Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, WI

Graphics

As another long hard year draws to an end. I'd like to take this opportunity to again thank all those in Graphics for making this past semester so easy and rewarding for me. You really put out for me and I'm grateful.

Thanks Faye and the day day crew (including Maddog Rice and his happy trails sing alongs)for doing it all without me ever knowing.

Thanks also to the night (and sometimes mourning) crew for working much to long for much too little.

And finally a special thanks to Bill (thats right) Wall, Joel (lets get lunch) Meyerson, Ed (Tim's alright) Tausky, Mat (smoke a bowl) Atkins, Lesley (3:00 am) Clark, Peter (good guy) Soderberg, Will (records gone, need a job) Hopkins and last but certainly not least Marianne (flying fingers) Walsh, I never could have made you.

Although my desk leaves Graphics my heart does not. Enjoy the summer. You too LJP.

Sincerely,

J.P. Shanahan

P.S. Pam get a job.

OOPS!

Now's the time to call

North Amherst Motors

Expert repairs & reconditioning

Rt. 63, No Amherst

549-2880

BV, Welly, and Lumpy too!Remember always, the Theory is relative, the 5th Dimension is eggplant, worm boys are out and I love you. Happy Travels. Love, Mom

Racheel Lynn, Best of luck at UMich! I'm gonna miss you sooo much! Lots of Love, Donna

TEH, I didn't think it would happen, but I'm glad it finally did. I hope this is only the beginning. We culd have a great time together. JLM

Pooma Don't worry about music poets corner knows you appreciate. Love Beertrice

To the Collegian Staff (and especiellY the editorial staff) Keep up the great work next year! Don't let anyone get you down (or anything), because you're involved in one of the best things UMass has going for it. And for all you editors who've stuck it out this long hard year, I'll deal with y'all later. Josh (Biff)

To the 5 in 6: We made it and we all still love each other — how about that!! Good luck to all of you!! Love, No.5

Attention Apts 89-94 Puffton You're the best neighbors. We are going to miss you! Love Apt. 93

Michael my best buddy in the world. I'll miss you over the summer I love you.

Laure (My lowly secretary) I'm so glad that we have met, you certainly made the wait worthwhile!! Enjoy your summer. I'll be thinking of you. Easton is not that far away . . . Bill (your humble president)

Becky, Jen, Lise, Renee, Laure, Laura, Kate, Carol, Phil and Tom - It's been a great semester, kids . . . but the best it yet to come! Have a great summer; I'll miss all of you very much. Love always, Nancy.

Fried clems? Little push, or what? Hey, sorry if I've been a shithead. Talk?

Just last night, I was remindad of just how bad things had gotten and just how sick I had become. . . good luck with arts Chris, go wild; 2 more Thursdays at the Drakal Love and other indoor sports Leasa

Mere T.—Your my best buddy. I'll miss you and Charlie when your not close by. Love, BAT

TONIGHT!

Wet T-Shirt/Tan Contest

MALE and FEMALE

50$ cash prizes

75¢ MIXED DRINKS 8—11

NO COVER

★ NEW ENLARGED 2—STAGE DANCE FLOOR

THE HOTTEST SOUND and MUSIC GOING!

Poor Richard's DANCE CLUB
DISCO • TOP 40 • ROCK

COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIED

Come to Collegian Office CC 113 • 8:45-3:45 Mon - Thurs; 8:45-2:30 Fri • Deadline is 2 days prior to publication day
Cash in advance • 15 consecutive days 10% discount • Phone number FREE

ALL QUALITY SUNGLASSES

I'm leaving soon - forever - If you want genuine Raybans and Vuarnets - you better act now. Look for my table today in the CCC.

ANNBUG WERTH

Ann - expect a letter EVERY day! Do not be surprised if I show up in Bethesda! Stay sweet. Vince

ANNEMARIE DUGGAN

Hay Pok! Happy 21st! Have a wild crazy wonderfully fantastic birthday! We'll celebrate whenever you're ready, but no where near the FAC. Have a great one. Love ya Booboo

AN OFFER YOU CAN'T REFUSE

Great summer sublet - 2 bedroom apt in Townehouse June - Aug best offer - fully furnished. All luxuries available call 549-0709 now!

APT. WANTED

3 bedroom epartment wantad in complex, lease starts anytime. Please call ASAP for a free gift with your offer: 253-3658

ATTENTION ATHLETES

The Wellfleet Baechcomber needs doorpersons. Call (617) 349-8055 or 3696. Or write POB 1082 Wellfleet, MA 02667

AUDIO

Senyo Portable AM/FM cassette. Cheap $25. 586-9882

AUTO FOR SALE

73 Mustang Convertible it runs, great summer car, great project car, almost inspectable, $350, BO 545-3117

77 Toyota Celica GT coupe 86k 5 spd AC/rear dgf excel cond inside and out great gas mileage $2350 neg 256-1456

1974 Mustang II blue good condition excellent body and interior runs well $950 call

1973 VW Superbeetle looks great, runs great. Lt. Blue $795 549-4816

1974 Triumph TR6 excellent body and engine, many extras $4000 or BO 546-5516 Dan

A.W.M.

To my favorite eunuch and optimal personal slave Andrew W. May! You're released from my service for the summer. Have a great one and keep shaving. Gratefully, you're master G.J.C.

BE SERIOUS!

For sale: Perkin-Elmer Bantam 550 terminal with Modem - $275.00 cash will talk. If you need one next semester you'll find none cheaper. Must sell by Friday. Call 546-6917 before 10 am or after 9 pm

BEST DEAL IN TOWN

2 roommatas wantad for large bedroom in 3 bedroom house on Fearing St. 2 bathrooms, fireplece, 2 blocks from Campus. Subletting for the summer only, no fall option. For mora info, call 549-4792

BISCUITS

To the hearty biscuit lads, who can always find an excuse to mix up the batter. Ay, lads, we have baked the biscuit, now we have to eat it. Its been scary, its been horrifying, its been great. Now we know why we came to college. I'm going to miss working overtime with the auxillery darkroom crew, you folks always helped me to see clearer somehow. Good luck to all, and to all a good night. - Drew

BLAKE-O

I "heerd it through the grepavine" that you quit smoking. . .have fun in Utah. I will think of you in Oregon whenever I hear the Romantics. Love, Michele

BOARDERS FOR FALL '84 WANTED

For home like atmosphere call Sigma Kappa Sorority 256-6887 ask for Sylvia or Louise

CAROLYN LEE

Look out Hong Kong Barhop Judy's sweeties? Love Karina & UMass men

COLLEGIAN AD REPS

Thanks for all of your herd work -You've all been great (except for your addition

4-Barrel you have always been there for me. No one could have a friend more special. Love Kouchie

-Thanks for your patience Tom) Have a great summer - I'll miss you next year -Adrienne

COLLEGIAN EDITORS

The time has come to say good bya. . .To the out-going Baord, thank you. It's been great working and partying with you. The Bleeding Heart, Andy, Jim, TWP, Gerry, The Cheerleader, Lisa, Yadira, Miriam, and Drew. We can all be proud of the job we've done. To the new Board, good luck. You're a little green, but I guess we all were once. Good luck. The TOC opens early. Joel

☆☆ COLLEGIAN COMRADES ☆☆

To the Collegian Board of fun people Thanks for making it a fun semester and understand I was only trying my best. Hey, lighten up! (How did you ever put up with me, Joel?) To those who are graduating, good luck, McDonald's is always hiring if all else fails. To the new board, have the best time especially James and John, no white spaces but continue the class struggle. Onward comrades, eh Miriam? Dave, Drew, Yadira, Gerry, Lisa, Andy, Ann, Miriam, James, Joel, and the original fun one, Josh---bang it up. - Bill

CRUST

To the crustiest roommetes a lad could have, the Weaseldogs of Fearing St - Let me tell you, its been quite a year. Good luck on the adventures, John & John, I'll be waiting for you in California. As for you, Crusty, I'll deal with you later. - Drew

DAYS OF COOLIDGE 2

Andy - Remember good 'ol Mom, nights w/out a bed, rosewood. Danielle - soup & Parmesean cheese, heeening & Lite ber. Glenda - our life is a blowdryer & so much more! Congrats & good luck! Love, Laura

DICKINSON DORM SECURITY

Thanks to the best student security staff ever assembled, Missy, Dave C., Dave L., Wendy, Carla, Lynne, Mary, Joan, Heather -- have a fantastic summner and good luck on finals! Take care, Michael

DICKINSON 6-EAST

Fellow 6-Easters, good luck on finals! Matt, Greg, Celeste, Debbi, Mark, Dan, Randy, Dode, Pat, Cindy, Cindy, Missy, Deanna, Jon, Itaru, Jersey (Ken), Kevin, Pam, Tammy, Cris, Lynn, Katie, Kirsti, Heather, Tom, Beaver, Tim---Have a great summer - Mike

DYNAMITE WOMEN

Rita - drink up friend! You're awesome -awesome. . .awesome. Robin - JR's loss is Idimar's scoop. . .I'm following you. . .Maura - White Line, Lifeguards, DC men, DARE to be yourselfm roomie. LUV, HATCH

ENTERTAINMENT

RACK-A-DISC ENTERTAINMENT has everything - bands, DJ', lights, banquets -ALL GUARANTEED! 256-0739

WICKED AND WILD DJ's 3 years quality service, GUARANTEED lowest price call 584-6712

Madhatter Booze Cruise - featuring the Castoways and DJ. Prizes for the best hats 1st prize $75. Leaves Boston Harbor June 8 for info: Mike 546-6031 ltd. tix

UMMB/FAC movie night Old Chapel Aud Thursday 5/17 7 pm

Messy Marvin - So when is the party crew taking you back? Love you lots! Felix and the little girl from Brooklyn

FALL HOUSING

Rooms now availebla for all university women in close to campus sorority house. Ask for Lisa B or Sue G at 545-0527

FALL ROOM WANTED

Think you'll need a renter in the fall? Clean, responsible non-smoker will need a place. Prefer No. Amherst or Amherst Ctr. Call Chris 5-8 pm tel. 367-2154 or Box 142 Montague

FOR RENT

Large studio epartment. Swiss Village available June 1. Fall option. $195 + util evenings 253-3075

Southwood Apts 1 bedroom townhouse summer w/fall option very clean 256-8225

Furnished efficiency epartment, carpet, AC, summer, fall option, $205 (Belchertown). 323-6704

One badroom in house near Amherst Center available June 1. 145+ call 256-0796

Summer sublet w/fall option 4 bedroom apt w/2 bathrooms. Summer rent very cheap. Call 256-8247

Two bedroom apt at Brittany Manor summer sublet with fall option. Call 253-7728

2 bedroom avail June 1 with fall option Brittany Manor summer rent negot call after 10. 253-5907

Female wantad nonsmoker for summer sublet and fall option, own room, pool, bus route, $150/month plus utilities, call 253-7806 evenings summer rent negot.

2 badroom apt in Brittany Manor available for fall call 256-1279

Two badroom apt Lantern Court available 6/1 w/fall option 665-7526

Looking for a place in Boston? One bedroom off Commonwealth Ave near Greenline available June 1st with fall option. Call Donna 546-6225

Summer sublet w/fall option 2 bedroom apt at Colonial Village. Pool, fantastic bus service 10 minute to campus. $300/month. Come and see it! 256-8763

Free June rent lrg 1 bdrm all ult incl $320 665-2986 aft 5

Fall option with summer sublet Colonial Village $150/month Craig 256-0078

Summer sublet two rooms available in large house near Amherst Commons call Debbie at 256-1077

Townehouse for summer. Two bedroom, $90 per person, $360/month. Call 546-8234 or 546-8024, evenings

5 bed house in Hadley on busline $700 plus utilities for Sept. Northampton 4 bed summer sublet near Smith College. Call also this summer for Sept houses. Skibiski, Realtors Northampton 584-3428

Have your own room in quiet, spacious apartment, right in Amherst. $275/mo. inclusive. Starts September. 545-1536 253-9664 Keep trying!

Brittany Apt. 3rd floor. Save $$$ by taking over 10 month lease. Call Ed or Paul at 256-0888

Don't be bored this summer. Take advantage of the summer special at Karate Health Fitness 256-0080

2 bedroom epartment available for summer with fall option 420/month heat included Southwood complex 253-7373

Puffton Village 2 bdrm apt summer sub/fall option 549-6377

*Parting Out for year thru 85 - Southwood Apt laundry rm in bldg - pool bus route heat and hot water included 2 large bedrooms call 256-1072

Cape Cod, three bedrooms available in Falmouth call Rich 253-7666

Large double bdrm in spacious 2 bdrm apt. quiet, bus route 665-2236

2 bdrm N. Amherst bus route avail 6/1 375+ 549-6894

Cape Cod space for 1 male, Falmouth $500/summer call 546-5039

FOR SALE

1973 Saab Sonatt sports car, classic, orange, rebuilt transmission and engine, frame good shape, needs one rocker panel and some trunk welding, idle for one year, $2600.00 253-2174 (tape when not at home)

Almost new double bed, bureau, desk, bookcase and sofa. Best offers. 256-0883

Wood desk $50, light blue rug $55 both in excellent condition call Laurie 549-6358

One year old twin bed. Must sell $65 Wendy 584-2905

Waterbed 4x7 apt-size 3 month old $150 Dan 256-1279

73 Olds 88 new batt. and tires $200 549-6500

Twin bed best offer 549-6500

Used furniture, good condition. Loveseat and matching chair, wall unit, dinner table, red rug great for dorms, end tables 549-0542

Lg. 5 cu/ft fridge great condition $75. 6-5982

Bookcase bunkbeds make into twins also asking 100.00 call 665-8125

Used desk big, lots of drawers great condition call Sherry 549-5920

Bed for sale - great condition. $25 or BO 549-5384

Mattress and box spring for sale great price call Elise 549-3949

75 Ford Granada must sell $250 or best offer 549-7622 ask for Gary

Sgl bed, dresser, rugs. Best offer call 549-4460 keep trying!

Colonial style couch good condition must sell $40 or best offer for dorm or apartment call 253-5288

Couch and dask for sala best offer call 256-0924

Apple II plus, 2 disk dr, Z80 card, 80 col, 64k RAM, serial/aut dial modem, soft/manual $1750 Cheng 349-5966, 5-3033

Rust rug 8x9 $25 bed with box spring $15 Craig 256-0078

Two roundtrip tickets Ft Lauderdale or vicinity good for one year call Mike 6-5083

FREE RENT

Just kidding but negotiable 2 bdrm Townehouse fully furnished one mile from campus call 665-4955 or 546-9939

FRIENDSHIP

Lori - You might be leaving Amherst but you will never be forgotten. I will always be there for the sad times and especially the good times. The memories will always be remembered and the future has a lot more. Friends forever, good luck! Love your little friend.

FURNITURE FOR SALE

Excellent condition! Price negotiable call Caryn or Sherri 549-6709

GAIL K.

The Collegian would never have been the same without you - nor will it ever again! Thanks for all the years of help. Good luck to you. Happy Graduation, belated Birthday etc. . .Hope I got them all. Cathy

GOOBER & ANDREA

The dynamic duo! You two have been a great help to me this semester (like all semesters) Hope you'll booth be back next semster--Jennifer with less problems & Andrea with the next hairstyle of the summer! Miss both of you! Cathy

UNIVERSITY OF MARKET HILL

To the comrades of 180! salutations. It's been a fun year living in the slum, incredibly, the place still stands. Good luck to each of you! Jobs, hah, we rely on good vibes instead. I'll get to the bowl this week, I promise, but let's kill the atrium. It's time to go meese-hunting. All the best, Bill

HELP WANTED

Internetional Environmental Org. seeks commited individuals to represent our work on wildlife, acid rain, toxics, and continental shelf issues. Call Greenpeace at 256-6609. Salary $150 to $200 wkly.

COUNSELORS, Excellent Maine Camp, call Mrs. Fritts (201) 538-5409

Students! Summer jobs on campus! Apply to Telefund, Memorial Hall, 545-3509

Help wanted cook needed at local fraternity call anytime 253-9032 ask for Mark

Summer work out West 318/week call for info 549-7529

PARTTIME WEEKEND: Production workers needed to fill-in for employees on vacation/leave. Church Seat Company, Division of Bemis Mfg. Company, Palmer Road, Monson, MA 01057 (413) 267-5511

FARM HAND call Scott's Tree Farm 665-4791

Housefather wanted for local sorority for fall '84 semester, free room & board in exchange for minor repairs. For more info call 256-6874 ask for Jody

Still need a summer job? Work as an activist on a nat'l voter registration campaign and help shape state environmental policy. MASSPIRG is now hiring full-time summer staff for public education and fundraising. $135-225/week. Mon-Fri 2-10 PM. Will train. Call Sandy 256-6434

2 positions @ 40 hrs/wk working on course and teacher evaluation guide good writing and editing necessary applications available in 420 Student Union deadline May 17th @ noon more info call 545-0341 SGA is AA/EEO

Mobile vending vehicle drivers wanted Capa Cod Pete 584-9580 - summer 1984

HEY AL PAL!

We did it! We made it through freshman year alive! Never forget all the good times we had together. You are one heluva chick and the greatest friend a girl could ever have! Love, Val Pal

HEY POOK

Hey Roomie Thanks for being the best roommate ever and for being the best! Love you! Love Booboo PS Puffton watch out here comes 411!

JOA 22

Fun time with lounge hoop, hall sports, drinking or whatever. I didn't do it - I'm innocent next yr take over! Later Howster, Makrys, Richster, Frates, Paul and the rest of the crowd.

JEFF CHANNEN

Jaff Channen
★★★ May 19 ★★★
Happy .irthday to you
Happy Birthday to you
Happy Birthday dear Jeff
Happy Birthday to you -
Randi Lynne

JEFF MARK/MARK TABAKIN

To two of our favorite brothers. The party wont be the same without ypu. We love you and we'll miss you, Suzy and Ilene

J.S. FANCLUB

To all you guys - on the 3rd floor of Chadbourne - Thanks for all your encouragement about Sportscasting. I'm sure Jackie Gutierrez and Mark Aguirre would appreciate it Love, Michele

JOEL MYERSON

Wall the time has finally come to say good-bye, good-riddence! Good luck to you in the future, what ever you do if you do. Congratualtions on your Graduation, you fooled the whole school. Always remember the extra work you left on my desk! Your unappreciated slave!

JULIE COHEN

Happy 20th Birthday! Have a great day! I luv ya! Your Roommate

JULIE S.

L.B. - I'm glad everything is working out. I'm looking forward to a terrific summer. Love you a lot. Eric

J.W.

Jodi - For all the years of friendship we've had & many more to come. Thanks for making the memories special. I'll miss you next year. Remember to go after your dreams and don't let anyone get in your way. (See you June 11) Love ya, Lori

KARATE ENTHUSIASTS

Take advantage of the summer special at Karate Health Fitness. Full-time facility, superlative equipment. 256-0080

KISSES FROM HATCH

Mom, Ded, Devid - I made it! I'll make you proud of me! Reidinger-Tanabe, my forever friends, thanx. England's Garrett Collins - welcome back. Let's do it up for summer! Oh Kelley OYE. . .Bond, I want Grey Jacket Man! Garcia & Lee Kim - keep scooping - keep me posted. . .Congrats to little Jose, Yim, Robin Bye Knipe, cousin Scott, Tara, Ginny, Bid, men. . .Pollow. . .Bond. . .Love, Hatch

★ LINDA, CHEN, RANDI AND JOEY★

I'm going to miss you all. have a great summer Come visit me at Goochies. Love, Joy ★★★★ ★★★★ ★★★★ ★★★★

LIVE IN LUXURY

Summer sublet June thru Aug. 1 bedroom Brandywine Apt low rent negotiable call 665-7928

LOST

Lost blue jacket, Scituate High School Football embroidered on it. If found please please call 546-7744, great sentimental value. Reward no questions asked

Gold chain bracelet hopefully with small heart pendant lost Tu Ap 21 call Jenni at 546-4282 reward

As you pack your belongings have you come across my Skyr skijacket? Missing since 3/29 royal blue w/redwhite piping ski patches on both sleeves Reward 546-8250

I lost my specs! Thin tortoise shell rimmed glasses in black case - please help! Call Jane 546-6801

Gold chain with "J" cherm lost last week please call 546-9868

LOWEST RENT AVAILABLE

Need an apertment for this summer? One available in Brandywine. Right next to the pond. Very cheap rent. Partially furnished. Call Tom 253-2284 or call Sean or Joe 546-9355 call soon!

LUCIE B.

Did you think I forgot? Congratulations. Love, Michael

MAKE ME AN OFFER

3 BEDROOM, 2 BATH, AC, furnished, pool, busroute, Rolling Green 253-9431 best offer

Sue Well Yankee Doodle some Americans still have a sense of adventure! The V.P.

MARKUS OF WEBSTER

Heppy Greduation to a great exroommate even if you did always make me watch dull MTV videos. Enjoy your cigar; may microwaved hotdogs follow you always. Good Luck! Love, affection, & lust, Elizabeth PS - Perhaps my bruises will heal, oh tormentor.

MICHAEL L.

No distance is too great; all of my love - now and forever, Lucie

MISS GORGEOUS

You said you'd keep "I Searched" forever. If you leave hating me the pain that goes with hating me will last just as long. Call me please

MOE AND THE BARBARIANS

Congratulations 3 South you've done it all. Thanks for making my last year the best. I won't forget you. Good luck I love you all yours truly

MOTORCYCLES

'80 KZ-440 LTD 900# 6 speed mag wheels in great condition, always kept under cover, approx 65 mpg 549-7719

1983 Yemeha special 50cc mint condition only 3000 miles $500 or BO call Alan at 546-5332

79 Suzuki PE 175 best offer call 665-4340 after 3 pm

Yemeha 175 enduro 500 miles - like new on/off road w/helmet $500 549-0159

NIKKI HUMMEL/GARY GILBERT

Congretulations you two. . .oh on your Graduation! We're going to miss you! Nikki thanks for being a great RA and friend! We love you! Love 411

NO NUKES IN FT. LAUDERDALE

To Gine, Yola, and Diane, Thanks for an awesome Spring Break. Gina - I'm glad you asked everyone to "stop by", especially those three guys from Oswego. With love, The Atomic Woman

PAPA GINO'S PARTNER

Cris - Even though we didn't get there that often again this semester. . .Have a great summer no matter where you are going! Any more summer affairs? or make that long distance ones awaiting this year? Keep in touch. See you in Sept. and we'll have to keep all those plans idle until next semester! Cathy

PERSONALS

Need a place to live next fall? Female boarders wanted. Good food home-like atmosphere. For info call 545-0162/2092. Keep trying!

WE HAVE BALLS - basketballs, baseballs softballs, footballs, tennis balls racquetballs, squashballs golfballs & frisbees

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

WHATS YOUR RACQUET?

We have Tennis Racquets, Racqetball Racquets, Squash Racquets & Bats!

THE SPORTING GOODS CO-OP
"Your Sporting Goods Connection"
M-F 11 to 5 322 Student Union Building

Greduating Gormenites (past and present) congratulations and lots of luck!!! Love Steph and Anna

Hey. . .Vickie, Sue, Shari, Marybeth, Tori, Sharon, Leslie, Ginny. . .It's been a great year, lets all get back together in the fall OK? Enjoy the summer!! Love, Martha and George

To Nancy, Allison, Ricky, Fizz, Bret, Brad, Nuf, Andy, Heather, Heidi, Eric, Tom, Chez, Keck, Geoff, Mona, Gerry, and Meggie, Thanks for making my 4 years at UMass so special. I'm goona miss you all very very much! I love you Donna

Judy Cohen I'll miss you good luck at UMass Love Amy Julie Faitell you're the best roommate good luck next year Love Amy

To my friends, especially in IVCF, ROTC and Crabtree, thanks for a very special year. All the best for the future. Lynne

Meggie Malone, Congratulations! Take care during the summer. Love RME

Monique Beeuchemp Congratulations good luck we will miss you Love RME

Lisa Happy 19th Birthday It has been a great semester with I hope for alot more Love always Paul

To someone who has made the best years of my life the time that we have spent together at UMass. Heres to a great sumemr at the Cape Melissa! Love, alwyas David

Carmine Thanks for a great year I love you Cara

Keith Thanks for helping me with Accounting how about shushi this summer good luck with Marriot C.W.

Caroline, Thanks for being sucj a great friend. Get ready for Finals and all-nighters (casually speaking Old Maid or UNO?) You're the best! Love Robyn

Robin & Sue I will miss you guys so much I will never forget all the great times we've had! Love Terry

TARAski - Howarski? Get out your ID since 20 you will soon be! Happy Birthday!! AM

Mike you're a better man than I am. Hope your summer is excellent. I'll miss you my friend Deb

To Ken and M.B. It was great, we'll have to do it again sometime. Thanks, Paul

Mery: Let them all talk. We're better than that.A friendship is something determined by us, no one else. Jill

Ken: Good luck in Fitchberg Paul: just good luck. See you both in DC Jill

Shqueetie: You made this semester so special. Life won't be the same without you. I love you. Fifi

Danielle, Smile! We'll be friends forever! Great summer! Love, Renee

Kimbe and Paule: Good luck with graduation! I'll miss you, Renee

Tlene: Thanks for making my first year a little happier. I love ya. Kim

To the sisters of KKG: Thanks for a great semester! Love, Spring '84 pledges (we're psyched!)

To Court, Derie, Brian, Eric, Lilas, Peggy, Here's to wild nights, togetherism, separatism and the revolution. Enjoy your respectibe summertime destinies, Nicaragua, the west coast, Massachusetts. Love, Becky

Congretulations to the Co-Captains; K Dougherty & T. Sbarra from Lew

Mel & Sessy the countdown is really here. Let's get out of here. Luv ya Lizzy

Linde Mez This is it Big Time! Congrats Graduate. Love Sheila & Tim

Deryl: Happy 3 mos teehee Just for the Bod! OK you're right Luv Jackie

Keren Hewkes, you're a great daughter! Congratulations! Have a great summer! Love always, Mom

New Sisters of Sigme Delte Teu, congratualtions! Get psyched for tonight! We love you! Sisters of SDT

Jeennie Happy Graduation! We're going to miss you Love, Terri & Pete

Deve It's been a fantastic three semesters! I'll see you in a year! You better write back! Love, Jane

Deer Myre, I love you. The past couple of years have been the best. Let's hope for many more Love Chris

To the Dheeds of 40 - Its was a great senior year, I hope we always stay tight. "Later Babe" feets PS Vito hows that NOW account doing?

Michele - Thanks for the memory, they will never be forgotten love Chris

Pooky - It's never too late, what evers going to happen will happen. I am going to miss you Love Pumpkin

To the fifteenth floor Coolidge you are the best thanks for such a great year you are the best! Love you Patty

Jeime my cute little "S" bunny! I love you can't wait for this summer! Love Patty

Bubbe Good luck in all your exams. Have a Happy Birthday and a nice summer and most of all. . .thanks for everything! (smile) Love Toots

In search of the perfect men the adventure continues tonight at JRs

Dear Audrey: Graduation congratulations to a very special friend. I'll miss you next fall. Love, Michele PS "Want to take a ride to Westfield?"

Wende Thanks for making my senior year s o special. Monique

Meggie You've been a great roommate and a wonderful friend. I'm going to miss you! Monique

Joy Suzenne Sue Merc Seen Pat Kevin Tuck Thanks for a great semester have a super summer see ya next year love Kelly

Kirstie & Cindy It's been a great semester & I'm really gonna miss you two! Let's never forget: "Have thumb, will. . ." Cooll & "Age" talk! You & Umas haven't seen the last of me! Love, Cindy

Trecy, remember the baby powder? The laughter, the tears? How about that school paper, the Collegian something? Drink and get drunk and remember mer RM

Julie, Take a look at me now, and this summer too? Andy

Cerole you're devine. Congratualtions and good luck! We'll miss ya lots! PS Get higher baby! Love Bridge, Mar, Donna, Laurie, and Linda

Rebecca, I love you! Thanks, Eric

Richelle S. Todd Bods unite! PFD

Tim you're a great big brother Happy Graduation Love Elizabeth

Hey Sandy and William: I hope you can snorkle! V.I. 85 last one in is a rotten egg! Love Martha

Hey Consolin! Thanks for a great year! Seven down. . .to go. I luf you! Bridge

To my Big Bro, How'd I ever get lucky enough to get a friend like you? This 1st year wouldn't be complete without you. Remember: between us there will never be goodbye. Thanks for giving me the world. I guess this means. . .see you later. Good luck at UL. your little bro,. . .ARD

Wetch out Californie here come Snoopy and Lucy

J - "Keep smiling, keep shining knowing you can always count on me, for sure that's what friends are for." ILY - L

Deerest Susie, Thanks for being there -always, Psyched for Fall 84 Liz

GEDS huh? AAAAA just thought um you should um know that

Andy This one's for you because you are very special! Donna XOXO

Chris my fingers are crossed. Things will only get better. Congrats! I love u Lealee

Coolidge Staff, It's been great! Leaving staff, good luck, new staff welcome! Returning staff, get psyched! Kirk, I'll miss you. Love ML

To the "broads" of Club B - The past four years have been excellent! Apartment life just won't be the same next year. I'm really going to miss ya congrats! See ya later bye LZ

Don't be bored this summer. Take advantage of the summer special at Karate Health Fitness. 256-0080 Fun, coed workouts

Hey Lagune Lady -- You are the best, I'm going to miss you - friens forever, Karry

Lagune Beech, Menhesset, and Cohesset - The distance may be miles, but in thought we will always stay together as one! Cindy, Denise and Kerry

Yo Chicks! Happy Garduation. It just won't be the same. Love, Kara

Jodi - You've been a large part of my college life - my entire life. No one could ever take you place. Anne - Thanks for sticking it out with us. Hope we madeit worth your while - you made it worth ours. Deb - We made the right choice when we chose you. Such a short time and so many great memories already. I love you all - Ellen

To ell my friends who are greduating -Idalyn, Ellen N., Jodi, Ellen W., Miriam, Ellen Z., Nadine, Chris, Kim, Peggy, Ainge, Sue N., 2F, 3B, Lynn and Joan S. I'll never forget ya. Good luck to all interior designers Have a great summer. love, Marsha W

Idelyn, Ellen & Brende, Thanks for the great semester, it went too fast especially because we never did the Nike promotion. What's she getting at? I thought you died -I'll miss you guys alot - you're the best ever. Love ya, Marsha

To my roomies - thanks again for putting up with me - let's hope we can do it again. Here's to all night talks and early morning bong hits - love you guys, Ana

Thanks to Margie, Angie, Linde, Freddy, Jill, Peul and all of SABA for a "wild time!!" It's been great guys, I'll miss you all! Love Kathe

Lisa. Good times hooping it up for 3 years. A lot of bus rides and boring practices, but it was worth it. Good luck in the future. Get a job will ya. Great fun at the concert. No more driving buzzed, OK? Nice pad. Scott

Mik - Fun laughs and frienship I'm glad I shared it with you! Always Lin

Toni, Mr Febulous, Mr Wong from wherever, Ghendi. Remember she who forgets her umbrella gets rained on. Don't get mad, get sarcastic. Thanx for my best semester. Love, Me

Lisa MacDonny. we love you and we'll miss you! 1st floor Greenough

Neomweh, I love you. Geno

Connie, you're a sweetheart! Thanx for being a friend when i needed one most. I'll miss you. Good luck in Fla. Love, Joyce

Dienne King chasiubaogunghayfotchoydimsumwoainichen rewind congrats

Mrs. Ruby, Mrs Jackson & Mrs Littlefield - some of the best times ever -we've endured & learned it all. Have the best summer--yo! F--ehh! Love always, your Collegian Roommate

Courtney - yes - four years of fun! Let's keep going this summer. . .Barney, Steve, and even hyermaine and his pals!! Can you believe the miracle? haron

Lynnski - Good luck with those cowboys in Reno! I'll miss ya! Lester

Hey Smiling Drummer! This one's for you! Surprise! You didn't think I'd do it, did you? Love, Jill

Chuck H. It's been fun. Want to see you again. Can we arrange something? Patrice 253-3363

PT Just couldn't let the semester end without a happy B-day wish. Don't really know what to say about Monday. Still love you. Be happy and good luck with your finals & summer. Ungaphrumptz GRF

Greeney, It's been real. . .luv ya, Joyous

Hare's to Phi Sig I love you Vito! Love, Witch

Roland seven months today I hope we share many more months together! I love you! Forever Monique

Nancy & Lucie. We'll never forget all the good times we've had, (PAD Run, Blob & Slue, binging, Neil's wall & laughing) We'll miss you! best of luck! Love Sheila & Besy

Riders needed to Ft Lauderdale Floride area. Leaving May 25th call Jon 546-6673

DM My Irish Jersian Thank you for a wonderful three years. Good luck in the real world. Kepp the memories close and always remember if you ever need a wife, your Mom knows a great bonnie Irish lass. Love always, Me

Hey, Cheryl P! Thanx for making the past 3 years the best! You are a fantastic person, and I love you alot! Keep in touch, Babe! Love, RED G

Marienne Wolfenden - You've made living in Webster a little less hellish. I'm going to miss you this summer. Love always Scott

Hay Nancy! Here's your personal (as promised) It's been great knowing you. Love, Glenn

Ellie, I wish I knew what to say. I'm going to miss you very much while I'm gone. I will always be thinking of you and the day I'll see you again. With love, Brian

Deve, Laura, Joel, Neil, Rod, Artie, Eric and Sid, Frank and Rhonda, Moore House 3 Long-Shirt, SWAG, and everyone else that matters - Thanks for a great semester and for being there when I needed you. The Caged Lion

Happy Birthdey Nick & John Good luck Nick Love Terry

6 Floor Washington everyone have a great summer and remember Sept 5 is my birthday Joe

Kathy: Two semesters have been great! Good luck next year and let's keep in touch love always Joe

Petty Congratulations but the library won't be the same without A L.K. love Bob

Ken W 7W Webster you wanted a personal here it is SWEDENBOUND! Good luck always love C, L, & G

Bob, Scott, Kevin & other spuds have a great summer - Lisa

Megen, Lets not say goodbye Lets just say au revoir OK? Love, your Buddy Marie 51 R.G.

To the best roomies anyone could want: here's to good times had & more to come, Birdie King, Fitzwilly's, the "winter car", Dynasty, TB, KS, RB, shopping for "baagains", laughing at everything. . .I've never seen a bigger bunch of saps in one place. Di - Good luck with Matt & the internship. Deb & Shirl - What can I say? I'll miss you all. H-women live! Love ya Lori

RENA & JODI

It wes good working w/both of you this semester. See you next fall, (at least maybe Rena) Jodi - good luck with selling. If you don't like it, I'll keep a job open for you. Cathy

REWARD!!

We'll give $100 CASH if you live in RollingGreen & let us take over your sublet & now - 546-6667

We'll give CASH reward if you let us take over your lease - sum sublet & fall option for RIVERGLADE apts PUFFTON or an apartment in Amherst Center call now! 546-6667 keep trying

RIDE WANTED

To Calif 1st week in June share expenses and driving 256-8416

Chicago - I need a ride to Chicago after May 25 at 6 p.m. I'll share driving and expenses. I travel light. Please call Cris at 545-3500 during the day and 546-6672 at night Keep trying

ROOM WANTED

Room needed for two in West Yarmouth/Hyannis area. Call Tom or Mike 253-9868

Cape Cod - I need place for summer call Lyn 256-8606

One female roommate looking to share room in North Amherst call Cindy 253-3032

A quiet responsible female looking for a room for summer w/fall option in Puffton or surrounding area Helen 256-6495

Help! I need a place to live beg in August - single room prefarred, out in the country call 256-0940 until end of May ask for John Help! I need a place to live this summer, Falmouth area please call 6-7734 keep trying!

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female roommate wanted to share large bedroom in house Hadley $175.00 includes utilities 586-3682

Amherst summer sublet 1 rm in house near town & campus 117/mo + 1/6 Max 546-6089 Kris 256-0556

Roommate wanted for Southwood apt rate negotiable information call Margeret 546-1411

Summer sublet/fall option North Amherst 150+ 5 min to bus close to campus 549-0146

Brandywine female to share room possible fall option call 549-1405/546-4791

Centrel Northempton on bus room in apartment starting June 1 584-1381

Female wanted for single in Puffton 6128 summer sublet fall option furnished 549-4537

Single room in convenient, quiet Squire Village townhouse call 665-3175

Female roommate wentad for 2 bedroom apt. call 549-2719

Female wanted for fall to share lg bedroom in Squire Village. Call anytime Dawn 665-8534

House in Dennisport near beach call Mike 546-5067, Dan 546-4308 ASAP

3 bedroom apertment in Amherst Center 1 single plus one summer sublet only, both available June 1. For more information call Debbie 256-8064

Brandywine, 65 a month, female only to share room, call anytime 546-7133

Female nonsmoker roommate wented for fall share room quiet Brittany apt 165/mth 256-1338 or 546-8582 keep trying

Brandywine apertment 1 roommate wanted also summer sublet $75/month 549-3892 per person

Townehouse apt summer with fall option non smoker, grad or older student preferred 549-6834

2 roommate(s) wanted for fall in Brittany call Cyndi 253-3032

Brandywine 2 roommetes to shere bedroom for summer and fall option 549-6289

Moving to Philly?? So am I and I need a female roommate I am employed call Vikki 549-6869

Roommates wentad to share house in North Amherst near Puffer's Pond for summer with possible fall option call 549-7839

Don't be bored this summar. Take advantage of the summer special at Karate Health Fitness 256-0080

1 female, nonsmoker for Puffton apt starting June 1 546-4445, 546-4363

Female for own room Riverglade 150+ available immediately Lisa 256-8373

Roommate wented (male) to share room in Southwood call 253-3176 for info

Female roommate wented to share furnished Brittany Apt beginning in fall Colleen 6-1457, Laura 6-9714

Seek female to share room in apt near Amherst Center 118/mo + ¼ utilities 253-2763

cape Cod - Dennisport 6/1 - 9/1 100 yards from ocean. Call Joe 549-7569 or 253-9015

Marthe's Vineyerd roommate wanted for summer in Edgartown call 546-8960 now

Two roommetes needed for fall to share bedroom in two bedroom Brittany apartment call evenings 256-1355

SCOTT & RICH

This is a public apology for Saturday night. Anyway, thanks for the good times & memories. I'll never forget you guys, especially when you were nice to me. I'll miss you both! Love ya, Lori

SDT SENIORS

"So long farewell, we hope you liked Sig Delt. . ." "You know you'll miss us" Good luck! We love you! Sisters and Pledges of SDT

MORE PERSONALS

Looking for female(s) to share house in Yarmouth call Diane 545-0162

Likey, Look no further. I'd never disappoint you. Love always, Likey

KS - Just wanted you to know how special you've become over these past months in spite of everything. Don't let anyone or anything keep you from doing what you want. You're one of a kind. I'll miss you too. LS

Joen Gelanek looks like you made it! Congratulations! LOve ya, KERS

Fielders do it! I am talking about Kevie, Huskin, Fish, Russell, Mark, Alphie. I'm yours, Colt, Jack, doin it in Jacksonville,

WOBIN looking forward to sunny days on the deck and warm nights in your new bed. Come to the beach to pick up your Collegian extra, A Strawberry Sunday, on me

ANDY PORTER, Thanx for making these last 2 ½ years wild ones. Hold down the fort pope! Whenever the red rag hangs from an open mouth we will be there, for we are truly the three sickest bastards that ever lived! We will miss you, Adam and Jay

Paul Green and Jay Holland! Well gentlemen we made it! It has been a great four years. You two have made a college experience a truly "educational" one! What are we going to do for the next four years? I propose heavy doses of stimulating intoxicants! Have fun and go wild! Adam Todd

To all who perticipeted in OHAG this year - thanks and have a nice summer Cara

Five North Grayson thanks for a great year! Love, Cara

Stolfe - What can I say? Its time to follow the yellowbrookroad sober thanks for everything your the best roomie i could ever have had! Take care love Jo

To those I care about most in the world - Jim, Jules, Dave, LMC, Crissy, Hannah, Pam, Karen, Burgers and Sue, Jill, Julie, Jane, Paula, Maura, Marty, Mike, Lumpy, Laura, Bridget, Kathy, Sue, Drew, Lisa, The Bag, Gallagher, Manton, The Owl, Dean, Dana, Sandy, Maureen and everyone who made the past four years so wonderful. The thought of leaving is becoming harder as each day goes by. Take care - Andy

"Life is made up of small comings and goings, and for everything we take with us, there is something we leave behind." - summer of 42. Best of luck to the old Van Meter gang. I'll miss you very much. - Andy

Linda Murray congretualtions! I'm going to miss you being up here! Love, Suzanne

MMF - Looks like we made it! Thank you for the best three months anyone could possibly dream of. Here's to a summer of high phone bills and long car rides. I'm going to miss you. I love you. Amy

Josh, Thanx for giving me the chance to contiue the tradition. I'll try and carry on i yourname as best I can but noone can be like you. Good luck, Rita

SENIORS

The 1984 Index will be distributed this fall. If you would like the yearbook to be mailed to you, please send your permanent address and $2.50 check for postage and handling to: Index, 103 CC by May 26.

SERVICES

TYPING Fast, Accurate, CHEAP call Amy after 7 pm 283-3050

Typing/Word Processing. Next day service. Type-Rite. 253-5111

fast accurate typinmg on IBM Selectric $1.25/page 584-3865 Leslee

SPENDING THE SUMMER IN DC?

So em II Let's share an apartment call ASAP 665-8126

SUMMER RENTALS

Centrelly loceted on campus full kitchen facilities cable TV furnished 250 single 150 double call Jim K 545-2150 545-0047

SUMMER SUBLET

Brandywine June-Aug rent negotiable call 546-6322 or 546-6324

2 bedroom Townehouse apt fully furnished, rent negotiable call anytime 546-5001

1 bedrm in 2 bedrm furnished apt center of town. Prefer serious student. Avail. June $250/mo Jan/Barb after 4 pm 253-7818

4 bedrooms available at Swiss Village summer sublet with fall option call 253-5274

Two bedroom apt utilities included pool bus route fall option $370 Cliffside 665-8501

Brandywine summer sublet furnished, best offer, call 546-5382

Four bedroom house, furnished, large kitchen, living room. pantry. Washer and dryer. Near Look Park. $300 or best offer 586-9506

Summer sublet 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Brittany call 546-6560 after 6 PM

Amherst Center apt for 1 person furnished June 1 to Sept 1 call 256-6079

With fall option 2 bedroom apt in Southwood call 253-3111 Dan

Southwood 2 bedroom apt available Jun 1 - Sept 1 inexpensive 546-3282

One bedroom Rolling Green close to cheap pool air conditioning call 256-6905

5 bedroom house in Amherst next to Swiss Village, on bus route partially furnished only $75 a month call Dan 256-6761

2 rms in house with fall option 586-7037 call eves

Female roommate wented furnished Puffton apartment call 549-0496

Southwood 2 bdrm w/fall option summer rent negotiable 253-5617

4 bdrm 2 beth Swiss Vlg apt w/fall option 3 bdrms available 253-3851, one bdrm 253-2083

Big 2 bedroom furnished apartment June - August BO Dave K 546-6461

One bedroom available in apartment in Amherst Centre call evening 253-2683

Furnished bedroom to sublet for summer, fall option, cheap! Amherst, Chris 256-1205

With fall option. 2 bedroom apt at Cliffside. Great view, swimming pool, tennis courts. $360/month all utilities included. Call Thomas at 665-4493 eves.

Room(s) 4 rent. Swiss Village, very negotibale. Furnished to the hilt! Cindy 256-1474

Convenient Amharst Centar 2 doubles $90 negotiable summer only 6-5651 6-4992

One bedroom in two bedroom, beautiful sunny house. Only one block from campus and Amherst Center. This is a steal! Call Cathy 549-2742

Brandywine Apt best offer call 549-2636

1 room in house. Walk to campus & town 110/mo + util 546-9960 or 549-1730

Possible fall great apartment 5 min from campus 549-1178 keep trying

Last Chance to love in the best location in Amherst. One bedroom in a beautiful apartment right between campus and town. Must see to believe. $100/month 256-0170

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Brendywine apt furnished, 150 negotiable call now 549-6398

One bedroom summer sublet with fall option Cliffside apt 665-7956

Free rent for two weeks Cliffside $130 per person all utilities included fall option 665-4644

Last chance 1 bdrm townehouse cheap must see Tim 549-0038

Summer sublet 2 bdrm apt in Squire Vlg $300/mo fall option call 665-3111

One bedroom in two bedroom Southwood apt can be shared by two people fall option 253-7422

Free half a month's rent two bedroom available June 1 pool tennis basketball courts bus route fall option low rent includes utilities hear Cliffside 665-8501 call now

Brendywine 2 bedrooms furnished, pool, June-Aug best offer 546-5464 or 5489

Puffton 3 bedroom negotiable 546-9620 546-7705 546-9155 546-9879 furnished

Three bedroom Townehouse apertment reasonable rent call 546-9615 answering machine

Don't be bored this summar Take advantage of the summer special at Katate Health Fitness. Fun, coed workouts 256-0080 with fall option bus dishwasher pool two bedroom cheap! Wall to wall carpets call eves 665-2469 **

1 bdrm July/Aug sublet w/fall option $335/mnth 549-7739

3 bedroom epertment in house in Amherst Center sumemr sublet only one bedroom a double $400 month 253-5155

For summer Townehouse apt 549-5962 100/month per person 3 bedroom

1 bedroom w/fall option $115 incl all call steve 256-8270

Lawn Parties? Yes at house in N Amherst across from Townehouse. 3 bedrooms, lg kitchen, backyard, very negotiable rent 549-5440

Brendywine one or two bedrooms available, pool, air-conditioning, negotiable 549-7858, 546-7684

Two bedrm Southwood townhouse part furnished 546-7167

Cheap summer sublet Main St near Amherst Ct cheap! rent negotiable call now! 546-4752 or 546-4747 after 7:00

Very cheap rent - nice apartment - Squire Village Beth 6-6491

Pufton apt 3 bedrm 2 rooms open cheap call 546-7041 or 549-7845

1 space available in Amherst Center apt. - cheap!! call 256-0681

Perfect sumemr sublet Amherst center 1 large bedroom, yard, pool, tennis, rent negotiable 549-5799

Half mile from campus - threee bedroom furnished apartment - rent negotiable (cheap) call 546-6572 or 546-6576 anytime

Large bedroom in large furnished apt on Nutting Ave very close very cheap! 549-7619

With fall option 2 bdrm at Cliffside apts in Sunderland $400 incls all 665-4644

Summer sublet large bedroom in brand Sunderland apt. on bus route must sublet by May 24th! Rent negotiable Please call 546-8972 Connie or Beth anytime!

BRANDYWINE $70/mo first come first serve 6-8196 evenings or 1 467-3954

SUUMER SUBLET/FALL OPTION

Summer sublet/fall option - excellent house on SouthAmherst bus route. Half mile from Amherst College. 2 bedrooms, big living room and kitchen. Huge backyard 253-7131

SHUTTERBUGS

Congratulations to the new Photo Staff for their great work this semester, we know we'll be seeing lots of great photos in the paper next year. Good luck Andy, go crazy! - Dave and Drew

SIXTH FLOOR WASHINGTON

You guys had better keep up the partying tradition if I don't come back next semester. Good luck and have a great summer I'll miss you Cheese

SPECIAL FRIENDS

Lynn, Marcie, Kim, Roger, Judy, Dave, Jeke, Bob, Bill - Thanks for making all of my memories so sweet. I love you all -Adrienne

Ellen-here's your personal. I'm going to miss you this summer. I love you. Barry

SPORTS STAFF

Reel interesting yr - with Russ' 'real' beats, Pete gags, never ending NY-Boston (and CT) debates, the Log, the Ant, Hoods unique leads, KD, MD, ER, go puck, Hartford -- All don't wk too hard thus summer --The Boss

SHALOM

Hillel - Saul Perlmutter, Emily - all the best! Congrats to DVP Stu, Francine & Suzanne Siff. Rhonda - a special thanx. Smile Mike D. Good Luck to a new council make Treasury Dance! L'HITRATOT, Tracy

THIRD FLOOR BROOKS

Thanks for a great semester! Good luck on finals and have a wild summer - Love, Adrienne

TONY

The time with you in the past year have been special, this semester has been wonderful and the past month has been a dream come true. I'm looking forward to the many minutes and hours with you in the future, and I'm thankful for every minute I have with you today. No happy anniversary greeting is necessary because every day with you is a celebration. I'm tickled green with you and I intend to love you for the longest time (oh-oh-oh). I love you - Your lady with the stomach

TO SUBLET

1 br Puffton to share sublet w/fall option avail June 1 549-1470

Room available summer possible fall option. Rent negotiable. Call 256-0011 evenings

Two bedroom apt available one fall option near Puffton wood stove 549-0112

Two bedroom apertment in Colonial Villege summer sublet fall option telephone 256-8597

House - available June 1st - fall option 5+ bedrooms on bus route, walking distance to town and campus, heat included call 256-0992

2 people needed for 1 bd in 2 bd Brandywine apt $70/prsn for summer sblt call 546-9406 or 546-9403 keep trying

Summer sublet with fall option $295, utilities included 256-1482 Kevin

w/fall option great location 253-3630 Gail eve $180 mo

Squire Villege 2 bdrm townhouse great for 4 people or less fall option 665-4128

Choose us!! Needed immediately 1 or 2 people to share large bedroom in brand new Sunderland duplex $100/mo call 665-3072 after 6 pm

To sublet cheap 2 rm of 4 avlb pay 2 mo 1 free fall opt Mike/Doug 253-2083

One bedroom apt Cliffside 150 includes everything pool and tennis 665-4576

Cliffside summer sublet fall option 1 bedroom in 2 bedroom. Responsible female 180/mo inclusive. Available June or July your choice. Summer rent negotiable 665-3509

Two bedroom apt summer sublet with fall option rent neg 665-4201

Colonial Village 2 bedroom summer/fall option. On bus route. Partially furnished 256-0088

Summer sublet room in house in Amherst fully furnished $90 per month includes utilities 323-5974 after 5 pm

4 bedroom sublet w/fall opt $140/month neg utilities included 253-5956

2 bedroom in large house close to town and campus summer w/fall option 160+ negotiable 256-0407

Practically on campus! New 2 bdrm apt w/fall option 549-5613

Puffton w/fall option female 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apt after 6 pm 549-4869

2 bdrm apt summer w/fall option AC, new dishwasher, on bus route only $350/month Sunderland 665-7598 aft 5

Don't be bored this summer. Take advantage of the summer special at Karate Health Fitness. 256-0080

Puffton sublet for more info call 549-6971 or 253-5045

3 BEDROOM, 2 BATH AC, furnished, pool busroute, Rolling Green 253-9431 best offer

4 bdrm 2 bath Swiss Village apt. $150 per bdrm per month leave most kitch, liv. furn 256-0089 fall option

2 bedroom in Sunderland AC carpet right on bus route $350 roomy clean 665-7598

TRAVEL

Plane ticket 1 way BOS. to L.A. 80 Tom 549-0661

NYC to Seattle one-way plane ticket only $170 call Megan 546-6649

TYPING

Professional Typing Service including: theses, manuscripts, medical reports, dictaphone. Emergency service. Call 536-2336, 6-10 PM

WANTED

Buying Gold Class Rings, Gold and Silver Jewelry and Coins, Sterling, Comic Books, Baseball Cards. Daniel Smith, 25 North Pleasant St., Amherst, 256-0710

Experienced Painter sash and trim skills prefered call after 5:00 665-2665

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted Puffton or Presidential apt will pay reward call 665-7518 546-5141

Responsible women needed summer housing great location cheap rent call 549-6823

2 people looking to share an apt in Puffton or Brandywine for fall 84 call 6-5290 or 6-9705

Brittany Manor - 2 bdr apt furnished summer sublet w/fall opt call 256-0928

Quiet Grad student couple would share house or apartment, starting June. 545-1536, 253-9664 keep trying!

Two bedroom apartment available in Southwood summer sublet/fall option call Laura 256-6225

WILLY HO'S GOING TO VAIL!

Rider(s) wanted for a cruise to Vail, Colorado shortly after May 22. Share expenses. You'll never hear the same Dead tape more than once. A good time, even if you come right back. Bill 665-8580

TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

17, 20 Townehouse; 6F, 3C, 8H Brandywine; the Puerto Rican-Latin crew; Robin and Karlin; Pete B; Sue F. and Greg S; Sammy; Michael, Lenny and Skip; Scott M; A.P.M.; and Tom L---Thanks for all the memories! Love you all Cindy Schwarzstein and Kerry Salvador

→ → GO AWAY ← ←

Nuke the Collegian, especially the classifieds. "I can't even think." The essence of humanity is absurdity and nothingness and M & M's (not green ones). Love, Day Graphics

CAN'T SAY YOU'RE NOT FUN

Hey Stacy! Who believes it is six months this Friday, I'm happy. . .Let's make the rounds one more time. Too bad about Europe but that won't stop us. Looking forward to having more fun, wherever we are. Love, Bill

COLLEGIANAIRE'S DISEASE

Collegian steffers--Good luck to graduating seniors. Business Staffers are the greatest. Goodbye Lori, Dave & good luck. Janet & Kathy see you next year? Maureen, Cathy & Jim thanks--Mike

COLLEGIAN GHADS ET. AL

Congrats & Best of Luck! Anne-the best Editor-in-Chief in my book. Rita-you taught me everything & anything I know. David-tennis anyone? And Josh-you know the Globe wants you! Love, Laurayee

JACQUELINE

Thanks for making my formal the best (clutch). I'm looking forward to spending more time with you. Glenn

HATCH

Oh my God I can't write it soon you will be gone. Graduating! No jokes now Tracy, this is from the heart, I'll miss you. Go out and take the world by storm. You deserve it all Thanx for the friendship, it'll be treasured for ever. Best of luck, UMass and me will never be the same. Never. Remember me when you're rich and married. Love, Rita

Becky-Becky-Becky:Weasel alert. Great times we'll always remember (eating, drining, chasing LM, MH, Hairspray) we'll miss your big mouth!! Love, Karensue and Liza

ALLYSON RIOUX. Noone is more deserving of future success and happiness than you. Good luck! P.S. That wealthy man in your future is one lucky gentleman.

ADAMZO-just come to bed thanks for everything. Love M & M

Monique-Congratulations. Call me from Arizona. Love Maggie

Randa-Thanks for the memories there is still another year.

Mark, you are everything! Here is the personal you have been waiting for. You are what I have always been waiting for. I love you!

Tommy-I love you! May we have many more years together Happy 1st anniversary, Love always, Beth

Hey Guys remember: My baby can't sleep. What do you want to know everything?; We'll always have it; Hey ladies! MDA; Do a Blast! Cranka the tunes the Fix; Madonna, Michael Jackson, Big Chill, The Christmas Tree, What Happa? Fee Bee Beans, Leave the curling iron on! I love you all (Betty)

Dana From Wheeler: My guard is down, and I'm CRAZY about you! Thanks for everything, especially for reading the personals! Don't forget to make flight arrangements to LV! Love you! Linda

Sisters of AXO: You're the greatest!!! I'll miss you sooooo much next semester. Save room for me for spring! Love you, Pondy

Cheryl, Karen & Maureen: Thankx for a great year. Have a good summer, and a great Jr. year!! See you in '85 - I'll miss you. Love, Bounce

Collegian Pros Jim, Maureen, Cathy and Faye. Like always, you've kept this place running. We'd be lost without you. Thank you. Joel Peeeeety B. Jap so many memories . . . so little time. Love and friends forever John C.

Attention all graduates! Justin Ryan's is having a graduation party on Sunday May 20 at 8:00 p.m.! Super Beat the Clock prices on food and drink! Don't miss out on the biggest grad bash in town!

Alix It's been fun, exciting and very interesting. I hope we can always stay close, even if we do disagree about an awful lot. Love always, Joel

Lisa to the best roomate and an even better friend Happy Early Birthday! Love always, Stacey

John- Let's forget the past and make this summer a special one. I like you alot! Lisa

John Hubbe are you a turtle? You're the best big brother. Good luck! MJ

Sull-Don't ever forget about our plans for bermuda (I'll bring the ice cream) Congratulations on graduation - I'm very proud of you! All my love, Sull

Lorissa & Robyn from Kappa Kappa Gamma. I am really glad I met you both. I can't remember when I've had a better time in the R.R. Call me! We'll get together over the summer! Keep smiling! Luv, Dode

Carlos Enrique Felicidades. Te Extranaremos. Te Queremos mucho. Tus 2 roomates

Beth, Adam, MaryJane, Chad, Rick, John C., Densor, Wendy, and John B. Thanks for a great semester. Best wishes. Marie

Claudie & Hugh: Congratulations! I'll miss you! Love Lourdes

Hi Linda B. and Sue Lev-il Can we please stop this "Lucy" stuff? Who just wants to have fun? I'm sure we'll contiue to this summer. Love, Cynthia P.S. to Amy B. Here's to 1-Hi

Emile, I know you don't care, but I'm naming the baby after you

Hey Leonor-Only 4 more days for the illegal "visitor" from N.J. Happy 20th. We love ya! Seta, Lynette & Chris Dedda-Always remember who taught you everything you know!! You'd be nowhere without me. Thanks for being part of a great year. Love J.P.

Colleen, I really do love you, Stephen

Stephen, I'll miss you this summer. Robert. I love you, Colleen

Michael Ryan, I mean Riley. Here's your personal!

David HERE IT IS!! Thanks for the "subtle" hint. I just wanted to say these past two weeks have been excellent!!. . . More to come. hmmm, sounds exciting. Ginger

LCD: Tune in next semester for the further misadventures of Debbie and Lisa! Remember, there's more to life than vodka and sex - food perhaps? Thanks for being a pal, puttng up with me, etc. Love, your blatant roomie - DJS

To the biscuit lads-The professional bakers union has offered us a charter for next semester after officially recognizing our contribution to society let's get psyched! Miss you Josh, the biscuit lady.

Sean: Gotta paper to write, just came up for a book. Oh well, so much for work! Whens the spaghetti "dinner"? The past few weeks have been great, but whose bandanna was that? Love, Debbie

Eric and Brian: Don't you wish you were Irish? Guess who

To all my friends have a great summer! With Love, Backo

Heppy 20th B-Day Judy Love, the only one who's equivalent to a double scoop.

Dave, Happy Birthday! Thanks for ruining another surprise. It's been an "interesting" year. Thanks for living through it all. Here's to a great summer. Love, J.B. Hawker

Serah and Dree: Good luck next semester! Don't forget to come visit!!! Love, Vik

Lisa, Good luck and all that stuff, have an artsy future full of drugs, sex and sex, more sex. You'll be missed. Rita M.

Suzanne: Have a good summer!! I hope we like Baker! Love, your new roomate, Vicki

PAS Stockbridge will never be the same again. Neither will I. Good luck at Oak Hill. Love me.

To the Biscuit Lads (and Anne, the Biscuit Lass), and all honorary members- thanx for having fun with me, and helping make this the best year so far! It's been crazy in ways only we'll know about, but then again, who cares what anyone else thinks. Good luck to those of you who are staying, and to the rest of the world, watch out for those of us who are graduating! Josh

Y & E Thanks for everything! You've been the greatest friends, and you will be missed. Best of Luck. Love, Lesley

Collegian an staff: Briefly, good -buy and good luck to all of you. A special thaks to my advisers - let's promulgate Collegian success in the real world now. I'll miss you, Anya

Greg -don't look at me now when contemplating what being news editor does to you! I hereby leave you my unruly desk and hopefully the incentive to do the damn good job of which you're capable. See you in the fall! Anne

To all my friends who are staying, and leaving: Let's continue to do expensive drugs, do ridiculous things, and flaunt convention wisdom. Cheers, Biff Wellington.

Stockley— Think of some quotes this sumer--Best of luck Allyson, Tina--Always something different every game--I hate 'buoy'

Dave McCarthy congrats on your grad. It's been a log wait if anyone deserves to leave you do! The SGA, SAO, and UPC all thank you! Most of all the hungry people in the Third World thank you! Who else could spend $12,000 to raise ----? Luv ya, from Ron & Nancy

Have you heard, it's Lucy Lazetera week (Day No. 4) Lucy, she wants to have fun! Love Sue and Lin

Kate Mullin. . . Happy graduation! You've finally made it! Have a wonderful summer and a great time in Europe . . . this place won't be the same without you. I'll just you! Love always, Nancy Embryo- Here's your personal Jakcie O Madison, Meryl, Laura, Stinky, or whatever. Love ya, just quit complaining Waa Waa!!

T.S. I can't believe that we've really made it! Best of Luck! Love LLL

To Diana Meyer: Congratulations on graduating, on getting a great job, and on making it through UMass without taking it too seriously! We've had good times, but I hope to see you lots more out in the real world. You're a hot shit, and I love you very much. Your older brother Josh. P.S. see you at graduation!

A few fond farewells at the semester's end

By RUSS WHINNEM
Collegian Staff

The sportswiter has looked around and found that not only the day, but the semester has ended. The sportswriter has heard and seen many things over the past few months. One such are the goodbye's. Some have been local, others national. The sportswriter looks around again and thinks it is time to remember one more time. It seems the appropriate time.

SUGAR RAY

The fourth round knockdown came as much of a shock as his retirement announcement immediately after he beat Kevin Howard. But actually, if there was one boxer, who, after showing such unsharpness in a comeback bout, was to call it quits, don't you think it would be Sugar Ray. He knew and knew early that it wasn't there and decided that you don't go on with what you don't have. It was an intelligent decision by a classy fighter.

EDWIN GREEN

The bittersweet end came for Edwin on March fourth. The Cage gave him what he deserved with continual rousing ovations. He had given what he had for four seasons, with much of his rememberances being based on his slam dunks and blocked shots. By his senior year, there was no doubt who was the crowd favorite. Edwin had it hands down.

JOHN HEMPLE

This one came as a surprise. His sophomore year here was not one filled with joy. His transfer out opened him up for even more criticism than his faltered stats had. The escalation in criticism was probably unfair. People often tend to look at only the bad when someone makes a disappointing decision.

RED AUERBACH

The Redhead leaves his spot on the Celtics this year after five decades. Let no one dispute that this man leaves as the greatest General Manager anywhere in sports in modern time. Not to mention that he is indeed one of the greatest,if not the greatest coach ever in any sport. He will be sorely missed. But, at the same time, let no man doubt that he will not continue to have a hand, however small, in the Celtics.

ERNIE ROTH

The Grand Wizard of Wrestling. Says it all, doesn't it. He passed away this semester, and the wrestling world had lost a popular face. Hasn't everyone wondered at least once, what The Grand Wizard was like outside the ring?

PERHAPS THE OLYMPIC GAMES

It will be a dark summer. Politics are the game and athletes are the pawns. The Games are the most sacred of all sporting events. Four years or more of blood, sweat, and tears, only to be taken away from powers higher up. And doesn't it seem strange that an event that perhaps does the most to bring nations together is currently being crippled. The deep hope of the sportswriter is that things will change and the games can be rectified, saved. For this year though, the Gold will be tarnished. Hopefully, the polish to restore their shine won't be to hard to get.

funds being raised...

Rink still in future

By TOM KELLEY
Collegian Staff

Students at the University of Massachusetts may have a longer wait than they think before ice hockey becomes a reality on campus. In fact, most of us will probably be alumni.

It was alumni who in fact brought their support to the state legislature, which resulted in an appropriation of three million dollars as part of the Capital outlay budget signed by Governor Michael S. Dukakis at the beginning of the year for the planning and construction of a multi-sports facility including a skating rink.

John Riley, a 1978 graduate of UMass and Fran Guiliano, a 1959 grad, first came to David C. Bischoff, Dean of Physical Education, with a fund raising plan that would provide scholarships for hockey players in an effort to bring back the team that was folded in 1978 due to the lack of a rink on campus and lack of scholarships.They were told that there would be no team with no rink.

"So we went out and got them one," said Riley.

Riley and Guiliano, both former hockey players feel strongly about the fact that their former sport no longer exists at UMass and would like to see its revival.

"UMass was national champions in 1972 and now they don't even have a team," said Riley. "It broke my heart and it's and embarrassment to the University."

Riley is quick to cite that a rink would benefit the whole university with recreational skating and intramurals and Bischoff estimates that the rink would be in use eighteen hours a day. But according to the dean, actual construction will not begin for two and a half to three years. The process for getting the three million dollars out of the state coffers and into construction is a multi-faceted action.

It involves a plan to be presented to the Division of Capital Planning and Operations, a feasibility study, putting contracts out to bid and obtaining the money from the state. According to Bischoff each process takes time, but that the process is moving along. More definite plans, he said, will be available in the Fall.

Although both students and alumni would like to see a rink a lot sooner than four years from now it looks as though they will have to wait.

Riley asked for student support for the rink and said that "The students out there better raise a fuss if something doesn't happen by September in the way of definite progress."

But, as Field says, "Don't sharpen your skates."

The White Sox win ugly. We write ugly. Have a good summer all.

—The Boss

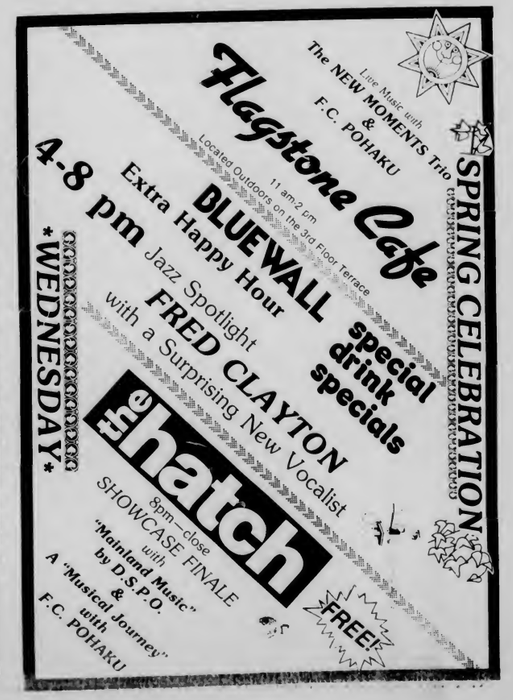
★ baseball

Continued from page 28

After Dartmouth tied it in the third, the Minutemen moved out to a 3-1 advantage on a bases loaded single by Steve Messina, who was later ejected for disputing a call at home in the fifth. Dartmouth cut the deficit to two in the sixth on single by Karol (3-for-3) to centerfield.

MINUTEMAN MEMOS: Coach Dick Bequist heads a six man selection committee for the NCAA baseball tournament, which concludes with the College World Series June 1-5. The committee conducts conference calls every Monday and will make their final selctions for the 36-team field on May 21. 25 of the berths go to the conference champions. So far, Grambling, Lamar, Appalachian St., and North Carolina have all qualified. The regionals begin May 24 and 25. Eight teams go to Omaha for the World Series.

ATTENTION ATHLETES



The Wellfleet Beachcomber needs doorperson Call (617) 349-6055 or 3696 or write POB 1082 Wellfleet, MA 02667

MASS APPROVED INSPECTION STATION
RADIAL TIRES
P155/80R13 (whitewall diam)
$32.00
includes mounting plus MA State Tax
North Amherst Tire & Auto Center
Full Service Tire Store
78 Sunderland Rd
No Amherst, MA
Across from Watrobas Store
549-4704

CAR STEREO PACKAGE
$99
AM/FM Car Cassette and your choice of any pair of car speakers
Wide selection of Co-Axials, Tri-Axials, 4 and 5-way Speakers ranging from 20 to 300 watts
THEO'S AUDIO
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, Mass. (413) 586-9855

AmHERST CINEMA
DOUBLE FEATURE $2.50
Wednesday Only! May 16th
Sneak Preview! All of Me 7:00
starring
Steve Martin & Lily Tomlin
Tuesday to Saturday
May 17-19
The Caine Mutiny 7:00
Dr Strange Love 9:10
DOWNTOWN AMHERST

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening telephone sales for Fine Arts Center series subscription. Approx. 20 hrs. per week from June 4 -July 13. Work study preferred. UMass students only. Descriptions and applications available from Dave, 207 Hasbrouck thru Wed. May 16. call 545-0190.

Sports

Gazelles in second straight final four

Face undefeated Maryland in semis

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

Senior co-captains Carol Progulske and Linda Haytayan have been there before. They were both members of the 1982 National championship team and both were veterans of last year's Final Four Gazelle squad that finished fourth.

Both thought that returning to the Final Four would be an almost unattainable task. Both are happy that they were wrong.

The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team returns to the Final Four for the second consecutive year as they take on top-ranked Maryland in the semi-finals Saturday at 3 p.m. at Boston University.

"I definitely thought the goal of the Final Four was unattainable at the start of the season," Progulske said. "That's what makes it so rewarding to be there. It's better than the other ones."

UMass, after posting a 6-4 regular season, finished second at the ECAC championships, losing to UNH, 8-4. But the tenth ranked Gazelles were still chosen to play in the NCAA tournament. UMass topped Yale 6-5 in overtime and nipped fourth seeded Harvard 5-4 on a Pam Moryl goal with 1:07 left in the game.

"I thought it would be a rebuilding year," Haytayan said. "But we weren't lucky. We deserved and earned what we got."

The Gazelles have a tall task facing Maryland, 15-0-1 on the year. The winner of that game faces the Temple-Delaware winner Sunday at 5 p.m.

"We have a chance, there is no doubt," interim coach Polly Keener said. "We will have to be on our toes and play our very best. Maryland is a real strong team."

Massachusetts wants to exploit their strengths to topple the Terapins. "Defensivily," Progulske said, "mainly we have to slow down Maryland and set up in our zone. We feel very comfortable in our zone and it's very difficult to penetrate.

Goalie Debbie DeJesus, who is averaging 10.1 saves a game has been peaking, according to Progulske. DeJesus has been making some big saves in the two NCAA playoff games.

Offensivily, on paper, it looks like a two man atack and if you shut down Moryl (46 goals, 15 assists, 61 points) and Haytayan (30 goals, 15 assists, 45 points) you shut down UMass. Not quite.

"It takes the entire team to set up," Keener said. "All of the attack has the ability to score." Sue Kosloski has 10 goals, 13 points, Mary Scott 8 goals, 10 points and Bunny Forbes, who scored the winning goal against Yale, has eight goals and 10 points.

"We have to use everybody and move the ball around," Haytayan said. "The attack has to be confident."

Pam Hixon, who has been on sabbatical coaching the US field hockey team will rejoin the team today and help the team through the Final Four at BU.

So Massachusetts is the lone New England representative in the Final Four. "It's a whole new season," Haytayan said. "Once you get to the Final Four, there are four exceptional teams. It all depends on whose ready and what team comes together."

Collegian photo by Brian Gonye

TAKE THAT!—Linda Haytayan, right, knocks the ball away from a New Hampshire player in a game earlier this season. The Minutewomen head to Boston to face Maryland in the Final Tour of women's Lacrosse Saturday. The Gazelles are tenth ranked in the nation.

Dukes players charged

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Four Duquesne University basketball players, including a Lynn, Mass., student and leading scorer Emmett Sellers, were arraigned Tuesday on charges of raping a business school student, authorities said.

Sellers, 20, a sophomore guard from Newark, N.J., was charged with rape, involuntary deviate sexual intercourse, simple assault and terroristic threats, said university spokesman Kenneth Service.

Also charged with the same offenses were Greg Harrison, 18, of Lynn; Ron Stevenson, 19, of Pittsburgh; and Eric Compton, 18, of Long Beach, N.Y. All three are freshmen.

Sellers, Stevenson and Harrison were three of the Dukes' four leading scorers this past season, when the predominantly underclassman team finished with a 10-18 record in the Atlantic 10.

The four were arraigned late Tuesday morning before Pittsburgh Magistrate Donna Jo McDaniels and released on a nominal bond. A hearing date was set for May 25.

Service said the four were arrested by campus police and charged with raping an 18-year-old student at Wilma Boyd Career Schools who was living on Duquesne's campus. The woman allegedly was assaulted in a dormitory, an all-male facility, he said.

The woman told police she was searching for a friend at around 2:30 a.m. Tuesday when she encountered a man who pushed her into a dormitory room, Service said. She told police the man and three others performed "various sexual acts" with her, he said.

The woman was treated and released from a nearby hospital, according to Service.

The four were attending summer school, which began this week, Service said. Each lived at St. Martin's Dormitory.

Service said the campus was in a state of "dismay, shock, surprise."

"It's really a very unfortunate incident. Everybody's deeply concerned about it and we want to make sure the right thing is done and the rights of everyone are respected," he said.

Service said the school planned to announce disciplinary action by the end of the day.

Minutemen drop season finale, as Comeau squeezes in a record

By SCOTT HOOD
Collegian Staff

It was inevitable it would end this way. For openers there was the lousy weather, which for the upteenth time this season recked havoc on the University of Massachusetts baseball team, forcing yesterday's scheduled doubleheader with Dartmouth to be reduced to a single regulation nine-inning contest. And then there was the same which saw the Big Green, storm back from a 4-1 defecit in the sixth, to score once in the tenth to nip UMass, 6-5.

But twas' not all bad news for the Minutemen. Todd Comeau, given new life when Dartmouth rallied for three runs in the eighth to seize a 5-4 lead, drilled a line drive single up the middle in the ninth for his 55th hit of 1984, breaking Doug Welene's 1979 record by one. Next for Comeau, who fell one double short of tying the Minutemen record with 12, is Mike McEvilly's career hit record of 157, set from 1977-80. Prior to his historic hit, Comeau was 0 for 4 with two flyouts, a popup, and a fielder's choice.

For the rest of the Minutemen, however, the final result can only be described as disappointing. But they should be used to this kind of defeat as it was their fourth high-scoring, one-run defeat in three weeks.

Tony Presnal, pitching well in his final start for UM, sailed into the eighth with a 4-2 lead. That quickly disappeared as the Lavery connection (brothers Pat and Jim from Arlington, Mass.) did the honors. Pat singled sharply before Jim drove Presnal downtown to right to knot the score. After an out, Steve Karol walked and stole second, then scored the go-ahead run on a Scott Tuitt single.

The Minutemen rallied with two outs in their half of the eighth to tie it, 5-5. Tom Fabian and Sean Flint each rapped singles to put men on first and second. Jack Bloise then bounced to second baseman Ray Bascio, who let the ball roll between his legs into centerfield as Fabian scored. Jon Martin, who pinch-ran for Flint, was gunned down trying for third.

Jeff Jensen, who relieved Presnal in the eighth, walked the first two Big Green batters on eight pitches to open the tenth. After throwing his ninth straight ball to Todd Twachtmann, Jensen was lifted for Mat Suboez, who seconds later was ripped for a game-winning double by Karol. UM unreatened in the bottom hall, getting Todd Ezold to third with two outs, but Jeff Cimini, pinchhitting for Martin, bounced to second to end the game.

UMass grabbed a quick 1-0 lead in the first on a run-scoring single by Angelo Salustri.

Continued on page 27

A few sporting thoughts

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

. . .The Red Sox? Are you serious?. . .the shortstops have as much power as an SGA resolution. . .

Not that it really matters but...

Larry Bird is the MVP, by far, sorry Bernard.

The Oilers are only kidding themselves if they think they have a chance against the Islanders. Two goals in two games? C'mon.

UMass basketball is going to be a lot better than many people think next season. They have .500 potential but are still a good big man away from contention in the Atlantic 10.

The Minuteman baseball team swept New Hampshire, split with Maine and UConn and swept Providence. All four of these teams are competing for a NCAA bid this weekend in the ECAC tourney. Maybe we should bag the A-10...

Detroit, if they go just .500 the rest of the year, will win close to 96 games. The race is over, unless the Tigers fall to injuries and Baltimore heats up.

The Red Sox? Are you serious. Boggs has two RBIs, the shortstops have as much power as an SGA resolution, the righthanded pitching is a joke, and Jim Rice isn't coming through.

After a slow start Atlanta's Dale Murphy is heating it up, first in the National League in homers (9), and rising in RBIs. Still, Ted Turner is scratching his head over Phil (6-1) Neikro.

Tell with a straight face the Knicks have a good bench. Louis Orr, Ernie Grunfeld, Ray "You mean it's a game?" Williams, and Trent Tucker. The Knicks also need a power forward and he's not named Truck Robinson.

Bye the way, ha ha ha New Yorkers. Ha ha ha. You should have to declare you idolize Red Aurbach, imitate Larry Bird in your driveway, and love the Celts to get in to UMass. Got to CCNY or something.

Kinda lost in the shuffle has been UMass women's lax. Saturday they play in the Final Four against a great Maryland team. Let's get one national champ this year anyway. Go get 'em.

Thanks Gerry, Anne, Bill, Joel and the rest of the Collegian crew. My roomate Al "Mr. Georgetown" Hope, Joe, Dan, Cy Allard and especially Jill for a great first year here.

Go get the Bucks and then the Lakers boys, no apologies to Mike Barnicle for this column, and yes, someday I will go to Oregon and it isn't to chop wood.

The Massachusetts Daily

Collegian

NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

Volume CXIX, Issue 75 © UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST (545-3500) © Sunday, May 27, 1984

Students need to use skills to fight for peace

When today's graduating class arrived on the campus in the first week of September 1980, we were in the middle of an election year and the newspapers were reporting what candidates Reagan, Carter, and Anderson had had to say in their Labor Day speeches.

But the newspapers were also following some other big stories, too. One of these was the political unrest in Poland and the fate of the trade unions there. And the other was the negotiations to free the American hostages in Iran. By the end of that month, Iran and its neighbor Iraq were at war. At the same time, hidden away in the inside pages, there was a brief story about the problems of El Salvador.

Joseph Duffey

As students returned to Amherst in later years, these foreign countries were still in the news. In September 1981, for example, our government was supporting the government of El Salvador against rebel groups, and Solidarity was calling for free elections in Poland. By September 1982, Iran and Iraq were spending one billion dollars a month to fight each other. El Salvador was in turmoil, and Beirut was being evacuated because of the conflicts in Lebanon.

A year later, when these graduates came back for their senior year, there were battles in the streets of Beirut, the U.S. envoy was meeting with the rebels in El Salvador, and the war between Iran and Iraq continued even more bitterly than before.

Arms Buildup Continues

While war and dissension have raged in so many areas of the world, our own government, as well as that of the Soviet Union, has continued to build up arms. In particular, both countries have devised ever more powerful nuclear weapons and ever more ingenious ways to use them.

To pay for our share of these weapons the 1982 budget proposed spending $1.6 trillion for military purposes over the following five years. This is a sum so large that it is hard for us to visualize. But if we had begun spending $1 million a day from the moment Christ was born, and had continued at that rate, we still would not have spent half of that $1.6 trillion.

Obviously, similar sums of money are being spent in the Soviet Union, and now many other countries also commit substantial resources to join the nuclear club. All of this money could be better spent. Here in America, one person in seven lives below the poverty threshold. The costs of education increase but federal funds to help pay for it don't. We have the best medical facilities in the world, yet many diseases are still incurable.

And in other countries, millions suffer from hunger and disease. During every minute of 1984, 30 children will die for want of food or medicine; yet every minute the world's military budget will use $1.3 million for weapons and other supplies.

Public Concern a Hopeful Sign

This picture is grim. Clearly we must change it. Fortunately, the increasing public concern about nuclear weapons during the years I have been reviewing is a hopeful sign. And one of the most valuable recent publications is the 1983 pastoral letter of the Catholic bishops.

This letter, called The Challenge of Peace, makes clear that no task is more essential than establishing peace in our time. The bishops know that there are times when countries must go to war in order to defend themselves against enemies. But any such war must be limited to defense and it should not threaten the lives of whole populations.

The Challenge of Peace

Nothing can be more immoral than such calculated destruction of ourselves and our world. We must turn from preparing for this possibility. We must turn to acts of calculated creation. Most important, we must take up the challenge of peace with the energy and ingenuity we have brought to the challenge of war. We must say "no" to an arms race that robs the poor and needy, and "no" to the moral danger of weapons which put before us the indefensible choices of constant terror or surrender.

To say "no" we will need to summon all our moral courage and technical means. Happily, the technical means to pursue peace are available, and those who are graduating today have learned some of them and some of the ways to use them.

Constructive Uses of Knowledge

New graduates who have studied the social sciences know about the ways to change opinions and negotiate the many political, economic, and social agreements that will be necessary if we are to change our course of action.

Those who have studied science and technology have skills urgently needed if we are to make arms treaties that are effective and verifiable. Moreover, they know the power of radioactivity and so they make the effects of nuclear war clear to those who doubt its devastation.

Those who are trained in languages can talk to people of other nations and convince them of our commitment to peace. Those who have studied other of the humanities can explore and help us to understand the historical, philosophical, and spiritual causes of our condition.

And the skills of those who graduate with professional qualifications in agriculture and industry are essential if we are to make good use of all our resources for peaceful purposes. But while we have the technical means to work for peace, we shall not be able to do so without moral courage. So much of our wealth and so many of our leaders are committed to the present arms policy that change will be neither easy nor quick.

The Courage to Say No

Moral courage will be necessary to counter powerful opposition from those who believe that nuclear arms contribute to our safety. And moral courage will also be necessary to carry on in the face of the setbacks that are certain to occur.

Often, we think of moral courage as the quality of heroes and heroines. We think of writers and scientists who have risked their careers to tell the truth, or of Martin Luther King who had the moral courage to continue his campaign for civil rights, and of Mother Theresa, who devotes her life to serve the dying.

Yet, inspiring as these people are, we should remember that moral courage is a daily virtue, too. All of us know of people who have sacrificed their immediate interests for the sake of their beliefs.

This sort of daily commitment to unselfish goals is essential if we are to take up the challenge of peace. And we must take up this challenge because, as the bishops remind us in their letter, it is no longer an optional commitment.

Peace Is The Only Option

Peace is the ancient goal which has long eluded us, but if we do not now work for peace on Earth we are likely to have no Earth at all. Peace is no longer merely the absence of war; it is the condition of our survival. We must, then, wage peace with conviction and commitment. But because opinions will vary about how peace is best achieved, we must work for it with civility and charity, also.

The challenge of peace is clearly a demanding task. But no graduating class has ever had a more inspiring or essential goal.

Dr. Joseph Duffey is the chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

As our class enters the world

To us, the class of 1984, commencement means much more than mere graduation from a university. It is, according to Webster's dictionary, the act or time of a beginning. It means progress, a transcendental step from one realm of society to another. And with this change comes a restructuring of our lives, and a whole new set of freedoms and responsibilities.

To put our newly expanded horizons in perspective, we must take time out to reflect on where we have been, how we have gotten to where we are today, and how our past and present will help to determine where we are going.

Josh Meyer

While we see this first job or post-graduation period as a monumental break with a secure and enjoyable past, we must also see it as a time of opportunity. This notion of breaking with the past must be rejected, because we must never stop being students. If there is one universal achievement of everyone graduating here today, it is our ability to educate ourselves, remain aware and look toward the future with the willful determination to establish our own course of action.

But to understand our commencement and our future, we need to assess the worth and meaning of our college careers. These past four (or five) years have been perhaps the most influential and formative years we have experienced so far. When we entered UMass, many people tried to make our transition into college easier. Everyone gave us their version of what to expect. But they could not have prepared us for what lay ahead. That was something we had to experience for ourselves, with the help of those around us. Our first year was a rite of passage experienced by each of us, yet it was different for every one of us. Our first collective learning experience was probably the shock of being in an alien place, with thousands of others in the same predicament.

If there is one universal achievement of everyone graduating here today, it is our ability to educate ourselves, remain aware, and look toward the future with the willful determination to establish our own course of action.

In that first year we learned a great deal. We learned to survive in an impersonal place, where no one was going to take us by the hand and tell us what to do. We were given as much freedom and lack of supervision as we could handle, and then some more. Along with this freedom came added responsiblity both to live independently and to play an active role in our own educations.

We have not received a spoon-fed education, rather, we have learned to educate ourselves. We have learned how to pick from thousands of courses and come up with a coherent curriculum (most of the time). We've earned the satisfaction of succeeding in a task or challenge we have set for ourselves. Many of us have had a semester where nothing seemed to go right; our courses were oversubscribed, or too overbearing or irrelevant, or we might have faced a sudden withdrawal from school due to an oversight like an unpaid dental bill. And we've come through all the stronger for it. Through adversity comes the strength of character which typifies the UMass graduate.

We have learned that education means to question conventional wisdom, no to memorize facts and digest them. We have learned that education occurs perhaps more outside the classroom than in it. We have tapped into the wealth of knowledge, culture, arts and sciences that make this a great and thriving university, and we have emerged from the process more inquisitive, and appreciative of things new and different.

With graduation comes an acute awareness of the transient nature of college. Semester and summer breaks, changes of address and social settings, and new friends and opportunities had always been part of the experience, but things seemed so much more precious to us in our senior year. They were not taken for granted anymore. But the realization that we were soon leaving only heightened our mixed feelings of anticipation, anxiety, confusion and even fear. A stage of inner conflict and intense re-examination of our priorities became epidemic. We looked back on our time spent here, to see if it was spent wisely.

Have we been successful in our pursuits? Did we achieve our goals? Did we study enough? Or too much? Did we take advantage of all the resources available to us?

We must not forget that to isolate ourselves, and respond passively to change, is to risk having our lives governed by forces outside of our control. We cannot allow this to happen. We must take action ourselves, if we are to determine our individual and collective fate.

Did we engage in worthwile extracurricular activities, like lobbying against the rising cost of public higher education or fighting for a de-escalation of the nuclear arms buildup? And what about fun? Did we have enough of it? The answers to these and many other questions remain to be seen.

But today is not just a day for retrospection. We look now to the future, and what it holds for us. As we hopefully enter the work force, we will ask ourselves another set of questions. Will we continue to strive for knowledge and the enrichment that comes from experience? Our time and committments will be more rigidly structured, and we won't have as much free time. But will we continue to educate and inform ourselves, and work to improve ourselves and that which is around us? Granted, we will expend much energy on our careers, but will we also defend our ideals, and strike out against injustice and oppression? Or will complacency prioritize our lives?

George Orwell, commenting on the dual problem of encroaching totalitarianism, and the passivity of man said in 1943 that, "We underrate the danger of this kind of thing, because our traditions and our past security have given us a sentimental belief that it all comes out right in the end and the thing you most fear never really happens."

Well, this is not true anymore. Our past security has been threatened too many times for us to be complacent. Those things we fear most are lurking right around the corner. The belief or the hope that good invariably triumphs over evil breeds passivity and a false sense of security, and we cannot afford that. We must not forget that to isolate ourselves, and respond passively to change is to risk having our lives governed by forces outside our control. We cannot allow this to happen. We must take action ourselves if we are to determine our individual and collective fate.

Collegian Photo by Tom Kudla

THE LONG ROAD TO SUCCESS--The Class of '84 heads out today to the real world. Keep your chins up, kids, it could get ugly out there.

Sowhat does this mean for us, the class of 1984? It means we must take this awareness, education and activism with us when we leave and apply it to all that we do in our lives. At this university we have acquired the wisdom and strength of character to enable us to contribute greatly to society, not just within our chosen fields, but as well-rounded citizens. The future of our country and the world needs us, and we are ready and able to meet the challenge. We may not change the course of history by ourselves, but we do have the moral responsibility to try.

Josh Meyer is the Collegian's graduating editorial editor and this year's student commencement speaker.

Graduation Issue Staff

Graduation Editor: Bill Wall
Assignments: Ken Bazinet
Production: Will Hopkins, James P. Shanahan
Typesetting: Jane Hirshberg, Dode Levenson, Will Hopkins
Comics: Mark Rollins, Steve Anderson
Special Thanks to: Ralph Whitehead, Joel Myerson, Anne McCrory, Jim Ristuben, Mark Roden, Gerry DeSimas and Faye Whitney-Lussier

TOP-RATED

AR28 Boston Acoustics A-70

$210 Pair $252 Pair

Start at the top when you shop for speakers. Recently, the AR28B and the Boston Acoustics A-70 were given the highest rating by a well-known consumer publication. Hear them both at Sound & Music.

Sound & Music

90-92 King St. (Rte 5), Northampton • Mon-Sat 10-5:30, Thu 'til 9
VISA, MasterCard, American Express • Financing Available • 584-9547

DELANO'S

Congratulations Class of 1984

Delano's is a U-Mass Tradition Please stop by and say Hello!

Enjoy our delicious sandwiches, omelets and burger's or try our salads, soups and chowders.

For the real hungry we offer full course meals from steaks, chicken and pasta

Dress Casual Non-Smoking Section
Full Liquor All Major Credit Cards

57 No. Pleasant St. across from the Fire Station 253-5141
reservations not necessary

UMass strategic vision: quality in information age

To leave the campus today isn't to end your relationship to the University of Massachusetts but is simply to alter it by exchanging your role as student for your equally vital role as an alumnus.

As a graduate, you can continue to play a critical role in the University's life, especially in its future. So let me walk through a few of the major elements in the University's strategy for the five years to come. I hope this will equip you to begin thinking about the basis for your own involvement in the University's enterprise.

David C. Knapp

The University's public mandate for these lst 20 years has been expressed chiefly in quantitative terms simply because the problem the University was asked to solve was quantitative: namely, to supply affordable university opportunities to the large number of qualified young people who reached college age in the sixties and seventies.

For this reason, the University's success in these years, beyond its proven academic stature, was gauged largely by such quantitative measures as the number of programs, the number of students, the number of our graduates.

For the next five years, however, the University's objectives will be chiefly qualitative. Precisely how we use our resources will drive our thinking. Thus, the University's definition and distinction are likely to advance significantly.

The signs of the University's current surge in quality are easily seen: growing support for our research, highly favorable national evaluations of our graduate programs, rising support for the University's unique role as the only comprehensive graduate research institution in the state, the Medical Center's standing as one of the finest schools of its generation; and such signs of faculty distinction as Guggenheim and Rockefeller fellowships, Fulbright professorships,and post-doctoral awards by the National Endowment for the arts, the National endowment for the Humanities, and the National Science Foundation.

More than anything else, though, the University's qualitative emphasis responds to the major condition of life in this state at this time: namely, the emergence of the information society.

For many of us, this society is now a workday reality. Within our culture, there is a stronger emphasis on the quality of life as well as on material security. Within our public life, there is a new sense of citizenship, an outgrowth of the will and ability of more people to gather their own evidence and make their own judgments.

Once of the major changes lies in the way people assign value to what they do and what they experience.

The industrial society has placed a premium on quantity—on size and volume, concentration and economies of scale. Indeed, its definition of quantity itself was a quantitative one: bigger is better. This definition has affected the economy, the culture, and the policy. To a degree, the expansion of the University in these past 20 years has fit this theory of value.

The information society, however, prompts us to place a higher premium on quality — on originality, distinctiveness, uniqueness, the new, the different, the enriched and improved. It also stresses utility, accuracy, intelligence in design and soundness in purpose.

Through a qualitative strategy, the University will pursue three major goals:

First, we will continue to stress quality in all of our work, especially in our academic programs of research, scholarship and teaching.

Second, as we do so, we will address the conditions of the shift to an information society. This change creates new jobs, new opportunities, new forms of wealth, and new ways of doing things. However, it also erodes older jobs, older opportunities, and older ways of doing things. Thus, the emergence of the information society—in our culture and polity as well as our economy—is both a creative and destructive force.

Consequently, the University's obligation is to enable the Commonwealth's citizens to negotiate this transition on humane, effective, and optimistic terms.

Third, the University will work to foster the use of three vital resources: knowledge, intelligence, and strategic vision. These are classsic strengths, but they also hold particular value for the University and for the Commonwealth. The University is particularly suited to foster and use these resources, because they correspond so closely to the University's traditional missions of research, teaching, and public service.

You've seen the life of the University at close hand. In the future, you will see it at a slight distance. As you move into the community, I hope you will still be able to regard the University, know what it works to stand for, and shape ways to involve yourself in what we're doing. I am also eager to know what you think of the course we are charting.

David C. Knapp is the president of the University of Massachusetts.

Collegian file photo

TAKING THE WIDE VIEW — As we look beyond the campus to our future, let us not forget the times that made UMass great.

The learning doesn't stop here

Just a few years ago, commencement day used to mark a sharp break in our graduates' experience. They put school and formal learning behind them. They stepped into the life and work that stretched before them. They left one world. They entered a new and different one.

Today, this old pattern no longer holds. Learning and working are no longer separate. Learning and living no longer belong to different worlds. Once distinct, these elements in our experience have begun to flow together.

Michael Dukakis

No longer does education begin and end at the edge of the campus. More than ever before, the community extends into the University. Through cooperatives and partnerships, collaboratives and learning exchanges, through new electronic networks and the magic of the computer.

Consequently, all of us must be teachers today. All of us are students as well, today and tomorrow.

We must continue to teach. We must continue to learn. And we must work together to do the things that make teaching and learning and the creation of knowledge possible.

So I'm asking you to regard this day as an opportunity to renew your commitment to learning.

Pleast don't use this day merely to put school behind you, but use it to put a lifelong commitment to learning ahead of you.

Remember, something important has changed in the chemistry of our popular support for education. The nation has posed a challenge to our educators to improve the quality of the American learning experience. University presidents, corporate executives, elected officials, the leaders of the professions, the civil rights movement, the women's movement, the labor movement - all have joined in this challenge. And these same forces are working to meet it.

But they cannot do it without you. You are closer to the schools and universities than anyone else. You are closer to the learning experience. You are closer to the future. You are the future.

As Governor, I want to match this challenge with an invitation to you. I want you to take what you've learned here at the University of Massachusetts and put it to work here in our home state.

I want to keep you involved in education. Take a course. Offer to speak to the class of a favorite high school teacher or return here to speak to the class of a favorite professor. Offer to help with a class project or get involved in a student's field work. Serve as a tutor or a mentor for a student at a high school or college near your home or office. Help a student a few years from now to do what you're trying to do this week: make sense of a complex and challenging job market.

Run for the school committee or help a friend or a neighbor to do so. Go to the school committee meetings, or the meetings of the University's Board of Trustees. Go back to school - return here for a day, for a weekend. Serve this University in the future as an active and well-informed alumnus. The University alumni enjoy a growing reputation in this state. Share in this reputation and help to improve it even more.

I'm sure you've got the idea: To be a citizen of the future, you have got to carry your own education portfolio.

If we can do this, then we can meet the two vital challenges that flow from education: the challenge of economic growth, the challenge of our quality-of-life.

Somehow, and I won't pretend to know precisely how it happens, we have two dynamic conditions in Massachusetts that drive each other and feed on each other.

One is the remarkable appeal of the quality of our life. Our land. Our water. Our ideas. Our values. Our traditions. Our spirit of knowledge and curiosity. The richness of our culture.

The other is our remarkable record of economic growth in the last 10 years, as our state has literally remade the face and direction of the American economy.

One thing I do know: Where economic growth and quality-of-life come together with the greatest force is in education.

Education enriches us all. Its riches are spiritual. Its riches are material. And these forms of wealth sustain each other.

What we all want and need in this state is a chance to work and create and achieve. What we all want is the time and capacity to dream. What we all want to keep alive throughout our lives is what you now feel today: the sense of possibility.

So, as we say on this day, commence. Or, as you'd put it in the classes and coffee shops of UMass, Go for it!

Michael Dukakis is the Governor of Massachusetts.

The struggle continues on for an affordable education

Today marks the end of one of the most enjoyable chapters in our lives, and for many of us it is a relief in that we are through with the struggle of paying the ever-rising tuition and fee expenses, albeit thousands of dollars in debt.

But for those who come after us, it will be all the harder to make ends meet each semester, as tuition spirals upward and financial aid decreases to minimal levels. The cost of attending this "public" university has grown appreciably each year we have been here, concurrently with the Reagan Administration's onslaught against public higher education and financial aid. Is this a harbinger of things to come as public universities turn away the very people they are created to serve? A university is supposed to be a marketplace of ideas, but the time is rapidly approaching when education will only be available to the highest bidder.

Bill Wall

Undeniably, this university is in dire need of financial resources to maintain and improve its physical and intellectual assets. But the question comes down to who should pay for a public university, the state or the students. If one feels students should "pull their own weight" and should refrain from taking government "handouts", then tuition is too low. But if one believes that the state benefits from possessing a well-educated populace, that philosophy should be reflected in efforts to keep this a truly public university. If access is effectively denied because of economic reasons, we are penalizing those who could most benefit from a college education and ultimately desire to better their existence.

It is often said that students are not here to get an education, that idle pursuits are their raison d'etre. Therefore, the cost should be raised because then only those who genuinely want a college education will make the effort to pay for it. But how beneficial is it to a student's academic development for he or she to interrupt it in order to earn money? What good comes of missing classes and study time because of a part-time job needed to help pay the bills? Too often observers call for economic restrictions because of a perceived notion that students are wasting everyone's time and money. Tightening up of academic requirements would do a far better job of eliminating those who are not serious about their education than by just raising the price for all.

We who are graduating must do our part to ensure this school remains public despite those who would close the door if your daddy's wallet is not up to par. The University of Massachusetts can and should compete with the Boston Universities and Holy Crosses of the world. But let us not equate academic excellence with a school's price tag. If the state adequately performs its designated role as supporter of its main public university, the future will be bright for this potentially great campus. But if the state abdicates its responsibility, the University must look either to its students for funds, with the attendant damage to access for lower-income students, or become relegated to a second-class status. We must challenge those who would deny this school its position as a premier public university, and we must persuade those who have the power to continue improving it to do so. If not you, who?

The recent economic health of this state is unparalleled around the country and this university has done its part in supplying the brainpower so vital to its continuance. Clearly, the state has a vested interest in seeing the University remain top-notch, and thus is obligated to finance that goal. Raising tuition and fees is not the way to assure continued improvement in the life of the University.

We graduates have seen the decline in the availability of financial aid resources. Promises to match tuition increases with more financial aid are ludicrous when one considers the millions of dollars in unmet financial need on the Amherst campus alone. Thus it is up to us to work with others to ensure that the place we were graduated from does not become an enclave of the privileged, but a place where those with aspirations for a quality education are welcome. The challenge is clear and we must not ignore it.

Bill Wall is the Collegian's graduating managing editor.

Activism lives on at the University

Rallies, demonstrations, scathing editorials, counter-demonstrations - we've seen them all here at UMass.

Some think student activism is dead, here and elsewhere. They may be partially correct— there is not as much blind adversity to the "establishment" as there was in the Sixties. Things seem to be getting worse on campus and on a national level. A local resurgence of conservatism and emphasis on education for employment's sake, and outside our sheltered world, an escalation of the nuclear arms race. Things are getting more complex and harder to explain. But there are things being done about it.

Student activism has indeed taken a turn, probably for the better. We are now working to reform the system, not curse it from outside its walls. Yes, the Nuclear Freeze rally, the Co-ed bathroom rally, and the Grenada rally and counterdemonstration will be remembered as examples of activism on campus. But most of the work is done behind the scenes. Students are doing more — organizing activist groups, lobbying the Statehouse for such things as more accessible, better quality public higher education, and establishing discussion groups in order to better understand our world and the role we as students play in it.

Student activism at UMass is alive and well. It exemplifies students willing to take an active role in shaping their futures. We have become a force to be reckoned with.

—Josh Meyer

Collegian Photo by David P. Deuber

Jesse Jackson speaking at the Fine Arts Center last February. A majority of this year's Democratic presidential aspirants spoke at the University this year.

Seniors receive alumni grant

As a reward for academic excellence, 60 University of Massachusetts students recently received $600 Alumni Scholarships to help them pay for their senior year.

The scholarships are awarded yearly from money donated by UMass alumni. Prospective recipients must have junior status (at least 60 credits) in a four-year undergraduate program and a grade point average of 3.5 or higher.

Jon Hite, director of alumni affairs, said last week that this program started nine years ago, when "almost all financial aid was need-based. The alumni board felt it was a good idea to create a scholarship fund that was merit-based on nothing but a student's academic performance."

Since then, Hite said, 425 students have received alumni scholarships totaling $225,000.

Scholarship money comes from general alumni contributions, those not restricted by donors to a specific purpose, e.g. financing a certain department or a building, and increasingly from donations intended for scholarships, he said.

In soliciting contributions, "the University is concentrating to a large degree on its younger alumni," whose college experience is still fresh in their memory, Hite said.

Ian Polumbaum is a Collegian staff member.

FUNNYBONES

1/2 BARREL DRAUGHT		SCHNAPPS
Miller	.90	Doc McGillicuddys	1.25
Strohs	.90	Peppermint	1.00
Heineken	1.25	Apple	1.00

BOTTLED BEER		SPECIALTY SHOTS
Bud	1.25	Mudslide	1.50
Miller	1.25	Miles of Smiles	1.50
Lite	1.25	Apple Pie	1.50
Michelob	1.40	Jellybeans	1.50
Becks	1.75	"Hot Shots"	1.50

MOST VODKA, GIN, RUM, TEQUILA DRINKS	1.50
Alabama Slammer	1.75	Martini	1.50
White Russian	1.75	Manhattan	1.50
Toasted Almond	1.75	Bloody Mary	1.50
Melon Ball	1.75	Old Fashioned	1.50

MOST CALL BRANDS 1.65 - 1.85 JUST ASK!

FUNNYBONES
is open at 11:00am for lunch and cocktails

Call for Entertainment Schedule
ALL SUMMER LONG
across from Mt. Farms Mall, Hadley

OCEAN PACIFIC

Men's & Women's
O.P. Sportswear

swimsuits, hawaiian shirts, hats, pants, shorts, and much more

Saturday Clothes

Open Mon - Sat 10-6 Sun 12 - 5

266 N. Pleasant St. 253-9729

Merona Sport.

CHONA MEN

Merona

New at Chona Men.

So you think you are educated... Think again!

Kevin DeLuca

An old joke states that B.S., M.S., and P.H.D. stand for Bull Shit, More Shit, Piled Higher and Deeper. Unfortunately, that joke has a lot more truth to it than the graduating seniors would like to admit. After spending four years and thousands of dollars they would like to think they are educated. One wishes that were so.

The University of Massachusetts does a fine job turning out engineers, journalists, historians, chemists, etc...but it does not turn out thinking, creative, adaptable, open-minded, whole people who are enthusiastic about learning.

The qualities utilized in elementary school are the ability to memorize information for tests, the ability to realize what the teacher wants and regurgitate it in papers, the ability to look at the world and see it in artificial distinctions, and the ability to outcompete one's fellow students. UMass continues to reward people with those qualities.

Large lectures taught from a textbook and graded by multiple-choice tests demand nothing more from the student than a memorization of the text the night before the test.

Too many professors think of themselves as omniscient in their subject of expertise. They teach their courses as if objective facts really existed and, of course, their views happen to coincide with the "facts". It is actually quite amusing to have a teacher of English who teaches one interpretation of a text as being "right". Unfortunately, these self-appointed possessors of truth only teach students to rgurgitate the bile that they feed them. Such teachers should have to wear a warning label: "Thinking for yourself could be dangerous to your grade."

By dividing knowledge into majors, UMass is creating artifical distinctions that both mislead students and limit them. If anyone thinks such assumed opposites like science and English really operate in their own separate vacuums, let them read literature written before Charles Darwin published Origin of Species and literature written after and then try to still think science does not influence literature. On the other hand, the scientific term Oedipus complex has a distinctly literary origin.

If the concept of majors is to be accepted as a necessary evil, professors should at least emphasize how interrelated each field is, especially when fuzzy distinctions are made within a major like that between American Romanticism and American Realism.

"At a time when a person's horizons should be expanding, students are forced to narrow their focus to a particular major. Society praises those of unlimited vision...yet churns out specialists."

These artificial distinctions hurt students by encouraging them to concentrate in one field— they must fulfill the requirements of a major in order to graduate. At a time when a person's horizons should be expanding, students are forced to narrow their focus to a particular major. Society praises those of unlimited vision like Francis Bacon, Benjamin Franklin, and Albert Einstein, yet churns out specialists.

Being a specialist might not only prevent students from becoming geniuses, it might also prevent them from earning a decent living, for in these days of technological revolution, where each person can expect several major career changes, it is the adaptable, flexible person who is going to thrive.

Competition. The myth is that America was built by it and an unfortunate fact may be that the world was destroyed by it. The student is forced to compete and so learns to cheat and to associate education with anxiety and fear of failure. What the student does not learn is to cooperate and to associate thinking with play.

Competition produces lonely individuals who cannot love their fellow human beings because they are led to believe that they are competing with them. Of course competition is just an illusion. Actually people spend their whole lives cooperating with other people to get their food, shelter, clothing, luxuries and a meager amount of happiness. But they are taught that they are competing.

Competition is a lot like mistrust. People are also taught not to trust strangers. This doctrine has sunk in enough so that the Russians will not be trusted even though it would save the world, yet people trust strangers with their lives every day — barbers, bus drivers, drivers of other cars, owners of hand guns, Ronald Reagan, etc....

In the class room, competition should be a little less emphasized and cooperation and communication among people should be encouraged. Who does it help to produce excellent students who are emotional cripples? When someone asks a UMass graduate, "What are you?" let not the answer be "A journalist" but let it be "A unique and happy part of the universe." Of course it sounds corny. Society teaches people to deal with verbal expression of deep emotions by labeling them "corny" so they can be more easily dismissed.

The administration of UMass will probably be reluctant to make actual changes like eliminating grades and majors. It would make UMass too much like Hampshire College and UMass students certainly do not want that. That would mean freedom, which demands responsibility.

"When someone asks a UMass graduate, 'What are you?' let not the answer be 'a journalist' or 'an accountant' but let it be 'A unique and happy individual.' "

Attitude changes, however, could quickly be adopted. Professors and students should think of the professor as only one of many minds in a class. Students should be encouraged to disagree with the professor's opinions. When it comes to projects and papers, the student's motto should be "Please myself, not the professor."

Our natural curiosity makes learning one of the easiest and most enjoyable activities available to us — until we reach organized education where the competition of the system teaches people to associate learning with anxiety. People need to regard learning as play. As the seniors graduate, most of them will be relieved that their education is over that is too bad. It is hoped that a few will happily feel that a lifetime of thinking lies ahead of them.

Kevin DeLuca is a person

It's been a great four years

Jim Fein

Time flies, or so goes the popular saying.

Academically speaking, nothing could be further from the truth. The responsiblities of being a student, as we all know, can become overwhelming at times. After four years of exams, papers, and that most dreaded time of all, finals, graduating feels as though I've just emerged successfully from a long battle of sorts. In fact, it seems only yesterday that:

I was a UMass freshman, in Amherst only a few days, when I was sent home along with 12,000 others living on campus during "The Evacuation." UMass had run out of water and we were instructed not to return until further notice.

Had I made a mistake in enrolling in a school so many of my high school friends called "Zoo Mass"?

Four years later I can answer this question with a resounding NO! I have found my stay here at the University to be a most rewarding experience, both academically and socially.

I am fully convinced of UMass's national reputation as an academically sound institution of higher learning. All of the departments in which I took courses were at least competent, while a few excelled. The fact that I have not even come close to taking courses in all of the existing departments speaks strongly for the wide variety of academic opportunities present here. And what of social opportunities?

Socially speaking, I believe that UMass is second to none. With such a large number of college-age people present in the Five College Area, the possible ways in which to spend one's spare time seems unlimited. There are so many organizations, clubs, and athletic teams on campus; so many movies to see, games to watch, concerts to attend, bars to frequent, and parties to go to that a decision on what to do during one's free time is often difficult.

It is often said that college years are the best years of a person's life, and I am inclined to believe so. In the future, when I reflect back upon my college experiences, I will have many memories, some of which I would like now to mention:

Orchard Hill Bowl Wars and Southwest Tower Wars. The Pyramids. Football games. Basketball games. Lacrosse games. The UMass Minuteman Marching band.The Coed Bathroom Rallies.The Nuclear Freeze Rally.The Newman Center.Smith and Mount Holyoke College parties.Off-Campus Parties.Protests and Student Demonstrations.The Bars.Happy hours (at the Blue Wall and T.O.C.).Food Fights.Standing in Lines.Guest Speakers (Tip O'Neil, Ted Kennedy, Gary Hart, Jesse Jackson, Billy Graham, etc.).Snowball Fights. All Nighters. Romances.

I was once told a college education is as much a social learning experience as an academic one. I most wholeheartedly agree.

UMass has changed some during the past four years. The administration has banned alcohol at all athletic events and closed the Campus Center on Halloween Weekend. The average student has become more studious over the interim, while the quality of the incoming freshman class keeps improving each year. Political activism and social awareness have both increased markedly over the past four years.

In light of these changes, I believe the quality of life and the education here at the University has improved beyond the respectable level it was at when I first enrolled here. I hope you believe it too. After all, how can we expect people to respect our diplomas, if we don't respect the school from which we earned it?

Thanks for a great education, UMass.

Jim Fein is a graduating Collegian staff member.

WE ARE OUT OF HERE--A couple of seniors pick up their outfits in preparation for the big day.

Le Boudoir
Intimate Fashions

Congratulations to all Graduates!!

Treat yourself or someone else to a gift of fine lingerie.

For her: nightgowns, robes, teddies, camisoles & tap pants, bras & bikinis, Calvin Klein underwear!

For him:100% cotton pyjamas by Christian Dior, silk undershirts, briefs and bikinis!

Come and see for yourself.
233 N. Pleasant Street, Carriage Shops, upper level
Amherst 549-6915

Congratulations Graduates!

Time Out

Free Popcorn

Two TV's

AMHERST'S BIGGEST LITTLE BAR
37 N. PLEASANT ST AMHERST. MA

Arts at UMass had a dynamic year of talent

It doesn't take long to notice that UMass isn't exactly located in the middle of a big, on-the-move city. It would be easy to infer, then, that if you decided to attend UMass, you'd have to kiss things like the ballet, Broadway shows and big-name musical acts goodbye for four years, right? Wrong!

Amherst may not be a bustling metropolis, but every year, UMass students have the opportunity to see nationally acclaimed plays, art exhibits, dance companies and musicians, without ever leaving campus. This year was no exception.

Lisa Mosley

During the past two semesters, the University hosted all manner of performers and performances, from Evita to the B52's. UMass' large diverse student and faculty population makes it a desirable place for touring performers and artists to stop at. The University's many excellent theaters and galleries, as well as the dedicated, professional (and mostly student) groups that keep them running, also make UMass attractive to performers and exhibiters.

The Fine Arts Center alone, for example, houses the University Gallery, the Curtain and Rand Theaters (where Theater Department productions are performed), Bezanson Recital hall and the impressive 2,100 seat Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, in which most of the "name" theater troups, dance troupes and musicians that come to the University to perform.

Noel Sporny, Fine Arts Center Publicist, said of '83-84' at the FAC: "Everything went great. We had a really successful season."

This comment comes as no surprise, considering the impressive line-up of talent that stopped at the FAC this past year. The fall season opened with three sold-out performances of the Tony Award-winning Broadway smash Evita and the year continued with consistently spectacular talent : the unusual yet extremely entertaining mime-mask troupe Mummenschanz, the classic mime Marcel Marceau, the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of the brilliant Seiji Ozawa, Jazz prodigy Winston Marsalis and the ever popular Judy Collins, just to name a few.

Collegian photo by Drew Ogier

ROCKING THE HOUSE--The B-52's danced the night away last November at the Fine Arts Center, one in a series of well-received artistic performances at the University.

The FAC Concert Hall was also the site of several fabulous sold-out rock concerts, all brought to the University by the Student-run Union Program Council. Elvis Costello, who was booed off stage here just five years ago, was this year's main attraction - the show sold out a few hours after the box office opened.

Thanks to UPC, UMass students also got to see the top acts in new dance music (the B52's), rockabilly (the Stray Cats), reggae (Eddie Grant and UB 40) and funk (Chaka Kahn).

Lance Foley, talent coordinator for UPC, was pleased with this year's performances, and with his organization: "The people that work with us are the ones who make it happen - I'd like to thank all the great people who put in untold unpaid hours just for the pleasure of others."

Excellence in entertainment didn't stop with the performing arts this year, though. The University's six galleries always had somthing inpressive and out of the ordinary to offer. Like the fresh-from New York, multi-media, multi-artist stand against nuclear war called The Shadow of the Bomb, which was shown in the University Gallery, Or the exhibitions and lecture by the man generally conidered to be the finest video artist working today, Nam June Paik (who is, by the way, in residence here this year) in Southwest's Hampden Gallery.

Even the Distinguished Visitors' Program, usually associated with lectures, brought the multi-talented actor-dancer-director Geoffry Holder (better known as the man from the 7 UP commercials) for a delightful performance at Bowker Auditorium this spring.

Dazzling as this past year's talent line-up was, next year's promises to be equally impressive. Critically acclaimed plays like Night Mother and Brighton Beach Memoirs and such talented performers as Ray Charles will headline the FAC's '84-85' season, and if this year was any indication, UPC and the University Galleries will also have many exciting offerings.

UMass, It may not be Manhattan, but it certainly is western Massachsetts' cultural oasis.

Lisa Mosley is the Collegian's graduating arts editor.

Graduate to Carbur's

Five-College Club

Now that you've survived countless all-nighters, constant cramming, and endless exams, you've graduated to Carbur's Five-College Club.

Why not treat Mom and Dad to one...

...A formidable, five-decker feast featuring shrimp salad, seafood salad, sliced baked ham, turkey breast, roast beef, lettuce, tomato, and your choice of dressing!

Served with all the "Pomp and Circumstance" you could ask for!

For you Magna-Cum Laudes, the Rib-it Room specializes in prime prime rib and sumptuous seafood.

CARBUR'S

RESTAURANT & LOUNGE

AT THE ELMWOOD, RT. 9 HADLEY, MASSACHUSETTS (413)586-1978

So let's lift a glass in honor of the class of 1984.

The Alumni Office

UMass mirrors the American times of change

By MIRIAM ZOLL
Collegian Staff

Oh, how the times have changed.

In the days when Eisenhower was president, UMass was known for its excellent agricultural school, there were strict curfews for all women, the dormitories were single sex and there was very little student political activity.

Today UMass in several areas is ranked among the top ten schools in the nation, the curfews have disappeared, the majority of the dormitories are co-ed, and UMass is often referred to as the "Berkeley of the East."

Miriam Zoll

During the fifties, when the jitterbug was the dance craze and panty raids the latest fad, there were about 3,000 students at UMass. The administration, in keeping with the educational philosophy of in loco parenti (in place of parents), implimented codes of conduct and strict disciplinary rules.

Under in loco parenti, says current Dean of Students William Field, who was a psychology professor in the 1950s, freshman women had 7 p.m. curfews, upperclass women had 10 p.m. curfews, and men had no curfews.

Astrid (Sandy) Hanson, a 1952 graduate who is currently the conductor of a Boston-based group, the Acapella Singers, says she remembers the curfews well.

"We were running for the curfews, literally running, from the car we were driven home in because they would stand there, flicking the lights on with 20 to 30 couples standing there kissing," she says.

As a senior, Hanson, whose son and daughter currently attend UMass, joined Alpha Kappa Theta, a sorority where "we slept 18 together on the top floor with no heat."

"We were running for the curfews, literally running, from the car we were driven home in because they would stand there, flicking the lights on with 20 to 30 couples kissing."
—Astrid Hanson, '52

Fraternity and sorority parties were the "big thing on the weekends," she says. "The guys wore white bucks and khaki colored pants, very few wore blue jeans. We wore white sneakers, white ankle socks that came up to the calf, skirts, sweaters, and more often than not you wore a string of pearls."

Less than a decade later, the intensifying Civil Rights Movement drew thousands of college students into the deep south to help with voter registration drives. However, according to Dean Field, during the early sixties political activity at UMass was minimal.

"In the late fifties we became a University in terms of behavior," he says. "We increased by more than 1,000 students per semester, and every year we had to build new academic buildings and dormitories. We had to double the size of the faculty every five years. It was very growth oriented."

But while the physical appearance of the campus underwent massive renovation, including the construction of the Orchard Hill and Southwest residential areas, in loco parenti and curfews remained the same. And although new buildings attracted students to campus, the Greek system still remained as an important part of students' social life.

For Linda Bonney, who attended UMass from 1960 to 1963, the Hatch, the student cafeteria in the Student Union Building, was the "central meeting place, besides the fraternities."

Like Hanson, Bonney said she remembered curfews and strict dormitory rules.

"We had housemothers on each floor who oversaw the whole dorm and she was in the lobby making sure no one got in and out," she said. "If you were going out, you had to leave an address and phone number of where you were."

But for men like Shean O'Leary, who was a brother at Phi Sig in the early sixties, there "really wasn't any supervision" in the dorms and "everything was wide open."

"Women couldn't go into the men's dorms and vice-versa," he said, "but we'd have exchange suppers with the frats and sororities that would wind up as a party."

O'Leary said while he was at UMass from 1960-1965 the Vietnam War had really not become an issue yet and that students were not very active.

On the day John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas, Texas, O'Leary said he remembered "a lot of confusion" on campus.

"When JFK was assassinated, they closed school around noontime and I remember going home," he said. "I remember coming out of my Shakespeare class and someone had a radio that said he was shot but O.K. Later that afternoon I found out. It was scary."

The confusion that followed Kennedy's assassination escalated as the war in Indochina continued and the draft began. There were race riots in Watts, Detroit, and Newark, and student demonstrations against the war and restrictive administration policies spread to campuses throughout the country, including UMass.

"The Civil Rights Movement was the big thing that transformed the University," says Dean Field. "The second part was the women's movement. As that took place, you saw the push to get rid of all the rules that went with residence halls, to get rid of in loco parenti."

When Cynthia Olken-Crutchfield started school in 1966, the dorms were single sex, she wore skirt and sweater outfits to class, and she had a curfew of midnight on weekdays and 1 a.m. on the weekends. By the time she graduated in 1970, students were wearing jeans and sweatshirts to class, the dormitories were just turning co-ed by floors, and there were frequent student protests and sit-ins.

"It was almost like going to school to get an education was secondary," Crutchfield said. "Being a political activist came first."

"The year I graduated was the year of the student strike all over the country. At our graduation, we wore black armbands and we sang "We Shall Overcome," the theme of the Civil Rights Movement, instead of the national anthem."

In 1969, Crutchfield recalled, black students occupied Mills House and demanded it as a separate place for themselves. Today it is the New Africa House, a black history resource center and home for the Afro-American department. In 1970, "fighting the Board of Trustees all the way," Greenough dormitory in Central residential area became the first co-ed dorm at UMass, and in that same year, Crutchfield became the first student member of the Board of Trustees.

The tragic shooting deaths of four Kent State University students in May of 1970

"The civil rights movement was the big thing that transformed the University. The second part was the women's movement. As that took place, you saw the push to get rid of all the rules that went with the residence halls, to get rid of in loco parenti."
—Dean William Field

was a turning point for faculty and students at UMass.

The weeklong student strike following the shootings became a forum for other issues, Dean Field says. "Once it started, people started deciding other things should happen. It was a matter of free child care and the protest against the war became a protest for freedom in people."

Jerry Quarles, after serving a year in Vietnam, arrived at UMass three weeks before the Kent State shootings.

"When you walked around campus, there was no one there," he said. "People weren't in classes, they were at home."

While he was in Vietnam, Quarles said, the girl he was seeing wrote him and said, " 'we're not against the GIs, but against the whole war.' I came back and found out the folks weren't against me."

As the seventies rolled on, the war at home and in Vietnam ended. At UMass, construction of three new residential areas was finally completed for the 20,000 or more students then enrolled.

The late seventies, according to Jackson Katz, a 1982 graduate with degrees in philosophy and women's studies, was "a bad time" for students who were politically aware.

"There were financial aid cutbacks, tuition increases and the renewal of draft registration," he recalled.

In 1981, Katz was involved with a student coalition effort to resist administrative attempts to eliminate co-ed bathrooms in co-ed dorms.

"In retrospect, it might look like a silly and trivial issue in light of the growing problems we face in this world," Katz says, "but at the time we felt the need to protest the disregard for our input."

Katz said the "party school image" UMass developed in the late seventies is not altogether "inaccurate," however, he said, most large universities, including the elite status schools, can be considered party schools.

Julia Courtney, a 1984 graduate with a degree in communication disorders, says the number of ideas students are exposed to at UMass compared to other schools has been a positive experience for her.

Courtney says one of the best things about UMass was that she could "always go see a speaker, find a free movie, or go to another college."

When people ask her about "Zoo Mass," the nickname given to UMass in the late seventies, Courtney says she wants "to shake people and tell them this place is great."

"There's so much learning going on here," she says, "It's the best place to live and sometimes I wish I could be a full time student forever."

Miriam Zoll is the Collegian's graduating Women's News Editor.

Collegian graphic by Steve Anderson

AND NOW FOR REALITY — It's time to find out why we spent so many years at the University, not exactly a thrilling prospect. Bye now...

ANDY'S PIZZA

#1 pizza in town

CONGRATULATIONS to the Class of 1984

Stop in for dinner
PIZZA, GRINDERS, SALADS
& a complete dinner menu plus beer & wine

175 University Drive, Amherst
Tel. 256-8148, 256-8147

The Creative Needle

Best Wishes to the Class of '84

UMass Insignia Needlework
A Memory that lasts a lifetime.
Inquire by mail.

233 N. Pleasant St. 549-6106
Carriage Shops Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30

University of Market Hill says bye now

The GRADUATE SCHOOL Congratulates all 1984 Graduates Best Wishes for the future

Men play to mixed reviews in past season

By BRIAN C. MURPHY
Collegian Staff

This past year of sports at UMass wasn't too kind to those of us who no longer get to play in the land of the make belive. The Class of '84 went out on a somewhat sour note, but we have not been deprived. We have been very fortunate to have witnessed some of the best who ever played at the University of Massachusetts.

In my span as a college student (although some will suggest I wasn't one) I was lucky enough to watch Garry Pearson perform for three seasons. I watched Jim Reid and Bob Pickett make UMass a football team no team could take lightly.

I witnessed first-hand the transformation that UMass men's basketball made, from Ray Wilson to Tom McLaughlin to Ron Gerlufsen. I watched Edwin Green improve each and every year, breaking records until he became the second all-time leading scorer at UMass. I also watched John Hempel become a nationally known basketball player until he very recently decided to transfer to another school with a BIG-TIME basketball program — St. Johns.

I was lucky to watch college baseball, and although UMass will never be confused with Arizona State, a good brand of baseball is played here. And there's no way I could not mention Jim Weller. Without a doubt he is the finest lacrosse player I have ever seen. Anyone who ever sat on Boyden Hill and watched him play will agree he was outstanding.

No sirree, I have not been deprived. But alas we move on and enter the real world, but the memories can't be taken from us.

The UMass football team had a disappointing season finishing up with a 3-8 record, 2-3 in the Yankee Conference. It was a season of tough breaks and tough luck.

The tone for the season was set in August when star fullback and punter Demo Drougas of Peabody was told he had a congenital neck injury. The physicians told Drougas that the injury was life-threatening if he stepped on the football field again. Stunned and disappointed, Drougas ended his football career before it actually started.

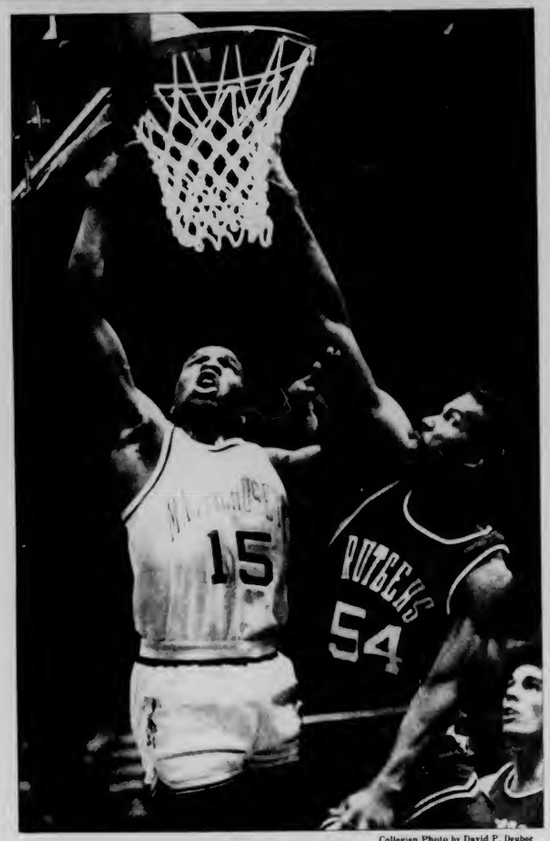
The loss of Drougas and the problems of the quarterbacks, Jim Simeone and Barrett McGrath, resulted in an anemic offense that could muster less than two touchdowns per game.

This past season marked the last for several key players for UMass. Tri-captains Richard Jenkins, Gary Freker and Grady Fuller played their last games for the Minutemen.

The season also was the last for Coach Bob Pickett. In his six seasons at the helm of UMass, he compiled a 36-28 record. In 1978, his team finished second in the nation for Division I-AA. He also led his teams to four Yankee Conference titles. Pickett was a pro, he cared for his players, and he can only be described as classy.

The Class of '84 was witness to some frustrating seasons of basketball, but this past season was encouraging, exciting, and fun. First year Head Coach Ron Gerlufsen picked up the pieces from the previous coaches and molded the team into a solid basketball squad. UMass finished their season with a 12-17 record, 6-12 in the Atlantic 10.

For the past five seasons, UMass had been the laughing stock of college basketball.



But this year it changed. The Minutemen won nine of their first ten in the friendly confines of the Curry Hicks Cage. Edwin Green, John Hempel and Carl Smith became the darlings of the crazed in the Cage.

Smith won us over when he double-pumped in the lands of the redwoods to win two games. Green blocked and tomahawked his way through four years here, and he wound up the #2 all-time scorer at UMass. He moved past a man by the name of Julius Erving in the process of this feat.(I still can't understand why the Doctor hasn't received an honorary degree. Take notice Joe D. if you're reading).

However, all wasn't that rosy for UMass hoop fans. Next year, the Cage will be renovated and the team will play in Springfield. Also, John Hempel elected to transfer out of the school, to move on in his basketball career.

Lacrosse had a successful season this spring, winding up at 8-4. The Gorilla crew came oh so close to making the playoffs for the national championship, as they ended the campaign ranked tenth nationally. Bubba Sandford, Mike Fiorini and Tom Lukacovic did the bulk of the scoring, and anyone who watched the good guys edge those crewcut men from Army knew just how much lacrosse meant to this school.

It was a fun four years. It's gone now, but life goes on. I'm leaving, and I'm happy about it. But my memories as a sports fan at UMass won't die. They'll be remembered as a special part of my life.

Collegian Photo by David P. Deuber

BASELINE FOR TWO--Horace Heysmith in action earlier this semester at the Cage. The men's basketball team will not play at the Cage next year due to renovations.

3 Final Four squads this year for the women

By GERRY deSIMAS
Collegian Staff

1983-84 was a banner year for women's athletics at UMass as three teams made it to the Final Four in their respective sports and several players earned All-American status.

The field hockey team, the Women's soccer and women's lacrosse teams all qualified for the Final Four while the women's basketball team improved and the softball team gethered the most wins ever.

The latest Final Four entry was the women's lacrosse team who took fourth place at Boston University last weekend. The Gazelles were not expected to get anywhere near the Final Four this year.

But the team grew stronger as the season went on. They nipped Yale 7-6 in overtime on Bunny Forbes goal in the first round and then upset fourth seeded Harvard 5-4 on a Pam Moryl goal with 1:07 left to go to the Final Four.

In the semi-finals, top-seeded Maryland jumped out to a quick 5-0 lead enroute to a 9-3 win. Delaware took third place after they jumped tgo a 6-3 lead in a 9-5 victory.

Still, it was an accomplishment for UMass to be there. Moryl and co-captain Carol Progulske were named All-Americans for the second straight year. Moryl scored 51 goals this season. Co-captain Linda Haytayan was the closest to Moryl with 33 goals. Moryl was also named and All-American in field hockey in the fall. Pam Hixon's team finished third with a 2-1 overtime win over Northwestern in the consolation game.

All-American goalie Patty Shea, who played the Northwestern game with a cracked bone in her arm, and two-time All-American Megan Donnelly were mainstays on the Minutewomen (15-3-2) squad, that lost 3-2 in overtime to national champion Old Dominion in the semi-finals.

The women's soccer team also finished third with a1-0 win over UConn, which gave Kalekeni Banda's boosters the New England title. UMass, (12-3-3) lost a tough 2-1 decision to National Champion North Carolina in the semi-finals. Stacey Flionis, Chris Taggart and Lori Stukes were All-American picks. Flionis is the only senior in the group.

This wasn't the first year that the field hockey or women's lacrosse team had been in NCAA playoff action. The field hockey team, under Hixon, finished second in 1981 to UConn and tenth in 1982. The women's lacrosse team, also under Hixon, took second to Penn State in 1979, took fourth in 1980, sixth in 1981, won the NCAA title (10-0 season) with a 9-6 win over Trenton State in 1982 and took fourth in 1983. The soccer team took fifth in 1982.

However, success was felt in other women's sports. The softball team posted the most wins ever in a 29-12 season. The rattled off a 15 game winning streak and ahd four players, Sally Maher (1B), Carol Frattaroli (2b), Allyson Rioux (ss) and Lynn Stockey (p) named to All-Atlantic 10 team. Rioux, a second team All-American choice last year, has an excellent shot to be named All-American this year.

The women's basketball team continued to improve under first year coach Barbara Stevens. Sophomore Barbara Hebel made the Atlantic 10 second All-Star team as the women improved to 10-17 after a 5-22 season the year before.

The women's gymnastics team posted a fine 10-6 record, took third in the Atlantic 10 under the able leadership of senior Robin Low.

These women's teams have set high standards for their precessors but with increased scholarship aid, the future looks as bright as the past, if not brighter.

Seven varsity sports slated for elimination

By PETER ABRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The quantity was there in University of Masschusetts athletics, but not the quality. Nationally competitive teams were too few and far between to suit both students and administrators. So changes have been made, big changes.

As of September four sports, the men's and women's basketball teams, the football team, and the men's lacrosse team, will be given scholarship support to the highest level allowed by the NCAA for a Division 1 school.

Combine this with the recent hirings of Bob Stull as football coach and Ron Gerlufsen as hoop mentor (last year) with the renovations of the venerated Curry Hicks Cage and Minuteman sports look to be on the upswing.

Eight sports, field hockey, men's and women's soccer, men's track/cross country, baseball, women's lacrosse, and softball, all will also be given increased scholarship aid to varying degrees.

The women's track, cross country, gymnastics, volleyball and swimming teams will be given some in-state tuition waivers and additional support.

"The key to reversing the trend is scholarships," said UMass athletic director Frank McInerny in explaining the new program.

The price UMass is paying for this? Seven sports, men's and women's golf, men's and women's tennis, wrestling, and men's and women's skiing, will be cut back from the varsity to the club level. A move comparable to playing in Fenway Park and then being relocated to the Amherst Common. It's just not the same.

The savings this move will generate will be about $75,000, all of which will go toward making the other sports more competitive.

The expectations of UMass' short range plan? Dominance in the Yankee Conference in football, title contention in the Atlantic 10 in basketball and national title contention in lacrosse.

The other sports are expected to do well in the East and make a run at national prominence. The new club sports are given the task of being competitive within their new level.

"The athletic administration has been working on this plan for nine months," said McInerney. "It has received the endorsement of the athletic committee of the Board of Turstees, Chancellor Joseph D. Duffey, President David C. Knapp, and the university Athletic Council."

All students receiving tuition waivers and playing for the newly downgraded sports will continue to receive aid until their contracts run out. All coaches will also be paid under their present agreements.

The dividends for the major sports include a dramatic increase in atheletic scholarships. The football team goes from 60 to 70 free rides, the basketball teams will retain their 15 each, the men's lacrosse team goes from none to 14, field hockey goes from one to four, men's soccer gets its first four, women's soccer has three more added to its original single scholarship, and the men's track/cross country squad will receive four.

Support the Silly Old Gumper Bunnies.